Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

START OF BOOK

NEWSPAPER CLIPPING SCRAPBOOKS

1901 - 1903

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

INDEX WAS NOT USED FOR RECORDING

A B C D E F G H I J K L Mc M N O P Q R S T U V W

O.S. 32720

SCRANTOM, WETMORE & CO.
Commercial
STATIONERS
AND BLANK BOOK MAKERS,
ROCHESTER, N.Y.
EVERYTHING FOR THE OFFICE.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

...S IN THE PARK.

...of a Series To Be Given ... Sunday Afternoon.

The first of the park concerts under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce will take place on Sunday afternoon in Genesee Valley Park. The musicians will occupy the new band stand near the refectory and close to the grove.

For this occasion the Fifty-fourth Regiment Band has been engaged, and Leader Fred Zeitler has prepared a fine programme of suitable selections. It is anticipated that many thousands of people will attend.

President Lamberton and Secretary Ives have worked hard to raise money and make arrangements for these concerts, as they believe that everything adding to the attractions of Rochester as a place of residence should be secured.

SUNDAY CONCERT.

Programme to be Given by 54th Regiment Band at Genesee Valley Park.

Judging from present appearances and the weather, the first band concert to be given under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, which occurs at Genesee Valley park Sunday afternoon next, from 3 to 6 o'clock, will be largely attended. Most unpleasant weather has prevented the concerts being begun before this. Last Sabbath was bright and warm, but the ground was damp and the preceding days had been so rainy that it was thought best not to hold the concert, as at least two days' notice is thought necessary.

These concerts will be something new to Rochester, which is behind other cities or even villages in this respect. The Saturday and Sunday afternoon band concert in the city parks have become a popular form of amusement in many cities. Early this year the chamber took up the matter, and, by appealing to the citizens in person, was able to collect enough money to defray the expense of the concerts, which will be given Saturday and Sunday afternoons during the summer, in the three larger city parks and on the campus of the University of Rochester.

The Fifty-fourth Regiment Band has generously offered its services free for the first concert, and the offer has been accepted. The following is the programme for the afternoon, consisting of two parts of six numbers each, and extending through three hours. The programme:

PART I.

March—"Mechanics Institute"..Roland Seitz
Overture—"Fra Diavolo"..Auber
Serenade—"Love in Idleness"..Macbeth
Selection—"The Burgomaster"..Gustav Loders
Waltz—"Rolling Waves"..Tobani
Medley—"Sweet Old Songs"..Dalbey

PART II.

March—"The Invincible Eagle" (new)..Sousa
Overture—"Fest"..Sentner
Song—"The Holy City"..Stephen Adams
Selection—"Bohemian Girl"..Balfe
Waltz—"Wedding of the Winds"..John T. Hall
Grand American Fantasia..Bendix

TO HOLD HERE A DEEP WATERWAY CONVENTION

Chamber of Commerce to Take the Initiative Steps.

SO DECIDED YESTERDAY

Matter Considered of Great Importance —Action on Reciprocity with Canada—Railroads will not Grant Reduced Rates to Buffalo.

The extreme heat did not prevent the trustees and the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce from holding a meeting yesterday afternoon, and transacting considerable business. The deep waterway question was brought before the meeting by the reading of a letter submitted by John A. C. Wright, and the members of the committees acted unanimously in voting in favor of a convention to be held in this city, say in September, to be attended by engineers, ship builders, transportation experts and others interested in the scheme to join Lake Erie with Ontario and make a deep waterway to the ocean.

The chamber adopted a resolution in favor of the convention and will send out the invitations. The chamber advocates the deep waterway rather than a barge canal, spending more money on the Erie canal in the way of deepening or enlargement, and is not particular where the boats touch so long as they enter the port of the Genesee (Rochester) and continue on down to the Atlantic, while the federal government pays the cost, and the adding of the cost of improving the Erie canal on the state is obviated.

In the following letter the situation is well described, and just what is being done by Mr. Wright, who has given the subject much thought and deep study. He is considered one of the best authorities on this deep waterway. His letter follows:

Rochester, N. Y., June 10, 1901.

My Dear Sir: At the Cleveland deep-waterway convention in 1895, I obtained what was practically approval of Rochester as the next meeting place. Though tentatively considered, it has not been thought advisable to hold one until now.

Since that time I have been furthering such deep waterway, and by my associations and from the newspaper matter, all of which on this topic I have taken during these years, I think I know the prevailing opinion.

There is a feeling throughout the Northwest and the lakes' basin that New York is antagonistic to such a commercial highway, to date, adequate, and the amount of interest given to inadequate solutions make it evident that New York state make some definite proposition that she will join in the cost that will insure her commercial supremacy, and until she does, the West will [illegible] Chicago boat Northwestern [illegible] mail to Buffalo, where [illegible] Erie canal and thence [illegible] business.

[illegible] upon this matter, and the state canal situation this winter, have altogether awakened public interest, and have caused me to advance consideration of the deep waterway to such an extent that it is now intelligently discussed and favored by representative papers in most every section of the state, hitherto impossible to say.

The opening this year of the modern fourteen-foot Canadian canals along the St. Lawrence and her projected Huron-Ottawa ship canal, which is backed by those who constructed the Manchester canal, and the effort of Chicago and the West to extend her now opened drainage canal to the Mississippi, emphasize the need of action along the natural waterways to the Hudson and to New York, as the natural gateway of the continental basin; unless this is promoted, they will be.

These and others, and the isthmian canal, will make waterways the chief topic of congress next winter.

We have now complete detailed surveys and studies after the expenditure of seven years' time and $500,000, of such waterway, consonant with its magnitude, which will be printed and ready for distribution this summer and upon which intelligent discussion can found itself, and the searchlight of its veritable data will pierce the fog of misinformation and misrepresentation up to now distorting the public view of this project.

The first step in such natural development will be a waterway at least twenty-one feet in depth, with locks eighty feet wide for naval use and shipbuilding output, around Niagara, this side, and which need involve only 11 6-10 miles of actual canal and nine locks, and bring in nine hours the 8,000-ton freighter from Erie into Ontario.

Rochester is the largest place upon Ontario, and it is the fit and proper locus, for reasons that may be apparent, for the meeting place of such a deep waterway convention, and I suggest that you submit the proposition to your board of trustees, with the idea of taking action for calling one to be held under its auspices, say the latter part of September, unless this is done now, it will go elsewhere.

Rochester stands next to Buffalo as a place from which to see the Pan-American Exposition—though Buffalo, the New York, is made by the country back of her—there are indications why Buffalo would not fully welcome such a convention.

It may be held in Rochester in connection with the Pan-American Exposition, just the same, as the first and necessary step before the public and congress this all-American trunk waterway through the great continental basin, in which lies so much of the population, wealth and freight movement of the country.

Viewed at large, it is not only the fittest place for the convention, but the best center for those on this side and from Canada likely to attend, and I need only to intimate to you that the men who will come will be men of the first class; engineers and transportation experts of national and international reputation, and men who control the commerce and operate the great iron and steel and other industries in this basin, particularly shipbuilding.

I shall be here until I return to Washington for the winter, and can easily aid you in securing their attendance, and would suggest that the chamber decide upon such a convention and issue preliminary invitations, and governed by what results from these, arrange a successful convention lasting from two to three days.

Yours very truly,
JOHN A. C. WRIGHT.

John M. Ives, Esq., Secretary Chamber of Commerce, Rochester, N. Y.

It is expected that such a convention will draw to Rochester a representative body of men, some of whom will be in attendance at the Pan-American Exposition and can make the run down to Rochester without trouble. It is believed that Rochester should take the initiative in the matter, being the largest American city on Lake Ontario.

A letter was read from E. G. Preston, secretary of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, asking the Rochester chamber to co-operate in asking the president to reconvene the United States and British joint high commission, so that action may be taken on reciprocity with Canada. The Rochester Chamber of Commerce favors reciprocity with Canada and so placed itself on record yesterday.

The chamber has at last received word from George H. Daniels, general passenger agent of the New York Central, that the reduced rates asked for Rochester Day at the Pan-American Exposition could not be granted by the railroads. Mr. Daniels says that some time before the exposition opened the passenger agents of the roads, including those operating between Rochester and Buffalo, made the rate $1.50, "which is within a few cents of half fare," and that nothing lower could be given, not even on this special occasion. Mr. Daniels said that he had just notified Director-General Buchanan of this decision.

Just what the chamber will now do remains to be seen. At the last meeting the matter was left to the committee on railroads and transportation, of which Daniel B. Murphy is chairman.

The following gentlemen and firms were elected members of the chamber:

The Monroe Optical Company, Aqueduct building, manufacturers of eyeglasses and spectacles.

Mosley T. Mulliban, No. 290 West avenue, physician and surgeon.

Vanderbilt Improvement Company, Walter A. Price, president, No. 907 Chamber of Commerce building.

Vallance A. Wickens, No. 289 West avenue, physician and surgeon.

Herbert A. Anderson, No. 391 West avenue, physician.

James Brady, No. 394 Plymouth avenue, physician.

F. A. Killip, No. 402 Clinton avenue north, physician.

Deep Waterway Convention.

The Rochester Chamber of Commerce proposes that a convention to consider the question of a deep waterway connecting the lakes with tide water shall be held in this city late in September. It is an excellent idea.

In 1895 a convention of this kind was held in Cleveland, was attended by some of the ablest engineers and some of the most prominent business men in the country, and it did much toward arousing the people to a realizing sense of the importance of further canal construction. A convention here would not only continue the good work, but would prove of great benefit to Rochester.

There is no city in the country so deeply concerned as Rochester in the construction of a deep waterway. It would make Rochester virtually a seaport, and immense foundries and shipbuilding yards would spring up here. [illegible] as a coal-shipping port, Rochester might take the lead. The possibilities are certainly immense. But under present conditions the growth of Rochester must necessarily be comparatively slow, for it is hemmed in.

The first thing that should be done is to construct a ship canal connecting Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. That would put all the cities of Lake Ontario into direct and cheap communication with the great West and would result in enormous benefit to both sections. After the construction of this canal, the eastern outlet could be taken up for consideration as a separate problem. At present engineers are in doubt as to whether it is better to connect Lake Ontario with salt water by way of the St. Lawrence, or by way of Lake Champlain and the Hudson, or by way of the Mohawk and the Hudson. Further investigations may lead to a solution of this question. But there is no doubt in the mind of anybody who has studied the question as to the importance of connecting Lake Erie and Lake Ontario, and the place where the connection should be made is not a matter of doubt. The question of the route presents no difficulties. Nature has settled that herself.

Such a deep waterway would not interfere in the least with the present canal system of the state. The advocates of a barge canal, the advocates of a ship canal, and the advocates of the present Erie canal could unite on the question of a ship canal to get around Niagara falls, and very little, if any, opposition to the project would develop. It would increase the trade and commerce of the states lying immediately to the south, and it would prove of immense benefit to the West. It is the duty of Rochester men to push this project.

MORE CANAL TALK.

Westerners Want Federal Government To Act.

New York, June 28.—State Engineer Bond stated recently, says an Albany dispatch, that a few days ago he received a visit from two eminent engineers who brought him a letter of introduction from Mr. Hay, Secretary of State. Their names he unfortunately had forgotten. These gentlemen said the object of their visit was to secure a copy of Mr. Bond's recent elaborate report upon the probable cost of constructing a barge canal across this state and any other statistics bearing upon the subject in his possession.

They stated that practically every state in the Northwest was in favor of the construction of a larger canal over this state for the sake of lowering the cost of the transportation of wheat and other western products to eastern markets. The failure of the canal men of this state last winter, however, to come to any agreement upon a plan for canal improvement was discouraging to western shippers, and therefore they now thought an appeal should be made to Congress to improve the canals of New York at the expense of every state in the Union.

The Western engineers said that it was believed in the West that a 21-foot canal should be built from Buffalo to Lake Ontario and then from Oswego, on Lake Ontario, to the Hudson River. This is the least expensive line for such a canal.

A canal of 21 feet in depth would cost about $50,000,000. The United States, the Western engineers said, would have to undertake it. New York State could not be expected alone to accept such a financial burden.

Further, the Western visitors said that before Congress met again, in their belief, the Congressmen from Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota, Nebraska and North Dakota would come to an agreement upon a policy of canal improvement to be undertaken by the United States government, and that this policy would include a 21 foot canal from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario and from Lake Ontario to the Hudson River.

Rochester the Next Meeting Place.

At the close of the twenty-third annual convention of the Knights of St. John Thursday night, Rochester was chosen as the place of meeting next year, an invitation having been extended from Mayor Carnahan and Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce. Major John P. Smith eloquently dilated upon the beauties and advantages of Rochester as a convention city, with the result that amid extended applause it was selected. The election of officers resulted as follows: Supreme spiritual adviser, Rt. Rev. Bernard J. McQuaid, D. D.; supreme president, Henry Fritz, of Erie, Pa.; first supreme vice-president, Jacob J. Nunnold, Rochester, N. Y.; second supreme vice-president, John McFarland, Philadelphia, Pa.; supreme secretary, Michael J. Kane, Buffalo, N. Y.; supreme treasurer, John Tobenbier, Detroit, Mich.; supreme trustees, Charles J. O'Connor, Peoria, Ill., J. C. Lally, Cleveland, Ohio. The delegates representing the Rochester commanderies were Jacob J. Nunnold, George J. Welder, Frank Koch, August Kramer, Joseph P. Freind and John T. Smith. The ladies' auxiliaries were represented by Miss Mamie Hilbert, Miss K. Harder and Miss Katherine A. Smith.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

FAIRS TO BE HELD

Throughout the State of New York This Fall.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES

In the Various Counties of the State Pleasing Exhibitions Will Be Given—Many Prosperous Town Associations—The State Fair at Syracuse Is Fixed for September 9-14.

From Yesterday's Herald.

Albany, June 29.—The Journal prints the following list of agricultural fairs to be held in the state during 1901:

New York State Fair—Syracuse, September 9-14.

Farmers Club—Hornellsville, holds no fair.

Cambridge Valley—Cambridge, August 27-30.

Albany County—Altamont, August 26-29.

Allegany County—Angelica, September 10-12.

Broom County—Whitneys Point, September 3-6.

Cattaraugus County—Little Valley, September 3-6.

Chemung County—Elmira, September 30-October 4.

Chenango County—Norwich, September 3-6.

Clinton County—Plattsburg, September 10-12.

Columbia County—Chatham, September 3-6.

Cortland County—Cortland, August 27-30.

Delaware County—Delhi, September 5-7.

Dutchess County—Poughkepesie, September 24-27.

Erie County—Hamburg, September 10-12.

Essex County—Westport, September 3-6.

Franklin County—Malone, September 24-27.

Fulton County—Johnstown, September 2-5.

Genesee County—Batavia, September 16-18.

Greene County—Cairo, August 20-29.

Herkimer County—Herkimer, September 3-5.

Jefferson County—Watertown, September 3-6.

Lewis County—Lowville, September 17-20.

Livingston County—Holds no fair.

Brookfield, Madison County—Fair Park, Brookfield, September 23-26.

Montgomery County—Fonda, September 9-12.

American Institute—New York, undecided.

Niagara County—Lockport, September 24-26.

Onondaga County Syracuse, Undecided.

Ontario County—Canandaigua, September 17-19.

Orange County—Middletown, September 17-20.

Orleans County—Albion, September 19-21.

Oswego County—Oswego Falls, September 17-20.

Otsego County—Cooperstown, September 23-25.

Putnam County—Carmel, August 27-30.

Queens-Nassau Counties—Mineola, September 24-28.

Agricultural and Liberal Arts, Rensselaer County—Nassau, September 10-13.

Rensselaer County—Undecided.

Rockland County—Orangeburg, September 9-13.

St. Lawrence County—Canton, September 17-20.

Saratoga County—Ballston Spa, August 26-30.

Schoharie County—Schoharie, September 16-19.

Schuyler County—Watkins, September 17-20.

Seneca County—Waterloo, September 24-26.

Steuben County—Bath, September 24-27.

Suffolk County—Riverhead, September 17-20.

Sullivan County—Monticello, August 27-30.

Tioga County—Owego, September 3-5.

Tompkins County—Ithaca, September 17-20.

Ulster County—Ellenville, August 27-30.

Washington County—Fort Edward, September 9-12.

Wayne County—Lyons, September 18-21.

Westchester County—White Plains, September 30-October 5.

Wyoming County—Warsaw, September 24-25.

Yates County—Penn Yan, September 10-12.

Cuba Fair and Racing Association—Cuba, undecided.

Wellsville Fair Association—Wellsville, August 19-23.

Binghamton Industrial Exposition—Binghamton, October 1-4.

Franklinville Agricultural and Driving Park Association—Franklinville, August 27-30.

Afton Driving Park and Agricultural Association—Afton, September 24-27.

Riverside Agricultural Society—Greene, September 10-12.

Columbia Agricultural and Horticultural Association—Hudson, August 23-30.

Catskill Mountain Agricultural Society—Margaretville, August 20-22.

Delaware Valley Agricultural Society—Walton, September 2-5.

Sidney Fair Association—Sidney, September 10-12.

Shaverown Agricultural Society—Sha[illegible] August 27-29.

[illegible] Horticultural and A[illegible]

Hemlock Lake Union Agricultural Society—Hemlock, October 1-4.

Brockport Union Agricultural Society—Brockport, September 26-28.

West End Agricultural Association—Palatin Bridge, undecided.

Boonville Fair Association—Boonville, September 3-6.

Vernon Agricultural Society—Vernon, September 25-26.

Phoenix Union Agricultural Society—West Phoenix, September 25-28.

Farmers and Mechanics Agricultural Society—Bristol Center, undecided.

Gorham Agricultural Society—Reed Corners, October 3-5.

Naples Union Agricultural Society—Naples, September, 17-19.

Sandy Creke, Richland, Orwell and Boylston Agricultural Society, Sandy Creek, August 27-30.

Morris Fair Association—Morris, October 1-3.

Oneonta Union Agricultural Society—Oneonta, September 16-18.

Richfield Springs Agricultural Society—Richfield Springs, September 30-October 2.

Schenevus Valley Agricultural Society—Schenevus, September 19-21.

Rockland County Industrial Association—New City, September 3-6.

Gouverneur Agricultural and Mechanical Society—Gouverneur, August 27-30.

Oswegatchie Agricultural Society—Ogdensburg, September 3-6.

The Rocket Valley and St Regis Valley Horticultural Society—Patsdam, September 10-13.

Cobleskill Agricultural Society—Cob'eskill, September 23-26.

Pratsburg Union Agricultural Society—Prattsburg, September 11-13.

Southern Steuben Agricultural Society—Troupsburg, September 3-6.

Neversink Agricultural Society—Grahamsville, undecided.

Northern Tioga Agricultural Society—Newark Valley, September 10-12.

Dryden Agricultural Society—Dryden, September 17-20.

Union Agricultural and Horticultural Society—Trumansburg, September 3-6.

Glen Dale Union Agricultural Society—Pottersville, undecided.

Warren County fair—Warrensburg, September 17-20.

Newark Fair Association—Newark, October 3-5.

Palmyra Union Agricultural Society—Palmyra, September 26-28.

Silver Lake Agricultural and Mechanical Association—Perry, October 1-2.

Dundee Fair Association—Dundee, undecided.

---

first Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT

BY THE

Fifty-Fourth Regiment Band,

IN GENESEE VALLEY PARK,

Sunday Afternoon, June 30, 1901,

FROM 3 TO 6 P. M.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program . . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—"Mechanic's Institute," - - Roland Seitz
2. OVERTURE—"Fra Diavolo," - - - Auber
3. SERENADE—"Love in Idleness," - - - Macbeth
4. SELECTION—"The Burgomaster," - - Gustav Luders
5. WALTZ—"Rolling Waves," - - - - Tobani
6. MEDLEY—"Sweet Old Songs," - - - Dalbey

PART II.

7. MARCH—"The Invincible Eagle" (New) - - Sousa
8. OVERTURE—"Fest" - - - - Lentner
9. SONG—"The Holy City," - - - - Stephen Adams
10. SELECTION—"Bohemian Girl," - - - Balfe
11. WALTZ—"Wedding of the Winds," - - John T. Hall
12. GRAND AMERICAN FANTASIA, - - - Bendix

...OF A SERIES OF BAND CONCERTS

Fifty-Fourth Regiment Band Presented a Fine Programme at Genesee Valley Park.

Five thousand would be a conservative estimate of the number of persons that assembled yesterday afternoon at Genesee Valley park. The question of how many wanted to go and didn't get the opportunity would be a difficult one to settle. At the Four Corners and on the south side of Caledonia avenue bridge the crowd that was waiting for cars to the park seemed to diminish from hour to hour. Caledonia avenue bridge was up all day. On the far side there were three Plymouth avenue cars ready to transport the crowd of thousands directly to the park. If there had been more cars there would have been more people on the grounds, for many were unable to secure transportation until so late in the day that it hardly paid to make the trip.

There were also three Genesee street cars running from the bridge to the end of the route. It seemed not to be generally understood by the people in waiting that these would take them to within a short distance of the entrance to the park. The distance from the crossing of Brooks avenue is quite short and the walk, for the most part shady, is very pleasant, leading along the bank of the river.

The prophecy of cooler weather was fulfilled, for, while the sun was still very warm, the brisk breeze from the southwest reduced the temperature considerably. Its effect was very noticeable in every part of the park which lies between the river and the first main driveway. This was the part which was the scene of all the activity manifest during the day. Here the crowd walked up and down the shady paths and, when weary, sought seats beneath the trees on the cool, green grass. There was no chance for one to secure seats on the benches, for they were preempted early in the day. But no one seemed to think it a hadship to repose on the bosom of mother earth and many family gatherings spent a happy afternoon in this way. The young people enjoyed themselves in ways appealing to the youthful nature and the bright dresses of the girls and the scarcely less bright shirt waists of the boys were points of color for which the rich green of trees and shrubbery formed a most suitable background.

Of course the weather itself was an incentive to the people to go to the parks, all of which were the outing places of large numbers yesterday. But the reason why many chose to go to Genesee Valley park was the fact that the first of the series of band concerts to be given in various parks about the city was held there in the afternoon. The prospect of music furnished by the Fifty-fourth Regiment band was an attractive one to many. This series of public concerts is to be maintained by a fund which the Rochester Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in raising for the purpose by subscription. The Fifty-fourth Regiment band very kindly offered its services free of charge yesterday so that the fund was in no wise decreased by the first concert. The band was composed of twenty-five pieces and was stationed at the bandstand erected last Friday near the refectory. The programme presented by the band was as follows:

PART ONE.

March—"Mechanics Institute"...Roland Seitz
Overture—"Fra Diavolo"...Auber
Serenade—"Love in Idleness"...Macbeth
Selection—"The Burgomaster"...Gustav Luders
Encore—Medley March—"Gate City"...Weldon
Waltz—"Rolling Waves"...Tobani
Encore—"Mosquito Parade"...Whitney
Medley—"Sweet Old Song"...Dalbey

PART TWO.

March—"The Invincible Eagle" (new)...Sousa
Overture—"Fest"...Lentner
Song—"The Holy City"...Stephen Adams
Encore, March—"Onward Christian Soldiers"...Chambers
Selection—"Bohemian Girl"...Balfe
Waltz—Wedding of the Winds"...John T. Hall
Grand American Fantasia...Bendix

During the day there was a steady remand for ice cream and soda, while the other things that tickle the palates of the summer crowd were in good demand as well. The merry-go-round was thoroughly well patronized and many enjoyed boat rides on the river. It is safe to predict an even larger crowd for the second concert. 26 6. July 1st 1901

THE DEEP WATERWAY COMMISSION.

The proposition before the Chamber of Commerce to invite prominent people, who are interested in the ship canal project, to visit the city, is a very important movement. If we are to have a canal of real practical value, equal to the importance of our great and growing commerce between the interior ...facturing centers of the United ...ter, and foreign countries, New York ...ew Orleast take the initiative in the ...export ...

...thern Orleans is overtaking New York ...orts. For business very rapidly. The ...ew Orleansport is also gaining in importance to th the first time in history, ...ave a deep ... this year is second in ...ean, ... bye respect. Chicago will ...ecome ... waterway outlet to the ...siness to come New York or New ...ir ourselves. ... nt such a volume of ...ne great inter... this way we must ... country will ...tically in the ... r ship canal is all ...being made ... ... at once. ...ments ... Morts that ... als across ...

for certain reasons, would like to know an antiquated canal. It is up to Rochester to step in and put a quietus on pleayune proclivities. June 7/24/01

Extract July 1, 1901.

TO HONOR REV. MR. DENNIS.

Mass Meeting to be Held Saturday in Chamber of Commerce.

The following circular has been sent out by the clergy and laity of all denominations as an announcement of suitable action to be taken on the resignation of Rev. James H. Dennis from the rectorship of St. James church in this city:

A meeting will be held in the room of the Chamber of Commerce on Saturday, July 6th, at 4.30 p. m., to give expression on the part of the citizens of Rochester to the loving veneration in which they hold the character, life and labors of the Rev. James Hogarth Dennis.

The mayor of the city will preside, addresses will be made by leading citizens, and suitable action will be taken. All interested in this movement are requested to be present.

George A. Carnahan, R. R. Converse,
William R. Taylor, Charles P. Cole,
Algernon S. Crapsey, Nelson Millard,
Fannie R. Bigelow, Max Landsberg,
Clarence A. Barbour, E. V. Stoddard,
Louis Cope Washburn, T. A. Hendrick,
Elizabeth Watson, John M. Ives,
Caroline Stoddard, Clara Wilder,
Isabelle W. Hollister, and many others.

The circular is the outcome of a sermon preached recently by the Rev. Algernon S. Crapsey at St. Andrew's church. It is expected that a large gathering will be in evidence to indorse the active charitable work which has been so characteristic of Mr. Dennis's life in Rochester.

SUNDAY'S PARK CONCERT.

Programme To Be Rendered by 54th Regiment Band in Seneca Park East.

The next park concert by the 54th Regiment Band, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce will be given in Seneca Park East Sunday afternoon.

The following programme has been arranged for the occasion by bandmaster, F. A. Zeitler: Mirror July 5, 01

PART I.

March—Remember Me...H. A. Hall
Overture—Morning, Noon and Night...Von Suppe
...Volstedt
Waltz—Jolly Fellows...Englander
Selection—The Rounders...Adams
Song for Cornet—Holy City...Boettger
Medley—Popular Texas...

PART II.

March—Fusilade...Ernest Neyer
Overture—Orpheus...Offenbach
Piccolo Solo—Through the Air...Aug. Damm
Sig. Garramone.
Selection—Foxy Quiller...De Koven
Waltz—Land of My Dreams...Tobani
Medley—Head Liner...W. H. Mackie

Second Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT

BY THE

Fifty-Fourth Regiment Band,

(F. A. ZEITLER, DIRECTOR).

SENECA PARK—EAST,

Sunday Afternoon, July 7, 1901,

3 TO 6 O'CLOCK,

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce

Program. . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—"Remember Me," - - H. A. Hall
2. OVERTURE—"Morning, Noon and Night," Von Suppe
3. WALTZ—"Jolly Fellows," - - Volstedt
4. SELECTION—"The Rounders," - Englander
5. SONG FOR CORNET—"Holy City," - Adams
6. MEDLEY—"Popular Texas," - - Roetlger

PART II.

7. MARCH—"Fusilade," - - Ernest Neyer
8. OVERTURE—"Orpheus," - - Offenbach
9. PICCOLO SOLO—"Through the Air," Aug. Damm
SIG. ROCCO GARRAMONE.
10. SELECTION—"Foxy Quiller," - DeKoven
11. WALTZ—"Land of My Dreams," - - Tobani
12. MEDLEY—"Head Liner," - W. H. Mackie

...for the ...which ...

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

4

NOBLE LIFE

Testimonial to Rev. J. H. Dennis.

LIVED FOR OTHERS

Meeting of Clergy and Laity at Chamber of Commerce.

MAYOR CARNAHAN PRESIDED

Addresses by Revs. Father Hendrick Dr. C. P. Coit, Max Landsberg and Clergymen of Other Denominations —Resolutions Introduced by Rev. A. S. Crapsey Adopted.

The large audience which gathered at the Chamber of Commerce at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon to pay tribute to Rev. James Hogarth Dennis, until June 1 the rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, was representative of all forms of religious life and all stations of men and women in the social and business world. Not many men in this generation, clergymen included, lead lives of such thorough unselfishness and godly service as to call forth such praises as were showered upon Mr. Dennis yesterday by Roman Catholics, Presbyterians, Baptists, Episcopalians, Unitarians and Jews.

People poor in this world's goods sat side by side with men and women of wealth, for both knew him as a friend. Among those who were present were Revs. T. A. Hendrick of St. Bridget's Church, Dr. W. R. Taylor of Brick Church, Clarence A. Barbour of Lake Avenue Baptist Church, A. S. Crapsey of St. Andrew's, Archdeacon Louis C. Washburn, Dr. R. R. Converse of St. Luke's Church, F. C. Woodard of St. James', Dr. Charles P. Coit of East Side Presbyterian Church, Dr. Nelson Millard, Dr. William C. Gannett of First Unitarian Church, Dr. Max Landsberg of Berith Kodsh Synakogue, Mayor Carnahan and many other men prominent in public affairs.

Keynote of the Meeting.

Although hearty in their testimonials to the noble life of the man they had gathered to honor, none of the speakers seemed able to give full expression to his reverence and regard for him. Rev. Dr. Coit, who labored side by side with Mr. Dennis for a quarter of a century as pastor of Memorial Presbyterian Church, a parish contiguous to that of St. James', struck the keynote of the meeting when he said:

"We owe it to our city, we owe it to our youth, to make some public acknowledgement of our appreciation of the noble life-work of this man of God. Like Athens of old, the city of to-day is known by the class of men it honors. The character of our youth depends upon the kind of men our city honors. And in this age of selfishness we of Rochester ought to be thankful that we have such a man as Mr. Dennis to honor. I am sure it will ennoble our youth and give encouragement to the good men and women of Rochester who are doing so much for charity."

Mayor Carnahan's Tribute.

Mayor Carnahan called the meeting to order and stated its object. "In the age when we are all so engrossed in our own business affairs, we are apt sometimes to forget such a man as Mr. Dennis. He was so unselfish, so modest and retiring at all times; he never saw in a dollar any pleasure for himself, but always to think of what good he might do with it for someone else.

"Some years ago I had the good fortune to become associated with Mr. Dennis, as attorney for the Humane Society, in a number of actions brought by him in the courts of this city. I found him an earnest, fearless worker for the amelioration of the sufferings of the poor and for the dumb animals who needed his sympathy and protection. Whether it was some canal driver who was up for driving galled horses, or some farmer who had beaten his cow, Mr. Dennis was always ready with the evidence and his time to secure justice.

"But it was his self-denying work for the poor children of the city which best characterized his efforts here. He and his work was the best exemplification of that beautiful law of nature that men must care for one another and that one generation must protect and care for its successor. When this man picked a poor, ragged and suffering child from the gutter, or took a youth by the arm as he passed from the court room convicted of some crime, and helped him to a better and nobler life, he was helping to build up a better generation and was doing Christ's work indeed."

Tributs Adopted at the Meeting.

At the conclusion of the Mayor's address, Rev. A. S. Crapsey, nominated Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce to be secretary of the meeting and was elected.

Rev. Mr. Crapsey then read the following resolutions:

"Whereas, The citizens of Rochester gathered [illegible] in public meeting the Mayor [illegible] meeting, desire to express [illegible] James Hogarth Dennis. In honoring Mr. Dennis we honor that element of simple goodness in human nature which more than any other quality is essential to its well-being. Mr. Dennis lived among us 25 years and that life is summed up in the brief word—he is a good man.

"No one can be with him without being conscious of his goodness. It is this that gives him his power and place in the world. His is not that negative goodness which simply abstains from evil, but it is a positive force working for righteousness. Mr. Dennis does good not merely from principle, but from nature and force of habit.

"This inward grace in his character has found its outward expression in a long life of self-sacrificing labor for the poor of his people. The miseries of the poor weigh as a personal care upon the heart of this man of God. He cannot, as many do, dismiss these miseries when he has done all that he can do to alleviate them, but he carries them about with him during the day and goes to bed with them at night. As a consequence of this laborious life, Mr. Dennis finds his strength exhausted, so that it is necessary for him to draw apart and rest awhile, and we desire to follow him into that temporary retirement with this expression of our veneration and love.

"We will not believe for a moment that the days of usefulness are over for our dear friend; they have just begun. A good life increases in usefulness with increasing years and is never more useful than when it ends in deeds and leaves itself a blessed heritage to the world forever. We have to-day no feeling of commiseration for Mr. Dennis because he in in a measure outworn in the service of God and man; on the contrary, we envy him as a soldier who has passed through a long and arduous campaign and bears the scars of battle upon him.

"We cheer him in our hearts as we might cheer some military or naval hero coming home from a war, wounded but victorious. In this minute it is not our purpose to enter into any detailed account of the life and labors of James Hogarth Dennis; the time for writing his biography has not yet come. All we have in mind to do at this time is to send after him a word of loving appreciation, to assure him that he has not labored in vain. We would have him know that we feel ourselves men and women, because of his simple, earnest life and that we regret his retirement most of all because it takes from us a daily inspiration.

"We sincerely hope that rest will bring refreshment, and refreshment new strength, and new strength new labors, and new labors new joys, so that the last day shall be better than the first and that he who for so many years has gone on his way weeping, bearing his good seed, may come again with joy and bring his sheaves with him. We hereby request the chairman and the secretary of this meeting to sign this minute and forward it to Mr. Dennis with our gratitude for what he has done and our prayers for his future happiness and usefulness."

Mr. Crapsey also offered the following resolution:

"Whereas, A number of the citizens of Rochester have expressed a desire to contribute to some substantial testimonial of regard and affection for the Rev. James Hogarth Dennis, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the signers of the circular which called this meeting be requested to act as a committee to receive such contributions and to dispose of them for the use and benefit of Mr. Dennis as they shall think most acceptable and useful to him."

Rev. Dr. Converse moved the adoption of both resolutions, which was done, after which Mr. Crapsey explained that his reason for offering the second resolution was that numerous business men had come to him during the past week and expressed their earnest desire to do something substantial towards testifying to their love for Mr. Dennis.

Praise From Fellow Ministers.

Rev. Dr. Taylor said: "I doubt if I can add anything to the expression of regard for Mr. Dennis which Mr. Crapsey made so eloquently in his sermon of last Sunday. I was happy to know Mr. Dennis while he was in this city and I believe that it would be impossible for us to be extravagant in our testimony to his God-like life. All citizens of Rochester who knew aught of Mr. Dennis cannot help but agree with it most cordially."

"I think the feelings of all of us are well expressed in Mr. Crapsey's minute," said Rev. C. A. Barbour. "It was one of the privileges of my life to meet some years ago Rev. Mr. Dennis and I am sure that I have been a better man for it. No testimonial to his character and life could be extreme. I believe that the mere fact that we have gathered here this afternoon will be the most blessed thing he can receive, the love and respect of his friends cannot help being very dear to him."

The remarks of Rev. Father Hendrick of St. Bridget's parish were of unusual interest, because he had shared for many years the charitable and humane work of the Humane Society with the rector of St. James. He knew better, perhaps, than any other man in Rochester, of the truly Christian spirit and the misery-dissipating work of the priest, who now, suffering physically because of his labors for others, is seeking a brief rest.

"I have doubted a little," said Father Hendrick, "whether even this meeting would be pleasing to Mr. Dennis. I have known him as a man of utter self-abasement, always shrinking from words of praise or thanks for deeds of mercy. It is a question whether he will thank us for even this little testimonial. We know him to be entirely indifferent to movements of benefit to himself. Himself he never thought of—it was always someone else. In taking up the sorrows of others he made the burdens of others

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE.
JULY 8, 1901.

THOUSANDS LISTENED TO THE BAND CONCERT

Great Sunday Afternoon Crowd at Seneca Park East.

ALL TROLLEYS CROWDED

Transportation Facilities Fell Far Short of the Demand—Attendance Twice as Large as That at the First Concert.

Once upon a time in a distant country across the blue sea the inhabitants had reared a beautiful city on the banks of a rushing river. The channel had been cut deep into the rock and upon its sloping sides grew trees of all the sorts known to man, while verdure of the richest green, bearing clusters of the brightest colored flowers, covered them as a carpet. And everything possible was done by the inhabitants to make this place still more beautiful and enticing than Nature, even with her lavish hand, had wrought. A special branch of the public service was created upon which this duty devolved and under the direction of this body the place grew and grew in beauty and simple grandeur until it was famed abroad throughout the whole land. Visitors came from afar to view the city and to enjoy the allurements of the quiet retreat upon the banks of the rushing river.

Once a stranger came to the city, a man from a distant land, who asked to be shown the attractive features of the municipality and its surroundings; and most of all he wished to spend the first day of his sojourn amid the beauties and allurements of the much-famed riverside, for he was worn with toil and weary with much travel. He was, accordingly, taken to the broad avenue that led to the favored region and ushered into a large chariot in company with many others for whom there seemed to be the completest and fullest and most comfortable provisions made by its owners. And in ease and comfort he rode on, past beautiful castles with gleaming turrets, past open fields covered with the greenest grass and bordered [illegible] and flowering shrubs and beds of gorgeous [illegible] into the beauties. Quickly and without delay [illegible] was set down at the wished-for [illegible] he wandered slowly and joyfully [illegible] mass of beauty which opened [illegible] him. And under the charms [illegible] and calm, while the rays [illegible] healed back from the sorr[illegible]

[illegible] him a portion [illegible] own color, and [illegible] Delightful music swept about him and were prolonged in the whisper of the wind in the trees overhead, he pleasured his time away with spirit free from care. Under the spell, life was a happy dream and the rose-colored glasses which all wear who enter there made everything beautiful and satisfying.

But wouldn't a Rochesterian think that a foretaste of paradise!

The second band concert of the series was given yesterday afternoon at Seneca park east by the Fifty-fourth Regiment band. It was the rather informal opening of the park in honor of the running of electric cars within the limits. Knowing that it was in a measure an experience whose lessons are to be practically applied later, it would not do to censure the authorities too harshly, if such a thing were possible, for the poor service in the way of trausportation. Let it be said to those people who waited so long at the crossing of Main and St. Paul streets and to those who waited for hours at the park itself, that there is a better time coming. Cars that are expected to take you to or from the grounds will not always be full to the step when they stop to let you aboard. Some day it is promised there will be cars along every few moments and there will be seats for all who wish to get aboard. But before that time comes some people in authority will have to learn that the citizens are going out to the concerts by the thousands. They want the concerts and they are bound to have the pleasure and the rest. And those who have this gift in their power will some day, soon, it is to be hoped, learn this fact and supply the needed accomodations.

After an attendant at the concert yesterday has told you how many hours it took him to get there and how many more to get back, he will speak in the most glowing terms of the concert itself. If the first concert was a success the second was doubly so, for the programme was nearly twice as successful in its reception by the people and there were nearly twice as many people there to listen and enjoy. From every point of view the concert was successful. The numbers were all favorites and were received with much enthusiasm. The two solos took the crowd by storm and created a very tempest of applause. Adams's "Holy City" was played as a cornet solo by Samuel Basset, and Augusta Damm's "Through the Air" was rendered on the piccolo by Sig. Rocco Garramone. Both are artists and received tremendous ovations. The entire programme was fully up to the standard of the concerts given by the band during the winter season at the Baker theater. The numbers were as follows:

PART I.

March—"Remember Me".....H. A. Hall
Overture—"Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna".....Von Suppe
Waltz—"Jolly Fellows".....Volstedt
Selection—"The Rounders".....Ingraham
Cornet solo—"Holy City".....Adams
Encore—Intermezzo, "Salome".....Loraine
Medley—"Popular Texas".....Boettger

PART II.

"National March No. 6".....Brooks
Overture—"Orpheus".....Offenbach
Piccolo solo—"Through the Air".....Aug. Damm
Sig. Rocco Garramone.
Encore—"L'Oiseau du Bois".....Le Thiere
Selection—"Foxy Quiller".....De Koven
Waltz—"Land of My Dreams".....Tobani
Encore—March, "Stars and Stripes".....Sousa
Medley—"Head Liner".....W. H. Mackie
Encore—"Good-by, Dolly Gray".....Dalbey

It is expected that when the second track into the park is completed a celebration will be held with fireworks, illuminations and probably a band concert. The work will no doubt be finished before the end of the week. It is the intention to give concerts on Saturday and on Sunday afternoons, if a little more money is subscribed for the purpose. All materially interested in the work can aid the project by sending subscriptions to Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce.

Do C.
July 9, 1901
AND CHRONICLE.

PARK BAND CONCERTS.

Following is a List of Contributions That Have Been Received to Date.

The band concerts given under the auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce are proving a great success, both in the attendance and in the quality of music. It is hoped enough money will be contributed to give free concerts Saturday and Sunday afternoons during the months of July, August and September. To do this will require about $1,900. To date there have been contributed $1,244. Money for this purpose may be sent to Secretary J. M. Ives, Chamber of Commerce, who will gratefully acknowledge receipts of the same. The contributions to date are as follows:

Park [illegible], $500; George Eastman, $250; ca[illegible]50; T. B. Dunn, $50; William Ea[illegible]d & Son Company, $50; L. P. Ross' [illegible] John C. Moore, $25; C. T. Ham a[illegible]turing Company, $25; J. H. Stedman, $2[illegible] George A. Carnahan, $25; Uts & Du[illegible]$25; Burke, Fitz Simmons, Hone & Co.[illegible]$25; F. A. Brownell, $20; E. P. Reed & [illegible]Company, $20; Durand Manufacturing C[illegible]ompany, $15; Sreamo, Westmore & Co[illegible]mpany, $10; Mathews & Boucher, $10[illegible]; C. C. Davy, $10; Louis J. Ernst, $10; C. H. Palmer, $10; A. M. MacDonell, $10; J[illegible]ames Cased, $10; John M. Davy, $5; L[illegible]Jeffries, $5; J. B. Hamilton, $5; [illegible]es, $5; J. A. Baum, $5; E. R. [illegible]H. C. Kimball, $5; Rochester [illegible]Association, $5; C. F. Pond, [illegible]e, $5; J. C. Wilson, $5; Frank [illegible]; cash, $2; cash, $2. Total,

TWO BAND CONCERTS.

Saturday in Valley Park, Sunday in Seneca Park East.

Band concerts in the parks are announced by the Chamber of Commerce to be given as follows: Saturday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock, Genesee Valley Park; Sunday afternoon, 3 to 6 o'clock, Seneca Park East. New programmes will be given by the Fifth-fourth band and Leader Zeitler promises to maintain the high musical standard that he has set for these popular events.

Manager Nicholl of the Rochester Railway Company says that on these days he hopes there will be no cause for complaint as to the street car service. There was some trouble with the cars at the previous concerts but this will be remedied. The double track into Seneca Park East will be finished, he says, before Sunday, and this will enable the company to run its cars expeditiously. The Caledonia Avenue canal bridge interfered for a time with the cars bound for Genesee Valley Park, but the bridge is now in working shape and, if there are no more accidents to it, the cars will not be delayed on Saturday.

Horse Stable Wanted.

The Chamber of Commerce is versatile. Secretary Ives now wants to know of some one who will put up a two-story brick building for horses and wagons. Room for twenty horses on the second floor and for the wagons on the ground floor and for hay, feed, etc., is necessary. Mr. Ives has a man ready to take a ten years' lease at a suitable [illegible] in the center of the city.

Commerce Commission Report.

Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, has received from Hon. W. W. Armstrong thirteen sets of the report of the New York commerce commission, which are for distribution. There are two volumes in each set, in addition to maps. Secretary Ives would be pleased to give the books to those interested in the report.

Public Band Concerts in the Parks.

Saturday Afternoon, July 13, 3 to 6 p. m., at Genesee Valley Park.

PART I.

March—South Park.....Leon Underhill
Overture—Zampa.....F. Herold
Waltz—Moonlight on the Hudson.....A. Herman
Selection—Singing Girl.....Herbert
Sextette—From "Lucia".....Donizetti
Medley—The Limit.....Mackie

PART II.

March—Florodora.....Leslie Stuart
Overture—Pique Dame.....Von Suppe
Song for trombone—Holy City (by request).....Adams
Grand selection—Faust.....Gounod
Waltz—Newport.....Tobani
Gems of Stephen Foster.....Herman

Sunday Afternoon, July 14, 3 to 6 p. m., at Seneca Park East.

PART I.

March—The Invincible Eagle.....Sousa
Overture—Poet and Peasant.....Von Suppe
Waltz—Singing Girl.....Herbert
Selection—Princess Chic.....Edwards
Paraphrase—Lorley.....Nesvadba
Patrol—The Blue and the Gray.....Dalbey

PART II.

March—Belle of Pittsburgh.....Hall
Overture—Pancred.....Rossini
Waltz—"Don't Be Cross" Master Miner.....C. Zeller
Grand Potpourri—Operatic Airs.....J. V. Hamm
Spanish Serenade—La Paloma.....Yradier
Medley—Popular Tennessee.....Boettger

Third Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT

BY THE

Fifty-Fourth Regiment Band,

F. A. ZEITLER, Director.

IN GENESEE VALLEY PARK,

Saturday Afternoon, July 13, 1901,

FROM 3 TO 6 P. M.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program . . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—"South Park," - - - - Leon Underhill
2. OVERTURE—"Zampa," - - - - F. Herold
3. WALTZ—"Moonlight on the Hudson," - - A. Herman
4. SELECTION—"Singing Girl," - - - Victor Herbert
5. SEXTETTE—From Lucia, - - - - Donizetti
6. MEDLEY—"The Limit," - - - - W. H. Mackie

PART II.

7. MARCH—"Florodora," - - - - Leslie Stuart
8. OVERTURE—"Pique Dame," - - - - Von Suppe
9. SONG FOR TROMBONE—"Holy City," (by request) Adams
10. GRAND SELECTION—"Faust" - - - Gounod
11. WALTZ—"Newport," - - - - Tobani
12. GEMS OF STEPHEN FOSTER, - - - A. Herman

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Fourth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY THE
Fifty-Fourth Regiment Band,
(F. A. ZEITLER, DIRECTOR).

SENECA PARK—EAST,
Sunday Afternoon, July 14, 1901,
3 TO 6 O'CLOCK.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce

Program. . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—"The Invincible Eagle" - - Sousa
2. OVERTURE—"Poet and Peasant" - Von Suppe
3. WALTZ—"Singing Girl" - - Victor Herbert
4. SELECTION—"Princess Chic" - Julian Edwards
5. PARAPHRASE—"Lorley" - - Nesvadba
6. PATROL—"The Blue and the Gray" - Dalbey

PART II.

7. MARCH—"Belle of Pittsburgh" - R. W. Hall
8. OVERTURE—"Tancred" - - Rossini
9. WALTZ—"Don't be Cross" Master Miner C. Zeller
10. GRAND POTPOURRI—Operatic Airs J. V. Hamm
11. SPANISH SERENADE—"La Paloma" - Yradier
12. MEDLEY—"Popular Tennessee" - - Boettger

AN ENORMOUS CROWD.

10,000 People Attended Band Concert at Seneca Park Yesterday.

The band concert at Seneca Park East yesterday afternoon attracted one of the largest crowds that has ever been at the place for any occasion, and all who went were well repaid for their time and trouble, the music being of the finest and up to the usual high standard.

The concert began at 3 o'clock and long before the first number, every seat in the park was occupied, and with hardly an exception, they were in the possession of the same fortunate individuals when the last piece was finished. All the numbers were well received, and encores were frequent. The band again played Sousa's "Invincible Eagle" to the great delight of the crowd. The "Singing Girl" was also enthusiastically applauded, as was the fifth selection, "Lorley."

Mr. Frank Bassett played the solos in the "Holy City," which was given again, in the most pleasing manner, doing himself great credit and proving himself an artist on the cornet.

The heavy operas of Rossini and Hamm were exceedingly well handled, all the artistic touches being brought out very prominently and the most difficult and weighty parts being handled with the utmost ease and confidence.

The day was very warm even at the park, for hardly a breath of air was stirring and the little shade in the immediate vicinity of the band stand was at a premium. Of course the shirt waist man was in great evidence, all the newest and latest designs being on display for the careful scrutiny of the ladies.

It would be no exaggeration to say that at least 10,000 people were out yesterday during the afternoon and evening, the crowd surpassing that of the previous Sunday by several thousand.

This is truly remarkable when one stops to think that they were all people who had as yet attended none of the former concerts at that place, for it is taken as a matter of course that nobody would twice submit to the treatment they receive at these concerts at the hands of the Rochester Street Car Company.

However fine the music may be, the inspiration and benefit is all lost in the vain effort to get home after the concert is over. Yesterday, although the new double track was completed, there was not sufficient power to run the cars at even a moderate rate of speed.

At one time, at the beginning of the concert, fully a dozen or fifteen cars were lined up at the entrance of the park, perfectly helpless and unable to move, there being not enough power to even move the cars for a considerable time. Scores of disappointed and disgusted people, and even some who wore the badges of visiting delegates, got out and walked through the dust, hoping thereby to enjoy a little of the music which they had paid their money to hear.

The agitated people, after sitting passively in their seats for over twenty minutes, jostled with the greatest [illegible] even the most dilapidated [illegible] as it passed on its slow, but certain journey to the concert, and bicycle riders as they rode by, looked askance with a merry twinkle in their eyes and a look of perfect satisfaction on their radiant faces. Rec'd July 14, 1901

HEARD BAND CONCERT

More Than 10,000 Persons at Seneca Park Yesterday—Car Service Utterly Inadequate.

If in the city of Rochester there is anyone who doubts that the public band concerts in the parks are successful, that person should have been at Seneca park yesterday afternoon. The special attraction was the Fifty-fourth Regiment band, which answered all the expectations of those who expect great things from this fine musical organization.

The concert was scheduled to open at 3 o'clock and last until 6 o'clock. When it began there was a crowd of from 6,000 to 7,000 persons, and this was increased until, at a conservative estimate, there were over 10,000 in the park. The car service was something to be remembered a long time. A number of extra cars were put on, but even they would not have handled the crowd under normal conditions, and as a matter of fact they offset the good they might have done by absorbing so much power that they could hardly run at all. A number of persons complained at the park that they had been from an hour to an hour and a half getting down. The conditions when the big crowd started to return to the city were "something fierce." About thirty cars were stalled in the park for so long a time that it nearly drove the occupants frantic. About 7:30 in the evening one of the cars broke an axle.

But in spite of all the discomfort arising from the car service, the crowd went and sat around under the trees and listened to the band with great satisfaction. One of the features most noticeable was the presence of whole families in the park. This very thing was urged in favor of extending the car line into the park, there being so many families that have scanty privileges for outings, but that will embrace such an opportunity as that presented yesterday.

The programme rendered by the band was a fine one, and one suited to the occasion. In response to the enthusiastic cheers of the immense crowd, a number of encore numbers were played. Following is the programme in full:

Rec'd July 14, 1901.

PART I.

March—"The Invincible Eagle".....Sousa
Overture—"Poet and Peasant"....Von Suppe
Encore—March—"At the Pan-I-Marry-Can".....Mackie
Waltz—"Singing Girl".....Victor Herbert
Selection—"Princess Chic"...Julian Edwards
Paraphrase—"Lorley".....Nesvadba
Patrol—"The Blue and the Gray"...Dalbey
Encore—"Good-by, Dolly Gray"...Chattaway

PART II.

March—"Belle of Pittsburgh"....R. W. Hall
Overture—"Tancred".....Rossini
Encore—Cornet solo—"Holy City".....Adams
Samuel Bassett.
Encore—March—"Bunch of Blackberries".....Holzmann
Waltz—"Don't Be Cross" Master Miner .....C. Zeller
Grand potpourri—Operatic Airs..J. V. Hamm.
Spanish serenade—"La Paloma".....Yradier
Encore—"Tell Me Little Maid".....Archer
Medley—"Popular Tennessee".....Boettger

While the entire programme was enthusiastically received, the cornet solo, "Holy City," seemed to give the crowd the most pleasure.

Fifth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY
DOSSENBACH'S BAND,
THEODORE DOSSENBACH, DIRECTOR.

SENECA PARK—EAST,
Saturday Afternoon, July 20, 1901,
3 TO 6 O'CLOCK.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce

Program. . .

PART I.

AMERICA.
1. OVERTURE—Morning, Noon and Night, - Suppe
2. DANCE—Tomahawk, - - - - - Herman
3. SEXTET—Lucia, - - - Arr. by Theo. Dossenbach
4. SELECTION—The Wizard, - - - - Herbert
5. DARKIES JAMBOREE, - - - - - Puerner
6. HUNGARIAN—Fantasia, - - - - Tobani

PART II.

7. OVERTURE—William Tell, - - - - Rossini
8. SONG FOR CORNET— - - - R. E. Burleigh
9. SELECTION—Burgomaster, - - - - Mackie
10. HOLY CITY—4 Trombones, - - - - Adams
11. (a. March, Physical Culture—(New) R. E. Burleigh
(b. "Don't You Cry, Ma Honey, - - - -
12. GRAND FANTASIA—Albion, - - - - Baetens
(Scotch, Irish and English Airs.)

STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., JULY 10, 1901.

Dear

As many persons have expressed a desire to join in offering a substantial testimonial to the Reverend James Hogarth Dennis, who, for twenty-five years and more, has given his life to the poor, the weak and the afflicted, and who has worn himself out in the service of humanity, we give you the opportunity to join with us in this offering of affection and gratitude.

We are acting under authority of a public meeting of the citizens of Rochester, held in the Chamber of Commerce on the 6th day of July, at which meeting the Mayor of the City presided, and leading citizens of every church and party expressed their admiration for Mr. Dennis, and their sympathy with this movement to give him some material token of our reverence and love.

This testimonial is to take the form of a sum of money for the use and benefit of Mr. Dennis while he is resting from his labors and preparing for future work. Whatever we give, we shall give in payment for work which Mr. Dennis has done for us without compensation; and when we have given, we shall still owe Mr. Dennis a debt of loving gratitude which we can never repay.

We wish this testimonial to come from all the citizens of our city, among whom James Hogarth Dennis has gone in and out in his beautiful, patient, self-sacrificing life.

We ask each one to whom this letter comes, to send his or her contribution to our Treasurer as soon as possible, as we wish to forward this token of our love to Mr. Dennis at the earliest possible moment.

ALGERNON S. CRAPSEY,
Chairman of Committee.

JOHN M. IVES,
Secretary and Treasurer.

WHEREAS, a number of the citizens of Rochester have expressed a desire to contribute to some substantial testimonial of regard and appreciation for the Reverend James Hogarth Dennis; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the signers of the circular which called this meeting be requested to act as a committee to receive such contributions, and to dispose of them for the use and benefit of Mr. Dennis as they shall think most acceptable and useful to him.

GEORGE A. CARNAHAN,
FANNIE R. BIGELOW,
ELIZABETH WATSON,
R. R. CONVERSE,
MAX LANDSBERG,
WILLIAM R. TAYLOR,
CLARENCE A. BARBOUR,
CAROLINE STODDARD,
CHARLES P. COIT,
E. V. STODDARD,
ALGERNON S. CRAPSEY,
LOUIS COPE WASHBURN,
ISABELLE W. HOLLISTER,
NELSON MILLARD,
T. A. HENDRICK,
JOHN M. IVES, CLARA WILDER and others.

Enclosed please find check for ..... dollars, payable to the order of John M. Ives, Treasurer, to be applied to the James Hogarth Dennis Testimonial Fund.

Name .....

Address .....

ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

JOHN M. IVES,

Secretary Chamber of Commerce,

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Sixth Concert.

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT

BY THE

Fifty-Fourth Regiment Band,

F. A. ZEITLER, Director.

IN GENESEE VALLEY PARK,

Sunday Afternoon, July 21, 1901,

FROM 3 TO 6 P. M.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program . . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—"Hail to the Spirit of Liberty," - - - Sousa
2. OVERTURE—"Jolly Robbers," - - - - Von Suppe
3. WALTZ—"When Knighthood was in Flower," - - Gustin
4. SELECTION—"Robin Hood," - - - - De Koven
5. CHARACTERISTIC—"Humpty Dumpty," - - - Dalby
6. MEDLEY—"Popular Georgia," - - - - Boettger

PART II.

7. MARCH—"We'll Never Haul the Old Flag Down," - Dresser
8. OVERTURE—"Maritana," - - - - - Wallace
9. SONG FOR EUPHONIUM—"Beyond the Gates of Paradise," King
10. SELECTION—"Florodora," - - - - Leslie Stuart
11. WALTZ—"L'Estudiantina," - - - - - Waldteufel
12. "War Songs of the Boys in Blue," - - - Lauredean

LOAFED IN SHADE AND LISTENED TO THE BAND

Concert at Genesee Valley Park Draws a Large Crowd to City's Pleasure Ground.

People yesterday afternoon were wondering whether they were really to expect to-day in the line of weather if yesterday was marked by just a small beginning of the hot wave from the West. The least that can be said is that it was a strong beginning. All day the city was much like an oven so far as temperature was concerned and people hurried to get out of it if possible and seek cooler places elsewhere. Everything was hot; the shade of the trees was hot; wherever electric fans were in motion they drove streams of hot air upon the persons in range.

It was hot out at Genesee Valley park. If anybody thought it might be otherwise he must have been disappointed when he arrived and found himself face to face with the reality. But disapointed or not in their search for cooling breezes, there was a large crowd at the park. It was said that those who tried to get out there early in the day experienced the usual difficulties of transportation. This was obviated before the time for return, however, and toward evening very little delay was forced upon anyone.

People at the park made the best of the hot weather. They were dressed as coolly as possible, of course, and they sat around on the benches or on the ground in the shade of the trees in a more sedate fashion than usual. Climatic conditions were not conducive to a large amount of physical activity. The promenaders were far outnumbered by those who settled quietly in one place to keep cool by keeping still.

At 3 o'clock the concert began. The Fifty-fourth Regiment Band was entertaining. The music that was played was of the usual high grade and numerous encore numbers were demanded by the bursts of applause in which the people indulged. "The Holy City" was not one of the numbers on the original programme, but the people would not go away without it and by request it was rendered as a special number. It was played as a cornet solo by Samuel Bessett. Fred Farron played the song "Beyond the Gates of Paradise" on the euphonium, an effort which was very well received. "War Songs of the Boys in Blue" was the number which called forth the greatest response and it seemed as though the crowd wanted the band to play all night by the way in which it continued the applause. Following is the programme with encores:

PART I.

March—"Hail to the Spirit of Liberty"....Sousa
Overture—"Jolly Robbers" .....Von Suppe
Encore—"Yarrup's Ideal" .....Stimson
Waltz—"When Knighthood Was in Flower" .....Gustin
Selection—"Robin Hood" .....De Koven
Encore—"Dark Town Coon Step" ....Hawes
Characteristic—"Humpty Dumpty" ....Dalby
Cornet solo—"Holy City" (by request) .....Adams
Medley—"Popular Georgia" .....Boettger
March—"Bullpasa" .....Chambers

PART II.

March—"We'll Never Haul the Old Flag Down" .....Dresser
Overture—"Maritana" .....Wallace
Song for Euphonium—"Beyond the Gates of Paradise" .....King
Selection—"Florodora" .....Leslie Stuart
Encore—"D. M. L. March" .....Farrar
Waltz—"L'Estudiantina" .....Waldteufel
"War Songs of the Boys in Blue" ....Lauredean
Encore—"Turkey in the Straw" ....Bonnell

A little after 4:30 o'clock dark clouds came up from the southwest and there was every indication of the approach of a thunderstorm. Many persons, knowing that they had had a hard time in making connections in their journey to the park, thought that if they were to have the same difficulties on the return trip there was no time to lose in making the start for home. The result was that within three-quarters of an hour more than half of the crowd had left the grounds. Those who remained found that a slight change for the better had come in the weather and that they had a little cooling breeze in which to indulge themselves.

One remark heard several times yesterday indicates the spirit in which the people are receiving the pleasant affairs given under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. Many were intending to remain at the park until evening should come and they were eager to have the music continued until dark. It seems that they understand the value of a good thing and think that there is no such miserable disappointment as getting too much of anything desirable. There may be such a thing as asking for too much, however, and four park concerts on two consecutive afternoons and evenings might perhaps be considered an overdose. D. C. 7/22/1

PLANS FOR RIDGE ROAD

New York Bankers With Contractors and Attorneys Will Confer With Local Directors of Electric Road This Week.

THE ROCHESTER HERALD. MONDAY, JULY 22, 1901.

INCREASED STOCK

Capitalized at $3,500,000 Instead of $1,000,000.

$3,500,000 IN BONDS ADDED

Location of New Power House To Cost $590,000 and Generate 9,300 Horse Power To Be Settled This Week—Many Possibilities in Connection With Road—Fare to Buffalo.

The arrangements in detail for the construction of the Buffalo, Niagara and Rochester Road, more familiarly known to the public as the Ridge Road trolley, will be completed this week and definite announcement can be made. At the end of the week a member of the firm of Sutro Brothers of Wall Street, who is financiering the road, and Henry McTighe of Brooklyn, who has been awarded the construction contract, will come to Rochester with their attorney to confer with the directors of the road in this city.

The capital stock of the road, it has already been decided, will be increased from $1,000,000 to $3,500,000, in addition to which will be bonds to the extent of $3,500,000, for which a consent to mortgage the road was filed in the office of the County Clerk of Monroe County Thursday afternoon.

The legal and financial arrangements have been under consideration for many months, however, and it is not expected that when the banker, contractor and attorney come here from New York this week, it will require more than a day or two to fix up these matters. One little preliminary that must be attended to this week will be to enrich the treasury of the state of New York with a check for one-twentieth of 1 per cent. on the proposed increased valuation of $2,500,000, the road having been already incorporated for $1,000,000. No corporation tax is paid on the bonds, but the state demands a percentage on all capital stock.

The company made a slight gain by reason of the delay of the State Railroad Commission to grant them a franchise three months ago. Until the last Legislature passed the act reducing the incorporation tax from an eighth to a twentieth of 1 per cent. the incorporation tax on the original $1,000,000 was $1,250, while the tax on the proposed $2,500,000 is only $1,250. Under the old rate it would have been $3,125, a saving of $2,000.

Locating Power House.

But matters that require more figuring than the financial question will demand the attention of the managers this week. The first important matter to be decided promptly and definitely is the location of the new power house. The plans have already been completed for a new power house to cost $595,000 and capable of generating 93,000 horse power. It is not expected that the electricity can be generated with water power and it is planned to operate with steam power, but it will be necessary to locate the power house where there is some water for use in the boilers and other purposes. Three locations are said to be in contemplation, Oak Orchard, Medina and Eighteen Mile Creek, near Lockport. Water can be obtained from Oak Orchard Creek at the first two places.

Provision will be made for manufacturing 92,000 horse power, which is about twice as much as will be needed to operate the line between Rochester and Buffalo. Engineer William C. Gray, who was seen by a Herald reporter yesterday, explained there was a two fold object in constructing a plant of this size. He said the power would be divided into what is technically known as four units. Two units will be used daily for operating purposes; the third unit will be drawn on for power during the rush of the summer season and the fourth unit will be a reserve power in case of any accident or breakdown.

Provisions for Expansion.

A second reason, which is only hinted, is the probable expansion of the road by a year or two by constructing spurs to various points from the main line.

The new Genesee and Orleans road, for which the State Railroad Commission issued a certificate last week, runs at right angles crossing this road. It is quite likely the Ridge Road will run a number of excursions to Oak Orchard, which is the terminus of this new road, using the trackage of the new road for about nine miles from the junction to Oak Orchard. It is possible that the Ridge Road people might furnish power for this other road if they are planning to [illegible] Boat. The new road, [illegible] already [illegible] the directors being George W. Aldridge.

In the near future a number of other spurs will be constructed either by the Ridge Road managers or by the independent companies, as in the case of the Genesee and Orleans road. All these spurs will serve as feeders to the Ridge Road and serve to increase business.

Rush Orders Were Placed.

It was anticipated several months ago that the franchise for the Ridge Road would be granted early in the spring, and the managers were all prepared to make extra efforts to rush the construction so they might get a share of the Pan-American travel. At that time Contractor McTighe placed conditional rush orders and promised to have the road in operation within four months from the time he started work. There is no special object in rushing the construction at this time at such a rapid rate, the only aim being to complete the work during the pleasant weather and before the snow flies. Whether the contractor's orders that would enable him to complete the work in four months can now be filled in such a short time is not known by the local promoters and it will be impossible to fix the date of completion until the contractor reaches here this week.

In the main the work of grading and construction is inexpensive and easy. According to Engineer Gray, there is one stretch of 10,000 feet where there is not a difference of six inches in the grade of the road. In some parts of the road there will be required considerable bridge building and trestle work, the large sum of $385,000 being set aside in the engineer's estimates for this purpose. The only grade in this vicinity will be the crossing over the Central and Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg tracks immediately outside the city near Lincoln Park. The electric road cannot cross the steam roads at grade but will construct an overhead crossing.

Work of Construction.

It is expected to occupy the side of the road for many miles, so as not to interfere with carriages, bicyclists or pedestrians. In no place will the splendid new state road recently constructed under the Higbie-Armstrong act in this county be disturbed. The south side of the road will be followed and there will not even be a cross over for miles.

The work of construction will be begun in four places simultaneously along the road, one point being from the starting place on Lake Avenue. It is possible that if the laying of rails and the stringing of wires is sufficiently well along that the eastern portion of the road will be opened so as to make a bid for the enormous amount of fruit that is to be transported this fall.

Engineer Gray said the only difficulty in opening the eastern portion in the fall was the lack of electricity. It looked as if it would be difficult to buy any electricity whatever temporarily before their new power house is equipped.

The Rochester Railway Company is handicapped for electricity for its own use, and will have none to sell until its own new power house is constructed. The power house of the Citizens Light and Power Company will, according to plans, be ready about January 1, but not before. In fact, there will be no difficulty about buying all the power that is wanted next year, but it is doubtful if any extra power can be bought this fall, whatever the necessity.

An Entrance Into Rochester.

Another quite important point to be decided soon is the entrance of the road into Rochester. Passengers and freight cannot be dumped at the end of the Ridge Road outside the city limits and be transferred to the city lines over the Lake Avenue line. The Ridge Road must be prepared to land its passengers at the Four Corners as the other suburban roads are now all doing.

Of course one way would be to do as the other roads are doing, rent trackage from the Rochester Railway Company. This may be done, the cars running up Lake Avenue and State Street to the Four Corners.

There is some objection to running into the city on these tracks, however. One objection is that the tracks are already crowded during the summer with the Charlotte cars. Another objection is that the company has not replaced the rails for this distance with heavy rails, as has been done in many sections of the city. The cars of the Ridge Road will be very heavy and at times will be run like trains three or four cars connected.

City Streets Wanted.

In case the trackage of the Rochester Railway Company is not used, the Ridge Road will endeavor to secure its own entrance into the city. The first street that will be sought will be Dewey Avenue. Next the road may go through Thompson Street or through West Street if the extension through the grounds of the State Industrial School grounds is made as planned this fall. The road will reach Main Street by coming through Ford Street [illegible] built at Ford Street where freight will be dropped but the passenger cars will continue down the West Main Street lines of the Rochester Railway Company to the Four Corners. This distance from the West Avenue bridge to the Four Corners will be the only use made of the tracks of the Rochester Railway Company in that case.

The suggestion was made that in case the Ridge Road managers refused to rent the tracks of the Rochester Railway Company, the latter company might not be anxious to let the heavy cars run only on West Main Street where traffic is already congested. The statement is made, however, that there is a section in the railroad law, permitting one company to use the tracks of another company for the short distance of 1,500 feet in any event. In case of a disagreement over the rental to be paid, provision is made for settling the dispute by arbitration, each company appointing one arbiter and these two to chose a third man. So the Rochester Railway Company could make no objection to the use of its tracks from the West Avenue bridge, if it was desired.

Two Public Market Suggestions.

Incidentally in this connection, the suggestion is made for a west side public market at this point near the West Avenue bridge, where the large amount of fruit, vegetables and garden produce can be delivered that is gathered all along the Ridge Road from Lockport to Rochester. This, however, is a matter for later consideration.

Another suggestion in this same connection is the possibility of running a spur across the Driving Park bridge in order to connect the Ridge Road directly with the new east side market that it is proposed to establish by the city authorities. This will bring into an east side market not only the produce of Irondequoit, Webster and the east side towns but would be given direct connection with the west side towns.

The managers of the Ridge Road are planning to do a large amount of freight business. As has been expressed, the road runs through ninety miles of garden. West of Lockport there is little garden land and it is expected the road will deliver a large amount of garden truck directly into the Buffalo market, where the demand always exceeds the supply.

Three Classes of Cars.

It is planned to run three kinds of cars on the road. First will be local cars with freight cars attached that will stop on signal at every farm house. Next will be semi-local cars that will stop only at certain fixed stations. Third will be through express trains that will make only one stop, at Lockport, between Rochester and Buffalo. The fastest express trains will, including the stop, make 21 miles an hour; very fair time even for a steam railroad. It is figured that the time between Rochester and Buffalo on these express trains will be under four hours, which is nearly as fast as is made along the same route—the Falls road—between the same points on the New York Central. On the direct line of the Central, the time is less, the average being over two hours on the through trains, making only a single stop.

When Work Will Begin.

The exact time for beginning the actual work of construction cannot be told until the arrival of Contractor McTighe of Brooklyn at the end of the week. Engineer Gray said yesterday, however, that he was hopeful the work might begin within one month and thought it could not be delayed longer than six weeks. There will be no great rush about completing the work as it is of no special advantage to open the road in the winter season, but the road will be opened in sections as the work progresses, provided, as stated, electricity can be procured from outside parties before the new power house is completed.

Connections With Other Lines.

While the Ridge Road is an independent road, its completion will open a wide field of operation. It is hoped the franchise for the Rochester and Eastern road running from Rochester to Geneva, via Canandaigua, in which Detroit capitalists are mainly interested, of whom Eugene H. Saterlee is the chief local representative, will be granted so that the road can be completed before the end of the year. Cars will undoubtedly be transferred between these two roads and considerable freight will be handled in common. Another road with which similar connections will be made is the proposed line from Rochester to Dansville. A third road is the new belt line connecting the east side towns. Similar transfers can also be made with the Bodus road.

Engineer Gray is now making surveys for the line between Rochester and Syracuse, following the main line of the Central road and permits have already been secured from most of the numerous villages that dot the line between Rochester and Syracuse. The connection between this new direct line to Syracuse and the Ridge Road will be close, according to present indications.

Connecting Lines to New York.

The road from Syracuse to Rome is now under way and the road from Rome to Utica is in operation. Almost the entire distance between Utica and Albany has been constructed or projected and there are few if any gaps between.

The Hudson River Valley road is under the control of the Young-Brady syndicate, the same syndicate, by the way, that controls the Citizen Light and Power Company of this city. The road has already been completed from Albany as far as Hudson and is progressing rapidly towards New York.

It has often been predicted that there would be at some time a direct electric line between Buffalo and New York and a year ago, while this prediction seemed reasonable, judging by past experience, no one dreamed the prophesy was so near fruition. Inside of one year more the [illegible] is to be complete, if only the

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

...first for some of Vermont. Mergers, to unite the half dozen branches to form a direct and continuous electric line between Buffalo and New York under a single management, with numerous feeders running in all directions and making a net work of electric roads all over the state.

Only last Saturday, the telegraph columns of The Herald announced the consolidation of a number of electric lines centering in Cleveland and running to Detroit, with a line projected from Cleveland to Buffalo. The capital stock of this Ohio company is given at $100,000,000.

It may not be more than two or three years at the outside when it will be possible for a traveler to board a trolley car at New York City and go straight through to Chicago or a continuous and direct electric line, if he desires to make the trip.

Fares to Buffalo.

An interesting question arises whether the construction of the new Ridge Road may not ultimately reduce the permanent fare between this city and Buffalo over the lines of the New York Central. If through express trains at the rate of 21 miles an hour are to be run on the electric line with only one stop between Rochester and Buffalo, it is natural to suppose that it is expected to procure considerable through passenger traffic. The regular rate on the Central is $1.25 and of course, in order to secure much business, it will be necessary for the electric road to shade this price somewhat, although in pleasant weather many passengers might prefer to take the trip over the electric line for its novelty.

No rate has been definitely fixed by the electric road managers between Rochester and Buffalo but the highest rate suggested is $1.25 and it is possible to hope that a flat dollar rate may be made on through business, if the competition becomes hot.

The Central is now making an excursion rate to Buffalo, good for two days, for $1.50 for the return trip, making only 75 cents each way. Of course this rate is only temporary and will end when the Pan-American Exposition closes.

But with the competition that may be furnished by the Ridge Road it is possible that within a year a permanent excursion rate as low as $2 or $1 each way might be granted.

There are many possibilities for the development of Rochester and Buffalo by the construction of this net work of trolley roads of which the Ridge Road is so important a connecting factor. They will bring thousands of farmers of Western New York into closer touch with the two large cities and to a marked degree swell their business and trade.

The outcome of the conference to be held here at the end of the week between the directors of the Ridge Road and its New York backers will be awaited with considerable interest by Rochesterians.

A New Telephone Feature.

H. W. Pope, General Manager of the Bell Telephone Company, has inaugurated a feature new to the telephone business which undoubtedly will be generally adopted by the telephone companies, notwithstanding the considerable expense it involves.

Hereafter the number of subscribers' stations and the names of subscribers will be published at intervals in the daily papers as the stations are installed. This will obviate the necessary delay arising in the publication of the telephone directories, which occupy generally a whole month in their compilation, publication and delivery. The directory is reaching enormous proportions and some way had to be devised to overcome the delay in the publication of the subscribers' names. Several hundred stations have been installed in Rochester since the addendum of April 1 and these names will now be published in lots of fifty until the names are brought up to date, after which they will be published in lots of about the same number, or according to the rapidity in which they are installed. Subscribers clipping the lists from the daily papers as they appear will at all times have the names complete and up to date.

STORES MAY CLOSE SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Many Prominent Firms Have Already Signed the Agreement.

A movement has been set on foot by the Chamber of Commerce and certain merchants to make Saturday afternoon a half holiday in all the business houses in the city during the summer season. From many points of view the innovation seems to be very desirable, and if as much success attends the efforts of the solicitors in the next day or two as has been the case in the days already devoted to the project, it is likely that the change will be made. Most of the important business houses have already signed the agreement, and it is hoped and expected that all the others will do so to-day.

The following is the agreement which is meeting with such a full and ready response:

We, the undersigned, hereby agree to close our places of business at 1 o'clock on the afternoons of Saturday during the months of July and August, and the first Saturday in the month of September, 1901, providing all houses in our line agree to sign this agreement.

The following firms had affixed their signatures to the paper up to last evening:

Burke, FitzSimons, Hone & Co.
Weaver, Palmer & Richmond.
The MacMahon Special Co.
Page & Son Harness Co.
F. W. Woolworth & Co.
William Eastwood & Son Co.
Bibler, Lindsay & Curr Co.
Williamson Law Book Co.
[illegible] A. & P. Tea Co.
[illegible] & Matthews Co.
[illegible] Wetmore & Co.
McCurdy & Norwell Co.
The Dollar Hat Store.
W. H. Reilly.
Howe & Rogers Co.
Garson & Wood.
Henry C. Wisner.
Gormly Bros.
Mathews & Boucher.
Humburch Bros.
Louis Ernst & Sons.
Mabbett & Morgan.
J. R. White.
Joseph P. Doyle.
H. B. Graves.
E. J. Scheer & Co.
Meng & Shafer.
M. L. Maloney.
G. & C. Schminke.
The Sunderlin Co.
Parkhurst & Jones.
C. F. Wolters.
Meng & Shafer.
The Berlin.
Bickford Bros.
George W. Davis.
W. H. Glenny & Co.
W. L. Douglass.
Heywood Shoe Co.
Fahy-Schantz Co.
Enterprise Millinery.
Wightman & Co.
Gould, Lee & Luce.
Crippen Bros. & Flora.
Whitlock Bros.
F. G. Ranney.
Colby & Ament.
Chamberlain Rubber Store.
Rochester Rubber Co.
W. H. Gay.
E. C. Bickford.
Weis & Fisher Co.
M. Goodman.
Bausch & Son.
Rudolph Schmidt & Co.

MANY ELECTRIC ROADS CONVERGE AT ROCHESTER

Advantages Accruing to City, Village and Farming Community.

Increased Activity Among Promoters of Electric Railway Which Have Rochester as Their Objective Point—Some Highly Important Long-Distance Lines—The Rochester Belt Lines—Rapid Growth of the New Method of Transportation.

Democrat July 28 01

The granting of a franchise for the construction of an electric railway from Rochester to Lockport, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, has greatly stimulated the trolley road industry in this vicinity, and, from surface indications, it would appear that Rochester is destined to be the converging point for many of these roads.

Rochester is already provided liberally with suburban electric lines. The longest of these lines already in operation extends from this city over the high road east of the Genesee river to Sodus Bay, a distance of nearly forty miles. It passes through the villages of West Webster, Ontario, Williamson and Sodus, its eastern terminus being at the well known pleasure and health resort on Sodus bay. The Rochester & Sodus Bay railway has already become an important factor in the trade of this city, and at the same time merchants in the villages along the route claim that it has benefited their business. Another effect of the road is seen in the erection of many new houses for rural homes between the villages.

The Rochester & Irondequoit railway is now operated by electricity to the Sea Breeze, on Lake Ontario and Irondequoit bay, and is largely patronized by farmers and others residing along the line. Next to the westward is the Windsor Beach railway, also operated by electricity, which runs over the East Side boulevard to Summerville and Windsor Beach. Then comes the oldest of Rochester suburban electric railways, the line from Rochester to Charlotte and Ontario Beach, which runs over the West Side Boulevard.

The Manitou Beach electric railway connects with the Charlotte railway, and extends eight miles along a beautiful stretch of lake shore to Braddock's bay and Manitou.

Besides the important Rochester, Niagara Falls & Buffalo electric railway, which has been referred to, there are several lines projected, which have Rochester as their objective point. Much reference has recently been made to the Rochester & Southern electric railway, which is second in importance only to the Ridge road trolley to Niagara Falls and Buffalo. The Rochester & Southern is intended to extent from this city to Hornellsville, bringing within reach of this city many towns to which it is now only accessible with much difficulty. This line will absorb the trolley road from Honeoye Falls to Lima, which is now doing a very large freight and passenger business, in direct competition with a standard steam railway. Perhaps one of the most important features of the Rochester & Southern railway will be the branch extending from Lima to Honeoye village, at the foot of Honeoye lake. It will open a country which has been practically shut out from profitable markets, although it is in the heart of one of the most productive valleys in all of Western New York. It is stated by those who are familiar with conditions in the upper valley of the Honeoye outlet that the road will double the value of farming lands in that vicinity. It will enable the farmers and fruit growers to market their products at a profit; something which has heretofore been impossible.

Franchises are now being sought which will group another set of electric railways, which will also connect Rochester with Buffalo by way of Batavia and which have been detailed at length in the Democrat and Chronicle. It is understood that the men interested in the Rochester, Niagara Falls & Buffalo railway have already negotiated for the right of way for a branch of the main line to Holley, and it is considered not unlikely that other branches will be constructed to other villages, thus forming a network of electric railways through the lake tier of counties.

To the eastward and south of this city much activity in electric railway matters. It is considered certain that the company desiring to build an electric railway from Rochester to Geneva, by way of Canandaigua, will soon be awarded a franchise, and many villages will then be brought into connection with each other and the two terminal cities, Rochester and Geneva.

The Belt Line electric railway, which is to extend from Brighton to Pittsford, Penfield and Fairport, and thence to Rochester again, is considered a very important road, on account of the rich farm and truck gardening territory it covers, as well as the prosperous villages named. Although the right of way is be very long, comparatively speaking, it is not the least important of Rochester's suburban electric connections.

It is understood that the electric railway which is projected westward from Syracuse, has made trackage engagements with the Rochester Belt Line by which it will use the tracks of the latter from a point between Fairport and Penfield to this city. It is intimated that the Syracuse road is the line to which reference is to traverse the entire length of the state.

It will be seen by this superficial review of electric railway enterprises in this vicinity that opportunities will not be lacking for the people within a wide radius to reach this city conveniently. It was said by a member of the electric railway commission, on one of its numerous visits to Rochester in holding up the franchise of the Rochester, Niagara Falls & Buffalo railway, that the people of this section were "trolley mad." Careful investigation, however, shows that the people living within fifty or more miles of Rochester, instead of being "trolley mad," have simply come to recognize the value of the modern, cheap and convenient trolley road, both for passengers and freight, in demanding these facilities they are, as they properly think, simply asking for that which will enhance the value of their farm and village property, and bring them within easy reach of the city, with its advantages in the way of markets, trading and university opportunities. Indeed, instead of meriting the reproach of being "trolley mad," the people within the large territory properly tributory to Rochester appear to be trolley sane.

FOX TYPEWRITER PLANT.

It May Be Brought Here From Grand Rapids, Mich.

Negotiations are in progress between the Chamber of Commerce and the Fox Machine company, of Grand Rapids, Mich., looking towards the removal of that Michigan typewriter plant to this city. Post Express July 26 01

The Fox plant in Grand Rapids is turning out ten machines daily, but Mr. Fox, it is understood, is dissatisfied with the facilities afforded for his business in the Michigan city and is anxious to come East where he can have facilities for enlarging the capacity of his plant to fifty machines per day.

His representative here has been in consultation with Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce during the present week and a letter was sent to Mr. Fox to-day setting forth the inducements which Rochester has to offer for the removal of his plant to this city.

TODAY AFTERNOON BAND CONCERT AGAIN

Dossenbach's Band Furnished Attraction for Seneca Park East Yesterday.

The second Saturday afternoon concert of the series being given this season under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, occurred yesterday afternoon at Seneca park east by Dossenbach's Band. The first was given a week ago at Genesee Valley park.

The weather was just right for the people to experience full enjoyment. The day was not too warm for everyone to feel reasonably comfortable out under the shade of the great trees, where a slight breeze from the southwest swept across the river and created enough atir in the air to prevent any feeling of sultriness. Late in the afternoon there were signs in the heavens of rain, but they passed away and a beautiful evening came on. There were many people out with lunch baskets to take advantage of the pleasant conditions, and to eat their supper in the open air before returning to their homes. The crowd was of sufficient size and character to demonstrate the fact that the people of the city are appreciative o f their privileges, and are lovers of good music as well. When the project now being agitated by the Chamber of Commerce to secure the closing of the business houses on Saturday afternoons has been successfully accomplished, there will be many more people who will take advantage of their newly acquired half holiday to enjoy a little outing on one of the magnificent parks for which the city of Rochester is justly famous.

The concert presented yesterday was of a very high order, and won the applause of the people many times. The breeze was just right to carry the music off across the fields, and passengers o nelectric cars bound to and from the city from Windsor Beach could hear the melody while still at a considerable distance. The following programme was rendered:

PART I.

"America"	Smith
Dance—"Tomahawk"	Suppe
Sextette—"Lucia"	Donizetti
Selection—"The Wizard"	Herbert
"Tarifa Jamboree"—Descriptive	Arr. by Theodore Dossenbach
Hungarian Fantasia	Tobani

PART II.

Overture—"William Tell"	Rossini
Song for Cornet—"Love's Old Sweet Song"	Molloy
Encore—"In the Honeysuckle Trouble"	March R. N. Burleigh
Selection—"Turcomania"	Jacobi
"Holy City" (four trombones)	Adams
March—"Physical Culture" (new)	H. H. Burleigh
"Don't You Cry, Ma Honey"	Bastens
Grand Fantasia—"Albion" (Scotch, Irish and English Airs.)	Bastens
"Star Spangled Banner"

Encores—
March—"Bell Boy" Ashton
March—"Spirit of Liberty" Rosan
March—"Clear Up the Band" Clark
March—"The Maltnee Girl" (new) Hall

The cornet solos and the trombone quartette were particularly pleasing to the audience, who insisted upon encores. "The Holy City" still retains its hold on the affections of the people, and seems to be an almost necessary number on the programme of every band concert. There were people yesterday at the park who confessed that the principal reason why they had come was just to hear this famous song.

It has been said, and with considerable truth, that a Rochester audience is remarkably cool and unresponsive. An instance was to be noted yesterday. When the band arose to play the closing selection, the "Star Spangled Banner," scarcely more than half the people present stood upon their feet.

The car service yesterday was fairly good. The crowd was not nearly so large as the Sunday afternoon crowd, and very little difficulty was experienced in accommodating the people to a reasonable extent. Of course, one of those accidents which have been of so frequent occurrence as to be considered quite a commonplace occurred yesterday in the temporary failure of the power and the delay of all cars on the line for a half hour or so. But perhaps these little things cannot be helped. Democrat 7/28/01.

To-day the concert will be given by the Fifty-fourth Regiment band at Genesee Valley park. If the day is fair a tremendous crowd may be expected.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The Times joins with the general public in heartily congratulating the employes of local business houses, and the employers themselves, on the success of the movement for Saturday afternoon closing during the summer months. It is a plan fraught with humane features and one which should have been adopted long ago.

Congratulations are also in order for certain classes of merchants for whom Saturday is always a good business day, at the sacrifice of some busi- ness these firms have withdrawn their objections and a commendable spirit and have affixed their signatures to the agreement. The Times 7.28-01

It is safe to predict that after the Saturday closing plan receives its trial this summer there will be no difficulty in securing its more expeditious and unanimous adoption in succeeding years.

ANOTHER CONVENTION.

Those Interested in Deep Water Way to Meet in Rochester.

Secretary Ives to-day received the following letter from Francis Wayland Glen, secretary of the National Continental Union league, regarding the deep waterway convention to be held in Rochester the latter part of September:

New York, July 22, 1901.
Mr. John M. Ives, Secretary Rochester Chamber of Commerce, Rochester, N. Y.:
My Dear Sir—Yours of the 18th inst. came duly to hand. Its contents have been noted, and in reply beg to say that it will give me unbounded pleasure to attend a deep-waterways convention at the Power City. It was near Rochester that I was educated (Clover street seminary), and at Rochester I began my business and public career. It was there that I won the heart and hand of the holy marriage of Harriet Frances Hall, who for five and twenty years, with joy unspeakable, I called her my wife. Her earthly remains lie at rest in Mt. Hope, the most beautiful cemetery in North America, and when God calls me I anticipate that mine will rest beside hers.

It was from Rochester that I removed to Oshawa, upper Canada, to take an active interest and take part in public affairs of British North America.

I assisted in fighting and winning the battle for representation according to population, one day elections upon the same day in all Ridings, the secret ballot and a stringent anti-bribery election law. The contest for manhood suffrage was almost won when I returned to this country.

In 1878 I received a unanimous nomination from the liberals of the South Riding of Ontario to represent them in the Dominion parliament. Before I accepted the nomination I openly declared to the delegates present that I was in favor of government of, by and for the people and intensely opposed to government by the few over many for the benefit of the few, and that if my views were acceptable to the convention I would accept the nomination but not otherwise. The convention heartily cheered my declaration and I became its candidate for election. During my eight years as a member of parliament I never gave a vote that directly or indirectly retarded the consummation of continental union.

Believing as I do that this republic is the grandest and noblest incarnation of the spirit of the sermon on the mount, expressed in legislation and the administration of justice that the world has ever known, I believed it to be my bounden duty to humanity to at all times, in all places, to do and to act for the promotion of the influence, prestige, power and glory of the flag all true Americans, native or foreign born, love so wisely and so well.

In 1891 I returned to my native land and have been ever since a persistent advocate of the complete emancipation of this hemisphere and all of its dependies from European domain, dominion and control and its dedication to the uplifting of humanity through peaceful industry, or, in other words, the creation of a greater United States, extending from Newfoundland to Vancouver and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic, including Hawaii on the west (but not the Philippine islands) and all the islands to the east, which, as satellites to a planet, belong to North America.

By deepening the Genesee river from the lower falls to its connection with Lake Ontario and by constructing extensive breakwaters east and west at the entrance of the river, a safe and commodious harbor can be created accessible to vessels in all kinds of weather with ample wharfage facilities for loading and unloading at the same time a very large number of sea going vessels.

When the canals proposed in my letter addressed to that great and loyal American, the Honorable Andrew H. Green, the father of Greater New York, a vessel of 10,000 tons capacity can then pass from your city to tide water upon the Atlantic sea coast at Montreal or New York, or to the Gulf of Mexico via Chicago without breaking bulk.

The city of Manchester expended $100,000,000 to become a seaport. When the proposed canals are constructed the expenditure of $10,000,000 in dredging and constructing breakwaters and wharves will make Rochester a seaport with better facilities for loading and discharging cargoes than Manchester ever can have.

When the proposed canals are open to the public no railway combination can be organized and maintained which will rob either the producer or consumer.

I am opposed to all legislation which attempts to force railway managers to reproduce the charge for distribution by competition, but I heartily favor the construction of deep waterways by the national government which will forever make such railway combinations against the public welfare impossible and ineffectual.

Railways have rendered beneficent service to humanity, and will continue to do so throughout all generations, and I would so throughout all generations, and I would permit their managers to organize and maintain any and all forms of combination which will enable them to reduce the cost and charge for distribution, and then compel them to make a reasonable charge for the service they render by constructing deep sea canals or waterways wherever unjust railway combinations are attempted.

You will observe that the construction of the Trent Valley canal and the Georgian bay and Ottawa river canal makes islands of Eastern and Western Ontario, and a sea coast (practically) of the southern boundary of Northern Ontario from the city of Ottawa to the eastern boundary of Manitoba.

There is more iron ore in Ontario between the Ottawa river and the eastern boundary of Manitoba than there ever was in the state of Pennsylvania, and the white pine timber standing in the province of Ontario at the present time is worth $1,000,000,000, when these canals have been constructed.

When a deep sea canal has been constructed from Lake Superior through Rainy river and the Lake of the Woods to Winnipeg on the Red river, water communications will have been opened from Rochester to Edmonton on the Saskatchewan river which is 1,500 miles northwest of St. Paul, and where wheat of the best quality can be grown and where cattle can thrive outdoors all winter feeding upon the rich grass which grows at the eastern base of the Rocky mountains.

The Saskatchewan valley has an area of 40,000 square miles. Manitoba has an area of about 100,000 square miles and the province of Ontario an area of 220,000 square miles. This vast territory will be open to the merchants, bankers, manufacturers and shippers of Rochester by the construction of the canal under discussion.

I hope to publish, before the convention meets, in pamphlet form, a work showing, in complete continental system of deep sea canals, some twenty-five in number. The maps are now being made to illustrate my views, and to show at a glance the importance of each and every canal proposed in lessening the cost and charge for distribution throughout the continent of North America.

The National Continental Union league will hold its annual meeting [illegible] Sept[illegible]

Post Express July 24 01

[illegible] members of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce to be present at that meeting. Permit me again to thank you for your kind invitation to be present at the meeting of the deep sea waterways convention to be held in your beautiful city.

With best wishes for the success of the cause we advocate, I remain, my dear sir, Yours faithfully,

Francis Wayland Glen,
Secretary and General Manager.

SATURDAY HALF HOLIDAY IS ASSURED TO CLERKS

Practically All Merchants Have Signed the Agreement and the Plan Goes Into Effect This Week—Stores That Are to Be Closed.

Saturday half-holidays for the clerks and other employees of the retail stores of Rochester during the remainder of the season are assured. The movement was started only a few days ago, but it caught on at the start, and little difficulty was experienced in getting practically all employers to agree to close their places of business at noon Saturdays the remainder of this month, all of next month and the first week in September.

All that was needed, apparently, was some one to take the initiative in the matter. The Chamber of Commerce did that, and found the merchants of the city practically one in indorsing the plan. It is believed that the season's business will show no loss as a result of the closing of the stores at noon Saturdays, and all employers believe they will be gainers in the efficiency of the service of their clerks.

Already cards bearing the announcement "this store will be closed Saturday at noon" are to be seen in a number of retail establishments, and to-day and to-morrow will bring about the display of the signs in a great many more cases, as the half-holiday plan is to go into effect this week. Following are the names of the individuals and firms that have signed the agreement to close their stores from noon Saturday until the usual hour of opening for business Monday mornings:

We, the undersigned, hereby agree to close our places of business at 1 o'clock on the afternoons of Saturday, during the months of July and August, and the first Saturday in the month of September, 1901, provided all houses in our line agree to sign this agreement.

Burke, FitzSimons, Hone & Co.,
William Eastwood & Son Co.,
W. H. Reilly & Co.,
W. L. Douglas Shoe Co.,
McCurdy & Norwell Co.,
Heywood Shoe Co.,
Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Co.,
Beadle & Sherburne Co.,
Fahy-Schantz Dry Goods Co.,
Enterprise Millinery,
Wightman & Co.,
J. R. White,
W. H. Rice,
Joseph P. Doyle,
H. H. Graves,
Howe & Rogers Co.,
Garson & Wood Furniture Co.,
Henry C. Wisner,
Gormly Bros.,
Williamson Law Book Co.,
Scranton, Wetmore & Co.,
Mathews & Boucher,
Weaver, Palmer & Richmond,
Humburch Bros.,
Meng & Schafer, Main street east,
E. J. Scheer & Co.,
M. J. Maloney,
The McMahon Special Co.,
The Dollar Hat Store,
Mabbett & Morgan,
Page & Son Harness Co.,
Louis Ernst & Sons,
G. & C. Schminke,
F. W. Woolworth & Co.,
The Sunderlin Co.,
Parkhurst & Jones,
C. F. Wolters,
Meng & Schafer, State St. & W. Main,
The Berlin,
Bickford Bros.,
George W. Davis & Co.,
Crippen Bros. & Flora,
Whitlock Bros.,
F. G. Ranney,
Colby & Ament,
Chamberlain Rubber Store,
Rochester Rubber Co.,
W. H. Gay,
E. C. Bickford,
Weis & Fisher Co.,
M. Goodman,
Bausch & Son,
Rudolph Schmidt & Co.,
E. S. Ettenheimer & Co.,
W. D. Scofield,
Charles H. Judson,
A. E. Fisher & Co.,
Henry Osmisch,
John C. King,
John H. Hill,
Emerson Shoe Store,
Rochester Underwear Store,
J. Rice Sons,
D. M. Garson,
McFarlin Clothing Co.,
Union Clothing Co.,
Straus Bros.,
Empire Moulding Work, Art Dept.,
James J. Haines,
Oaks & Calhoun,
W. E. Miller,
Ripley's Millinery House,
Mrs. Augusta Dent,
E. J. Esser,
C. M. Page,
George Weldon & Co.,
W. M. Hoyt,
Osterman's Magic Clothing Parlors,
Jackson's Arcade Book Store,
Gould, Lee & Luce,
John Brodie,
F. P. Van Hoesen,
Frank H. Callister,
J. E. Smith,
Henry Lester,
J. Sage,
Sullivan Bros. Wagon Store,
B. C. Emerson,
M. W. Rundel,
The Regal Shoe,
Henry J. Klee,
W. V. Gmeser Co.,
J. G. Leitwieler & Sons,
Barnard, Porter & Viall,
The Clark Paint, Oil & Hardware Co.,
Haskins & Collyer,
James H. Brown,
George H. Broadhead,
National Clothing Co.,
Joseph Engel,
S. D. Burritt,
Welsbach Commercial Co.,
J. Taylor & Sons,
C. L. Jones & Co.,
Henry Likly & Co.,
S. B. Thing & Co.,
J. J. Zeller,
William Kenealy,
Frank A. Sleverman,
William B. Burke,
Charles S. Gibbs,
R. H. Atkin.

Democrat July 25 1901

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Seventh Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT

By Dossenbach's Band

THEODORE DOSSENBACH, Director.

Assisted by MR. FRED. REMINGTON, Cornet Soloist.
SIGNOR JNO. MELLINA, Euphonium.

IN GENESEE VALLEY PARK,

Saturday Afternoon, July 27, 1901,

From 3 to 6 o'clock.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

PROGRAM.

PART I.
"AMERICA"

1. OVERTURE—Hungarian Lustspeil - - - - Keler Bela
2. DANCE—Serpentine - - - - - - Herman
3. SELECTION—The Rounders - - - - - Englander
4. (a) Hearts and Flowers - - - - - - Tobani
   (b) The Busy Bee - - - - - - - Theo Bendix
5. CORNET SOLO - - - - - - - - Selected
   MR. F. REMINGTON.
6. POPULAR TEXAS MEDLEY - - - - - Boetger

PART II.

7. OVERTURE—Semiramide - - - - - - Rossini
8. EUPHONIUM SOLO—Old Folks at Home - - Stewart
   SIGNOR JNO. MELLINA.
9. SELECTION—Il Trovatore - - - - - Verdi
10. DOUBLE QUARTETTE—Praise Ye the Father - Gounod
    F. REMINGTON, R. E. BURLEIGH, RAY BETTYS, A. RHODE — Cornets
    SIGNOR MELLINA, GEO. BEISHEIM, H. HERBST, JOS. WINENUR — Trombones
11. (a) Passing the Cotton Field - - - - Herbert Clark
    (b) MARCH—Cinderella Soot - - - - - Yahrling
12. MARCH—Tannhauser - - - - - - Wagner

STAR SPANGLED BANNER

Eighth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT

BY

Hebing's Artillery Band

GEORGE HEBING, Director

IN SENECA PARK, EAST

Sunday Afternoon, July 28, 1901

FROM THREE TO SIX P. M.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce

Program

PART I

1. OVERTURE—"Summer Night's Dream," - - - Suppe
2. ARIA—CUJUS AMINUM, - - - - - - Rossini
3. INFLAMMATUS—STABAT MATER, - - - - Rossini
4. COON BAND CONTEST, - - - - - Pryor
5. A LA VALSE INVITATION, - - - - Weber

PART II

6. MINUET—"The Famous," - - - - Paderewski
7. SELECTION—"Burgomaster," - - - - Luders
8. INTERMEZZO—"Solome," - - - - - Loraine
9. PORTO RICAN DANCE—"Rosita" (new), - - Mussed
10. MARCH—"Fun in a Toy Shop" (new), - - Woods
11. SELECTION—"Chimes of Normandy," - - Laurendeau
12. PATROL—"Blue and Gray," - - - - Dalbey

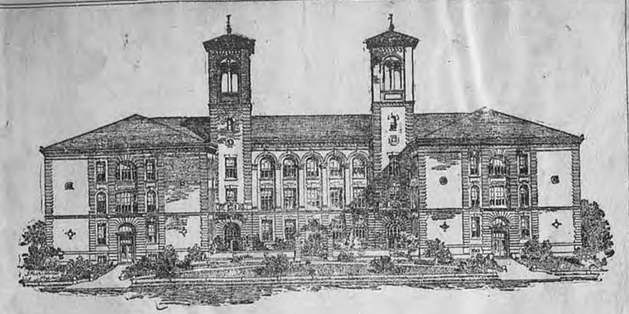
July 20/1901.

THE UNION AND ADVERTISER: WEDNESD.



THE NEW EAST SIDE HIGH SCHOOL.

The new East Side High School, a picture of which is given above, will be three stories high, constructed of Canandaigua pressed brick, Red Albion and Indiana lime stone will be used for the cut work. The interior will be finished in Florida gulf cypress. All stairways will be constructed of iron, making the building practically fireproof. Beside a large boiler room, the basement will contain bicycle rooms, baths, lockers, a thoroughly equipped gymnasium and a decided innovation in the shape of a lunch room. Lunches will be served to students at the actual cost of the materials used.

On the ground floor will be situated the principal's office, a large library, class rooms, 28 feet by 28; recitation rooms, 21 feet by 28. Of the former there will be on both floors a total of twenty rooms, of the latter eight rooms. Conversation rooms will also be provided on the second floor. On the third floor will be one of the finest and best equipped laboratories in the United States. A spacious assembly room, with a stage and capable of holding over 1,000 people, will be provided for the pupils, together with a museum and trophy rooms. The building when completed will be one of the most modern high schools in existence and a great credit to the city of Rochester. Plans have been drawn by J. Foster Warner of this city and bids for the construction of everything above the foundation will be opened on Saturday morning. Bids for heating, ventilating, etc., will be received some time later. Work will undoubtedly commence this fall and the building ready for occupancy in one year.

Democrat & Chron July 26.

LADIES ARE PLEASED. 1901

Closing Movement Indorsed by Woman's Educational and Industrial Union.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union, held yesterday afternoon, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Some years ago the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union made a strong effort to have the retail stores closed Saturday evening and were unsuccessful, and whereas, they have watched with interest the movement initiated by the Chamber of Commerce and supported by our leading business men, to accomplish this end, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we heartily indorse this action and congratulate them upon their success; and furthermore be it

Resolved, That we will do all in our power to sustain the establishments included in this compact; a compact we believe to be in the interests of justice and humanity.

Though the ladies modestly insist that no credit is due to them for the success of this movement, it is undoubtedly true that they had much to do with the instigation of the idea. Some five years ago, the first attempts in this direction were made by the members of the Woman's Union. They put forth a series of earnest efforts to secure Saturday evening closing, but with partial success only, as the tradesmen generally had not yet awakened to the practical value of the scheme. But they have kept the idea agitated since then, and to them, consequently, is due a share of the credit for the success of the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce.

When interviewed yesterday, the ladies were very enthusiastic over the project. They insist on its practical value. With a half holiday Saturday, it is claimed that the employees will do better work during the other five days. Nor are the employees the only ones benefited. The employers themselves will hail the half day's rest with joy, when they are assured that their business is not going to suffer thereby.

Said one of the prominent members of the union: "Rochester is far behind the times; she is still a country village in this respect. Nearly all other prominent cities are closing their places of business on Saturday afternoon and evening, and it is time we did so. When all the stores have agreed on it, there can certainly be no loss to trade."

The wife of one prominent business man declared that her husband had not attended church above twice in two years during the summer season, and that she hoped to get him out with her now that a rest on Saturday is forthcoming. She believed this would help solve the Sunday question. In the interests of humanity to the clerking class the women insist that this movement should be pushed forward with vigor.

In consideration of the extensive influence and practical work of the Woman's Union, its approval of this movement and intention to actively support it can lend no little weight in assuring its success.

SATURDAY CLOSING.

Tomorrow afternoon all of the large stores and many of the smaller ones will close at 1 o'clock and remain closed until Monday morning, thus giving employers and employes a day and a half of rest. It is the intention to continue the plan during the month of August and including the first Saturday of September.

The head of one of Rochester's big department stores, in a talk with a Times representative recently, cited Brooklyn as an instance where for a number of years efforts were made to bring about closing of the stores at 1 o'clock on Saturday during the summer months, and it was only after the most persistent work that it was finally accomplished by unanimous consent. Recent interviews with the owners of Brooklyn stores elicit the information that the Saturday closing has been most satisfactory, particularly in its effects on the physical condition of the employes on Monday morning. The beneficial results of a day and a half of rest are noticeable and the interview states that affability and increased attention to customers in the Monday morning rule now in summer, instead of the "tired feeling" resulting from the old plan of Saturday night work.

As to the volume of business transacted under the new rule, when compared with the old, a slight falling off is reported, but it is scarcely appreciable and is more than compensated for by the buoyancy of spirits among both employers and employes on Monday morning.

Doubtless the electric lighting companies will be the greatest losers by the plan, for the enormous consumption of electric current by the stores that will be closed tomorrow afternoon and evening would run well up into the hundreds of dollars. Like all other mercantile enterprises, the electric companies probably figure on comparatively light business in summer and as long as the good accomplished in other directions is so great, they will without doubt look at the matter in a philosophical light. In fact it will be a case of substituting philosophical light for [illegible]

The Times 7/20/01

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Public Band Concerts.

Dossenbach's Band in Genesee Valley Park, Saturday Afternoon, From 3 to 6 O'clock.

PART I.
"America."
Overture — Hungarian Lustspell ..... Keler Bela
Dance—Serpentine ..... Herman
Selection—The Rounders ..... Englander
(a) Hearts and Flowers ... Tobani
(b) The Busy Bee ... Theo. Bendix
Cornet Solo ..... Selected
Mr. F. Remington.
Popular Texas Medley ... Boettger
PART II.
Overture—Semiramide ..... Rossini
Euphonium Solo—Old Folks at Home ..... Stewart
Signor Jno. Mellina.
Selection—Il Trovatore ..... Verdi
Double Quartette—Praise Ye the Father ..... Counod
F. Remington, Signor Mellina, H. E. Burleigh, Geo. Beshehm, Ray Bettys, H. Herbst, A. Rhode, Jos. Wirsenur.
Cornets. Trombones.
(a) Passing the Cotton Field ..... Herbert Clark
(b) March—Cinderella Soot ..... Yahrling
Encore—Repeated.
March—Tannhaeuser ..... Wagner
Star Spangled Banner.

Hebing's Artillery Band in Seneca Park, East, Sunday Afternoon, From 3 to 6 O'clock.

PART I.
Overture — Summer Night's Dream ..... Suppe
Aria—Cujus Animum ..... Rossini
Inflammatus—Stabat Mater ..... Rossini
Coon Band Contest ..... Pryor
A La Valse Invitation ..... Weber
PART II.
Minuet—The Famous ..... Paderewski
Selection—Burgomaster ..... Luders
Intermezzo—Solome ..... Loraine
Porto Rican Dance—Hosita (New) ..... Mussed
March—Fun in a Toy Shop (New) ..... Woods
Selection—Chimes of Normandy ..... Laurendeau
Patrol—Blue and Gray ..... Dalbey

Herald, July 28

NO PARCELS HANDLED.

The Railroads Did a Light Business in This Line.

The parcel rooms at the railroad stations were well nigh deserted yesterday afternoon, and at the New York Central, where the most business is done, but one clerk was busy most of the time. It was one effect of the Saturday half holiday. There were no shoppers in town from the country, and as a result no parcels to be handled.

Saturday has been the big day for shoppers in Rochester for years. It has been the custom of some of the railroads to make excursion rates for that day, and the country people have taken advantage of the low rates and flocked here by the hundreds. Late in the afternoon the parcel rooms have resembled the headquarters of Santa Claus. Whether the roads will now offer excursion rates on one day during the middle of the week remains to be seen.

Herald, July 28, 01.

HEBING'S BAND

Gave a Fine Programme in Seneca Park East.

WAS CLASSICAL AND POPULAR

Thousands of Persons Enjoyed the Music and More Would Have Been There if the Trolley Cars Moved a Little Faster — Rain Scattered the Crowd at Last.

Hebing's Artillery Band gave a concert in Seneca Park East from 3 to nearly 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon before an audience of thousands who like to hear music, and the enthusiastic applause testified that the efforts of the performers met with hearty approbation. It may not be said that the audience represented the musical culture of the city, and received the numbers with the finest discrimination as to technical difficulties and triumphs, but the people required music that touched the heart, that set the blood tingling in the veins, made the listeners feel alternately like singing and dancing. These things Hebing's band did with ease, and it always can do it when George Hebing wields the baton.

There were classical as well as popular selections on the programme and full justice was done to all. Suppes "Summer Night's Dream" made an opening number that was appropriate to the weather even if the hour was a little early for a dream. The piece was played with smoothness and precision. Then came those two fine selections from Rossini's "Stabat Mater," the Cujus Animam and the Inflamatus, and they received a reverent and hearty rendering.

In the subsequent selections were waltzes and march movements, coon comedy, novelties and in conclusion "The Blue and the Gray," of which nobody seems to tire. The new march "Fun in a Toy Shop," by Woods, pleased the crowd greatly. Every number was played with equal spirit and accuracy.

As the afternoon wore along the heavy clouds in the north were noted by many persons in the big crowd and those who were made uneasy by the indications of a storm started to look for cars, realizing that it might take a long time to get back to the city, with the usual standard of trolley car accommodations. Those who went on their bicycles or in their carriages of course were not fearful of delay in getting home. The last number had scarcely been played when the storm broke and then there was a rush for the cars. It was nearly 8 o'clock when the last of the crowd reached the city.

There was indeed ground for apprehension of unsatisfactory service. Sometimes the company has not had a sufficient number of cars. At other times there seem to be sufficient cars but not power to make them go at any reasonable speed. Yesterday was one of the days when the trouble was with the power. The cars crawled to the park, making the trip with numerous pauses when the power gave out for a few moments at a time. Coming back to the city the trip was still slower. At one time over a dozen cars were trying to go up the hill near Driving Park Avenue. One or two would make a half block or so, while the others waited, as there was not enough current for all to move at the same time, and not enough power for even one or two cars to go along steadily. So at the stops the passengers in some cases would get out and wait, passing sarcastic remarks as to the relative speed of these cars and the ordinary canal boat. For the most part, however, the people were good-natured and took into consideration the obvious fact that the company was trying to do something as proved by the large number at ars is sent to this line. The company is unfortunate, as the traffic would increase greatly if the car accommodations were adequate.

There were fair sized crowds at the other parks, but nothing compared to the multitude in Seneca Park, showing that the combination of park and brass band is what the people want.

SUNDAY, JULY 28, 1901. Dem.

SOME OF THE BEAUTIES OF THE ROCHESTER PARKS

Views and Sketches in Stately Seneca Park East.

THRONGED BY THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE.

An Unattractive Bit of Ragged Woodland Transformed Into a Beautiful Pleasure Ground—Magnificent Views Along the Gorge of the Lower Genesee--A Pleasure Ground of Which All Rochesterians Are Proud.

When the Rochester park commission had fairly entered upon the purchase of the land which now forms the magnificent Genesee Valley park on the south, and the stately, wooded Seneca park on the north boundary of the city, many Rochesterians had grave misgivings as to the wisdom of its policy. It was urged that the "farm" along the upper river and the "woods" which skirted the high banks of the Genesee to the northward should have been left to their rural solitude; that only future generations would reap the benefit of the expenditure, and even then, in the estimation of these pessimists, the results at benefits would be doubtful, in comparison with the outlay.

One week ago last Sunday 10,000 men, women and children gathered in the cool groves of Seneca park east, and, far from the sweltering heat of the city, listened to a band concert which lasted for hours. On last Sunday afternoon a crowd, approximately as large, visited the Genesee Valley park, where again Rochester's principal band discoursed sweetest music. Again thousands, on last Sunday also, availed themselves of the shady nooks of the Seneca park, and for a time forgot the heat and dust of the town.

It has come to be an accepted theory that when a city determines upon an adequate system of parks, there must of necessity be a long period of waiting before the advantages of real parks can be realized. Usually civic patience is equal to the ordeal, although it is sometimes sorely tried while waiting for the parks to grow into the fullness of their attractiveness. It is realized that full-fledged parks cannot be created in a season, and that it sometimes requires a decade or two of years for the civilization of a city to reach its park boundaries.

Rochester has happily proved an exception to all rules in the matter of park making. While, to be sure, owing to easily explainable conditions, Seneca park seemed to linger in its advancement towards the estate of a park proper, the Genesee Valley reservation became an attractive place of resort, almost from the very beginning of its history. Situated on a lovely stretch of the Genesee river, and easily accessible by street railway cars, it at once sprang into popularity. So great, indeed, was this popularity that the public came to look, not only with tolerance, but with positive approval upon extensive and rapidly acquired additions. This condition was doubtless, to a great extent, owing to the wise policy of the park board, in making the reservation a park for the public from the very outset. The same policy to Lake Ontario has been pursued with the additions, with the result that the reservation has, apparently, never undergone the somewhat dreary process of ostensible park making. Hence it is that the present generation has come at once into its inheritance. Not that the Genesee Valley park has by any means reached the fullness of its attractiveness and intrinsic value, for it would indeed be a bold prophet who could estimate that attraction and intrinsic value, a few years hence, when the city has enlarged and grown beyond and around the borders of the park. But the present generation is having its share of enjoyment and benefit.

It has been said that the Seneca park lingered somewhat in its progress. This is only true apparently. The park is so extensive, and extends to such a distance along the deep gorge of the Genesee river, that the task of creating a modern park was seemingly one of many years. It was recognized as a bold proposition, and even the most enthusiastic advocate of modern parks believed that it would be a successful candidate for public favor. However, the park authorities pursued their way steadily, and at the same time with as much energy as prudent policy and due regard to financial conditions would warrant. A systematic and scientific plan of forestry was adopted and rigidly sustained. Gradually the ragged woods were transformed into well kept and attractive groves; the tangled underbrush was banished, opening pleasing vistas of river and gorge, and the unattractive region which, within the memory of men yet young, was the habitat of the rattlesnake, has become an extensive park, of almost unrivaled beauty.

The Democrat and Chronicle is enabled this morning to give a number of random views of Seneca park east and Genesee Valley park. Beautiful and attractive as are the views, they are but typical of hundreds which might be taken within the boundaries of the reservations of which every Rochesterian is already justly proud. Without making an invidious comparison, it must be admitted that Seneca park rivals its older companion in scenic effects which lend themselves to the camera and the pencil of the artist. For miles the park extends along the grand gorge of the lower Genesee, which at no point, from its birth high in the Alleghanies to Lake Ontario, affords more magnificent views, with the possible exception of the Portage region. For Genesee park proper begins with the great arch bridge which spans the river at the falls, and extends along its course till the high banks dwindle into the slope which leads from the portage to the vicinity of the RABBIT HUTCH, SENECA PARK.

Some of these views the artist has cleverly caught, and they will prove welcome souvenirs to the lover of park scenery. At the same time, sublime as are some of the views which are presented to the visitor to Seneca park, it is not without other attractions which add pleasure. The modest little zoological garden has become exceedingly attractive, not only to the little ones, but to visitors of larger growth. With the exception of a few simians, recently placed in cages, the animals and birds are all indigenous. Two large eagles serve to stimulate the patriotism of the young visitors, while even their elders find some educational features in the carefully selected animals.

TROUT LAKE, SENECA PARK.

A park would scarcely be worthy of the name if it did not possess a bear garden, and the two youthful specimens in the inclosure near the casino form a fund of never-ending amusement. When one watches their almost human antics, it is difficult to realize that they are not possessed of iniative intelligence. Certainly they are very human in their play, and resemble young children to a degree which renders a visit to the big picket inclosed den very interesting. While the prairie wolf, the fox, the squirrels, the Mongolian pheasants, the gulls, the coons, and others of the animal and feathered tribes, attract attention, it is a singular fact that the little flock of sheep seems to have the greatest number of admirers. Taken altogether, this diminutive collection of birds and animals is wonderfully restful to the visitor.

Creature comforts are by no means lacking in Seneca park east. There is no question of "chairs for hire," in this reservation which belongs to everybody in general and to Rochesterians in particular. Ample provision for seat is made in the numerous benches and settees, while the casino, views of which are given, affords much in the way of innocent beverage and cooling sustenance.

The little lake near the casino is a constant delight to junior visitors, and hundreds of shady nooks afford rest for the weary. An interesting feature of Seneca park is the grove of young oaks which has been planted near the casino. Each tree has been dedicated to some celebrity, and the element of patriotism figures in the annual custom of school children repairing to the park on Arbor Day and planting an oak which shall perpetuate the name of some military or naval hero or worthy citizen of Rochester, when its shade shall shelter generations yet to come.

The recent extension of a loop of the street railway to the casino has made the center of Seneca park very accessible, and the casino can now be reached within fifteen minutes after leaving the heart of the town.

One of the engravings presents a view of the beautiful rustic bridge below the lake, in the northern portion of Seneca park.

Seneca park west is that portion of the reservation lying on the west bank of the river. While this portion of Seneca park has not reached the advanced stage of the park on the east side of the gorge, it still has many attractions, and has many visitors. It is well kept, and is undergoing the steady improvement which will soon make it a worthy rival of its more favored across the river.

THE BEAR DEN, SENECA PARK.

CASINO, SENECA PARK.

VIEW FROM CASINO LAWN.

CONCERT YESTERDAY AT GENESEE VALLEY PARK

7/28/01 Dem.

Many Young People Spent Their First Half Holiday Under the Great Trees.

The complexion of the crowd that listened to the band concert yesterday at Genesee Valley park was somewhat different from that of the crowd that went out to Seneca park a week ago. Perhaps the larger portion yesterday were young people set at liberty for the afternoon, through the operation of the Saturday afternoon closing agreement, for the first time since the series of concerts began. The concerts are given under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, and the movement which gave the employees of the large city business houses their first opportunity of enjoying the afternoon music was the result of efforts put forth under the direction of the same body.

The number of people in attendance was about the same as a week ago. The Saturday attendance cannot compare with that of Sunday. The Saturday crowd is not the same as the Sunday crowd. There were many yesterday who said that it was the first concert they had attended. Many of them were those who before have been at work on week days, and on Sundays they have scruples against attending such affairs. However exacting they may be, the world will never suffer from the possession or the expression of such opinions. At any rate the people enjoyed the concert very much yesterday.

It was a good concert to which they listened. It was Dossenbach's band which rendered the programme. Fred Remington, cornet soloist, and Signor Jno. Melina, euphonium, assisted. The numbers were all well received; the popular portions very naturally seemed to please more than the classical. The solo numbers and "Il Trovatore" brought forth much applause. The programme as rendered was as follows:

PART I.

"America"
Overture—"Hungarian Lustspell" ... Keler Bela
Dance—"Serpentine" ... Herman
Selection—"The Rounders" ... Englander
Encore—"Invincible Eagle" ... Sousa
"Hearts and Flowers" ... Tobani
"The Busy Bee" ... Theodore Bendix
Cornet solo—"Under the Shade of the Palm" ... Selected
Mr. F. Remington.
"Floredora" ... Stewart
Texas Medley ... Boettger
"Elper's Whiskers" ...
PART II.
Overture—"Semiramide" ... Rossini
Euphonium solo—"Old Folks at Home" ... Stewart
Signor Jno. Mellina.
Encore—"Alice, Where Art Thou?"
Selection—"Il Trovatore" ... Verdi
Encore—"La Miserer" (repeated)
Double quartette—"Praise Ye the Father" ... Counod
F. Remington, H. E. Burleigh, Ray Bettys, A. Rhode, cornets; Signor Mellina, George Beshehm, H. Herbst, Joseph Wirsenur, trombones.
"Passing the Cotton Field" ... Herbert Clark
March—"Cinderella Soot" ... Yahrling
Encore—Repeated.
Requested—"William Tell" ... Rossini
March—"Tannhauser" ... Wagner
Star Spangled Banner ...

The car service was unexpectedly poor. The average time in getting to the park was very nearly an hour. It was the same or more so in getting home again. At the close of the concert cars were sent into the park one at a time when there were enough people waiting to fill a dozen. Those that did finally get into the grounds pulled out again with loads of seventy and seventy-five. It was stated yesterday that unless the street car service becomes better, steps may be taken toward the establishment of a small station at the park at which the steam railroad companies will be asked to have their trains stop.

One little child, when assured by the mother who was weary of standing up, that they would soon be near home, answered: "Oh, but, mamma, the longer I ride the better I like it." The sentiment of the passengers was better expressed by the little boy who grew tired of waiting at the entrance of the park and cried out: "Mamma, let's get off this car and get on another; I don't like this one." He was told that they must wait for a car to pass. When the car finally started up again after waiting for two, instead of one, the boy asked: "What are we going for? Ain't we going to wait for another car?"

The concerts are to be a permanent institution of the city after this season, and steps will be taken for their maintenance. As for the present time, if the Saturday concerts are to be continued throughout the season, there must be more contributions made to the fund of the Chamber of Commerce. It costs money to maintain this series of entertainments, and unless money is forthcoming people will wake up some fine Saturday morning and find that they will no longer be able to spend their half holiday in this pleasant fashion. Now is the time to subscribe to this cause.

HALF HOLIDAY FOR EMPLOYEES

ALL BUSINESS HOUSES WERE CLOSED YESTERDAY.

Dem. 7/28/01

AFTERNOON OF PLEASURE

MANY EXCURSIONS AND PICNICS OF CLERKS AND SALESMEN.

PROJECT IS SUCCESSFUL

Very Good Beginning Has Been Made —Prophecies of Development Into Broader Fields of Influence— May be the Foundation for New Movements Later.

"How much this seems like Sunday afternoon," was the remark made by a large number of people yesterday who passed along the main streets of the city and noticed that the closed doors of the large business houses and the numerous drawn shutters. And the appearance of the streets certainly was very similar to the look which they wear on the average Sunday. The people as they passed along were no more in a businesslike hurry than if no business were being done in the entire city. They were on their way to secure pleasure and rest and change, as the most of the passersby on Sunday are. The very atmosphere seemed like anything but a week day atmosphere for it was not charged with the elements of hurry and nervous bustle, such as is evident on the six business days of the week.

It was indeed different from the morning air. The change was sudden and occurred at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. At that hour doors of the business establishments were drawn to and the shutters pulled down. This was done very promptly in most instances. But it was a sight to bring tears to the eyes of the gods to see the curtains in a few stores drawn and a few belated purchasers admitted as privately and as secretly as possible. It is wonderful what a grip the almighty dollar has secured on some men's souls, that it should be able to drive away all moral scruples.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

...s all along the streets revealed a few open doors. Among them were news stands, refreshment parlors, drug stores, saloons, undertakers' establishments, and the police station. One class of open stores consisted of the few that have held out against the Saturday closing movement and have put themselves in the list of members of the "Kikker Klub." It was a fact worthy of note that in these few stores the clerks were almost without exception standing about in listless groups, watching their more favored brothers and sisters passing by on the streets to enjoy their holiday, while their employers sat in their offices and waited to view the rush of customers that were to appear in response to the signs of "Special Bargain Sales on Friday and Saturday" which hung in the windows. But the abovementioned rush never came. It is also worthy of chronicling that some of the said employers, after one day's experiment, have expressed the intention of closing their stores next Saturday.

And what beame of them all, the employees, the clerks and salesmen, to whose minds for the first time was presented the dilemma of choosing by what method they should spend their holiday.

"Are there more people than usual patronizing your excursion lines to-day?" was asked of a railroad official.

"Are there!" he exclaimed: "Just look there," and with a dramatic gesture he waved his arms toward the crowd of people that thickly lined the curb near the Four Corners, as if the sight of so much humanity waiting to take excursion cars on a Saturday afternoon made a verbal answer to the query unnecessary. "All on account of the Saturday closing," he said as he moved away.

The guardian of the peace that guides the traffic from curb to curb said that the excursion crowd was something almost never seen before on a week day and a work day. "Just look at those cars," said he, "all loaded to the doors. That's where these people that work in the stores are going. That's what they are going to do with their holiday. Ever since the stores closed at 1 o'clock the cars to Sea Breeze and Glen Haven and Windsor Beach and Ontario Beach have been crowded just like that. There is no crowd that can beat this except the Sunday crowd."

Most of the signs in the windows yesterday read, "This store will be closed Saturday at 1 o'clock." One exception was noticed in which the phrase read, "This store closed because of our annual picnic." Evidently the employees of that firm were enjoying special entertainment on their first halfholiday. But they were not the only ones who went on picnics. There were numerous small parties on their way to some of the lake resorts, where they would have their supper on the beach or under the trees of the groves.

The big picnic of the day was that which the shoe dealers and their clerks held at Newport. The first number on the programme as arranged by the committee was a tallyho parade through the streets. Then the jollification began. A ball game had been arranged between the employees of William Eastwood & Son and those of Gould, Lee & Luce. Other sports were indulged in. The committee in charge of the outing was composed of A. W. Childs, George W. Scott, C. D. McLaughlin and William Brink.

While there are some people who look askance at the innovation or even regard it with chagrin or hostility, the general sentiment seems to be heartily in support of the Saturday closing movement. It would be natural to find it so, or there would not have been sufficient spirit to have brought it thus far on its successful course. That is, the movement would never have been originated had not a public sentiment existed which seemed to demand such action. When the public or any considerable branch of the public fix their desires on a thing, they are pretty sure to get it. The people, owning the country and running the country, can have what they want, if it is within the power of man to secure it.

By some people the movement is thought to be a forestaste of even better things to come. There is the suggestion of the possibility that this may be the prophecy of a time to appear soon when the stores throughout the entire year will close at 6 o'clock every Saturday night. There is no sense, say some of the dealers, why the people should put off the purchase of their goods until the last thing Saturday evening. The purchases can be made just as well a little earlier. One of the principal reasons why such a large amount of purchasing seems to be done every Saturday evening is the fact that people seem to take delight in the excitement that goes with a big crowd, and in the exhilaration which is aroused by the contact with such a large number of people. A great many large cities are getting along very well without having stores open on the last evening in the week, and Rochester may be able to do the same. "Oh, Rochester learns a thing or two occasionally," said one gentleman, "and when it is learned it is never forgotten." He was speaking more particularly with regard to the series of band concerts being given under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, but the principle he enunciated was couched in general form, and will be well enough to apply to the knowledge gained in the matter of store closing.

As was thought would be the case by a great many who were particularly interested in the project, the Saturday closing did not decrease the amount of trade done by the stores. There was a considerable increase in the amount of sales made on Friday and on Saturday morning. There are just so many things to be secured from the stores by the people, and if they cannot be had at one time they will be had at another, and there is no actual difference in the total amount of business done.

...TO THE BIG PARKS

Passenger Agents Tell Why Steam Roads do Not Convey People to Band Concerts.

The following, which is a sort of answer of the railroad passenger agents to "Aliquis," who wrote yesterday morning in the Democrat and Chronicle, inquiring why it was that the steam railroads were not called upon to perform their duty in carrying passengers to the city parks, when there were band concerts held therein, is not made in defense of the railroads, but is merely the statement of the local passenger agents regarding the matter. Inasmuch as a Democrat and Chronicle reporter asked each and every one of the passenger agents several weeks ago if they would carry passengers on their roads to the parks during the band concerts, they thought that this rather unusual way of answering the writer might be taken.

"Aliquis" states that the Rochester Railway Company has been freely criticised for failing to accomplish the impossible. He means, of course, for not giving the service needed into the parks on the afternoons of the concerts. He asks why the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg does not furnish transportation for 5,000 people from Brinker station to Seneca park, and for half as many more from the West Side station on the occasion of the band concert to-day; why the Lehigh Valley, the Erie and the Pennsylvania railroads are not pressed into service to Genesee Valley park. All three roads pass the park.

The agents of the Erie and the Lehigh ask if people would be willing to pay 20 cents for the round trip, for the privilege of hearing the band play. Each of the agents said that they could not carry passengers for less than 5 cents each way, and that the people would have to pay the same fare on the street car in going to the railroad stations. Possibly Aliquis meant that only persons living in the vicinity of the railroad stations would go via the steam roads.

The Erie runs trains out of its station at 4:30 and 5 o'clock P. M. daily, and at 5 o'clock Sundays. The Lehigh runs trains south Sunday and daily at 3:30 and 5:40 P. M. The Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg road has no trains out during the afternoon of Sundays, but has daily trains as follows: 3:20, 4:40 and 5:30 P. M. Returning there are trains arriving in the city over the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg road at 3:45, 7:30 and 7:40 P. M.

It is said that the Erie gave service to Genesee Valley park when the park was first opened, and that for a time the Western New York & Pennsylvania, now the Pennsylvania road, gave Sunday service to this park. Neither the daily nor the Sunday trains paid expenses, it is claimed, and for that reason they were discontinued.

In regard to the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg road; passengers on the way down wishing to stop at the park have only to notify the conductor, the reporter was told, and all trains returning stop at the park for passengers on flag signal.

PARK OFFICIALS INDIGNANT.

Complain of Poor Trolley Service to Genesee and Seneca Parks.

Strong indignation was expressed at the park board rooms to-day by park officials over the poor car service to and from the parks on Saturday and Sunday. One of the officials, in speaking of the matter to a reporter for The Post Express, said: "Yesterday afternoon, as you are probably aware, there was not sufficient power to propel the cars the company had in service and it was a long and irritating trip that hundreds of persons had to take standing in cars in rain soaked garments to get back to the city. On Saturday afternoon, besides the big crowd attracted by the band concert there was the usual Saturday aggregation of golf players and spectators and many persons were attracted by a ball game at Genesee park. And still the company only ran alternate cars into the park on the Plymouth avenue line. The bandsmen who gave the concert came up on a car that turned at Jefferson avenue, leaving the musicians to walk a mile and a half to reach the band stand. Half of the crowd had to do the same thing, for the alternate cars that came through were loaded to the doors and it was impossible for those left at Jefferson avenue to transfer."

An official of the Rochester Railway company said to-day: "In the afternoon yesterday every car went to Genesee Valley park. There was some delay caused by the breaking down of two cars. As to Seneca park, the cars went down in a continuous procession. At 5.10 p. m. the breaking of a trolley wire at Evergreen street caused slight delay."

Express July 29/01

TWO FINE CONCERTS.

Bands Entertained Large Crowds at the Union Parks. July 29, 1901

Heibig's Artillery Band gave a concert at Seneca park east yesterday afternoon that fully demonstrated the popularity of concerts at the parks. The crowd which gathered was one of the largest ever seen at the park and the concert was thoroughly enjoyable, if the demeanor of the crowd proved anything.

The concert contained a couple of numbers appropriate for Sunday afternoon and many which were of a more popular character. The former were the "Cujus Animam" and "Inflammatus," from Rosini's "Stabat Mater," and a "Religioso" by Chambers. They were greatly appreciated, though the more popular airs received the greater share

DEEP WATER WAYS CONVENTION

Post Express 7/29/01.

Favorable Replies Received by Chamber of Commerce.

MEETING WILL BE HELD EITHER IN SEPTEMBER OR OCTOBER.

One of Objects of Convention Is to Get National Consensus of Opinion Before Congress—Report of U. S. Commission Will Soon Be Published.

In response to letters whicht are being sent out by the Chamber of Commerce, asking for opinions concerning the advisability of holding a deep waterways convention here in the fall, favorable replies are coming in daily to John A. C. Wright, chairman of the local committee appointed by the chamber to take the matter in charge. Not all of these replies favor holding the convention in September. Some point out the fact that the month follows too closely upon summer vacations to give business men an opportunity thoroughly to consider the matter and lay their plans accordingly. Such writers advocate holding the convention in October.

Chairman Wright said to a Post Express reporter to-day that the consensus of opinion would be followed in the matter of fixing the date.

Without exception, however, all of the gentlemen from whom replies have been received, favor Rochester as the convention's meeting place rather than Buffalo, for the reason that Buffalo's barge canal scheme would prevent her citizens from supporting the larger deep waterways project and its consequent benefit to Rochester. As the largest city on Lake Ontario, these writers point out, it is eminently fitting that she should entertain the convention.

One object in holding the convention early in the fall, Mr. Wright says, is to get an expression of opinion from the delegates present, to lay before congress when it meets. The report of the United States Deep Waterways commission which was made to congress at its last session, but was not discussed by it, owing to lack of time, is now nearly out of the printer's hands, Mr. Wright said, and will soon be made public. The report took three years in its making and cost $485,000.

Among those from whom the Chamber of Commerce has received replies concerning the convention is Major George Y. Wisner, president of the United States Deep Waterways commission, who resides in Detroit. Major Wisner thinks the move for a convention is a proper one and expresses a hope that it will result in the different factions in New York state getting together on some definite line of action. He says he will come to the convention.

Henry B. Herbert, of New York city, chairman of the committee on canals, wants to know whether the projectors of the convention are committed to the recommendations of the Deep Waterways commission, or whether, it is to be a convention for a free discussion and unbiased consideration of the situation of canal affairs. He also desires to know how many delegates the New York Exchange, with its 2,000 members will be entitled to at the convention.

O. A. Tharp, president of the Deep-Waterways association, of Illinois, is one of those who favors a later date for the convention but says that if it is decided to hold it in September he will do what he can to bring out a good representation from Illinois.

William P. Judson, member from New York of the executive committee of the International Deep Waterways association, thinks that this year is not the best time for a convention since the report of the United States Deep Waterways commission has not yet been given to the public. His view is shared by President A. L. Crocker, of the Minneapolis Board of Trade, who adds that without the report of the commission, the convention would be in no position to consider the expense of so large an undertaking.

To these objections Mr. Wright replies that for the year to be...

...ngress of the convention, and that the published report will undoubtedly be ready for the consideration of delegates by the time the convention meets.

Neither Mr. Judson nor Mr. Crocker, however, refuse to assist in making the convention a sucess, but express themselves as willing to abide by the consensus of opinion of those who advice is sought.

Francis Wayland Glen, manager and secretary of the National Continental Union league, a letter from whom was recently published in The Post Express, has again written to Mr. Wright, giving a list of prominent sympathizers with the deep waterways movement, to whom he suggests invitations to the convention be sent. He adds that if this is done a large number of gentlemen from New York city will probably charter a special car and come to the convention in a body.

John E. Shaw, of Pittsburg, writes that "every step that is taken to interest the American people on the importance of improved waterways is an advance step." He promises to be present, as does also J. G. Benedict, of Burlington, Vt., who adds that he will endeavor to bring out a good representation from his section.

As soon as these opinions from the leaders in the deep waterways movement have been gathered, the Chamber of Commerce will begin the work of sending out invitations. These will include the chambers of commerce of all the large cities of the country, as well as many invitations to smaller places where prominent men who sympathize with the movement reside.

The last deep waterways national convention was held in Cleveland six years ago, and it is conceded to have brought together one of the most representative bodies of men in the country.

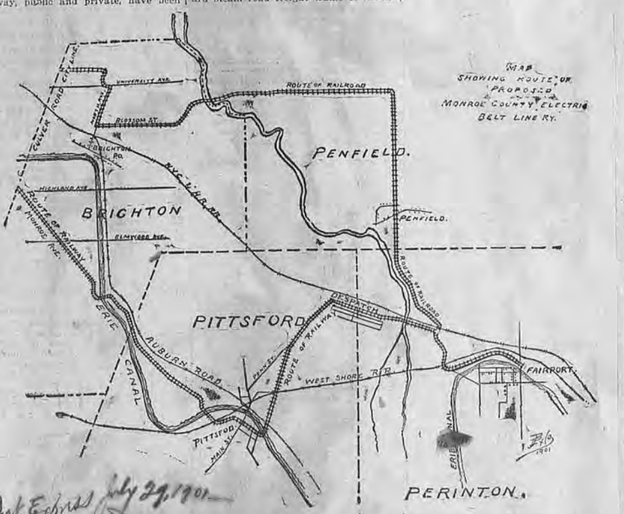
THE POST EXPRESS: MONROE COUNTY BELT LINE. 7/29/01

Application for Franchise to Be Made Immediately—Right of Way Has Been Obtained—Plans for Ridge Road Railway—Mr. McTighe Here.

Clarence W. McKay, of Lewis & McKay, said to-day that application for a franchise for the Monroe County Belt Line Electric railway would be made immediately to the State Railroad commission. Merton E. Lewis, who is active in pushing the affairs of the Belt line is in Sodus on a short vacation.

In the opinion of Mr. McKay, the new road will have plain sailing. All rights of way, public and private, have been secured and no serious opposition is looked for from the Central Railway company. The business of the road will be largely of a passenger nature although it is expected that considerable freight will be carried.

Henry McTighe, of Brooklyn, who has the contract for the construction and equipment of the Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Rochester Electric railway, otherwise known as the "Ridge Road line," was in Rochester yesterday. Mr. McTighe said the new road would be constructed of seventy-pound T rails on ties of standard steam railway width and pea gravel screenings or sesquoni will be so strongly built that it would carry steam locomotives and that standard steam road freight trains of fifteen cars will be run over the new road at a speed of twenty miles an hour. The passenger cars will be run by motor as electric passenger cars are usually run. Electric locomotives will draw the freight trains.



ROUTE OF THE MONROE COUNTY BELT LINE.

Post Express July 29, 1901

CAR SERVICE TO PARKS.

An Interesting Difference Concerning Complaints Between Mr. Nicholl and Mr. Laney.

T. J. Nicholl, general manager of the Rochester Railway Company, says in a morning paper in answer to the criticisms of the manner in which the street car system in this city is run that the company is not sending its cars anywhere for nothing; that where there are no passengers the company does not make an effort to send cars; that the people will never see the time when they can step out from their doorways and see a car standing right at the curb for them; that the people are too exacting; that he feels like the old man with a wagon load of apples, who, when the tail board came out, letting the fruit fall to the ground, could not express himself and that he never received a complaint from the park authorities concerning the poor car service to the parks.

Concerning the latter statement the following signed statement from Superintendent of Parks Laney is interesting:

In reply to the statement of Manager Nicholl of the Rochester Railway Company that the Park Board has never complained to him about the inadequate car service to Genesee Valley Park, I will state that in conferences between the Park Commission and Mr. Nicholl the subject has frequently been discussed and complaints have been made by members of the board to Mr. Nicholl that the company was not giving proper service and the service promised to the board early in the season.

Union 7/30/1901. C. C. Laney, Superintendent of Parks.

And there you are.

GAS COMPANY'S BILL

Post Express 7/31/1901.

ROCHESTER RAILWAY COMPANY ALLEGES IT IS EXORBITANT.

President Judson of the Gas Company Refuses to Sell to the Street Car Company Any More Power Until the Bill Is Paid in Full.

It is understood that one of the reasons for the inadequacy of the supply of power for the Rochester Railway company's cars, is that the Rochester Gas and Electric company is disposed to charge more than the railway thinks is fair for the use of its conduits. The Gas company has presented a bill for $5,000 for using its conduits, to the Street Car company, and the latter having refused to pay it, suit is about to be brought. The Gas company insists that the bill must be paid before it will sell the Street Car company any more power. The latter's power station is not sufficient for its needs, and the proposed new power house cannot be completed in less than a year's time and the new Citizens Light and Power company is not yet in position to generate or sell power.

The Gas company's proposed suit against the Street Car company is based on the rate of sixteen cents a foot per annum per duct for feed wires and six cents per foot per annum for return wires. The Street Car company occupies 20,578 feet of duct with its feed wires and 13,638 with its return wires. If the entire conduit were rented at 16 cents per foot of duct the income therefrom would be in the neighborhood of $1,000 per year, or about 20 per cent. of the entire cost of the subway as claimed by the Rochester Gas company.

The Rochester Railway company has learned that in Baltimore where there is a similar subway contract and the electric subways are rented out by a private company which has constructed them, the charges are as follows: For 20,000 feet or under per annum 7 cents per foot, between 20,000 and 50,000 feet per annum 6 1-2 cents per foot; between 50,000 and 75,000 feet of duct per annum 6 cents per foot; between 75,000 and 100,000 feet of duct per annum 5 1-2 cents per foot, and above 100,000 5 cents per foot. The Rochester Railway company is asked to pay an average price of 13 cents per foot per annum and the price under the Baltimore schedule for the same amount of conduit it occupies would be 6 1-2 cents or one-half the price charged here.

If the case ever comes to trial some interesting information will be elicited and it will have an important bearing on the question of municipal ownership of the subways as advocated by Mayor Carnahan. This clause in the contract entered into between the city of Rochester and the Rochester Gas company in 1893 will be prominent:

"Seventh—Said company shall fix a fair scale of rents to be paid by said corporations according to the kind of conductors and the number of ducts or the amount of space required, the total amount of which rental shall not at any time exceed 10 per cent. per annum on the entire cost of providing, building, equipping, maintaining and operating the aforesaid additional ducts."

The attorneys of the Rochester Gas company contend that this clause gives it the absolute right to charge any one company 10 per cent. of the cost of maintaining and building all the additional ducts and that hence the Rochester Railway company is estopped from contesting the rentals charged unless it can show that they are in excess of this 10 per cent. per annum of the whole cost. The Rochester railway contends that the clause quoted only fixes a maximum price beyond which the Gas company cannot go. It also contends that the Gas company's bill is excessive and exorbitant.

It was apparent to-day that efforts are being made to compromise the difficulty. A. H. Harris, the attorney for the Gas company, is out of the city and his father, Edward Harris, refused to discuss the matter in any shape. Manager Nicholl, of the Rochester Railway company, and the company's attorney, C. J. Bissell, had a long conference this morning and at its close neither would discuss the Gas company's bill or the reported action at law. Afterward Mr. Nicholl called at the Gas company's office to see Mr. Judson but the latter was out of the city.

HIGHLAND PARK CONCERT.

Union & Advertiser 7/29/01

Dossenbach's Band to Be Heard on Thursday Evening.

Thursday evening Dossenbach's band will give a concert at Highland park, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, beginning at 7:45 and continuing until 10 o'clock. This concert is an extra one. If the night is clear there will be a moon and a pleasant evening is assured. The reason why the concert is not given in the day time is that there is no shade, either for the band or for the people and it was thought best to adopt the plan as above outlined. The programme follows:

"American" overture, "Jolly Robbers," Suppe; Cuban dance, "Trocha," Tyers; selection, "The Wizard," Herbert; "The New Born King," Parkes, Signor John Mellina; march, "Invincible Eagle," Sousa; popular medley, E. Boettger; overture, "Zampa," Herold; duet, "Miserere," Verdi, Messrs. Z. Remington and Signor John Mellina; medley, "Head Liner," Mackie; lullaby, "Ma, Honey," arr. by Burleigh; selection, "The Burgomaster," Mackie; fantasie, "Alsation," Ch. Bestese, Scotch, Irish and English airs; "Star Spangled Banner."

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Herald 7/30/1901

SHORTPOWER

Why Street Car Service Is Inadequate.

COMPANY HELD UP

Railroad Company Sued by Rochester Gas and Electric.

CONDUIT RENT EXTORTIONATE

Gas Company Will Not Rent More Conduit Ducts to Railroad Company Unless Suit Is Withdrawn and Disputed Bill Paid in Full — Facts for Council Committee To Investigate.

Complaints as to the inadequacy of power of the Rochester Railway Company have been very frequent recently and matters seem to have reached a climax in the failure of the company to provide transportation to the parks Saturday and Sunday afternoons on the occasions of the public band concerts. In the Herald yesterday was this comment of the service furnished by the company for the concert on Sunday afternoon:

"There was indeed ground for apprehension of unsatisfactory service. Sometimes the company has not had a sufficient number of cars. At other times there seem to be sufficient cars but not power to make them go at any reasonable speed. Yesterday was one of the days when the trouble was with the power. The cars crawled to the park, making the trip with numerous pauses when the power gave out for a few moments at a time. Coming back to the city the trip was still slower. At one time over a dozen cars were trying to go up the hill near Driving Park Avenue. One or two would make a half block or so, while the others waited, as there was not enough current for all to move at the same time, and not enough power for even one or two cars to go along steadily. So at the stops the passengers in some cases would get out and wait, passing sarcastic remarks as to the relative speed of these cars and the ordinary canal boat. For the most part, however, the people were good natured and took into consideration the obvious fact that the company was trying to do something as proved by the large number of cars it sent to this line."

One of the Park Commissioners registered a big kick yesterday and it is likely the matter will be brought formally before the commission at its regular meeting to-morrow afternoon, so general is the complaint. Said the commissioner yesterday:

"Yesterday afternoon, as you are probably aware, there was not sufficient power to propel the cars the company had in service and it was a long and irritating trip that hundreds of persons had to take standing in cars in rain soaked garments to get back to the city. On Saturday afternoon, besides the big crowd attracted by the band concert there was the usual Saturday aggregation of golf players and spectators and many persons were attracted by a ball game at Genesee Park. And still the company only ran alternate cars into the park on the Plymouth Avenue line. The bandsmen who gave the concert came up on a car that turned at Jefferson Avenue, leaving the musicians to walk a mile and a half to reach the band stand. Half of the crowd had to do the same thing, for the alternate cars that came through were loaded to the doors and it was impossible for those left at Jefferson Avenue to transfer."

A Herald reporter learned some inside facts yesterday, showing that while the managers of the Rochester Railway Company have not given to the public the real reasons for their troubles, they are not so much to blame for the inadequacy of their service as the Rochester Gas and Electric Company. The Rochester Railway Company and the Rochester Gas and Electric Company are at loggerheads. The cause of their differences promises to be of interest and possible advantage to the public.

The Rochester Railway Company has refused to pay the bill of about $5,000 for rental of the electric subway conduits presented by the Rochester Gas and Electric Company on the ground that it is exorbitant and extortionate. The Rochester Gas and Electric Company has insisted upon the payment of every cent charged and has brought suit against the Rochester Railway Company to recover that amount.

The Rochester Railway Company is short of power. The question arises whether it is cheaper to build a new power house or to rent power from one of the local companies. The citizens company is not ready to furnish it and will not be for some time to come. Meanwhile application has been made to the Rochester Gas and Electric Company for [illegible] supply. The reply from

The Rochester Railway Company is also prepared to show in support of its contention that it can build and operate subways for its feed and return wires at a cost of not to exceed 4 cents per foot per annum, and maintains that to exact from it under the contract with the city and the construction of that contract contended for more than three times what the actual cost to the renting company of doing the work itself would be, is nothing short of legalized robbery.

The facts and issues involved in this pending litigation between two of the great public service corporations in the city of Rochester are of especial pertinence just at this juncture, as the very questions involved in this litigation are those to which the public attention has been directed by the appointment of a committee of the Common Council to investigate the entire subway matter and report upon the advisability of municipal ownership thereof.

It will have to determine the cost of subway construction in order that it may be judged whether or not the subways already constructed by the Rochester Gas and Electric Company have been built at the expenditure claimed by that company to have been made. It will have to discover what fair rentals for the subway system to all public service companies may be in order to judge whether the city can afford to take possession of them and by means of properly and justly arranged charges make the subway system pay for itself and in the end yield a reasonable revenue To the city which owns them.

Owing to the delays of legal proceedings, it is unlikely that the dispute between the Rochester Railway Company and the Rochester Gas and Electric Company can be tried and judicially determined much long after it has become necessary for the city to solve the problem which confronts it, but the very fact that such a litigation is pending is sufficient to aid in determining the lines it will be necessary to follow and the facts it will be essential to bring out.

The public also has an interest in the refusal of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company to supply power to a corporation with which it happens to have a quarrel over the justice or injustice of a bill for subway rentals. The railway company is desirous of extending its service into the public parks of the city, and the city has been making efforts to have this service so extended. The lack of sufficient motor power is the chief reason given why this cannot be done, and the public has to suffer meanwhile.

The Rochester Railway Company has offered to buy the power at the regular market rates, and there is no question concerning the price of the power involved. The attention of the committee might, and doubtless will, be directed to the question of how far the Rochester Gas and Electric Company has used its power and "subway clinch" to exact not only from the Rochester Railway Company, but from private individuals all over the city the payment of bills over which there is a reasonable suspicion without a resort to the ordinary tribunals for the determination of the justice of its charges.

A FEW KICKS REGISTERED.

Citizens Complain of the Poor Trolley Service.

Citizens are beginning to complain about the poor service given by the Rochester Railway Company in all sections. Four distinct kicks, vigorous and lusty, were made at The Herald last night.

Citizen No. 1 stated that he waited in the rain at the Four Corners from 6:13 o'clock in the afternoon until 6:31. A period of 17 minutes, for a Jefferson Avenue car. When it came along he was compelled to hang onto the rear step to get a ride as he still longer as a number of others did.

Citizen No. 2 averred that on Saturday afternoon the members of the band that was booked to play at South Park were put off their car at Cottage Street and had to walk to the park or else pay another fare. They were refused transfers. "I was not one of them," he said, "but as a citizen I register a complaint. It was unfair to the band and utterly reckless of the feelings of the people gathered in the park."

Citizen No. 3 stated that on Sunday night he waited 29 minutes on South Avenue near the county buildings for a car. He said he missed an important engagement as a result.

Citizen No. 4 was mad clear through. He averred that he waited from 7:35 until 8:02 on Jefferson Avenue near Magnolia Street for a car last night and when they came they were in a bunch and the third followed five minutes later. When he kicked to the conductor, whose number was 418 and the car number 8, he was told that there was no delays made. The car was making schedule time, he said. The motorman chipped in and remarked that the company was pulling cars off the line and that only four were on the line at that hour.

WILL NOT WAIT

NEW YORK ELEVATED METHODS TO BE ADOPTED IN ROCHESTER.

To Provide Rapid Transit Indeed—Cars Stop Only for Those Who Are at the Crossings—Not for Passengers to Run a Block.

Ex. Express 7/30/1901

Faithful to its promise, the Rochester Railway company, according to Manager Nicholl, is hastening to spend the $150,000 which it promised to put into the immediate past at this juncture before January 1, 1902. Mr. Nicholl says that $20,000 of this amount has already been spent and that to this will be added $50,000 more as soon as the new 1,500-horse power generator which the company has ordered, shall be put into place. The making of this piece of machinery, Mr. Nicholl states, will require six months' time. Already two of its parts have been shipped to Rochester, each of which weighs twenty tons. The present power equipment of the street railway system consists of eleven generators aggregating 8,000 horse power. These will look insignificant beside the huge piece of machinery which it is proposed soon to install.

At the present time, Mr. Nicholl says, 240 men are at work on track improvements and 139 on cars and equipment. Fifty new cars of the long pattern are now building and the old cars are being remodeled as rapidly as possible. Mr. Nicholl stated that the company did not intend to put many more open cars on its line than it has now.

The work of laying new rails wherever necessary is being rapidly pushed. From Lyell avenue to the Ridge road, two miles of new rails on double tracks have been laid, or four miles in all. The new system of welding which is being used, Mr. Nicholl says, has proven a most valuable factor in the work of improvement and is being used wherever possible, in welding old rails as well as new ones.

"This method of welding," said Mr. Nicholl, "not only does away with the bumping of cars on the rails, but it improves our power so that we can make faster time. When all the welding is done, I shall give the conductors orders not to stop for people a block away, so that we can then give a prompt schedule service."

Car 403 on the Rochester-Charlotte line, is equipped with an air brake. Mr. Nicholl was asked if this style of brake would be used on the new cars.

"No, sir," said he emphatically. "They are not a success, because they are not reliable. After our experiment on car 403 we have come to the conclusion that the only safe brake is the hand-brake and we use the very best on our cars."

In the car-systems of many cities electric buttons are placed on the back of the seat or at the sides of the windows, by which the passengers can notify the conductor when they desire to get off the car. Mr. Nicholl was asked why the Rochester system was not similarly equipped.

"Because the electric buttons have been found to be a nuisance by most of the companies using them," Mr. Nicholl declared. "Babies play with them and adult passengers frequently touch them unintentionally."

Commenting on the criticism which has been made concerning the service to Seneca park yesterday, Mr. Nicholl said:

"If the service was not as satisfactory as the public desired, it has no one but the city itself and the New York Central road to blame. How can we be expected to give good service with two such obstructions in our line as the St. Paul street improvement and the New York Central bridge, the one limiting us to a single track, the other compelling us to back every car down to a span before it can proceed. Then too, admitting that our power is insufficient, one can't go out and get a 1,500 horse power generator at one of our hardware stores when he wants it.

"Let the public suspend criticism of the service until these two obstacles over which we have absolutely no control are taken out of the way, and until we can get the power here that we want.

"Look at the shameful treatment to which we have been subjected in the matter of the West avenue bridge, and yet the public blames us there too. We are at a loss of nearly $50 a day by that delay."

Mr. Nicholl declared that the work of bettering the system will be pushed with unabated vigor, but he added that at the least computation it would take three years to bring the road up to the desired standard.

State inspector of electric railways, Charles R. Barnes, informed a Post Express reporter to-day that a hearing would be held before the State Railroad commission August 14th for the purpose of securing a franchise for the proposed electric road between Sodus and Lyons. This line, if built, will practically be a feeder of the Rochester and Sodus line. The promoters of the new road, the building of which has been agitated since early in 1899, are Edwin Hotchkiss, Edson W. Hamm and James D. Bashford. Mr. Hotchkiss is also interested in the proposed Rochester and Southern Traction company, which will build a line to Dansville.

The Sodus-Lyons road will touch the Rochester and Sodus line at Hoag [illegible]

AT HIGHLAND PARK.

Herald 7/30/1901

Concert to be Given on Thursday Night by Dossenbach's Band.

The first band concert of the season at Highland park will be given Thursday night by Dossenbach's band, under the leadership of Theodore Dossenbach. The concert will be held just opposite the car line terminal where seats have been erected for the accommodation of all. The programme will be presented under the management of the Chamber of Commerce between 7.45 and 10 o'clock.

Secretary Ives stated this morning that the reason no concerts had been given at Highland park in the afternoon was that there was no appropriate place where all the people could enjoy the music, without sweltering in the sun and trampling down the shrubbery and flowers.

The following programme will be played:

PART I.

America ..... [illegible]
Overture—Jolly Robbers ..... Suppe
Cuban Dance—Trocha ..... Tyers
Selection—The Wizard ..... Herbert
The New Born King ..... Parker
Signor John Molina.
March—Invincible Eagle ..... Sousa
Popular Medley ..... E. Boettger

PART II.

Overture—Zampa ..... Herold
Duet—Miserere ..... Verdi
F. Remington and Signor John Molina.
Medley—Head Liner ..... Mackie
Lullaby—Ma Honey ..... Arr. by Durthich
Selection—The Burgomaster ..... Mackie
Fantasie—Albion ..... Ch. Bastens
Scotch, Irish and English Airs.
Star Spangled Banner .....

CAR SERVICE AS IT IS HERE

MR. NICHOLL REPLIES TO SOME COMPLAINTS.

PEOPLE UNREASONABLE

COMPANY CANNOT OPERATE CARS FOR NOTHING.

SERVICE INTO PARKS

All That Patronage Demands, General Manager Says—Company Making Haste in Repairing Tracks and Building Cars.

Dem. & C. 7/30/1901

There is perhaps at present no matter receiving more attention from the people of Rochester than the trolley car service of the city. From many quarters there is complaint that it is inadequate, especially to the city parks and the suburban resorts. This is no new thing, this fault finding with the car service, but at the present time it is greatly augmented and has grown to a kick of considerable size. Whether it is just to the company having the franchise to operate cars remains to be seen, but that the service is very poor indeed there is no question; even the railroad officials themselves admit this, but answer that they are doing all in the power of man to remedy it, and call attention to the fact that the revolutionizing of the entire system cannot come in a day. They say it will take three years to make the change that they have but begun.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Nicholl was asked in regard to some of the alleged faults of the system and requested to explain, which he did emphatically. He said regarding the complaints that have been made about the service to Genesee Valley park, that the company was not sending cars anywhere for nothing; that where there were no passengers the company did not make an effort to send cars. He sent for Thomas Hicks, and Mr. Hicks said that every other car ran into Genesee Valley park from 5:40 A. M. to 10 P. M. During Sundays and days on which there were band concerts, Mr. Nicholl said that every car went into the park. In the case of last Saturday the car carrying the band to the park met with an accident, Mr. Hicks said, and for that reason did not go into the park. The bandmen had to walk.

Mr. Nicholl was asked regarding the day last week when there was a baseball game in the park between St. Bridget's and the Holy Apostles teams of the Catholic League. He was told that although there was quite a crowd at the park that afternoon, only every alternate car ran into the park. He said that that was apt to occur at any time; that the every-car service was maintained only on the afternoons of the band concerts and during Sundays. On the afternoon mentioned a reporter of this paper was on board a car that turned back at the switch just the other side of Jefferson avenue. The reporter thought that he was going directly into the park, as he had read in the newspapers several times that every car ran into the park. He had a walk of a mile before he was well into the park. When the conductor asked him, as he did just before he got to the switch, if he wanted to go into the park, the conductor said that there was no way for passengers to tell which cars ran to Elmwood avenue bridge in the park, and which cars did not, that there were no designating signs on the cars. The conductor said that they had a great deal of trouble with people because of this fact.

The railroad company is laboring under difficulties regarding its cars down into Seneca park east on the extension recently built. The city is laying a new pavement on the street between Main street and Central avenue, and all the cars to this park last Sunday had to run down State, through Central avenue and thence down St. Paul street. The cars had to be run

Central avenue and then on the curve back about their own length south on St. Paul before they could go down the street on which the park is situated. Then because the New York Central is putting in a new bridge at this point a temporary track under the bridge had to be used. All this caused delays, but the company did very well under the circumstances. During week days every St. Paul street car runs down into Seneca park east from 10 o'clock A. M. to 8 P. M., the company says.

It has been reported that the park commission had been to Mr. Nicholl with complaints of the park car service. This Mr. Nicholl denies. He says that he has not had a complaint from the board.

Mr. Nicholl says that the people will never see the time when they can step out from their doorway and see a car standing right at the curb for them, but that the Rochester Railway Company is now trying to put its road in the best of repair. Every street track in the city will be gone over, and more power added and new cars built as fast as possible. He says that there are to-day 250 men working on the tracks and 150 men on the cars and wire work. He says the people of this city are too exacting in what they ask for in street car service. He likened his feelings when he hears the kicking to that of the old man with the load of apples. The old fellow had driven up a hill, and just as the top was reached the tail board came out of the wagon and the apples all rolled down again. The old chap looked back and paused a moment, and then said, "I haven't words to express myself."

DEEP WATERWAYS.

Dem. & C. 7/30/1901

Interest in the Convention Recommended to be Held Here in September.

Now that but little more than a month intervenes before the time set for the deep waterways convention recommended to be held in this city in September, under the auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, letters are being received by John A. C. Wright, chairman of the local committee appointed by the chamber to take charge of the matter. There is some objection to holding the convention in September. A few of the writers say that the month follows too closely upon the summer vacations, and that business men will have not had time to consider the question thoroughly and to make their plans accordingly.

But Rochester seems to be the unanimous choice as the convention city. Some object to Buffalo because her barge canal scheme might prevent her citizens from supporting the larger deep waterways project. One of the objects in holding the convention in September is so that the expression of the delegates present may be laid before congress when it meets. The report of the deep waterways commission was made to congress at its last session, but was not discussed by it, because of lack of time. The report is nearly out of the printer's hands. It took three years in its making and cost $485,000.

Among those who have been heard from regarding the convention is Major George Y. Wisner, president of the United States deep waterways commission, of Detroit. The major says that he hopes that it will result in the different factions in New York state getting together on some definite plan of action. He will attend. Another writer is Henry B. Herbert, chairman of the committee on canals, of New York city. He has asked whether the projectors of the convention are committed to the recommendation of the deep waterways commission, or whether it is to be a convention for the free, unbiased consideration of the situation of canal affairs. He also desires to know how many delegates the New York Exchange with its 3,000 members will be entitled to at the convention. O. A. Thorp, president of the deep waterways association of Illinois, favors a later date for the convention. William P. Judson, member from New York to the international deep waterways association, and President A. L. Crocker, of the Minneapolis Board of Trade, do not favor this time for the convention, since the report of the United States deep waterways commission has not yet been made, and Mr. Crocker says that without this report the undertaking is too big an expenditure to be gone through with.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

A DELAY OF NINE MONTHS

Completion of Ridge Road Held Back Until Next April on Account of Difficulty in Procuring Rails, Owing to Steel Strike.

WORK TO START

Contractor and Attorney Are Getting Rights of Way.

TROUBLE WITH TRACTION CO.

Rumors That a Combination May Be Made With the Traction Company Running From Lockport to Buffalo, Thus Saving Competition and Cost of Construction — First Class Road.

Frederick St. John of New York, attorney and Henry McTighe of Brooklyn, contractor, representing Sutro Brothers, the bankers who are the financial backers of the Ridge Road trolley are in the city for several days, engaged on business for the road.

This trip of the New York parties has no connection with the preliminaries connected with the financiering of the road; these will be transacted later between a member of the firm of Sutro Brothers and the directors of the Ridge Road company. Consent to make a mortgage for $3,500,000 to protect the proposed bond issue for that amount has already been filed with the Monroe County Clerk and it is expected the mortgage itself will be filed soon as the bankers come here a few days later.

Messrs. St. John and McTighe are engaged in completing the negotiations for rights of way in various sections along the route. The rights have already been secured in a majority of cases, but there are a few remaining rights to be procured. From Lockport to Buffalo, the Ridge Road runs parallel to the line of the so-called Traction Company, which is a spur of the Buffalo Railway Company. Naturally the managers of this electric line already in operation object to the paralleling of their line by another company. It will be remembered that the officers of the Traction Company were witnesses before the Railroad Commission on behalf of the Central and in opposition to the application; in fact, the traction company has fought the new company at every point.

While no serious trouble is anticipated in procuring the rights of way needed between Lockport and Buffalo, the traction company has made all the trouble possible and the new company must still procure the right of way from several small villages at the other end of the route. The traction company will be at a great disadvantage after the Ridge Road is in operation and there have been persistent rumors afloat to the effect that a consolidation might be made, the new company using the tracks of the old company from Lockport to Buffalo, saving the expense of constructing a road and avoiding competition between parallel roads.

One objection is that the traction company is restricted in the carriage of freight by its franchise or by its agreement with other roads with which it is connected. Another objection is that the new line with its through traffic is in shape to capture the greater percentage of the business any way and is unwilling to pay as much for the lines of the traction company as the managers of the latter company ask.

Although Attorney St. John refused to discuss the matter last evening, it is still possible that some deal may be made between the two companies and it is thought that this is part of the business that brought him to Rochester at this time.

When asked regarding the effect that an appeal by the Central Railway Company might have on the construction of the road, Attorney St. John was emphatic in stating that the road would be constructed and in operation before a decision could be obtained from the Court of Appeals, in any event. He intimated that he was not at all afraid that an adverse decision would be rendered by the courts. If the object in taking an appeal was to stop the construction of the road, he said it would fail.

He said it would require three months to transcribe the stenographic evidence and it would require several weeks more to print the case. The cost of the appeal would be about $10,000. It will be six months before the case could be argued in the Appellate Division and a year later before a decision from the Court of Appeals could be handed down.

Attorney St. John said every legal arrangement had been made and it would only require a few hours to consummate the plans, so that the money could be made available to construct the road. He did not know how long these preliminary arrangements in procuring rights of way and other matters en[illegible] before September 1, all attempt to complete the work during the fall or early winter has been abandoned by reason of the big strike in the steel works. The steel situation was very much congested before but the strike that started three weeks ago has made a bad matter worse. No order for steel rails can be placed at Pittsburg to-day that will be filled within nine months from date. If the order for rails can be placed before September 1, the rails cannot be delivered before next April, unless the situation changes unexpectedly for the better.

When it was hoped that the franchise might be granted as early as March 1, Contractor McTighe placed a conditional rush order for rails, and the promise was then given that an order filed on March 1 would be filled on July 1. It was planned to rush the construction so as to get a share of the Pan-American trade, if the State Railroad Commission had given the franchise early in the spring. But the delay of the franchise until July served to cancel the prior rush order for rails that was to be filled in four months; and the strike delays things so that nine months is the time demanded for filling the order.

It is expected to complete all plans and do all the grading work during the pleasant weather this fall, as well as to construct the power house that will be capable of generating 9,300 horse power. As soon as the rails are delivered the work of laying them can be greatly expedited and the road can be in operation inside of a month or six weeks after that date. The delay therefore in completing the road is not a matter of special consequence, as the managers do not seem to be very anxious to open the road in midwinter, anyway. If the road is fully equipped and in running order as early as next May or June, that will be time enough to get all the profitable business of the year.

When asked regarding the entrance of the road into the city, whether a trackage arrangement would be made with the Rochester Railway Company on Lake Avenue and State Street, or whether separate tracks would be laid through Dewey Avenue, West Street, Ford Street to West Avenue Bridge, Attorney St. John refused to discuss the subject.

"That matter is in such a delicate shape," he said "that I do not care to discuss it."

The indications are that the company will try to procure its own tracks up to Main Street, as the experts claim the tracks of the Rochester Railway Company are not heavy enough to take care of the freight traffic that will be handled.

The Ridge Road will be constructed of seventy-pound T rails, with ties two feet apart, or the thickness and width of steam railroad ties and eight feet long. This construction is much more stable than that of any other electric line in this vicinity. Contractor McTighe is authority for the statement that the largest steam locomotive could safely run on the road, although there is no intention, of course, to use steam. At the same time, freight trains of fifteen cars will be run of the same size and weight of freight cars used on steam roads at a speed of twenty miles an hour will be maintained.

These statements give a better idea of the proposed freight traffic on the Ridge Road than has ever been given. While the statement is rather startling that the new road will run long freight trains and be capable of operating the engine of the New York Central, it indicates the possibilities of the Ridge Road freight business beyond anything yet announced.

LINES FROM ROCHESTER TO SYRACUSE.

Engineer W. C. Gray Tells of Progress of Electric Road Building in This Direction—Franchise Obtained from Ten Intermediate Towns—Progress of Ridge Road Electric Line.

Post Express. July 31st 1901.

William C. Gray, chief engineer for the Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Rochester Electric Railway company; for the Rochester and Southern Traction company and for the proposed line from Rochester to Syracuse, has returned from Newark, this state, where he has been at work on a survey for the last named line.

An interview with Mr. Gray to-day threw much light on the Rochester-Syracuse enterprise and incidentally upon the great trans-state electric trunk line project of which it will form a part.

In the first place, Mr. Gray was positive in his assertion that a line from Rochester to Syracuse would be constructed, and that work on it would be commenced this summer.

"Back of Mr. Lux, who is the moving spirit in this enterprise," said Mr. Gray, "there stands a strong body of men with any amount of capital. Their names have not been made public yet, for the reason that they do not care to be subjected to the annoyances that would press upon them at a time when it is wisest that their plans should be kept to themselves. Most of them are local men—that is, men residing in Western and Central New York. There are some Rochesterians among them, the publishing of whose names, later on, will be a surprise to the public. Not one of these men is interested financially in the Ridge road line. The aggregate capital which they control is not much less than $25,000,000 and one of them just recently made a western investment of $4,000,000. When they will decide to form an incorporated company, I do not know, but I presume a pretty accurate roster of their names might be obtained from the list of those who have incorporated the individual electric line companies along the line of the proposed Rochester-Syracuse route."

Route Outlined.

This route, Mr. Gray said, would pass through Pittsford, Egypt, Minden, Palmyra, Port Gibson, Newark, Lyons, Lock Berlin, Clyde, Savannah, Montezuma, Port Byron, Weedsport, Jordan, Memphis, Warners, Belle Isle and thence into Syracuse where it will connect with the Rapid Transit company of that city.

In the first ten places named, local franchises have been secured and individual electric railway companies have been organized. Applications for franchises are to come before the villages of Montezuma and Port Byron to-night. As previously stated in The Post Express, the object in organizing an individual railway company in every town is to take advantage of the law which permits a company to extend its road in either direction under its local franchise. In this manner, if necessary, the individual roads will be connected with one another to form a complete line from here to Syracuse.

To-morrow morning, Mr. Gray will begin work on the survey of a line beginning at the junction of Atlantic and University avenues in this city and running through Penfield and Fairport to Egypt where it will be extended four miles to connect with the direct line to Syracuse, running to Rochester via Canandaigua. The object of this survey is to prepare a shorter route from Pittsford to Rochester in case the Rochester-Geneva line should not be constructed. The Rochester-Geneva company, it will be remembered, has an application for right of way pending before the village of Fairport, as have also the Monroe County Belt Line company and the Rochester-Syracuse projectors.

Part of a Large Loop.

Fairport has settled the matter by deciding that which ever one first gets permission from the state railway commission to construct its line, and actually begins the work of construction, shall obtain the right of way through Fairport, with the privilege of leasing its lines to other companies.

Even though the Rochester-Geneva line should be built, Mr. Gray declares, the Rochester-Syracuse people will build a line to Pittsford through Fairport, for the sake of the traffic which they hope to exchange with the Rochester-Geneva line. Thus it will be seen that at Pittsford, the Rochester-Syracuse line will assume a two-pronged form into Rochester.

The Rochester-Geneva line also, will form part of a large loop which will afford a more southerly route from Rochester to Syracuse. The Syracuse Rapid Transit company is now engaged in extending its line in a southwesterly direction through Camillus and Marcellus and Rose Hill, in the direction of Auburn, while the Auburn City Railway company, is extending its line to meet the incoming Syracuse line. The Geneva city railway company is extending its line to Waterloo, Seneca Falls and Orchard Beach on Cayuga lake, and from this point it will cross the lake and connect with the Auburn system. When this work is completed, therefore, a direct route will be established from Rochester to Syracuse via Canandaigua, Geneva, Seneca Falls, Lake Cayuga, Auburn and Marcellus.

[illegible] the route of the [illegible] Syracuse lines in the [illegible] of which only Mr. Lux and [illegible] associates are interested.

Mr. Gray said to his interviewer that at a conference held between Mr. Lux and himself last night, it was decided to build the Rochester-Syracuse line of steam railway standard equipment, just as the Ridge road line will be built. In other words, while it is not intended to use steam power on the line, the roadbed will be so strongly constructed that steam rolling stock of the heaviest type could be used on the road with impunity.

"Our rails will be just two pounds lighter than those of the West Shore railway when it was first built," said Mr. Gray.

"The work of grading, Mr. Gray declared, would certainly be commenced this summer and, if practicable, the work of laying the rails also.

Cannot Obtain Rails.

"But," said he, "we cannot buy a pound of steel in the market to-day, even if we wanted to; so the time at which that part of our work will be begun depends altogether upon one's ability to press when the industrial situation in steel circles will be adjusted. Even though the strike of the steel workers should be settled to-morrow, it would be two weeks before any orders could be filled for us."

Turning to the affairs of the Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Rochester road, Mr. Gray scouted certain disparaging statements which have been made concerning the road's financial backing and the prospect of its ever being built.

"Suppose only a few thousand dollars of its capital stock have been paid in," said he, "what is the immediate necessity for paying in any more? I am speaking the truth when I say that $27,000,000 has been eagerly tendered us for the construction of that line, and that the $3,500,000 which comprises our capital stock has been available any minute since September 1, 1900."

Mr. Gray declared that Contractor McTighe's statement that freight trains of fifteen cars each would be run over the road at an average speed of twenty miles an hour was a mistake.

"In the first place," said he, "no such train as that would be permitted to run over the public highways. That condition of affairs may come about when roads traverse private right of way, as they must in time. And in the second place, no such rate of speed as Mr. McTighe suggests, will be made. I, myself, testified before the state railway commission, that our freight trains would not be run at greater speed than twelve miles an hour, while the passenger trains would be run from Rochester to Buffalo in four hours—an average of twenty-one miles per hour.

"Electric locomotives will be used on our freight trains. If you can picture the tenders of two switch engines placed at [illegible] end, with a cab in the middle, you will have an idea of what an electric locomotive looks like. Ours will be covered to look like an ordinary car, so that they will not scare teams along the highway."

Delay on the Ridge Road.

Contractor McTighe, who is still in the city says that the work of laying the rails on the Ridge road line will be delayed until next spring, owing to the same reasons for delay which Mr. Gray described as preventing similar work on the Rochester-Syracuse line. The work of grading, however, he said, would be carried on this fall, as well as the construction of a power house, capable of generating 9,300 horse power.

From Lockport to Buffalo, the Ridge road project is meeting with considerable opposition from the Buffalo Traction company, whose line the Ridge road will parallel. The Traction company has joined hands in its opposition, with the New York Central. The possibility of a consolidation of the Traction company's interests with those of the Ridge road, so that the latter might use the Traction company's tracks, is met with the objection from Attorney St. John, of the Ridge road, that the Traction company is restricted in the carriage of freight by its franchise and by its agreements with other roads with whom it is connected. Mr. St. John said that while this difficulty might be carried into the courts, so long a time would elapse before a decision would be rendered, that the Ridge road would have its line completed.

Mr. Gray is also chief engineer for the Rochester and Southern Traction company, which proposes to build a line from Rochester to Dansville.

Concerning the progress of this project, Mr. Gray said that the company has secured forty-nine miles out of the seventy-eight miles of right of way which it needs, and that this work is being pushed every day. Application for a franchise to the state railway commission can not be made, Mr. Gray says, until the survey of the road is completed and a map made. Mr. Gray is gathering a mass of information for this survey, and the work will soon be completed, he says.

Daily Herald July 31/1901

RAILROAD COMPANY WILL PAY BILL SO AS TO PROCURE MORE POWER

Attorney Bissell Says Rochester Gas and Electric Has Company Where It Must Compromise and Suit Will Be Settled--"A Dirty Trick But We Must Have Power and Can't Wait"--Rochester's Bill for Electric Lighting.

The row between the Rochester Gas and Electric Company and the Rochester Railway Company goes merrily forward. As was stated in The Heraldyesterday, the electric company has refused to sell any power to the railway company until the latter pays up its bill for subway rentals which the railway company is contesting as exorbitant.

But this is not the only way in which the gas and electric company has attempted to hold up the railway company and compel a settlement of its account. The plan of welding the rails of the track of the railway company has been adopted here, having worked so well in Buffalo and other places. The work is done by a corporation which has special apparatus and patents for such process and which it transports with it from city to city. The work of welding is done by electricity and the railway company has not sufficient power to spare to do this work.

The welding company therefore sought to buy power from the Rochester Gas and Electric Company for the job. It has just been turned down in its application for power on the ground that to furnish it might help the railway company, and that no power was to be furnished the latter or any concern connected with it or working for it until it settled up its subway bill. The welding process will, therefore, have to wait for happier days.

It is quite likely that the suit, however, will be compromised by the payment of the claim for subway rentals made by the electric company. The sum in question is $5,000, which the railway company disputes as exterionate.

The Rochester Railway Company is preparing to erect a new power house, but that will require six months to get in operation, while the power house of the Citizens company will not be ready before New Years. This leaves the Rochester Gas and Electric Company absolute master of the situation. It refuses to sell power to the railroad company to run cars unless the company will pay the disputed bill for subway rentals.

When Attorney Charles A. Bissell of the Rochester Railway Company was asked yesterday by a Herald reporter what would be the outcome of the controversy, he said:

"The Rochester Gas and Electric Company has got us and we can't help ourselves. We must have more power, and we cannot buy it of any other company, and we cannot erect our own power house in time to manufacture the extra power we need this season. So I suppose there is no other way than for us to pay what rentals the company asks of us.

"I could go to the courts and beat them," he added, "but they could tie us up in the courts so we could not get power for several months and we cannot wait.

"Yes," said Mr. Bissell, emphatically, "it's a dirty trick, but we can't help ourselves and must compromise as best we can."

This charge against the Rochester Gas and Electric Company will be one of the first matters the Lamp and Electricity Committee will take up this week, when the investigation starts and it will prove the strongest possible argument for the municipal control of the subways.

The fact of the matter is that the Rochester Gas and Electric Company can get such good rates for its power and has a monopoly of the business so complete that it can afford to be very independent when the question of renting out power to any concern in the same or similar line of business is concerned. Its income from the power it sells to the city of Rochester in the way of electric lighting will net it a gross income of over a quarter of a million. In fact, from the estimates presented it is probable that the bill will run up to about $260,000. This will be the most enormous electric lighting bill ever paid by the municipality, and as the regular five-year contract with the Rochester Gas and Electric Company is about to expire with the current fiscal year, it is probably the biggest bill that will be paid by the city for this purpose in a good many years to come.

The citizens of Rochester pay more for their public lighting service per capita than the citizens of any other place in the United States, with the exception of Providence, R. I., and Yonkers, N. Y. This fact is established by figures compiled by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics and based upon the census of 1900. The cost per capita is now $1.44 in Rochester. Boston was recently cited by Mayor Carnahan in his celebrated veto as a place where competition had failed to work and where an electric light combination had done its utmost to inflate the prices. Boston is the fourth city in the Union in its price of public lighting per capita, but its cost is $1.31, or 27 cents per capita less than it is here. The following table as compiled by the United States authorities shows a number of cities where the price is the highest:

City	Population	Cost per capita
Providence	175,197	$1.72
Yonkers	47,931	1.54
Rochester	161,535	1.44
Boston	560,892	" " 1.31
Utica	56,383	1.08
Buffalo	352,219	.57

The list then grades down, showing 88 cents per capita in Philadelphia, 80 cents in Syracuse, 67 cents in Indianapolis, where the population is 169,164, and most nearly approximates that of Rochester, while in fifteen or twenty cities it is as low as 50 cents per capita, and in New York City, where Tammany is supposed to do all things ill, the per capita cost is only 38 cents.

Not only is the per capita cost of public lighting in the city of Rochester high; it is on the increase. Four years ago the per capita cost here, while still about the highest in the country, was $1.26, so that it has gone up 18 cents per capita in the last few years.

The cost of lighting the public streets in this city during the ten years of the contract with the Rochester Gas and Electric Company has increased as follows:

Year.	Total cost.	Increase over previous year.
1890-91	$146,994.33
1891-92	160,283.19	13,290.16
1892-93	163,571.83	3,288.64
1893-94	171,051.10	7,479.27
1894-95	181,574.91	10,523.81
1895*	*192,846.68	*11,811.77
1896	201,220.65	7,934.98
1897	212,633.04	11,414.28
1898	228,299.09	15,666.05
1899	235,772.23	7,473.14
1900	246,599.09	10,826.86

*Estimated on cost for nine months when fiscal year was changed.

The total increase for ten years is only $99,604.75, but the increase is not stopping. The estimated cost for maintaining the city's lighting system for the coming year for the lights now in use is $250,105.30, and the additional cost of lighting is placed at $8,501, which will make the grand total for the coming year $258,646.30, and the per capita cost of lighting for the present year $1.53.

It does not take a very close inspection of these figures to show that the cost of public lighting service in this city is on the increase so fast that Rochester has overtaken Yonkers in the race for extravagance in this direction and will soon be competing with Providence, R. I., for the honor of being the city in the country where the public lighting service costs the most.

Ordinances were introduced in the Common Council this year providing for the assessment upon individual property owners of the extra expense of the double arc lighting system wherever it is introduced. This ordinance has received no favor and as a measure of economy its bearing is not obvious.

The double arc lighting system as it exists on Main and other principal streets is generally conceded to be a great ornament to the thoroughfares on which it exists, and great pressure is brought by taxpayers residing on the streets benefited to secure it, as it costs them little more, while, on the other hand, the Rochester Gas and Electric Company gets 40 cents per night per double light where it only gets 25 cents per night per light for the ordinary arc lights.

On the other hand, the double arcs give less light than one single high tension arc, and the extra expense of these lights, although they cover but a small portion of the city's lighting area, would alone give the Rochester Gas and Electric Company a handsome profit on the year's business. What these profits are no one, of course, knows; that is to say, no one who does not directly reap the benefits thereof.

Public lighting, however, is not the sole province of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company. The Common Council committee appointed to investigate its methods and the possible benefits to accrue here from competition may have to do a little public lighting on its own account.

Of course the rapacity of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company in holding up the Rochester Railway Company and forcing it to pay an extortionate bill before it will sell power that it has on the market for sale relieves the railroad of little responsibility, and it has not stopped the constant complaint that is being made on the street car service. That continues to be as bad as ever. Manager Nicholl was quoted in the Democrat and Chronicle as stating that no complaint had been made by the Park Commission of the service in the parks. Superintendent C. C. Laney of the Park Commission promptly denied this assertion yesterday in the following statement over his own signature. He said:

"In reply to the statement of Manager Nicholl of the Rochester Railway Company that the Park Commission has never complained to him about the inadequate car service to Genesee Valley Park, I will state that in conferences between the Park Commission and Mr.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Nicholl the subject frequently has been discussed and complaint has been made by members of the commission to Mr. Nicholl that the company was not giving proper service and the service promised to the commission early in the season."

Band Concerts in the Parks.

Saturday Afternoon, 3 to 6 p. m., Seneca Park East. Dossenbach's Band.

PART I.

America .....
Overture—Martana .....Wallace
Cornet solo .....Selected
Raymond Bettys.
Selection—Faust .....Gounod
Serenade—La Paloma.....Zradier
Trombone solo—For All Eternity .....Mascheroni
George Beheim.
Fiddle-Dee-Dee .....Stromberg

PART II.

Overture—Rienzi .....Wagner
Clarinet solo .....Selected
John Phaff, jr.
Selection—Freischuetz .....Weber
Darkies Jamboree .....Puerner
Largo .....Handel
From Fireside to Battlefield.....Dalbey
(Reminiscences of the War.)
Camp at Home—Rooster Crow—Church Clock—Reveille—Mess Call—March to Train—Soldiers Farewell—By Train to Battlefield—At Scene of Battle—Union Band and Confederate Band (in distance) playing alternately—Taps—Assemblies—Just Before the Battle, Mother)—Commence Firing—Cannon—The Battle—Retreat.
Star Spangled Banner.....

Sunday Afternoon, 3 to 6 p. m., Genesee Valley Park, 54th Regiment Band.

PART I.

March—Union Forever .....Scouten
Overture—Martha .....Flotow
Waltz—La Gitana .....Bucalossi
Selection—Highwayman .....De Koven
Song for cornet—For All Eternity .....Thomas
Mr. Bassett.
Song for trombone—Asleep in the Deep .....Petrie
Mr. Bubel.
Medley selection — Princess Bonnie .....Spenser

PART II.

March—Old Colonial .....Taylor
Overture—Queen of Autumn .....Bigge
Paraphrase—Nearer, My God, to Thee .....Reeves
Oasis—A Caravan Episode..Langey
Comic Patrol .....Hacker
Grand Military Tattoo.....Saro
Waltz—Auf Wiedersehn .....Bailey

Herald Anglers

THE BARGE CANAL.

Aug 6 1901

Will be One of the Questions Discussed at State Commerce Convention.

Captain W. C. Clark, of Constantia, is in Rochester in the interest of the third annual commerce convention, which is to be held in October this year, either in Buffalo or Niagara Falls. To this convention the commercial bodies and business men of the state, including chambers of commerce, boards of trade, merchants', manufacturers' and business men's associations, etc., are invited to send delegates. The convention will be in session two days, and state questions only will be brought up. The barge canal matter will be discussed, and Captain Clark is quoted as saying that the convention "will undoubtedly advocate and recommend the election of assemblymen this fall from every interested canal, lake or river county, pledged to submit the proposition of enlarging the canals in 1902 to what is known as a 1,000-ton barge canal dimensions, as provided by the survey of State Engineer Bond, and submitted to the governor, with maps, in February of this year."

Captain Clark is the organizer of the convention. Others interested are John Kernan, president, of Utica; Harvey W. Brown, a member of the firm of Smith, Perkins & Company, of this city, and Frank S. Gardiner, secretary of the State Board of Trade and Transportation, of New York.

THE SUPPLY OF POWER TO BE PERMANENT

Result of Conference of Messrs. Judson and Nicholl.

The Rochester Railway Will Obtain 1,000 Horse Power on Week Days and 1,500 Horse Power on Sundays —Service Bettered by the Additional Energy— What This Amount of Continuous Power Means.

Aug. 1st, 1901. D&C.

As the result of a conference between President J. Lee Judson, of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, and General Manager Nicholl, of the Rochester Railway Company, held yesterday noon, the tentative memorandum of agreement, made by the counsel of the respective companies on Monday, was accepted, and the railway company is no longer short of power.

Under the memorandum of agreement referred to 1,000 horse power of electrical energy was sent to the bus bars of the railway company on Tuesday and yesterday, resulting in an immediate improvement in the service. Under the arrangement completed yesterday, this supply of power is to be continued indefinitely, with an additional 500 horse power on Sundays, with which to care for the increased traffic. Should the railway company find itself in need of still more power, it will be available from the same source.

To say that this definite arrangement has taken a load from the mind of General Manager Nicholl would scarcely be an adequate expression. It will enable the manager to turn his attention unreservedly to the forwarding of other betterments as well as to satisfy the public to a greater degree. Indeed, the increased activity on the lines was especially noticeable yesterday. That the effect on the patronizing public will be no less gratifying there can be no doubt. Everywhere throughout Tuesday and yesterday the prompt movement of the hundreds of cars and the greatly accelerated speed was very noticeable.

What effect the contract for power will have in the matter of a new power house cannot of course be clearly foreseen. It is intimated, however, in an informal way, that sufficient power may be utilized from the outside source, increasing from time to time as needed, to operate the cars of the street railway company without the necessity of erecting a costly power house, with its enormous investment. This course would enable the railway company to carry out necessary improvements and profitable extensions, while at the same time maintaining first-class service in the matter of power. While the terms upon which power is furnished are private, it is definitely understood that those terms are satisfactory to the parties in interest.

It is due to the management of the railway company that the full significance of the new arrangement should be understood, as it is a matter which vitally affects the public as well as the railway management. As Manager Nicholl so aptly said, in an interview published in the Democrat and Chronicle yesterday morning:" One thousand horse power is a 'whole lot' of power." Under the arrangement perfected with the Gas and Electric Company, this 1,000 horse power of energy on week days and 1,500 horse power on Sundays is not simply furnished during the "rush hours," or hours of heavy traffic only, leaving the system short of power during the interim. The railway company has this amount of electrical power at its service throughout all of the hours of traffic. It is not power used for other purposes normally, or at certain hours, and furnished to barely "help out" in times of heavy load; it is available all of the time.

There are several advantages in having a source of constant power, which will be at once appreciated. This "whole lot" of power will avoid the necessity of crowding the generators at the railway power house beyond the point of greatest efficiency, and will of course minimize the danger of disabling generators by the burning out of armatures. In fact, it should, with careful management, have the effect of greatly increasing the total efficiency of the street railway power plant. With sufficient power there will be no necessity of relaxing the efficiency of car service, at any time during the hours of traffic, as the power is, as has been said, always at the service of the system.

It is hoped, by next Sunday, to complete the installation of the feed wires on the Seneca park line, in order to accommodate the large Sunday traffic to that popular public pleasure ground. The additional 500 horse power will also handle the enormous traffic dumped on to the city lines from the suburban roads, during the rush hours of Sunday night, and enable passengers to reach their homes in different parts of the city at a seasonable hour.

Nearly 400 men were yesterday at work at various portions of the street railway. While there is undoubtedly much ground for the complaints which have been made of the bad condition of the roadbed at various points, as well as the scarcity of power to maintain the service, and still keep the track welding gangs at work [illegible] it is only fair to state that the management is showing a disposition to place matters on a better basis. And obtaining a reliable and adequate and continuous supply of additional power is certainly an earnest of good intentions.

Ninth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY
DOSSENBACH'S BAND,
THEODORE DOSSENBACH, DIRECTOR.

AT HIGHLAND PARK,
Thursday Evening, August 1, 1901,
FROM 7.45 TO 10 O'CLOCK,
Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program. . .

PART I.

AMERICA.
1. OVERTURE—Jolly Robbers, - - - - Suppe
2. CUBAN DANCE—Trocha, - - - - - Tyers
3. SELECTION—The Wizard, - - - - - Herbert
4. The New Born King, - - - - - Parker
SIGNOR JNO. MELLINA.
5. MARCH—Invincible Eagle, - - - - Sousa
6. POPULAR MEDLEY, - - - - E. Boettger

PART II.

7. OVERTURE—Zampa, - - - - - - Herold
8. DUET—Misarere, - - - - - - - Verdi
MESSRS. F. REMINGTON AND SIGNOR JNO. MELLINA.
9. MEDLEY—Head Liner, - - - - - Mackie
10. LULLABY—Ma Honey, - - - - arr. by Burleigh
11. SELCTION—The Burgomaster, - - - Mackie
12. FANTASIA—Albion, - - - - - Ch. Baetens
(Scotch, Irish and English Airs.)
STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

TO CLOSE SATURDAYS.

July 31 1901

Local Stove and Hardware Dealers Sign an Agreement.

The movements regarding the closing of the stores of the city seems to be on the increase, and has now extended to the stove and hardware stores. The following dealers have agreed to close their establishments at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoons during this month and the first Saturday in September:

W. H. Suess, Smith & Oberst, Henry Seibert, Frank H. Callister, C. F. Rodenbeck, Henry Lester, James H. Brown, Kennedy & Co., John A. Lawrence, Levi Hey & Co., P. H. Williams, T. G. Chilsell, H. J. Bricker, L. J. Marchand, Fleming and Renner, George W. Potter, John Seibert, W. Lautergaeh, Waldert & Anscomb, Thomas Turner, H. H. Maxson, Krausnick & Yauchzi, J. B. Snyder Supply Company, W. J. Brayer, John Bamber, Frank Berger, G. E. Barker, and L. E. Mason.

Tenth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
...BY...
DOSSENBACH'S BAND.
THEODOR DOSSENBACH Director.

IN SENECA PARK, EAST,
Saturday Afternoon, Aug. 3, 1901,
FROM 3 TO 6 O'Clock.
Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program . . .

PART I.

"AMERICA."
1. OVERTURE—"Maritana," - - - - - W. V. Wallace
2. CORNET SOLO— - - - - - Selected
RAYMOND BETTYS.
3. SELECTION—"Faust," - - - - - Gounod
4. SERENADE—"La Paloma," - - - - Zradier
5. TROMBONE SOLO—"For All Eternity," - Angelo Mascheroni
MR. GEO. BEISHEIM.
6. "Fiddle-Dee-Dee," - - - - - Stromberg

PART II.

7. OVERTURE—"Rienzi," - - - - - R. Wagner
8. CLARINET SOLO— - - - - - Selected
MR. JOHN PHAFF, JR.
9. SELECTION—"Freischuetz," - - - - C. M. Weber
10. "Darkies' Jamboree," - - - - - Puerner
11. "Largo," - - - - - - - - G. F. Handel
12. "From Fireside to Battlefield," - - - Dalbey
(Reminiscence of the War.)
Camp at Home—Rooster Crow—Church Clock—Reveille—Mess Call—March to Train—The Soldiers' Farewell—By Train to Battlefield—At Scene of Battle—Union Band and Confederate Band (in distance) playing alternately—Taps—Assembly—Just Before the Battle, Mother)—Commence Firing—Cannon—The Battle—Retreat.
("Star Spangled Banner.")

Eleventh Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY THE
54th Regiment Band
F. A. ZEITLER, Director

AT GENESEE VALLEY PARK
Sunday Afternoon, August 4, 1901
FROM THREE TO SIX O'CLOCK
Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce

Program

PART I

1. MARCH—"Union Forever," - - - - - Scouten
2. OVERTURE—"Martha," - - - - - Flotow
3. WALTZ—"La Gitana," - - - - - Bucalossi
4. SELECTION—"The Highwayman," - - - De Koven
5. a. SONG FOR CORNET, "For All Eternity," - Thomas
MR. BASSETT
b. SONG FOR TROMBONE—"Asleep in the Deep," Petrie
MR. BUBEL
6. MEDLEY SELECTION—"Princess Bonnie," - - Spenser

PART II

7. MARCH—"Old Colonial," - - - - - Taylor
8. OVERTURE—"Queen of Autumn," - - - Carl Bigge
9. PARAPHRASE—"Nearer, My God, to Thee," - Reeves
10. a. "OASIS"—A Caravan Episode, - - - Langey
b. "COMIC PATROL," - - - - Hacker
11. "GRAND MILITARY TATTOO," - - - - H. Saro
12. WALTZ—"Auf Wiedersehn," - - - - Bailey

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

PLANS OF TROLLEY PEOPLE.

May Utilize Rochester Railway Tracks in Passing Through the City.

There was a scarcity of trolley road managers in the city yesterday. At an early hour in the forenoon Messrs. McTighe, St. John and Tone, with Engineer W. C. Gray, all connected with the Buffalo, Niagara Falls & Rochester Electric railway, departed for Buffalo. Some of these gentlemen are connected with the proposed electric railway from Rochester to Dansville and Hornellsville, and Engineer Gray is also engineer for the Rochester & Syracuse trolley line.

Contractor McTighe and Attorney St. John have been in the city for several days. It was intimated yesterday that their present purpose is arranging for a traffic connection which will enable the Ridge road electric railway to pass through the city on the tracks of the Rochester railway, and thus connect with the line to Syracuse, and also the line to Geneva and the proposed line to Hornellsville by way of Dansville. A syndicate of Detroit capitalists is said to be interested in a combination of electric railways to form a connection from the large Western cities to the seaboard. Mr. Lux, who is at the head of the Detroit syndicate, was to be in Buffalo yesterday, and it would not be a hazardous guess that such fact was not disconnected with the visit of the Rochester group of trolley people to the Pan-American city.

A TROLLEY PROPHET FORETELLS A NEW LINE

Report of a Proposed Electric Railway From Wallington to Wolcott, Thence to Syracuse.

New York railway men have been in the northern part of Wayne county for the past few days, looking into the advisability of constructing an electric railway from Wallington to Baldwinsville, passing through Alton, Rose, Wolcott, Cato and other villages.

It is a well known fact that the Rochester & Sodus Bay railway officials would be glad to see such a road constructed, affording them a through freight route between Rochester and Syracuse. A well-known Wolcott business man, in speaking of the enterprise, says:

"Within two years there will be a trolley line connecting Rochester and Syracuse, and it will pass through Wolcott, too. I do not wish to have my name printed just now, neither will I mention anyone else's name, but I am not indulging in merry jests nor glittering generalities when I say what I have just said. One trolley line already extends from Rochester to Wallington. Another reaches from Syracuse to Baldwinsville, and the route from the latter place to Cato by the way of Plainville has already been surveyed.

"The connecting link would not be a long one. The first portion to be built will be from Wallington to Sodus. Then it will be easy to extend the line to Cato, and at that point the Syracuse corporation will be eager to make connection from Baldwinsville. Three weeks ago a party of Rochester business men who are interested, financially and otherwise, in the Rochester & Sodus Bay line, planned to go to Wolcott to look the town over. Their object was to see whether it would be worth while to build a spur to Wolcott from Wallington at once. Canners and commission men desire to tap the fruit belt still deeper, and retail merchants hope to increase their trade. We thought the time propitious, as a good deal of building is going on just now, and Wolcott always looks at its best at this season of the year. They were willing to be convinced, and the town would have captured them to a certainty. The party was all made up and the date arranged, when several of the members were called away by urgent private business. This broke up the excursion. But the interference was only temporary. They will be here yet before the summer is over, and when they come they will mean business. They are more than half inclined to go ahead as it is, although a majority never saw our beautiful village.

"I have heard from them several times since they failed to connect and they will be here, and by 1905 the trolley cars will come, close following upon the heels of our waterworks. Remember what I say, and see if I am not a true prophet."

The Inland Cities.

Commenting upon the results of a recent Chicago venture, the Troy "Times" says:

The owners of the steamers which have succeeded in making the voyage from Chicago to Europe and back are naturally somewhat discouraged over the lack of profits, but with true Chicago determination they propose to try again before definitely deciding to abandon the project. There are few persons who believe, however, that the plan of making Chicago a seaport can be carried out successfully. That city will have to be contented with being the metropolis of the interior.

The conclusions of the "Times" seem rather hasty. Because the first trip to Europe of Chicago-laden vessels has been unprofitable, it does not follow that Chicago must be content to remain the metropolis of the interior. Indeed, the failure from a financial point of view, of the scheme to send vessels from Chicago to Liverpool, will only serve to emphasize the importance of having deep waterways in this country, and may lead to the construction of such ways, in which case Chicago will virtually be an ocean port. In that case, also, other inland cities will become "ocean ports," Rochester among them.

Within a short time a deep waterway convention of national importance will be held in this city, attended by dele-

SATURDAY CLOSING.

The Chamber of Commerce of our city has added another to its already long list of good things to its credit in the way of lending forward to success the "Saturday closing" movement. It merits all the commendation it is receiving for this good work, and the benediction of the multitudes of employees to whom it has secured this measure of relief.

Very fittingly, too, the Young Women's Educational and Industrial union has sent in its congratulatory resolution to the Chamber of Commerce upon its gratifying success in this movement. For several years ago they wrought upon a similar endeavor, though unfortunately without success.

Equally fitting is it that the pastors of Rochester present their congratulations to the chamber and to the union; for long concerted union made these efforts, the Christian ministers of Rochester met in repeated union meetings and earnestly discussed the questions involved in this movement, having referred many of their thoughts and plans to the all-the-year-round closing of stores and business places on saturday evening.

A committee from these meetings of the ministers visited many of the leading business men of the city, to obtain their individual judgments as to the feasibility of a general early closing of the places of business on saturday evening, and their individual willingness to close their own places of business, if such a movement should be successfully inaugurated. It was gratifying to the ministers, it was heroism to the business men of Rochester, that this visitation resulted in a very general and hearty response in favor of the effort.

The earnest appeal was therefore publicly made to the Christians and to the philanthropists of Rochester to give to this movement their warm personal endorsement; to advocate it in their various communications with their fellow citizens; to commend and encourage the business men who so promptly and so generously consented to it, to bring to bear upon any who withheld their consent to it all right and worthy influence in its favor; and, above all else, to see to regulate their own dealings at the various places of business throughout the city that no purchases should be made or orders given after an early closing hour on Saturday evening.

For reasons which need not now be rehearsed, this movement by the ministers failed just when the much hard work they had expended upon it seemed about to be crowned with success. It may be that out of this present success in the matter of the Saturday afternoon closing during the summer months the delayed success of their larger movement will come.

H. C. F.

The Street Car Service.

The Rochester Railway Company has been forced to yield to the demands of the Rochester Gas Company. Rather the two corporations have settled their dispute as to the price of coal, and the Gas company demanding far more than the Railway company thought was fair and reasonable, but the Gas company declared that unless the Railway company paid what it demanded it would not sell the electric power that the Railway company needed in order to operate its cars to the satisfaction of the people of Rochester. The Railway company has accepted the inevitable. Hereafter it will get 1,000 horse-power on week-days and 1,600 on Sundays from the Gas company, and with this great addition to its own power ought to be able to do business in a business-like way.

The complaints against the Railway company have been continuous and severe, but the company has been making efforts to improve the service and has certainly extended its tracks in response to popular demand. But the company has a very valuable franchise, and owes a great debt to the public. The Post Express knows that the present managers have had difficult problems to solve, and that they have been sadly handicapped in various directions, and it recognizes the importance of the improvements that have already been made, and concedes the good faith and the good intentions of the management, but it must remind the officials that no effort to improve the service still further should be neglected. The people of Rochester demand the best street railway service in the country, and they will be content with nothing short of it.

STILL BEING RECEIVED ENCOURAGING TO DEEP WATERWAYS.

President Wright, of the New York Association, Comments Upon the Necessity for Uniting New York State Interests as to Route.

John A. C. Wright, president of the New York Deep Waterways' association, is in receipt of a letter from Hon. James Fisk, of Manitoba, vice-president of the International Deep Waterways' association, concerning the convention which will be held in Rochester under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce in the fall. Mr. Fisk personally favors the convention but suggests that Canadian sentiment is strongly in favor of the proposed Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay canal. He thinks that many of the Northwestern states, also, in the upper lake region may be partial to this proposed route.

"This statement simply gives force to the warning I began to sound years ago," said Mr. Wright, "that unless New York people bury their differences and get together on some concerted line of action, the traffic of the Great Lakes will be passing through Canada before we are aware of it."

Continuing Mr. Wright said:

"The object of the convention to be held here in the fall is to get an attendance here of all interested in an adequate waterway through the Great Lakes to the seaboard, particularly those interested in an Erie-Ontario way. Full data exists for the consideration of the convention, on the proposed route, also on canal improvements of the Canadian channels existing such as to Huron-Ottawa, and upon the Chicago drainage canal and its projected extension to the Mississippi.

"In the letters I have received there are suggestions as a text to those who have blocked and are seeking to block an adequate waterway at this end of the line to New York and who are mainly citizens of New York state. In the western letters is added how many have been turned to look with favor on the Canadian and Gulf routes, and the more Northern states likewise towards the Huron-Ottawa route. A meeting may do much to clarify the situation and reenlist the efforts of these people especially for the Erie-Ontario route which need only involve 11 6-10 miles of canal and which, when completed, will bring up a lake traffic into Ontario and much nearer New York city.

"Hon. O. A. Howland, mayor of Toronto, who is president of the International Deep Waterways' association personally writes that he will be glad to attend a convention in Rochester. From Pittsburg with which we have direct connection also, Mr. Anderson, secretary of the Board of Trade, writes that his board endorses all legitimate movements for improvement of the waterways, that should be improved, and that there will be a national convention in Baltimore in November for discussion of the river and harbor bill, at which, this particular deep waterway should be endorsed. He thinks that Rochester is a most excellent place for a convention and that he can surely promise a delegation from his board and city. Favorable replies have likewise been received from Mr. Stone, the secretary of the Chicago Board of Trade, Mr. Crocker of the Minneapolis Board of Trade, and from Mr. McGulrch, of Iowa, and representatives in other Western and New England States, and cities all along the lakes. Little imagination is needed to show what it would mean to New York city to bring the business that comes down to Niagara to its shores or for the citizens of Rochester to realize that said adequate connection would within a decade, double wealth and population."

MORE MOTIVE POWER

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY WILL SOON FURNISH IT.

Active Preparations Being Made at Power House to Install New 1,500-Horse-Power Generator — Many New Cars Are Being Built.

Manager Nicholl, of the Rochester Railway company, this morning personally conducted a reporter for The Post Express through the company's power-house and car-shops in order to show what is actively being done at the present moment to improve Rochester's car service.

At the power-house workmen are engaged in tearing down a portion of the partition wall between the generating room and the truck repair room. This is being done to allow one of the engines and two of the generators to be removed in order to make room for the 1,500 horse-power engine and generator which the company has ordered and which will be in position before three months are past, Mr. Nicholl says. In the room at the time were the two parts of the generator recently shipped here, each weighting twenty tons. Some idea of their weight and size may be gathered from the fact that a day and a half was occupied in getting them to their resting place in the building. The equipment, when set in place, will not appear much larger than one of the 1,000 horse-power units. [illegible] is the largest now used [illegible] any, but it will more than [illegible] the small difference in size.

In the power-house this morning, thirteen generators were in operation. The power developed from these was augmented yesterday by 1,000 horse-power obtained by the street railway company from the Rochester Gas and Electric company despite the dispute now existing between the two companies concerning the latter's bill of $5,000 for the use of its subway. This arrangement was effected yesterday in a conference between the gas and electric people and Attorney Bissell for the street railway company.

There was noticeable yesterday afternoon a decided improvement in the car service. How long the street railway company will have the use of this power Mr. Nicholl this morning, declared he could not say.

In the upper story of the power house, the largest storage battery in this section of the country, outside of Buffalo, is located. This generates 700 horse-power which is held in reserve and is capable of moving the cars of the street railway system for half an hour should the generators down stairs cease to work. Ordinarily, this reserve force is used to equalize the power over the various lines and to move the cars out of the barns.

In the car shops, thirteen new cars are being built, five of them of the long pattern such as the new cars on the Park avenue line. It would be more correct, perhaps, to say that the cars are being rebuilt, for the old style short cars are being cut in two and extended by the insertion of a middle section. Thus cars that formerly had seating capacity for only eighteen or twenty persons will now seat from thirty-six to forty. Many other cars also, are undergoing lesser alterations and repairs and all of the 240 cars on the system are being given a new coat of paint as rapidly as possible. Of the long cars, twenty-six will be built; of the others, fifty will be repaired and altered.

"All of this work is being sandwiched in between our other work," said Mr. Nicholl, "which represents by far the greater part of our outlay at present. Besides the grading, paving and welding, which we are now engaged in, there are twenty miles of new track to be laid out of a total of 110 miles. The remainder of the rails will be in excellent condition after the work is done."

"Then, in addition to all this work, we are cramped for room and will be until our new car shops on St. Paul street can be built for which we will break ground to-morrow."

In addition to other reasons for the poor service to Seneca park, Mr. Nicholl stated to-day that in order to satisfactorily to handle the heavy traffic which this popular park seems bound to draw, it will be necessary to put in $7,000 worth of additional feed wire. The wire is here, Mr. Nicholl says, and will be put up as rapidly as possible.

"The long and short of the whole matter is simply that our street railway system has outgrown its equipment," said Mr. Nicholl, "and it takes time for us now to make up the deficiency."

The Railway Company To Proceed.

Some of the principal officials of the Rochester Railway Company express their intention to proceed at once with the improvement of the street car service without waiting for a final adjustment of the difficulties between the railway company and the owners of the electric conduits.

This is an eminently practical conclusion, for it may cost the railway company more money to accept the electric company's terms than would be paid under an equitable settlement of the dispute, or it may be cheaper to pay than to fight. But whether cheaper or dearer to pay the electric company's charges without delay in order to obtain the power to run the required number of cars, it is decidedly more prudent; and the railway officials are to be congratulated upon their discretion. To delay the promised improvement of the facilities of transportation which the city has instructed to the Rochester Railway Company would have been to invite a certain and speedy reckoning with the city for the railway company's past shortcomings. And such an accounting, we fear, would be much more disagreeable to that corporation than to submit to a comparatively moderate extortion at the hands of the electric company.

The city's attitude toward the railway company has been, and still is, much as that of a lenient creditor toward a debtor who pleads his forlorn condition as excuse for his failure to fulfill past obligations and who solemnly promises to do better in the near future. The city is reluctant to inflict upon the company the punishment, which the company in a strict sense, fully deserves, and which the city has in its hands to inflict. The city will probably continue in this attitude of forbearance toward the company a little longer—just about as much longer as that attitude is justified by the course of the company. If the extraordinary patience with which the company has been treated is interpreted by it as a permission to needlessly prolong the existing abuses of a wretched equipment and [illegible] service, the pres-

[illegible] of patience and forbearance of city and patrons will speedily be replaced, we dare say, by something more productive of satisfactory results.

We are pleased to see that the railway officials are wide up to the average of their generation, and perceive the limitations as well as the opportunities of their situation.

A POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT.

Band Concert at Highland Park Attracted 5,000 People Last Evening.

No one could doubt the popularity of the public band concerts at the parks who was present last evening at Highland park, and witnessed the throngs that came to enjoy the fine programme rendered by Dossenbach's Band. It was estimated that fully 5,000 people were present, and though it was a bit cool, the night was perfect, for there was no moisture in the atmosphere.

The band stand was located in a hollow between two hillocks, which formed almost a perfect amphitheater. In many respects this was an admirable arrangement, though the sound did not seem to carry as far as it would have done had the band been located at a higher point. But it made a fine place for the crowds to dispose of themselves, and on both sides and all around the hillocks were black with people. The best place to hear the music was on the north side, at the top of the hill, and here also the musicians could be seen as well as heard. About half the people came on bicycles, and it was a good-natured and orderly crowd, though a bit noisy as was natural, for even when they come to hear good band music, people are bound to talk in a place like that, and though conversation is conducted in quiet tones, among so many people it is sure to make more or less confusion.

Then the small boy was there in all his impishness. He rolled and tumbled about, trod on other people's toes and walked or tumbled over those sitting on the hillside. He kept the "cops" busy, passing them plenty of "sass," then disappearing in the crowd before the men in uniforms could get hold of him. And they didn't try very hard. A bunch of boys was tumbling over one another and making considerable noise, when most unexpectedly the policeman appeared and poked the boys about with his club, striking a few shins as he ordered them to get up and keep quiet. They got up, but didn't hesitate to talk back when they got out of reach of his club.

The summer girl was present, too, with bean close beside her, and she was either shivering in light attire, or bundled up in wraps, to say nothing of coat sleeves, but she enjoyed it just the same, even to the coat sleeve, apparently, and when the moon climbed up over the hills and tree tops in the east, and flooded the scene with her soft brilliance, she must have rejoiced with the people of the planet earth over their light-hearted enjoyment of the occasion. Mother and father and the children were all there, even to baby in arms.

As for the band, it played well as it always does, and delighted all who could get within hearing distance. The following popular programme was rendered, and such number was enthusiastically encored:

PART I.

"America" ..... Suppe
Overture—"Jolly Robbers" ..... Tyrre
Cuban Dance—"Trocha" ..... Herbert
Selection—"The Wizard" ..... Parker
"The New Born King" ..... Signor Jno. Melina.
March—"Invincible Eagle" ..... Sousa
Popular Medley ..... E. Boetger

PART II.

Overture—"Zampa" ..... Herold
Duet—"Miserere" ..... Verdi
Messrs. F. Remington and Signor Jno. Melina.
Medley—"Head Liner" ..... Mackie
Lullaby—"My Honey" ..... Arr. by Burleigh
Selection—"The Burgomaster" ..... Mackie
Fantasia—"Alling" ..... Ch. Bastens
(Scotch, Irish and English airs.)
"Star-Spangled Banner" .....

The concert was given under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, and it is certain that the public cannot have too much of such amusements furnished it gratis.

The Rochester Railway Company ran cars to the park on a three-minute schedule, and was prepared to increase the number of cars to any extent needed. It also had plenty of power to drive the cars up to the speed limit. The result was that the street car service was excellent and eminently satisfactory to the public.

WANT POWER

Willing to Pay for It and Can't Get It.

THERE ARE OTHERS

Trolley Company Not the Only Sufferer By the Monopoly.

WHY COMPETITION IS NEEDED

Many Small Taxpayers Whose Industries Suffer Because of the Way They Are Treated By the Rochester Gas and Electric Company—New Company Has Great Opportunity.

The Rochester railway is not the only industry that is suffering in the city of Rochester from lack of electric power which the Rochester Gas and Electric Company cannot or will not furnish.

Throughout the Eighth and Seventeenth Wards there are small tailoring establishments which employ power. In fact, this is one of the chief industries of a large portion of the working class of the city.

In some portions of this district the Edison system has been extended and low tension power can be furnished, but this cannot be done profitably except within a mile or a mile and a half limit, radiating from the power house, and the Rochester Gas and Electric Company has lately refused to extend its power system beyond that point. For a long time the high tension power direct from the electric are lighting circuit was in use everywhere. This was condemned by the Board of Fire Underwriters in the center of the city, but the company was permitted to use it in the outskirts. The voltage is so high that only small motors can be used and the tailors are obliged to have a motor for each machine. Sometimes it will take ten motors to a workshop.

A Seventeenth Warder's Experience.

A well known Seventeenth Ward tailor said yesterday: "More than a year ago some 25 of us joined in a petition to the Rochester Gas and Electric Company for low tension power and got Alderman Meade to go with us and present it to the electric company. The managers made all sorts of promises but did nothing for us. If they would give us the kind of power we want we could put in one low tension motor to each shop and save from one-half to two-thirds of the expense we are now under. One of us, relying on the promises made, went so far as to buy a low tension motor, but he was never able to use it, and finally went out of business. I am informed that if the electric company would put in an alternating system, with induction motors, there would be no trouble in furnishing power to all parts of the city. Alderman Meade has done all he could for us, but the trouble is that up to date there has been no competition in this sort of business and the Rochester Gas and Electric Company has been doing just as it pleased. If Mayor Carnahan still thinks that competition in electric service is not a good thing, I wish he would come down here and talk with people in the Seventeenth Ward. I think he would find out a thing or two."

Walter J. Patrick of 23 Richard Street has been having some experiences of his own with the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, and this is the way he talked about them: "I run a little printing press and am now using a gas engine. I cannot get electric power. The Rochester Gas and Electric Company will not furnish it to me. It says it cannot furnish it at a profit up this way beyond Alexander Street. There are several concerns up this way that are getting it, but the company says it does not intend to give us any more. I got Alderman Plumb to go with me to see Mr. Redman about it, but it did no good. He told us they would not give us power up here unless we would pay for the laying of the feed wires, and he finally refused to furnish it in any event, on the ground that so much power was lost in transmission that it was unprofitable. Now, I am told, though I do not know much about these things, that if the electric company had an alternating system it could give the suburbs all the power needed. Mayor Carnahan, I saw in his veto message, said we do not need any competition in Rochester. Well, perhaps they do not need competition in the Genesee Valley Club, but out on Richard Street we need it, and need it badly. I am informed that a club of six small manufacturers down on Clinton Avenue South tried to get power and was turned down in the same way."

Alderman Meade was seen concerning the statements as to the petition from tailors in his ward. "It is all true," he said; "but it is not wise for me to talk about it. You will notice that the people down my way have indorsed my attitude in voting for competition." Alderman Plumb is in Buffalo.

New Company's Opportunity.

A gentleman familiar with matters electrical said: "There is no doubt that the Rochester Gas and Electric Company is unable to furnish low tension power at a profit to the suburbs under the Edison system which it employs. The loss of power in transmission is such that it cannot very well be sent beyond the mile or mile and a half limit, and as it cannot do it at a profit, no fair criticism can be made on its officers for refusing to do it. The power from its electric arc circuits is of such a high voltage, sometimes running as high as 5,000 volts to the circuit, that only very small motors can be used with safety. In fact, power from electricity in this form is not appropriate for any kind of small manufacturing.

"The real trouble is that the Rochester Gas and Electric Company has not the right kind of service to do the business. If the competing companies put in the alternating system, with induction motors, they can run the old company out of business immediately, as far as the suburbs are concerned. This, I understand, is to be done by the new company now building a plant, and the promise of power to the suburbs where it can be used by the small taxpayers is one of the strongest arguments that can be urged on behalf of competition here."

Competition in Montreal.

The bids for electric lighting in Montreal, which have just been opened in the Canadian metropolis, illustrate what competition in the matter of municipal lighting may do for a place, especially where some old and established company has been getting trust prices for a series of years.

For the last five years the Royal Electric Company of Montreal has been re-

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

are light service. In Rochester the local company has been getting only $51.25, and the comparison of the figures would not indicate that Rochester has been so badly off. Of course, as there are only 3,200 lights in use in Montreal and more than double that number in this city, the actual income to the Royal company was only $150,000 per annum, where here it is about $290,000. The contract does not expire for two years to come, but the people determined to let the next contract two years in advance, and give any company that was ready to put up a plant and deposit a forfeit of $50,000 a chance to bid for the public lighting. When the bids were opened they showed results as follows:

Standard Light and Power Company, per light per year five year contract	$68.00
Royal Electric Company	85.00
Lachine Hydraulic and Land Co.	90.00
Imperial Electric Light Company	85.63
Shawinigan Water and Power Co.	79.98½
St. Lawrence Power Company	84.75

From these bids it appears that Montreal, which for the last five years has been paying $90 a year per light more than Rochester, will for the next five years pay $36.50 less per light per year than we are paying here, all as a result of competition.

The little city of Muskegon, Mich., has just let a contract for 175 arc lights to be furnished for the next ten years at the rate of $76 per light per year. This price compares rather favorably with the present price prevailing in Rochester.

A PLEASING SPECTACLE.

The concert Thursday evening at Highland park was most interesting and successful notwithstanding a few minor drawbacks which at times made themselves unpleasantly conspicuous.

The study of acoustics or lack of study of acoustics, which resulted in placing the band in the pit of a natural amphitheater of picturesque hillocks, did not count much in the sum total of the evening's enjoyment and another time it may be well to try with the band stand somewhat elevated in the central hollow or on the brow of one of the hillocks.

One good reason for failure to hear the band was the murmuring of four or five five thousand voices in conversation. But all this aside, the spectacle on the green slopes of the hills of Highland park was one long to be remembered. The public was invited to a scene that has been preparing for years, and all said it was beautiful. The fence was opened for the first time, admitting the public to a view of green hills and shrubbery and trees, with the mist-covered city beyond. The view was more entrancing than the music and all spectators were fully repaid whether they heard a note of music or not. But nearly all heard the notes of music in that entrancing place, the most appropriate for an outdoor concert in the whole park system.

A NEW INDUSTRY

Herald Aug 3rd 1901

New Company To Be Organized To Make Printer's Ink.

PROMOTERS ROCHESTER MEN

Chamber of Commerce Anxious to Locate the Company Here—Rochester Thought to Be a Desirable Location for This Business—Interest Taken By Citizens.

There is every reason to believe that within a very short time Rochester will have another manufacturing industry to add to her already long list of enterprising and pushing business concerns. The industry wishing to locate in this city is that of the manufacture of all kinds of printer's ink.

The movement is being pushed by two former Rochester men who have spent many years in this business and are men of push and business ability. They are A. J. Horner and Thomas G. Taylor, who are at present interested in one of the large western concerns of this kind and who think that Rochester offers a big field for this industry and who are anxious to form a company here and begin with the manufacture of printer's ink at once.

Mr. Horner has been in the city for a few days and has laid the matter before the Chamber of Commerce for its consideration. That body is very much interested in the proposed plan and is ready to offer the company that may be formed, every inducement in the line of power, land, and other facilities to locate here. Secretary Ives is personally intensely interested in the organization of this company, as he is eager to have Rochester enjoy the benefits of every kind of enterprise it is possible to locate here.

In presenting the scheme to some of the representative printing firms of the city, Mr. Horner found them all very much interested in the plan and, in fact, enthusiastic. It is thought by the gentlemen who are endeavoring to organize the new company that this section of the country is particularly favorable for the manufacture of this article, as there is not plant of the kind in the immediate vicinity, the nearest being the Buffalo Printing Company, which has no very large trade, even in the city itself. The next nearest firms are those of New York and Philadelphia, the Ruxton and O'Kie companies respectively.

He found that the greatest part of the printer's ink used in the city by the jobbers comes from Western firms as Cincinnati and Chicago. It was Gee matter. The eight-hour portion of the agreement was accepted by the company, but the officials felt that the other demands were unreasonable.

The revised demands of the strikers were adopted at the meeting in the morning and the proposition was presented to the railway officials shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. No answer was made on the part of the company, and from the actions and conversations of the officials it looked as if the company were satisfied at the present state of affairs. That is, by the present state of affairs is meant the employment of twelve men in shifts of four each for eight hours at $2 per day. The majority of the men now employed at the power house as firemen are experienced, and it was reported by several men prominent in the company last evening that everything was moving along in a perfectly satisfactory manner yesterday.

When questioned concerning the power yesterday Harry A. Nicholl, superintendent of motor power, said:

"As far as the power goes we have had all that is necessary and have handled the extraordinarily heavy traffic with perfect ease. We have been using the 1,500 horse power furnished by the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, and together with that generated here have had really more than we want.

"In regard to the report to the effect that the break in the water pipe which occurred Saturday, was due to the inefficiency of the men working in the boiler room, I wish to state that such was not the case. The break was one which might have occurred at any time, and was due to the wearing out of the pipe. The men, in fact, had nothing to do with the water supply pipe, so it is absurd to say they caused the break."

When Manager Nicholl was questioned last night as to the strike situation, he was very loath to talk for publication. However, he said that everything was progressing very favorably. He also was the authority for the statement that the strikers had been offered their positions at the terms of the company, that is, the eight hour a day plan, in three shifts at $2, with car fare.

"Of course," said he, "the positions will not be held open for them any great length of time. It is just the same as any man applying for a position. If he comes before the position is filled, all well and good, but if not then he has himself to blame."

Mr. Nicholl said in reply to a question as to whether he anticipated any trouble in getting a fresh supply of coal through the refusal of union drivers to deliver it, he laughed and said he was not worrying about that. All the coal necessary could be obtained without any trouble, so he thought.

He further said he thought the company had used the men very fairly in the matter, and notwithstanding the popular opinion that corporations are always doing wrong and rubbing it into their employees, one who inquired into the matter could not fail to decide likewise. He laid great stress on the fact that the men struck at a time when their work was being lightened by the use of power furnished from the outside. In so doing he thought they were unreasonable.

The opinion was equivalent among the group of strikers which was gathered about the door of the boiler room of the power house last night, that the railway company would find it hard work to get power to-day, because of the fact that the race was to be cleaned. Just how this would embarrass the company was not explained.

When some of the officials of the road were interviewed in regard to the race being closed they didn't seem to think there was any cause for alarm about not getting sufficient power. One remarked that the race had been cleaned before, and that both the Rochester Gas and Electric Company and the Rochester Railway Company got along all right.

There were also rumors circulating among the strikers and their sympathizers that the railway company would be handicapped when more coal was needed. It seemed to be the opinion of the strikers that the union men among the coal drivers in the city could be induced to refuse to draw coal to supply the railway company under the existing conditions. But Manager Nicholl said there didn't seem to be any cause for worry on that score by the company.

No trouble was reported between the strikers and the men who took their places, although several attempts were made to persuade the non-union men not to work. The strikers hung about the entrance to the boiler room and when the men changed shifts and went home they were met and labored with.

The report published that the union of stationary firemen had not taken up the cause of the strikers was emphatically denied. It was stated that the union held a meeting Friday and decided the men should strike at noon Saturday, if their demands were not acceded to. Yesterday there was also much talk among the men of calling on the other labor unions to help them.

When asked as to what would be the outcome if the other labor unions were appealed to, one of the railway officials replied without a moment's hesitation that he thought the other unions would not back up the strikers.

Briefly summarized the strike situation last night was as follows: The striking firemen want two more men employed during the day than the railway company will consent to, at the rate of $2 for eight hours' work. The officials of the road seem confident they have the situation well in hand, and on the other hand the firemen seem equally confident that they will win.

There was nothing to mar the pleasure of the occasion, and, considered as a whole, yesterday's concert may be considered one of the best of the season.

Aug 5/1901.

NEW POWER HOUSE CONTRACT IS AWARDED TO FRIEDERICK SONS

Citizen Light and Power Company Building Will Be Started Immediately---Description of the Proposed $2,000,000 Structure.

Announcement is made that the contract for the construction of the new power for the Citizens Light and Power Company was awarded Saturday to A. Friederich Sons & Co. of this city; the contract price was not given. Work on this new plant was begun early in the spring, the excavation work being let to Chambers & Casey. The excavation was mainly rock and was a long, extensive and costly job. This work has now been completed.

Bids were asked from contractors all over the country for the rest of the work early in June; about a month ago the contract for the structural steel work was awarded to the American Bridge Company, whose headquarters are in New York. Inasmuch as the building will be made fireproof in every particular, the steel contract is almost as important as the contract that was awarded on Saturday. The contract given to the local firm was delayed for several weeks on account of the strike, as the company did not wish to award the contract until assured that there would be no delay because of labor troubles.

The steel work at the foundries has been under way for about a month and the order is being rushed as fast as possible. Such preliminary work as can be done before the structural steel arrives will be begun to-day and pushed to completion as soon as possible. The company has stated that the new plant will be in operation about January 1, and there is nothing in sight to threaten delay beyond that date.

This power plant will be the finest of its size in the United States and among the largest, as it will be capable of generating 10,000 horse power. The entire capacity of the present plant of the Citizens Light and Power Company is only 3,000 horse power, so that some idea can be gained approximately of the increased business the company is preparing to handle after this year.

The main object of this increased power, as has often been announced, is to put the company in a position to secure the city lighting contract that will expire next June and for which the new five-year contract will be awarded shortly after the next administration assumes power. In addition to this city lighting, the company will be in a position to enter into active competition for the private lighting, of which the Rochester Gas and Electric company has practically a monopoly at the time.

While no figures were given out as to the detailed contracts that have been awarded, it has been stated that the aggregate cost of the new plant with its equipment will be nearly $2,000,000.

The specifications for the power house consisted of a printed pamphlet of 25 pages, and described in great detail all the plans upon which the contractors were asked to bid. The plans consisted of fourteen blue prints, showing cross sections, floor plans and elevations.

While the plans and specifications are of special interest to experts who have knowledge of electrical matters, the general public will be interested to read a brief summary of the sort of building it is proposed to construct.

The building will be of brick, with all structural work of steel, and will be thoroughly fireproof in every respect. It will be 181 feet long and about 92 feet wide. It will be divided by a partition wall into boiler house and an engine and dynamo room. There will be a rock excavation below the level of the boiler room to serve the purpose of an ash pit.

The boiler room will be thirty-six feet above the engine room, on a second rock excavation, to the west of the engine room. The basement of the engine room will be ten feet high, and will be occupied by the foundations of the engines, the foundations to be of solid concrete.

There will be eight Aultman & Taylor boilers of the B. & W. type, each of 650 horse power nominal capacity, furnishing a sufficient boiler capacity to develop over 10,000 engine horse power.

The furnaces will be equipped with automatic strokers, thus insuring perfect combustion and the highest heat efficiency of the coal. The coal will be fed into the hoppers automatically, through chutes running from the coal storage bins, which will be located directly above the boilers, and will have a capacity of from 1,500 to 2,000 tons. The coal will be carted from the railway across Brown's race, and over a bridge, when it can be dumped directly into the coal storage bins. The boilers will be divided into four batteries of two each, one battery on the east and west sides of the boiler room. Steel stacks, 120 feet high, will be provided for each unit of four boilers, thus insuring against stoppage in case of accident to either bank of boilers. The stacks will have thirteen foot flues. Access to the engine room will be gained by an elevator, to be located in the south part of the building, just east of the coal bins.

In the engine room will be located five 1,800 horse power, vertical, cross-compound engines, made by the Southwark Foundry and Machine Company. These engines will be directly connected to sixty cycle, two-phase alternators, of about 1,400 kilowatt capacity each. There will be also one horizontal, cross-compound engine of 750 horse power, made by the Dixon Manufacturing Company, of Scranton, Pa. This engine will be directly connected with a 500 kilowatt, sixty cycle, Stanley induction alternator. The generators will have a uniform voltage of 2,200.

There will be toilet rooms, with shower baths, in both the boiler and engine rooms, for the use of the men. The switchboard will be on a gallery on the south side of the engine room.

At a recent stockholders meeting, it will be remembered the capital stock of the company was increased to $2,500,000. This will leave a balance from $500,000 to $700,000 in addition to the improvements already contemplated, to be expended on some future developments of the company of which no public announcement has been made. Even if the company was permitted to construct its own conduit system, the cost of the entire system could not exceed $250,000.

This difference between the cost of plans already announced and the increase of capital stock recently consummated is sufficiently large to justify the speculation that the new managers have still further plans of expansion in mind that have not yet been given to the public but which must have been well developed to warrant the securing of permission to increase capital stock for that amount.

It will be of considerable public interest to discover what the new syndicate is planning to do with the extra $300,000 to $500,000 that it was authorized to raise last May.

The Whitney estate Saturday sold the property on the river flats, adjoining the Gregg cutlery works on the north, to the Rochester Gas & Electric Company. The property extends 150 feet on the river and runs back to the high bank. It is now occupied by Moseley & Motley, on lease, and controls several supplementary water rights.

STOKER'S STRIKE IS NOT SETTLED

Aug 6. 8/6/1901.

EMPLOYEES OF STREET RAILWAY STAND FIRM.

MEN CHANGE DEMANDS

BUT THE COMPANY STANDS BY ITS FIRST OFFER TO THEM.

THEIR PLACES FILLED

Railway Company Has All the Men it Wants, and Plenty of Power for the Heavy Traffic of Yesterday.

In regard to the situation of the strike of the firemen employed at the power house of the Rochester Railway Company, on Commercial street, it may be said that apparently the railway company had the advantage last night. The day was a busy one, particularly for the strikers, there being a meeting in the morning at which their demands were somewhat modified. This new proposition was then presented to the railway officials, who, however, took no action. The officials of the company last night expressed themselves as being perfectly satisfied with the way things went yesterday. One of them said that the only result of the walkout of the firemen so far, and the only result that he expected, was that the men formerly employed by the company are now out of jobs.

The original demand of the strikers was that they work but eight hours a day, instead of eleven to thirteen hours, and get the same amount of pay, $2.25 a day. With this arrangement there were to be twelve men employed in three shifts of four each.

Yesterday morning the Society of Stationary Firemen held a meeting, and the strike was, of course, discussed in all lights. It was finally decided that the demands of the striking firemen should be changed to the following: A working day of eight hours, with a force of fourteen men divided into three shifts, two of five men and one of four. The pay to be $2 per day with car fare to the place of work.

When the company was first apprised of the dissatisfaction among the men and the demands of the firemen were made known to them, the eight-hour clause of the agreement was accepted, but it was stipulated that but twelve men be employed, divided into three shifts of four each. The men were also to receive $2 per day and their car fare to work. In view of the fact that the amount of work required of the men has lately been greatly reduced on account of the agreement entered into with the Rochester Gas & Electric Company for the furnishing of 3,000 horse power per day, the company takes the stand that the men have been treated very fairly by

BAND CONCERT AT GENESEE VALLEY PARK.

Thousands of People Enjoyed the Fine Programme and the Beautiful Day.

Aug 6. 8/6/1901.

It was estimated that between 6,000 and 7,000 people visited Genesee Valley park yesterday afternoon to hear the concert given by the Fifty-fourth Regiment Band, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. Probably that is a conservative estimate, for when a crowd is so scattered and constantly on the move, it is not so easy to estimate numbers accurately. And so it wasn't anything strange to see men and boys riding on the outside of the cars, standing on the fender. Those who had wheels were independent indeed, and hundreds of riders were in line going and coming all the afternoon.

Carriages too were numerous, almost as many as the bicycles, and they conveyed sometimes parties of two (this seemed to be the most popular number) or comfortable family groups with mother and father and the children. And there were not a few who walked to the park, in fact Plymouth avenue was lined with pedestrians.

This is not surprising when the weather is taken into consideration. The day was simply perfect. A delightful breeze was blowing, and it was neither too warm nor too cool. In the park one could find anything he wished in the way of a retreat. If the band was the main thing, he could find a chair in the pavilion, for the band stand was just north of this, and enjoy soft drinks and light refreshments while listening to the latest popular selections, or a fine overture.

The grove all around the band stand was filled with a happy Sunday gathering. It was a fortunate person who could find a bench, but the soft, warm turf under the shade of the fine old trees was just as acceptable, and here, stretched at full length, or reclining against a friendly tree trunk, hundreds and hundreds of men and women, boys and girls, youths and maidens and little children forgot for the time being the fret and the grind of everyday life, and gave themselves up to the pleasure of the hour. It was happiness just to look at the graceful swaying branches of the trees, with the glimpses of the blue sky between, the soft carpet of green sward, and nature everywhere, at her best. Surely Rochester never made a better investment than when she applied her magnificent system of parks for the pleasure and recreation of the masses of the people.

It was a quiet and orderly crowd that was present, and though there were many policemen there too, their duties mainly consisted in answering questions and looking pleasant. Just across the rustic bridges which span the little brooklet meandering through the park, the merry-go-round furnished a lively counter attraction to the band, but, though the merry-go-round was well patronized, the band was the main thing, and every number was loudly encored. By request "The Holy City" was played as an encore to No. 5 in the first part of the programme. An admirable programme was rendered, the selections were such as would appeal to a mixed crowd, and each number was thoroughly appreciated. The programme follows:

PART I.

March—"Union Forever"	Scouten
Overture—"Martha"	Flotow
Waltz—"La Gitana"	Buckloed
Selection—"The Highwayman"	De Koven
(a) Song for Cornet—"For All Eternity"	Thomas
Mr. Bassett.
(b) Song for Trombone—"Asleep in the Deep"	Petrie
Mr. Bubel.
Medley Selection—"Princess Bonnie"	Spenser

PART II.

March—"Old Colonial"	Taylor
Overture—"Queen of Autumn"	Carl Bigg
Paraphrase—"Nearer, My God, to Thee"	Reeves
(a) "Dans"—A Caravan Episode	Langey
(b) "Comic Patrol"	Hecker
"Grand Military Tattoo"	H. Saro
Waltz—"Auf Wiedersehn"	Bailey

Long before its conclusion, the wise ones started homeward, and cars were filled faster than they could be supplied. This continued until dark, and though some delay was occasioned by a car jumping the track, the people were all taken care of. It was suggested that wagonettes run from the centre of the city into the park would

New Brokerage Enterprise.

The well known and important house of Thomas & Post, of No. 71 Broadway, New York, have opened branch offices in this city, at Nos. 107 and 108 Wilder building, for the transaction of a general banking and brokerage business. The offices in this city are connected by private wires to the New York Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade. Every facility will be offered their customers in Western New York for quick service in either exchange. Especial attention will be paid to the handling of high-class investment securities, both local, state, national, and industrial. The firm will be represented in Rochester by Mr. William H. Case and J. Thomas Burns, assisted by S. Vernam FitzSimons.

Herald

Deep Waterways Convention.

John A. C. Wright of this city has received a letter from James Cotter, a member of the executive committee of the International Deep Waterways Association. He says of the contemplated convention in this city that if it is decided to hold a convention he will do what he can to make it a success.

Aug 5 Herald

Enjoying the Parks.

Rochesterians are enjoying their park system this summer as never before, thanks to the plan of giving band concerts in the parks. Attracted by the music, thousands of people, many of whom had never before visited these spacious breathing places owned by the city, have made it a practice to go out to hear the band play and have been greatly refreshed and benefited by the experience. It is reasonable to assume that this newly acquired popularity of the parks will be to a considerable extent permanent and that in future they will be more generally resorted to by the population of Rochester than ever before.

In this connection it is an interesting fact—and one perhaps not generally known to Rochesterians—that in the proportion of public park acreage to population Rochester ranks thirteenth among 38 cities of the United States having a population of 100,000 or over. For every 248.4 residents of Rochester the city provides one acre of public park space; from which it may be seen that, if every man, woman and child in the city were to visit the parks at the same time, there would be room for all without uncomfortable crowding. In this proportion of public park acreage to population Rochester ranks ahead of such cities as San Francisco, St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, New York, Syracuse and Buffalo.

Chicago has long boasted of her superior park system and twenty years ago, perhaps, the boast was justified by the facts; but of late years her population has grown much faster than her parks, which are at present the subject of much adverse criticism. A contributor to the Chicago Tribune calls attention to the fact that the great metropolis of the West ranks thirty-second in the list and presents the following table of statistics on the subject, which may prove of interest to Rochesterians who of late have been getting better acquainted with the really fine park equipment of their city:

Los Angeles	27.5	Philadelphia	319.8
Washington	75.8	Providence	323.0
Kansas City	92.0	Buffalo	343.4
New Haven	112.3	Pittsburg	366.4
Columbus	113.3	N. Orleans	371.5
Minneapolis	130.8	Allegheny	377.7
Indianapolis	141.1	Syracuse	425.2
Louisville	149.4	Baltimore	446.3
Toledo	169.8	New York	497.4
Omaha	172.9	Cincinnati	604.8
Boston	214.2	Milwaukee	655.8
Denver	234.4	Newark	692.3
Rochester	248.4	Chicago	720.4
San Francisco	250.0	Scranton	1,049.9
St. Louis	264.2	Paterson	1,209.7
Detroit	270.3	Fall River	1,174.0
St. Paul	272.8	St. Joseph	2,844.0
Cleveland	277.2	Memphis	7,676.3
Worcester	294.5	Jersey City	11,466.25

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

A BIG CONTRACT LET FOR NEW POWER HOUSE

A. Freiderich's Sons Company the Lucky Bidder—Plant Will Cost a

Times July 3/1901

The contract for the construction of the new power house for the Citizens Light & Power Company was awarded Saturday to Adam Friederich Sons' Company of this city. The excavation was recently completed by Chambers & Casey and now work will be commenced at once upon the building. The steel work has been under way at the mills for several weeks and is being rapidly finished. Preparations to receive the steel will be commenced today. It is expected that the new power house will be ready for use about Jan. 1, 1902.

The plant will be able to generate 10,000 horsepower and will be the finest of its size in the country as well as one of the largest.

The main object of this increased power, as has often been announced is to put the company in a position to secure the lighting contract that will expire next June and for which the new five-year contract will be awarded shortly after the next administration assumes power. In addition to this city lighting, the company will be in a position to enter into active competition for the private lighting, of which the Rochester Gas & Electric Company has practically a monopoly at this time.

The building will be of brick, with all structural work of steel, and will be thoroughly fireproof in every respect. It will be 137 feet long and about 72 feet wide. It will be divided by a partition wall into boiler house and an engine and dynamo room. There will be a rock excavation below the level of the boiler room to serve the purpose of an ash pit.

The boiler room will be 36 feet above the engine room, on a second rock excavation to the west of the engine room. The basement of the engine room will be ten feet high, and will be occupied by the foundations of the engines, the foundations to be of solid concrete.

There will be eight Aultman & Taylor to ratify it. He understands very well that he is beholden to the slate makers and to them only when such men are squelched then, and then only, will Rochester's improvements be realized expeditiously.

TROLLEY CAR SERVICE.

Manager Nicholl's comment on the impatience of Rochester people in regard to the car service applies to the new organization, but he should take into consideration the annoyances that has been caused by a poor service that has been apparent month after month and year after year until it would fray the patience of a Job.

For five years it has been impossible to get a seat in a street car at the crowded time of day. The company has been slow to put on extra cars at the noon hour when people are going home to their lunches, or sufficient cars between 5 and 6 o'clock, when people are going home for the evening. This is only one of the many inconveniences that the people of Rochester have put up with for such an inconsiderable length of time.

Apparently the new organization is honestly trying to meet the demands of the public and in spite of lack of sufficient power or proper rolling stock THE TIMES believes, accomplish it to the satisfaction of all.

ES. 1901

NEW YORK STATE FAIRS.

New York State Fair—Syracuse, Sept.

Oswegatchie Agricultural Society—Ogdensburg, Sept. 3-5.
The Hacker Valley and St. Regis Valley Horticultural Society—Potsdam, Sept. 10-13.
Cobleskill Agricultural Society—Cobleskill, Sept. 25-26.
Chateaugay Union Agricultural Society—Chateaugay, Sept. 10-13.
Southern Steuben Agricultural Society—Troupsburg, Sept. 3-6.
Neversink Agricultural Society—Grahamsville, undecided.
Northern Tioga Agricultural Society—Newark Valley, Sept. 10-13.
Dryden Agricultural Society—Dryden, Sept. 10-13.
Union Agricultural and Horticultural Society—Trumansburg, Sept. 3-6.
Glen Dale Union Agricultural Society—Potterville, undecided.
Warren County Fair—Warrensburg, Sept. 17-20.
Newark Fair Association—Newark, Oct. 3-5.
Palmyra Union Agricultural Society—Palmyra, Sept. 24-26.
Silver Lake Agricultural and Mechanical Association—Perry, Oct. 1-3.
Dundee Fair Association—Dundee, undecided.

The Power City Taking.

The title of the Power city has been chosen as part of the name of a realty company recently organized and doing business. The Power city is the newest title given the city by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

TROLLEY TO SYRACUSE WILL STAND ALONE

10.08.

Will Enter Rochester by Way of University Avenue.

ils of the Survey of the Rochester & Syracuse Electric Railway—It is Connected With no Other Trolley Road and is Financed With Rochester and Syracuse Capital—Several Matters Pertaining to Trolley Roads Cleared up—Towns Along the New York Central to be Connected With Rochester and Syracuse.

An electric railway, direct from the city of Rochester to the city of Syracuse, passing through the villages of Brighton, Penfield, Fairport, Macedon, Palmyra, Port be realized. For ten years the citizens have wanted a public market and have periodically agitated the question, but every time it is brought before the Common Council it is pigeonholed, or committeed, or stifled. There is no apparent reason for it.

To a man up a tree it would appear that if the public had a real hand in the nominations of municipal officers a remedy might be effected. A candidate for office who is nominated by a man or a clique of men, if elected, remembers the side on which his bread is buttered. The people have nothing to do with his 17-20.

Orleans County—Albion, Sept. 18-21.
Oswego County—Oswego Falls, Sept. 17-20.
Otsego County—Cooperstown, Sept. 24-25.
Putnam County—Carmel, Aug. 27-30.
Queens-Nassau Counties—Mineola, Sept. 24-26.
Agricultural and Liberal Arts, Rensselaer County—Nassau, Sept. 10-13.
Rensselaer County—Undecided.
Rockland County—Orangeburg, Sept. 24-25.
St. Lawrence County—Canton, Sept. 17-20.
Saratoga County—Ballston Spa, Aug. 26-30.
Schoharie County—Schoharie, Sept. 16-18.
Schuyler County—Watkins, Sept. 17-20.
Cape Vincent, Sept. 10-13.
Hemlock Lake Union Agricultural Society—Hemlock, Oct. 3-4.
Brockport Union Agricultural Society—Brockport, Sept. 24-26.
West End Agricultural Association—Palatine Bridge, undecided.
Boonville Fair Association—Boonville, Sept. 3-6.
Vernon Agricultural Society—Vernon, Sept. 25-26.
Phoenix Union Agricultural Society—West Phoenix, Sept. 26-28.
Farmers and Mechanics Agricultural Society—Bristol Center, undecided.
Gorham Agricultural Society—Reed Corners, Oct. 3-5.
Naples Union Agricultural Society—Naples, Sept. 17-19.
Sandy Creek, Richland, Orwell and Boylston Agricultural Society, Sandy Creek, Aug. 27-30.
Morris Fair Association—Morris, Oct. 1-3.
Onondaga Union Agricultural Society—Onondaga, Sept. 16-19.
Richfield Springs Agricultural Society—Richfield Springs, Sept. 30-Oct. 3.
Schenevus Valley Agricultural Society—Schenevus, Sept. 19-21.
Rockland County Industrial Association—New City, Sept. 3-6.
Gouverneur Agricultural and Mechanical Society—Gouverneur, Aug.

The latter project is behind a plan for the further improvement of the Erie Canal to which The Times is heartily opposed. The former convention, proposes a ship canal under federal direction and has the full indorsement of this paper. Secretary Ives of the local Chamber of Commerce is to be commended for his energy in securing such a convention for Rochester.

The Times Aug 2/01

Buffalo Evening Express July 27 01

The civilized nations of the world are earnestly considering the question of inland navigation, and are either constructing deep canals or are preparing to do so. Only the United States lags behind.

There are deep waterways in Canada, but they are not sufficient for the constantly increasing traffic, and the constantly increasing size of vessels, and so the construction of new ways is advocated. The Georgian bay route, for instance, has been surveyed, and its advantages are now well understood. It would give almost a straight line from Duluth to Montreal, and cut off the long detour to the south through lower Lake Huron and Lake Erie.

The New York Tribune which has been investigating European canals, finds that France is planning some deep waterways, notably one from the Bay of Biscay to the Mediterranean; that Rus-

...SHIP-CANAL POINTS.

...ts in New York who defeated canal improvement last winter in the interest of the barge canal and have since been showing a strong disposition to drift toward ship-canal ideas, are, apparently, beginning to discover that the ship-canal illusion will not bear close examination. Lyman L. Cooley, engineer of the Deep Waterways Commission, in a recent letter to Alexander R. Smith on this subject, gave a useful hint by remarking: "New York's interest in the question seems to favor some form of toll gate, while the Western sentiment develops on the theory of unlimited ocean navigation to the head of the Great Lakes at Chicago and Duluth. It is the Western sentiment that will furnish the votes in Congress to carry this prosperity are for it is to crystallize an active movement."

This seems to have opened the eyes of some of the dreamers who were talking a few weeks ago about sidetracking Buffalo in the fact that a canal which would sidetrack Buffalo, supposing such a one to be possible at all, would also sidetrack New York. Henry B. Hebert, chairman of the Canal Committee of the Produce Exchange, takes up the thought, saying: "I believe a ship canal, if constructed, would benefit principally the Northwest and Middle West at the expense of this and other ports. It would, I think, be more of a detriment than benefit to New York. It would develop the iron and other industries of the lake regions and would practically make Atlantic ports of lake cities. Vessels could be sent through from the upper lakes to New York and loaded here with additional cargo for the ocean voyage. This port would lose a very large part of its business on eastbound traffic from the lakes. But, perhaps, New York is patriotic enough to favor the construction of a ship canal for the benefit principally of other sections."

Perhaps it would be, but the conference which was held at the Produce Exchange yesterday did not consider what sacrifices New York might make for the benefit of other sections, but what it could do to benefit itself. That is the selfish basis on which the whole canal question has been discussed hitherto. It may not be altruistic, but it is practical. The sooner the New Yorkers cease toying with delusions and get down to a practical basis, the better it will be for their port and for the whole State.

Buffalo Evening Express July 28

...a Democrat and Chronicle reporter called upon Mr. Lux at his office in Clyde, and from him learned the exact facts regarding the electric railway interests with which he is connected. Said Mr. Lux:

"All of this talk about the Lux syndicate of Detroit is simply nonsense. The simple fact of the matter is that we are going to build an electric railway between the cities of Rochester and Syracuse, taking in the intermediate villages.

"You say you followed our stakes from the east line of the city of Rochester to the Dugway yesterday, and there lost them. Now, in order that there may be no doubt regarding the line our road will take, I will give you the route, as finally laid out by our engineer, William C. Gray, from the tracks of the Rochester Railway Company to the east line of the town of Galen, in which the village of Clyde is situated. A little later I will also give you the survey from the east line of the town of Galen

...lished, but I have not the data at hand. Syracuse is our eastern terminal."

Mr. Lux then gave the reporter the detailed description of the route of the Rochester & Syracuse Electric railway, from University avenue in this city to the east line of the town of Galen. The description follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the Rochester Railway Company's tracks on University avenue and Allande avenue in the city of Rochester; thence easterly in Atlantic avenue, passing under the tracks of the New York Central & Hudson River railroad to the city line of the city of Rochester; continuing easterly on the continuation of Atlantic avenue in the town of Brighton to North avenue; thence southerly in North avenue to the north corporation line of the village of Brighton; continuing southerly in North avenue to Blossom street; thence easterly in Blossom street to the east corporation line of the village of Brighton, continuing easterly in Blossom street to the town of Brighton to the Kelly road; thence southeasterly in the Kelly road, formerly known as the Irondequoit landing road to the boundary line of the town of Brighton; continuing southeasterly in the Kelly road in the town of Penfield and southerly on a private right of way to the foot of the hill on the west side of the Irondequoit creek valley in the Rochester and Penfield road; thence southeasterly in the Rochester and Penfield road to the foot of the hill on the east side of the Irondequoit creek valley; thence southerly on a private right of way to the westerly end of the Paper Mill road; thence southeasterly in the Paper Mill road to a point just south of the paper mill, being the line of the town of Penfield; thence southeasterly along the western bank of Irondequoit creek in the town of Perinton to the Lincoln Mill road; thence easterly in the Lincoln Mill road, crossing Irondequoit creek to the Penfield road; thence southeasterly in the Penfield road to a highway leading south to the Rochester road; thence southerly in said highway passing under the tracks of the New York Central & Hudson River railroad to the Rochester road; thence easterly in said Rochester road, being the continuation of Church street in the village of Fairport passing under the tracks of the West Shore railroad to the west corporation line of the village of Fairport; continuing easterly on Mill street in the village of Fairport to Main street; thence across Main street to John street; thence easterly in John street to the east corporation line of the village of Fairport; continuing easterly along the canal land and southeasterly on a private right of way to a point in the Plank road 200 feet west of the Lower road; thence easterly in the Plank road to a point near the east line of the village of Egypt; thence northeasterly, easterly and southeasterly over private right of way to the division line in the Plank road between the counties of Wayne and Monroe; thence easterly in the town of Macedon in the Plank road to the

...miles. That's all there is about it."

"What about the state railway commission?" was asked.

"We shall apply to the commission for a franchise. The people of all these towns and villages want the road. In fact most of the route is over private right of way, which has already been secured. We expect the franchise as a matter of right."

"Suppose the franchise is not granted. What then?"

"Well, suppose it is not granted, as you say. That is by no means the last word. If a franchise which is called for by all the people along the route is not granted —and I have no reason to believe it will not be granted—then we will avail ourselves of the privilege of extending, both ways, an electric railway which is already ours."

"What about the electric railways from Clyde to Sodus and from Lyons to Sodus?"

"As I have said, these roads are entire-

...We are not building these roads, and we are not building a road from Clyde to Waterloo. We have no connection whatever with the proposed road from Rochester to Canandaigua and Geneva, nor with any other electric railway.

"Our sole proposition, now that we are talking frankly about it, is to build, equip and operate a first-class electric freight and passenger railway from the end of the car lines on University avenue at Rochester to Syracuse, taking the territory named in this survey I have given you, and the territory east of the east line of the town of Galen, which will be described a little later. Can any proposition be plainer?

"Syndicates? Well, I will repeat the statement that the only syndicate which has anything to do with the Rochester & Syracuse electric railway is the syndicate of local capitalists which I have mentioned. Whatever trouble we may have had in getting into Rochester has, I am happy to say, been obviated. We shall go in there and over the route which I have given you."

"Then all of this talk about a through electric line from Cleveland to the sea board is a 'dream of the pipe?'"

"I do not say that. What I do say, and say as plainly as I can, is that the Rochester & Syracuse electric railway has nothing whatever to do with any such line. It is not in any way connected with the Buffalo, Niagara Falls & Rochester electric railway, nor with any road from Buffalo to Rochester by way of Batavia; nor is it in any way interested in any roads or links of roads from Syracuse eastward.

"Of course I do not know what the future holds; how trolley roads may be inter-connected. This is a business proposition. It will connect Rochester and Syracuse with each other, and the intermediate towns and villages with both; and it will be built entirely with local capital."

Inadvertence caused The Times to confuse the Deep Waterway Convention, which will be held in Rochester some time in October, with the State Commerce Convention, which will be

...horse-power nominal capacity, furnishing a sufficient boiler capacity to develop over 10,000 engine horse power.

The furnaces will be equipped with automatic stokers, thus insuring perfect combustion and the highest heat efficiency of the coal. The coal will be fed into the furnaces automatically, through chutes running from the coal storage bins, which will be located directly above the boilers, and will have a capacity of from 1,500 to 1,800 tons. The coal will be carried from the railway across Brown's race on a trestle bridge, where it can be dumped directly into the coal storage bins. The boilers will be divided so that four will be located each on the east and west sides of the boiler room. Steel stacks, 150 feet high, will be provided for each unit of four boilers, these measuring eighteen feet in case of accident to either bank of boilers. The stacks will have 15-foot flues. Access to the engine room will be gained by an elevator, to be located in the south part of the building, just east of the coal bins.

In the engine room will be located five 1,800 horse power, vertical, cross-compound engines, made by the Southwark Foundry and Machine Company. These engines will be directly connected to 60-cycle, two-phase alternators, of about 1,600 kilowatts each. There will be also one horizontal, cross-compound engine of 750 horse power, made by the Dixon Manufacturing Company of Scranton, Pa. This engine will be directly connected with a 500 kilowatt, 60-cycle,

Farmers' Club—Hornellsville, Sept. 17-20.
Cambridge Valley—Cambridge, Aug. 27-30.
Albany County—Altamont, Aug. 28-29.
Allegany County—Angelica, Sept. 10-13.
Broome County—Whitneys Point, Sept. 3-6.
Chautauqua County—Little Valley, Sept. 3-6.
Chemung County—Elmira, Sept. 30-Oct. 4.
Chenango County—Norwich, Sept. 3-6.
Clinton County—Plattsburg, Sept. 10-13.
Columbia County—Chatham, Sept. 3-6.
Cortland County—Cortland, Aug. 27-30.
Delaware County—Delhi, Sept. 5-7.
Dutchess County — Poughkeepsie, Sept. 24-27.
Erie County—Hamburg, Sept. 10-13.
Essex County—Westport, Sept. 3-6.
Franklin County—Malone, Sept. 24-27.
Seneca County—Waterloo, Sept. 3-6.
Steuben County—Bath, Sept. 24-27.
Suffolk County—Riverhead, Sept. 17-20.
Sullivan County—Monticello, Aug. 27-30.
Tioga County—Owego, Sept. 3-6.
Tompkins County—Ithaca, Sept. 17.
Ulster County—Ellenville, Aug. 27.
Washington County—Fort Edward, Sept. 3-6.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

The Amazon itself is navigable for ocean steamers for a distance of 3,000 miles, and with its affluents affords nearly 10,000 miles of navigable water.

Why does the United States lag behind the other nations of the world in canal construction? Is it because local interests are too strong? Buffalo and Greater New York are strongly opposed to a deep waterway, because both levy a heavy tax upon the grain that passes through. But are these two cities to block forever the construction of canals that would give the people of this country the cheapest transportation in the world? Is it not necessary for the United States to act vigorously and promptly if it is to retain its commerce and increase it? Can the people of this country contemplate with equanimity the steady divergence of trade to Canadian ports? It seems to us that this is one of the most important questions that can occupy the attention of congress.

FROM ROCHESTER TO HORNELLSVILLE

Offer to Construct and Equip Trolley Road Accepted.

Satisfactory Arrangements For Financing the Rochester & Southern Electric Railway Perfected at an Important Conference in This City Yesterday—Some Interesting Facts About the New Road and the Territory Traversed.

Democrat Aug 7, 1901

[illegible] the gentlemen

"If electricity generated by water power is offered to us on favorable terms, of course we shall accept it; otherwise we shall build our own steam power plant. But, understand, we are in the market to buy current, if we can buy it right."

The route through which the Rochester & Southern electric railway will extend traverses one of the most prosperous and fertile portions of Western New York. From Rochester the road will extend through the populous villages of East Henrietta and East Rush to Honeoye Falls, at which place it will have connections with both the New York Central and Lehigh Valley railroads. From Honeoye Falls to Lima the route is over the Honeoye Falls & Lima electric railway, which is a trifle over four miles long. This bit of electric railway already comes up to the high standard of excellence which will be required on the entire line. It has a pretty sharp grade as it approaches Lima, but it is understood that this grade will be materially modified, and brought within the maximum which will be allowable on the entire line. Honeoye Falls, the present northern terminus of the short line of road which will be incorporated with the Rochester & Southern, is coming to be a very prosperous town, under the revival of its milling and manufacturing interests.

The village of Lima, so long chiefly celebrated as a center of learning, has recently entered upon a new era, and is now also the seat of some very important manufacturing interests. Recently a large plant has been erected for the manufacture of ensilage machines, and traction engines and separators. It also has other manufacturing industries which will contribute largely to the business of the Rochester & Southern railway, as well as benefit by its construction.

One of the features of the new electric railway, which was taken up to some extent yesterday, was the proposed branch from the present terminus of the Honeoye Falls & Lima railway some dozen miles to the village of Honeoye, sometimes called Honeoye Flats, to distinguish it from the village of Honeoye Falls, some distance below on the outlet of Honeoye lake. This spur would traverse a region which is inhabited by wealthy farmers, who sometimes jocularly account for their liberal possessions by saying that they raise everything, and cannot get out of the valley to spend their money. Seriously, however, the recognized lack in this fertile valley is

Public Band Concert
by the
54th Regiment Band

Sunday Afternoon, August 11, 1901

Program

[illegible] Tryer, Lima; Dr. Charles F. Otis, Honeoye Falls; John B. Hamilton, Rush; Charles L. Hunt, Charles Van Voorhis, J. M. B. O'Grady and Daniel Platt, Rochester.

To Boom Rochester Day.

Now that Rochester Day at the Pan-American is an assured fact, the Chamber of Commerce and the Pan-American people are beginning to advertise the event. As the date has not been set all references to that will come later. E. J. Cook, traveling representative of the exposition, wired Secretary Ives yesterday that he would be in Rochester today with posters, lithographs, etc., which will be placed about the city.

MAY HAVE A ROCHESTER DAY

THE RAILROADS OFFER A SPECIAL RATE.

Date Aug 15 1901.

TO THE PAN-AMERICAN

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MAY CARRY OUT ITS PLAN.

DIRECT TO THE GROUNDS

Daily Train That Will Land Passengers at the Gates Without Change Is Probable—Conference With Railway Officials.

This city is to have a Rochester Day at the Pan-American Exposition after all. Last spring the Chamber of Commerce made efforts to get the railroads to make a special rate for an occasion that was to be a sort of civic holiday for this city and its people, who, through the chamber, were to make a journey to the Pan-American, [illegible] the credit for obtaining [illegible] believed that the special to [illegible] would attract large crowds, and that it will be the big train out of this city for the exposition. Rochester Day is expected to draw several thousand people to the Pan-American.

THE APPLE GROWERS.

Next Year's Annual Meeting Will be Held in Rochester.

Rochester is rapidly getting into line as a convention city. The latest to be booked is that of the national convention of the apple growers. This has been secured through the efforts of Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, and S. J. Mott, Jr., manager of the Genesee Fruit Company of this city.

This year's convention is now in session in Toronto, and Mr. Mott is there. Several days ago Mr. Ives wrote to Mr. Mott, and in his letter he enclosed one to be read at the convention, in which the advantages of Rochester as a convention city were set forth. Mr. Ives dwelt on the beautiful drives in the city, and the many delightful summer resorts near at hand, saying that but few cities are so admirably situated as regards such resorts. He did not fail to bring out all the points, and the result was he yesterday received a telegram from Mr. Mott saying that the convention of 1902 would be held in Rochester.

"Ives is a convention of considerable size and importance, and is largely attended. Apple growers throughout the country attend, as do also men interested in the manufacture of machinery adapted to the preparation of the apple for its many uses.

COMING TO ROCHESTER.

All Roads From Buffalo Seem to Lead People to This City.

The effect of the proximity of the Pan-American Exposition to Rochester is seen in this city every day. In the first place, the passenger station and the train shed of the New York Central railroad are filled most of the time throughout the day and evening with passengers going through Rochester either to the exposition or home again. Western people who have been attending the big fair and are going down East to visit friends and relatives, or by visitors to Rochester, and one effect of the literature sent out by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce is seen daily in the large

Twelfth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY THE
Fifty-Fourth Regiment Band,
F. A. ZEITLER, DIRECTOR.

On the Campus of Rochester University.

Saturday Afternoon, August 10, 1901,

FROM 3 TO 6 O'CLOCK.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program. . . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—University of Rochester, - - - Seitz
2. OVERTURE—Stradella, - - - - - Flotow
3. CONCERT PIECE—La Verona, - - - - Dalbey
4. MEDLEY—Popular Texas, - - - - - Boettger
5. WALTZ—Espana, - - - - - Waldteufel
6. SELECTION—Operatic Reminiscences, - Laurendeau

PART II.

7. MARCH—Soldiers of the Queen, - - - - Parry
8. OVERTURE—William Tell, - - - - Rossini
9. DIVERTISSEMENT FOR TWO CORNETS—Kindred Souls, - - - - - Eilenberg
10. SELECTION—Florodora, - - - - - Spenser
11. WALTZ—Foxy Quiller, - - - - De Koven
12. GRAND NATIONAL FANTASIA, - - - Dalbey

THE NEW SPECI

A Large Crowd Take Ad
tage of the New Tra

ROCHESTER DAY AT PA

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

and a special train will be run. Excursion tickets will be sold and all the accommodations possible will be given.

The Rochester Chamber of Commerce is very much interested in the success of the new special, and Secretary Ives is anxious for the people to give this train their patronage for if the traffic does not merit it, the train will be taken off. Passenger Agent Kalbfleisch stated yesterday that his office had been filled all day with hundreds of people inquiring about the new train and that it would meet the needs of the excursionists he felt certain.

This is the train for Rochester people and is the one they should take when they visit the Pan-Am. They not only save time and money, but in running directly to the grounds, the trouble of getting mixed up in the large jams along the street car lines is entirely overcome. Then, too, as the train remains at the grounds those who so desire can get into the coaches and rest there instead of being compelled to tolerate the crowds on the street cars and then at the station, run the chance of not getting a seat.

Another good feature of the new service is the fact that the train stops at Center Park and at Brown Street, thus giving the people of the central and western parts of the city the opportunity of getting to the exposition without bothering with the street cars.

Secretary Ives stated yesterday that he would go to Buffalo in a few days to see Director General W. J. Buchanan of the Pan-American Exposition in regard to the Rochester Day. That there will be such a day at the exposition is now certain and all that now remains is to decide on the day. A meeting of the trustees will be held September 2 and at that time the matter will be given serious consideration and plans will be laid for the programme of the day.

In all probability September 12 will be the day. This is the time the chamber thinks will be most satisfactory for all, and if the Pan-American people have no serious objections this date will be arranged by Secretary Ives. The Central has given the promise of a fare at $1.25 and will put on all the special trains necessary. There will, in all probability, be a special programme arranged for the occasion and an elaborate display of fireworks by Palmer Sons will follow the grand electrical display and will be the crowning feature of the day.

That Rochester Day will be a big one goes without saying, and it is the desire of the Chamber of Commerce that the citizens begin talking about the matter and lay their plans to go to Buffalo and the exposition on the day that will be arranged. And too, it is the business of the Rochester people to give the new train of the Central their patronage. Those who have made up their minds to attend the exposition should take advantage of this special, for the Chamber of Commerce in urging the Central to put it on, did so only on the condition that it continue as long as the public demanded it.

It is well equipped and the service is the same as on the other daily trains, and too, it makes the run to the exposition in the same time as all the other fast trains. It is the very best train for the Rochester people to take and should be so considered by them for it depends on them whether the new special will be continued or not.

Daily Herald Aug 15

WILL MEET HERE

Rochester Gets National Convention of Apple Shippers.

IN AUGUST OF NEXT YEAR

Convention Secured Through the Efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and S. R. Mott Who Is Now in Attendance at the Toronto Gathering of the Apple Men.

The next convention of the National Association of Apple Shippers will be held in Rochester during the second week of August of next year. The information was received yesterday afternoon by Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce in the form of a telegram from S. R. Nott of this city, who is now in attendance at the convention, which is meeting this year in Toronto. At the time the convention was awarded to Toronto last year, Rochester made a hot fight for the prize and only lost it by a very few votes.

This year Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce began early to make preparations to coral the convention, in advance of the gathering at Toronto an abundance of literature, setting forth the attractive features of the Flower City, were sent to all the delegates, and when the time came for the convention to convene, Mr. Mott departed on the special mission of drumming up a sentiment in favor of his home town, which would result in landing the prize. The success of the mission was announced yesterday afternoon in the message to Secretary Ives. The exact date of the forthcoming gathering will not be fixed upon until after the close of the Toronto convention, which is still in session.

There was a meeting of local street railway officials at the Chamber yesterday afternoon for the purpose of discussing matters relating to the convention of the street railway companies of the [illegible]

ing, among them Henry Villard, who has announced that he will bring a special train load of people from Gotham.

A committee was chosen at the meeting yesterday for the purpose of looking after the details of preparation for the gathering. Of this committee T. J. Nichols was chosen president and C. A. Williams secretary and treasurer.

Since July 9 last, when the previous statement was made, the following have made contributions to the band concert fund: Richard H. Lansing, $5; Benjamin E. Chase, $10; Ellwanger & Barry Realty Co., $25; Margaret J. Wright, $5; Hiram Sibley, $100; Rochester Railway Co., $100.

Secretary Ives, in conversation with a Herald reporter yesterday afternoon, declared that with an additional contribution of $200, he would be able to carry out the original intention of the Chamber and continue the concerts, both Saturday and Sunday, from now on until the 1st of October.

Each of the band organizations have donated one concert free. The concerts next Saturday and Sunday will be given by Heling's Band. On the 24th and 25th the 54th Regiment Band will play. On August 31 and September 1 the concerts will be given by Dosenbach's Band. Secretary Ives announces that there will probably be another moonlight concert given in Highland Park before the conclusion of the series. There will also be a concert given in Seneca Park West.

Secretary Ives has received information that the Lehigh Valley Railroad will inaugurate special excursion rates of $1.15 to Buffalo on Rochester day.

E. J. Costa, the railroad manager of the Pan-American Exposition, will be in Rochester to-day for the purpose of booming Rochester day at the big show.

CONVENTION IN SEPTEMBER.

State Railroad Association Will Meet in Rochester.

The state convention of the street railroad men will be held in this city on September 10 and 11, in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce. General Manager Nicholl of the Rochester Street Railway Company is a member of the Executive Board of the association and will be one of the members of the local entertainment committee.

A meeting of the Executive Board was held yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, at which all arrangements for the September convention were made. The following gentlemen were present at yesterday's meeting:

President, C. Tracy Rogers, president of the Binghamton Railroad Company, Binghamton; first vice president, John W. Boyle, president of the Utica Belt Line Street Railroad Company, Utica; second vice president, Edward G. Connette, general manager Syracuse Rapid Transit Railway Company, Syracuse; secretary and treasurer, Henry A. Robinson, solicitor Metropolitan Street Railway Company, New York City; Executive Committee, President Rogers and the following, Herbert H. Vreeland, president Metropolitan Street Railway Company, New York City; Clinton L. Rossiter, president Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, Brooklyn; W. Caryl Ely, president Buffalo Railway Company, Buffalo; T. J. Nicholl, general manager Rochester Railway Company, Rochester.

JUST A LITTLE MORE.

Band Concert Fund Nearly Sufficient—Saturday and Sunday Music.

Secretary Ives is encouraged because of the additions to the park band concert fund, which the Chamber of Commerce has taken in hand. He says that he now needs but $200 to conduct the concerts every Saturday and Sunday afternoon to the first of October. There have been collected $1,418. Yesterday T. J. Nicholl, general manager of the Rochester Railway Company, gave Mr. Ives $100 which the street railroad company had donated toward the fund.

Since the 9th of July, when the list of contributions was last published, there have been received by Secretary Ives the following: Richard A. Lansing, $5; Benjamin E. Chase, $10; Ellwanger & Barry Realty Company, $25; Margaret J. Wright, $5; Hiram Sibley, $100; Rochester Railway Company, $100.

The next concert will be given Saturday in Seneca park east. The Sunday concert will be in Genesee Valley park. Hebing's Artillery band will of the both.

This is the programme for the Saturday concert:

PART I.

Overture—"Morning, Noon and Night"...Suppe
Intermezzo—"Cavalleria Rusticana"...Mascagni
Soldiers' chorus—"Faust"...Gounod
La Viola—"Waltz"...Mora
Baritone solo—"New Born King"...Parker
Robert Wignall.
Selection—"Burgomaster"...Luders

PART II.

"Coon up a Tree"...Schmall
"King of France, 10,000 Men Marched up the Hill and Down Again"...Sousa
"I, too, was Born in Arcadia"...Sousa
"In Darkest Africa"...Sousa
"American Patrol"...Meacham
"Reilgosa"...Chambers

And this is the programme for the Sunday concert:

PART I.

Overture—"Hungarian Lustspiel"...Keler Bela
March—"Hail to the Spirit of Liberty"...Sousa
Trombone solo—"Holy City"...Adams
Joseph Winecur.
Gavot—"Golden Jubilee"...C. Mora
Waltz—"Blenge"...Laurendeau
Selection—"Foxy Quiller"...DeKoven

PART II.

March—"Mestree Giri"...Hall
Baritone solo—"Beyond the Gates of Paradise"...King
Robert Wignall.
Selection—"Manhatta"...Wallace
"Mr. Thomas Cat"...Hall
Characteristique—"The Busy Bee"...Hendix
"War Songs, Boys in Blue"...Laurendeau

[illegible] Express
August 15/01

THE POST EXPRESS

ROCHESTER DAY AT PAN-AMERICAN.

It is Now a Certainty—Railroad Companies Unite in Giving a Special Low Rate of $1.15 for the Round Trip —Representative Costa Here.

Rochester day at the Pan-American exposition is assured. The railroad officials, exposition, managers, the Rochester Chamber of Commerce and citizens generally have all united to make the affair a huge success—a credit to Rochester and a boom for the fair. The date will be early in September.

The railroad rates will be even more liberal than was expected it would be possible to secure, when it was decided to go forward with the arrangements. At a meeting of the general passenger agents of all lines running between Rochester and Buffalo, held yesterday afternoon in New York city, it was agreed that all lines interested be authorized to sell round-trip tickets to the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, on Rochester day, at a rate of $1.15.

The New York Central will run direct to the exposition grounds.

E. J. Costa, special commissioner and traveling representative of the publicity department of the Pan-American exposition, who has just returned from a trip to Virginia, where he completed arrangements for "Virginia day," which it is expected will me a mammoth affair, was in the city to-day in consultation with Secretary John M. Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Costa takes a personal and deep interest in "Rochester day," and in conversation with a reporter for The Post Express, this morning he said: "You can state without reservation that we shall try to outdo any attractions that have been given for other special days on Rochester day. Rochester is nearby and we shall expect not one but a dozen later visitors to the fair as the result of the advertising each excursionist will give the fair. There will be special band attractions and special fireworks and other features yet to be arranged. The railroad rate is almost as good as the one we united with the Rochester people in endeavoring to secure earlier in the season. We shall prepare for a large excursion."

Mr. Costa brought some "paper" advertising the exposition in a general way, and special literature bearing on Rochester day will be prepared in a few days.

One promoter of "Rochester day" who is enthused now that a reduction is secured lower than the rate expected, said to-day: "Rochester will leave its imprint on the Pan-American exposition ground on that day. I think over 10,000 citizens will go."

S. W. Bolles, formerly of this city, and now superintendent of the Pan-American exposition press bureau, has written to Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce, asking what he can do to further the success of "Rochester day."

Secretary Ives will go to Buffalo to make arrangements with Director-General W. I. Buchanan and with enthusiasm for the event. It will be a red letter day here.

The Lehigh Valley railroad has five trains daily leaving here for Buffalo as follows: 5.50 a. m., 8.05 a. m., 3.30 p. m., 7.15 p. m. and a new train is to be put on next Monday leaving here at 7.30 a. m.

Seven trains leave Buffalo daily on this road for Rochester, as follows: 7.40 a. m., 8.30 a. m., 4.15 p. m., 8.00 p. m., 10.15 p. m. and 10.30 p. m., and a new train to be put on Monday will leave Buffalo at 9.45 p. m.

The Rochester special on the New York Central is proving a great success. Nine coach loads left here yesterday morning and the same number of passengers returned at night. This morning the same number of coaches were full of passengers and the tally showed there were just three passengers less than yesterday.

The Erie officials are not to be outdone in pushing the boom of regular trains that leave here daily now at 6.40 a. m., 9.25 a. m. and 4.30 p. m., will be augmented by specials that will run direct to the grounds, thus offering the same inducement as the New York Central—the saving of street car fare in Buffalo. The Erie terminal here is conveniently located for the residents of the southern part of the city and rates being uniform on that day many will take a train from the most convenient station.

and the Pan-American officials who have so willingly co-operated with him. For the second, the railroad managements are to be heartily commended. The Times believes that many Rochesterians will show their appreciation of the energy of Mr. Ives, the concession made by the railroads and their loyalty to their city by attending the Exposition on ROCHESTER DAY.

N, AUGUST 16, 1901.

ROCHESTER AT PAN-AM

GREAT PREPARATIONS IN PROGRESS FOR SEPTEMBER 7.

General Satisfaction Over the Date Selected and the Railroad Rate Secured—Schedule of the Regular Available Trains—Also Specials.

Rochester day at the Pan-American, as was announced in yesterday's last edition of The Post Express, is to be on September 7th. The date is considered the best. The exposition is in its fullest glory. Saturday, September 7th is the last available date before the opening of the schools and teachers and pupils will generally have returned from their vacations and be able to make the trip; it is also the last of the summer Saturday half holiday dates. The time is far enough in the future to permit of ample preparation by those desiring to go and by the exhibition officials to arrange the special features.

Forty trains will leave this city from the railroad stations for Buffalo on Rochester day.

Of the twenty-eight trains leaving the New York Central station three will not be at the disposal of the excursionists. They are the Empire State express leaving at 3.35 p. m., the Fast Mail leaving at 5.35 p. m., and the Lake Shore Limited leaving at 2.20 a. m.

For the convenience of those who intend to go the following schedule of available trains is arranged. It is exclusive of specials that may be run:

Morning.	Afternoon.
12.01 West Shore.	12.10 Central.
1.20 Central.	12.35 Central.
4.03 Central.	2.05 Central.
4.42 West Shore.	3.20 Lehigh.
5.30 Central.	4.25 West Shore.
6.50 Lehigh.	4.30 Erie.
6.50 West Shore.	5.15 Central.
6.6 Erie.	7.15 Lehigh.
6.5. Central.	7.28 Central.
7.13 West Shore.	9.27 Central.
7.25 Central.	9.40 Central.
7.30 Lehigh.	10.12 West Shore.
7.50 Central.	10.35 Central.
8.05 Lehigh.	11.40 Central.
8.30 Central.
9.25 Erie.
9.42 4 central.
10.15 West Shore.
10.55 Central.

The New York Central trains will carry passengers direct to the Pan-American exposition entrance. The Erie trains will do the same. Those desiring to pass through Buffalo may go on the Lehigh to the Washington street station and take trolley cars to the grounds.

Director-General W. I. Buchanan of the Pan-American exposition is making special arrangements for Rochester day. Band concerts, and a fire works display will be among the special attractions.

E. J. Costa, traveling representative of the exposition, who was in this city yesterday, left much of advertising matter at the Chamber of Commerce for Secretary Ives to distribute, consisting of beautiful illustrated books, pamphlets, cards, posters, lithographs, and folders.

Mr. Costa will assist in making Rochester day outdo any attraction that has been given at the exposition.

Secretary Ives has been advised that the national convention of stationary engineers which convention will be held in this city on September 4th, 5th and 6th will adjourn Friday night, September 6th and the delegates go in a body to the exposition on Rochester day. Representatives of the association from all sections of the country will be here, many accompanied by their wives and members of their families, and arrangements for 2,000 visitors are being made.

The special rate of $1.15 will be made only on Rochester day and the rate is not the outcome of a railroad rate cutting war. The representatives of all the roads met in New York city and decided at the meeting to give Rochester advantage of a special low rate on its exposition day. The Lehigh local passenger agent received advices of the action earlier than the agents of the other roads and the announcement by that road led to the rumor of rate cutting.

The regular rate will be in force until and after Rochester day, as the attendance at the exposition is increasing, the local passenger agents of all the railroads are of the opinion that no further concessions will be made.

Credit is due to the Chamber of Commerce assisted by the exposition managers in securing the concession in rates.

The Times
August 16/01
FRIDAY EVENING

GLAD TIDINGS.

The first glad news was that the Flower City was to have its day at the Pan-American Exposition after all; the next is that the railroads running from Rochester to Buffalo have agreed to make a round trip rate of $1.15 for the holiday.

For the first achievement the thanks of Rochester are due to John M. Ives, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce

Aug. 16, 1901.

THE ROCHESTER HERALD, FRIDAY.

ROCHESTER DAY AT PAN-AM. FIXED FOR SEPTEMBER 7

Railroad Officials Have Agreed To Grant a Rate of $1.15 for That Day---Will Prepare a Special Programme.

Cut this out and paste it in your hat, lest you might forget the fact:

SATURDAY,
SEPT. 7, 1901,
ROCHESTER DAY
AT PAN-AMERICAN.

Rochester is to have the honor of a special day at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo.

With a fraternal feeling of city sisterhood Buffalo is going to swing open her gates and take Rochester to her bosom—forgetting old animosities and cementing new friendships.

And what about Rochester? Why, Rochester will offer the reciprocal hand, mobilize an army of invaders 15,000 or more strong and partake of the glad hand extended by the Bisonites.

Until late yesterday afternoon the exact date of the Rochester Day at the Pan-Am. was not decided. There had been much discussion, many suggestions, a number of failures, but finally the day was fixed as September 7.

There was a strong agitation for a local day at the fair long before the big gates opened outward on their hinges to admit the initial crowd, and it has met many obstacles, set backs and rebuffs, but after each knock out it came up smiling and plodded right along just as if its path had been strewn with roses.

The biggest stone in the road was the arbitrary stand taken by the railroads against giving a special rate. Before the exposition opened the railroad magnates got together and signed an iron clad agreement to keep a flat rate of $1.50 from this city to Buffalo and return and to hold to it during the exposition. In fact, one of the railroad magnates wrote to President A. B. Lamberton of the Chamber of Commerce, stating that the rate was the best possible and adding in a half joking way:

"This low rate will make every day Rochester Day at the exposition."

Ordinarily this would have put a perpetual quietus on the movement, but it was bound to win out and it only rested in a somnolent state for a short time before it was on its feet more vigorous than ever. Slowly the agitation became effective and yesterday afternoon it reached a culmination when Secretary John M. Ives of the Chamber of Commerce, after consultation with several members of that body, agreed to hold Rochester Day on September 7.

Before anything definite could be settled upon it was necessary to have the acquiescence of the railroad companies. Not that the railroads had to be consulted, but because a lower rate was wanted, and for this reason their affirmation was a potent factor. Anticipating the strength of the movement, a meeting of the general passenger agents of all the roads entering Rochester was held on Wednesday in New York City.

At this meeting the question of a lower rate was discussed. Some of the roads favored a rate of $1.25, but one road is said to have stood out for a rate of $1.15 both ways. As a result this rate was established.

Announcement of this action was received by the passenger agents of the different roads in this city yesterday afternoon. It created a big stir and in a short space of time was talked about all over the city; and, furthermore, it met with popular favor.

As soon as the news reached Mr. Ives he enthusiastically set about fixing a definite date. He got into communication with President A. B. Lamberton at Nantucket, and others, and in a remarkably brief period the date was definitely settled.

There were a number of things to take into consideration before the date could be fixed. In the first place the railroads did not want the date placed too late in the month because they feared a big demand would be made for cars and it would be impossible to meet it. Then the school teachers would be in session and September 10 and after that date would be unable to attend the fair. And greater still was the fact that Saturday, September 7, is the last day on which stores will close for half holiday vacations for clerks.

So to accommodate the clerks, the school teachers, the school children and incidentally the railroads, was no easy task to solve but it was neatly executed all around.

A train service will be arranged on that date which will comfortably handle 25,000 people, if necessary. Special trains will be run at all hours by the Central, Erie, Lehigh and West Shore. Both the Erie and Central lines will run direct to the terminal station on the Fair grounds. Undoubtedly the Lehigh will issue some sort of coupons entitling passengers to ride free from their station in Washington Street, Buffalo, to the fair grounds.

District Passenger Agent Kalbfleisch of the Central has arranged that trains will stop at Center Park and Brown Street stations and that tickets may be purchased not only at these stations but at the ticket office in State Street and the ticket office in the Central station on Central Avenue. No stops will be made on the Central trains after leaving this city until they arrive in Buffalo.

Now for the Buffalo end of the entertainment. General Director Buchanan wants to make the day one to be remembered and will spare no money or time, he says, to extend hospitality and excellent entertainment to Rochester visitors. Chief of the Press Bureau Stephen W. Bolles, formerly a Rochester newspaper man, has devoted his energy to the scheme and promises to give Rochesterians the best he has in stock, which is well worth having.

A special electrical display will be arranged for Rochester Day. Tableaus depicting local scenes may be exploited from the electric tower. And as for fireworks, nothing superior will have been seen during the exhibit. Apart from these, arrangements will be made for special features pertaining to Rochester and her people.

E. J. Costa, special commissioner and traveling representative of the Publicity Department of the Pan-American was in this city yesterday to open arrangements for Rochester Day. He left three big boxes of lithograph paper for distribution and will come here next week prepared to "paper the whole town" and state in a measure what local folks may expect on September 7. In an interview he said:

"You can state without reservation that we shall try to outdo any attractions that have been given for other special days on Rochester day. Rochester is nearby and we shall expect not one but a dozen later visitors to the fair as the result of the advertising each excursionist will give the fair. There will be special band attractions and special fireworks and other features yet to be arranged. The railroad rate is almost as good as the one we united with the Rochester people in endeavoring to secure earlier in the season. We shall prepare for a large excursion."

Secretary Ives was enthusiastic last night over the success of the plan for Rochester Day. "We fought hard for it," he said, "and at last we won. We have got a good low rate and there is no reason why anybody should miss seeing the exposition. We will put our shoulder to the wheel and make the day one which will leave its imprint on the Pan-American fair."

A groundless story was published by a morning paper yesterday to the effect that a rate war would soon start on the railroads. This is denied at all the railroad ticket offices and the fact that all the general passenger agents signed an ironclad agreement for a $1.15 flat rate bears out the statement.

Some people have gained the idea that there will be cut rates on other days before the exposition closes. All of the passenger agents deny any such intention and state positively that with the single exception of Rochester Day to the state of the exposition the rate will be $1.50. It is a safe statement that the best rate which will be given is $1.15 and that on Rochester Day.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

The Central's "Rochester Special" train is proving a great success. Nine coach-loads left on the train yesterday morning and came back in the evening. More coaches will have to be added to the train or it will have to be run in sections.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad has five trains daily leaving here for Buffalo as follows: 5.50 a. m., 8.05 a. m., 3.20 p. m., 7.15 p. m., and a new train is to be put on next Monday leaving here at 7.20 a. m. Seven trains leave Buffalo daily on this road for Rochester, as follows: 7.40 a. m., 8.30 a. m., 4.15 p. m., 8.00 p. m., 10.15 p. m., and 10.30 p. m., and a new train to be put on Monday will leave Buffalo at 9.45 p. m.

The Erie officials are not to be outdone in pushing the boom and regular trains that leave here daily now at 6.40 a. m., 9.25 a. m. and 4.30 p. m., will be augmented by specials that will run direct to the grounds.

Aug 16, 1901

THE ROCHESTER HERALD, FRIDAY

COST OF LIGHTING

Price Paid in Rochester Higher Than in Other Cities.

THERE IS NO COMPETITION

Labor Is Higher and Price of Public Electric Lighting Is Higher According to the Size of the City — Some Figures Gathered in Cities of New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

What is a fair price for municipal electric lighting service and how does the price now being paid in Rochester compare with it?

These are questions that are being very frequently propounded of late in view of the efforts of a competing company to get in here and the investigation into the subject recently undertaken by the city authorities. The truth of the matter is that these questions cannot be answered by any single set of figures, nor is it easy for anyone not an electrical expert to form any conception of the difficulties of the problem. The presence or absence of water power, the price of coal and the distance of the particular locality from the coal fields, the presence or absence of competition and, last but not least, whether or not the plant has modern or antiquated machinery all affect the price. In addition to this, the capitalization of the particular corporation and the ability of its management all play important parts.

One fact is almost universally true throughout the country. That is that municipal electric lighting service always costs more in large cities than in small places. This is partly due to the fact that labor is higher, rents are higher, taxes higher and the cost of living higher. It is also partly due to to the fact that it is more difficult to secure competition and that the experiment of municipal lighting is more apt to be costly and unsatisfactory.

Where so many factors enter in the price to be established in any one locality must be worked out as a particular problem to which few general principles are applicable. Nevertheless, while no satisfactory direct answer can be given to the question which is confronting the city of Rochester in a very practical manner, it is entirely possible to secure considerable light on the subject from the experience of other cities and the prices there prevailing. An investigation into this subject will demonstrate that prices for public lighting service vary widely, it might almost be said wildly. In a general way it may be said that the range of prices is quite low in such states as Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania, and comparatively high in such states as Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York. Outside the great metropolitan centers it may be said in a general way that the most important factor in the problem seems to be proximity to the coal fields though the presence of such a water power as that of Niagara may have some bearing upon it.

Take for example the state of Ohio. The price prevailing in Cleveland, its largest city, is only a little less than that prevaling here and is higher than anywhere else in the state.

The following table shows, as accurately as the figures can be secured, the prices prevailing in the ten largest towns in the state of Ohio:

Ohio.

Town.	Pop.	No. Arc Lights.	Price Per L. per Year.
Akron	42,728	231	$49 10
Canton	30,667	258	97 50
Cincinnati	325,902	2,326	84 93
Cleveland	381,768	800	74 60
Columbus	125,560	400	65 50
Dayton	85,333	400	65 50
Toledo	131,822	1,000	83 60
Xenia	44,385	112	63 00
Youngstown		265	64 00
Zanesville		229	73 50

Average price ten largest towns Ohio..$74 85

The average price there prevailing is about $28 per light per year less than it is in Rochester, but the prices throughout vary very considerably and the average is brought down by the number of small cities from which quotations are given.

...ohio remains true notwithstanding the fact that the prices prevailing in Philadelphia and Pittsburg are reckoned with the others and are both greater than the price prevailing in Rochester. The following table shows the prices prevailing as nearly as can be ascertained, in the fifteen largest towns of Pennsylvania:

Pennsylvania.

Town	Pop.	No. arc Lights.	Price Per L. per Year.
Altoona	38,973	220	$78 00
Bradford		122	71 00
Chester	33,988	184	84 00
Erie	52,733	443	61 86
Franklin		102	85 00
Harrisburg	50,107	417	82 00
Johnstown	35,936	230	75 00
Lancaster	41,459	300	70 00
New Castle	28,339	125	72 25
Philadelphia	1,293,697	8,413	116 03
Pittsburg	321,616	2,248	96 00
Scranton	102,026	610	73 00
Wilkesbarre	51,721	390	64 00
Williamsport	28,784	210	74 20
York	33,708	272	74 75

Average price 15 largest towns Penn...$75 80

In the manufacturing centers of Massachusetts where coal is dear and power of any kind in high demand the average cost on municipal lighting by electricity is very high and is far above that prevailing in Rochester. In some cities it is about double that paid in many towns in the middle West and the more rural districts of Pennsylvania. The following table shows the prices prevailing in the fifteen largest towns in Massachusetts:

Massachusetts.

Town	Pop.	No. arc Lights.	Price Per L. per Year.
Boston	560,892	6,393	$127 75
Brookline		225	127 75
Brockton	40,063	472	87 60
Cambridge	91,886	516	100 03
Fall River	104,863	637	129 57
Fitchburg	31,531	265	119 09
Haverhill	37,175	190	175 00
Holyoke	45,712	229	100 00
Lowell	94,969	453	120 45
Lynn	68,513	268	112 13
New Bedford	62,442	267	128 70
Salem	35,956	300	100 03
Somerville	61,643	334	150 00
Springfield	62,059	743	104 16
Worcester	118,421	650	116 85

Average price in fifteen largest towns of Massachusetts.....$113 95

There is probably nowhere in the country where the prices of public electric lighting vary as they do in the empire state. In the city of New York, where they are the highest in the whole union the price varies from $182 per light per year to $77.50 per light per year and the correct price which should be charged against the metropolis is difficult to ascertain. It is however, believed that the price of $150 per light per year is a fair average of the cost. As a result of the figures given it would be natural to suppose that as far as this state is concerned the prices in New York City, Troy and Utica were abnormally high, those of Rochester and Syracuse about the average and the price in Niagara Falls and Lockport rather low.

The following table of prices in the twenty largest places in this state where the conditions are at all comparable will be found of interest though the amount of actual instruction to be derived from it is problematical:

New York.

Town	Pop.	No. arc Lights.	Price Per L. per Year.
Auburn	30,345	400	70 00
Bath		66	75 75
Binghamton	35,647	223	84 70
Buffalo	352,387	2,600	100 00
Cohoes		142	75 00
Elmira	35,672	312	80 00
Lockport		265	78 00
New York	3,437,202	4,459	*150 00
Niagara Falls		345	50 00
Ogdenburg		130	72 00
Oswego		329	71 00
Rochester	162,608	2,700	91 25
Rome		160	84 00
Schenectady	31,682	210	93 00
Syracuse	108,374	1,155	91 50
Tonawanda		102	77 00
Troy	60,651	410	146 00
Utica	56,383	537	124 00
Watertown		200	73 00
Yonkers	47,931	313	109 50

Average price for twenty largest places in New York.....$92 03

August 17, 1901

THE ROCHESTER

A POPULAR MOVE

"Rochester Day" at Pan-Am. Favorably Received.

TRAINS TO RUN EVERY HOUR

Excursionists Will Have No Trouble in Making Connections — All the Railroads Making Big Preparations — Secretary Ives Busy Promoting the Scheme.

If you want to know how "Rochester Day" at the Pan-American has appealed to the people of this city, just stop some one you know on the street and ask him about it. Nine times out of eleven he will smile, chuckle a bit and then say: "Why, it's great. What we wanted all the time was a lower rate. Now we'll go. Then, too, we won't feel lonesome when we see our friends all around us."

And there is no doubt that the scheme is a popular one. Low rates, good trains, privilege of traveling on any road and plenty of accommodations seem to be the things that they want to see. The people think that they want to go

...$8 at excursionists need not worry over train time. Each train will carry no less than 600 people. A conservative estimate of the number of people who will go that day was made by a railroad man yesterday when he stated that at least 15,000 would take the trip.

District Passenger Agent Kalbfleisch stated yesterday afternoon that the Central would make special arrangements to handle the crowd. Numerous trains will be run, at least one every hour, and comfortable cars will be supplied. All trains will stop at Center Park and Brown Streets, where tickets can be purchased.

City Ticket Agent Gilbert of the Erie had set to work with enthusiasm and promises to give patrons of the line every inducement to travel via the Erie. Trains will run direct to the grounds, high-backed seat coaches will be used and fast time will be made. The Erie travels through a beautiful country and its station in this city is the nearest to the Four Corners.

City Agent Harris of the Lehigh plans a number of advantages for his road. Nothing will be left undone to give comfort, ease, fast time and a pleasant trip to the excursionists.

Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce will start next week to have the city well "papered" with lithographs setting forth the best points to be seen at the Exposition. Mr. Costa of the publicity staff of the Exposition will visit this city on Monday and will bring trunkfull of paper to be distributed.

Some plans will be made whereby the Chamber may issue a pamphlet setting forth the train time of all trains on the various roads. This will be for the accommodation of the excursionists. In connection with it the prices of the different concessions at the Pan-American will be enumerated and the most desirable places will be pointed out.

Here's a Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

Sir: Would it not be a good idea to have a contribution or some other kind of box on the park grounds at the time of the band concerts? I see there is still to be about $200 raised to continue the concerts on Saturdays, and I should think that the people visiting these concerts would gladly contribute a little money this way, which they would not feel a loss at all. As there are from 2,000 to 5,000 present at each concert I think they could raise enough in that way to continue them very easily. If a box of some sort was put at the entrance, with a man to guard it, there are many people that would drop twenty-five or fifty cents in which they would not give otherwise.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 19, 1901.

THE BOX MAKERS ARE COMING HERE THIS WEEK

The National Convention Will be Held Here Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Aug 22 1901

DS6

The semi-annual convention this week Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in this city of the Box and Box Shook Makers of the United States, is expected to bring about 300 delegates, and some of them will be accompanied by their families. Boxmakers from all parts of the United States are to be here and take part in the business sessions, which will be held during the mornings of the three days, and also to participate in the varied amusements planned for the enjoyment of the visitors.

The business sessions will be held in the assembly hall of the chamber of commerce, and the entire afternoons will be devoted to pleasure, which Rochester is specially adapted to afford because of its summer resorts.

Wednesday afternoon the delagates and their families, accompanied by competent guides, will be driven about the city in tallyhos. The places of interest will be pointed out, and the really pretty city done full justice to. A trip to Ontario Beach is scheduled for Thursday afternoon. During the afternoon athletic games and sports will be pulled off, and in the evening a supper will be served on the broad veranda of Hotel Ontario. During the serving of this meal Short's celebrated band will give an excellent programme. One of the numbers will be a piece written especially for the occasion, entitled, "Boxmakers' Medley."

In the evening special fireworks will be set off on the beach, with the lake for the background. A delightful afternoon and evening is therefore expected to be realized.

Friday afternoon's programme is not yet completed, but something interesting and unique is assured. The programme for the business session is not ready for publication.

The freedom of the city will be given the visitors, and H. W. Morgan and W. E. Webb, who have the preparations in charge, have left nothing undone for the thorough entertainment of the boxmakers, their wives and the future boxmakers of the United States.

...PAN-AMERICAN DAYS.

August 14—Insurance Day.
August 15—Red Men's Day.
August 17—Army Day.
August 20—Michigan Day.
August 21—Louisiana Day. Hamilton Day.
August 22—Electrical Day.
August 23—Virginia Day.
August 26—Municipal Day.
August 27—Porto Rican Expedition Society.
August 31—Mystic Shrine Day.
August 12-17—Wheelmen's week.
August 19-24—Firemen's week.
August 25-31—Furniture Manufacturers' week.
September 2—Labor Day.
September 3—District of Columbia.
September 4—New England Grocers' Day. International Press Union of Women.
September 5—Royal Arcanum.
September 6—National Association Stationary Engineers.
September 9—Spanish-American War Veterans.
September 10—Rhode Island Day.
September 11—Architects' and Builders' Day. Florida Day.
September 12—Polish Day.
September 13—New Jersey Day. Railroad Day.
September 14—Indiana Day. Vassar College Day.
September 15—Honduras Day.
September 15-22—Lumbermen's week.
September 16—Mexican Day. Illinois Day.
September 17—G. A. R. Day.
September 18—New York State Day.
September 19—Welsh Day.
September 20—Pennsylvania Day. St. Catherine's Day.
September 21—Nurses' Associated Alumnæ.
September 24—Nebraska Day.
September 25—Oregon Day.
September 26—Cleveland Day.
September 30—Stewards' Club Day.
October 8—Brooklyn Day.
October 9—New York Federation of Women's Clubs.
October 10—National Grange Day.
October 11—Atlantic City Day.
October 12—International Sunshine Day.

PUBLIC BAND CONCERTS.

Hebing's Artillery Band in Seneca Park, East Saturday Afternoon, From 3 to 6 O'clock.

PROGRAMME.
PART I.

Overture—Morning, Noon and Night	Suppe
Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana"	Mascagni
Soldiers' chorus from "Faust"	Gounod
La Viola—Waltz	C. Mora
Baritone solo—New Born King	Parker
Robert Wignall.
Selection from "Burgomaster"	Luders
PART II.
Coon Up a Tree	Schmall
King of France	Sousa
"10,000 Men Marched up the Hill and Down Again"	Sousa
I, too, was Born in Arcadia	Sousa
In Darkest Africa	Sousa
American Patrol	Makin
Religiosa	Chambers

Hebing's Artillery Band in Genesee Valley Park Sunday Afternoon From 3 to 6 O'clock.

PROGRAMME.
PART I.

Overture—Hungarian Lutspiel	Keler Bela
March—Hail to the Spirit of Liberty	Sousa
Trombone solo—Holy City	Adams
Joseph Winneur.
Gavot—Golden Jubilee	C. Mora
Waltz—Bleue	Laurendeau
Selection—Foxy Quiller	DeKoven
PART II.
March—Matinee Girl	Hall
Baritone solo—Beyond the Gates of Paradise	King
Robert Wignall.
Selection—Maritiana	Wallace
Mr. Thomas Cat	Hall
Characteristique—The Busy Bee	Bendix
War Songs—Boys in Blue	Laurendeau

Fifteenth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY
HEBING'S ARTILLERY BAND,
GEORGE HEBING, Director.
IN GENESEE VALLEY PARK,
Sunday Afternoon, August 18, 1901,
FROM 3 TO 6 O'CLOCK.
Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program.

PART I.

1.	OVERTURE—Hungarian Lurtspiel,	Keler Bela
2.	MARCH—Hail to the Spirit of Liberty,	Sousa
3.	TROMBONE SOLO—Holy City,	Adams
	MR. JOSEPH WINNEUR.
4.	GAVOT—Golden Jubilee,	C. Mora
5.	WALTZ—Blene,	Laurendeau
6.	SELECTION—Foxy Quiller,	DeKoven

PART II.

7.	MARCH—Matinee Girl,	Hall
8.	BARITONE SOLO—Beyond the Gates of Paradise,	King
	MR. ROBERT WIGNALL.
9.	SELECTION—Maritiana,	Wallace
10.	MR. THOMAS CAT,	Hall
11.	CHARACTERISTIQUE—The Busy Bee,	Bendix
12.	WAR SONGS, BOYS IN BLUE,	Laurendeau

Fifteenth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY
Hebing's Artillery Band
GEORGE HEBING, Director

IN SENECA PARK, EAST
Saturday Afternoon, August 17, 1901
FROM THREE TO SIX O'CLOCK
Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce

Program

PART I

1.	OVERTURE—"Morning, Noon and Night,"	Suppe
2.	INTERMEZZO—"Cavalleria Rusticana,"	Mascagni
3.	SOLDIERS' CHORUS—"Faust,"	Gounod
4.	LA VIOLA—"Waltz,"	C. Mora
5.	BARITONE SOLO—"New Born King," MR. ROBERT WIGNALL.	Parker
6.	SELECTION—"Burgomaster,"	Luders

PART II

7.	"Coon up a Tree,"	Schmall
8.	"King of France,"	Sousa
9.	"10,000 Men Marched up the Hill and Down Again,"	Sousa
10.	"I, too, was Born in Arcadia,"	Sousa
	"In Darkest Africa,"	Sousa
11.	"American Patrol,"	Makin
12.	"Religiosa,"	Chambers

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

CROWD AT PARK CONCERT.

Thousands Listen to the Playing of Hebing's Artillery Band.

Dec. Aug 14 1911

People were pleased to note the other day, in the columns of the Democrat and Chronicle, that the Chamber of Commerce had succeeded in securing nearly enough money to continue the band concerts through the month of September. Only $200 more is necessary to accomplish this and as the people are showing their appreciation of the concerts by continued attendance in large numbers, they will doubtless soon subscribe the necessary amount.

The concert yesterday was well attended. As is usual on Sunday afternoons, and on Saturday afternoons since the half holiday has been in vogue, the cars leading to the parks were loaded to, or perhaps a little beyond, their full capacity. But when a large portion of the citizens of Rochester get the notion into their heads that they want to go to the same place, and the idea strikes them all at about the same time, it is no wonder that they cannot find cars waiting just outside their doors ready to receive them all at the very moment they start on their outing. And so it is not to be wondered at that cars running into Genesee Valley park yesterday carried nearly full loads on their trips even in the latter part of the afternoon, when the concert was approaching its close.

It was a delightful day out under the great trees. Though the sun became quite warm before the people left the city, when they reached the park they found a gentle breeze blowing across the river from the west, making it cool even in those portions of the grounds which are usually the warmest.

One thing that has been very noticeable with regard to the attendance at all the concerts, and gratifying to the promoters of the project, is that the crowds have always been orderly and quiet. In spite of the thousands and thousands of people of all classes and nationalities who have availed themselves of the chance of listening to these musical entertainments, there has not been a single instance of anyone causing a disturbance. The several officers who have been on duty at the parks have been able to stand around and listen quietly to the music without any thought of trouble. The results have amply republished the reasoning of some who opposed the Sunday concerts, arguing that in a short time the events would descend to the level of mere Sunday picnics, marked by carousing and wild times.

The concert yesterday, as well as that on Saturday, was rendered by Hebing's artillery band. The selections which this band usually plays, while they include some of the heavier music, are mostly of the lighter and popular character and seem to win the real applause of the hearers. Yesterday all the numbers seemed to please and the people could not get enough to suit them. They demanded encore after encore until the band had responded with fully twelve or fifteen and then, when the last number was finished, they hung around the stand and watched the men put up their instruments. "Well," said one lady, in a disappointed tone of voice, "they won't play any more." And she turned away to start for the cars.

It is really quite amusing to ride in the cars sometimes, even if they are crowded and one has to stand all the way. There is usually some one aboard who is particularly good natured and whose cynical or witty remarks on the discomforts of the journey often cause a ripple of laughter to pass over the group of passengers. It is a fact that as a general thing the individuals, even the most discomforted, are good natured and do not enter complaints or grumble over their trouble.

Aug 2, 1911 THE POST EXPRESS:

BOXMAKERS IN CONVENTION.

The National Association in Session at Chamber of Commerce Rooms—Business and Pleasure Combined—Concatenation of the Order of Hoo-Hoo, the First Ever Held in Rochester.

The National Association of Box and Box Shook Manufacturers does not gather together a large convention, but it decidedly makes up in quality what it lacks in quantity. Rochester has rarely welcomed a more up-to-date, progressive and prosperous looking body of men than the 150 delegates who opened their convention in the assembly room of the Chamber of Commerce at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Not only were all parts of the United States east of the Rockies represented, but Canada also has sent a substantial delegation. In addition to the manufacturing element in the convention, a number of newspaper men representing various lumber trade journals, and representatives for various box machinery firms are present.

Chamber of Commerce hall is handsomely decorated in honor of the convention with cut flowers donated by E. R. Fyy, the florist, as an expression of good will towards the efforts of the chamber in seeking to bring conventions here.

In the library of the chamber a table resplendent with cut glass and china and laden with good things to eat and drink, has been set by the Morgan Machine company for the refreshment of the delegates. The courtesy is a novel one and is highly appreciated by the visitors. J. H. Buhr, caterer of the Whitcomb grill, has charge of the spread.

The Morgan Machine company and the Rochester Box and Lumber company, in fact, have taken it upon themselves to play the part of hosts to the convention during the entire three days' stay of the

The convention was called to order by A. B. Atwood, the second vice-president of the organization, of Chelsea, Mass., after which reports from the secretary and treasurer were listened to. These offices are filled by E. H. DeBaugh, of Louisville, Ky. After this routine business had been gone through with, Mayor Carnahan was introduced to the convention and welcomed the delegates to Rochester. The remainder of the morning was devoted to the appointment of committees on reciprocity, resolutions, local organizations, shooks, next meeting place, work of the association and new business.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the delegates and their families will be taken on a tally-ho ride about the city.

To-night, the event most eagerly looked forward to at conventions of this character will take place in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. It is a "concatenation" of the celebrated order of Hoo-Hoo, many of whose members are present at the convention.

This order, which is a familiar one in the South and West is almost unknown in the East, and the "concatenation" to-night will be the first one ever held in Rochester.

The Hoo-Hoo traces its lineage to the misty days of ancient Egyptian history. When civilization forsook Egypt and the last of the Ptolemies turned his face to the wall and died, the Great Black Cat, emblem of Egyptian glory, arose from the body of the dead Pharaoh and returned to the clouds, not again to descend upon the earth until in 1895 he made his appearance in the midst of a body of lumbermen, who, returning from a convention in St. Louis and delayed by a railroad wreck at Guerdon, Ark., resolved to form the order of Hoo-Hoo. Its object was to promote the health, happiness and long life of its members; its motto was "to help a man when he's alive," and its membership was limited to persons who made their living in some manner from the lumber business. C. H. McCarroll, of Crawfordsville, Ind.; B. A. Johnson, of Chicago, and W. E. Barnes, of St. Louis, were the prime movers in the new movement, and all of these are now dead. The institution caught on at once among the lumbermen. A ritual, famous for its originality and cleverness was written and the following officers were designated to compose what has ever after been known as the "Supreme Nine":

Snark of the Universe
Senior Hoo-Hoo
Junior Hoo-Hoo
Jabberwock
Bogum
Scrivenoter
Arcanoper
Guerdon
Custocatican.

Most of these names will readily suggest their origin to those who are familiar with Lewis Carroll's "Hunting of the Snark," and "Alice in Wonderland." The place of the inception of the order has been commemorated in the office of "Guerdon."

The mystic number 9 and the "Great Black Cat" were adopted as the symbols of the order. Rochesterians will undoubtedly hear on the streets before three days have passed a blood-curdling yell, which runs as follows:

"1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8-9!"
By the tail of the Great Black Cat,
Hoo! Hoo!

By decision of the "Supreme Nine," the membership of Hoo-Hoo is limited to 9,999. It now has over 8,000 members. It meets on the 9th day of the ninth month at 9:09 o'clock, in annual convention. This year the convention will be held in Norfolk, Va.

The order has no lodges, but every member is known as a "playful kitten," and is numbered. Vice-gerent snarks are appointed to look after the interests of the order in various states. New York has two vice-gerent snarks.

Candidates for membership in the order of Hoo-Hoo are designated "purblind kittens," and the first degree in the order is known as the "Degree of the Playful Kitten." This is a secret ceremony, but in 1895 at Minneapolis, the Hoo-Hoo in national convention added to their ritual a second degree known as the "Osirian Cloister." This had formerly been known as the "Chamber of Horrors," and is a public affair. An opera house is usually hired by the Hoo-Hoo for the occasion, and the chief business in the ceremony is the "embalming of the snark." This ordeal marks the end of the term of office of the "Grand Snark of the Universe." The ceremony varies. When it was first given in Minneapolis, Grand Snark Barnes got wind of what was going to happen and had his grips all packed ready to leave the hotel. His brother Hoo-Hoo were made aware of his intentions, however, and persuaded the chief of police of Minneapolis to arrest Mr. Barnes just as he was leaving the hotel. All that day he was kept under constant police surveillance. When night came he was taken to the opera house and before several thousand spectators was wrapped in mummy cloth, placed in a saracophagus, and consigned to the nether world. Then, from the floor, lurid flames burst forth, in the midst of which appeared Beelzebub and his imps, to whom the snark was formerly tendered; he was indignantly refused. Brought back to earth again, therefore, he was resurrected and consigned for the remainder of his existence to a place in the "House of the Ancients."

Two grand snarks are to be embalmed at Norfolk, this year, and delegates who are "on," say that the ceremonies in connection therewith will make the Spanish Inquisition look like a fly-speck on the page of history.

None of the officers of the Supreme Nine are yet in attendance at the convention here, but it is expected that J. D. Wall, of Buffalo, guerdon of the order, will be present at the "concatenation" to-night and of the "atrocesse" which

BOXMAKERS OPENED THEIR CONVENTION

Dec. Aug 2 1911

First Session Held Yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce.

ONLY ROUTINE BUSINESS

Members Enjoyed Tallyho Ride in Afternoon — Hoo Hoo Concatenation Occupied Last Hours of Evening.

The National Association of Box and Box Shook Manufacturers opened its semi-annual convention in this city yesterday morning in the hall of the Chamber of Commerce. According to the programme the hour for opening was 9:30 o'clock, but because some of the members could not arrive until much later the session was not called to order until about 11 o'clock. Second Vice-President A. B. Atwood called the session to order. About 150 delegates were present. This number is not quite as large as was expected, but some who have been delayed will be here later.

After the address of the chairman a number of the members were admitted to the organization. The roll call followed, the names being read by E. H. DeBaugh, the secretary-treasurer. Then the minutes of the previous session were read and approved. The report on the financial condition of the association was also presented.

The Hon. George A. Carnahan, mayor of this city, gave an address of welcome in his usual happy style, extending the freedom of the city and wishing the delegates all manner of joys and pleasures while sojourning in Rochester.

The remainder of the session, which was devoted entirely to business of interest only to the delegates, was occupied with the appointment of committees on reciprocity, resolutions, local organizations, shooks, next meeting place, work of association, and new business. The announcement of the social part of the programme which has been prepared ended the session, and brought forth much applause from all present.

At the close of the business session many of the delegates partook of a luncheon. A table was set in the library adjoining the assembly room of the chamber, and formed a new and pleasing feature of the entertainment. The table was resplendent with china and cut glass, and added much to the attractiveness of the rooms. This innovation is enjoyed through the kindness and courtesy of the Morgan Machine Company.

The rooms certainly look very attractive with their decorations in honor of the convention. Masses of cut flowers are used with good effect, and these are the donations of E. R. Fyy, florist, who presents them to the Chamber of Commerce for the interest and activity shown by that body in securing so many conventions of state and national organizations this season. Truly the new title of "Convention city" is proving to be far from inappropriate at the present time. Never in the history of the city have there been so many large conventions held in Rochester as in the present year.

Yesterday afternoon the delegates took a tallyho ride about the city, visiting the parks and other objects of interest, including the lower falls and the boulevard. On the trip several photographs of the party were taken. After this many of them went down to the lake to take supper, and did not return until long after the time set for the "concatenation."

Last evening a number of the delegates were initiated into the celebrated secret order of Hoo Hoo. This annual meeting and initiation is designated by the euphonious title of "concatenation," a word containing one of the symbols of the order in one of its syllables. While the order is not in existence in Rochester, it is quite well known in the South and West, and it is safe to say that this morning there are some Rochesterians who are beginning to wonder if they will ever get over the inquisitorial tortures inflicted upon them in the ancient Egyptian ceremony which was celebrated at 8:30 last evening.

When the last Ptolemy was made a mummy, the Great Black Cat, emblematic of the glory of the monster Egyptian empire, arose from his body and took refuge in the clouds, reappearing in 1893 to a number of lumbermen returning from a convention who, delayed at Guerdon, Arkansas, were destined to become the abiding place of the ancient spirit and to be known thereafter as the Hoo Hoo. C. H. McCarroll, of Crawfordsville, Indiana; B. A. Johnson, of Chicago, and W. E. Barnes, of St. Louis, all now deceased, were among the originators of the new order. According to the extremely original and mystifying ritual, the officers of the institution, known as the "supreme nine," are: Snark of the Universe, Senior Hoo Hoo, Junior Hoo Hoo, Jabberwock, Bogum, Scrivenoter, Arcanoper, Guerdon and Custocatican. The yell order is 1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8-9! By the tail of the Great Black Cat, Hoo! Hoo!

The symbols are the number 9 and the Great Black Cat. The membership is limited to 9,999 and already numbers over 8,000. The annual convention will next this year at Norfolk, Virginia, at nine minutes after 9 o'clock, on the 9th day of the 9th month. The annual fee is $9.99, and is a bargain at that. There are two grades. Each member is called a "playful kitten" and has a number. The new members are called "purblind kittens." The

BOX MAKERS TALKING SHOP.

Dec. Aug 22/11

Business is the Dominating Note of All the Sessions of the Convention.

One thing about the semi-annual convention of the National Association of Box and Box Shook Manufacturers now in session at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce is that the members are gathered together for the transaction of the business of the meeting and not for fun. They do not all get around on time, but arrive soon after, and shop, andnothingelse is talked of until the time comes for the entertainments when they go into them as thoroughly as they do into the business matters.

The sessions of the convention are executive. The box and shook men listen to papers and discuss them, and as they are all on subjects vitally connected with their business they would be of no general interest to the public were they to be given out. The meeting this morning was presided over by S. C. Carey of Cairo, Ill., first vice-president of the association. The only part of the proceedings given out was the fact that ten new members were admitted.

This afternoon the delegates will be given a dinner at Ontario Beach. The dinner is scheduled for 5 o'clock on the veranda of the Hotel Ontario. After dinner the delegates and their wives will go to the upper balcony, which has been reserved for them, and listen to the band concerts and view the fireworks. The return home will be made at 9:30 o'clock.

All the entertainment of the delegates is furnished by the Morgan Machine Company and the Rochester Box and Lumber Company. Each delegate was given a ticket containing ten coupons, which included a trolley ride and tallyho ride for yesterday, and the round trip about Irondequoit bay, scheduled for to-morrow. Many of the delegates are accompanied by their wives, and the ladies are not forgoten by the entertainers.

The concatenation of the Hoo-Hoos, held last evening was a decided success. New members were put through in the usual form and a general good time was had. The enthusiasm of the members kept them busy until a late hour.

The convention will come to a close to-morow. Papers will be read on the low prices in the trade for the last six months and the responsibility for them. Others will deal with the transportation problems, organization, large consumers as competitors, and on the success of the union box factory. All these are not strictly papers, some of them being merely subject to hang discussions on. It will be seen that the delegates go into all matters pertaining to their business pretty thoroughly. The trip to Glen Haven and the bay will be the windup of the social features of the convention.

PARK CONCERTS.

Dec. Aug 22/11

Special Music for the Knights Templar Conclave Will be Given.

The Saturday band concert will be given in Genesee Valley park, and the Sunday concert in Seneca park east. The Fifty-fourth Regiment Band will give each concert. Both programmes are excellent, but the Sunday music contains several special selections that have local significance. Sunday night at 9 o'clock the Fifty-fourth Regiment Band will leave Rochester in company with Monroe Commandery, going to Louisville, Ky., to attend the tri-annual conclave of the Knights Templar, which is to be held in that city next week.

St. John's Commandery is also going. Hence the first number on the programme is a march entitled, "Monroe Commandery," and the first number in the second part is a march entitled "St. John's Commandery." Both have been written especially for the conclave at Louisville, and will be played publicly for the first time Sunday afternoon. Another number on the programme is a waltz, "Old Kentucky Home." On the way home Monroe Commandery and the Fifty-fourth Regiment Band will stop over in Buffalo, a week from next Saturday, and will another number on Sunday's programme is a waltz, "Buffalo Exposition." A glance at the two programmes will show that there is a variety of music in each, and with the special features and the Fifty-fourth to listen to, there is no doubt that large crowds will attend both concerts, if the weather be at all favorable.

This is the Saturday programme:

March—"Our Sessions" ..... Chambers
Overture—"Zelica" ..... Drumwald
Waltz—"Moonlight on the Hudson" ..... Herman
Selection—"Herodora" ..... Sisarri
Spanish serenade—"La Paloma" (by request) ..... Yradier
Medley—"Sunny South" ..... Eiseman

PART II.

March—"Why Don't the Band Play" ..... Boettger
Overture—"Berlin in Joy and Sorrow" ..... Conradi
Patrol—"American" ..... Meacham
Selection—"The Burgomaster" ..... Luders
Waltz—"L'Enchantrice" ..... Weinleitel
Medley—"Sweet Old Songs" ..... Dalbey

Sunday's programme follows:

PART I.

March—"Monroe Commandery" ..... Chambers
Overture—"Undine" ..... Offenbach
Waltz—"Buffalo Exposition" ..... Herman
Selection—"Robin Hood" ..... DeKoven
Characteristic—"Coconut Dance" ..... Tobani
Medley—"Grand Stand" ..... W. H. Mackie

PART II.

March—"St. John's Commandery" ..... Farrar
Overture—"Pique Dame" ..... Suppe
a. "La Belle Mexicana" ..... Langey
b. "Felice Canzonetta" ..... Langey
Selection—"Isle of Champagne" ..... W. Furst
Waltz—"Old Kentucky Home" ..... Louisville
Grand medley—"America" ..... Tobani

BOXMAKERS IN A JOLLY MOOD

Likely First Day of the National Dec. Aug 22 1911 Convention. Herald

CLOSED WITH THE INITIATION OF THIRTEEN PURBLIND KITTENS.

Members on Hand Early To-day for Business Session—Reports of Committees—Papers on Trade Topics and Their Discussion—To-day's Pleasures.

The boxmakers were on hand early at their convention hall in the Chamber of Commerce this morning. Their numbers were swelled by twenty-five Western delegates who arrived on the night trains so that the total number of delegates now in the city is not far from 200.

The meeting was called to order in executive session soon after 11 o'clock this morning by First-Vice-President Carey, of Cairo, Ill., who did not arrive in time to open the session yesterday morning. Reports from committees on membership, exports, and imports, and from the information bureau, were received, after which the following papers were presented:

"How We Do It In Canada," W. A. Fristbrook, Toronto, Ont.

"Piling Lumber For the Box Trade," W. D. Sturm, Louisville, Ky.

"The Saw Mill Man of the Box Factory," C. F. Rood, Ford, Ky.

Discussion—"Reciprocity—What It Has Done for the Box Trade."

This afternoon will be again given up to social pleasures. At 2:30 o'clock, the delegates and guests of the convention will be given a trolley ride to Ontario Beach, stopping at Kodak park on the way. Bathing and sports will be indulged in at the beach and Short's band will give a special concert for the occasion. At 5 o'clock a "beach dinner" will be served on the veranda of Hotel Ontario and at 8 o'clock a special display of fireworks will be viewed by the visitors from the upper veranda of the hotel which has been reserved for the occasion.

The Concatenation.

Members of the Hoo-Hoo fraternity are a unit in declaring to-day that the "concatenation" which they held last night was one of the most notable in the history of the organization. The attendance was not large but the windup represented was remarkably extensive.

Whenever a local concatenation is held the ceremonies incident thereto are in charge of nine officers, specially appointed for that occasion and with titles similar to those borne by members of the "Supreme Nine." These officers last night were as follows:

Snark, E. R. Cooledge, Chicago; senior Hoo-Hoo, E. H. Defebaugh, Louisville, Ky.; junior Hoo-Hoo, Dennis Call, Beaumont, Texas; holy bojum, C. S. Carey, Cairo, Ill.; scrivenater, Robert Berke, Hoopeston, Ill.; jabberwock, Fred Klapproth, Chicago; arcanoper, M. C. Moore, Milwaukee; custocatican, J. McLeod, Rochester; gurdon, J. F. Peterson, Cairo, Ill.

The other Hoo-Hoo present at the concatenation are not designated by name but by number. These numbers indicate with exactness therefore, the priority of their membership in Hoo-Hoo. Thus last night there were present kittens No. 46, 376, 1,390, 1,962, 2,611, 5,589, 6,557, 6,568, 7,307, and 7,339.

Kitten No. 46 is "Ed" Defebaugh who is the oldest pioneer Hoo-Hoo at the convention. Next to him is E. R. Cooledge, who is known as Kitten No. 376.

The Hoo-Hoo rejoiced greatly last night that they had a class of thirteen "purblind Kittens," to pass through the "Degree of the Playful Kitten." While the infant felines were not blessed with a baptismal middle name, the Hoo-Hoo last night supplied the missing cognomen by which ever after they will be known in Hoo-Hoo rather than by their first names. The purblind kittens were as follows:

William Daniel Sexton, Cincinnati, O.; David "Sans Souci" Spear, Pittsburg; A. B. Atwood, Chelsea, Mass.; James "Southland" Innes, Chatham, Ont.; F. J. Kress, Pittsburg; F. M. West, Springfield, Mass.; C. "Perry" Knuffer, Rochester; W. Boger, Wilmington; H. C. Clark, Chicago; F. S. Hooper, Baltimore; D. C. Roussopulos, St. Paul; W. H. Dibble, Decatur, Ill.

The initiation fees to membership in Hoo-Hoo are $9.99, with $1.00 added for annual dues. Three of the kittens whose eyes were opened last night evened up the fun of the occasion by bringing their initiation fees and dues in three boxes containing $10.98 each in pennies. Scrivenoter Robert Burke was kept busy until after midnight counting the "chicken feed."

The Tally-Ho Ride.

Every delegate and visitor except one took advantage of the tally-ho ride given by the Morgan Machine company in the afternoon. The one notable exception was "Uncle Ben" Atwood, the second vice-president of the "Boxers," who with palm leaf in hand, stood chuckling on the Water street pavement watching the ominous looking clouds that were crashing out peals of thunder over the heads of the expectant party. Cordial invitations were handed down to him to "come up and join the saints," but "Uncle Ben's" chuckle only deepened as he shook his head decidedly.

"No, siree," he exclaimed, "you don't catch me taking chances for a shower bath."

But the start was long delayed and as he four tally-ho's headed by Higgins's handsome new Twentieth Century coach, gradually began to fill up while the storm showed signs of disappearing the second vice-president began to repent of his decision. His repentance broke into action and just as the last coach was pulling out he made a wild dash to catch it. But its occupants now were merciless to entreaty and urged the driver to "put on steam." When last seen "Uncle Ben" was standing disconsolately in the middle of the road, mopping the perspiration from his refulgent face and gazing ruefully after the retreating carriages.

In the Twentieth Century tally-ho, drawn by four pairs of white horses about forty lady guests of the convention were seated. In the center, fittily seen through the sea of nodding feminine headgear, shone the polished pate of "Ed" Defebaugh, the secretary-treasurer of the convention. Insistent in his attention to the ladies up to the moment of the start, he had finally appealed to one after another of masculine crowds to take him into their tally-hos, but had been indignantly spurned by each, the more so in that he was obliged to confess that he had neither cigars, matches nor cold punch in his pockets.

On the rear seat of the second coach "Jun-bo Ed" Cooledge traveling representative of the "Southern Lumberman," and a pioneer Hoo-Hoo, insisted on making life miserable for his three brothers Hoo-Hoo who were compelled to occupy the seat with him. He was adjured to get into the old-fashioned stage coach which brought up in the rear, to sit edgewise, and finally to get out and walk, but selfishly insisted on attaching his 200 pounds to the place where he sat until finally his Hoo-Hoo friends grasped the end of his leather belt and pulled until his yells for mercy were shut off by the inability of his diaphram further to perform its duty.

The route of the trip took the vistors first to Genesee Valley park where pictures of the party were taken. Returning by way of the State hospital, First Vice-President Carey who had ingenuously been waving his hands at every pretty girl he saw along the road, mistook the institution for a regular medical hospital and wafted a gracious salute to the trained nurses whom he imagined he saw standing at the windows. The tumultous recognition which his greeting received from scores of hands was a source of intense gratification to him until he was gently informed about the mental status of his admirers, when he relapsed into melancholy silence for the remainder of the ride.

Highland park was next visited, also East avenue, University avenue and the lower falls of the Genesee, the party returning to the Chamber of Commerce by way of Lake avenue and Main street.

On the way, the fact was incidentally developed among the Hoo-Hoo that a strong effort is being made to place next years Hoo-Hoo national convention in Milwaukee.

ENJOY A BIG DAY

Herald Aug 23, 1911

Boxmakers Transact a Great Deal of Business.

DINNER AT ONTARIO BEACH

Business Session of Yesterday Morning —Papers That Were Read — Trip to Ontario Beach in Afternoon — A Most Delightful Time—Session Today and Trip to Lake and Bay.

The second session of the box and box shook makers convention was held yesterday morning in the Chamber of Commerce, and considerable business was transacted. Unlike a great many other conventions, the box makers work when it is time to work and then when the play comes they enter into the fun with all the enthusiasm and vim of their boyhood days. The number of delegates had increased during Wednesday to nearly 200 and all were on hand yesterday morning for the business session.

The meeting was called to order in executive session soon after 11 o'clock this morning by First Vice President Carey of

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Pelto, Ill., who did not arrive in time to open the session Wednesday morning. Reports from committees on membership, exports and imports and from the information bureau were received, after which the following papers were presented:

"How We do It in Canada," W. A. Frisbrook of Toronto.

"Piling Lumber for the Box Trade," W. D. Sturm of Louisville, Ky.

"The Sawmill Man of the Box Factory," C. F. Rood of Ford, Ky.

Discussion—"Reciprocity: What It Has Done for the Box Trade."

Aside from the help that all are receiving in matters of business, the kindly foresight of the committee has provided them with pleasures for the body also. Yesterday afternoon the party boarded special cars at the corner of Church and State Streets and amid hearty cheers the delegates were on their way to Ontario Beach Park, where Manager Collins was in waiting for them with the very best his place can afford. After doing the place, dinner was served on the veranda of the hotel at 5 o'clock.

Dinner over, all that could be done was to sit quiet and wait for the clouds to roll by. When they did finally disappear, the display of fireworks was given, and this put everyone in good humor again, so that when the party left about 9:30 o'clock they were as jolly and gay as if the sun had been shining all day.

All the entertainment of the delegates is furnished by the Morgan Machine Company and the Rochester Box and Lumber Company. Each delegate was given a ticket containing ten coupons, which included a trolley ride and tally-ho ride for Wednesday, and the round trip about Irondequoit Bay, scheduled for to-day. Many of the delegates are accompanied by their wives, and the ladies are not forgotten by the entertainers.

The convention will come to a close to-day. Papers will be read on the low prices in the trade for the last six months and the responsibility for them. Others will deal with the transportation problems, organization, large consumers as competitors and on the success of the union box factory. All these are not strictly papers, some of them being merely subjects on which to hang discussions. It will be seen that the delegates go into all matters pertaining to their business pretty thoroughly. The trip to Glen of the social features of the convention.

Seventeenth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY THE
54TH REGIMENT BAND
F. A. ZEITLER, Director.
AT SENECA PARK,
Sunday Afternoon, August 25, 1901,
FROM 3 TO 6 O'CLOCK.
Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program. . . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—Monroe Commandery, - - - Chambers
2. OVERTURE—Orpheus, - - - Offenbach
3. WALTZ—Buffalo Exposition, - - Herman
4. SELECTION—Robin Hood, - - - DeKoven
5. CHARACTERISTIC—Cocoanut Dance, - Tobani
6. MEDLEY—Grand Stand, - - W. H. Mackie

PART II.

7. MARCH—St. John's Commandery, - - Farrar
8. OVERTURE—Pique Dame, - - - Suppe
9. { a. La Belle Mexicana, - - - - - } Langey
   { b. Felice Canzonetta, - - - - - }
10. SELECTION—Isle of Champagne, - W. Furst
11. WALTZ—Old Kentucky Home, - - Louisville
12. GRAND MEDLEY—America, - - Tobani

Sixteenth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY THE
54TH REGIMENT BAND
F. A. ZEITLER, Director.
AT GENESEE VALLEY PARK,
Saturday Afternoon, August 24, 1901,
FROM 3 TO 6 O'CLOCK.
Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce

Program. . . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—Our Senators, - - - Chambers
2. OVERTURE—Felicia, - - - Gruenwald
3. WALTZ—Moonlight on the Hudson, - Herman
4. SELECTION—Florodora, - - - - Stuart
5. SPANISH SERENADE—La Paloma (by request). Yradier
6. MEDLEY—Sunny South, - - - - Eisenman

PART II.

7. MARCH—Why Don't the Band Play, - Boettger
8. OVERTURE—Berlin in Joy and Sorrow, Conradi
9. PATROL—American, - - - - Meacham
10. SELECTION—The Burgomaster, - - Luders
11. WALTZ—L'Eestudiantina, - - - Waldteufer
12. MEDLEY—Sweet Old Songs, - - - Dalbey

CLOSING SESSION OF BOXMAKERS' ASSEMBLY

Dem. — Aug 24 '01

Routine Business Completed Yesterday Morning—An Afternoon on the Bay.

The final session of the semi-annual convention of box and box shook manufacturers was called to order yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock by First Vice-President Carey. The session was executive, and was opened with the report of the various committees. This was followed by several addresses.

The first address was by C. E. Turner, Wausau, Wisconsin, on "The Low Prices of the Last Six Months—Who Are Responsible?" "What Will a Forty-Cent Rate From the Pacific Coast Do to Missouri River Competition?" was the subject of an address by F. S. Knapp, of Omaha, Nebraska. The old threadbare subject, "Waste," was presented by R. L. Jones, of Saginaw, Michigan, who led the discussion. The last address was by Charles Kayser, his subject being "Organization, Local or Otherwise—What it Can Do for the Individual and General Trade." A paper was read by W. F. Gorsaling, of St. Louis, presenting the problem of "Large Consumers as Competitors." The morning session was brought to a close by an open discussion of the proposition concerning "The Union Box Factory."

While the gentlemen were devoting the morning hours to the consideration of their business interests, the ladies who accompanied them were treated to a tallyho ride by Mrs. C. M. Loring and Mrs. H. W. Morgan. The start was made from Powers hotel at 10 o'clock, the party proceeding to Seneca park and the lake.

Yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the delegates met at the office of the Morgan Machine Company, and after a brief inspection of the factory, proceeded to the Rochester Box and Lumber Company's factory and inspected that also. They then left in special cars for Glen Haven, and after looking about the grounds there took boat about the bay, stopping awhile at Sea Breeze. It was early when they returned to the city.

Some of the visitors left last evening for the Pan-American. All unite in praise of the beauties of the Power City, and cannot say too much concerning its attractive parks and boulevards. They expressed themselves as very much pleased and very grateful for their experience with Rochester hospitality, which has been extended to them so lavishly. Many, while confessing that this is the first time that they have been within the confines of this city, assert that it will not be the last time, and that hereafter they will cultivate the acquaintance of Rochester people in another than a mere business way.

BAND CONCERT TO-DAY.

Fifty-Fourth Regiment Band Will Play at Genesee Valley Park.

Dem. — Aug 24 '01

The band concert to-day will be given by the Fifty-fourth Regiment band at Genesee Valley park. The Sunday concert will be given at Seneca park east by the same band. The programme for to-day is as follows:

PART I.

March—"Our Senators" ..... Chambers
Overture—"Felicia" ..... Gruenwald
Waltz—"Moonlight on the Hudson" ..... Herman
Selection—"Florodora" ..... Stuart
Spanish serenade—"La Paloma" (by request) ..... Yradier
Medley—"Sunny South" ..... Eisenman

PART II.

March—"Why Don't the Band Play" ..... Boettger
Overture—"Berlin in Joy and Sorrow" ..... Conradi
Patrol—"American" ..... Meacham
Selection—"The Burgomaster" ..... Luders
Waltz—"L'Estudiantina" ..... Waldteufel
Medley—"Sweet Old Songs" ..... Dalbey

LARGE CROWD AT THE SENECA PARK CONCERT

Dem. — Aug 24 '01

Thousands Hear Long Programme Admirably Played by the Fifty-Fourth Regiment Band.

Persons passing down Main street east yesterday afternoon found the sidewalks almost deserted, but on arriving at the Four Corners the crowd discovered standing on the walks at that point waiting for cars made up for any deficiency which might have been noted in other portions of the city. The improvements being made at the corner of St. Paul and Main streets seemed to shift the center of gravity of the crowd to the one point.

It was possible yesterday afternoon for one to get a better impression or estimate of the number and character of the people who are going out each Sunday to the parks or the lake resorts, than has been the case before this season. Practically all the cars except those running on the direct routes to the eastern portion of the city left the Four Corners and went almost any way except up Main. The size of the crowd which there assembled was a matter of surprise to many, who thought that never before this season have so many citizens taken it into their heads to go on an outing at the same time. While this may have been true, the crowd appeared larger from being held together so closely in the one spot.

The car service yesterday afternoon to Seneca park east was very good, considering the state in which so many of the lines of the city are at the present time. Practically all the St. Paul cars were running and there were many extras, these latter bearing bright new signs with the legend "Seneca Park." This addition to the equipment, slight as it may appear to be, was and will be appreciated by many of those who have been inconvenienced at times by their inability to distinguish at a glance the route and destination of the cars. The big white X was also very prominent.

Of all the crowds that Seneca park has seen this season, it is not probable that it has beheld a larger one than that which assembled yesterday under the shade of the great trees. Before the concert began thousands of people had taken their places near the band stand, and there they remained for hours, while those who came later had to be content to take their stand at a slightly greater distance. Every bench was occupied, and every tree seemed to be the support provided by Dame Nature herself for weary backs or deserted bicycles. Every place available for sitting or reclining was taken advantage of, and at that the larger proportion of the audience stood up all the time.

It seemed as though every corner and cranny of the great grounds was occupied and was doing its duty toward entertaining the visitors. Even along the avenue that leads into the park the benches were filled, and remained so all day. The animal cages near the entrance attracted many, while the bear den was constantly surrounded by a curious crowd eager for the casual appearance of brulin. From that point on to the pavilion the paths were mere streming multitudes of recreating humanity.

The concert was given by the Fifty-fourth Regiment band, whose force was somewhat strengthened by the addition of some of the regular members who have been away filling engagements in other cities. Probably it was the most complete aggregation of men that this organization has had together at any time this season. If the audience could have had its way the men would not have been allowed to rest between numbers, and the time limits would have been extended about two hours. The following programme was played:

PART I.

March—"Monroe Commandery" ..... Chambers
Overture—"Orpheus" ..... Offenbach
Encore—"Strike Up the Band" ..... Clark
Waltz—"Buffalo Exposition" ..... Herman
Selection—"Robin Hood" ..... DeKoven
Encore—"A Little Bit Off the Top" ..... Ascher
Characteristic—"Cocoanut Dance" ..... Tobani
Encore—"Coon Band Contest" ..... Pryor
Medley—"Grand Stand" ..... W. H. Mackie
Encore—"The Man Behind the Gun" ..... Sousa

PART II.

March—"St. John's Commandery" ..... Farrar
Overture—"Pique Dame" ..... Suppe
Encore—"The Invincible Eagle" ..... Sousa
a. "La Belle Mexicana" ..... Langey
b. "Felice Canzonetta" ..... Langey
Encore—Cornet solo—"The Holy City" ..... Adams
Samuel Bassett.
Selection—"Isle of Champagne" ..... W. Furst
Waltz—"Old Kentucky Home" ..... Louisville
Encore—"Soldiers of the Queen" ..... Parry
Grand medley—"America" ..... Tobani
Encore—"Good-by, Dolly Gray" ..... Chattaway

AT SENECA PARK.

Herald — Aug 26 '01

54th Regiment Band Gave What Every One Termed Its Best Concert So Far This Season — 10,000 Out.

A beautiful day, the betterment in the trolley service and the fact that the 54th Regiment Band was at its very best, brought Rochester people out yesterday by the thousands to Seneca Park East to listen to the music and join in the unanimous expression that yesterday's concert was the very best the band has yet given this summer.

This was due largely to the fact that all of the regular men were again in their places; then, too, several of the old members who have been playing elsewhere throughout the country were back again in their old time form, Henry Galvin, the well-known trombone player who has been filling an engagement at Summit Park, near Utica, was here and his work was of the gilt-edged kind that helped make the concert what it was. Another addition was that of John Pfaff, who has just returned from the Thousand Islands, where he made a name for himself and his clarionet.

The car service was tolerably good, but more cars should be pressed into service, for all of the people can not be carried to the park before the concert begins, while along the line it is next to impossible to get on the cars. The only thing the people could do was to go to the Four Corners and there run chances of getting a seat. But at any rate fully 10,000 went to the park yesterday and enjoyed the concert to the full, as was evident from the hearty encores they gave almost every number that was played.

The programme was of a special nature, several of the selections being composed for the Commandery, which they will accompany to Louisville. The third number, "Buffalo Exposition," was well received and captured the audience. But the reception of this number was overshadowed by the following, "Robin Hood," which set the people wild with delight. It was several minutes before they would stop applauding and give the boys an opportunity to respond.

The selections of the second part were equally good and all received their much merited applause. "Pique Dame," an overture by Suppe, seemed to strike a responsive chord in the hearts of the people, not even a bow and the raising of Director Zeiller's hat would satisfy them. The tenth number was also good, as was "Old Kentucky Home."

When the last number was struck up, "America," the park resounded with the voices of thousands of people joining lustily in the song. Following was the programme rendered:

PART I.

March—Monroe Commandery ....Chambers
Overture—Orpheus ..... Offenbach
Waltz—Buffalo Exposition ..... Herman
Selection—Robin Hood ..... DeKoven
Characteristic—Cocoanut Dance ..... Tobani
Medley—Grand Stand ..... W. H. Mackie

PART II.

March—St. John's Commandery ..... Farrar
Overture—Pique Dame ..... Suppe
a. La Belle Mexicana ..... Langey
b. Felice Canzonetta ..... Langey
Selection—Isle of Champagne ..... W. Furst
Waltz—Old Kentucky Home ..... Louisville
Grand Medley—America ..... Tobani

ENCORES.

Strike up the Band ..... Clark
A Little Bit Off the Top ..... Ascher
Coon Band Contest ..... Pryor
The Man Behind the Gun ..... Sousa
The Invincible Eagle ..... Sousa
Cornet Solo—The Holy City ..... Adams
Samuel Bassett.
Soldiers of the Queen ..... Parry
Good-by Dolly Gray ..... Chattaway

A FEW SURPRISES

Herald — Aug 26 '01

Buffalo Exerting Herself To Entertain Rochester.

SOME GAMES FOR OFFICIALS

Aldermen, Solons, Police and Firemen of the Two Cities May Meet for Athletic Supremacy in the Stadium — Grand Pyrotechnic and Electric Displays Arranged.

Arrangements for Rochester Day, September 7, at the Pan-American are rapidly assuming definite shape. Details of the work are being mapped out and indications are that it will be one of the greatest intercity events in the history of New York State.

Buffalo is making extraordinary preparations for the event. Advertising matter has been distributed all over the Windy City and the Bisonites promise to turn out in force to receive the Flower Cityites. It will, in fact, be a big family reunion and hospitality will be generously extended.

Efforts are being made to have official recognition of the day taken by Buffalo officials. Some of the big stores may be closed on that afternoon and illuminated electric transparencies may be placed on the buildings and in the streets.

Along this line a few sporting events are suggested. Baseball games, running matches, tugs of war and other athletic matters are mentioned. These will be limited to societies and officials.

One of the surprises may be a ball game between the Erie County Supervisors and the Monroe County Solons. The local Solons are quite nifty at the national game and should give the Erie people a pretty stiff rub. Meanwhile the rooters could raise pandemonium.

A tug of war is suggested between the Aldermen of the two cities. There are some city officers in Buffalo that are

ROCHESTER DAY.

Dem. — Aug 26 '01

Headquarters Have Been Established in This City by E. J. Costa.

Evidently Rochester day at the Pan-American Exposition is to be an event of importance both to Rochester and to Buffalo, as well as to the exposition. E. J. Costa, traveling representative of the exposition, arrived in Rochester yesterday and established at the Chamber of Commerce headquarters where he will remain until the big day, giving advice, information and assistance to all interested. September 7th has been chosen as the date. This is the last day to be celebrated as a Saturday half-holiday.

Mr. Costa will have charge of the excursion from this end, and that it will be carefully and thoroughly planned and managed is pretty certain, judging from the vast experience that he has had. He says that Rochester day is to be a grand success. Nothing is to be left undone in Buffalo to make it the greatest intercity event on record, and Mr. Costa says that the feeling in Buffalo in favor of making special honors for Rochester day is very strong.

The programme for the day is not completed, but will be in a short time. The details are rapidly being worked out and will be announced before long. Buffalo's city officials and societies of different character will unite in the celebration. There will be ceremonies befitting the day, special fireworks and displays, and the events in the Stadium will be specially arranged for the day.

Last Thursday was Syracuse day at the exposition, and in round numbers the attendance from the Saline city was 7,000. It is believed that fully as many people will go from this city on Rochester day. There were special ceremonies on Syracuse day.

Union. — Aug 26 '01

E. J. COSTA.

Arrival of the Pan-American Commissioner to Arrange Details for Rochester Day.

E. J. Costa, special commissioner and representative of the publicity department of the Pan-American Exposition is now in this city to work out the details and arrange for the celebration of Rochester Day at the Exposition on September 7th. Mr. Costa has established his headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce and will keep in close touch with our railroad and civic officials, and the leading citizens generally for the purpose of securing all the influences and means possible to make Rochester Day at the Pan-Am. one long to be remembered by our citizens.

Mr. Costa says that the people of Buffalo will do all in their power to signalize the event. In a few days some of the important features of the occasion will be made public that cannot fail to induce thousands of people to take advantage of the low rate and splendid group of entertainments to be enjoyed on Rochester Day.

Among the amusements will probably be contests between official bodies of Buffalo and Rochester of an unique and enjoyable character. Care will be taken to have the biggest kind of a welcome accorded to the Rochesterians and it is expected that the fraternizing of the people of the Flower and Windy cities will be one of the red letter events connected with the history of the Pan-American Exposition.

This much may be said of the coming excursion. No Rochesterian can afford to miss it and should commence at once to make his business arrangements conform to his absence from home on that occasion. Railway officials are planning to give the excursionists the most comfortable accom-

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

...completion, and ready on the ...ture of transportation so that all may re... from the trip delighted with their outing.

ROCHESTER DAY

E. J. Costa Is Here from Buffalo to Take Charge of Local Arrangements.

E. J. Costa, railroad representative of the Pan-American, arrived in the city today to make his headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce until after Rochester day at the exposition. He will have general charge of the excursion management of the arrangements at this end.

Mr. Costa brings from Buffalo the assurance that nothing will be left undone there to make Rochester day the greatest inter-city event on record. He says the feeling there in favor of special honors for Rochester day is very strong.

Details for the special programme are rapidly being worked out and will soon be announced. Buffalo city officials and societies of different character will unite in the celebration. There will be special ceremonies and displays in the Stadium and it is expected that this event will cap the climax in the matter of special days.

Mr. Costa will remain here to furnish advice, information and assistance to all interested. A large attendance from this city and surrounding towns is already assured.

Herald Aug 28, 1901.

DISCOVERED TOO LATE

How Rochester Gas and Electric Company Failed To Inconvenience Local Industries.

48 HOURS BEHIND

Railroad Company Was Supplying 100 Horse Power.

ACCIDENT TO CITIZENS CO.

Ultimatum Issued That Power To Run Street Cars Would Be Shut Off in One Hour Unless Wire With Citizens Company Was Discontinued — Another Sample of No Competition.

The managers of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company evidently agree with Mayor Carnahan that competition in the electric business is not a good thing—at least for themselves. So they are not encouraging competition, even though important public interests suffer and widespread inconvenience is caused.

Only recently the story became public by means of a court action of the refusal of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company to furnish any power to the Rochester Railway Company, although the former company had plenty of power to sell and the latter company was anxious to buy it at the price asked.

The ground of the refusal was that the railroad company was contesting in the courts a bill rendered by the electric company for subway rentals. The railroad managers contended that the price charged for conduit rentals was exorbitant and proposed to bring the matter fairly before the courts for adjudication.

The electric company put down the screws, however, by refusing to furnish power to run the street cars of the city, although there was no dispute as to the price to be paid for the power, and it held to its refusal until the railroad company paid its subway bill in full, dollar for dollar, and withdrew its defense in court.

How Public Was Inconvenienced.

It will be remembered that as a result of this arbitrary refusal to supply power, which the Rochester Gas and Electric Company had in abundance to sell, the street car service was so woefully inadequate that the newspapers were filled with complaints and the inconvenience was so great as to become a matter of constant and indignant comment. The railroad company was utterly unable to handle the heavy summer business, and as a result it was a daily occurrence for cars to be stalled on the streets for lack of power.

Free band concerts have been given this summer at the various parks for the benefit of the people generally, and liberal contributions were made by public spirited citizens, the fund being disbursed under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. The city itself, through the Park Commission, made a contribution of $50 to the fund.

INTERCITY CONTESTS ON ROCHESTER DAY

Times Aug 28, 01.

Elaborate arrangements are being made for Rochester Day, Sept. 7, at Pan-American Exposition. All indications point to one of the greatest inter-city events in the history of New York State. In Buffalo the event is creating extraordinary interest and the business men and Exposition authorities are working like beavers to make it a red-letter day in the history of the two cities.

The officials of all the railroads, the business men, city officials and Chamber of Commerce officials are putting their heads together and are trying to induce the storekeepers and factory owners to close their places of business on that day. The railroads will have a uniform low rate, making this the cheapest opportunity to visit the Exposition that can be had. When the trains arrive at the Exposition there will be no confusion, as there will be guides furnished to pilot the people all through the big show.

The officials of the two cities are endeavoring to arrange a baseball game between themselves for that day. A big list of athletic games and sports of all kinds will be conducted at the Stadium. An effort is also being made for a game between the Rochester and Buffalo teams of the Eastern League. The electrical display will be a magnificent feature, special electrical surprises being arranged for the entertainment of the Rochesterians in the evening. Magnificent set pieces of fireworks presenting miniatures of Genesee Falls, Driving Park Avenue bridge, Mayor Carnahan and others, will be set off.

Mr. E. J. Costa, who is representing the Exposition authorities in this city, will make his headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce until all the details have been arranged. Mr. Costa brought with him a load of advertising matter which will, within a week, be displayed on every billboard in the city.

For lack of street car accommodations, arising from the arbitrary action of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company in refusing to sell its power to the railroad company, several concerts were practically failures, and on at least two occasions thousands of people who were taken to the parks were obliged to walk home. In numerous minor cases the inconvenience was proportionately as great. In fact, the street car service became so bad that people were unwilling to take chances of going to the parks or the lakeside, fearing they might be unable to reach home at all or only after a long and tiresome delay.

The Blame Fixed.

The managers of the railroad company bore the storm of complaints in silence for a while, until The Herald discovered the real reason and made public the facts which were raised in the court case. Then the public indignation that had been growing against the railroad company was transferred to the electric company and its arbitrary course was roundly denounced on all sides.

But the Rochester Gas and Electric Company cared no more for the public than for the managers of a corporation. The managers of that concern had the chance to squeeze the railroad company and did not propose to let go, no matter what the newspapers and the public said or thought.

The end of the whole matter was that the Rochester Railway Company was brought to terms and forced to pay a bill of $5,000 for conduit rentals, which it regarded as so unjust that it had gone to the courts to contest. The Rochester Gas and Electric Company got its pound of flesh, waiving not one jot because of public indignation and caring nothing for public inconvenience.

When the railroad company paid its conduit bill, the Rochester Gas and Electric Company consented to furnish the extra power that was needed to run the cars during the summer business, 1,000 horse power for six days in the week and 1,500 horse power on Sunday.

Threatened To Shut Off Power Again.

The contract with the railroad company was continued without further friction until yesterday when the Rochester Gas and Electric Company made a discovery. As the result of the discovery it gave the railroad company just one hour's notice to disconnect its wire with the Citizens Light and Power Company, threatening at the end of the sixty minutes to shut off the power it was furnishing the company to run the street cars of the city.

As was described by one who told the story, Manager Nicholl's hair stood on end when he received this ultimatum. As soon as he could grasp his hat and carry the news to the Citizens Light and Power Company and to the electricians of the Rochester Railway Company, the power was turned off and the street car service saved.

The deal between the Citizens Light and Power Company and the Rochester Railway Company, which caused the ultimatum to be issued by the Rochester Gas and Electric Company was a temporary deal of comparatively little consequence. It arose in this way. Last Friday a dynamo at the plant of the Citizens Light and Power Company burned out. It was a small dynamo, generating only 100 horse power. But the capacity of the new company is now so overtaxed, until its big $2,000,000 plant is completed that even this slight loss of power was an inconvenience.

Railroad Company's Friendly Act.

The dynamo did not furnish electric light, but was generating power that was used by a number of small factories and in the running of a number of elevators. To discontinue this power even for twenty-four hours would be rather serious to these factories and stores, however, and as an accommodation, the Rochester Railroad Company let the Citizens company have 100 horse power for a few days until the damage could be repaired.

The managers of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company did not learn of the matter until yesterday, however; then the ultimatum to the Rochester Railway Company followed just as soon as it was possible to write the communication and send it down to the street car offices by a messenger. The Rochester Gas and Electric Company did not propose even for sixty minutes that the Rochester Railway Company should do a friendly act of helping out in case of an accident and thereby saving some factories from inconvenience and preventing the stoppage of some store elevators.

Here was no cash whatever involved. It had the whiprow over the railway company and it proposed to use it, for the sole purpose of causing as much inconvenience to as many small industries and stores as was in its power to do.

Too Late To Make Trouble.

Fortunately for all parties concerned the Citizens Light and Power Company had completed its repairs and when the temporary wire running to the railroad plant was disconnected, the company was in shape again to take care of its own business without asking further help. If the discovery had been made 48 hours earlier, the managers of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company might have succeeded in their purpose to shut down the factories and to stop the store elevators for a few hours. They showed the disposition to do so, when the ultimatum was issued, but the opportunity to do damage had fortunately gone and they had only their trouble for their pains.

It will not be many months longer, however, before Rochester will have all the electricity that is needed to develop small industries and to run all the street cars that will be needed at any time. In addition to the new plant of the Citizens company that will be ready, according to promise, to generate 10,000 extra horse power after January 1, the Rochester Railway Company will have its own arrangements complete and be able to make its own power before another summer season opens.

The time of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company to hold up the public by refusing arbitrarily to furnish power to other corporations that is needed to subserve the general public convenience is growing very short.

Aug 28 01

SHUT OFF POWER.

Controversy Between Electric Companies Leads to a Peculiar Situation.

Manager Nicholl of the Rochester Railway Company yesterday received a message from the Rochester Gas and Electric Company informing him that unless the trolley company discontinued giving power to the Citizens' Light and Power Company the power that was being given the trolley company by the Rochester Gas and Electric Company would cease. Manager Nicholl was given just sixty seconds to inform the Gas and Electric Company of this ultimatum.

After the railroad company paid its conduit bill of $5,000 recently the Rochester Gas and Electric Company announced that they would continue selling power to the railroad company. This relation was continued until yesterday, when the sudden discovery was made that Manager Nicholl never saw the wire with the Citizens' company. There was nothing for him to do but to comply, for had he declined the trolley service would have been so badly crippled that many people would be compelled to walk to and from their homes to-day.

The Rochester Gas and Electric Company's discovery that power was being furnished to its rival, the Citizens' company, was followed by instant demand that it be cut off.

It was a friendly act upon the part of the Rochester Railway Company to furnish the power to the Citizens' company. The capacity of the new company is overtaxed while building its new $2,000,000 plant, especially since a dynamo in the Citizens' company plant burned out last Friday. They asked for 100 horse power and got it. Fortunately for them they have completed their repairs and when the wire was disconnected yesterday they had plenty of power for their uses.

...ESTER DAY AS A CIVIC HOLIDAY

Mayor Carnahan Has Matter Under Consideration.

WILL BE A BIG EVENT

Post-Express Aug 30 01

E. J. Costa Traveling Representative of the Pan-American Expected To-day and Programme Will Soon be Completed.

Everyone is talking Rochester day; even the politicians drop their pet subject now and then, and find rest in the prospect of a different sort of a hot time very near. Everyone in Rochester and Buffalo seems assured of the success of the event, and certain that there will be thousands of people from Rochester at the Pan-American Exposition on the 7th of next month.

There is a possibility that the day will be made a civic holiday, as was Syracuse day in the Saline city. Rochester is rather on her mettle regarding the attendance of this special occasion because Syracuse sent such a large representation. On Syracuse day there were 3,400 citizens of the Saline city in attendance at the big fair, and those having the management of the local celebration in charge agree that it would be beneath the dignity of the Power city to "fall down" now. They say Rochester must and will eclipse Syracuse on the one day set aside as all her own at the big show of the people of the Americas.

The special trains direct to the grounds from this city, with no stops except for water, are to begin leaving at about daylight, and there will be a special out of Rochester at 1:40 P. M. This train is for the accommodation of those people who cannot get away in the morning. The New York Central has announced a ten minutes' schedule during the morning, and the Erie is out with handbills stating that "The Flower city will triumph over all; greeting the Rainbow city 100,000 strong."

Mayor Carnahan was asked yesterday if he would issue a proclamation or whatever was necessary declaring the 7th of September a civic holiday. He said that he would consider the matter, and would secure a copy of the proclamation issued by the mayor of Syracuse for Syracuse day. There is a feeling in the city that the day should be so declared, and that all business should be suspended for the entire day. It is the last of the half-holidays instituted for the first time this year, and the success of the Saturday half-holidays, these agitators argue, should be celebrated by the giving of the entire day of the 7th to recreation and pleasure, and to a trip to the Pan-American. Mayor Carnahan's answer is awaited with interest.

E. J. Costa, traveling representative of the exposition, did not arrive in Rochester yesterday as was expected, but is looked for to-day. His delay was attributed to his not having yet seen Director-General Buchanan in regard to the details for the prospective programme for the day. When he arrives in Rochester he will start at once the work of completing this programme, and also in consulting with the railroad representatives as to the very best manner in which to handle the vast crowds that are expected to leave Rochester that day.

It is earnestly urged by the gentlemen having charge of the arrangements of the day, that people procure their tickets beforehand, and at the city offices. These gentlemen say that if the thousands wait until they get to the railroad stations, there will be delay in getting the people out of the city, and the same will result if the pasteboards are not forthcoming before the morning of the big day.

Mayor Carnahan yesterday received the following letter from Mayor Diehl of Buffalo:

Mayor's Office,
Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 28, 1901.

Hon. George A. Carnahan, Mayor, Rochester, N. Y.:

My Dear Sir: It has given me great pleasure and satisfaction to learn of the efforts which you and the Rochester Chamber of Commerce are putting forth to make Rochester day a brilliant success. I want to assure you that the people of Buffalo are very grateful to you and your people for the active interest they have taken in the Pan-American Exposition enterprise and to pledge that your reception here will be cordial and sincere.

I anticipate much pleasure in meeting you at the exposition and showing you courtesy.

Very respectfully,
CONRAD DIEHL.

The copy below is that of a letter received yesterday by Secretary Ives from the Buffalo Merchants' exchange:

John M. Ives, Esq., Secretary Chamber of Commerce, Rochester, N. Y.:

My Dear Mr. Ives: Our Exchange is advised by the director-general of the Pan-American Exposition that Saturday, September 7th, has been designated and set aside as "Rochester day."

It affords me, therefore, on behalf of the Buffalo Merchants' Exchange, great pleasure to express the sentiment that this movement on the part of the Chamber of Commerce and citizens of Rochester to come in a body to Buffalo, will present an opportunity in which the cities of our cities may become better acquainted and more closely identified in promoting the welfare of Western New York, as our cities have much in common.

Our Merchants' Exchange will be exceedingly pleased to extend to you any courtesy at its command and extend to you the use of our rooms and any privileges we may have which will be the means of making Rochester day a banner day at our exposition.

Very truly yours,
(Signed.) F. HOWARD MASON.

The billboards of the city are receiving attention from the advertisers of Rochester day. Large bills giving a general outline as far as arranged, are being pasted thereon, while small bills and other forms of advertising are being distributed broadcast. Nothing will be left undone to make the affair a success, and if pains and money count for anything, a great army will leave Rochester on the 7th of September, and the exhibition grounds, the halls and the Midway will be like the streets of Rochester on a Saturday night, because of the similarity of the faces and the number of people.

August 29 1901
HERALD, SATURDAY

ONE WEEK AWAY

Preparations for Rochester Day Nearing Completion.

MANY SHOPS MAY CLOSE

Secretary Ives Negotiating With Manufacturers With That End in View—Letter From Buffalo Merchants' Exchange — No Band Concert on Rochester Day.

One week from to-day is Rochester Day at the Pan-American.

Thousands of people in this city are looking forward to the event with pleasure. Plans are being made for a general outing of the city and it will be the biggest "picnic" party that ever left here on a train.

As the date approaches a general feeling of anticipation is felt. Almost everyone is asking his neighbor if he or she intends to make the trip. It makes no difference whether one has already visited the Pan, the paramount question is, "Will you go on Rochester Day?"

Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce stated yesterday that he believed a number of the big manufactories would close on that afternoon so as to give their help a chance to go to Buffalo. Some of the small stores, aside from the big commercial houses will be closed on that day, too.

District Passenger Agent Parry of Buffalo, representing the New York Central, was in consultation with District Agent Kalbfleisch and Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon. He offered several suggestions that may be of value. Buffalo, he said, was making a great effort to royally entertain the Rochester guests.

Mr. Ives yesterday canceled the date for the band concerts in the parks that day, so that there will be no counter-attraction here.

While speaking of the band concerts Mr. Ives stated that the Chamber of Commerce is in need of money to continue the concerts during the month of September. There are five Sundays and four Saturdays in the month and it was the intention of the Chamber to give a concert on each day, making nine in all.

Only enough money is on hand to give six concerts. About $100 more is needed. Subscriptions are solicited from those in favor of continuing the amusement. Assemblyman Adolph J. Rodenbeck sent $5 yesterday to Mr. Ives to be added to the fund.

Representative Costa of the Pan-American was expected in this city yesterday with the programme which has been arranged for Rochester Day. He did not come. Director General Buchanan has told him to spare no money to entertain the Flower Cityites.

The following letter was received by Mr. Ives yesterday from the Merchants' Exchange of Buffalo:

John M. Ives, Secretary Chamber of Commerce, Rochester, N. Y.:

My Dear Mr. Ives: Our exchange is advised by the director general of the Pan-American Exposition that Saturday, September 7, has been designated and set aside as Rochester Day.

It affords me, therefore, on behalf of the Buffalo Merchants Exchange, great pleasure to express the sentiment that this movement on the part of the Chamber of Commerce and citizens of Rochester to come in a body to Buffalo, will present an opportunity in which the cities of our cities may become better acquainted and more closely identified in promoting the welfare of Western New York, as our cities have much in common.

Our Merchants' Exchange will be exceedingly pleased to extend to you any courtesy at its command and exteeds to you the use of our rooms and any privileges we may have which will be the means of making Rochester Day a banner day at our exposition.

Very truly yours,
F. HOWARD MASON.

ROCHESTER DAY

At the Pan-American Will be an Unbroken Flower City Display.

Rochester, Aug. 30.—Now that it is certain there will be no crowding and discomfort on Rochester day at the Pan-American to those who make the journey to the Pan-American Exposition there is little doubt but that there will be a large number of excursionists on that occasion. Trains will be run every 10 minutes commencing at 6 o'clock a. m. and be continued until all the passengers are accommodated. This system has been adopted by the New York Central in order to avoid all overcrowding. The trains will be sufficiently far apart to avoid all possibility of danger and absolute safety is assured. Rochester day will be an event long to be remembered. All Buffalo is going to take part in entertaining the people of the Flower City. There will be great games and other contests in which the officials of the two cities will take part. All who can, should swell the company with their presence on the trip so as to make the biggest kind of a showing possible for the honor and glory of our city.

ROCHESTER DAY.

Railroad Officials Doing Their Best to Make It a Success.

There is no reason to fear that the railroad people will do anything to prevent the success of Rochester day at the Pan-Am on Saturday next. Their reduction of the rate showed their wish to help it along.

They are making every effort to make the travel on that day as large as possible. They will make preparations so that the people need not fear any lack of transportation facilities, nor even any inconvenience from crowding on the trains.

There seem to be now sufficient trains on the schedule for the day to accommodate all who wish to go. The inquiry has been so large, however, that provision is being made for accommodations beyond the extra accommodations already provided, for District Passenger Agent Kalbfleisch of the Central is desirous of beating the record made by Syracuse, where 2,700 tickets were sold on the Central for Syracuse day.

As an indication of how the railroads are willing to do business on that day, the Central and West Shore will run special trains beginning at 6 a. m. and every ten minutes thereafter until all passengers are accommodated. An additional train is scheduled for 1:40 p. m. for those who are unable to leave in the morning. To those who hesitate about going the railroad ticket agents are saying that this is the lowest rate to the exposition that has prevailed or will prevail during the time it is open.

Eighteenth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY
DOSSENBACH'S BAND,
THEODORE DOSSENBACH, DIRECTOR,
AT GENESEE VALLEY PARK,
Sunday Afternoon, Sept. 1, 1901,
FROM 3 TO 6 O'CLOCK.
Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program. . . .

PART I.

AMERICA.
1. OVERTURE—Poet and Peasant, - - - Suppe
2. DANCE—Tomahawk, - - - - Herman
3. SELECTION—Foxy Quiller, - - - de Koven
4. THE NEW BORN KING—For Trombone, Parker
Mr. H. Herbst.
5. HUNGARIAN—Fantasia, - - - - Tobani
6. DOMINICALE—March Religioso (New) Chambers

PART II.

7. OVERTURE—William Tell, - - - - Rossini
8. CLARINET SOLO, - - - - - Selected
Mr John Phaff, Jr.
9. SELECTION—Fiddle Dee-Dee, - - Stromberg
10. DOUBLE QUARTETTE—
{ Praise Ye the Father. } Arr. by Theo. Dossenbach
{ Nearer, My God, to Thee, }
11. MEDLEY—Liner, - - - - - Mackie
12. "From Fireside to Battlefield," - - Dalbey
(Reminiscence of the War.)
Camp at Home—Roster; Crow—Church Clock—Reveille—Mess Call—March to Train The Soldiers' Farewell—By Train to Battlefield—At Scene of Battle—Union Band and Confederate Band (in distance) playing alternately—Taps Assembly—(Just Before the Battle, Mother)—Commence Firing—Cannon—The Battle—Retreat.

("Star Spangled Banner.")

When you are through with this Program, do not throw it on the Park Grounds, but in the receptacles for waste.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

American Seed Trade Association

The Nineteenth Annual Convention, Held in Rochester, N. Y. June 11, 12 and 13, 1901

A SEED sown in Chicago a year ago blossomed a full blown flower the other day in Rochester. The seed was the ballot naming Rochester as the meeting place for this year's convention; the flower was the open handed hospitality which welcomed and made each visitor entirely at home. It seemed very proper that Rochester should be the meeting place—probably more people know it as a seed town than as anything else; and could any town want more graceful or fragrant memory in the minds of American people? However, as a matter of fact rather than sentiment Rochester has many interests that lead the seed business, some of which have developed great magnitude in scarcely more than a dozen years.

A word, then, about our busy hostess, who, however, took ample time to show her most gracious side to her guests.

What Rochester Is.

It is a handsome city; its business streets are metropolitan; its residences both elegant and homelike; and it is a busy city, as these facts attest:

First city in the world in producing photographic apparatus, optical instruments, seeds and nursery stock.

It has the largest preserving establishment in the world; largest cider and vinegar establishment; largest button factory; largest lubricating oil plant.

It is the third city in the United States in the manufacture of clothing and fourth in the manufacture of boots and shoes.

In other circles it is famous for its beer and flour. In fact, it was once called the Flour City, then the Flower City, but now the Power City, and this last because the prodigal power of the twin falls of the Genesee have been partially curbed and harnessed to dynamos developing the strength of over 30,000 horses. Small wonder its people are proud of their town. Coming from a newer and less perfectly administered municipality, its cleaner streets and the many evidences of better city government, were like a Lake Michigan breeze after a week of sultry weather.

Convention headquarters were at the Powers, a well conducted, modern hotel. The meeting rooms furnished by the house were wholly inadequate and were abandoned for the spacious and elegant assembly hall of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, which, by the way, is a model institution, ably managed by Secretary Jno. M. Ives, whose courtesy never failed to furnish any needed information. Similar organizations in other cities would find it an advantage to investigate the working of this association and adopt some of their up-to-date methods. Especially is their literature commended as models of its kind.

The A. A. representative at the convention found many friends of a year ago, and made many pleasant new acquaintances. The executive sessions were largely attended, and well directed by Pres. Albert McCullough. This was Mr. McCullough's second term; ten years ago he served in the same capacity. It is a great credit to the Seed Trade Association that such men as Mr. McCullough maintain a constant and active interest in its affairs.

The subjects discussed were all practical and were well presented by the several gentlemen assigned that responsibility. The careful attention given to them was an earnest of the spirited and intelligent discussions that invariably followed.

A singularly interesting feature was the paper by Mr. C. L. Allen, of Floral Park, N. Y., on "Facts Pertaining to Plant Life," read on Tuesday evening at the open meeting, which was largely attended by the visiting ladies. Mr. Allen is a reverent student of the divine plan in plant life and his remarks were closely followed by all present.

Wednesday was full of good fellowship; in the morning the ladies were entertained by Mrs. C. H. Vick, on a carriage ride about the city and to the State Industrial School, the domestic features of which proved especially interesting to them.

At four the entire party left the hotel on coaches for a ride which covered many points of great interest. Later in the day, the theater party and the gentlemen's smoker at the Rochester Club enabled all to test real Rochester hospitality.

But that was not all. The next day came that beautiful trolley ride through the country to Glen Haven, the boat trip to the Newport House, all of which was a splendid sauce for the bountiful dinner that waited.

The Association honored itself and Mr. J. E. Northrup by electing him President for the ensuing year. The Twin Cities of the northwest were selected for the next Convention. Other officers elected were: S. F. Leonard, Chicago, First Vice President; F. H. Ebeling, Syracuse, Second Vice President; S. F. Willard,

Union & Advertiser

SEPTEMBER 3 1901.

ROCHESTER DAY PROCLAIMED

People of Rochester Urged to Make Saturday Next a Civic Holiday.

Great Preparations to Carry Crowds Being Made on All Roads to Buffalo.

Trains to Run Every Ten Minutes Until All Who Want to Go Are Accomodated.

Additional Specials to be Run Out in the Afternoon for the Benefit of Store Employees.

Mayor Carnahan this morning issued the following proclamation by which it will be seen that he, recognizing the sentiment in favor of making Rochester day one of the days long to be remembered by the people of Buffalo, has decided to do all in his power to excite interest in the occasion. The mayor's proclamation reads as follows:

Mayor's Office,
Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 3, 1901.

To the People of Rochester:

The Pan-American Exposition in our sister city of Buffalo was inaugurated and has been maintained to further the material interests and prosperity of the American people. Citizens of Western New York should welcome any opportunity to contribute to the success of the exposition, which is so significant of the energy and enterprise of this section of the Union.

In response to public sentiment I urgently request the people of Rochester to make a civic holiday of Saturday, September 7th, in order that all may have an opportunity of going to Buffalo on that day.

Let Rochester make the greatest showing of any city in the state.

GEORGE A. CARNAHAN, Mayor.

The railroads of Rochester are making preparations to carry great crowds on Rochester Day, next Saturday. On the Central special trains will begin running at 6 o'clock in the morning. From that time on, until all the people who want to go to the Exposition City by that line have been accommodated trains will be run out of the station to Buffalo every ten minutes. Director Kalbfleisch is prepared to have a string of trains all made up reaching from the Central station to East Rochester and no train will be permitted to carry more passengers than can be accommodated. At 2:40 in the afternoon another lot of specials will be in line and all who come at that time will be accommodated in the same way trains being sent out every ten minutes until the crowd is all taken care of. Trains will leave Buffalo, Exposition grounds station, every ten minutes after 8 o'clock to bring the crowds home. Mr. Kalbfleisch says that there will be no crowding on the Central as he will have enough trains made up here when the first one starts to accommodate all who may want to go.

The Erie will start its first special at 5:30. Additional specials will stand in the yard at that time to take all who come in excess of the number that can be accommodated on the first train. The Erie will run the home trip on the same plan, trains standing ready to start at the Exposition station on the Central.

The Lehigh Valley road will also have specials waiting in its yard, so that overcrowding of trains ought to be entirely done away with on Rochester Day.

The rate on all the roads in honor of the day is $1.15 for the round trip. No doubt several thousand Rochesterians will take advantage of the low rate offered and the unsurpassed accommodations to be afforded to make a visit to the Pan-American. It is a great show, and the railroads ought to do a record-breaking business on that day.

ROCHESTER DAY

POWER CITY

QUEEN CITY

PAN- AMERICAN EXPOSITION

Saturday, Sept. 7, 1901

BELT LINE HEARING BOOKED FOR TO-DAY

Promoters of the Road Look for Little Opposition.

PROSPECTUS OF ROAD

Route to be From Monroe Avenue at City Line Out to Fairport and Back to Main Street East at the City Line.

Another hearing on the application of a proposed electric railroad for a franchise to build, equip and maintain a line is to be held in this city. To-day it is the Monroe County Belt Line Company that will ask the state railroad commission for a franchise and, as usual, there will probably be some opposition from at least one steam road. The hearing will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in a parlor of the Powers hotel. The Belt Line company has in it several Rochester men. Application for a franchise was made recently and this is the first hearing to be held in the matter. Hon. Mercon E. Lewis, attorney for the Belt Line company, will look after the interests of the proposed road.

There may be something significant in the remark made by Mr. Lewis last night when he was asked if he expected opposition from the Rochester-Syracuse line. He said that he did look for opposition from that quarter. He said there had been a hint that the New York Central would oppose the belt line route. The Central is fighting all the trolley lines, and it is not strange that the belt line is no exception. Little is expected of any opposition that the Central may raise, however, as the trolley road would parallel the steam road only a short distance.

Regarding the remark of Mr. Lewis that he looked for no opposition from the Rochester-Syracuse line, it may be that the two roads have come to an understanding, as they have been fighting each other in all the villages through which both would pass. At the various hearings before the town boards to which either one of the roads has applied for a franchise the opposing road had representatives present and fought the request.

Mr. Lewis said last night that the Rochester-Syracuse road might make use of the tracks of the belt line from Fairport to Rochester. This proposition was made to the belt line people by the Rochester-Syracuse promoters, but the belt line people did not look upon it with favor.

The prospectus of the belt line road states that the principal object in the construction of the road is to furnish cheap, rapid and easy communication between the villages of Fairport, Pittsford, Penfield and Despatch. The road as projected will pass through the town of Brighton twice, and through the towns of Penfield, Perinton and Pittsford, giving service to an aggregate population of 24,000 people. The prospectus states that there are 9,000 people living within half a mile of the proposed road.

The document states that Rochester is almost lacking in suburban sections where a person can live the entire year with easy access of the city and be employed in the city. There are plenty of pleasure resorts, but few suburban home resorts. The new road, it is claimed, would open up many such sections.

The proposed route is in the shape of a loop or horseshoe with one terminal at Monroe avenue and the city line and the other at Main street east and the city line. The village of Fairport is in the center of the loop. From the Main street terminal it is proposed to run cars on the hour and from the Monroe avenue terminal on the half hour. Thus a car would leave the Main street terminal at 7 o'clock and the Monroe avenue terminal at 7:30 o'clock, going in opposite directions round the loop. The run to Fairport each way would be made in about half an hour, and thus the village would have a half hour schedule with Rochester.

The line from the Main street terminal will pass through the northern part of the village of Fairport and through what is known as the Holland settlement. The route from the Monroe avenue terminal will be through the town of Brighton, past the yards of the Rochester Brick and Tile Company and through the settlement known as the Twelve Corners. There is a chance for a summer resort at the ravine on the Irondequoit creek. On beyond Despatch the road will run by the site of the Mechanic Despatch Transportation Company plant, where 300 men are employed.

The construction of the road will be steam-road standard, as only private

IS CERTAIN TO BE A BIG DAY

ROCHESTER TO TAKE A TRIP TO BUFFALO SATURDAY.

CITY TO SHUT UP SHOP

THAT WILL BE DONE IF MAYOR'S SUGGESTION IS FOLLOWED.

EVENTS OF THE DAY

Tentative Programme Shows Many Interesting Features — Railroads Are Preparing to Carry Thousands of Rochester People to Exposition Grounds.

There were important doings yesterday in preparations for Rochester day at the Pan-American Exposition. Mayor Carnahan issued a proclamation recommending that Saturday next be made a civic holiday, that all may be able to improve the opportunity to attend the great fair. In addition to this action, which is expected to do a great deal towards making the occasion a grand success, the general programme of the day was received from E. J. Costa, traveling representative of the exposition, by Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce. The arrangements so far made for the occasion are satisfactory to those local gentlemen having the matter in charge and their expectations of a big crowd from Rochester are to be realized, they believe.

The action of the mayor in calling upon the people to observe the day as a civic holiday will have, it is believed, a healthy influence on the size of the Rochester day crowd. With the stores and shops closed all day instead of half a day and the people free to go in the morning, instead of having to wait until the afternoon, it is believed that thousands will go where without the holiday hundreds would have gone. The mayor will request the heads of the various municipal departments to close their offices whenever practicable.

The following is Mayor Carnahan's proclamation:

Mayor's Office,
Rochester, N. Y., September 3, 1901.

To the People of Rochester:

The Pan-American Exposition in our sister city of Buffalo was inaugurated and has been maintained to further the material interests and prosperity of the American people. Citizens of Western New York should welcome any opportunity to contribute to the success of the exposition which is so significant of the energy and enterprise of this section of the Union.

In response to public sentiment I urgently request the people of Rochester to make a civic holiday of Saturday, September 7th, in order that all may have an opportunity of going to Buffalo on that day.

Let Rochester make the greatest showing of any city in the state.

GEORGE A. CARNAHAN, Mayor.

Mr. Costa was expected to come to Rochester yesterday, but Secretary Ives received an air-mail-delivery letter from him in which he said he would try to be here to-day. A rush of exposition business has prevented his arrival in Rochester before. He was due here last week. In the letter Mr. Costa sent the tentative programme that has been prepared for the day. It is not complete, but serves to give the readers an idea of what to expect. On Rochester day there will be present at the exposition Kirk's renowned band, of Cleveland, and the Salem (Massachusetts) Cadet band, and Lund's orchestra will give a concert in the Temple of Music. There will be an organ recital by Everett E. Truette, of Boston, in the temple at 2 o'clock. This musical feast, varied to suit the tastes of all, will undoubtedly prove an attraction.

In the great Stadium there will be world's championship sports and field events. Some of the best athletes of the world are to be there on Rochester day, and the games are to be numerous and varied. In the horticultural department there will be an especially handsome display of asters, and the whole display there will be such as to please the tastes of the people from the Flower city.

The life-saving crew will give a drill at 2 o'clock, and the soldiers of the regular army will go through difficult and interesting maneuvers at 6 o'clock. There will be an aquatic carnival on the lake front just in the afternoon, and the water acrobats are said to be wonderful. In the evening Pain's Fireworks Company will give a $2,000 display, reproducing in colors a likeness of Mayor Carnahan and of the Genesee falls. This display will be given immediately after the grand illumination of the grounds and buildings at 8 o'clock.

Mayor Diehl, of Buffalo, and the common council of the Rainbow city, will be at the railroad station to meet the mayor of Rochester and such other city officials as may go, together with the untitled citizens of the Flower city. Through the efforts of Secretary Ives everyone who goes to Buffalo from Rochester on Rochester day will wear a handsome white silk badge. A badge will be given with every railroad ticket purchased on any road running out of Rochester. The Chamber of Commerce is able to give the badges away because the silk, the printing and the pins with which to fasten them to the wearers were given to the chamber. The silk was given by the Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Company and Burke, Fitz Simons, Hone & Company, the pins by Beadle & Sherburne Company, and the printing by the Union and Advertiser Company.

While it is estimated that the crowds out of Rochester will be very large on Saturday and the railroads are making arrangements to meet this sort of a demand for accommodations, it is suggested that business men send into the Chamber of Commerce estimates of the number of their employees who expect to make the trip. This can be done by telephone message, postal card, or otherwise, at the convenience of the employers, but early advices are hoped for. The stationary engineers will swell the crowds some 500. The national convention now being held in this city closes Saturday and about 500 delegates and their families will make the trip to the exposition.

The railroads are getting ready for a bigger business than they have done in many a year. At 6 o'clock A. M. the New York Central will have trains ready to start and they will leave as soon as filled. Every passenger will be provided with a seat. If necessary, trains will be run every 10 minutes, for a line of them will stretch down the track to the east, and as one train is filled another will move up and take its place in the train house. There will be about twelve coaches to a train. The trains will run through to the exposition grounds without a stop. The Erie will have trains ready at 5:30 A. M., and, like the Central, they will run as often as the crowds demand, and straight through to the exposition. The 10-minute schedule will be in force if it is found necessary. The Lehigh Valley will start its first train out of Rochester for Buffalo at 5:30 A. M., and there will be three trains before 8:30 A. M. The Rochester special on the Central will run in two sections, the first at 7:30 A. M. and the second at 1:40 P. M.

READY FOR THE INVASION OF BUFFALO

Herald Sept 4, 1901

Rochester Is Ready to Go in Such Force to the Pan-American Exposition on Saturday That All Other Days Will Will Sink Into Comparative Insignificance--The Programme.

It will be no ordinary occasion when the people of Rochester swoop down upon the neighboring tribe of Buffalo. This will be one of the events of the new century; something to be remembered for years and told to the children of the present generation who may be too late to participate.

Saturday next will be the date of the excursion, and it will not be necessary to paste it in your hat, because it is already imprinted on the cerebellum of all patriotic Rochesterians. There have been many kinds of days at the Pan-American Exposition. Various states and cities, not to speak of great men and separate branches of art and industry, have been honored that way. But no other day can compare with the glories of Rochester's occupation of the show grounds. This city is so near to the Bisons that too much cannot be done to show that Rochester is very much on the map.

While Rome and Carthage had their conflicts in ancient days, it is the intention to show that there is an eternal pact of friendship between the two great cities of Western New York. There is no ungenerous rivalry. The City of Flowers and Kodaks is proud that its sister on Lake Erie is giving a great show and visitors are getting more than the value of their money every day. When the Pan-American was undertaken by its neighbors, this city was satisfied that the plan would be carried through to the magnificent success it has attained, and there was as much confidence in the result as if the work were directly in the hands of Rochester's own enterprising citizens.

Animated by these sentiments, the Rochester Chamber of Commerce is leaving nothing undone to demonstrate to the world its pride in itself and in its neighbor. The standing committees are at work, so that all the machinery of the organization is moving to make the excursion everything that it should be. Upon John M. Ives, the secretary, D. B. Murphy, chairman of the railroad committee, and J. C. Kalbfleisch, the Central Railroad's passenger representative, fall the heavier shares of the labors, and it is well that this is so, because it is doubtful if in any city could be found three men who have more executive ability to the square inch in their make-up than the three mentioned.

Mayor Carnahan has come to the front with a proclamation that will make the day a civic holiday as far as the authority of the city's chief magistrate can go toward this end. It reads as follows:

Mayor's Office,
Rochester, N. Y., September 3, 1901.

To the People of Rochester:

The Pan-American Exposition in our sister city of Buffalo was inaugurated and has been maintained to further the material interests and prosperity of the American people. Citizens of Western New York should welcome any opportunity to contribute to the success of the exposition which is so significant of the energy and enterprise of this section of the Union.

In response to public sentiment I urgently request the people of Rochester to make a civic holiday of Saturday, September 7, in order that all may have an opportunity of going to Buffalo on that day.

Let Rochester make the greatest showing of any city in the state.

GEORGE A. CARNAHAN, Mayor.

Mr. Costa, the traveling representative of the Pan-American Exposition was expected in the city yesterday but sent word that he was detained and will reach here today. He will then remain, co-operating with the local committee in its arrangements, until Saturday. The programme of special events for Rochester Day has been sent to the local committee by Mr. Costa. It includes the following:

Music by the Kirk Band of Cleveland and the Salem Men's Cadet Band. Lund's Orchestra will play in the Temple of Music. There will also be an organ recital by Everett T. Truette of Boston.

In the Stadium there will be a number of world's championship events.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the life saving drill of the United States corps will be given.

There will be an artillery drill by the United States troops at 6 o'clock.

There will be a carnival on the water and mid-summer acrobatics during the afternoon.

In the evening, after the electrical illumination, there will be a $2,000 display of fireworks by Paine. Pictures of Mayor Carnahan and the Genesee Falls will be exhibited.

The Chamber of Commerce will distribute 2,000 badges at once, giving one to each person buying his ticket. The badges are of white silk and the lettering is in blue. They are 2 1-2 inches wide by 6 inches long. The silk was donated by Burke, Fitz-Simons, Hone & Co. and Sibley, Lindsay & Curr; the safety pins by Beadle & Sherburne Co. It is expected that many will buy their tickets in advance and by wearing the badges will help to swell the enthusiasm.

While sentiment dictates the general observance of this event the committee, of course, realizes that in all excursions the element of cold cash enters, so it is believed that the round trip rate of $1.15 made for this day only will prove attractive to the people. Passenger Agent Kalbfleisch has ingeniously prepared an advertisement in which a pretty child is pointing at a sign, reading: "Yes, I am going via New York Central lines to the Pan-Am. Expo., Rochester Day, September 7, $1.15 round trip." Trains on the Central will begin running at 6 o'clock in the morning and from that time there will be a train every ten minutes as long as there are people to go on them. Mr. Kalbfleisch says that he is ready to have a string of trains from the Central Avenue station to East Rochester as it is determined that there shall be cars enough so that all may have seats. At 1.40 o'clock in the afternoon another string of trains will be started. The trains on the return will start at 5 o'clock and run every ten minutes until the crowd has been taken home.

The Erie will start its first special at 5:30 o'clock in the morning and there will be additional trains in the yard ready for all who cannot take the first one. The Lehigh will also have extra trains waiting in the yard so that there will be no overcrowding.

Secretary Ives requests that where practicable owners of factories notify him of the approximate number of employes who will go, as it will facilitate the work of the committee to have an estimate of the attendance.

[illegible] shop [illegible] day, chal[illegible] inspection [illegible]
Commerce with

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Herald Sept. 5, 1901

Interesting Figures Of the Yearly Consumption and the Cost--Light, Heat and Power in the Flower City.

One chief reason for Rochester's industrial prosperity is her accessibility to the coal fields and the direct railroad connection therewith. These circumstances do not reduce the price of either soft or hard coal to as low a point as they should, but still the difference is felt so appreciably that we are able to compete here successfully in many lines of manufacture, reckoning on the saving in coal as an important cogin of vantage and a considerable item in profit. The price of soft coal varies according to the quantity used, the skill with which contracts are negotiated and freight rates secured and the quality of the coal itself. Most large consumers buy it direct from the mines and do not let in the middle man. Careful inquiry among a large number of dealers and both large and small consumers shows that bituminous coal costs on the cars at the freight yards all the way from $2.20 to $2.45 a ton and that the cost of cartage to the place of consumption averages about 25 cents per ton. The quality of coal at $2.20 is not of the best and many large consumers find it to their advantage to pay the higher price for a better quality.

According to the most carefully prepared estimates and computations made upon the basis of inquiries instituted by the Chamber of Commerce, Rochester last year consumed 643,000 tons of bituminous and 360,000 tons of anthracite coal. These figures make no account of the vast quantities of coal sent through Rochester as a distributing station or exported from the port of Charlotte. Their aggregate of 1,003,000 tons is something stupendous. A ton of anthracite coal occupies about 35 cubic feet of space, and there are about 70 pounds of bituminous coal to the cubic foot. The coal, therefore, consumed by Rochester last year would amount to 12,600,000 cubic feet of anthracite coal and 18,371,428 cubic feet of soft coal, a total of 30,971,428 cubic feet. To hold that quantity of coal would take a bin 500 feet long, 200 feet wide and 200 feet high. If spread out over the ground at a depth of two feet it would cover an area a mile long and half a mile wide or approximating the space between Main and Alexander Streets, East and Monroe Avenues.

It costs Rochester annually a quarter of a million dollars to cart her coal supply from the cars to the factories and homes of her consumers, making no account of what is paid by householders for "carrying in" coal.

The average retail price of anthracite

ROCHESTER BURNED LAST YEAR:

Bituminous coal	643,000 tons
Anthracite coal	360,000 tons
Total consumed	1,003,000 tons
Total annual coal bill about	$3,500,000

This amount would occupy in space 30,971,428 cubic feet
It would fill a bin 500 x 300 x 200 feet.
It would generate 133,333 horse power ten hours a day the year round.
It would run 250,000 arc lamps of 2,000 candle power for twelve hours a night the year round.
Continuous water power would be worth $700,000 a year.

is about $5 a ton, taking into account of the fluctuations and prices paid by large consumers. This makes our coal bill for hard coal $1,800,000 annually. Taking $2.50 a ton as the average cost of soft coal the city's manufacturers pay a coal bill annually of $1,607,500, making Rochester's total annual coal bill in the vicinity of three million and a half dollars.

As coal is cheaper here than in other places not so close to the coal fields and yet whose other conditions are comparable, that is to say the Middle West and Eastern New York and New England, by from 20 to 30 cents per ton for manufacturing coal and even more than that for hard coal, one can figure that business here starts about a quarter of a million dollars to the good on the coal bill.

The amount of coal used in generating power varies so largely with the kind and quality of machinery that it is difficult to form any estimate of the power to be generated by our coal supply. With the most approved machinery and facilities two pounds of a good quality of coal can be estimated to produce one horse power per hour, while in most factories it will average as high as four pounds per hour to the horse power. Even at this rate, Rochester's coal supply in terms of horse power would generate something in the neighborhood of 133,333 horse power ten hours a day the year around. As horse power is worth from $30 to $40 per year for a ten-hour day, taking into account not only the cost of coal, but the other items, some notion can be formed of what the city's water power would be worth were it continuous.

With continuous water power the two races would be estimated to furnish 10,000 horse power each the year around. This would make the annual value of continuous horse power $700,000, or interest at 5 per cent. on $14,000,000. Of course, every plant using water power has to have steam power to supplement it for at least half the year, and this cuts the value of the water power by more than half, as the annual cost

Accessibility to the Coal Fields Furnishes One of the Reasons for the City's Industrial Prosperity.

Rochester every year of a size approximating 500 feet long, 200 feet wide and 200 feet high, and that this annual consumption must continue indefinitely, as long as Rochester is a business and manufacturing center, and when it is further considered that four coal consumption is a mere fraction of the vast quantities consumed even in the state of New York, to say nothing of the Union, some notion may be formed of the anxiety of political economists over the continuance of the coal supply and how direful is the problem with which England is almost brought face to face already. We are told by the physicists that coal is merely the stored-up electro magnetic energy of the sun and that vast storehouses of this energy are daily being poured upon the earth from its great reservoirs of heat and light, and the coming generations may be called upon to solve the problem of harnessing the sun's energy in some form more direct than through the burning of coal. This energy is already being computed and compared with similar known terrestrial energies.

Dr. Lewis Bell recently gave some very interesting comparisons between the efficacy of sunlight and any known earth-born illuminant. In terms of brilliancies in candles per square inch his tabulation is as follows

Source.	Brilliancy.
Sun in zenith	600,000
Sun at 30 degrees elevation	500,000
Sun on horizon	2,000
Arc light	10,000 to 100,000
Calcium light	5,000
Incandescent lamp	200 to 300
Melting platinum	130
Enclosed arc	75 to 150
Welsbach	20 to 25
Kerosene lamp	4 to 5
Gas flame	2 to 3
Candle	3 to 4
Incandescent (frosted)	2 to 3
Opal shade lamps, etc.	.5 to 1

While, however, it is interesting enough to know how long before the world's supply of coal will be exhausted and others take literally "cold comfort" in determining just how many million years it will be before the sun "goes out," for the present day and generation Rochester is as well off as any portion of the country, and better off than many cities, except those in the immediate back yard of the coal fields. Whether or not her citizens get the benefit of her fortunate condition or whether the cost of her illuminants are at all commensurate with the price demanded and paid for them, are questions which the public at present is carefully investigating.

Sept. 5, 1901.
HERALD, THURSDA

MAYOR WILL GO

To Visit Buffalo on Rocheste[r] Day.

MAY SELL GATE TICKETS HERE

Secretary Ives Endeavoring to Have Tickets of Admission Placed on Sale at the Local Ticket Offices—Would Save Time If Done—Mayor Will Travel in Private Car.

Only one day more and then, well then comes the biggest outing Rochester ever had—Rochester Day at the Pan-American.

Up to the present time there has been some tinge of doubt in the minds of many that the day would not be all that it is cracked up to be but the skeptical ones have had their eyes opened wide.

Conservative estimates place the number of people who will visit the Queen City on September 7, at 15,000. Some of the enthusiastic ones think at least 20,000 will go.

If the reports from the ticket agents of the various railroads are backed up by actual facts several thousand tickets have already been sold. The sentiment seems to be infectious all over the city and a tremendous crowd is assured.

Mayor George A. Carnahan will go with the crowd. His Honor will be accompanied by a party of distinguished guests from this city. Nearly all of them will be prominent business and professional men. They will travel in the private car of John N. Beckley, president of the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo railroad. As yet it has not been determined on what train this car will be hitched. It may run on a special train.

Mayor Conrad Diehl and the officials of Buffalo will meet Mayor Carnahan in Buffalo and will extend a royal welcome to them. They will show them throughout the city and incidentally explain how politics is played in that town. So His Honor frmo Rochester will make the trip one of education as well as one for pleasure.

Efforts have been made to have the Common Council members and the Supervisors go in a body. Little success has attended these efforts. Quite a number of Aldermen and Solons will go but as a body there will be no united action.

Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce has written to E. J. Costa, the traveling representative of the Pan-American, for permission to sell admission tickets to the exposition in this city. It is the intention of Mr. Ives to have the tickets on sale at the railroad ticket offices so that persons who go may purchase railroad transportation and tickets of admission at the same time. If this can be done it will save crowding at the exposition gates and it will give the people from this city a chance to walk right in as soon as they get there instead of waiting in line for an hour or so for tickets.

Passengers on the Central railroad can leave as early as 1.20 Saturday morning or 4.05, 4.32, 5.30, 6, 6.55, 7.13, 7.35, 7.50, 8.30, 9.42, 10.15 or 10.55 a. m., or any one of the special trains. They can leave Buffalo at 12.10, 12.30, 2.25, 4.23, 5.15 or 7.25 p. m. or on the special leaving at 1.40 p. m. All passengers will be landed at the exposition terminal.

The Erie will run trains from 5.30 o'clock in the morning. Local crews and local engines will pull the trains. As fast as one train is filled it will start. If necessary they will be run every ten minutes. The trains run direct to the exposition gates.

Band Concert.

By Dossenbach's Band at Seneca Park East, Sunday Afternoon, 3 to 6 P. M.

PART I.

America
Overture—Light Cavalry ..... Suppe
Danse Du Vaudeville—Japonica ..... Stanford
Amicitia—March, new ..... Chambers
Cornet solo—L'st Chord ..... Sullivan
F. Remington.
Waltz—Tales from the Vienna Woods ..... Strauss
Popular Songs ..... Boettger

PART II.

Overture—Zampa ..... Herold
Piccolo solo ..... Selected
Rocco V. Garramone.
Selection—Florodora ..... Stuart
Nautical Fantasia ..... Zobani
Musical episode—In the Black Forest ..... Voelker
Synopsis—Break of day; singing of birds; crowing of rooster; huntsmen's call to arise; chimes and huntsmen's horns in distance, to assemble; mount and start; call to halt and dismount as they arrive at the forest blacksmith shop; the smith at work; call to assemble; drink and sing the champagne song; mount and start; hounds scent game; firing of guns, barking of hounds, etc.; homeward bound.
Star Spangled Banner, with Wagner variations.

ENTHUSIASM INCREASING

Union Sept 6 1901

Rochester Day at Buffalo to be a Great Success.

Mayor and City Officials to Go Up in John Beckley's Private Car.

Buffalo Papers Saying Nice Things About Rochester and Rochesterians Now.

The sale of tickets and inquiries concerning trains at the various railroad offices in this city indicate that Rochester day at the Pan-American Exposition is to be very generally observed and that the roads will be taxed to their utmost to care for the people who are going to take advantage of this low rate offered and the extraordinary number of trains put on for the day. Mayor Carnahan and a number of other city officials with a number of prominent citizens will leave on one of the early trains on the New York Central in the private car of John N. Beckley, president of the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo road. On their arrival at Buffalo they will be received by Mayor Delhi and members of the Common Council. Officers of the Exposition Company will be on hand also and speeches will be made and the bands will play and the crowds will cheer. After that the city officials and distinguished citizens will be driven to the grounds.

The papers of Buffalo are saying nice things and presenting every handsome bouquets at Rochester on account of the enthusiasm which the Rochester Day project has caused. The Commercial yesterday said:

"When Rochester men put their heart into an enterprise things move. It is one of the most honorable distinctions of that alert and progressive community—it's ambition to do things well—a little better than others. "Thorough" might well be the Rochesterian motto if it lives up to that strenuous motto very handsomely. Buffalo and Rochester are neighbors and sisters. They have gibed and prodded and scrapped for years, in season and out, but with no more real hostility than is felt by lion's cubs in their rough gambols. And now, when Buffalo has made the greatest effort of her life and created an exposition that would adorn and glorify any city in the world, Rochester shows how deep and warm are the sentiments of mutual respect and even admiration that bind the two chief cities of Western New York together. From the beginning to this day, but especially since the completion of the exposition the appreciative interest in the undertaking shown by the Rochester press has surpassed that manifested in any other city in the country. Buffalonians have noted the fact with pleasure and will not forget it. Some day they will find occasion to return the kindness with interest. Meanwhile 'Rochester Day,' as we have said, will afford an instructive illustration of the handsome, wholehearted way in which Rochester does things. 'Watch her smoke' and let there be a grand turn-out of Buffalonians to welcome their Rochester visitors."

The official badge for the day has been issued to the railroad offices and everyone buying a ticket for Buffalo for use on Saturday will be given one free of charge. The ribbon is white with letters in blue, and the big line at the top reads "Rochester Day." Above clasped hands is "Power City," meaning Rochester, and below the hands the words "Queen City," meaning Buffalo. The seal of the Chamber of Commerce is on the badge as well as the date and the words "Pan-American Exposition." One of these badges will be given everyone buying a ticket on any road out of Rochester for the exposition excursion on Saturday.

The railroads have all made the rate for the day $1.15, thus reducing round-trip fares 35 cents. Children between 5 and 12 years will be carried for 60 cents. The trains are to run through to the exposition grounds without stop, and tickets will be good Saturday only.

Passengers on the Central railroad can leave as early as 1:20 Saturday morning or 4:05, 4:32, 5:30, 6, 6:55, 7:13, 7:35, 7:50, 8:30, 9:42, 10:15 or 10:55 a. m., or any one of the special trains. They can leave Buffalo at 12:10, 12:30, 2:25, 4:23, 5:15 or 7:25 p. m. or on the special leaving at 1:40 p. m. All passengers will be landed at the exposition terminal.

The Erie will run trains from 5:30 o'clock in the morning. As fast as one train is filled it will start. If necessary they will be run every ten minutes. The trains run direct to the exposition gates.

LATE CARS SATURDAY NIGHT

Union Sept 5 1901

Street Railway Company Ought to Be Prepared to Carry the People Home from Railroad Stations.

The street car railway company ought to be prepared on Saturday night to carry many people over its lines from the depots to their homes. Trains will be pulling out of Buffalo for Rochester from 7:30 on until all are taken out of the town. They will arrive in Rochester about two hours after the start and each depot will be crowded with people anxious to get to their homes.

It will be an easy matter for the street car company to have all the cars needed to carry the big crowds comfortably and quickly, for the number who go up to Buffalo can be easily ascertained during the day and arrangements made accordingly. Those who go on the New York Central will return that way and those who go on other lines will come back on them. It will thus be a matter of no trouble whatever to be ready for the exact number who will come at each one of the railroad stations.

Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce announces that persons desiring to purchase in this city admission tickets to the exposition grounds can do so tomorrow. He had a conversation with Mr. Costa over the telephone today, and as a result of this 1,000 admission tickets will be on sale in the down-town railroad offices to-morrow, where those who desire can purchase them when buying their railroad tickets. It behooves those who want to buy admission tickets in this city to get them to-morrow morning. The tickets were sent through the Traders' Bank.

Rochester Day at the Exposition.

Rochester Day, Saturday, September 7, at the Pan-American Exposition will afford the loyal citizens of the Flower City an excellent opportunity to display their civic pride. To our shame be it said that we have not always, as a corporate body, displayed the proper amount of public spirit in reference to occasions which will tend to benefit the municipality. Here is a golden chance.

The Pan-American authorities, with unusual care, have devoted their energies to making elaborate arrangements for the entertainment of Rochesterians at Buffalo on Saturday. A large number of excellent and really special attractions have been provided, a certain portion of the day's ceremonies have been set apart for formal recognition of the visitors from the city by the Genesee and all has been done in a spirit of sisterliness and generosity on the part of Buffalo that deserves the fullest recognition.

That Rochester Day will be an eventful and profitable occasion for the city of Buffalo and the Pan-American Exposition goes without saying. That it will be inestimably more profitable to each Rochesterian and to the city as a whole, by bringing it effecively to the notice of the whole Western Hemisphere and gaining for it a much-needed advertisement, is equally certain. It only remains for our citizens to rally to the work, and that they will The Times does not doubt.

Especial credit is due to the railroads for the part they have played in making this great opportunity. Special rates have not only been accorded by every railroad running out of Rochester for Rochester Day, but extraordinary conveniences in the way of early trains, purchases of tickets, trains direct to the Exposition grounds and the avoidance of crowding on the cars are assured. The Times Sept 5 1901

It is up to Rochester now.

ER DEMOCRAT AN

ROCHESTER TO GET A MOVE ON

AND THE MOVEMENT WILL BE IN ONE DIRECTION.

TO-MORROW THE BIG DAY

THOUSANDS EXPECTED TO GO TO THE PAN-AM EXPOSITION.

ALL IS IN READINESS

Democrat Sept 6

Railroads Promise to Provide Early Trains for All Who Apply for Transportation—Ticket Offices to be Open To-night—Admission Tickets to be Placed on Sale This Morning.

The idea of celebrating one day as Rochester's own at the Pan-American Exposition has caught the fancy of the masses, and more and more does the occasion promise to be a chorough success. This has been particularly noticeable during the past few days. While at no time has there been a suggestion of failure, the way in which Rochesterians have taken hold of the matter since Labor Day is a pleasant surprise to the gentlemen having the weight of the arrangements on their shoulders. These are Daniel B. Murphy, chairman of the railroad and transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce and Secretary Ives.

Practically all arrangements for the day are made. The mayor and city officials of Rochester will be taken direct to the exposition grounds in a private car, and will be met by Mayor Diehl and other Buffalo officials. There will be a brief wait before the curtain goes up and in the time Mayor Diehl will say things pleasant to the people of Rochester. The show will then begin, and will be on a grander scale than even the usual extensive programme of Saturdays. The expostion officials promise to do all in their power to make the day a pleasant and profitable one to the guests.

The advance sale of railroad tickets has been very satisfactory, and it is believed there will be a rush for them to-day at the city ticket offices. People contemplating going are advised to get their pasteboards early so that there will be no unnecessary delay Saturday. One thousand admission tickets to the exposition will be placed on sale to-day in the Rochester railroad ticket offices. Secretary Ives is to receive them this morning and will immediately hand them over to the railroad men. This is to be done so as to avoid congestion of people at the gates at the grounds. The price of admission is 50 cents.

The electrical display at the exposition is admittedly the finest thing of its kind ever produced. The lights are now turned on at 7:30 o'clock. H. Parry, general agent of the passenger department of the New York Central, of Buffalo, said yesterday, in speaking of the exposition, that the best place from which to see the lights turned on is the triumphal arch bridge, facing the tower. Mr. Parry was in Rochester looking after the Central's interests. A special display of fireworks is made every Saturday night. These are started at 8 o'clock and continue for a little more than an hour.

There is quite a demand for the excursion badges, and probably by to-night there will be hundreds of them on the streets of Rochester. One is given with every railroad ticket. All the ticket offices are to be open to-night until 9 o'clock to accommodate those who are to go to the Pan-American to-morrow. While the $1.15 tickets, special rates for the day, are good going and returning only on Saturday, one can purchase the $1.00 tickets, which are good for two days, or the $1.50 tickets, which hold good from Saturday to Monday, inclusive. Already parties of four and five are procuring their tickets.

By to-night the local railroad stations will have an animated appearance. The from far and near, that there may be companies have been gathering in coaches enough on hand for no matter how large a crowd, and to-night the cars will be run out and lined up so that they can be immediately attached to engines in the morning. From the New York Central station away down to the East Rochester yards there will be one long string of cars.

Strange stories come from Syracuse regarding the early departure of the crowds from that city on Syracuse day. One train load left the station filled with passengers at 3:15 A. M. There is not likely to be so early a start made from Rochester, which is eighty-one miles nearer Buffalo than the Saline city, but if anyone desires he may start before 2 o'clock. The special trains put on for the holiday crowds will be ready at 6 o'clock and the first one on each road will pull out as soon as filled. The schedule followed will depend on the demand for transportation. The Central and the Erie are prepared to run trains under ten-minute headway.

While a few days ago the excursion crowd was estimated at 3,000 to 4,000, 7,000 is the figure fixed upon now. Syracuse sent 3,400 and Rochester is expected to about double that number. The Erie road officials find some satisfaction in the fact that the condition of Main street at the St. Paul street corner makes it necessary for the trolley cars of the Lake and Monroe avenue, the South Clinton and other lines to pass their station on Court street.

The exposition grounds are opened at 8 o'clock in the morning and the first person to clamor for admission to-morrow is expected to be some early-rising Rochesterian with his lunch basket under his arm and his better half at his side urging him on to the fray. The youngsters will be in the immediate rear. The people of the exposition will be thus awakened to the fact that Rochesterians go about what they have to do while the roosters are crowing.

Stationary engineers and their wives to the number of 500 or 600 are going to Buffalo to-morrow by way of the Erie. A special train has been provided for them. The national convention of stationary engineers will close in this city to-day, and many of the delegates and their families will take this occasion to visit the Pan-American.

The Foresters of America and the Independent Order of Foresters from the courts of this city have made arrangements with the Erie to go to the exposition to-morrow. A special train leaving Rochester at 7 A. M. will carry the Foresters and will run through without a stop until the exposition grounds are reached.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Nineteenth Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY
DOSSENBACH'S BAND.
THEODORE DOSSENBACH, Director.

IN SENECA PARK, EAST

Sunday Afternoon, September 8, 1901

FROM THREE TO SIX O'CLOCK

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce

Program

PART I

AMERICA.

1. OVERTURE—Light Cavalry, . . . Suppe
2. DANSE DU VAUDEVILLE—Japonica, . . . Stanford
3. AMICIZIA—March, new, ... Chambers
4. CORNET SOLO—The Lost Chord, . . . Sullivan
   MR. F. REMINGTON.
5. WALTZ—Tales from the Vienna Woods, . . Strauss
6. POPULAR SONGS, ... E. Boettger

PART II

7. OVERTURE—Zampa, ... Herold
8. PICCOLO SOLO, ... Selected
   MR. ROCCO V. GARRAMONE.
9. SELECTION—Florodora, ... Leslie Stuart
10. NAUTICAL FANTASIA, ... Tobani
11. MUSICAL EPISODE—In the Black Forest, . . Voelker

SYNOPSIS—Break of day; singing of birds; crowing of rooster; huntsmen's call to arise; chimes and huntsmen's horns in distance; to assemble; mount, and start; call to halt and dismount as they arrive at the forest blacksmith shop; the smith at work; call to assemble; drink and sing the champagne song; mount and start; hounds scent game; firing of guns, barking of hounds, etc.; homeward bound.

12. STAR SPANGLED BANNER, with Wagner variations.

SPECIAL FEATURES FOR
ROCHESTER DAY
STERLING AMUSEMENTS AT THE PAN-AMERICAN.
BOSTOCK'S
GREAT ANIMAL ARENA
The "BEST" of Them All.

Director FRANK C. BOSTOCK, "The Animal King."

Bonavita's Marvelous Performance—the Talk of the Entire Country.
Morelli's Exhibition with Leopards, Panthers and Jaguars Beggars Description.
THE HUGE ARENA TAXED TO ITS CAPACITY.
EVER INCREASING IN POPULARITY. TEN EXHIBITIONS DAILY.
A Thousand and One Features That All Go To make this EXTRAORDINARY EXHIBITION MORE POPULAR THAN EVER.

CHIQUITA, The Doll Lady

Whose diminutive figure, dignified manner and charming personality have caused the whole world to wonder.

A Superior Attraction that should be seen by every exposition visitor.

"ESAU," The Missing Link

A creature that is so near man that all visitors are forced to believe the Darwinian theory. One of the interesting sights of the GREAT PAN-AMERICAN.

Have a Look
"The Best Show on the Midway."—General Miles.
Wild Water Sports
And Barnes' Fameus
Diving Elks.
Sensational Hunting Scene.

Wild Boar Chase.
Plunging Horses with Riders
Performing Horses and Donkeys.
The Big 25c Show.

ROCHESTER DAY.
This COUPON and 15 Cents
WILL ADMIT YOU.
Cut this out and present it at Ticket office.

E POST EXPRESS:

SEVEN CENTS LESSON

REMARKABLE ADVANTAGES OFFERED BY MECHANICS INSTITUTE.

Young Men Can Receive Technical Instruction of High Order at a Minimum of Expense—Some of Professional Courses Open for Them.

Few persons realize the remarkable opportunities offered by the Mechanics institute to young men who intend to enter the professional world as architects and engineers. This is true not only in point of instruction but also of cost of tuition.

For instance, the finest arrangement at the institute is the night classes, especially organized for persons who are employed during the day and who could not otherwise secure the advantages offered at the institute. Tuition for the term of seven months is given at the low rate of $4. The course includes the same advantages as are offered to the regular graduating classes and instruction will be given two nights a week. The time expended in any of the courses is well invested and a deal of benefit may be acquired in a short period, from fall until spring. The courses are mechanical drawing, architectural drawing, freehand drawing, design drawing and steam engineering.

The course in electricity is given to students at $6 per year. This course is far superior in many respects to the courses taught by various schools of correspondence that charge $60 a term. Many young lads who have taken this course have more than repaid their parents for the amount outlayed by repairing electric bells and wires in their homes, besides helping neighbors.

A thorough knowledge of mechanical drawing is of great importance to all persons who are engaged in mechanical pursuits. It gives a mechanic advantages which make him thorough and secures for him better positions. The course includes geometrical and freehand drawing, machinery drawn from measurements, lettering, blue-printing, and patent office drawing.

The architectural course will not turn out professional artists but will make a person practical in working drawings of buildings, cabinet and other woodwork. The course is beneficial to carpenters, joiners, cabinet makers and architect apprentices.

Freehand drawing may be taught to persons of any age, young or old. It trains the eye more than any other study, and show form and beauty in many objects that are unnoticed by persons in everyday life. A few pencil drawings will sometimes express more than long verbal or written descriptions. Pupils are taught to draw outlines, then perspective is explained. The next step is light and shade. Gradually the pupil's talent is developed, and all may be fairly good draftsmen.

Many boys desire to be steam engineers and the course here has never been equalled. It is intended for steam engineers, firemen and all persons interested in steam engineering. The work will consist of lectures, discussions and problems on steam, boiler, engines, indicator, pumps and condensers.

The institute does not aim to turn out steam engineers, but to give persons interested an opportunity to improve and study in that line.

Secretary Stewart has arranged an entrance slip, with the classes of all the departments printed on it and at the right-hand side is a space where students may check the study or studies they wish to take up. These slips are signed by the pupil and returned to the office. In this manner every student will receive personal attention in any class or classes he may elect. The slip and catalogue are sent to any address upon application.

A popular department of the Mechanics institute is the classes in china painting. In order to accommodate the constantly increasing classes, two new kilns have been placed in the baking rooms. Mrs. Fannie Hurd Lane, who is in Pittsburg with Miss Overly, will have charge of the classes.

Practical instruction will be given in the various branches of china decoration including designing, tinting and all kinds of gold decorating, raised paste, flat gold, gold bronze work, etching, conventional work, color work in fruit, flower, and shell. Students will have every convenience at hand.

Pupils of the institute desiring athletic exercises may attend the Young Men's Christian association athletic courses at a discount of 25 per cent. of the regular fee.

President Rush Rhees of the University of Rochester has obtained advantages for his students in the manual training classes. They may take the course during the college course or as post graduate work.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

A CHAMBER ON ROCHESTER'S ...

Many Rochesterians Went to Buffalo But in a Sober Mood —Interest in the President's Condition Induced the Travelers to Make the Journey, Though They Had Hesitated—Heavy Trains.

Post Express Sept 7, 1901

Sobered by the shock of the great calamity which has fallen upon the nation in the shooting down of its chief executive, but reassured by the reassuring bulletins which came last night from the president's bedside, many residents of Rochester who had planned to go to Buffalo on the occasion of "Rochester day" at the Pan-American exposition started at an early hour this morning. The exodus continued up to noon.

After the news of the attempt at assassination of the president, District Passenger Agent Kalbfleisch, of the New York Central Railway company and the Chamber of Commerce committee were sorely puzzled to know what to do, in the absence of any more definite news as to the president's condition.

When a Post Express reporter called upon Mr. Kalbfleisch at 6 o'clock last night the Central's State street office was filled with people buying their tickets for the exposition.

"If the president is so seriously injured that it will be impossible to remove him from the exposition grounds, or if he should die during the night," said Mr. Kalbfleisch, "Rochester day" would undoubtedly be declared off, but until we know just how serious matters are, I do not believe it would be judicious to put a check on this popular holiday to which our people have been looking forward so long."

Reassuring Message.

At midnight there came a telegram from Buffalo's mayor whose reassuring and cheering contents, quieted the anxieties of the railroad officials and gave warrant for going on with the plans for Rochester day. The message ran as follows:

Buffalo, Sept. 6, 1901.

Mayor Carnahan:

President doing as well as could be expected. Prospects of recovery good. Fair going on. Do not fail to come with your people to-morrow.

(Signed) Diehl.

This bit of news led many to proceed, as planned.

At an early hour citizens were going in large numbers to the railroad stations. Trains that left as early as 4.30 o'clock were loaded to their utmost capacity.

Fully 200 extra passenger coaches were stored in the railroad yards to provide for the unusual crowds. The New York Central alone had about 100 extra coaches and twenty locomotives in readiness.

The local ticket offices reported a total sale of 4,000 tickets last night. Most of the offices remained open until 9 o'clock last night.

Daniel B. Murphy, chairman of the railroad and transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce and head of the Rochester day celebration, received an invitation to go to Buffalo and attend the dinner to be given last night to the president. Mr. Murphy left on the Empire State express and was on the way to Buffalo when the president was shot down.

Early Rush for the Trains.

Many persons took advantage of the first train that left the New York Central station for the Pan-American exposition this morning, when the day was but seven minutes old. A steady stream of excursionists passed through the gates from that time as fast as the trains could be placed in position in the station. Three extra coaches were attached to the train from Clayton, which arrived at 7.50 a. m.

A number of passengers boarded the 12.07 a. m. express, No. 23, which arrived at 4.05 a. m., the two sections of train No. 29, No. 33 and No. 19 West Shore. The host of sight-seers left here on the specials consisting of six trains with ten coaches each and one with fourteen coaches.

The arrangement for handling the people were as nearly perfect as the railroad men could make them. In the departure of at least 6,000 passengers not a mishap was reported. Every car was filled to its seating capacity and then no more were admitted, and when the last special pulled out, the perspiring officials wiped their foreheads and concluded that it was a warm morning.

Groups of pleasure seekers and family parties continued to arrive at the station all forenoon. It was an uncertain day for the railroads and while many citizens went to the Queen city, a number who had intended going postponed their trip on account of the president's condition.

At the Lehigh station early this morning, the scene was almost as lively as at the Central station. Three special trains pulled out with excursionists, at 5.50, 6.35 and 8.25 a. m. Ten extra coaches were put in commission for the day.

The Erie trains were well patronized. Three trains, carrying about 900 excursionists, left the Erie station on Court street this morning, for the Pan-American exposition.

ALL ABOARD FOR BUFFALO

Rochesterians Are Now Ready for the Advance on the Pan-American City---"Rochester Day" Will Be an Event Long To Be Remembered---Tickets of Admission to the Exposition Grounds Can Be Obtained at Railroad Ticket Offices In This City To-Day---What To See on the Midway.

Clear the track for Rochester Day!

General orders have been given by the railroads, by the business men, by the manufacturer, by the employer and by the citizens to this effect.

Twenty-four brief hours and then, hurrah for the big event. There will be an exodus akin to the pilgrimages of the Islams to Mecca and Buffalo will be the Mecca of the Rochesterians. Homage will be paid at the shrine of the Rainbow City.

Arrangements have been practically completed for the day. All that now remains is for the citizens to turn out in a small army and make the crowds that have gone from other cities on favorite days look like the much talked of three dimes.

The announcement was made yesterday afternoon by Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce that tickets of admission would be sold in this city at the railroad ticket offices. A bundle of 1,000 admission tickets was received in this city last night and early this morning they will be distributed to the various ticket offices.

Now anyone can purchase his railroad ticket, buy a ticket of admission to the grounds and get a badge all at once in this city. This will obviate a waste of time at the entrance gates in Buffalo and will be a great accommodation to all who wish to go.

All that is now left to be given visitors to the Pan-American Exposition, as to what they should do when they get there, what they should see, and how they should divide their time, so as to get the most for their money; but perhaps after all, the best advice is just this: take it easy and enjoy yourself. This is especially true now that the crowds have come to the Exposition and everywhere one goes about the buildings, the Midway, etc., one finds throngs of people. These crowds add to one's excitement and increase the impression that the Pan-American is a big thing, if not indeed the biggest that ever happened, in the exposition line. But to rush about in a throng of this kind and try to see everything in one day is the most foolish thing a person can do, especially if it is a hot day, and of course there is hot weather sometimes even in a cool city like Buffalo.

If one makes up his mind at the outset to enjoy himself at all hazards, whether he sees everything there is to be seen or not, and in this spirit of good humor and tolerance goes about prepared to enjoy to the fullest the really wonderful and beautiful things the Exposition presents, he is much more apt to see the Pan-American in an enthusiastic mood than otherwise.

Seeing the people at an exposition is one of the most interesting things one can do, for there is always something inspiring in great crowds, and one learns more from watching the scenes and 'sizing up' the different exhibits in human nature than even in inspecting the exhibits from the Pan-American countries, in the different buildings, interesting and instructive though these exhibitions of course are.

Some people go to the Exposition apparently determined not to enjoy themselves, except as they may find a peculiar kind of enjoyment in picking flaws in everything that is exhibited and finding fault with the management wherever there happens to be the slightest opportunity. Such people complain because the Goddess of Light does not carry a lighted torch, or because somebody has said there were half a million lights in the general illumination, when it is possible this is an over estimate; or, they think the Exposition does not amount to much because the exhibit space is smaller than at the World's Fair at Chicago, not remembering that the latter was a world's fair, while the Pan-American is confined to the Western Hemisphere, and did not set out to eclipse Chicago in mere bigness. Most visitors are free to admit that they never before saw anything to equal the Pan-American in real beauty of architecture and grandeur of night effects.

As to exhibits, it is a fair and conservative statement that never before were the Americas so well presented to human inspection by exhibits of their products, industries and civilization and if this has been achieved, the Pan-American has indeed accomplished its grand object. It is a great satisfaction to the authorities of the Exposition and an encouragement to the stockholders that the crowds are thronging to the Pan-American City and that the sense of prosperity pervades the atmosphere. Four weeks ago, when the average attendance was scarcely 50,000, it did indeed seem somewhat discouraging; but now that 70,000 or 75,000 is a record for an average day which surprises no one, everyone feels happy and convinced that the enterprise upon which the brains and energy of so many have been centered for the past two years is receiving its recognition from the public. It would indeed be wonderful if, with all the spectacles, exhibits, concerts, drills and other special attractions, in addition to the exhibits in the exhibit buildings and the works of art, and above and beyond all the magnificent illuminations, the public did not respond by a generous patronage.

The plan of having special days and special features is working with grand success. It offers an opportunity for people to come from various localities in parties, with especially low rates, and special celebrations, in their honor. Such recent days as those of Michigan, Louisiana, Hamilton and Syracuse days, which occurred during the past two weeks, have demonstrated this, as there were large delegations from all localities represented. Ceremonies in the Temple of Music, where the most gifted of orators drew upon their finest stores of rhetoric, and receptions, banquets, and social functions galore added to the zest of the celebration. With the magnificent display of pyrotechnics on the Park Lake in the evening, the Midway parties, and other features too numerous to mention, it would seem that he would be hard to satisfy who could not get plenty of enjoyment out of the Pan-American. Besides all these special features of the programme, it is planned to have in the future events of a carnival character, in which there will be very elaborate spectacular scenes.

Of course no one person could see all the things on a single day's programme; but as was stated at the beginning, the best way is to see as much as you can enjoy comfortably and let it go at that. Don't try to do as a very calculating lady did, who was accosted by an Exposition guard the other day, in the Bazaar Building. She was standing in front of one of those cases where railroad time tables are displayed for the convenience of visitors contemplating railroad travel. She had collected an armful of time tables, and apparently was not satisfied with what she had. The guard remarked:

"Madam, there is another case of time tables on the other side of the building. If you don't find what you want."

"Oh, is there?" she replied.

"Well, I will go right over and get some more. Do you know?" she said, in a confidential tone, as she pointed to the armful of time tables of all descriptions and kinds, which she carried, "I am getting every single thing I can on these grounds free, for I paid 50 cents to get in, and I'm going to get my money's worth."

SEEN ON THE MIDWAY.

Bostock's Big Show.

The continued prosperity at Bostock's Great Zoological Arena — the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo is no doubt due to the excellence of the exhibition, it being the big feature attraction at the Exposition. The greatness of this show has spread world-wide like a contagion. It is difficult to conceive the mastery of man over the king of beasts such as shown by Captain Bonavita, the Lion Monarch. He displays some marvelous tricks with the twenty-seven lions which he has so carefully educated. Kindness is his method even when dealing with the lordly lion, the king of the brute creation.

There are many other fascinating features, appearing among which are La Belle Selica, the lady from Algiers who does a dance that is soul-inspiring, surrounded by huge denizens of the forest; Princess Brandea, the Cingalese enchantress, who gives a wonderful performance with deadly reptiles, showing what can be done with snakes by one who has studied their habits. She handles boa-constrictors, pythons and anacondas intrepidly, as if they were most harmless; Bobby Mack, the clown, and his unrideable burro "Dynamite" who seems docile enough when Bobby rides him about the mamoth steel arena, although he playfully shoots out his heels with the swiftness and force of the explosive after which he is named, but let a stranger undertake to ride the burro and no sooner is he on his back than he is sent sprawling over his head, while "Dynamite" wickedly cocks one ear over his eye and calmly looks at his victim. Madam Marie Louise Morelli, the "Queen of the Jaguars," the greatest female animal trainer in the world, gives an excellent exhibition with her troup of treacherous, blood-thirsty jaguars, leopards and panthers. They obey her every command, leaping incredible distances in mid-air, making flying leaps from side to side in the huge steel arena, also balancing themselves on large rolling globes—an act of daring and a triumph of the great French lady trainer's art.

National Glass Factory.

One of the most interesting educational exhibits of the Midway is the plant of the National Glass Factory, close to the north end of the Lane of Laughter. The institution of a fully equipped glass factory and the making of glass for commercial as well as ornamental uses is shown in all its interesting and scientific detail. Expert glassblowers with magician's skill create fairy objects of crystal before the visitors' eyes and sometimes they are given as souvenirs to those who visit the place. The rich and handsome dress made of pure white strands of fine spun glass for the famous actor, Maxine Elliott, has elicited expressions of unbounded admiration from thousands since it was placed on exhibition. The little flimy spheres of thin glass blown from long tubes and manipulated into so many beautiful designs delight everyone. The fine work of the glass cutters may be seen at this exhibit in the form of heavy bowls and other articles cut into rich and delicate patterns. All the freak creations of the glassblowers' art are made at this crystal palace, but, apart from that, the purely commercial side of the industry offers an interesting and fruitful object for study. Since it began operation the glass factory has been most liberally patronized by the sightseers and the capacity of the factory is daily taxed by those who desire to see real glassblowing and making.

The Ostrich Farm.

One of the most interesting exhibits on the South Midway, from a feminine point of view at least, is the ostrich farm. Here are seen on exhibition all the birds in this country that are bred for commercial purposes. The birds come from an ostrich farm near Los Angeles, California. This farm is said to be the first successful attempt to import and breed birds in the United States for profit.

The display, too, is one of considerable value, as each of the score of birds is worth from $300 to $500 apiece. The managers of the Buffalo exhibit own the birds, pluck them, manufacture the feathers and market the product themselves.

Some of the finest specimens of ostrich feathers ever seen in the United States are on exhibit at the ostrich farm; the beautiful feathers are a constant center of attraction for the ladies who crowd around the show cases and examine critically the display. Feathers over 24 inches in length are to be seen in the exhibit.

While scientists will be interested in the birds themselves, the hundreds of thousands of ladies who have visited the exhibit on the midway have been especially attracted to the other feature of the display which includes the manufactured product.

The birds are curious specimens of the genus, tall, awkward, ungainly, being valuable only for their feathers. Their habits are peculiar and the farm on which the birds are pastured is of sufficient size so that a very fair idea can be gained of the looks and actions of the birds on their native heath.

There is no doubt but that the ostrich farm will prove one of the attractions that will take the attention of Rochesterians on their visit to the midway tomorrow.

Johnstown Flood.

The sceneograph concession, "The Johnstown Flood" is one of the most attractive productions on the Pan-American Midway. The panorama is 100 feet long and at least 40 feet wide. The large auditorium is darkened and Johnstown is seen as it was on the morning of May 30, 1889. The celebration of the holiday is depicted and then night settles down over the city. The moon is seen coming up and a railroad train loaded with passengers dashes by. The sun soon rises and the city is astir. Trolley cars pass here and there, and soon the populace streams out upon the streets. Suddenly the sky darkens, lightning flashes and thunder rolls. The rain begins to fall, slowly at first and then in mighty torrents. All at once, without warning, a terrible roar is heard, and South Fork dam has burst. Then the indescribable wreck of the city is seen. Debris is piled high, mutilated bodies are seen everywhere, and the flames add horror to the scene. A dark pall falls over all, and for a while everything is quiet. The curtain lifts again, and Johnstown is seen as it is to-day, a thriving, busy city. The Catholic Union and Times says of this concession: "There are many shows on the Midway—some bad, others indifferent, a few really good. The Johnstown Flood is one of the best of the latter. It is really worth seeing."

A Trip to the Moon.

Frederick Thompson's Trip to the Moon is one of the most mystifying and entertaining concessions on the Midway at the Pan-American Exposition. Carrying as many as 250 passengers, the Luna, Captain Xenao Noynd, rises gracefully from her landing dock on the North Midway. Up and forward moves the airship, gaining headway with each sweep of her giant wings, until a speed is attained greater than is possible on terra firma. Faster the vessel glides along and upward, until the objects beneath become pigmy in size and the passengers realize for the first time what a voyage in an airship is like. All at once, and without warning, the airship bursts into a dark, black cloud, blinding flashes of lightning are seen, and deafening roars

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Sept 8, 1901

ROCHESTER SIZED UP BUFFALO'S BIG SHOW

Power City Crowd of 12,000 or so Put in a Day at the Pan-Am.

Attempted Assassination of President McKinley Had Little Effect on the Observance of Rochester Day, so Far as the Attendance Was Concerned—Atrocity, However, Was Plainly on the Minds of All.

"Make way for the distinguished visitors from Rochester!" bawled a Midway spieler, and the ready laughter that followed the sally showed how well the hawker had struck the mark.

It needed no badges to tell that it was Rochester day at the Pan-American Exposition, for the streets and buildings of the mighty fair were crowded with well-dressed men and women who greeted one another at every turn with the cordiality that is known only among the residents of a city of homes. It is saying much for the size of the crowd that went to Buffalo from Rochester when it is stated that the Power city excursionists made a noticeable showing amid the swarming thousands of sight-seers who visited the exposition yesterday.

It was feared that the shocking news of the attempted assassination of President McKinley would overturn all the plans that had been so carefully laid for a reception of extraordinary magnitude to the citizens whose municipal rivalry Buffalo has outgrown, but not forgotten. Late Friday night, Mayor Carnahan was informed by telegram from Mayor Diehl, of Buffalo, that the exercises of Rochester day would be carried out as originally planned, and Agent Kalbfleisch, of the New York Central railroad, went ahead with the arrangements with which he had been intrusted, for the transportation of the mayor and a party of distinguished citizens of this city, who were the guests of George Urban, of Buffalo, and traveled in a special car. It was thought best, however, in view of the condition of the nation's chief executive, to omit the formal welcome to Mayor Carnahan by Mayor Diehl, the latter's response and accompanying exercises. The musical programme in the Temple of Music, the athletic events and other scheduled features of Rochester day were carried out without undue demonstration.

The attendance at the Pan-American yesterday was 61,981, and Rochester furnished about one-fifth of that number. Eight trains had been sent away loaded before the special car containing the Urban party left the Central station at 8:30 A. M., and the supply of Rochester day badges provided by Agent Kalbfleisch had given out long before that time.

The holiday atmosphere that ordinarily surrounds crowds of excursionists was oddly subdued yesterday morning, the Central trainmen say, and a walk from one end of a crowded train to the other revealed scarcely a seat full of anxious people scanning the pages of the Democrat and Chronicle for news as to the likelihood of the president's recovery. During the day everyone stopped in front of the bulletin at the press headquarters, posted by courtesy of Manager Stephen W. Bolles, and anxiously read the latest tidings from the bedside of the wounded man.

It was thought that there would be considerable curiosity manifested by the crowds as to the exact location of the place where Mr. McKinley was shot, and it was evidently a gratifying relief to the exposition management when such a spirit was seen to be lacking in the assemblage. Of course, the shooting of the president was the topic that came most naturally to the lips of those who entered the splendid Temple of Music, but the conversation on the subject was subdued and reverential and there was a total absence of the souvenir-hunting spirit of the vandal. The guards and employees of the exposition were exceedingly discreet in their comments upon the shooting, and appeared to have been warned against talking too much. The exposition is really magnificently policed, and it is said that the management takes greatly to heart the dreadful occurrence of Friday last.

Among the guests of Mr. Urban from this city were Mayor Carnahan, Hon. Frederick Cook, Jacob Gerling, Thomas Lewis, C. J. Hissell, Matthias Kondolf, Eli M. Upton, J. Harry Stedman, W. E. Woodbury, Henry C. Brewster, Fred May, City Engineer Fisher, George W. Archer and J. N. Beckley. The party traveled in the private car of the last named gentleman.

Every Rochester person who has been able to spare the time has taken in the exposition at least once by this time. But yesterday was a special occasion, and it drew out a large number of people who were making their initial visit to the big fair. They all learned one fact, that it may be well to impress upon the low-priced wandering inhabitants of the Power City [illegible]

Darkness and Dawn.

All that is tragic and spectacular is combined in Mr. Dunnavant's Midway attraction, "Darkness and Dawn," on the Midway. Through a long corridor one reaches a reproduction of the Cafe de la Mort of Paris, which is of such interest to visitors to France's fair capital. Here amid shadows of gruesome things that flicker on the walls, bony hands that reach out from the darkness, coffins and tombstones used as resting places a menu is offered to the visitor made up of "stewed scold's tongue," "brimstone wafers," "Kentucky fire-water," etc., and the bewildered spectator is advised to eat, drink and be merry, for he will be a long time dead. Then you reach the door with the famous inscription, "All Hope Abandon, ye Who Enter Here," and like Dante you pass on into mysteries heretofore undreamed of. An underground lake is reached where Charon stands in his boat. The depths and heights of eternal darkness are all about. The flames of the lower regions blaze out and volcanoes throw sulphurous flames aloft. Only those who see can understand. Then amid the darkness comes a glow of light. Gates of mother-of-pearl are thrown open and a golden staircase leads to everlasting light. Strains of music swell on the air, flowers blossom everywhere, fragrance of a thousand blossoms is over all and this is Dawn. This scene is indescribable.

The Land of the Midnight Sun.

A very interesting Midway attraction is the electrical production, "The Land of the Midnight Sun" and the Great Fire at Dawson City. It is best described as a nine days' journey of 3,000 miles, to the far famed Canadian metropolis, Dawson City. One sees the wonders of the mysterious north, the fearful storm at sea, the beautiful moonlight on Puget Sound, the eternal fields of snow and ice, on the way to the golden Klondike. Over the dreaded Chilcoot Pass, down the majestic Yukon River, arriving at Dawson City in the grey of early morning in a blinding snow storm. See the boats plying up and down the river, and when night approaches the houses are lit up one by one, and from the tenderloin district you hear the strains of dance music, where the miners congregate every night and hold high revelry in singing and dancing and merrymaking until the wee small hours of the morning. Suddenly a cry of fire is heard above the din, the fire bells are clanging, the people are rushing blindly through the streets, the flames are seen to be leaping higher and higher, until the entire town is one mass of fire, and the romantic and picturesque mining town is entirely destroyed, as it was on the 10th day of January, 1900. All this occurs just as the Glorious Midnight Sun appears behind Mooseskin Mountains. Everything so wonderfully realistic and thrilling. These wonderful effects are all produced by the aid of 24 marvelous electrical machines and eighteen expert electricians. This is one of the real good attractions on the Midway and should not be missed.

Pan-American and Midway.
The Cora Beckwith Pavilion
North Midway, Next to Filipino Village.

THE WOMAN WHO WILL SWIM THE RAPIDS.

The World's Greatest Swimmer,
CORA
BECKWITH

Champion Trick and Fancy Swimmer of All Europe and Pan-America.

Frederic Thompson's World-Famous Production
A TRIP TO THE MOON
VIA AIRSHIP LUNA
(PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION)

A spectacle surpassing in grandeur all previous attempts of elusive electrical and scenic effects. Praised by more than 1,000,000 visitors. The greatest success known to the amusement world.

Street

CONVENTION OF RAILWAY MEN

OPENED YESTERDAY WITH A LARGE ATTENDANCE.

LISTENED TO PAPERS

SEVERAL INTERESTING SUBJECTS HANDLED BY EXPERTS.

BANQUET IN EVENING

Delegates and Ladies Enjoyed an Elaborate Dinner at Ontario Beach—Business and Pleasure to be Continued To-day—Notable Gathering of Practical Street Railway Men.

The nineteenth annual convention of the Street Railway Association of the State of New York was opened yesterday forenoon in Fitzhugh hall. The session was mainly given up to the reading of papers pertaining to street railway service, but the railway men took time to adopt resolutions expressing sympathy for President McKinley, condemnation of the crime of Czolgosz and desire for legislation by the federal government and the states for the repression of anarchy. President G. Tracy Rogers, of Binghamton, presided.

It was found impossible to crowd all the papers and their discussion into the morning hours, so an after dinner session was held, lasting until 5 o'clock. The ladies were given a tallyho ride about the city, visiting the parks and the lower falls of the Genesee. In the evening there was a trolley ride to Ontario Beach and the annual banquet was held on the veranda of the Hotel Ontario.

The personnel of the convention is such as to impress an outsider that the gentlemen are representative street railroad men of the state. And such is the case. The heads of many city systems are in attendance and some of those present have thousands of men in their employ. The Metropolitan Street Railway Company, of New York; the Fifth avenue line, the Brooklyn company, the Buffalo street railway, as well as the smaller cities of the states have sent their executives, and thus the papers read and discussed are of the utmost interest to the 200 or so delegates and in a lesser degree to the public.

The lower floor of the hall is pretty well filled with the fifty exhibits, covering about everything in the way of street railway appliances, from a trolley wheel to a storage battery, and from a 200-ton hydraulic-wheel press down to automatic machine stop oilers, all of which are valued at $15,000. There are several Rochester exhibits, one of the most noticeable being Captain Ruggles's rotary snow plow. The exhibits are under the charge of F. D. Russell and a committee of Rochester men.

The convention was called to order at 9:30 o'clock by President Rogers, and about the first action taken was the adoption of the resolutions of sympathy for President McKinley.

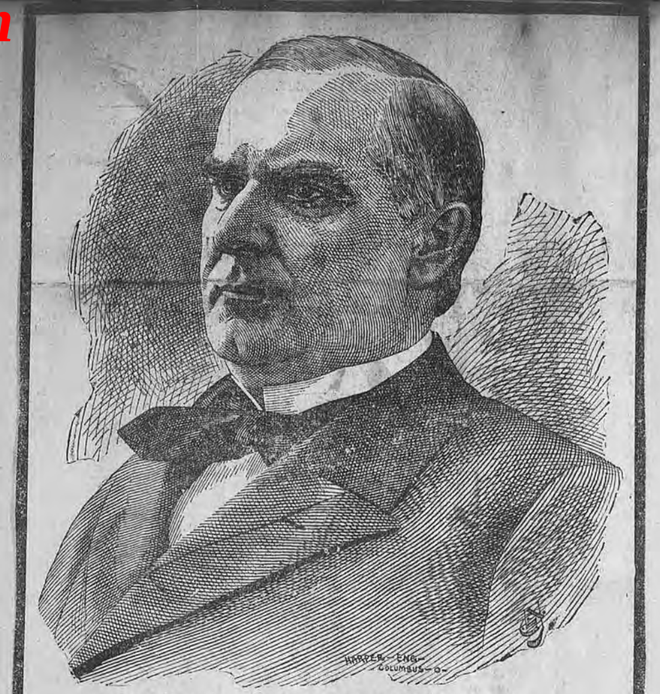
In beginning his address President Rogers referred to the attempted assassination of President McKinley. Continuing, he said, regarding street railroad business:

"The street railroads of this state have carried during the past year over one billion passengers. The net earnings from operations are the same as for the year previous, 2.0155 per passenger. There seems to be considerable development in the freight and express business of trolley roads. The increase in this state of this class of receipts during the past year was nearly $50,000 over the previous year. While there is a considerable increase in the floating and funded debts of the street railroads of the state during the past year, there is a decrease in the amount of interest paid for the same period, which indicates an increased confidence on the part of investors and consequently we are now able to borrow money at a much reduced rate.

"A number of certificates have been granted by the board of railroad commissioners, among which are the Buffalo, Niagara Falls & Rochester Railway Company to build from Rochester to Lockport, Buffalo and Niagara Falls; also, Genesee & Orleans Railway Company, to build from Batavia to Lake Ontario; the Syracuse, Skaneateles & Moravia railroad, to build from Moravia through Skaneateles to Syracuse; the Golden Bridge Electric Railroad Company, to build from Golden Bridge to Danbury, Conn. They have now before them for consideration many propositions for long inter-urban lines, among which are an application of the Rochester & Eastern Rapid Railway Company, to build from Rochester through Canandaigua to Geneva; the Lyons & Sodus Bay electric railroad, to build from Lyons to Sodus Bay on Lake Ontario; the New York & Port Chester Railroad Company, to build from the end of the underground tunnel in New York at about One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street and Third avenue, through Mt. Vernon and Port Chester to the state line of Connecticut.

"The success of the inter-urban trolley roads has opened up a new field for the promoter. A number of the proposed interurban franchises now in their hands are purely speculative. It would be a detriment to inter-urban development to give life to the hopeless and worthless propositions, but this association is needless as

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection



WILLIAM McKINLEY,

Twenty-Fifth President of the United States.

BORN JANUARY 29, 1843. DIED SEPTEMBER 14, 1901.

WILLIAM McKINLEY.

Sitting in the sack cloth and ashes of inconsolable grief, with tears in her heart and overflowing from her eyes, America to-day mourns the death of her noble, beloved, martyred son and president, William McKinley.

Cheered by a week of steady improvement since those fatal shots were fired, without a depressing note during all that time in the bulletins of his physicians, the nation dismissed its anxiety and fears and, with glad hearts, anticipated the near day when, with thanksgiving and rejoicing, with waving flags and pealing bells, it would celebrate his restoration to health and duty.

Alas! That happy day will never come. The great heart and eloquent lips which were to respond to those greetings from his countrymen are now forever hushed and silent. The light of those eyes which flashed only with intelligence and kindness is darkened. The manly form which, but a few days ago stood erect and vital with hope and power before a mighty assemblage that listened with delight to his statesmanlike utterances, is now cold and still beneath the enfoldment of the shroud.

How can those who have admired and loved him for many a year at such an hour as this speak in measured language of his noble and heroic career? For William McKinley's virtues and powers were known to some long before they became obvious to the masses of his countrymen. There are flash-light events and incidents that sometimes just for a moment throw a blaze of revelation into a heart or a life, and those who catch such glimpses know that man forever more. Such disclosures have been made of him whose departure we now deplore.

As a youth he thirsted for knowledge, and with rare devotion and diligence gave himself to the work of acquiring it. But the sound of rolling drums was in the land. The Union and the cause of freedom, objects of his passionate love, were in peril, and when but a stripling of 18 years he shouldered a musket and marched away to take the part of a hero in many a memorable battle. Victory crowned the true banner of the republic and the young warrior came home to resume his studies and then to offer his heart and hand to the sweet and beautiful woman who has been the object of as chivalrous and unselfish love during all the years since then as ever fell to the lot of wife and mother. To-day she sits overwhelmed in the shadow of an awful calamity upon the skirts of which we can only bow our heads and pray that the Father of us all may comfort and support her stricken heart.

The public career of William McKinley is now closed and will always remain among the priceless treasures of the republic's annals. As a lawyer, as a prosecuting attorney of his home county, as a member of congress and the recognized leader of one of the most important economic policies that ever became an issue in our national politics, as governor of his native state, and finally, as president of the United States twice chosen by emphatic majorities, this master in the art of statesmanship has stamped the mark of his personality indelibly upon the pages of American history. More than that, he has wrought that personality into the very thought and life of the nation. Largely this unique and pervasive influence was due to the happiest combination of temperament, principles and character. President McKinley's was a cheery and hopeful nature. He could not believe in failure or defeat. He inspired others with his own hopes and determination to win. Never was there greater folly in the judgment of character than the notion some professed to entertain that he was merely the plastic instrument of others. Behind a genial manner, the courtesy and chivalry of a gentleman born to life's sweetest charities and kindnesses, there was a large, sagacious brain and a will of tempered steel that conceived their own purposes and methods and pursued them to the end.

But at the foundation of all was a character golden in its purity and staunch as the granite rocks. William McKinley was no bigot or ascetic. Broad and tolerant in his sympathies he judged the privileges and pleasures of life with a sane and open mind. But he was firm in his convictions and, when once they had been distinctly formed, never shrunk from either their publicity or their consequences. A Christian man and the member of a great church which proclaims high ideals of faith and conduct, he permitted no adverse criticism from without or within to impair his allegiance on the one hand or swerve him from his own personal sense of privilege or duty on the other.

Such was the man, and far more than can be shown in this outlined sketch, whom this nation has lost. This may not be the time or place to assign him his rank among presidents; but we may be sure that the impartial historian, taking account of all that he was in himself and of all that he has done, will crown him with some of the brightest laurels that adorn the name and memories of America's greatest sons.

Brave and loving heart, farewell! The world has stood, hushed and tearful, in your presence as you descended to the shore where the boatman awaited your coming. They saw your parting from her whom your own strong and tender arm can no longer sustain, and then listened with a beating heart as your receding voice, tuned to the music of other spheres than ours, commended her and your own passing spirit to the tender mercies of an infinite Father.

PASSING OF THE NATION'S LOVED CHIEF

Last Hours at the Bedside of the President.

Touching Scenes as Mrs. McKinley and the Relatives and Friends Bade a Sorrowful Farewell—The Patient Courageous to the Last.

Milburn House, Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—President McKinley died at 2:15 A. M.

The members of the family, with the exception of the bereaved wife, were at the death bed. Mrs. McKinley was in an adjoining room. Dr. Rixey was the only physician present.

The immediate cause of the president's death is undetermined. His physicians disagree and it will possibly require an autopsy to finally fix the exact cause. The president's remains will be taken to Washington and there will be a state funeral.

Vice-President Roosevelt, who now succeeds to the presidency, may take the oath of office wherever he happens to hear the news. The cabinet will, of course, resign in a body and President Roosevelt will have an opportunity of forming a new cabinet, if he so desires.

Washington, Sept. 14.—The official announcement was received at the White House at 2:35, and is as follows:

"Buffalo, September 14th.

"Colonel B. S. Montgomery,

"Executive Mansion, Washington:

"The president died at a quarter past 2 o'clock this morning.

"GEORGE B. CORTELYOU."

---

steam, for soon the aerial vessel passed out of sight.

What is to be congratulated upon having an able board of railroad commissioners, which is alert, wise and painstaking in its administration and oversight over our affairs. The large number of inter-urban roads which are now pushing their way through the country is a favorable commentary on the growth of the electric railway industry. The modern street railway is no longer a tramway. It installs the heaviest tracks, employs large and commodious cars and runs them into the country upon well ballasted and thoroughly constructed tracks, in many instances, on its own right of way and in many cases at nearly as high speed as the steam roads.

"The modern inter-urban road should be well equipped and, where the traffic will allow, double-tracked on its own right of way, at as near a minimum grade as possible. In many instances these features have been recognized by the trolley roads and much of the work now under way and contemplated is equal to first-class steam railroad construction. This class of work leads to public comfort, confidence and financial stability. The inter-urban road builds cities and towns, makes travel a pleasure, is conducive to good health, helps to correct the morals and to benefit the public in general. This growth of long suburban and inter-urban lines carries with it the promise of a new and great public usefulness and certain new needs and responsibilities which must be carefully studied and considered."

Rochesterians are interested in the question of street railroad paving, of which President Rogers said:

"The decision of the court of appeals in Conway vs. the City of Rochester, holding that the general law requiring street railroads to pave, in all cases, between their tracks and two feet outside, was varied by previous special legislation and could not be changed by any municipality, notwithstanding such obligation would be prohibitive of any future railroad construction and was destructive of the value of many street surface railroads. The legislature recognizes the fact that the street railways in small places cannot afford to build and operate a railroad and also pave the streets, and has very wisely amended section ninety-three of the railroad law, which now permits the question of paving and percentages in cities of the third class, towns and villages, to be adjusted between the street railroads and these municipalities by contract. It is the duty of the officials in these municipalities to treat the small roads in the midst with liberality and fairness.

"The city or town may apparently lose revenue that might be collected, but would it not gain, though indirectly, in allowing the roads to expend their money, otherwise paid to the city, in expanding its system and improving its property and service, thereby increasing the value of real estate by the extension and development of the street railway? Population and increased valuation will follow the trolley car. Many times the municipal officials are over zealous in their efforts to exact other unjust provisions from street railroad companies. Much care should be displayed in accepting new franchises which are unfair and unworkable in their terms. In many instances the propositions and terms suggested in these franchises are not only ridiculous, but fatal to the corporations which undertake to build upon them."

President Rogers suggested that the tread of travel on city streets be reversed, so that the cars would pass to the left instead of to the right, and that the passengers alighting would see their left hand instead of the right to steady themselves, and would find themselves facing to the front instead of to the rear when they reached the pavement. They would have the right hand for parcels. "This is the custom in England and Canada, and if this radical change could be brought about in this country I believe it would be of great value to our street railroads in preventing accidents."

An exhaustive technical paper on "Track Bonding" was read by Alfred Green, master mechanic of the Rochester Railway Company.

Charles H. Barnes, of this city, electrical expert for the state railroad commission, read a paper on "Brakes for Electric Cars." C. E. Roehl, electrical engineer of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, took for his subject "Storage Batteries." Other papers read were: "The Use of Series Boosters in Connection With Street Railroads," William J. Davis, Jr., General Electrical Company, Schenectady; "General Track Construction," E. H. Parke, engineer maintenance of way, Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company; "Third Rail Inter-urban Railways," Maurice Hoopes, electrical engineer for J. G. White & Company, New York; "Accidents," Mr. Patterson, Metropolitan Street Railway Company, New York.

As told, the business session extended into the afternoon. At 2 o'clock tallyhos were drawn up at the Powers hotel, the headquarters of the delegates, and the visiting ladies were taken about the city and the interesting points shown them by a committee of Rochesterians. At 10:30 o'clock there had been an informal reception in the hotel parlors for the ladies. Over in Pitshugh hall the delegates sat throughout the afternoon and listened to a discussion of the treatment of street railroad employees. This was led by H. H. Vreeland, president of the Metropolitan Street Railroad Company, of New York, and participated in by E. G. Connette, second vice-president of the Syracuse street railroad system; Mr. Root, of New York; Beatley Brookley and W. Carl Ely, of Buffalo.

By special invitation Colonel Ashley of Brooklyn, chairman of the state railroad commission, joined in the discussion of the day in a general way. Colonel Ashley paid a high tribute to the electric railway and its possibilities, saying he thought the time was coming when the annual mileage would surpass the steam mileage. He said that the ladies had listened to more than they ever heard at a state convention before, and that great good could not fail to result from the existence of such

VIA (PAR
A spectacle surpass trical and scenic effects, greatest success known

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Invitation to concert
Postponed on account of death of President McKinley

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY THE
54th REGIMENT BAND,
F. A. ZEITLER, Director.
AT SENECA PARK, WEST,
Sunday Afternoon, Sept. 15, 1901,
FROM 3 TO 6 O'CLOCK
Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program. . . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—Trojan League, - - - Sam. Hamilton
2. OVERTURE—Morning, Noon and Night, Von Suppe
3. TROMBONE SOLO—Toreador's Song, (Carmen) Mr. Henry Galvin. Bizet
4. SELECTION—Foxy Quiller, - - - De Koven
5. WALTZ—Rolling Waves, - - - - Tobani
6. MEDLEY—Popular Texas, - - - - Boetiger

PART II.

7. MARCH—Peace Forever, - - - - Jos. Lacalle
8. OVERTURE—Queen of Autumn, - - Carl Bigge
9. (a. SONG—The Palm and the Pine, - - Cortesi (Words by T. T. Swinburne.)
   (b. INTERMEZZO—Cavalleria Rusticana, Mascagni
10. SELECTION—The Rounders, - - Englander
11. WALTZ—Singing Girl, - - - - V. Herbert
12. AMERICAN FANTASIA, - - - - Bendix
Tone Pictures, North and South.

When you are through with this Program, do not throw it on the Park Grounds, but in the receptacle for waste.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ACTS.

Resolutions Adopted at a Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon.

Many prominent business men of the city attended the meeting of the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce held yesterday afternoon. Owing to the absence of President A. P. Lamberton, the meeting was called to order by Lewis P. Ross. He nominated Court of Appeals Judge William E. Werner to act as chairman. The choice was unanimously made.

Judge Werner paid a grand eulogy to the memory of the dead President, reviewing his life briefly and expressing deep sorrow for the stricken widow. Mr. Ross then offered this resolution:

"We meet to-day, in the shadow of the great tragedy which spreads over the entire world, to give some slight expression of the profound sorrow which we feel for the death of President McKinley. A great and good man, filling the highest position in the gift of our people, and having earned the position by his splendid ability and his conscientious and supremely wise administration of all the various positions which he has so ably and honorably filled, has been stricken down in the fullness of his strength. Intelligent, cultivated, courteous, refined, forceful and manly, he made a friend of everyone with whom he came in contact. No man in our country was ever more universally beloved and respected, and this man, in a time of profound peace, has been stricken down by the hand of an assassin, and we have only the memory of his noble life and his splendid achievement left to us but they will never die, and the influence of his wise administration of the affairs of our nation will grow and increase as the years roll on and he will stand as the one grand figure marking this great epoch in the history of our country, which our people will carry lovingly in their hearts for all time to come.

"Mingled with our sorrow is a feeling of intense indignation at the growth in our midst of an organization whose avowed object is to subvert all our most cherished institutions, to destroy all law and order, and whose dogma includes the assassination of such men as our martyred President, and while he would do nothing in haste or revenge, it behooves us as citizens, who love our country and its institutions and are proud of the individual liberty and protection of property under our laws, to move vigorously and firmly toward the enactment of such measures as will exterminate the monster which threatens the life of our country and shows its terrible purpose by such acts as this which has plunged our land into mourning at this time, and to teach in no uncertain tones that our government is a government of law and that under our laws the rights of all persons and property must and shall be respected.

"This was adopted in connection with the resolutions of love and respect for President McKinley.

L. P. Ross, in the absence from the city of President Lamberton, called the meeting to order and nominated Judge W. E. Werner as chairman. Judge Werner made brief eulogistic remarks of the life of the late president, and he was followed by President Rhees, who took up the subject of anarchy and intimated that something would have to be done. These men, he said, were coming to this country where our fathers and fathers' fathers fought for Christian liberty, and that they should not be allowed to undermine it all. Something should be done to rid ourselves of this great evil. Charles P. Ford paid high tribute to the dead president, and said that it seemed that the loss had been almost personal. L. L. Stone followed with remarks about President McKinley.

Rev. Dr. Crapsey then read the resolution which was adopted at the meeting of clergymen held in the morning, and Dr. Crapsey said that he had been delegated to ask the Chamber of Commerce to hold a general memorial meeting in the afternoon at the Central Church. Rev. Dr. Stebbins had said the Central church was available at the time specified. C. M. Everest made the motion that the chamber hold the meeting as asked, and the motion was seconded by L. P. Ross. The question was put and carried. A committee consisting of ex-presidents of the chamber, with the single exception of Mr. Lamberton, who is the present executive officer, was appointed to arrange for the meeting. This committee will meet this morning at 10 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The exact hour for the service has not been set nor the programme prepared. Rev. Dr. Crapsey conferred last night with the representatives of the clergy of all denominations in the city, and it is intended that all shall be represented at the service. One of the matters to be discussed is congregational singing, with regard to which so that all can join. Dr. Crapsey and the clergy are to have charge of the making out of the programme with the chamber committee.

It is earnestly requested that all business houses close all day Thursday, and that there be a suspension of business on the day set aside for prayer and memorial services.

The resolutions adopted by the trustees yesterday afternoon follow:

We meet to-day, in the shadow of the great tragedy which spreads over the entire world, to give some slight expression of the profound sorrow which we feel for the death of President McKinley. A great and good man, filling the highest position in the gift of our people, and having earned the position by his splendid ability and his conscientious and supremely wise administration of all the various positions which he has so ably and honorably filled, has been stricken down in the fullness of his strength. Intelligent, cultivated, courteous, refined, forceful and manly, he made a friend of every one with whom he came in contact. No man in our country was ever more universally beloved and respected, and this man, in a time of profound peace, has been stricken down by the hand of an assassin. We remember the first, at the close of five years of bloody civil war, when public excitement ran high, when the passions of men were so aroused that insanity almost usurped the seat of reason. We remember the second, in a time of great political excitement and in a time of bitter controversy, and how the last in a time of profound peace, the nation at the height of prosperity, at a great industrial exposition in a great city, the president, standing in the presence of thousands of his fellow citizens, a smile of welcome upon his face and his hand extended to greet rich and poor and high and low was struck down by the assassin's hand. Is it any wonder that we have been and are mourning and disquieted?

Upon his home, his character and great qualities I may not dwell here. The nation knows it too well. It is best summed up in the thought that came to the slayer of Duncan, and which in all ages and with the lips that so often spoke words of sound counsel at the right cheer as applied in death.

"He hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been so clear in his high office, that his virtues will plead like angels trumpet-tongued against the deep damnation of his taking off."

This court has been convened here in accordance with the statute; the lawyers are here and the jurors and witnesses ready, to proceed with the public business. But it is also a time of profound mourning throughout this broad land and throughout all the world in every civilized nation. I think I speak within bounds when I say that although Judge, lawyers, jurors, witnesses and attendants are here to dispatch the public business, that their thoughts are with that train that is bearing the last mortal remains of our president to Washington, and to-morrow will be with the thousands who will assemble at Washington from all over the land to pay their last respects, and on the next day they will be at Canton, and on Thursday, the day which the president of the United States, the governors of every state and the mayors of every city have publicly declared to be a day that we abstain from all secular business and spend in penitence and prayer, they will be at the tomb of the president. That day rounds out the week of mourning. Do I ask too much upon behalf of the members of the bar, upon behalf, I think, of all citizens who admired the president, abhor the crime and deplore the awful tragedy, when I ask that the trial term of this court, under this extraordinary situation, take a recess until one week from to-day?

Justice Davy responded as follows:

Gentlemen: I very cheerfully coincide with the motion that has been made to adjourn this court. In expressing my own feelings I have no doubt I fully voice the sentiment not only of the members of the bar but every man who is called here to serve as trial or grand jurors. My head is bowed down in mourning and grief. I feel under the circumstances that I could hardly discharge my duties in the trial of important cases at this time. I have no doubt that the attorneys who would be compelled during the week to enter upon the trial of causes would feel the same way. They would be so distressed that they could not discharge properly the duties that they owe to their clients. The minds of the jurymen would naturally be following the train that carries the remains of the president to Washington, so will expressed by Mr. Bissell, and all the proceedings that may take place during the coming week until place. The whole people of the nation are for the last sad tributes to his memory with a sense of personal affliction. In fact, we cannot express the grief and horror which all our hearts at the sad news of President McKinley's death. It was such a cruel, cold-blooded assassination that it shocked the people of the whole nation so severely that it is difficult and will be difficult for several days for us to recover from the shock. His death is a great loss to the country. It was deplorable to be assassinated by a cold-blooded villain, cut down, when he was doing so much good and after he had accomplished so much for the people of this country. I can not use words to express my feelings of sadness and sorrow under these circumstances, and we feel we have

Will be Held Thursday Afternoon at Central Church.

A SERVICE FOR ALL

Without Regard to Religious Creed or Politics—Will be Under Auspices of Chamber of Commerce—Two Overflow Meetings.

A general civic memorial service will be held in the Central Presbyterian Church Thursday afternoon, under the auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce. All religious denominations and the public in general are cordially invited to attend. There will be two overflow meetings, one held in the old auditorium and the other in the Alling class room, with accommodations in all for 4,000 people.

The trustees of the Chamber of Commerce met yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and by unanimous vote the meeting was decided upon. Rev. Algernon S. Crapsey, representing the Protestant clergy of the city, was present, as was also Dr. Rush Rhees, of the Rochester University. During the morning the pastors had held a meeting and Rev. Mr. Crapsey was delegated to attend the meeting of the trustees of the Chamber of Commerce and ask them to hold the general meeting on the afternoon of Thursday, which has been set aside by President Roosevelt for prayer and memorial services. The trustees had met for the purpose of adopting resolutions on the death of President McKinley.

The several church denominations are to hold meetings in the morning, and it is intended that this afternoon service shall be a general one, at which time all politics and differences in religious shall be laid aside as the resolutions adopted by the clergy state, "and that laying aside all differences, we may unite in a common expression of our common grief."

The meeting yesterday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce was largely attended by representative business men of the city, members of the chamber. The occasion was a solemn one. Several of the gentlemen took occasion to eulogize the martyred president and speak of his statesmanship and the love that the people had for him. One of the features of the meeting was the adoption of resolutions condemning anarchy and stating that "It behooves us as citizens who love our country and its institutions, and are proud of the individual liberty and protection of property under or laws, to move vigorously and firmly toward the enactment of such measures as will exterminate the monster, which threatens the life of our country and shows its terrible purpose by such acts as this which has plunged our land into mourning at this time, and to teach in no uncertain tones that our government is a government of law and that under our laws the rights of all persons and property must and shall be respected."

This was adopted in connection with the resolutions of love and respect for President McKinley.

L. P. Ross, in the absence from the city of President Lamberton, called the meeting to order and nominated Judge W. E. Werner as chairman. Judge Werner made brief eulogistic remarks of the life of the late president, and he was followed by President Rhees, who took up the subject of anarchy and intimated that something would have to be done. These men, he said, were coming to this country where our fathers and fathers' fathers fought for Christian liberty, and that they should not be allowed to undermine it all. Something should be done to rid ourselves of this great evil. Charles P. Ford paid high tribute to the dead president, and said that it seemed that the loss had been almost personal. L. L. Stone followed with remarks about President McKinley.

Rev. Dr. Crapsey then read the resolution which was adopted at the meeting of clergymen held in the morning, and Dr. Crapsey said that he had been delegated to ask the Chamber of Commerce to hold a general memorial meeting in the afternoon at the Central Church. Rev. Dr. Stebbins had said the Central church was available at the time specified. C. M. Everest made the motion that the chamber hold the meeting as asked, and the motion was seconded by L. P. Ross. The question was put and carried. A committee consisting of ex-presidents of the chamber, with the single exception of Mr. Lamberton, who is the present executive officer, was appointed to arrange for the meeting. This committee will meet this morning at 10 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The exact hour for the service has not been set nor the programme prepared. Rev. Dr. Crapsey conferred last night with the representatives of the clergy of all denominations in the city, and it is intended that all shall be represented at the service. One of the matters to be discussed is congregational singing, with regard to which so that all can join. Dr. Crapsey and the clergy are to have charge of the making out of the programme with the chamber committee.

It is earnestly requested that all business houses close all day Thursday, and that there be a suspension of business on the day set aside for prayer and memorial services.

The resolutions adopted by the trustees yesterday afternoon follow:

We meet to-day, in the shadow of the great tragedy which spreads over the entire world, to give some slight expression of the profound sorrow which we feel for the death of President McKinley. A great and good man, filling the highest position in the gift of our people, and having earned the position by his splendid ability and his conscientious and supremely wise administration of all the various positions which he has so ably and honorably filled, has been stricken down in the fullness of his strength. Intelligent, cultivated, courteous, refined, forceful and manly, he made a friend of every one with whom he came in contact. No man in our country was ever more universally beloved and respected, and this man, in a time of profound peace, has been stricken down by the hand of an assassin. We remember the first, at the close of five years of bloody civil war, when public excitement ran high, when the passions of men were so aroused that insanity almost usurped the seat of reason. We remember the second, in a time of great political excitement and in a time of bitter controversy, and how the last in a time of profound peace, the nation at the height of prosperity, at a great industrial exposition in a great city, the president, standing in the presence of thousands of his fellow citizens, a smile of welcome upon his face and his hand extended to greet rich and poor and high and low was struck down by the assassin's hand. Is it any wonder that we have been and are mourning and disquieted?

Upon his home, his character and great qualities I may not dwell here. The nation knows it too well. It is best summed up in the thought that came to the slayer of Duncan, and which all in all ages and with the lips that so often spoke words of sound counsel at the right cheer as applied in death.

"He hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been so clear in his high office, that his virtues will plead like angels trumpet-tongued against the deep damnation of his taking off."

This court has been convened here in accordance with the statute; the lawyers are here and the jurors and witnesses ready, to proceed with the public business. But it is also a time of profound mourning throughout this broad land and throughout all the world in every civilized nation. I think I speak within bounds when I say that although Judge, lawyers, jurors, witnesses and attendants are here to dispatch the public business, that their thoughts are with that train that is bearing the last mortal remains of our president to Washington, and to-morrow will be with the thousands who will assemble at Washington from all over the land to pay their last respects, and on the next day they will be at Canton, and on Thursday, the day which the president of the United States, the governors of every state and the mayors of every city have publicly declared to be a day that we abstain from all secular business and spend in penitence and prayer, they will be at the tomb of the president. That day rounds out the week of mourning. Do I ask too much upon behalf of the members of the bar, upon behalf, I think, of all citizens who admired the president, abhor the crime and deplore the awful tragedy, when I ask that the trial term of this court, under this extraordinary situation, take a recess until one week from to-day?

Justice Davy responded as follows:

Gentlemen: I very cheerfully coincide with the motion that has been made to adjourn this court. In expressing my own feelings I have no doubt I fully voice the sentiment not only of the members of the bar but every man who is called here to serve as trial or grand jurors. My head is bowed down in mourning and grief. I feel under the circumstances that I could hardly discharge my duties in the trial of important cases at this time. I have no doubt that the attorneys who would be compelled during the week to enter upon the trial of causes would feel the same way. They would be so distressed that they could not discharge properly the duties that they owe to their clients. The minds of the jurymen would naturally be following the train that carries the remains of the president to Washington, so will expressed by Mr. Bissell, and all the proceedings that may take place during the coming week until place. The whole people of the nation are for the last sad tributes to his memory with a sense of personal affliction. In fact, we cannot express the grief and horror which all our hearts at the sad news of President McKinley's death. It was such a cruel, cold-blooded assassination that it shocked the people of the whole nation so severely that it is difficult and will be difficult for several days for us to recover from the shock. His death is a great loss to the country. It was deplorable to be assassinated by a cold-blooded villain, cut down, when he was doing so much good and after he had accomplished so much for the people of this country. I can not use words to express my feelings of sadness and sorrow under these circumstances, and we feel we have Preparations Made for Joint Memorial Service—Resolutions.

The members of the memorial and executive committee of the local Grand Army of the Republic assembled in the rooms of the superintendent of the court house, Colonel Henry S. Redman, last evening, to take action on the death of President McKinley. Colonel Redman presided. It was announced that arrangements had been completed for a joint memorial service to be held at 7:30 o'clock, Thursday evening, at the Central Church, which all comrades are invited to attend. The members of the Women's Relief Corps of the grand Army of the Republic, the Sons of Veterans and their Ladies' Aid Society, and the Spanish War Veterans were also cordially invited to participate in the services. Rev. Dr. Stebbins, who placed his church at the disposal of the veterans for the evening, and Hon. William A. Sutherland will deliver the memorial addresses. All the Grand Army of the Republic posts will meet at the court house at 7 o'clock, Thursday evening.

ALDERMEN HONOR PRESIDENT'S MEMORY

Resolutions Adopted at Special Meeting Yesterday.

AN ELOQUENT TRIBUTE

Rising Vote Was of Unusual Solemnity—Copy of Resolutions to be Entered on Minutes of the Next Regular Meeting.

A special meeting of the common council, called at the direction of President Edgerton, was held yesterday afternoon to take suitable action on the death of President McKinley. The council at its last regular meeting adopted resolutions expressive of its horror over the shooting and the hope for the president's speedy recovery, which was so confidently expected at that time.

When the aldermen assembled yesterday, there was a very noticeable change in their demeanor, compared with that shown last week when there was none but favorable news from Buffalo. Yesterday they were filled with grief too deep for utterance outside of what was expressed in the resolutions adopted.

President Edgerton stated the purpose of the meeting briefly, apparently unwilling to trust himself to speak at length because of his emotions, and the silent action of the aldermen as they arose to vote for the adoption of the resolutions, was mournfully eloquent.

"Gentlemen," said the president, "it was a sad duty which compelled me to call you together to-day, but it was appropriate that we should take some action on the death our beloved president, representing as we do all sections of the city, which is now sharing the sorrow that has overwhelmed the country and the world."

Alderman Plumb moved the appointment by the president of a committee of three to prepare the resolutions. The committee named consisted of Aldermen Plumb, Casey and Marson, who, after a short recess, submitted the following:

The common council of the city of Rochester, assembled in profound sorrow at the bereavement which has been visited upon the nation in the death of its beloved president, would record the following expression of its grief and sympathy:

The true manhood and womanhood of America mourns to-day. The great heart of its beloved president has ceased to beat. The light of those eyes which flashed only intelligence and kindness is darkened. The manly form, which but a few days ago stood erect and vital with hope and power before a vast assemblage that thrilled with approval to his statesmanlike utterances, is now cold and still; the lips that so often spoke words of sound counsel at the right cheer are sealed in death.

The cruel, unprovoked and unpardonable crime of an assassin has again sent a thrill of shame, of horror and just indignation through every household in the land. For the third time in the history of the republic the national sky has been blackened and the national good name befouled by lawless and cowardly assassination or the chief magistrate.

William McKinley was one of the grandest combinations of heart, brain and conscience beneath the American flag. Both his public and private life were without stain. His courage, his patriotism and his high sense of honor were proven not alone on the battlefields of the republic, but in the fearless discharge of every public duty. From the struggles of his early years to the consummation of his highest ambitions, he illustrated the glorious possibilities of American citizenship. Such a life and such a character will be treasured forever as one of the most sacred possessions of the American people.

As we contemplate his gentle and affectionate nature, his unaffected love for his countrymen, the simplicity and nobility of his life, his unvarying courtesy and cheerfulness, the conviction grows that if there was one man in all our eighty millions, of whom every man among us should be proud and toward whom every American citizen should have felt a warm glow of good fellowship and kindness, that man was William McKinley.

Perhaps more than any of his predecessors, for a generation, at least, he possessed the confidence and esteem of men of all parties and of all creeds and beliefs. They saw in him a man of wise conservatism and of unimpeachable fidelity to the loftiest ideals of public duty. Having behind the wisdom and success with which he had conducted the affairs of his great office through the trying period of a foreign war, they relied in absolute confidence upon his ability to guide the destinies of the republic along the paths of commercial prosperity and toward a larger and grander development of national life. He was in truth

The pillar of a people's hope,
The center of a world's desire.

Man of fire and dew, farewell. Your body was mortal and must return to earth. But the inspiration of your noble, Christian manhood will endure forever.

The sweet and beautiful woman who sits overwhelmed in the shadow of an awful calamity has our tenderest sympathy.

Our fellow citizens, sorrowing as with a sense of personal loss and viewing with appreciation the possible consequences of this foul deed, we would remind

"God reigns and the government at Washington still lives."

On Alderman Plumb's motion, the resolutions were directed to be entered upon the minutes of the next regular meeting, and a copy will also be sent to the secretary of the late president.

Mayor Carnahan will direct that all city offices be closed on Thursday, the day of the funeral of President McKinley.

WATER IN RIVER HIGH.

Figures Show That This Season Has Been a Remarkable One.

The flow of water down the Genesee River this year has been far in excess of any previous season. Figures are made daily at the Court Street dam and have been preserved for years. They are kept on file in the City Engineer's office. Assistant Engineer Norman R. Lewis made an examination of the records yesterday and was unable to find a date in any former year when there was as large a flow of water as in the corresponding date for 1901.

Mr. Lewis made the following comparative table showing the figures for the first of each month of this year as compared to last:

	This year.	Last year.	Ft. higher This year.
April	244.69	244.31	.09
May	241.26	240.71	.55
June	245.15	241.95	3.20
July	242.10	240.55	1.55
August	241.25	239.65	1.60
September ..	242.75	240.90	1.85

The figures for yesterday are 242.75, which are 1.5 feet higher than the corresponding date of 1900, 3.2 feet higher than the corresponding date of 1899, 2.47 feet higher than the same date of 1898, 3.5 feet higher than the same in 1897, 3.54 feet higher than 1896 and 3.57 feet higher than September 17, 1895.

ASKED TO REMAIN.

Chamber of Commerce Trustees Present Resolutions to Vacuum Oil Company.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Chamber of Commerce, held yesterday afternoon, resolutions were passed asking the Vacuum Oil Company to remain here. This action was taken in view of the talk of removing the plant to the Atlantic seaboard or to Olean.

Vice-President C. M. Everest said that the resolution would have some effect as voicing the sentiment of the people of the city. However, the question is one of serving the best interests of the company, which may be done better by moving the plant. The talk of removal arose among the directors after the recent fire, which will necessitate the rebuilding of a large part of the plant.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

THOUSANDS WILL HONOR THE MARTYRED PRESIDENT

Programme of Services in the Churches To-morrow.

Work of Draping Business Places and Private Residences in Mourning—Business Will be Generally Suspended To-Morrow—Union and Separate Services in the Morning and Three Great Union Services at Central Church in the Afternoon—Grand Army Services at Central Church in the Evening.

Again all day yesterday and far into last night the work of draping the city in mourning for the martyred president went on, and by the close of to-day one will doubtless search the business portion of the city in vain to find any place of business which is not more or less conspicuously decorated with symbols of grief.

Some of the mourning decorations, particularly on the principal streets, are very elaborate, while others are more simple; but, elaborate or simple, they are all the spontaneous evidences of appreciation of the loss which has come to everyone who is worthy to bear the name of American. The oldest residents of the city can recall no occasion where the evidences of mourning have been so universally exhibited, even on occasions of the death of distinguished citizens of Rochester.

The work of decorating the homes of the city, so conspicuous on the preceding day, also continued actively yesterday, and in many residence streets not a single home can be found without some outward evidence of the universal grief of the people.

Additional preparations were made yesterday for the memorial services to-morrow, in which all of the Protestant churches will take part, either with separate services, as in the case of the Episcopal churches, or in union services.

The union services and separate services will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning. All of the Presbyterian churches on the East Side of the river will unite at the Third Presbyterian Church. The Presbyterian churches on the West Side will unite at the Brick Presbyterian Church, and the Baptist churches at the Lake Avenue Baptist Church. The programmes of exercises are given elsewhere.

All of the Methodist Churches of the city will unite in a memorial service at the First Methodist Episcopal Church at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. The principal address will be by Rev. Edward Locke, D. D., pastor of the Delaware Avenue Methodist Church, Buffalo, who officiated at the services held at the Milburn house. An overflow meeting will probably be held in the chapel.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock three great union services will be held at the Central Presbyterian Church; one in the new auditorium, one in the old auditorium and still another in the Alling class room. Programmes for these services are also given below.

In the evening services will be held at the Central Presbyterian Church, under the auspices of the local posts of the Grand Army of the Republic. Other war veteran associations and members of the various women's corps will participate.

In order that the lessons of the pure, patriotic life and sublime death of President McKinley may be impressed upon the minds of the youth, services will be held at each of the public schools of the city. These services will be simple in character, but none the less impressive. In most of the schools short, appropriate addresses will be delivered, either by the principals or by others to whom the duty may be assigned. In many of the schools the teachers have, during the earlier days of the week, led the minds of the scholars to contemplation of the worthy example placed before them, and all the youth of the land, by the patriotic citizen whose body will be consigned to earth, at his home in Canton to-morrow.

While concerted action in the matter of the closing of places of business to-morrow has necessarily been confined to organizations of business men in different branches of industry, there is every indication that business generally will be suspended throughout the city. Already action has been taken by several classes of business, and doubtless the example will be followed by others to-day. Individual action may be also relied upon in hundreds of cases, and it is therefore safe to announce that very little secular business will be transacted on the day devoted to the funeral of the president.

The Afternoon Services.

As a result of a meeting of clergymen of all denominations held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms yesterday morning, it was decided to hold their services at the Central Presbyterian Church at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

An identical programme for the three services was presented by Rev. A. S. Crapsey, and adopted, as follows:

Responsive reading (telegram and condolence).
Reading of Isaiah 51, verses 3 to 11.
Hymn, "O God, our help in ages past."
Address, "Our Duty in the Present Trial of Affliction." (Speaker to be selected).
Hymn, "Our country, 'tis of thee."
Address, "Our Duty in the Present Trial of Affliction." (Speaker to be selected).
Congregation chanting verse beginning "I heard a voice."
Hymn, "Nearer, my God, to Thee."
Prayer.
Hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light."
Doxology.
Blessing of peace.

One of the services will be held in the large auditorium and will be under the direction of Rev. Dr. M. Landsberg and Rev. Dr. A. S. Crapsey. Dossenbach's orchestra will be present.

The meeting in the old auditorium of the Central Church will be in charge of Rev. Dr. H. H. Stebbins and Rev. Dr. W. C. Gannett; Dr. Crapsey will have charge of the music, with Professor George W. Walton as musical director.

The third meeting will be held in the Alling class room of the Central Church, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Sankey and Rev. Dr. Nelson.

Programmes for the three meetings will be prepared and 5,000 printed, under the direction of a committee consisting of Rev. Dr. Crapsey and Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce. The committee on special invitations consists of President Lamberton, of the Chamber of Commerce; L. P. Ross and Rev. A. S. Crapsey, D. D.

The detailed programme or the three meetings is as follows:

In the Central Church auditorium:
Clergymen in charge of services: Rev. Max Landsberg, D. D., Rev. Algernon S. Crapsey, D. D.
Speakers: Rev. Rush Rhees, D. D., LL. D., subject, "The Life and Services of William McKinley."
Hon. William E. Werner, subject, "Our Duty as a People Under the Present Trial of Affliction."
Anthem, "Blessed are the Dead," sung by Rev. L. C. Washburn, D. D.
Benediction.

The music in the auditorium will be in the care of the organist and the choir of the Central Church.

Programme for the service in the Sunday-school auditorium:

Clergymen in charge of the service: Rev. W. C. Gannett, D. D., Rev. H. H. Stebbins, D. D.
Speakers: Hon. Arthur E. Sutherland, subject, "The Life and Services of William McKinley;" Rev. C. A. Barbour, D. D., subject, "Our Duty as a People Under the Present Trial of Affliction."
Anthem, "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace," by the choir.
Benediction.

The music in the Sunday-school auditorium will be in charge of the organist and the choir of St. Andrew's Church.

The programme for the services in the Alling Class room is:

Clergymen in charge of the service: Rev. H. H. Stebbins, D. D., Rev. L. Banks Nelson.
Speakers: Rev. Irving B. Bristol, subject, "Life and Services of William McKinley;" Charles R. Gilbert, A. M., subject, "Our Duty as a People Under the Present Trial of Affliction."
Benediction.

The music here will be in charge of the organist of St. Peter's Church.

Each of the three services will close with the singing of the doxology by the congregations, led by the choirs.

The judiciary, federal, city and county officials, together with President Lamberton and the four ex-presidents of the Chamber of Commerce, L. P. Ross, C. P. Ford, Henry C. Brewster and H. B. Hathaway, will occupy seats on the platform in the new auditorium of the church. Places will be assigned to them from tickets bearing their names. Seats will be reserved for the clergy in the front of each auditorium.

The committee having charge of the three meetings is: L. P. Ross, chairman; Rev. A. S. Crapsey, D. D., A. B. Lamberton, Rev. S. Banks Nelson, Rev. H. H. Stebbins, D. D., C. P. Ford, Rev. William C. Gannett, D. D., Rev. Max Landsberg, D. D., Rev. J. P. Sankey, P. V. Crittenden, L. L. Williams, Rev. Clarence A. Barbour, D. D., Henry C. Brewster, F. L. Clayton, Rev. F. D. Leete, Rev. L. P. Coddington, A. Luecher and John M. Ives.

Rev. Dr. Crapsey and Secretary Ives were appointed a committee to have charge of having printed 5,000 souvenir programmes. These will be printed in purple and distributed among the three meetings. The Chamber of Commerce distributes them. An unanimous vote of thanks was given the pastor and the trustees of the Central Church for granting the use of the church for Thursday afternoon. The decorations of the three service rooms will be taken in charge by the chamber.

All the Methodist Churches.

The Methodists of this city will commemorate the life and death of President McKinley in a service that will be worthy of the nation's dead, and which will derive great additional interest from the fact that the chief speaker will be Rev. Charles Edward Locke, D. D., the distinguished Buffalo divine who officiated at the services held in Milburn house, Buffalo.

The father of Dr. Locke was, in other years, the dearly-loved pastor of Mr. McKinley. Dr. Locke himself is an orator of national reputation, and is the pastor of the Delaware Avenue Church, which is the great church of Buffalo Methodism.

The services will be held in the elegant new auditorium of First Church. It is well known that Mr. McKinley has always been a most devoted member of the Methodist Church. This fact, combined with the fact of the presence of the clergyman who officiated at the funeral services in Buffalo, will make this service one of conspicuous interest. Colonel N. P. Pond will preside at the meeting.

All the Methodist churches will unite and services previously announced for Glenwood and Asbury churches have been abandoned. As it is very doubtful if the auditorium will hold the people that will wish to attend this service, arrangements will probably be made for an overflow meeting in the handsome and commodious chapel. Further particulars of this service will be announced to-morrow.

At the Brick Church.

All of the Presbyterian churches on the west side of the river will unite in a memorial service, to be held at the Brick Presbyterian Church at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. Rev. Dr. Taylor, pastor of the Brick Church, will deliver the principal address and all the pastors of the West Side Presbyterian Churches will participate in the services. A special programme of music has been prepared.

Following is the order of services:

Organ prelude.....Mrs. Louis E. Fuller
Quartette.
Invocation, closing with Lord's Prayer
Rev. George D. Miller, presiding.
Hymn No. 673.....Rev. Albert Evans
"Savior When in Dust to Thee."
Scripture lesson.....Rev. J. F. Sankey, D. D.
Quartette.
Prayer.....Rev. Peter Lindsay, D. D.
Hymn No. 555.....Lead, Kindly Light."
Rev. William J. Hallock.
Memorial address—Rev. Wm. R. Taylor, D. D.
Hymn No. 554.....Nearer, My God, to Thee."
Rev. George D. Miller.
Benediction.....Rev. H. H. Stebbins, D. D.
Postlude (organ).....Mrs. Louis E. Fuller

East Side Presbyterians.

The Presbyterian churches on the east side of the river will unite in the McKinley memorial service, at the Third Presbyterian Church, at 11 o'clock Thursday morning.

Union Baptist Services.

The different Baptist churches of the city will hold a union memorial service at the Lake Avenue Baptist Church at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. Rev. Dr. Donald MacLaurin, of the Second Baptist Church, will deliver a brief address. All of the Baptist clergymen in the city will be present.

Other Church Services.

Christ Church will make special preparations for the service on Thursday, at 11 o'clock.

Memorial services will be held in St. James's Episcopal Church at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Rev. Francis C. Woodward officiating.

Divine service will be held in the Church of the Epiphany on Thursday, at 11 o'clock.

Memorial services will be held in St. Andrew's Church on Thursday, at 11 A. M., and will consist of portions of the burial service and of the holy communion. There will be no sermon. An offering will be taken to be given to a national committee for a memorial to the late president.

A memorial service in honor of our deceased president will be held at St. Luke's Church, Thursday morning, at 11 o'clock. In the absence of the rector, Dr. Converse, the assistant, Rev. G. R. Brush, will officiate.

Memorial services in honor of President McKinley will be held at 11 o'clock Thursday morning in the Church of the Ascension, on Augustine street, Rev. G. T. LeBoutillier officiating.

Memorial services will be held at the Synagogue Beth Israel, Leopold street, Thursday, at 10 A. M. Rabbi Ginsberg will speak.

Union memorial services will be held in the First Evangelical Church, Hudson avenue, at 10:30 o'clock A. M. The congregation will unite with above congregation. Rev. J. Eberling, presiding elder of the Syracuse district, officiating in the German language, and Rev. W. H. Stauffer in the English language.

A memorial service in honor of the deceased president will be held to-morrow morning, commencing at 10:30 o'clock, at St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Joseph avenue, corner Buchan park.

The service which was to be held in the Glenwood Memorial Church to-morrow at 11 o'clock has been abandoned. Instead the congregation will unite with all the Methodist churches in the service to be held at the First Methodist Church, which will be conducted by the Rev. Charles E. Locke, of the Delaware Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, of Buffalo, who conducted the services over President McKinley's remains in Buffalo.

Owing to the grand civic ceremonies that are to be held Thursday afternoon at the Central Church the memorial services planned at the Third Presbyterian Church Sunday afternoon have been withdrawn. But there will be a union service of the East Side Presbyterians Thursday morning at the Third Church at 11 o'clock.

The Public Schools.

It is the desire of the members of the board of education and Superintendent of Schools Gilbert that, as far as possible, the pupils of the public schools should participate in to-morrow's memorial services. It is realized that the character and example of the martyred president should be impressed upon the minds of these embryo American citizens, and that the occasion of President McKinley's funeral should be made a mournful and, at the same time, instructive memory.

Appropriate exercises will be held to-morrow morning in every public school in this city. No general programme has been prescribed, but the exercises have been left to the discretion of the principals and teachers. Wherever there is an assembly room the scholars will be assembled in a body, while in other school buildings such arrangements will be made as is most convenient.

In a general way the exercises will consist of brief addresses, singing of the hymns "America" and "Nearer, My God to Thee," with such other exercises as may be determined upon by the principals and teachers. The exercises will be held at 9 o'clock in the morning, and at their close, school sessions will be suspended for the remainder of the day.

The Suspension of Business.

In accordance with the proclamation of Governor Odell, business of all kinds will be largely suspended in this city to-morrow, out of respect to the late President McKinley.

Resolutions were adopted at the meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday morning recommending a general compliance with the request in the governor's proclamation.

All of the city and county departments will be closed to-morrow, and the federal building will be closed after 10 o'clock in the morning. No public business will be transacted at the postoffice after that hour.

The banks of the city will be closed on Thursday and no exchanges made at the clearing house on that day, out of respect to the memory of the late lamented President William McKinley. All negotiable instruments falling due on Thursday, September 19th, will be due and payable on the next succeeding business day, Friday, September 20th.

The clothing dealers of the city have adopted the following:

Out of respect to the memory of our beloved president we, the undersigned, will not open our places of business on Thursday, September 19th.

D. M. GARSON.
McFARLAN CLOTHING CO.,
UNION CLOTHING CO.,
STRAUS BROS.,
I. HICK SONS,
NATIONAL CLOTHING CO.

The Builders' and Contractors' Association held a meeting at their rooms yesterday morning, and adopted a resolution to suspend work to-morrow. The resolution requested all builders and contractors to also forego work on the day of the president's funeral.

In accordance with the proclamation of the president of the United States and his governor of New York state, the Baker management will close the theater Thursday afternoon, the day of President McKinley's funeral. The evening performance will be given as usual.

The wholesale grocers held a meeting yesterday and voted to remain closed all day Thursday.

The master barbers of the city will close their shops at 12:30 o'clock to-morrow and remain closed for the day, out of respect to the memory of the late President McKinley.

WORKS WILL REMAIN.

Pleasant Sept. 19, 1901.

Vacuum Oil Company Has Decided to Rebuild in Rochester.

Rochesterians in general will rejoice to know that the Vacuum Oil works are to be retained in Rochester. This decision was reached yesterday, and Vice-President C. M. Everest, of this city, received a telegram from New York city telling him that the other directors at their meeting yesterday had approved the recommendation that he had made, that the buildings be rebuilt.

After the fire on the morning of August 29th, there were rumors that the works would be removed from Rochester, and when Vice-President C. M. Everest returned from Europe a few days later he partially substantiated this rumor, saying that for some time the directors had seriously considered the matter of transferring the works from this city to Olean and the Atlantic seacoast. A major part of the works were taken to Olean several years ago. Mr. Everest said that the directors would have to consider the cost of rebuilding and taking the works from here, and that their decision would be reached before long. A good part of the business of the company is foreign, Mr. Everest said, and for this reason the question of removal had appealed very strongly to the directors.

The directors are Hiram B. Everest, president of the company, C. M. Everest, vice-president, and three New Yorkers. Yesterday they held a meeting in New York and considered the report that the vice-president had made, accompanied by figures as to the cost of removal or rebuilding here. The Rochester Chamber of Commerce had adopted resolutions deploring the removal of the works and asking the directors to decide in Rochester's favor, and yesterday this resolution was laid before the directors.

The result was the receipt of a telegram by C. M. Everest to the effect that his recommendation that the works be rebuilt had been approved. Mr. Everest was greatly pleased at the result.

The fire of the 29th of August destroyed the shipping house with its contents, and the roof of an adjoining building. It threatened the entire works. Mr. Everest said last night that the cost of rebuilding the shipping house and repairing the adjoining building would be about $10,000. This work will be done at once.

The Vacuum Oil Company is one of Rochester's biggest concerns, and is believed to rank next to the Eastman Kodak Company in advertising the city throughout the civilized world. There are some fifty warehouses scattered about the world, to which the products of the Rochester plant are sent, and thus Rochester becomes widely known.

THE PEOPLE IN MOURNING

Every Class Will Unite in Tribute to Dead President.

Eloquent Speakers Will To-day Tell the Story of the Manly, Upright Life and Sublime Death of William McKinley—Programmes of Memorial Services in the Various Churches—All Classes of Business Will be Suspended,

THE MEMORIAL SERVICES.

11 A. M.—At First Methodist Episcopal Church; union services of all of the Methodist Episcopal churches in the city. Principal address by Rev. Charles Edward Locke, D. D., of Buffalo.

11 A. M—Brick Presbyterian Church; union services of all of the Presbyterian churches on the West Side. Principal address by Rev. William R. Taylor, D. D.

11. A. M.—Lake Avenue Baptist Church; union services of all of the Baptist churches of the city. Principal address by Rev. Donald D. MacLaurin, D. D.

11 A. M.—Third Presbyterian Church; union services of all of the East Side Presbyterian churches.

11 A. M.—Separate services in each of the Episcopal churches in the city.

10:30 A. M.--Union Memorial services by First Church and Calvary Church of the Evangelical Association at the First Church on Hudson avenue. Address in German by Rev. J. Eberling, and in English by Rev. W. H. Stauffer.

10 A. M.—Memorial services at the State Industrial School. Principal address by Rev. P. T. Lynn.

10 A. M.—Memorial services at Synagogue Beth Israel, Leopold street. Address by Rabbi Ginsberg.

3 P. M.—Memorial services in the new auditorium of the Central Presbyterian Church. Principal addresses by Rev. Rush Rhees, D. D., LL. D., and Hon. William E. Werner.

3 P. M.—Memorial services in the old auditorium of Central Presbyterian Church. Principal addresses by Hon. Arthur E. Sutherland and Rev. Nelson Millard, D. D.

3 P. M.—Memorial services in Alling Class room of Central Presbyterian Church. Principal addresses by Rev. Irving B. Bristol and Charles E. Gilbert, A. M.

7:30 P. M.—Memorial services by the Grand Army of the Republic and kindred organizations at the Central Presbyterian Church. Principal address by Hon. William A. Sutherland.

7:30 P. M.—Union Memorial services by the German and English Lutheran churches at Zion Church, Grove street. Addresses in both the English and German languages.

9 A. M.—Memorial services in all of the public schools of the city.

With one accord, and with a singular disregard of nationality or class, the people of this city have manifested the intention of putting aside their ordinary business and avocation, and uniting in a tribute of respect to the dead chief magistrate.

On no other occasion of national mourning has this suspension of business been so widespread, and the people will gather en masse in their places of worship; some in unified service and others separately, but all in genuine mourning for the departed.

Wherever the people are assembled the farewell hymn, the hymn which was last on the lips of the dying president: "Nearer, My God, to Thee," will be sung, and eloquent tributes will be paid to the worth of the departed. And through all of these solemn services there will be a prayer that comfort greater than that of earth will be vouchsafed for the cherished wife, whose grief is the grief of a nation.

Methodist Union Services.

A memorial service, in which all the Methodist churches of the city will unite, will be held in the First Methodist Church at 11 o'clock. This service promises to be of special interest, inasmuch as the Rev. Dr. Charles Edward Locke, of Buffalo, who officiated at the obsequies of President McKinley in Buffalo, accepted an invitation to be present and deliver the address of the occasion. Dr. Locke's father was a Methodist minister who was at one time Mr. McKinley's pastor, Colonel N. P. Pond will preside at this service. The order of service will be as follows:

Organ prelude.
Special selection by male quartette.
Responsive reading, conducted by Rev. Curtis G. Hoop.
Prayer, by Rev. Dr. Isaac N. Dalbey, presiding elder of the Rochester district.
Scripture lesson, read by Rev. Thomas Carduff.
Hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee."
Address by Rev. Charles Edward Locke, D. D.
Selection by male quartette.
Prayer, Rev. Edwin P. Olmstead.
Hymn, "America."
Benediction, Rev. George M. Harris.

East Side Presbyterians.

The congregations of these East Side churches will unite in the memorial services at the Third Presbyterian Church at 11 o'clock A. M. Third Presbyterian, Memorial Presbyterian, Second Reformed, Calvary Presbyterian, South Congregational, East Side Presbyterian, St. Peter's. The programme of services follows:

Organ prelude.....Gollmast
Hymn, "For All the Saints Who Prove Their Labors Best".....
Anthem for a double quartette—"Lord, Thou Hast Been Our Refuge"
From under Bach's "Mighty Fortress"

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Response—"Sleep Thy Last Sleep"..... Hamby

Among the visiting clergymen will be Rev. T. Harwood Pattison.

The Baptist Churches.

All of the Baptist churches of the city will unite in a memorial service at the Lake Avenue Baptist Church at 11 o'clock this morning. Rev. Charles A. Barbour, D. D., will preside. The principal address will be made by Rev. Donald D. McLaurin, pastor of the Second Baptist Church. The Scripture lessons will be read by Rev. J. W. A. Stewart, pastor of the First Baptist Church, and Rev. Charles H. Moss, pastor of the Park Avenue Church, will offer prayer. Professor Fisher, the organist of the church, will preside at the organ.

On the invitation of Rev. Dr. Barbour, the pupils of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades of public schools Nos. 6, 7, 30 and 33, will attend and occupy seats reserved for them in the gallery.

West Side Presbyterians.

At 11 o'clock this morning the congregations of all of the Presbyterian churches on the west side of the river will hold a union memorial service at the Brick Church. This is the programme of services:

Rev. George D. Miller, presiding.
Organ prelude.....Mrs. Louis E. Fuller Quartette.
Invocation, closing with Lord's Prayer .....Rev. Albert Evans
Hymn No. 673—"Savior When in Dust to Thee".....
Scripture lesson.....Rev. J. F. Sankey, D. D.
Quartette.
Prayer.....Rev. Peter Lindsay, D. D.
Hymn No. 365—"Lead, Kindly Light".....
Memorial address—Rev. William A. Hallock.
Hymn No. 690—"Nearer, My God, to Thee".....
Benediction.....Rev. George D. Miller.
Postlude (organ).....Mrs. Louis E. Fuller

Central Church Auditorium.

One of the three memorial services at the Central Church, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, will be held in the new auditorium, where the following programme will be observed:

Clergymen in charge of services: Rev. Max Landsberg, D. D., Rev. Algernon S. Crapsey, D. D.

Speakers: Rev. Rush Rhees, D. D., LL. D., subject, "The Life and Services of William McKinley."

Hon. William E. Werner, subject, "Our Duty as a People Under the Present Trial of Affliction."

Anthem, "Blessed are the Dead," sung by Rev. L. C. Washburn, D. D.

Benediction.

The music in the auditorium will be in the care of the organist and the choir of the Central Church.

Sunday School Auditorium.

Another union memorial service will be held at the Sunday-school auditorium of the Central Presbyterian Church at 3 o'clock this afternoon, with the programme which follows:

Clergymen in charge of the service: Rev. W. C. Gannett, D. D., Rev. H. H. Stebbins, D. D.

Speakers: Hon. Arthur E. Sutherland, subject, "The Life and Services of William McKinley."

Rev. Nelson Millard, D. D., subject, "Our Duty as a People Under the Present Trial of Affliction."

Anthem, "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace," by the choir.

Benediction.

The music in the Sunday-school auditorium will be in charge of the organist and the choir of St. Andrew's Church.

In Alling Class Room.

A third memorial service will be held in the Alling class room, of the Central Presbyterian Church, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, with the programme here given.

Clergymen in charge of the service: Rev. H. H. Stebbins, D. D., Rev. L. Banks Nelson.

Speakers: Rev. Irving B. Bristol, subject, "Life and Services of William McKinley."

Charles R. Gilbert, A. M., subject, "Our Duty as a People Under the Present Trial of Affliction."

The music here will be in charge of the organist of St. Peter's Church.

The Episcopal Churches.

Memorial services will be held in each of the Episcopal churches at 11 o'clock this morning. Offerings will be taken for a national memorial to the late President McKinley, in accordance with the suggestion of Rev. Dr. Crapsey.

Other Services.

According to the plan agreed upon by Episcopal clergy of this city, memorial services for President McKinley will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church this morning at 11 o'clock, instead of in the afternoon, as formerly announced. It will consist of funeral service and Holy Communion. Rector will officiate. The full choir will sing. A special original anthem, composed by Edward Walker, the organist, will be sung by Mrs. Hooker, the contralto soloist.

First Church and Calvary Church, of the Evangelical Association, will unite in memorial services at the First Church on Scio avenue this morning at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. J. Eberling, presiding elder of the Syracuse district, will officiate in the German language, and Rev. W. H. Meyer in the English language.

A memorial services will be held in the German and the English Lutheran Churches in Zion Church, Grove street, tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Addresses will be delivered in both the English and the German language. Owing to this service the tri-monthly meeting of the Luther League of Rochester, which will be held in St. Paul's Church, Pittsford, will be postponed until Friday.

Meeting of Italians.

The Italian residents of the city will hold a meeting in memory of President McKinley at Clinton hall, No. 372 Clinton avenue north, at 8 o'clock this evening. An address will be delivered in Italian by Rev. J. Vallo, and there will be addresses by other prominent Italian and American speakers. The committee in charge of the meeting consists of John Roncono, Damiano Tagline, Tony Formicola, Leon E. Vallutto, Pasq Rutmndo.

Change at Park Avenue.

The service which had been announced for [illegible] will be held at the Park Avenue Congregational church. It has been decided to attend the union services of all the Baptist churches of the city, at the Lake Avenue Baptist Church, at 11 o'clock this morning.

The Grand Army Meeting.

At the Central Presbyterian Church, at 7:30 o'clock this evening, McKinley memorial services will be held, under the auspices of the Grand Army posts of the city. The Association of Spanish War Veterans, the Sons of Veterans and the woman's auxiliaries and aid societies of all of the veteran associations have been invited to participate. The principal address will be by Hon. William A. Sutherland.

The Public Schools.

Services in memory of the late President McKinley will be held in all of the public schools at 9 o'clock this morning. In all the hymn "America," and President McKinley's farewell hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," will be sung, and addresses will be delivered by the principals and others. The exercises will close promptly at 10 o'clock.

At school No. 26 an address will be delivered by Rev. John L. Caughey, pastor of Memorial Church.

At No. 18 school this programme will be given:

Prayer.
"Onward, Christian Soldiers."
Tribute—Ninth grade.
"Lead, Kindly Light."
Tribute—Seventh grade.
"America."
Tribute—Eighth grade.
"Nearer, My God, to Thee."
Pledge to the flag.
Recessional—"Onward, Christian Soldiers."

Suspension of Business.

President H. B. Guilford has announced that all of the drug stores in the city association will close between the hours of 1 and 6 o'clock this afternoon, in memory of the late President McKinley.

The Main and State street saloon keepers will close their places of business from 2 to 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The city railroad ticket offices will be closed all day to-day. Business will be done at the passenger station ticket office.

President Schleyer, of the Butchers' Association, has requested that all meat markets be closed at noon to-day, for the remainder of the day.

The Hebrew merchants of Front street will make no sidewalk displays during to-day, and all business will be entirely suspended after 12 o'clock.

Rochester Grocery Company Closes.

At a meeting of the Rochester Grocery Company, held Tuesday, it was decided to close the thirty-three retail grocery stores composing the company at 2 o'clock to-day, in honor of the dead president.

A National Memorial.

Episcopal clergymen of the city have taken steps towards the raising of a national fund to erect a memorial to the late president. An offering will be taken to-morrow in the Episcopal churches for this purpose. Rev. A. S. Crapsey, of St. Andrew's Church, said yesterday: "Realizing that such a national fund will undoubtedly be started soon, we thought this a fitting opportunity to contribute our share towards it. The gifts which may be received in our churches to-morrow will be turned over to such a fund as soon as a central committee shall be appointed to take charge of it."

The Hancock Volunteers.

The members of the Hancock Volunteers held a memorial service in honor of the deceased president at their headquarters in the Front street city building last evening. The speakers were Captain M. T. Morse, A. J. Thomas, Lieutenant G. E. Pease. The H. V. Quartette rendered several selections. Among others "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Our Country 'Tis of Thee."

Resolutions were passed calling on the representatives of the people in congress to provide laws that will drive anarchy out of this country.

First Fraternal Regiment.

The First Fraternal Regiment has accepted the invitation to act as the escort to the Grand Army of the Republic, the

PUBLIC HERITAGE
Sept. 20 1991

Left by the President to the American People.

THE LESSONS OF HIS LIFE

Rev. Irving B. Bristol Pointed Out McKinley's Character in His Own Utterances — Remedies Suggested by Superintendent Gilbert for Stamping Out Anarchy.

There were few eyes in the Alling Class room that were not molistened by a tear during the President's memorial service yesterday afternoon. The exercises was conducted in a simple, reverential manner by Rev. Dr. J. P. Sankey of the United Presbyterian Church. The musical part of the service was under the direction of the organist of St. Peters' Church and the accompiments were played by an orchestra.

Rev. S. Banks Nelson of St. Peter's Church offered prayer and the supplication went to the hearts of his hearers. The first speaker was Rev. Irving B. Bristol of Hedding Methodist Church, who said in the course of his address: "The character of Mr. McKinley is a public heritage and the influence of his life will long be felt by the people as a national blessing. You will remember that both his Presidential campaigns were educational. In the first his name became a household one for the people read his life. During the four years of his first term we realized that all the promises of his life had been kept; that he was the kind of man we expected; all that we dreamed he would be. Honorably he came up to our ideal of what the President should be!"

"Now after four years and six months in the Presidential chair he is taken away and almost every man, woman and child in the whole world, I may say, is familiar with his career. On the record of such a man, standing as our ideal of American manhood, we love to linger. It is my opinion that the true picture of McKinley may be found in his own utterances, in his public addresses and in his words as recorded in those last days at Buffalo.

"This man's life was passed in large measure for the good of others. He was essentially unselfish, always thinking of others. Look at him as he was falling after that fatal shot, when his life blood was going out, when the pain must have wrenched every nerve. At that moment he gazed at the wretch who had caused all this and who was writhing in the hold of is captors, trying to break away in order to shoot again at the President. Let no one hurt him, was the President's request. It seemed to come out of the calmness or the man of Calvary. It was this character of Mr. McKinley that enthroned him in the hearts of the American people, his gentleness, his loveableness.

"When he was being carried out of the building where he met his death blow; there was not a man who did not consider it an honor to wait upon him; to serve him, to do anything to save him discomfort or pain. The President said that he was sorry to have been the cause of inconvenience to the authorities of the exposition. Here again we see how kindly considerate of others was the man. As we reflect on this character we are led to the reflection of the Holy Wit, that he who would be chiefest must first be the servant of others.

"We are a nation of homes. The sweetest memories that we have are clustered about our firesides. Thank God that we had for our President an ideal husband and father. When he was told of his first nomination he took his mother and wife to his arms, kissing both. Were not the influences that made his life dear to the American people due to the presence of this mother and wife in his home. When the cares of life almost exhausted his strength he still found time to minister to his wife. In the bosom of his family he found relief from all troubles.

"If I should pick out one characteristic above another to admire I should say that it was his majestic calmness. He seemed always to feel that he was exactly where he ought to be and he never was ruffled. Then he had an abiding confidence in God. He was always ready for anything that happened. When the surgeons were about to put him under the influence of anesthetics in order to perform the dangerous operation he smiled as he told them to do whatever in their judgment seemed necessary. After his life had almost ebbed away and he was growing cold in death, the doctors revived him for a few moments. He returned to consciousness of the world again. It seemed almost as if his soul, were speaking from the border line when the words, "Nearer My God to Thee," came to his lips.

The next speaker was C. B. Gilbert, Superintendent of Public Schools. He said among other things:

"One of the most baffling tragedy that I know. In my life six rulers of nations have been stricken by assassins. All before this we can account for. Nicholas was killed but Russia is a country of tyrany and tyrany breeds anarchy. The President of France fell and this is accounted for by the turbulent character of the French people. The king of Italy was killed. We may explain this crime by the nature of the lower classes in that country resulting from ages of oppression. Lincoln died when America was [illegible]

ELOQUENT TRIBUTE
Herald Sept 21/01.

Judge Sutherland's Eulogy of the Late President.

A NEW SENSE OF UNITY

American People Mourn as One Family —Greatest Service McKinley Rendered Is in Giving the Inspiration of the Example of His Own Perfected Character.

Between 2,000 and 2,500 persons were crowded into the Sunday school auditorium when the memorial exercises were begun. A solemn aspect pervaded the entire assemblage, men and women wearing black and the draping of the pulpit being in keeping with the mournful occasion. After all the seats and standing room had been taken, hundreds were sent over to First Baptist Church on North Fitzhugh Street, where an overflow meeting was held.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Gannett, pastor of First Unitarian Church, presided in the Sunday school room and conducted the services, which consisted of a portion of the Episcopal burial service. The people standing up, Dr. Gannett read the following verse from Scripture: "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and though after my skin worms desroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God, whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another." The psalm beginning "Lord, let me known mine end and the number of my days" was then read by Dr. Gannett and the people. Dr. Gannett read the first chapter of Isaiah and the choir of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church sang the hymn "O God, our help in ages past." The pastor read a portion of II Corinthians and the choir and congregation sang the hymn "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Prayers for the President of the United States, the Governor of this state and all others in authority, for the preservation of the nation in this hour of affliction and for the widow of the martyred President were said by Rev. Dr. H. H. Stebbins, after which the congregation sang "Lead, Kindly Light."

Dr. Gannett then introduced Hon. Arthur E. Sutherland, who spoke on the life and services of William McKinley.

Judge Sutherland's Address.

Judge Sutherland spoke as follows:

"Fellow Citizens—Of late we seem to have grown nearer one another. There is a new sense of unity here. Standing under the shadow of a common sorrow the stranger beside us has become friend, even kinsman. The American people mourn as one family. Nor is this of America alone. For the time the imaginary lines which the accidents of history have drawn between sovereign states and empires are forgotten. We feel the touch of fraternal hands across the sea; and all peoples of the earth, whom He hath made of one blood, join in lamentation saying, 'This was our brother. We loved him, and he has been taken from us.'

"William McKinley was born into this life January 29, 1843, in Trumble County, Ohio. His father and grandfather were engaged in iron manufacture. Doubtless this fact gave him that special interest in the industrial developments of the country, which peculiarly characterized his whole public career. His father's means were moderate, but the home was rich in inspiration to noble endeavor. It was a home where the precepts of righteousness were taught, and God was worshiped, and who will not define the limits of the influence of that simple American home upon William McKinley, and through him upon the nation and the world.

"A student in the common schools, at a seminary, for two years in college, a teacher then a clerk; in May 1861 at the age of 18 years he enlisted as a private soldier in the 23d Ohio Volunteer Infantry in the war to preserve the Union of the states. He was soon under fire, was promoted for meritorious conduct to sergeant after Antietam to second lieutenant then in first lieutenant. When the black horse and his rider came down the valley from Winchester it was Captain McKinley whom Sheridan noticed rallying his men to turn the tide of battle from defeat to glorious victory. He was in a score of battles served on the staff of Generals Crook, Hancock and Carroll till peace was declared, and returned home with the commission of major, conferred 'for gallant conduct at the battles of Opequan, Cedar Creek and Fisher's Hill' and signed with the hand of Abraham Lincoln.

"He chose the law as his life work, entered the bar in 1867, commencing practice at Canton and was elected District Attorney of Stark County in 1869, serving two years. Thus his first service in the civil branch of government was the maintenance of public law, that his fellow men, his neighbors might go their ways unmolested; might lie down at night to sleep unvexed by the marauder, inviolate from those who would assail.

"From 1876 to 1890 he was a Member of Congress, serving nearly seven full terms. His career as a Congressman is written large upon the page of history. Twice Governor of Ohio, twice President, he had come up by natural processes of growth to fill the highest position of earthly responsibility and power, equal to all its exactions. Moderate in counsel, striving to avert war till peace was no longer possible; quick and irresistible as Chief of America Militant; humane as Chief of America Triumphant; and unperturbed as a diplomat, fostering the friendship of Europe and Asia, he satisfied the highest ideals of American life. The events and temper of his administration brought unparallelled prosperity at home and added immeasurably to the prestige and world influence of the republic.

"In his relations to his party allies McKinley's sense of honor was very fine. In 1888, in the National Convention of his party, heading the Ohio delegation he earnestly advocated the nomination of John Sherman. But his own record and personality marked him for popular favor The leaders hesitated; the delegates were growing insistent; the very air was tremulous with the impending change. 'Give us McKinley' men were shouting everywhere. But with absolute loyalty to the cause of his friend and with a sincerity which commanded acquiescence he demanded that no man cast reflection upon his honor by voting for him. Those who live but for the day, who see only the present advantage, said, wonderingly, "He has refused the crown."

"Of his career as member of the National Legislature it will be said by all that his position was taken after profound study of conditions. In the heat of partisan discussion he was charged with being devoted to the interests of capital; but irrespective of differences in view as to the wisdom of his policy, you who have heard him, who have read his words, will agree that the mainspring of his zeal in the advocacy of a tariff strongly protective, was his devotion to those who labor; to the toiling masses in whom he believed, whose cause he made his own.

"Conditions changing, modifications followed. Throughout his whole career he was consistent but not prevented by narrow pride of opinion from responding to altered circumstances.

"Sensitive to public opinion he never sought to catch the fleeting popular favor by demagogic phrase. The open door policy in China was the act of a statesman studying events and conditions as they are, and meeting new opportunities with appropriate means. In his last speech, delivered in the presence of the accredited representatives of all the North and South American states, with the eyes of the world upon him, he declared that, 'The period of exclusiveness is past' and gave plain intimation of a breadth of reciprocal trade policies to be undertaken, commensurate with the duties and opportunities of this great exporting nation.

"As a statesman and leader most of us will concur in the opinion that he was pre-eminently distinguished for his intuitive knowledge of the will of the people and his rare perception of the right moment for decisive action. The people believed in him as they believed in Lincoln. Like Grant, 'he had no policy to enforce the will of the people.'

"His whole public career had been one of struggle. He met with fierce opposition all along his path until his administration as President was well under way. Then a change came and no President of this republic ever had such united support from Congress and from the press and the leaders of the opposite. Through tumult and strife we had come to peace and honor and unboundless prosperity. Beloved by all the people, surrounded by the visible signs of happiness and contentment, he proclaims in majestic phrase a policy of peace among all the nations of the earth and then—his work is finished.

"The American people are self-poised, conscious of the perfect adjustment of our institutions to the present crisis, confident that business conditions will remain steady and governmental policies endure. But still they weep and will not be consoled. It is the human side; not the President, but the man, sad, tender, loving and true, his noble soul and the deep iniquity of his taking off.

"Did you see him in November, 1892, at Washington Rink in this city? He was then Governor of Ohio and was speaking for the re-election of President Harrison. The multitude is clamorous. He appears at the rear of the platform. The cheers roll out like thunder peals. He does not at once acknowledge the greeting. The with being devoted to the interests of crowd at the entrance rises way and he comes, leading, proudly, gently, a sweet-faced little lady; and not until Mrs. McKinley is safely seated within smiling distance does he look about him and respond to his welcome.

Through all this tract of years
Wearing the white flower of a blameless life.

"He loved the laughter of children, the companionship of friends, the sweet solicitude of his home.

"The altar in the Temple of Spirit was

Twenty-first Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY
Hebing's Artillery Band
GEORGE HEBING, DIRECTOR.

AT GENESEE VALLEY PARK,

Sunday Afternoon, Sept. 22, 1901,

FROM 3 TO 6 O'CLOCK.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program. . . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—Invincible Eagle, - - - - - Sousa
2. OVERTURE—Zampa, - - - - - Herold
3. VOCAL BARITONE SOLO.
   a. Asleep in the Deep, - - - - - Petrie
   b. Mr. Volunteer, - - - - - Dreeser
   Mr. John W. Wignall, with Band Accompaniment.
4. PATROL—Blue and Gray, - - - - - Dalbey
5. MEDLEY, OVERTURE—Dazzler, (New) - Mackie
6. WALTZ—An Autumn Bud, - - - - - Lesser
7. Storm and Sunshine, - - - - - Bray
8. Darkies' Frolics, - - - - - Luders
9. MEDLEY, OVERTURE—King Dodo, (New) Missud
10. DANCE—Porto Rican, - - - - - Lampe
11. Creole Belles, - - - - - Laurendeau
12. WAR SONGS—Boys in Blue, - -

When you are through with this Program, do not throw it on the Park Grounds, but in the receptacle for waste.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

sparkling. The air was vibrant with the strains of one of Bach's immortal themes. There was not the wild shouting of a tumultuous throng, but the quieter, deeper happiness of a grateful people, proud to have a personal greeting from the citizen President. A child passes and her yellow curls bob away, followed by the lingering glance of the great man who had made her child-heart glad. He turns to greet another—and, Oh! the awfulness of it! Let the fiend's name be unmentioned, his features forgotten; and let the foul inciting spirit, born of wild fanaticism and vicious hate—let it slink away with the creeping things. It cannot bear the light. It will shrivel up and disappear.

"There was no wrong to avenge; no injustice to mend; no cause to help. Oh! the pity and the mystery of it all!

"Quietly they bear him away; tenderly they watch; anxiously they pray. His thought is for others. The nurse with gentle touch is screening the afternoon light. But he would lock out once more into the trees and the sunshine. 'It is so beautiful,' he murmurs. He would choose to stay; but 'It's God's way. His will be done, not ours.' And so he passes into the shining light, into the limitless opportunities, the ineffable glory of the Eternal.

"William McKinley's services in war were great, in statesmanship greater. He has builded into the wall of institutions that will endure for all time; he set a new jewel in Freedom's coronet; but the greatest service he has rendered is in giving us the inspiration of the example of his own perfected character. This will endure, though all else change and disappear.

"Soldier, thou wert brave and we admired thee; statesman, thou wert wise and we followed thee; but man, fellow mortal, we loved thee, and even as thou are lifted up, so dost thou draw all men unto thee."

Our Duties Under Affliction.

At the conclusion of Judge Sutherland's address the choir and congregation sang the national hymn, "Columbia," after which Dr. Gannett introduced Rev. Dr. Nelson Millard, who spoke on "Our Duties Under the Present Trial of Affliction." He said:

"Not only our nation mourns, but the whole civilized world. Throughout our broad land all sectarian differences, all sectional divisions, all party strifes are forgotten in the common grief. All hearts are shocked by the appalling turpitude and the blending folly of the deed that has caused their tears. Folly, I say, for a more aimless, a more needless sacrifice, a more idiotic crime than the assassination of President McKinley cannot be conceived.

"And now what are some of the duties which this great calamity presses upon us. I may perhaps be permitted to say, first of all, that one thing is not our duty, and that is to try to regard the murderer's crime as an act and dispensation of God. What sense in blaming Czolgosz if he were only an agent of another. Blame, then, the principal, not the agent. It is blasphemy to say that that assassin was God's appointee. He was not the agent of God, nor the tool of the devil, but simply a wretch acting out his own wicked free will.

"It is our duty, even in the greatness of our grief and the hotness of our anger, to keep our heads, and not fight anarchy with anarchy, nor violation of law with lynch law, which is but another form of violation of law.

"It is our duty to do all we can to suppress that habit of vituperative and calumnious criticism of our Chief Magistrates which has so much prevailed.

"It is our duty to do all in our power to discountenance that yellow journalism which is so debauching and demoralizing. It does not even deserve to be called by so fair-colored a name as yellow journalism, but should be styled the 'Plutonian Press.'

"All anarchist papers advocating monarch murder should be forbidden publication on our soil. That we have so long tolerated them is a disgrace and a flagrant violation of international comity.

"We ought no longer to permit our land to be an asylum and refuge for anarchists where they may safely promulgate principles subversive of the very foundations of society."

The services closed with the singing of the Doxology and the blessing of peace, pronounced by Rev. Dr. Stebbins.

SADDENED THRONG

Immense Crowd at Central Church Services.

SANG THE PRESIDENT'S HYMNS

Rev. Dr Rush Rhees Reviewed the Life and Services of President McKinley and Judge Werner Spoke of Our Duty in the Present Trial — Mayor Carnahan Spoke Briefly.

Never in the history of Central Presbyterian Church has such an immense gathering of people thronged the edifice from doors to platform as that which assembled under the roof yesterday afternoon at the union memorial service in honor of the martyred President. All were silently sad. Blended with the unspoken, though ever apparent grief of the people, was the outward expression of their loyalty, devo-

[illegible] and [illegible] ... assembled as it [illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ...

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

62

Sept 28 1901

RESPONSE TO RESOLUTIONS.

Chamber of Commerce Gets Official Answer From Secretary Hay.

The first thing that attracted the attention of Secretary John M. Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, as he looked over his mail yesterday was the appearance of a large envelope of delicate blue tint, stamped with the insignia of the state department at Washington, and inclosed in mourning edges.

It inclosed the official response of Hon. John Hay, secretary of state at Washington, to the resolutions of condolence adopted by the Chamber of Commerce of this city. The text of the epistle was as follows:

John M. Ives, Rochester, N. Y.

Dear Sir: Among the many messages of grief and of sympathy with Mrs. McKinley and other members of the late president's family in their overwhelming trouble, received by the government, and acknowledged by me on their account, and among the multitudinous expressions of profound respect for President McKinley's unselfish devotion and great services to his country, together with a wide and increasing testimonial to his exalted character and gracious personality from every part of the United States, indeed all parts of the world, I have the honor to acknowledge with sentiments of sincere approval, the action taken by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce at the meeting on the 10th inst. I am, sir,

Your obedient servant,
JOHN HAY.

The signature was in the secretary's own handwriting.

POSITION OF THE CITY OF ROCHESTER

Democrat and Chronicle Sept 27 1901

"From the Four Corners and Not From Buffalo."

BIG CANAL POSSIBILITIES

Arguments in Favor of the Deep Waterway Over the Niagara Route and Against Mr. Raymond's Contentions.

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

Sir: Appreciating Mr. Raymond's implied compliment that I am a student of transportation and his personal liking, which is reciprocated, let us present "the position of the city of Rochester" from the Four Corners and not from Buffalo.

The Genesee is a nobler river than the Cuyahoga, which is the harbor of Cleveland, and less expense than has been spent by the United States upon it or upon the Buffalo breakwater would canalize the Genesee for a twenty-one foot way, make turning basins beneath each falls and lift locks at the two lower falls, fetching the 8,000 ton freighters into the very heart of Rochester, provided we do that fool (?) thing first of bringing them "into the middle of Lake Ontario," and they can be brought into Lake Ontario in nine hours by 11.6-10 miles of canal and nine locks in the rigid Niagara limestone.

My friend, Mr. Mandeville, of Tompkins county, has obtained from Mr. Raymond's public statement that in this matter of canal improvement it was a question of cost and not time. Mr. Raymond now admits that Buffalo would go in with Rochester for a ship canal along the Erie route, if it could be built quicker than the barge canal.

I venture to say that the deep waterway over the Niagara route, with only eleven miles of canal, bringing lake freighters and traffic like that of the upper lakes into Ontario, not only to Rochester, but to Oswego, could be built as quickly as could the 1,000 ton barge canal over the route he favors, which is surely 120 miles, crosses the Genesee and other rivers, highways and railways, must go around or through cities and towns, and crosses the Montezuma swamps, as well as other physical difficulties, against a Niagara way in eleven miles of rock with little interference.

During the last seven years in which I have been working "as the storm-center of the United States" upon the theory, whatever increases the traffic of Lake Ontario benefits Rochester and the state of New York, I have seen the business of the port of Genesee grow from almost nothing until its "Harbor Notes" occupy a considerable space in the daily press, and one can go comfortably most anywhere on Ontario and the St. Lawrence by boat; and there is sent out from this port 500,000 tons of coal.

From the Rochester point of view I will "fly my machine to the north." This is improvement, but it is not enough. The 500,000 tons of coal pay double freight, since there is no return cargo for lack of adequate way to the upper lakes; when there is, Rochester will send out two or three million tons as do Buffalo, Cleveland and other ports on Erie. And we will show Mr. Raymond and others "the earthly good of a ship canal into Lake Ontario" to the great coal, as well as the salt and cement, interests of the Genesee valley when the deep waterway goes by a twenty-one foot way into the twenty-one foot connecting channels of the upper lakes and also by a twenty-one foot way to the Hudson and deep water and the forty foot channels of New York harbor.

There has been talk of the Vacuum Oil moving to the seaboard for transportation facilities. With this deep waterway the seaboard will be here, it need not move. It is so with the great lumber and grain interests of Rochester. The 1,000 ton barge way advocated will, as Rochester thinks, seem a minor affair when the 8,000 ton freighter can bring grain and lumber to the banks of the Genesee within the city of Rochester, and I have no doubt that if we fetch the 8,000 ton freighter into the river the miller and merchant will find some efficient means to get the cargo to his mill and to his place of business. He will do the "spouting" then, as he perhaps now is indifferent or demands our spouting.

Rochester is essentially a common point of distribution and it is for that reason that its [illegible] Rochester and its [illegible] Rochester [illegible] the capacity of the barge canal around Niagara, and with about one-eighth mile age and restricted navigation compared with the barge canal advocated, will be more beneficial to Rochester than it; moreover, not considering that it can do her harm, her eyes are open to the fact that it has the support of all the states tributary and adjacent to the Great Lakes basin, and all New England and coast states, that it will be built in whole or major part at federal expense, consequent to that interest, and by its indirect taxation, against an expenditure of $100,000,000 by the state, advocated by Mr. Raymond and canal friends throughout the state who have studied the question most carefully and are to-day as much in the dark as to the state of things in Rochester," of which state expenditure Rochester will pay at least 1-50, or $2,000,000.

Still flying the machine north Rochester sees that such a channel will be provocative of a great increase of trade, not only East and West, not only domestic and export and import, but of great trade North and South and international with British North America, and that Rochester will be the center of trade from the country back of her to the country across the waters. Moreover the position of the city of Rochester is not only sentimental, but it is physical. With calm foresight she sees that position as near the coal fields as is Cleveland, and pictures to herself a not distant day when the towns of Greece and Irondequoit embraced within her municipality and guardianship shall be busy with the exchange of coal and iron ore, and with manifold iron and steel industries made by their union with our local limestone, and the anvil that forges the plates for the vessel that shall carry the American flag into every market of the world, and whose stern shall be marked with the name of the vessel and the port from which she hails, and not only for vessels of trade, but for such as shall fly the pendent and guard her sovereignty.

Only these eleven miles of rock, only selfish or short sighted antagonism, prevent such a consummation of intelligent effort to make labor-employing and wealth-producing industries such as Rochester has not heretofore dreamed of; and these dreams are related to facts and to precedent, nothing in that waterway, in excavation, in water supply, in prism or lock construction is difficult to the engineer, is not exceeded by existing canals in the world, and if it is "engineered from Rochester," as Mr. Raymond asserts, it "should be seriously considered by every person who has the welfare of the city at heart." And permit me to add by way of contrast, also Mr. Raymond's letter and the 1,000 ton barge canal.

JOHN A. C. WRIGHT.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 24, 1901.

Twenty first Concert

PUBLIC BAND CONCERT
BY THE
54th REGIMENT BAND,
F. A. ZEITLER, Director.

AT SENECA PARK, WEST,

Sunday Afternoon, Sept. ~~28~~ 29, 1901,
Postponed from Sept 28th,
FROM 3 TO 6 O'CLOCK.

Under the Auspices of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Program. . . .

PART I.

1. MARCH—Trojan League, - - Sam. Hamilton
2. OVERTURE—Morning, Noon and Night, Von Suppe
3. TROMBONE SOLO—Toreador's Song, (Carmen) Mr. Henry Galvin. Bizet
4. SELECTION—Foxy Quiller, - - De Koven
5. WALTZ—Rolling Waves, - - - - Tobani
6. MEDLEY—Popular Texas, - - - Boettger

PART II.

7. MARCH—Peace Forever, - - - Jos. Lacalle
8. OVERTURE—Queen of Autumn, - - Carl Bigge
9. (a. SONG—The Palm and the Pine, - - Cortesi (Words by T. T. Swinburne) (b. INTERMEZZO—Cavalleria Rusticana, Mascagni
10. SELECTION—The Rounders, - - Englander
11. WALTZ—Singing Girl, - - - - V. Herbert
12. AMERICAN FANTASIA, - - - - Bendix Tone Pictures, North and South.

When you are through with this Program, do not throw it on the Park Grounds, but in the receptacle for waste.

Band Concerts.

[illegible] of the Sunday afternoon band concerts was given yesterday and was heard by at least six thousand people. More would have heard it had the street railway company afforded sufficient facilities for conveying the pleasure-seekers to the park. Owing, however, to the annual ceremony of blessing the graves at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, the trolley company was taxed beyond its resources.

The Times was the first newspaper in Rochester to advocate band concerts in the parks. Two years ago it began to print insistent editorials on the subject and at last, thanks to the mutual efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, the leading musicians of the city and a number of public spirited citizens, the concerts were inaugurated and their success demonstrated beyond a possible shadow of doubt.

Next year there should be no delay inaugurating the concerts. The project should be taken up by the Chamber of Commerce, a sufficient sum subscribed for during the winter and the first concert given on the first Sunday in June. If the Chamber of Commerce should feel that it could not conduct the matter the city should, through the Park Commission, appropriate a sum sufficient for the purpose and charge the same to the park fund. And by this time next year it is to be hoped that the street railway company can handle all kinds of crowds under any reasonable conditions.

The Times Sept. 30, 1901

PLENTY OF POWER FOR STREET RAILWAY

Practical Results of Low Dam Water Storage in Genesee.

Dem & Chronicle Oct 2 1901

Contract Signed Yesterday by Which Rochester Railway Company Obtains All of its Power for the Next Five Years from the Rochester Gas and Electric Company—The Outcome of Regulation of Flow of Water in the Genesee River—Surplus for Manufactories.

Late yesterday afternoon a contract was signed between the Rochester Gas and Electric Company and the Rochester Railway Company, by which, for a term of five years, the railway company is to receive all of its power from the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, in the form of electricity, delivered at the several plants of the electric company.

The Rochester Railway Company, under its present management, has been improving its service by rapid strides. The increase of the speed of its cars, within a limit perfectly compatible with safety, is a decided advance from the old, slow coach methods to exhilarating first-class railway travel.

The contract executed yesterday insures the railway company an abundance of power to maintain these conditions, and also enables it to reduce, by a large percentage, the time required for the traffic. The company will have another obviously great advantage in that it will be unnecessary to construct a new power plant.

The price at which the electrical power is obtained for the next five years has not transpired, but it is understood to be entirely satisfactory to both companies. While large sums have been and are now being expended in betterment of the trackage and rolling stock of the company, the fact that it will not be necessary to construct and maintain a costly and constantly expensive steam power plant, will enable the railway company to still further improve its property and its service. The element of uncertainty and anxiety, inseparable from the maintenance of a large steam power plant will be eliminated, as the electric current purchased by this long term contract, is supplied from constant water power, which is available from any one of several water power electric stations, thus precluding delays from accidents.

It is pointed out that there are certain advantages from the elimination of the item of coal by this contract; that the money which would otherwise be paid out for coal to produce this several thousand horse power, goes into the coffers of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, the stock of which is mostly owned by nearly four hundred residents of Rochester. That it will also accrue to the financial advantage of the Rochester Railway Company goes without saying. Practically it would seem to be like having a coal mine in the city, without the cost and disadvantages of mining the product.

While this power comes from the surplus power of the company furnishing it, it is understood that it will not reduce appreciably the large surplus of power still available for general manufacturing purposes in the city and vicinity.

The important long-term contract between the Rochester Gas and Electric Company and the Rochester Railway Company seems to assure the availability of large units of electrical power in Rochester, at satisfactory prices. The rapidity and facility with which the power-producing company is willing to take large contracts for electrical power, for long terms of years, manifests clearly its confidence in the results accruing from its plan of development of water power by low dams in the Genesee river, from Rochester to beyond the Pennsylvania line.

Oct 4 1901
HERALD, FRIDAY, O

WANT SHIP CANAL

Local Delegates Will Boom the Project at Buffalo Convention.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PLAN

Two Resolutions Favoring Idea Were Adopted at Meeting of Trustees and Executive Committee Yesterday — Six New Members Admitted to the Chamber.

Rochester will be represented at the third annual state commerce convention which convenes in Buffalo on October 16 and the chief business of the local delegates will be to boom the project for a ship canal connecting Lake Erie with Lake Ontario, a port being established at Charlotte.

Six delegates will represent the Chamber of Commerce and three delegates have been appointed by Mayor Carnahan. It has been the aim of the Chamber for several years to bring about a discussion of this ship canal with the hope that it may ultimately materialize.

Three different solutions of the matter have been suggested by persons interested in the project. Some favor a widening of the Erie Canal. These are mostly from Buffalo and that vicinity. Some favor a barge canal through the state. These hail from the inland cities and New York. Rochester wants a ship canal.

At the meeting of the trustees and executive committees of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday this matter was discussed. There was an unanimity of opinion for a ship canal because such would allow the big vessels from the great lakes to pass through it to this city and thence into Lake Ontario by way of Charlotte. It would obviate the unloading of through boats at Buffalo and thereby deprive that city of a profitable source of revenue.

Two resolutions were adopted, one favoring the building of such a canal and the other asking federal aid for the state in constructing it. Both of these resolutions will be forwarded to the rpesident of the convention and will be incorporated in the programme of topics to be discussed.

Six new members were admitted at the meeting of the executive committee. Their names are: J. B. Snyder Supply and Electrical Company, Raines & Miller, John A. C. Wright, John N. Beckley, C. J. Conolly, A. J. Rodenbeck.

Permission was given the Tuesday Musicale Society and the Rochester Choral Society to use the chamber rooms for their rehearsals and meeting.

Secretary Ives read a letter of acknowledgment from Secretary of State John Hay in response to the memorial adopted by the chamber on the death of President McKinley. The letter will be framed and hung on the walls of the assembly room. President A. B. Lamberton presided at the meeting.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

The State Commerce Convention.

The third annual State Commerce Convention will be held at the Merchants Exchange in the Board of Trade Building, corner of Seneca and Pearl Streets, in the City of Buffalo, beginning at 10:30 a. m., on Wednesday, Oct. 16, 1901.

The object of the convention is to consider deliberately all matters relating to commerce and manufactures, and incidentally the laws and usages of business which now make for progress or hinder it.

The convention will devote its labors to STATE questions only; BUT QUESTIONS RELATING TO THE POLICY OF THIS STATE DEPENDENT UPON ACTION BY THE GENERAL GOVERNMENT WILL ALSO BE ADMITTED TO DISCUSSION.

All commercial bodies within the boundaries of the State of New York including boards of trade, merchants', manufacturers' and business men's associations, chambers of commerce, produce, mercantile and other exchanges and all other associations consisting mainly of business men, merchants and manufacturers ARE ENTITLED, INVITED AND REQUESTED to send delegates to the convention.

The Times hopes to see the City of Rochester capably and fully represented at this convention not alone by delegates but by a large body of representative citizens. The importance of the convention to the state and to this city in common with other municipalities can not be overestimated.

By far the most important subject to be considered will bear on the state canals and more especially the future of the Erie Canal. The Times believes that in its present shape or modified to a barge canal that its operation by the state will be impracticable and extravagant. The true solution of the state's water transportation problem is a ship canal erected by federal monies and under federal direction. This convention has it in its power to launch the project.

The Times Sept 30, 1901

The Late J. LEE JUDSON, of Rochester.
A PROMINENT FIGURE IN MANUFACTURING, FINANCIAL AND EDUCATIONAL CIRCLES.

It is with a high appreciation of the city's loss that The Times records the death of Mr. J. Lee Judson, President of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company. Mr. Judson had a remarkable business career and was closely identified with the city's progress. His death will be keenly felt in social, business and religious circles. Oct 7, 1901 The Times Oct 7, 1901

The Canal Question

[illegible] was a national question, and no longer a state question. The Troy "Budget" says that whatever improvement of the canals shall be undertaken in the future "the work should be done and the expense assumed by the United States."

Commenting upon these utterances the "Democrat and Chronicle" says: "Both propositions sound very fine and large, and are employed often to avoid any real discussion and effective action. But there is not a particle of evidence anywhere that a corporal's guard of congressmen can be got to vote $250,000,000 for a ship canal through New York to the Hudson this year or in any future year." And it adds:

Of all the humbugs to delay canal enlargement, the talk of congressional action is the greatest. It should deceive nobody; but it deceives some and is probable that a few of the people who talk of it deceive themselves. New York cannot get Alabama nor Massachusetts nor any other state to attend to the internal affairs of New York. They have other fish to fry. New Yorkers must attend to their own affairs or be willing to surrender the primacy which came to the state through the wisdom and the energy of their fathers.

What, then, is the conclusion? Our contemporary stops short at the interesting point. Is it in favor of a ship canal to be constructed by the state of New York? Or is it opposed to a ship canal altogether? Does it believe that the present canals are sufficient? Or does it advocate the appropriation of another $9,000,000 to be expended to little purpose? Is it in favor of a barge canal, to cost at least half as much as a ship canal? Where does it stand?

It is our opinion that our contemporary does not accurately judge the sentiment of the people of other states on the question of a ship canal through New York at national expense. Representatives from all sections voted for a ship canal through the straits of St. Mary; that project was recognized as of national importance. May they not look in a broad, patriotic, and generous way upon a project for a ship canal that would not only be of great value to the nation in time of war but would carry the products of the entire West to seaboard and foreign markets in the cheapest possible manner?

New Yorkers need not guess as to the attitude of the people of other states on this question; they can ascertain the fact by an application to congress. Of course the railroads of the country, with their enormous influence, would oppose a ship canal, but possibly that influence might be overcome. Let us at least make the effort. Oct 2, 01

J. LEE JUDSON.

Death of the President of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company at His Home on Lake Avenue.

J. Lee Judson, president of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, died at his home, No. 282 Lake avenue, on Saturday night, aged 54 years. Mr. Judson was in good health up to last Tuesday, when he suffered an attack of peritonitis. Uremic poisoning then developed and the end came at about 10:30 Saturday night.

Mr. Judson was a son of the late Junius Judson, who for many years was prominently connected with the manufacturing interests of this city. He was educated in the public and in private schools, and at early age entered into business in company with his father. When the Edison Electric Light Company was formed Mr. Judson was one of its directors, soon after becoming its president, and when the electric and gas interests of the city were consolidated into the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, became president of that concern, retaining the office until his death. Mr. Judson was connected with other important manufacturing concerns and with a number of large financial institutions. He was president of the Judson Governor Company, the Judson Pin Manufacturing Company and the Judson Power Company; vice-president of the Fidelity Trust Company; trustee of Rochester Trust and Safe Deposit Company and the Security Trust Company, a director of the German-American Bank, a trustee of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, and vice-president of the board of trustees of the University of Rochester. Mr. Judson was a member of the Second Baptist Church and of the Genesee Valley Club.

Besides his widow, formerly Miss Mary Mack, Mr. Judson leaves one son, Junius R. Judson, and four daughters. Miss Marie L. Judson, Miss Grace A. Judson, Miss Josephine L. Judson and Miss Margery E. Judson. He also leaves a brother, Charles B. Judson, two sisters, Mrs. George D. Hale and Mrs. Harry L. Brewster, all of this city.

The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rush Rhees, president of the University of Rochester, assisted by Rev. Dr. MacLaurin of Second Baptist Church, and Rev. Clarence A. Barbour of Lake Avenue Baptist Church officiating. Daily Union Oct 7 01.

ROCHESTER TO HAVE A CONVENTION HALL

Old St. Paul's Church is to be Transformed Into One.

FINISHED BY DECEMBER

Private Capital Will Fit up Hall With Seating Capacity of 1,500—Will be Named Colonial Hall — Plan on Which Building is to be Remodeled.

Rochester is at last to have a convention hall, and one, say the promoters, that will be ready for use by December 1st. Of course, to have it ready at that early date means that the structure will not be new. Old St. Paul's Church, now known as Damascus temple annex, on St. Paul street, near Main street east, is to be remodeled into a convention hall, with a seating capacity of 1,500, and if this is not large enough it will be enlarged.

The building is one of the city's landmarks. In its present condition it is far from inviting in appearance. The cellar is damp and the interior of the building is dark. But with the transformation that is promised all this will pass away, and a light, attractive interior will result from the change.

Walter R. Stone, manager of the Smith & Dove Manufacturing Company, of No. 7 Andrews street, has charge of the work. The property has been turned over to Mr. Stone by the owner, who does not care to be recognized in the matter, and Mr. Stone believes that he can have the building transformed into a convention hall early in December. He expects to see the plans this week and to begin work next week.

Mr. Stone was seen yesterday afternoon by a Democrat and Chronicle reporter. He said that, while a convention hall was of secondary importance in one way, it was the principal object in another. The building was to be made into a hall and would be first class in every respect. Objectionable people would be kept out, there would be no bar and the men behind the scheme would see how the house took yith the people of Rochester.

There will be few changes made in the exterior. The steeple will be torn down, new windows will be put in and the front of the building will present the form of a terraced roof. A covered way will extend from the entrance of the building to the sidewalk, and within this there will be a broad flight of steps leading to the present main entrance. In the front vestibule there will be a ticket office, a manager's office on the right and a handsomely fitted up smoking room on the left. The inner doors will be set farther back and another broad flight of steps will lead up to them.

The seats about the sides of the building will be removed, as well as the raised platforms. Chairs will be placed in the hall. These can be readily removed for dancing, and at all other times the floor will be covered with a heavy canvas. The floor will be of Georgia pine. Underneath the floor will be placed heavy paper to prevent dust from rising. In order to give more stage room the chancel will be squared off for a stage twenty-two feet in depth.

The floor capacity will be 1,200 sittings and the gallery above the entrance will seat 300 more. If this is not sufficient and is so seen within two months, the front wall will be moved out to the street and the rear wall extended back sixty-eight feet, giving main floor space for 2,050 seats, and the gallery will be enlarged to seat 700. There will be wide circular stairways to the gallery. In the basement there will be a dining room to seat 400 people, and kitchens, etc. A double floor will be laid in the basement. A system of ventilation will do away with dampness. The entrance to the basement from the front part of the hall will be off the smoking room. There will be another entrance at the rear.

Said Mr. Stone: "Our idea is to make a hall that will meet the requirements of any class of people in the city that may desire to use it. It will be an excellent place for conventions, or any sort of a large public meeting, for dancing, basketball, etc. We shall keep the floor in excellent condition. We shall raise the stage. There will be dressing rooms off from one side and two rooms for ladies off the other side of the stage. We shall call it Colonial hall. The cost of the improvements will be between $6,000 and $7,000."

KNIGHTS OF MALTA IN SESSION

Oct 8 1901

Secret Society Convention at Chamber of Commerce.

Several Hundred Members of the Ancient and Influential Order in Attendance.

Report of the Supreme Past Grand Commander Read—Prospective Business.

The eighteenth annual convocation of the supreme grand commandery, sovereign of America, of the Ancient and Illustrious Order of Knights of Malta, opened this morning in the Chamber of Commerce. At least 50 members of the order are in the city and [illegible] convention, which will remain

Oct 8 1901
CHRONICLE, TUE

[illegible] state of the union is represented by delegates.

PAST SUPREME GRAND COMMANDER JOHN H. HICKS.

This morning's meeting began at 10 o'clock when the annual report of Supreme Commander John H. Hoffman was presented. The report showed that the organization had greatly increased in membership during the past year and that the fraternity was in a sound financial condition. Mr. Hoffman congratulated the delegates present on the showing made last year by the various commanderies.

Supreme Past Grand Commander George H. Pierce conferred the past commanders' degree on the following: James S. Pindrew, Elias W. Myers, George E. Cranvat, Alvern R. Christer, Frank A. Perry and James S. Frost of Albany; Arville R. Bacon and George M. Maggutt of Binghamton; Alvern S. Eastman, Charles B. Webber and William H. Roberts of Syracuse; Frank Wyankoop of Chicago.

SUPREME GRAND COMMANDER JOHN H. HOFFMAN.

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon a reception to the visting ladies was given by the ladies' committee at Odd Fellows' hall on Clinton avenue north, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended the affair. The committee of ladies who received the visitors consisted of Mesdames William Boyd, J. F. O'Neil, William Beard, George Stanging, David Allen, Asher Adams, W. S. Pembroke and Zimmerman. A reception to the visiting delegates and their wives will be given by the members of the local branches of the Knights of Malta at Odd Fellows' hall this evening. At 8 o'clock Mayor Carnahan will deliver an address of welcome.

SUPREME RECORDER FRANK GRAY.

The programme for to-morrow includes meetings in the morning and afternoon another reception to the visiting ladies a Odd Fellows' hall in the evening, and a banquet of the supreme officers at the New Osburn House at 9 o'clock to-morrow night. The dress parade which was to have been held to-morrow afternoon has been postponed, on account of the delegations from the eastern commanderies having been smaller than was expected.

SCHEDULE INSTEAD OF THE WILDCAT SYSTEM

Oct 6 1901

Important Change Contemplated by New York Central Railroad Affects 200 People.

About two hundred Rochester people will be affected by a move contemplated by the New York Central railroad, which will, it is said, go into effect within two weeks. The change will be, in brief, the abolition of the "wildcat" engine system and the establishment of a schedule system for freight engineers and firemen on the main line of the Central.

The change is in line with the general movement towards retrenchment on the road and will benefit the men, since their hours will be better under the new system, but Rochester will suffer the loss of the money put into circulation by fifty odd engineers and firemen and their families, who will be compelled to remove from here to Buffalo or Syracuse.

Under the present system, the crews of the freight engines on the main line are accustomed to lay off when they reach Rochester until the crew that started from the other end of the route has its run and returned. A crew starting from Syracuse waits here for the Buffalo men to make their return, and vice versa. The effect of this was to make Rochester a central point for the railroad men.

The new system will send each crew straight through to the end of the run, and there it will lay off for eight hours. This lay-off, of course, is manifestly a relief for the men, and is unquestionably an improvement, from their standpoint, over the old method. But those of them who have established their homes in Rochester will be practically compelled to remove to Buffalo or Syracuse.

The only explanation that has been vouchsafed as to the object of the change is that it is made in the interests of economy and in accordance with the spirit of retrenchment that rules on the road at present. But there are those who point out that the change is a blow to the prestige of Rochester, as a railroad center, and they do not scruple to say that it is in line with the taking away from this city of the positions of chief despatcher and chief detective, which were until recently located here.

Viewed from this standpoint, there appears to be some color to the theory that an attempt is being made to minimize the standing of Rochester at a railroad town, and there has been no denial or explanation offered in answer to this accusation.

PASSING OF ROCHESTER
AS A RAILROAD CENTER
ON CENTRAL SYSTEM

Transfer of Freight Engineers Said to Be Consummation of a Policy of Retaliation For Political Discrimination Inaugurated In 1880.

Within the next two weeks 50 odd engineers "freighting" on the main line of the Central will be transferred from this city to Buffalo, and will in the future make their headquarters in that city instead of here, as at present. It is intended by the road to abolish the "wild cat" system of running the men in the freight service.

Under the present system the crews of the engines on the main line lay off here and wait for other crews of the trains to return from Syracuse or vice versa before going out on another trip.

Under the new system the men will go straight through to the end of their runs and will lay over at Buffalo eight hours before beginning another trip. Back of this latest move of the Central is a story of how a great railroad system got even for a piece of politics that it was once made the victim of.

Back in 1880 a number of officials of the road came here and, after looking the ground over, concluded to build a roundhouse, machine shops and repair shops to keep up with the growing importance of the city as a railroad center, as at that time there were 125 crews and their families living here and it was the end of the Western Division of the road.

Here were the offices of the Superintendent of the Western Division of the road, and the chief train dispatcher, Joseph Drexelius, who with the 25 operators then operated the trains on 700 miles of main line and branches. In due time the officials selected a plot of ground on University Avenue, just outside the city limits, and began the erection of a roundhouse.

COUNCIL'S DISCRIMINATION.

When the work was well under construction the Common Council met one night and passed an ordinance extending the limits of the city to bring in the roundhouse property to make it subject to city taxes.

Work was immediately stopped on the structure, and it was then that a policy was inaugurated on the part of the railroad that has reduced the third city of the State from an important railroad town to the point where it is now referred to as "A water plug for the Empire State Express."

The first to feel the effects of the new policy of the road were the Blue Line freight offices, which are really a part of the Vanderbilt system. The clerks to the number of 50 were ordered to Buffalo. Then the office of Assistant Superintendent of the Western Division was abolished and moved to Syracuse, where it is at present under the name of trainmaster.

Then the operators with their chief, Joseph Drexelius, were moved to Buffalo, and finally, the division which formerly ended here was also extended to Buffalo, and soon after the importance of Rochester as a railroad center steadily dwindled.

From that time, 17 years ago, until the present every important office that was formerly in this city has been moved out. There are now only three operators at the Central station where formerly there were 23, and nothing is left here but the station itself.

In 1880 there was on an average $70,000 spent monthly by railroad men and their families in Rochester. Today $20,000 is a liberal estimate. Then there were 125 train crews who made their homes here, and today out of the 125 there are about 25 left.

Truly, it was an expensive fend in which both the city and railroad have been nearly equal sufferers. The Times, Oct 5, 1901

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

KNIGHTS OF MALTA.

Business of the Session at the Chamber of Commerce This Morning.

The business of the session of the Knights of Malta this morning was of a miscellaneous nature. The finance committed reported, showing a surplus of $1,500 after all liabilities have been paid.

The following letter from the Imperial Black Encampment of Glasgow, Scotland, was received:

Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 14, 1901.
A. O., 853.

To the Supreme Grand Commander, Officers and Sir Knights of the Supreme Grand Black Commandery of America, Ancient and Illustrious Order Knights of Malta, in Convocation Assembled:

We, the Imperial grand master, assistant grand master, grand generalissimo and officers of Grand Council of the Imperial Parent Grand Black Encampment of the Universe, do express our deep sympathy with you, as companions of the order, for the sad and lamented death of that great and good President McKinley, and also our sympathy with the people of the United States of America in the hour of their mourning and sorrow; and we pray Almighty God that He may strengthen your hands as a people to stamp out now and forever those vile assassins. We all deplore the loss of so noble a statesman, and must say a great man and prince among men has fallen this day in America.

Wishing you a good and profitable meeting and may the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, guide and direct all your deliberations, so that they may tend to the benefit of our order, and to His glory.

We remain yours in the bonds of Christian Knighthood.

W. G. Ingram, Imperial Grand Master.
Wm. Shirley, Imperial Grand Recorder.

John M. Devore, formerly of this city, but now of Auburn, has been nominated for supreme grand prelate. This evening the delegates and guests will banquet at the New Osburn House. A reception for visiting ladies will be held at Odd Fellows' Temple. To-morrow evening there will be a session of the College of the Ancients, when three degrees will be conferred and a banquet served. The Kara Kan Siesta, "77," will confer a degree and dine also at Odd Fellows' Temple. To-morrow will be the last day of the session proper, but most of the representatives and supreme officers will remain here until Friday morning.

State Commerce Conventions.

The Rochester delegates to the State Commerce convention now in session in Buffalo went to the Pan-American city yesterday. The local delegates are A. B. Lamberton, George W. Rafter, Charles E. Angle, John M. Ives, John A. C. Wright, John J. McInerney, Henry C. Maine and Horace McGuire.

AT COMMERCE CONVENTION.

Rochester Delegates to Buffalo Named on Four Important Committees.

At the State Commerce convention in Buffalo yesterday these Rochester men were named on committees: John M. Ives, on miscellaneous resolutions; J. J. McInerney, on taxation; Charles E. Angle, on railroad; Harvey W. Brown, on canals.

John D. Kernan, of Utica, president of the convention, opened the meeting with an address explaining the objects of the convention and reporting the progress thus far made. He dwelt especially on the waterway question as the more serious problem that the convention would have to confront, because the future of New York state depended on its solution. In the discussion of this question he urged the delegates to lay aside all selfish prejudices and immediate interests, and warmly commended Governor Odell's broad treatment of the subject in his recent speech before the exchange in this city.

"While I do not feel," President Kernan concluded, "that the advocates of a barge canal have other than the best interests of all classes and sections of our state in view in their advocacy of it, or have reached their conclusions hastily or at all selfishly, yet I recognize fully the wisdom of following the governor's advice to treat the subject broadly, giving due consideration to all localities and interests, and yielding to the judgment of others where it may be done without sacrifice of principle, to the end that we may reach such an amicable, just and wise conclusion as shall commend itself to him and to the people of the entire state, whose chosen representative he is."

Oct 19/01

URSDAY, OCTOBER

SUPREME COMMANDERY SESSIONS END TO-DAY

Knights of Malta Will Elect Officers at Convocation This Morning.

LETTER FROM SCOTLAND

Imperial Black Encampment at Glasgow Sends Expression of Sorrow at Death of President McKinley—Banquets and Outings Arranged.

The national convocation of the Knights of Malta was continued yesterday and will close this evening. Officers for the coming year will be nominated and elected at the [illegible] of Commerce this morning.

[illegible] waiting absent speakers the press [illegible] called for resolutions not on the programme. Mr. McCarroll, of New York, stated that he wanted to urge the metric system, and would prepare a resolution to that effect.

E. H. Bucklin offered a resolution providing for proper consideration of the claims of Cayuga and Seneca lakes, when final resolutions on the canal are adopted.

After the appointment of a committee on nominations and the referring of a number of resolutions, the convention adjourned until to-morrow.

KNIGHTS OF MALTA CLOSE CONVENTION

Finished the Work of the Eighteenth Annual Meeting.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

George J. Jones the Unanimous Choice for Supreme Commander—Portland, Me., the Next Meeting Place of the Sir Knights—Committees Appointed

The eighteenth annual convention of the Knights of Malta of the United States was brought to a close yesterday afternoon. During the morning officers were elected and Portland, Me., was selected as the next meeting place of the knights.

These are the officers for the ensuing year: S. C., George S. Jones, Boston; S. G., John Gowland, Philipsburg, Pa.; S. C. G., David F. Melville, Braddock, Pa.; S. P., Frank R. Hayden, Worcester, Mass.; S. E., Frank Gray, Chester, Pa.; S. T., Wilson J. Rugh, Pittsburg; E. Sr., W. W. E. Higgins, Worcester; S. Jr., W. Arthur E. Wilson, Washington; warder, M. H. Kuder, Allentown, Pa.; sentinel, Alfred B. Jones, Philadelphia; St. B., George W. Welch, Scranton, Pa.; Sir B., James B. Bell, Trenton; first G., Moses Bullock, Wilmington; second G., Edwin M. Abbott, Providence; trustee, Charles W. Bassler, Sanbury, Pa.; superintendent instructor, G. H. Pierce, P. S. C., Philadelphia; imperial representatives, E. W. Samuel, P. S. C., Mt. Carmel, Pa.; John H. Hoffman, P. S. C., Harisburg, Pa.; Robert Keenan, Wilmington.

The report of the committee on the state of the order was accepted, all decisions of the retiring supreme commander were approved and charters were granted all the bodies instituted during the year. These are:

Mt. Hebron, No. 297, at Mattepan, Mass.; Good Samaritan, No. 298, Ware, Mass.; Governor Crosby, No. 299, Belfast, Me.; Robert Burns, No. 300, Park River, N. D.; Bangor, No. 301, Bangor, Me.; Albany, No. 302, Albany, N. Y.; Fedelity, No. 303, Fargo, N. D.; King David, No. 304, Waynesboro, Pa.; Sir William Wallace, No. 305, Ironwood, Mich.; Temple, No. 306, Binghamton, N. Y.; Governor Wolcott, No. 307, Boston; America, No. 308, Palmerton, Pa.; Israel Putnam, No. 309, Dawers, Mass.; Carnegie, No. 310, Carnegie, Pa.; William McKinley, Beaver Falls, Pa.; Elbridge Gerry, No. 312, Marblehead, Mass.; Mystic, No. 313, Reynoldsville, Pa.

It was decided by vote to organize a ladies' auxiliary of the Knights of Malta. The matter was referred to the committee on secret work, to draw up a ritual and do the other necessary work. The new officers of the auxiliary installed and a resolution of thanks was extended to John Knox commandery, No. 12, of Wilkesbarre, for its dress parade and drill Tuesday. The new supreme commander appointed the following committees:

Credentials and returns—John Liebensberger, Hazelton, Pa.; Frank L. Reisinger, Bath, Pa.; D. C. MacDonald, Boston.

Supreme commander's address and state of the order—L. E. Stitz, Philadelphia; James A. Farley, Lansburg, Pa.; Albert G. Hutchins, Nashua, N. H.; Edmund W. Samuel, Mt. Carmel, Pa.; Charles H. Edmonds, Philadelphia.

Finance—John H. Hoffman, Harrisburg; John W. Hicks, Boston; A. S. Van Arsdalen, Hoyt P. O., Pa.

Law—Irvin C. Risen, Trenton; John J. Bessel, Wilkesbarre, Pa.; Harry N. Miller, Reading, Pa.

Appeals—Alfred T. Hamilton, Lewistown, Pa.; Charles S. Messinger, Tatamy, Pa.; Charles H. Mosher, Paterson, N. J.; George Ebersol, Harrisburg; W. M. Macomber, Boston.

A very handsome past commander's jewel was presented to Commander John H. Hoffman, of Harrisburg, who yesterday relinquished office. The jewel has a cross of rubies studded with diamonds. Resolutions were adopted expressing thanks to the sir knights of Rochester for their courtesies during the convention.

The following resolution was adopted on the death of McKinley:

Whereas, The nation has suffered an irreparable loss in the murder of its honored president at the hands of a fanatical assassin, thereby plunging the country into profound mourning, and

Whereas, All good citizens, regardless of party affiliation, unite in deploring the untimely taking off of that eminent statesman, that Christian gentleman and that patriotic man; and

Whereas, The fraternal societies of this land grieve for the removal of one who has shown himself in his affiliations so noble an example and shining an ideal for members of worthier patriotic orders to emulate; therefore, be it

Resolved, By this supreme convocation, that we express our own esteem and honor for the illustrious dead and our utter detestation of the brutal attack and perilous principles of the assassin and his fellow conspirators.

Last night the College of Ancients held a banquet in the dining-room of the New Osburn house. Only past commanders are eligible to this organization, which is a side issue of the Knights of Malta. The college meets semi-annually.

Many of the sir knights will leave to-day for the Pan-American and Niagara Falls.

Dec 6 Oct 17/01

THE MERCHANTS AT BUFFALO

PROCEEDINGS OF STATE COMMERCE CONVENTION.

MR. KERNAN'S ADDRESS

GOOD RESULTS OF UNITING OF CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

FOR A BARGE CANAL

Opening Session of the State Chamber of Commerce Convention at the Pan-American City—Topics of Much Interest Discussed—Proposition for Improving the Erie Canal.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 16.—At the Merchants' Exchange to-day the third annual State Commerce convention assembled to discuss questions of interest to the state and its business men and shippers. Representative men of the state were present and the deliberations of the convention promise to be for the greatest interest.

The convention was called to order by John D. Kernan, of Utica, president, who made a brief address, recounting the good which had resulted from the banding together of the boards of trade and chambers of commerce of the various states of the Union and predicting still greater benefits and increased prosperity.

J. J. H. Brown, in the absence of O. P. Letchworth, president of the Merchants' Exchange, welcomed the delegates. The roll call which followed showed the presence of many distinguished men. After the appointment of George Gerry, Lawton Purdy, of the New York Tax Reform Association, delivered an address on "Taxation," in which he said:

"On June 6, 1900, the State Commerce convention made a notable declaration on the subject of taxation, the most important resolution being:

"That the best way to reform the status of local taxation is to grant local option in taxation to the cities and counties of the state.'

"The influence of that resolution has extended far beyond the borders of this state. Local option in taxation is growing rapidly in popular favor and, justly so, for it is the application to the tax problem of the time American principle of local self-government.

"The State Commerce convention also adopted resolutions declaring for interstate comity in taxation, which foreshadowed the resolution of the national tax conference held in this city last May. That conference was composed of delegates appointed by the governors of thirty-five states, and their declaration for interstate comity is eminently fair and so urgently needed that I hope this convention will reiterate it. The resolution is as follows:

"'This conference recommends to the states the recognition and enforcement of the principles of interstate comity in taxation. These principles require that the same property should not be taxed at the same time by two state jurisdictions and if the title deeds, or other paper evidences of the ownership of property or of an interest in property, are taxed they shall be taxed at the site of the property and not elsewhere. These principles should also be applied to the transfer of property in expectation of death or by will or under the laws regulating the distribution of property in case of intestacy.'"

William McCarroll, of New York, discussed the "Methodizing of Legislation," and believed it would be opportune to suggest to the governor and the legislature the importance of so methodizing legislation that bills would not consume the time of the assembly.

Charles C. Wick, of New York, advocated the removal of the cob dock at the Brooklyn navy yard because it was no use to the yard and was a hindrance to river commerce.

M. M. Drake, of Buffalo, advocated the importance of improving the Erie canal so that a 1,000-ton barge could pass through it.

In the absence of Marcus M. Marks, of New York, who was to speak on "Trade Associations and Co-operation," Samuel Fleischman, secretary of the National Clothiers' Association, addressed the convention on that subject, referring especially to the clothing business.

S. E. Pitkins, of Medina, advocated a canal large enough for future needs, the

Dec 6 Oct 17/01

FAVORABLE OUTLOOK FOR PROPOSED TROLLEY LINE

Sentiment Along the Route of the Rochester-Corning Electric Road Gratifying to Promoters.

According to the promoters, the preliminary work for the proposed Geneva, Corning and Rochester electric railroad is progressing well. The four men at work getting consents along the proposed route have reached the town of Canandaigua and it is expected that they will finish in about two weeks. The surveyors are right behind them, at Wallace, just above Wayland, and they believe they will reach Rochester in four weeks' time.

So far there is not the slightest opposition to the building of the road, it is reported. Erwin E. Shutt, attorney for some of the interested capitalists, said yesterday that once the road's representatives went over thirteen miles of the route last week and that he did not find a man who was not in favor of the project. This general feeling of the people along the route has given courage to the promoters and they are in high spirits. Being so successful over the greater part of their line they look for no opposition of importance anywhere, except possibly from a parallel road.

Mr. Shutt, when seen yesterday by a Democrat and Chronicle reporter, said that the prospects were the brightest for the construction of the road and that the surveyors hoped to reach Rochester within four weeks. The men obtaining consents were making about two miles a day, which is considered fast work, and that there is a city block long looked has also [illegible] Buffalo, Oct. 17.—The State Commerce convention was called to order to-day by President Kernan. John A. C. Wright, of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, addressed the convention on "The Waterway Question—An Adequate Solution from Niagara to the Sea." The speaker favored a 3,000-ton ship canal, maintained by the nation, through Lake Ontario and the Mohawk and Champlain and Hudson valleys.

TWO ROCHESTER SPEAKERS.

Dec Oct 18/01

Arguments in favor of Big Canal From Great Lakes to the Sea.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 17.—The state commerce commission was called to order today by President Kernan.

John A. C. Wright, of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, addressed the convention on "The Waterway Question—An Adequate Solution From Niagara to the Sea." The speaker favored a ship canal maintained by the nation. He urged a waterway through Lake Ontario and the Mohawk and Champlain and Hudson valleys to the sea.

For the future Mr. Wright insisted that a 3,000-ton basis was the smallest possible one to be figured upon. Mr. Wright denied that three miles an hour was the limit of speed in ship canals, and said that the Soo canal vessels go seven and one-half miles against the current and twelve miles with the current. He asserted that instead of three or four miles being made in the Suez canal the actual speed was five or six miles an hour. Mr. Wright's argument was in favor of a canal ignoring Buffalo.

William C. Clark, of Constantina, moved that Mr. Wright's time be extended in order that he might explain what he would do to care for the 400,000 people of Buffalo, the Tonawandas, Medina and other places if the Toronto ship canal was built.

Mr. Wright said he did not desire any more time and answered Clark's question with the statement that the people of Buffalo and other places would be better off.

George W. Rafter, of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, then read an address to the convention upon the topic: "A Comparison of the Barge Canal With the Deep Water Ways." His argument was in favor of the ship canal.

Lewis Nixon, of New York, spoke on "Water Borne Freights." He advocated a 1,000-ton barge canal as the best and most feasible solution of the canal problem. A ship canal, he insisted, was impracticable owing to the impossibility of properly dredging the Great Lakes.

The following resolutions presented by Lawson Purdy, chairman of the committee on taxation, in behalf of the committee, were adopted:

Resolved, That the state commerce convention reiterates its resolution: "That the best way to reform the system of local taxation is to grant local option in taxation to the cities and counties of the state;" and to carry this resolution into effect recommends the passage of the bill for the apportionment of state taxes and for local option in taxation, prepared by the New York Tax Reform Association and unanimously indorsed by many organizations, some of which are members of this convention.

Resolved, That this convention indorse the following resolution on taxation unanimously adopted by the National Tax Conference:

"This conference recommends to the states the recognition and enforcement of the principles of inter-state comity in taxation. These principles require that the same property should not be taxed at the same time by two state jurisdictions and that if the title deeds or other paper evidences of the ownership of property or of an interest in property are taxed they shall be taxed at the situs of the property and not elsewhere. These principles should also be applied to any tax upon the transfer of property in expectation of death or by will or under the laws regulating the distribution of property in case of intestacy."

THE CANAL CONVENTION.

The canal convention at Buffalo has closed its discussions and adopted resolutions favoring a barge canal to float boats of 1,000 tons burden. It is stated, however, in the body of the resolutions that they are not to be considered an ultimatum.

Such reservation is wise; for, as a matter of fact, the prospects of a barge canal are as meager as those of a ship canal. Governor Odell made this very plain during his address on New York day at the Pan-American, just a week before the canal convention assembled. He also plainly intimated that his proposition of a year ago for the completion of the nine feet improvement of the Erie would receive consideration.

The barge canal may be the ideal canal, and we believe it is, but there is need of a real canal, one that is immediately available if the canal is not to be abandoned through the disappearance of existing canal craft. Completion of the nine feet canal will be a great achievement, not costly, but a substantial advance in provision for water transportation. So the canal convention was also in striking a deadlock.

FAVORED ROCHESTER

ITS CLIMATE THE IDEAL FOR HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

Even Its Cloudiness is an Advantage in the View of That Distinguished Sociologist, Professor Fairchild—Facts and Figures in Proof.

Bishop McQuaid once remarked that the climate of Rochester was on the whole a good one, save for the one month of March. But Professor Fairchild makes no exception. He asserts and gives facts and figures to prove that the climate of the Flower City is an [illegible] local one. The summary of the paper, which the professor read before the Academy of Science on this subject, the other day, has attracted so much attention that the readers of The Post Express will be glad to see the entire paper, which is herewith reproduced. Incidentally and by way of introduction, a short sketch of the professor himself will not be out of place:

PROFESSOR H. L. FAIRCHILD.

Herman Le Roy Fairchild, teacher and geologist, was born at Montrose, Pa., April 29, 1850, of New England ancestry. At the age of nineteen he left the homestead farm and spent one year as clerk in a railroad office at Scranton, Pa. In 1870 he entered Cornell university, from which he graduated with honor in 1874 with the degree of bachelor of science. The years spent at Cornell, during the early life of the institution and in the laboratory of Charles Fred Hartt determined his inclination toward science and geology in particular. During two years succeeding the graduation he was professor of natural sciences in Wyoming seminary, at Wilkesbarre, Pa., whence he went to New York and engaged in science lecturing in the schools and institutions of the city and vicinity. During these year, 1877-1888, he was active in scientific work and published numerous articles in paleobotany, zoology, and geology. He became secretary of the New York Academy of Sciences and was instrumental in reviving the work and influence of that society, publishing a handsome illustrated volume of its history in 1887. In 1888 he was called to the chair of geology in the University of Rochester, where in addition to the work of instruction he has been active in the investigation of the Pleistocene geology of Western New York, publishing extended articles in geological journals. The more important articles describe the glacial lakes which were held at the ice front during the retreat of the glacial ice sheet across New York state. Professor Fairchild has been prominent in the work of scientific societies. In The American Association for the Advancement of Science he was the local secretary for the New York and Rochester meetings and was secretary of the council, 1892, general secretary 1894 and vice-president and chairman of section E (geology), 1898. Since 1889 he has been president of the Rochester Academy of Science, and has been secretary of the Geological Society of America.

The paper follows:

CLIMATE AND WEATHER.

The atmospheric conditions of any place or region when averaged through a long period of time is called the "Climate." In other words climate is the average value of the meteorological elements of the place. Thus we say that a certain locality has a hot or a cold climate, or wet or dry, according as the average conditions of the locality vary from the normal for that latitude, or for the continent, or possibly for the whole world.

"Weather" is the term applied to the changing or fluctuating conditions of the atmosphere, the succession of phenomena, during short periods of time. Localities may have "climate" and not have "weather." Rochester has both. Places which have only two seasons during the year, perhaps a wet season and a dry season, with the atmospheric conditions repeated day after day during each season, have, speaking correctly, only climate. The people of such regions do not have one prolific topic of small talk which helps to make life worth living. Rochester has an abundance of "weather," or frequent changes in the conditions of the atmosphere, and yet has at the same time one of the most equable and finest continental climates in the world. The daily changes here are not great for continental climate and the seasonal averages are near the normal. We will make some comparisons below.

METEOROLOGICAL ELEMENTS.

The elements of meteorology which make climate are as follows: (1). Temperature. (2). Moisture, in its varied form as invisible vapor, dew, fog, frost, rain, snow, hail, etc. (3). Evaporation. (4) Cloudiness. (5) Wind. (6) Barometric pressure, or the varying weight of the atmosphere. The last has little direct or visible effect upon climatic conditions, but it has great indirect effect by its control of the other elements.

The many combinations of these elements in their varied intensity produce the many kinds of climate which give variety to the physical conditions of the world.

TYPES OF CLIMATE.

The two main types of climate are the continental and the oceanic. The con-

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

...ifferent type as characterized by extremes of temperature and by great differences in the element of moisture and the distribution of precipitation. The oceanic type has comparative uniformity; small differences between winter and summer, on account of the great thermal capacity of water and its functions of disturbing and equalizing temperature. A few figures in comparison of the two climatic types will be interesting:

Place.	Temperature. Average Maximum.	Average Minimum.
Equatorial seas	90 and less.	68
Northern Continents	112	40

Absolute maximum for Continent, 122, in Sahara and Death Valley.
Absolute minimum for Continent, 72 in North America, 83 in Siberia.

Monthly Averages of Temperature.

	Highest.	Lowest.	Ampli-
Key West	84.5 (Aug.)	68.7 (Jan.)	14.6
St. Paul	71.9 (July)	11.7 (Jan.)	60.2
Ft. Conger	37.1 (July.)	-40.1 (Feb.)	77.2
Death Valley	102. (July.)
Werchojansk, Sib.		-60. (Jan.)

	Normal Yearly Amplitude.
North America	152
Asia	171
South America	83
Equatorial Ocean	38

Rochester lies so far inland that it might be expected to have a mid-continental climate, with the usual extremes of temperature and rainfall, but we find that it has an unusually moderate climate in all elements. This will be shown by comparison with other typical localities in the United States.

Coast cities, as Boston and New York, while not subjected to the extremes of temperature, suffer rapid and severe changes caused by the sudden shifting winds between land and water, since they lie in the belt of conflict between oceanic and continental climates.

TABLES OF COMPARISON.

Temperature.

Seasonal Averages. Absolute Yrly Extr's Avg

Place.	Spring.	Summer.	Autumn.	Winter.	Highest.	Lowest.
Rochester	49	67	52	27	98	-12
Buffalo	—	—	—	—	94	-11
Chicago	—	—	—	—	100	-23
Boston	—	—	—	—	102	-13
Omaha	51	74	52	24	105	-23
St. Vincent	75	63	78	73	103	24
Los Angeles	60	70	65	55	108	28
San Francisco	—	—	—	—	99	29

Spring and Autumn Averages.

	March.	April.	May.	Nov.	Dec.	Mean of Year.
Rochester	39	43	58	41	32	47
Omaha	43	51	62	37	27	50

PRECIPITATION.

Place	Normal (Inches.) Highest.	Lowest.
Rochester	3.34 (May)	2.44 (Sep)
Boston	4.62 (Nov)	3.03 (Sep)
New York	4.80 (Aug)	3.00 (May)
Buffalo	3.80 (Oct)	2.40 (Apr)
Chicago	3.70 (Jul)	2.39 (Dec)
Omaha	3.70 (Jul)	0.70 (Feb)
Los Angels	5.00 (Jan)	trace (Jul)
San Francisco	4.09 (Feb)	trace (Jul)
Portland	8.30 (Dec)	0.30 (Jul)
St. Vincent	8.06 (Dec)	0.09 (Jul)
Yatoosh	3.70 (Jul)	0.60 (Win)
Yuma	13.40 (Dec)	2.10 (Jul)
	0.00 (Feb)	trace (May)

Average Rainfall (in inches).

	Spring.	Summer.	Autumn.	Winter.	Total.
For the whole U. S.	9	10	9	8	36
Rochester	9	9	8	9	35
Yatoosh, Wash.	-	-	-	-	82
Yuma, Ariz.	-	-	-	-	3

Probability of Rainy Days (Percentage).

	Highest.	Lowest.
Rochester	45 (Jan.)	32 (Aug.)
Boston	41 (Jan.)	32 (Aug.)
San Francisco	41 (Jan.)	23 (Aug.)
Portland	69 (Jan.)	13 (Aug.)

Greatest Daily Rainfall (in inches).

Rochester, 4.15, August 19, 1883.
Alexandria, La., 21.00, in two days.
Helena, Ark., 12.00, in 40 hours.
Maynort, Fla., 16.00, in one day.
Hatteras, N. C., 9.00, in one day.
New Orleans, 9.00, in one day.
Ft. Wallace, Kan., 9.00, in one day.

Cloudiness (Percentages).

Normal Monthly Extremes.

	Highest.	Lowest.
Rochester	82 (Dec.)	44 (Aug.)
Boston	76 (Dec.)	31 (Aug.)
Yankton	81 (Mar.)	39 (Sept.)
San Francisco	48 (Jan.)	23 (Oct.)
Portland	73 (Jan.)	35 (Aug.)

Seasonal Distribution.

	Spring.	Summer.	Autumn.	Winter.	Average.
Rochester	57	47	62	74	65
Boston	54	46	51	65	51
Yankton	52	42	41	47	46
San Francisco	43	43	35	47	42
Portland	54	44	55	72	56

During 25 years Rochester has had 100 per cent. once for 10 days; 98 per cent. once for 20 days; above 90 per cent. 11 times. Nearly all being in the winter.

The greatest percentage of cloudiness at Rochester for thirty days is 91 per cent., ending February 3, 1886.

The least percentage is 28 per cent., ending October 6, 1894.

DISCUSSION OF ROCHESTER DATA.

The Rochester data in the tables above are based upon the Weather Station records of the last twenty-five to thirty years. "Their range of error is very small and they are practically reliable. When everything is taken into account they make a remarkably favorable showing for this city.

In the three most important elements of climate, those which have most direct and immediate effect upon industries, including agriculture, and upon personal comfort, Rochester is especially favored. These are temperature, precipitation and winds.

Temperature—Probably no other inland city near the same latitude has such moderate temperatures as Rochester. When we consider the intense summer heat of most inland places, and the very severe winter cold, the latter being carried far south in the Mississippi valley, the exemption of our city becomes apparent. Even Washington, being no nearer the sea and far southward, has a much lower minimum record than Rochester. The higher yearly average of Washington is due to its greater summer heat. The difference in winter cold is not so great as the figures would indicate, for the true temperature, and the tables show that no inland city has great uniformity. The coast cities excel in this respect, but their superiority in this is neutralized by defects in other elements, as will appear later.

Precipitation—The average annual precipitation of the whole country is 36 inches. Rochester has 35 inches. Not only is the total fall the proper amount but it is very evenly distributed through the year, as evenly indeed as can be shown without using fractions. The lowest seasonal fall is in the autumn when it is least needed. A comparative analysis of the figures in various ways only confirms the statement that in that very important element of climate Rochester's record is the ideal. In saying this it is assumed that a well distributed rainfall in desirable. No place has an ideal climate which has its rainfall concentrated in a portion of the year, like Los Angeles, for example. Of course the people and the industries become adjusted to their climatic conditions and they may become perfectly satisfied with or even praise a climate with some very defective conditions. Witness the Californians. But figures will not lie even if liars will figure, and no amount of grumbling by Rochesterians can deny the fact, as shown in the tables, that in the total precipitation we have the ideal condition. We do not have to resort to irrigation to carry on agriculture, nor make special provision against drought on the one hand, and cloudbursts on the other.

Winds—In the element of winds Rochester is also favored, the records showing moderation. The region is protected from severe gales.

Cloudiness—There are two elements wherein Rochester appears at a disadvantage. One is the excessive cloudiness, the other the large number of rainy days. These are essentially one condition which is expressed by saying that our skies are gray and somber, especially during the autumn and winter.

In the case of the large percentage of rainy days the figures are to some degree misleading, since they do not discriminate between heavy storms and snow flurries or rain sprinkles amounting to 0.01 inch. The stormy-day record is largely increased by the frequent light lake snows of the colder months, which scarcely interfere in any wise with either our business or pleasure.

However, with all allowance, it remains true that we have frequent rains and that in percentage of cloudiness we lead the country. Now what can be said here in reply to the Rochester grumbler? Just this, that upon the whole cloudiness is a great advantage. Astronomy is not an important industry here. The advantages are much greater than the disadvantages. The latter are chiefly a matter of imagination or sentiment. The former are real. The clouds interfere but little with most occupations and not as much with the real comfort of people as they think. Continuous clear skies in summer are not desirable. Clouds not only temper the heat but add to beauty and variety to nature which nothing else can supply. We can not have the splendor of the evening clouds and the grandeur of the thunder storm without having sometimes an excess of cloudiness. The summer cloudiness is wholly an advantage and benefit. The somber skies of the colder months are not so much an actual as an imaginary disadvantage.

Mr. Parker writes: "Half the beauty of the world is in its clouds. An unchanging brazen sky is one of the most tiresome things in nature, and prevents the following of steady occupations with satisfaction, because of its oppressive monotony. In winter the canopy of clouds protects us from cold as effectually as the blankets on our beds, and is worth to Rochester thousands of dollars in the saving of coal and clothing."

Changes: The climate of Rochester has unquestionable superiority in the moderate temperature, the normal and well distributed precipitation, and the absence of severe winds. The excess of cloudiness and stormy days is really advantageous. There is, however, another condition which requires explanation. This is the frequent changes, which give us "weather." This is not at all peculiar to Rochester but pertains to all the northern and eastern parts of the United States, and especially to the region of the lower Great Lakes. These changes are due to cyclonic storms, which are the most interesting atmospheric phenomena of middle latitudes.

CYCLONES.

The word "cyclone" is a generic term, applied by meteorologists to any vortical movement of the atmosphere. The destructive cyclones of the West Indies are called hurricanes, those of the Asiatic seas are typhoons. The terrible whirlwinds of the Mississippi valley are called tornadoes. [illegible] whirls which we see in the streets on a breezy day are similar phenomena in miniature.

To the cyclones we are indebted for the extreme changeableness of our weather, if not to the existence of any weather whatever. They are very powerful, wonderful and interesting phenomena. A general understanding of their character and movements gives a new source of interest in nature, and the weather becomes a subject of fascinating study, as a matter of obedience to physical laws and not, as formerly regarded, a mere chance or haphazard thing. "The wind bloweth where it listeth" . . . is not true to-day, for we know the laws which control the atmospheric movements, and within rather narrow limits we can predict the changes. The telegraph enables us to quickly collect the weather data from any number of stations over the continent, and from the daily or semi-daily comparison we can prognosticate for one or two days ahead.

Cyclones are ascending vortices of warm and lighter air. They originate in regions where the lower air becomes heated by contact with the heated earth surface. The effort of the lighter air to break through the overlying cooler layer produces a vortex which is partly illustrated by the whirl of water running down through a hole. In the northern hemisphere the cyclones have a contra-clockwise revolution, while their progression or direction of passage across the continent is generally eastward, in the great earth-encircling current of middle latitudes. The barometric pressure in the cyclone decreases toward the center, which is called the "low." On the weather maps the different pressures, or barometric gradient, is shown by the lines of equal pressure, called "isobars." These represent differences on one-tenth of an inch of the mercury column, and properly form concentric circles. The cyclones may have a breath of even 1,000 or 1,500 miles, covering half the width of the continent. In the velocities of rotation and progression, and in all other respects, they greatly vary.

Surrounding the cyclones are areas of descending cold and heavy air with a generally clock-wise movement. This mass of heavy cold air following after the cyclone is called the "anti-cyclone" and is the "cold wave" with high pressure. On the maps the centers are marked "highs." When the cyclonic movements are active, in the winter months especially the "lows" and "highs" chase each other in more or less regular succession across the continent.

A steadily falling barometer indicates the approach of a "low," or cyclone center. The changing wind direction may indicate the same, and by watching the wind direction alone we can closely estimate the direction of the storm center. In the charts showing the laws of cyclonic movement it will be seen that the winds within the cyclone move in general along the isobars, but curve obliquely inward toward the center of the whirl. When one stands facing the wind the cyclonic center is on the right hand and somewhat backward.

Upon the eastward or advancing side of the cyclone the winds are southerly, warm and moist. Upon the western, or retreating side of the whirl the winds are from the north and cold and drying. By noting with some care the direction of the wind at any time we can judge the direction of the cyclonic center. By watching the changes in the direction of the wind we can form a judgment as to the path of the center or the progression of the cyclone. A few examples will illustrate this. In cases when the center of the cyclone passes over us the changes in wind direction will be as follows:

If the cyclone progresses east, the wins ...S, S, S, S.-N, N, N.

If the cyclone progresses north, the wind is E, E, E, E.-W, W, W.

If the cyclone progresses northeast, the wind is SE, SE, SE, NW, NW, NW.

In cases when the center passes south of us and is progressing northeast the wind directions will be somewhat E, E, NE, NE, N. NE, H.

In case the center passes north of us and progresses northeast the wind directions are quite reversed, being S, S, SW, SW, W, SW, W.

By observing both wind direction and barometric pressure the observer has some knowledge of the cyclone's progress. And if to the observations are added the day's weather map, the knowledge of the storms should be sufficient to predict with some assurance the immediate movement and behavior of the whirl.

The region of Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence lies in the path of more cyclones, probably than any other district in the world. The winter whirls cross the continent, following in general the parallels of latitude, pass over the great lakes and move off down the St. Lawrence to the north Atlantic, where they usually die out, but sometimes push on to Europe.

There are two other less frequented paths in the United States, one from the Texas and lower Mississippi region, the other the Atlantic coast line, which is rarely followed by the West Indian storms. The map shows how these three paths converge in our region.

Since the beginning of this year the cyclones have been behaving in an unusual manner. Instead of rapidly moving off the St. Lawrence gulf region to the north Atlantic they have lingered on our Atlantic coast, and even retreated, sometimes. The reason seems to be that instead of the great area of low barometer lying over the north Atlantic as usual in winter, it has been lying on our east coast, while great [illegible]

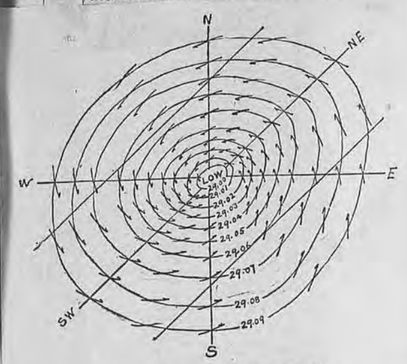

DIAGRAM SHOWING CYCLONIC WINDS.

...here, and are four times as frequent here as they are over Florida.

"The temperature changes here are remarkably small for a continental climate, perhaps as small as for any place in the world so far from the ocean. January and February are our worst months. During last January (1901) the average daily range from highest day to lowest night temperature was only 14 degrees, and the average change of the daily mean temperature from day to day was only 6 degrees. During February the similar range was less than 11 degrees and the daily change only four degrees. This is remarkable steadiness. Only twice in thirty years has the daily range been as much as 50 degrees, and both of these were rises. Once there was a range of 49 degrees, falling. The figures for other places in comparison are not quickly available, but it is known that the changes are generally much greater. At Boston, for example, the temperature was once 70 degrees above zero at 10 a. m. and 4 degrees below at midnight of the same day. This gives a range of 74 degrees in 14 hours. For really changeable weather we may cite White River, Ont., about twenty miles northeast of Lake Superior, where the following series of daily changes are recorded: —36 p. m., +30 in p. m. —42 the next a. m., +28 in p. m., —28 the next a. m., and +16 in the p. m. Many places along the northern border of our own country experience "weather" of the same character. On our east coast great changes occur suddenly because the ocean is warm and the land is cold in winter, and a change in the wind, which may come in a twinkling, changes domination from one area to the other.

"The records of the minimum thermometer for December of many years will probably be representative of Rochester weather, and will show with what moderation we are favored. The temperature changes in cycles, averaging 4.2 days in length. It falls slowly 2.4 days, then rises rapidly 1.8 days. The fall for each day averages 5.6 degrees, and the rise 6.7 degrees. The greatest fall in one spell was 41 degrees in five days in 1884, and the greatest rise was 50 degrees in one day in 1875. This shows a climate not of abrupt changes but one remarkably equable.

"That the temperature at Rochester is continually on the weave up and down in undeniable, but the ups and downs are, as a rule, almost too small to be dignified by the name of changes. Stationary temperature, (that is a range of less than 6 degree during 24 hours), may be predicted at Rochester all the time and the prognostications will exceed 60 per cent. correct. To find greater steadiness than this one will have to retreat to the ocean waters far from land. Rochester has not in any proper sense of the term remarkably changeable weather, but quite the opposite."

(The above quotation is from a letter to the writer, by Mr. Parker).

BAROMETRIC PRESSURE.

Although we are quite unconscious of the varying weight of the atmosphere it is a very important factor in weather conditions, and seriously affects life. The normal pressure at sea level of fifteen pounds to the square inch varies within a range of about four inches [illegible] from a pressure of 27.5 inches to [illegible] This change produced by the passage [illegible]

...would be experienced in passing from a depth of 1,478 feet below ground to 2,132 feet above, or through a vertical distance of 3,594 feet. A change of two inches of mercury is not infrequent in the passage of the more violent cyclones. The tremendous effects of such changes of pressure may be realized when we find that this difference of two inches amounts on a square mile to over 1,000,000 tons. Possibly the passage of waves of high and low pressure may determine the moment when the stresses in the earth's crust are relieved by sudden yielding.

INFLUENCE OF LAKE ONTARIO.

The positive factors in the temperature element of this region are in summer the warm waves and in winter the cold waves. Neither of them ever touch Rochester with great severity. The cold waves are due to the indraught of cold air from the northern regions by the cyclonic movements. The exemption of Rochester from the extreme low temperatures is due to the protection of Lake Ontario. In this respect the city stands quite alone, for while other cities feel some of the benign effects of the great lakes, none receive so much benefit. The explanation for this partiality is the peculiar situation of the city with reference to the lakes in connection with the direction of the cold waves. Lake Ontario lies directly in the way of the cold anticyclonic waves that pass over this place. It is impossible for the cold waves to sweep across the lake, during the time when the coldest waves occur, without having the lower air warmed by the surface waters. The greatest severity of the cold can not strike the city, although it may be felt on the higher ground farther south.

To appreciate this warming effect of the lake one should realize its heat-storing capacity. Orin Parker has made an estimate as follows: The mass of water is taken as 650 cubic miles. The cooling of this mass through only five degrees of temperature would eliminate as much heat as the combustion of 2,500,000,000 tons of coal. This is five times the total quantity mined in a year in the whole world. If these figures are not precise they at least give some idea of the magnitude of the forces which are at work. We have the sun heat stored during summer and returned to us when most needed, for the cold waves are moderated by the lake heat until late winter or spring when the severest waves are past.

No other city has lake protection to the same degree. Lake Erie is too shallow to store so large an amount of heat, or Cleveland might have some similar protection, but Cleveland is also exposed to the cold waves which sweep down the Mississippi valley. Buffalo is reached by the cold waves through the space between Erie and Ontario. Oswego is so far east that the cold waves reach it around the east end of the lake. Indeed the lowest temperatures at Rochester have been due to the cold waves passing east of the lake and then backing up on us. Syracuse is too far south and east. Lake Michigan lies nearly on a meridian and its shores are therefore exposed, while Huron and Superior, lying so far north, do not absorb so much summer heat. Rochester has the beneficial effect of the three upper lakes and in addition the fullest protection of Lake Ontario. Certainly no other city in America has a location so peculiarly fortunate in respect to lake protection.

WEATHER PREDICTION.

The only prognostication of the weather (not climate) which has any basis in knowledge, or any reliability, is that based on the observation of approaching cyclones. At the farthest this can be for only two or three days ahead. With some approach to precision the weather may be anticipated for forty-eight hours. The weather bureau makes predictions for thirty-six hours.

In reading the weather predictions it should be kept in mind that they are of necessity made to cover considerable territory. Within the broad area minor chances, especially of precipitation, may occur. In judging the success of the weather predictions most people take note of the misses but neglect the hits.

Attempts to predict daily weather for weeks ahead has no scientific basis whatever. It is pure guess work.

CLIMATIC CHANGES.

The ideas of people, especially elderly persons, that the winters are not now so cold, or the snows not so heavy as when they were young is wholly a mistake. The difference is with the experience or condition of the individual.

The records of the weather taken in some countries for centuries, and in this country for about a century indicate that there is no perceptible change in climate. There are secular variations, in which a few years may vary slightly from the normal, but no permanent changes which the observations can yet detect. That slow changes do occur is likely, but they are so gradual that it will take centuries, perhaps, to prove them.

COMPLAINTS OF THE WEATHER.

If Rochester has no choice a climate why do so many people speak ill of it? One does not often hear a Californian say unpleasant things of his climate. One answer might be that the Californian is whistling to keep up his courage, and that the Rochester climate is good enough to endure abuse. Another answer is that Rochester may have a beautiful climate but that its weather is sometimes pretty bad. Still another reply is that the somber skies make people depressed, and that it has become the habit to grumble at the weather. There is a psychological problem [illegible] I would be [illegible] if the grumblers would complain of something [illegible]

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

THE POST EXPRESS, FRIDAY, AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 5, 1900.

DEEP WATERWAYS RATHER THAN BARGE CANAL.

Advocated by George W. Rafter Before State Commerce Convention—Why an Enlarged Canal is Necessary—Some Details of Construction—Objections to Barge Canal Project—Deep Waterways Scheme Declared to be Practicable.

The following paper by George W. Rafter was read before the state commerce convention in Buffalo Oct. 1, 1900:

In obedience to the commands of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, its delegates are present here to-day to advocate the construction of what is known as the deep waterways, rather than the barge canal. In doing this, the present speaker asks your consideration to a very few of the more salient points in a comparison of these two canals. Space will not be taken to describe either in detail any further than to point out that the natural route, for an economically constructed canal, undoubtedly lies through the state of New York. There is, indeed, another route, known as the Ottawa route. There is also a proposed canal connecting Lake Huron with Lake Ontario, via Lake Simcoe. The route via Ottawa river is, however, the most feasible and, considering the energy displayed by the Canadians, it is quite possible that it may be constructed. It is assumed that the delegates are familiar with recent canal history, and that the routes of these several canals are thoroughly familiar to all.

In the first place, we may briefly consider, why an enlarged canal is necessary. The answer to this question is found in great detail in the report of the canal committee, as submitted to the legislature by Governor Roosevelt, January 25, 1900, and also in the report of the New York commerce commission, submitted at the same time. In the commerce commision's report, it is stated that the commerce of the city of New York is decreasing, in a great measure, because there has been a discrimination against New York in railroad rates, imposed by an agreement known as the differential agreement between the trunk line railroads leading to the Atlantic seaports, including the New York railroads. This differential agreement, it is claimed, gives preference in railroad rates only to the cities of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk and Newport News, but Montreal and the Gulf ports are benefited by it to the injury of New York to as full an extent as if they were parties to the agreement. The differential agreement also provides the same rate for Boston as for New York and permits the Boston roads to allow free insurance and free storage to such an extent as amounts to a substantial discrimination against New York.

The differential agreement was signed on April 5, 1877, by William H. Vanderbilt, H. J. Jewett, Thomas A. Scott and John W. Garrett, representing the New York Central, the Erie, the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad companies. It established a system of freight rates governing all traffic, both east bound and west bound, bounded on the South by the Ohio river, on the West by the Mississippi river and on the East by an imaginary line, drawn through Toronto, Buffalo, Pittsburg and Parkersburg. Traffic destined to, or originating in, territory west of the Mississippi, was also subject to this agreement and it has since been extended to other trunk lines and to seaports, like Newport News and Norfolk, which have since become important. It has continued, with some modifications, substantially unchanged, until to-day. It governs the rate on all classes of freight and commodities, and regulates the movement of all grain and grain products in the United States, except those moving to the Gulf ports or the Pacific coast.

Power to Apply Remedy.

It is claimed by the commerce commission that the state of New York has it within its power, through an adequate improvement of Erie canal, not only to apply the remedy that will secure it against further loss of its commerce, but will further secure to it the restoration of that which has already been diverted. This result, the commerce commission believes, may be achieved through the completion of the improvement of the state canals, contemplated by chapter 79, of the laws of 1895, and at an expenditure not exceeding $15,000,000. But the commission further say that in order to receive the full benefit of this improvement, shedded canal terminals should be provided by the state both at Buffalo and at New York for the receipt, safe-guarding and delivery of package freight, transported or destined for transportation over the Erie canal.

The commerce commission also considers, that certain high charges at the ports of New York should be reduced, including the charge for elevating grain and also including the excessive rentals imposed for the use of public docks.

The report of the canal committee is largely occupied with suggestions as to how the proposed improvement may be best made, together with an argument showing that a one thousand ton barge canal may be expected to considerably reduce the cost of transporting grain, or other bulk freight.

Recapitulating this matter, therefore, the New York commerce commission considers that all the evils complained of may be remedied for $15,000,000 expenditure, while the canal committee believes that a barge canal with locks of one thousand tons capacity will double insure to New York city the supremacy which, for a number of years, she has been losing.

Major Thomas W. Symons, in a report upon a barge canal, made to the Federal government, under date of August 7, 1896, states that a fifteen hundred ton barge canal, substantially on the line of the present Erie canal, would be preferable, and that for the highest economy in transportation, special types of vessels are needed for use on the ocean, on the lakes and on the canals, and neither can replace the other in its proper waters without loss of efficiency. In Major Symons's opinion, the cheapest transportation may be obtained with lake vessels, transferring into fifteen hundred ton barges at Buffalo, and, for foreign freight, again transferring into ocean vessels at New York. Subsequently, when acting as a member of the canal committee, Major Symons reduced his estimate as to capacity of the boats, to one thousand tons.

The deep waterways propose an eight thousand ton barge, which shall be capable of navigating the great lakes, the canals and the ocean, without breaking bulk, and here probably is one important difference of opinion. The Lake Erie to the Hudson is to have a depth of only twelve feet, the construction of a twenty-one-foot ship canal from Georgian bay to Montreal, via the French and Ottawa rivers, would be commenced within a year.

"Over this route freight could be carried from Chicago to Montreal for about the same cost as from Chicago to Buffalo, a condition which would destroy all chance of developing traffic on a barge canal from Buffalo to the Hudson, except for the distribution of products for home consumption.

"If, instead of a twelve-foot barge canal, a waterway of sufficient dimensions be constructed to allow the passage of the best modern lake freight carriers, it would be impossible for any railroad combination to compete with any better success than with the present steamship transportation on the Great Lakes."

By way of showing that there is at any rate some question as to whether "a corporal's guard of congressmen" could not be obtained to vote for deep waterways, the speaker may be permitted to cite the following states, which, from their position, may be expected to be benefited by, and hence to be in favor of deep waterways, together with the number of members of congress from each.

State.	Number of Congressmen.
Arkansas	6
California	7
Colorado	2
Idaho	1
Illinois	22
Indiana	13
Iowa	11
Kansas	8
Kentucky	11
Michigan	12
Minnesota	7
Missouri	15
Montana	1
Nebraska	6
Nevada	1
New Jersey	8
New York	34
North Dakota	1
Ohio	21
Oregon	2
Pennsylvania—19 out of a total of	30
South Dakota	2
Tennessee	10
Utah	1
Washington	2
Wisconsin	10

We have, then, a total of two hundred twenty-four out of three hundred fifty-six congressmen, not including three delegates from the territories of Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma, all of whom may, by participating in the benefits, be expected to be in favor of deep waterways.

In additon, Massachusetts with thirteen congressmen; Connecticut with four; and Rhode Island with two, may be expected to sell their manufactured articles to the West cheaper because of the facilities offered by deep waterways. The speaker, therefore, believes it is clearly established that a very respectable vote on first ballot will be in favor of the larger project.

In the report on the survey of last year, the barge canal, including certain lateral canals and not including deductions on account of abandoned canals, is estimated at, roundly, $101,000,000. In his report as consulting engineer to the canal committee, the speaker showed that masonry core walls are necessary in canal embankments, the same as in reservoir embankments, where the best practice justifies their universal use. They are necessary in such large construction as is here proposed, as an absolute guarantee against breaks. A main line of transportation—a national highway—should not be subject to the possibility of broken embankments, with consequent delay of all traffic for five to fifteen days.

As to Canal Breaks.

In order to show the experience under this head on the New York state canals, the following table is submitted. This table includes all breaks reported by the superintendent of public works from 1888 to 1898, inclusive, except for the year 1899, for which the data are not at hand.

The most serious break was that at Adams Basin, on the Erie canal, in 1888, which stopped all navigation between Rochester and Buffalo for twelve days.

Year.	No. of breaks reported.	Total detention in days.	Percentage of total detention.
1888	4	44	11.4
1889	1	16	4.2
1891	4	64	16.6
1892	3	39	10.0
1893	2	18	4.8
1894	4	39	10.0
1895	3	12	3.1
1896	2	36	9.3
1897	4	95	24.5
1898	3	24	6.2
The 10 years	31	387	12.0

occurred at the same time—one at an aqueduct and the other a defective embankment—which required ten and one-half and nine days, respectively, to repair.

In 1893, a break of an embankment of the Glens Falls feeder required eleven days to repair.

In 1896, there were two breaks, and the total detention was only six days. One of these breaks was on the Black River canal and the other on the Eastern division of the Erie canal.

In 1897, a serious break occurred on the Forestport feeder, which required thirty-eight days for repairs. These figures are included in the total detention for that year.

In 1898, the total number of breaks was eleven, causing a total detention of seventy-four days, of which sixteen are included in the repairs of a break in the Forestport feeder embankment at the same point as the break in 1897. With the exception of two breaks on the Champlain canal, all the other breaks of 1898 were on the Erie canal, the total detention from Erie canal breaks being forty-three and one-half days. The Erie canal breaks were all through embankments, and, with one exception, were at points where culverts pass under. The detail of the foregoing breaks may be obtained from the annual reports of the superintendent of public works.

The statements given in the superintendent's reports show that muskrats, by their burrowing, frequently cause embankment breaks. So far as known, masonry core walls are the only effectual remedy for this difficulty.

Breaks at and about the ends of locks form also a considerable proportion of the whole. The carrying of a concrete core wall into the embankments at the lower ends of locks would correct this difficulty.

A strong argument for the additional expenditure required to construct core walls in embankments may be drawn from the foregoing tabulation of the number of breaks, etc., from 1888 to 1898, inclusive. Even when cases like the Forestport feeder break, in 1897 and 1898, are deducted, the clear indication is that embankments without core walls are too dangerous for a great through transportation line such as is here proposed. Such a line, to be satisfactory to all the interests using it, must be so constructed as to be beyond the mutations of ordinary accidents. It would be difficult to make any time-limit contracts with the possibility of delays of five to twenty days caused by breaks.

In considering the foregoing question on its merits it must be further remembered that doubling the quantity of water in the canal prism makes the destructive effect of breaks at least fourfold as great as at present. The cost of repairs and damages would, therefore, become very large.

If we deduct the breaks in Forestport feeder, which are now known to have been caused by malfeasance, the average for the ten years tabulated is over 10 per cent. Imagine a great trunk line railway out of service one-tenth of the time from preventable causes. The additional estimated cost of masonry core walls, over and above ordinary puddle walls, may, for present purposes, be taken at $5,000,000 or $7,000,000, or we have a total estimate for the barge canal of, roundly, $95,000,000 in all.

Further, there are the canal terminals at Buffalo and New York, which the Commerce commission says must be built in order to protect the commerce of Erie canal. They also suggest the propriety of the state building elevators. Moreover, it is tolerably certain that if the state goes into these improvements at Buffalo and New York, it will be expected to make other extraordinary improvements at Rochester, Lyons, Syracuse, Rome, Utica, Little Falls, Amsterdam, Schenectady, Albany and probably at several points on the Hudson river, thus easily raising the total estimate for a barge canal to over $100,000,000. For the sake of the argument, we will take it at an even $100,000,000.

The deep waterways, with twenty-one foot channel, by the preferable route, is estimated at, roundly, $201,000,000. Let us see what a short comparison of these two routes indicates. At 3 per cent. interest on $100,000,000 (cost of barge canal and terminals) will be $3,000,000. If we add to this the annual cost of maintenance and operation of $2,000,000, we have a total of $5,000,000, which the people of the state of New York must pay to the annual traffic, which may be estimated in the beginning at 5,000,000 tons, or ultimately for a barge canal at 10,000,000 tons annually. This amounts to $1 per ton per year in the beginning and ultimately to 50 cents per ton per year. Since it is proposed to make the canal free, it further amounts to a subsidy paid by the people of the state to the canal traffic.

With the deep waterways at an estimated cost of $201,000,000 and with 3 per cent interest, as before, and $3,000,000 annual cost of maintenance, operation, depreciation, etc. the project really costs $9,000,000 per year, or an ultimate million tons of freight per year, we have a cost of ninety cents per ton, and on ultimate freight of 20,000,000 tons, we have an annual cost of thirty-six cents per ton—that is, even in the beginning, the subsidy to commerce, increasing to ninety cents per ton on the business on the canal is unknown. In other case, it is apparent that with both canals free, there is a large contribution to the traffic, but with this difference. If deep waterways are built by the Federal government, the contribution is from indirect taxation, from the Federal revenues, and which, to a considerable extent, are a taxation on luxuries. The class, therefore, who can best stand it, really bear the burden.

By way of further comparison, let us turn for a moment to the New York state canals. According to table No. 3, in the report of the committee on canals, the total cost of the construction and improvements on New York state canals still in use, to 1895, was about $71,490,000. To 1901, we may take it at approximately, $75,000,000. We will take the annual interest charge in this case at 5 per cent, because a considerable proportion of the expense of the New York state canals extends back to the days when the interest rate in this state was 7 per cent. A very large proportion of canal expenditure paid this rate. We have, then, 5 per cent of $75,000,000, at $3,000,000. The average amount of property moved from 1883 to 1898, on the state canals, was 4,562,570 tons per year. Computing for the sixteen years from 1883 to 1898, inclusive—which is sufficiently illustrative—we find the contribution by the state to have been about 30 cents per ton. According to table No. 2, in the same report, the average cost for ordinary repairs and maintenance of the said canals, was about $420,000 per year, which from 1883 to 1898, inclusive amounts to an average of 22c per ton of freight carried, adding 22c to 66c, we have 21.63 per ton, as the approximate total subsidy paid by the state to every ton of freight moved. In sixteen years, from 1883 to 1898, inclusive, the total amount of freight paid to carriers under the free canal system, was $74,133,360, or, roundly, $2,760,000 per year, and which amounts again to about 66 per ton for cac. ton of freight actually carried—paid to the carrier. The approximate total cost per ton, then, was 21.76, of which the state paid $1.66 and the carrier 5c. In order to make canal navigation possible at all, therefore, it was necessary for the period considered that the state subsidize the carrier nearly 60 per cent. of the total cost—that is to say, taking into account interest, maintenance, operation, depreciation, etc., the actual freight paid to carrier was only about 40 per cent. of the total cost. The 60 per cent. was a contribution paid by the people of the state of New York to the canal commerce.

It will be understood that these figures are approximate. Time has not permitted the speaker to carry the figures out very closely, but it is believed they are approximately right. Even if on closer computation, they were to vary several cents, the validity of the argument is not in any degree impaired. The statistics are all from the report of the canal committee. The abandoned canals are not included.

Adequacy of Surveys.

As to the adequacy of deep waterways surveys, the speaker may state that they were mostly made by the engineers of large experience, and he has no doubt they are fully reliable. The work can be built for the estimates. The barge canal can also be built for the estimate of $100,000,000, but all of this account must be paid by direct taxation on the people of the state of New York. They must face about $5,000,000 per year for the privilege of carrying the products of the western states to market somewhat cheaper than they can now be carried. In order to offset this expense it is proposed to make Buffalo and New York transhipment points, thus earning a middleman's fees for handling western products. But no middleman ever developed into a great merchant, and the want of the present day is really great merchants.

But, New York and Buffalo claim that because they pay 71 per cent. of all the taxes in the state of New York, they are, therefore, entitled to have their way in this matter. It is granted that taxes are paid by these two cities to the great amount stated and that these certainly entitle their wishes to be very respectfully treated by the balance of the state, but we ask you to be somewhat broader than this. Do not be just middlemen, but be merchants. Moreover, in a matter of this character—however unwilling—you must consider the great West's objection. The speaker has the best of reasons for believing that the West will never submit to two transfers. She will sooner go to the ocean through Canada—a proceeding, it is needless to remark, which would please Canada and ruin New York.

The speaker has noticed with some surprise that several parties have recently referred to the difference in opinion which exists in the state of New York in regard to the barge canal versus deep waterways, as "the fight in New York," and we are advised to "get together," etc. The speaker is not aware that any fight exists in this state. There are legitimate differences of opinion, which are subject to discussion and which may, presumably be reconciled. In any case, New York is rich enough to build a barge canal as a contribution to western traffic, if she thought best. One hundred million dollars, the assumed cost of the barge canal with masonry core walls, terminals and elevators, is only two per cent. of the assessed valuation of the state, and $201,000,000, the assumed cost of deep waterways, is only 4 per cent. of such assessed valuation.

So far as the present speaker's opinion on this subject is concerned, he is opposed to the building of the barge canal by the state of New York because it is, on the whole, unjust. Even though New York and Buffalo do pay 71 per cent. of the taxes that is really no reason why the New York state largely intended to bring western products to further cheapen his. Due to this western competition, his lot is already a sufficiently hard one. Broadly, therefore, we are not opposing barge canal per se, but only the injustice of taxing the New York farmer at all for such purpose. If the Federal government builds it, all these inequalities disappear. The canal is paid for from Federal revenues—by indirect taxation.

Further, let us examine as to just what proportion of the indirect taxation will be properly accredited to New York state. New York pays about ten per cent. of the Federal revenue. Hence, one-tenth of the cost of deep waterways, or a trifle over $20,000,000 would be properly paid by the state of New York, and this, too, let it be again repeated, is indirect taxation, is paid from the Federal revenue, and is largely taxation on luxuries and, therefore, distributes the burden where it can best be borne. For the barge canal, on the other hand, the taxation is direct, it falls alike on the small land owner and the large, and hence, falls in many cases, upon those least able to bear it.

Is It a Practical Scheme?

Is deep waterways a practicable scheme, may be properly asked at this point. The answer is that the president first appointed a commission of one engineer, one business man and one college president, who unanimously reported that it was, in every sense, practicable. He then appointed three able engineers to survey and locate the route. The scheme must, therefore be considered not only practical but practicable, and objections from non-technical persons will, it is believed, be hardly sufficient to overweigh such authority.

In any case, if congress fails to make an appropriation at its next session, the route of deep waterways and the barge canal is substantially the same from Oswego river to near Schenectady, and the state may properly begin the barge canal improvement here. In the end, congress will act and a gain of time may be made by this procedure.

In the foregoing paper, only a few of the more important points, relating to this matter, have been touched upon. It is obviously impossible to give a complete resume in the time allotted, but it is hoped that enough has been said to show that deep waterways is, at any rate, a practicable scheme, not beyond the necessities of the present day, and that, if constructed, its burden of taxation falls in such a manner as to be unfelt.

In conclusion, the attention of the delegates is invited to these last words of the lamented McKinley, which taking into account that they were spoken here at Buffalo, were hardly less than inspired.

"One of the needs of the times is direct commercial lines from our vast fields of production to the fields of consumption that we have but barely touched. Next in advantage to having the thing to sell is to have the conveyance to carry it to the buyer. We must encourage our merchant marine. We must have more ships. They must be under the American flag, built and manned and owned by Americans. These will not only be profitable in a commercial sense; they will be messengers of peace and amity wherever they go."

PORTO RICAN VISITORS.

w ill be Cordially Received When They Come to Rochester.

A special meeting of the executive committee and the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce was held late yesterday afternoon. The purpose of the meeting was to make arrangements for the reception and entertainment of the delegation of Porto Ricans that arrived in New York Monday. The gentlemen are members of the Porto Rican chambers of commerce, boards of trade and like organizations and are visiting the United States in the interest of closer trade relations between the two countries.

The party consists of twelve delegates and their secretaries, about fifteen gentlemen in all. They are to stay in New York city two or three days, then go direct to Boston and then to Springfield, Mass., arriving there on the 24th. They will leave there on the morning of the 25th, going to Albany, remaining there over night and then travelling westward to Syracuse, arriving there Saturday morning.

Their programme called for them to get into Rochester Saturday, but they are travelling in a Pullman car and would not be able to make this city until 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the last day of the week. Hence it is to be suggested to the delegates through a communication authorized to be sent by Secretary Ives, that they go through to Buffalo and come to Rochester the forepart of next week, at which time they will be cordially received and the industries of the city shown them.

Secretary Ives will not write directly to the delegates, but to Thomas Moore, of Buffalo, superintendent of the machinery division of the Pan-American, and George W. Fishbank, the Porto Rican commissioner of the exposition. Mr. Moore interested himself in the matter and several weeks ago wrote to George F. Alden, of this city, about the entertainment of the visitors.

The delegates will be met at the New York Central station by members from the Chamber of Commerce and escorted to a hotel, where they will be dined. Afterward they will be taken in carriages about the city.

Considerable interest is attached to this visit. It is expected to result satisfactorily to both the visitors and this country. Aside from its business character, the members of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce look forward to the visit with pleasure from a social standpoint. In the absence from the city yesterday of President Lamberton, Benjamin B. Chase presided.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

HEADQUARTERS IN ROCHESTER.

American Express Company to Move Its Western New York Office Here.

Rochester is again to have the Western New York office of the American Express Company. November 1st the headquarters will be removed from Buffalo to this city and J. B. Prentice will come along as division superintendent.

The change will bring to Rochester three or four families, for there are as many men as that employed in the headquarters on special work. The business in the Rochester office will be increased just that much. For several years Division Superintendent Prentice was located in this city, with the headquarters of the division here.

About four years ago the office was removed to Buffalo, on account of the death of M. B. White, general superintendent. When the change is made the first of the month the Eastern general manager will be located in New York, the assistant general manager in Buffalo and the division superintendent in this city.

It means a change back to the old order and is welcome to Rochester, which is always looking out for additional business and the acquisition of headquarters of large concerns. Assistant General Manager T. A. Ritson will go from New York to Buffalo. Mr. Prentice's family has remained in Rochester during the time that Mr. Prentice has been in Buffalo.

TIMES

Y., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1901.

PUBLIC DEMANDS

PUBLIC MARKET ON THE RIVER SITE

Members of the Commission Join Hands With Chamber of Commerce Committee and Uptown Merchants In Protesting Against a Suburban Market.

To The Honorable Common Council of the City of Rochester.

Gentlemen: We the undersigned citizens and taxpayers respectfully request that you favor for a Public Market the site known as the river site, located between Main and Andrews Street bridges, for the good reasons that the aforesaid site is a central one; one that can be used for all time; one easily drained; one that all councilmen can unite on and one that will make easy of access both sides of the river and serve the purpose of a bridge now so badly needed to relieve the congestion on Main Street and which will be needed more and more as the city increases in population. It is our opinion that the first cost of a public market, a necessity in Rochester and which should be built to endure, ought not to be given undue consideration. Much criticism was indulged in when the Court and Andrews Street bridges were built of solid stone, but only words of praise are now heard for the wisdom and foresight exhibited. Such will be the ultimate decision if the river site be utilized for a market built on enduring foundations. We would also suggest in this connection that when built an additional story be added for a public hall suitable for conventions, a sad need at present, and which handicaps Rochester greatly in comparison with other cities.

A powerful and almost unanimous sentiment against the building of a public market in some remote portion of the city which has been kept in check by the Public Market Commission has at last found voice in the form of a petition to the Common Council. All that the people needed was an opportunity to declare their opposition to the scheme to locate the market either on the North Street site or some place in East Rochester, and the petition which was started yesterday morning already has thousands of signatures.

The petition will be presented to the Public Market Commission next Monday and to the Common Council at its next meeting. The men behind the movement are members of the Chamber of Commerce and prominent merchants doing business in the center of the city. The Chamber of Commerce as an organization opposes the North Street and East Rochester sites for the same reason that almost every citizen in Rochester opposes them. In the first place it is not the proper place for the market because it is too far from Main Street and not easily accessible to people living on the West Side.

Need of a Central Market.

Since the public market question was first broached several years ago the people of the city have taken a deep interest in it. It has been the leading topic of conversation at different times in every home in Rochester. Every man and every woman who has to buy for the home has felt the need of a place where he or she might go and procure the vegetables needed and thus remove what long ago became a public nuisance—the noise made by the huckster in calling out his wares.

Merchants on East Main Street, as well as the members of the Fire Department, have protested again and again against the use of the Liberty Pole as a public market. At certain hours of the morning it is almost impossible for the fire wagons to get through Main Street at the corner of Franklin, so numerous are the farmers' wagons. The refuse left by the farmers when they have sold their goods and departed for their homes is not only unsightly, but a positive menace to the health of the inhabitants of the neighborhood.

All of these reasons why a public market should be built have been thoroughly rehearsed at public meetings of the Common Council and the news that the latter body had at last decided to provide the funds necessary for the erection of the building was hailed with joy by a united citizenship. Since the naming of the Public Market Commission, however, there have been many evidences of dissatisfaction with the Commission, many of the members it is contended being in the pay of the "River Site" the Proper Location.

The "River Site" is considered to be the logical site for the public market by, it is safe to say, four-fifths of the people of Rochester. There is not a single valid objection to it; at least, none has as yet been advanced. For years the "River Site" has been uppermost in men's minds when they have discussed the market question and the proposition to locate the market in an outlying neighborhood does not meet with the approval of the majority.

The members of the Public Market Commission, of which Hon. Charles Babcock is Chairman, at its last meeting abandoned the "River Site" on the ground of expense. All of the members agreed that it would be an ideal location for the market, but a majority felt that they would not be warranted in recommending it, inasmuch as the Common Council had appropriated only $150,000 for the object. Estimates were obtained on the cost of erecting the market over the river between Main and Andrews Streets and it was found that $1,000,000 would not more than cover the expense.

The property facing on Main Street would have to be purchased in order to allow of an entrance to the market and water rights in the river would have to be bought at good figures. This was the Commission's reason for abandoning the project.

Business Men Up In Arms.

When it was announced several days ago that the Commission would hold a meeting next Monday a number of prominent State Street business men, believing that a public market, something that will remain for many years, should not be erected in a poor location because of expense, held a meeting to lay out a plan of action. As a result of the conference, which was attended by several members of the Market Commission and members of the Public Market Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, a petition to the Commission and Common Council praying that the market be located on the "River Site" was drawn up.

SIGN THE MARKET PETITION.

For the convenience of citizens who may desire to place themselves on record as favoring a centrally located public market, a copy of the petition to the Common Council will be kept at The Times business office. Persons may sign it there.

The petition was submitted yesterday to nearly every merchant and property owner on State Street and on Main Street, between the Four Corners and the Liberty Pole, and not one of them refused to sign it. The petition calls attention to the fact that the matter of expense is the only argument brought against the site and that this item should not be allowed to figure in a matter of so great importance. The suggestion that a convention hall large enough for the city's needs be erected over the market will meet with the approbation of nine-tenths of the people of Rochester. For years Rochester has been unable to entertain large conventions on account of a lack of a large hall, and the present opportunity to remedy this deficiency is now at hand.

Is Natural Site for Market.

The members of the Public Market Commission and Chamber of Commerce and the merchants of State Street who are behind the movement for the "river site" believe that they are voicing the sentiments of almost every man and woman in Rochester. Not a man, not even those who are financially interested in locating the market on the North Street site, has questioned the popular opinion that the river is the natural location for the market. The only argument brought against the site is that it will cost a million dollars.

The men who believe in placing the market where it should be are also firm in the opinion that the matter of expense could be taken care of by legislation. The market on North Street would not please the public, practical business men believe, and consequently it would be a losing venture for the citizens of Rochester. A market on the "river site" with a convention hall attached would be a successful and paying venture even though it should cost a million. It is for this reason that the petition printed above is being circulated uptown and is to be presented to the men intrusted with the duty of selecting a site.

Expense Their Only Argument.

The argument made by advocates of the North Street and East Rochester sites loses weight when placed under the searchlight of common sense. A Franklin, so numerous are the farmers' wagons. The refuse left by the farmers when they have sold their goods and departed for their homes is not only unsightly, but a positive menace to the health of the inhabitants of the neighborhood.

All of these reasons why a public market should be built have been thoroughly rehearsed at public meetings of the Common Council and the news that the latter body had at last decided to provide the funds necessary for the erection of the building was hailed with joy by a united citizenship. Since the naming of the Public Market Commission, however, there have been many evidences of dissatisfaction with the Commission, many of the members it is contended being in the pay of the

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The first regular meeting of the Corporation since the summer vacation will take place in Assembly Hall, Monday, Nov. 11, 1901, at 8 P. M., on which occasion the Secretary will give a detailed report of the State Commerce Convention held in Buffalo, Oct. 16-17, and Mr. Arthur Leibes, will give a short address on "The Possibilities of Advertising Rochester-Made Goods to the World." Luncheon will be served by Teall.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 9, 1901.

John M. Ives
Secretary.

WU MAY COME

Herald Nov 1, 1901

Chinese Minister Invited to Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

EVENT WILL BE HELD DEC. 15

Admission Price Will Be $4 This Year Instead of $3 as Heretofore—Charles Goetzman Named as Chairman of Dinner Committee — Copy of Annual Year Book Received.

Minister Wu Ting Fang, head of the Chinese embassy in Washington, has been invited to attend the Chamber of Commerce annual dinner.

If he accepts, Minister Wu will be the biggest card at the dinner, outshining all others because of the popular demand of the public to hear him. There is reason to believe that he will accept the invitation and every effort will be made to have him come.

Almost everyone in this country has heard of Minister Wu, as he is called. His pithy speeches, sharp retorts, pointed answers to questions, witty dialogues and comparisons of Anglo-Saxonism with Chinese customs, sometimes to the embarrassment of the former, have been read with keen relish by the public. Besides his aptitude in retort he is a brilliant speaker. His Independence Day address in Philadelphia was remarkable for its forcefulness and knowledge of American history.

The annual dinner of the chamber is one of the social functions of the season. It will be held on December 15, this date having been decided upon at a meeting of the trustees and executive committee of that body at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. As usual it will be held in Powers Hall.

The price this year will be $4. A year ago the cost was $3, but the chamber lost money. Prior to that time the tickets were $5 and at the Otis dinner the tickets were $5. Wine will not be on the menu, but it can be purchased by those who wish it, as heretofore. A considerable amount of money was lost at the last dinner when tickets were only $3. This is partly due to the fact that $500 is expended before the dinner is spread, bringing up the total to figures of four columns.

Charles Goetzman has accepted the chairmanship of the Dinner Committee. He acted in a similar capacity at the Otis dinner and reflected such credit upon himself that he was importuned by the chamber to accept this year, which he did after some hesitancy. He has not named his committee as yet.

A handsome advance copy of the year book of the Chamber of Commerce entitled "Rochester, the Power City," has been received from the printer and was shown to the members of the committee at the meeting yesterday afternoon. A request was made by Secretary Ives that a copy of it be made in time so that it could be enclosed in the copper box which is to be laid in the cornerstone of the New Masonic Temple and the printer furnished two copies. One copy was sent to Judge Benton, the president of the Temple, and it was sealed up in the box at 4 o'clock. The full series will not be ready until two weeks from to-day.

An invitation was received from the National Reciprocity Convention asking that the chamber send delegates to the convention which is to be held in Washington on November 19 to 21. The object of the convention is to promote legislation and diplomatic negotiations relative to establishing reciprocal relations with Canada and other countries. The chamber will probably send three delegates, but none were designated at the meeting because President Lamberton was out of the city on business and Chairman Hathaway felt that the courtesy should be reserved for the president.

The next regular meeting of the chamber was scheduled for November 4, but it will be postponed until a week later. Then Secretary Ives will read a report on the doings of the State Commerce Convention recently held in Buffalo. Arthur Liebes, a professional advertiser, will read a paper on "Possibilities of Advertising Rochester-made Goods to the World."

It was decided to tender the use of the rooms of the chamber to the Rochester Choral Society next Monday night. The opera "Stabat Mater" will be sung and the members of the chamber have been invited to attend.

These new members were admitted: W. C. McDonnell, William A. Sutherland, William J. Gage, Raleigh Farrar, David F. Power, George Herbert Smith, Brooks and Murphy, Frank A. Pierson and the Rochester Brokerage Company.

FAVORS SHIP CANAL

Democrat & Chronicle Sept 27/1901

Chamber of Commerce Will Send Delegates to State Commerce Convention.

The executive committee and the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce took up the business of the year yesterday afternoon, after a summer's vacation. President A. B. Lamberton presided at the meetings. There was little transacted at this, the first meeting of the new business year, but such as there was was finished up with celerity.

Two resolutions were passed showing that the sentiment of the chamber favors a ship canal with a port at Charlotte, the expense to be borne by the federal government, rather than an enlargement of the Erie canal into a barge canal, the expense to be saddled upon the state. The matter will be brought up at the state commerce convention, to be held in Buffalo on the 16th instant, and the two resolutions are to be sent to the secretary of the official body. The co-operation of the state is requested by the Chamber of Commerce.

There was a long discussion in regard to the state commerce convention, and at the end of it the president was given authority to appoint six delegates to attend the meeting, Rochester being entitled to that number. Chambers of commerce, boards of trade or like organizations in the state with a membership of 100 are entitled to two delegates; those of 200 members to four delegates, those of 350 members to six delegates and those of 500 members to eight delegates.

Permission was granted the Tuesday Musical Club and the Rochester Choral Society to use the chamber rooms for rehearsals when they are not occupied for other purposes by the chamber.

The following were elected members of the chamber:

O. J. Condly, Fitchugh hall, automobiles and bicycles.

J. N. Beckley, president Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo railway.

John A. C. Wright, Elwood building, attorney.

Raines & Miller, No. 11 Ellwanger building, attorneys.

J. B. Snyder Supply and Electrical Company, Nos. 34 and 36 South avenue.

A. J. Rodenbeck, attorney.

ROCHESTER, THE POWER CITY

Magnificent Book Printed by The Union and Advertiser Co.

Issued by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce to Benefit the City of Rochester.

One of the Most Beautiful Pictoria Books Published Here—Rochester's Social and Commercial Aspects.

There has been issued from the press of the Union and Advertiser Company a book that is conceded by critics to be the most perfect example of the typographical art ever published in this city.

It is entitled "Rochester, the Power City," edited by Secretary John M. Ives and issued by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce. This work presents information that is not only of great importance to the people of this city and given in such a manner as to be of high value in advertising the advantages of Rochester to all the world, but is so elaborate in its artistic and typographical detail as to command universal admiration. It excels all of the many books published in past years by the corporation. Interspersed among the letter-press are a number of original views of Rochester and vicinity rendered in exquisite half-tone engravings from photographs by expert operators especially engaged for the purpose.

In the department of banking and commerce are many magnificent illustrated announcements. This latter is a most important feature of the publica-

ROCHESTER, THE POWER CITY.

Daily Herald 1901

Handsome Publication Just Issued by the Chamber of Commerce.

"Rochester, the Power City," is the title of the annual book of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce just out. It is believed to be the handsomest of the many attractive publications of like nature that the chamber has issued, and is replete with excellent pictures of scenes about the city and the adjacent country.

The books will be sent to chambers of commerce, boards of trade and public libraries, and will be distributed among the members of the local chamber. The scheme is the advertising of Rochester, setting forth in a clear and forcible manner the advantages of the city, what it is to-day and what it is destined to be. As such a medium the book is well nigh perfect. It contains various interesting facts regarding the city.

There are two maps in the book, one of special value. This one shows all the lines of steam and electric railroads that enter Rochester and those that are projected, with their routes and the villages and towns they touch. Care has been taken to make the map accurate. The civil engineers of the various roads examined it and made such changes as they saw necessary, and it is believed now to be absolutely correct.

There are about forty full-page engravings, and many of these are from photographs that were taken especially for the book. There is an engraving of the new Masonic temple with the scene of the turning of the first sod; pictures of the city parks, including some of the crowds that attended the band concerts, which were instituted by the Chamber of Commerce; views of the river in summer and winter, pictures of new business buildings and residences and an engraving of the new high school building, including the ground floor plan. The tower of Christ Church, which is to be erected this coming year, is shown. There is a list of the chamber members who have died during the year, and biographical sketches of a few of them. There is also a full list of the 400 members of the chamber. The by-laws are printed anew, with the changes that have been made therein since the previous publication was issued by the chamber.

Some of the photographs from which the engravings were made were made by George R. King, of Boston, a specialist in landscape work. The cover is strikingly handsome, yet simple. The design includes, besides the title, the Chamber of Commerce seal in color. There is a noticeable change in the seal. The banner that floats from the beak of the proud eagle bears the legend, "Power City" instead of "Flower City," as formerly.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

tion and will undoubtedly impress the business world at large with the grandeur of many of our buildings and the magnitude of Rochester's commercial enterprises.

The work is intended exclusively for use of the members of the Chamber of Commerce and the firms and corporations whose business announcements grace so many of its pages. It will be sent to the Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, commercial exchanges and public libraries in the leading cities and towns of the United States, also to the chief commercial associations in the capitals of Europe. The book contains a very comprehensive map of the section of the state, showing the various routes of the established and projected trolley lines out of Rochester. This will prove of great advantage to the business houses of this city desirous of extending their commercial operations to vicinity neighborhoods and towns. In addition to a vast amount of general information on many local subjects there is a list of the members of the Chamber of Commerce, and also the constitution and by-laws of the corporation. The publication is calculated to be of immense value in bringing to the notice of the world the extraordinary facilities of Rochester as a manufacturing center, its healthfulness as a residential city and the enormous possibilities of its future. It will also demonstrate the fact that the Union and Advertiser Company's facilities for producing the highest art ideals, in letter press and illustration, are equal, if not superior, to any publishing house in the state. Daily Union Nov 7, 1901

"ROCHESTER THE POWER CITY"

SUPERBLY ILLUSTRATED BOOK ISSUED BY THE ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Times Nov 9 1901

Many periodical books have been issued by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce during past years that have been of great value in disseminating information in regard to Rochester industries and its desirability as a residential city, etc., but none have been equal in point of general information and artistic beauty to the book just issued and entitled "Rochester, the Power City."

It contains many new and original views of Rochester and vicinity, produced in superb half-tone engravings from photographs taken by artists especially engaged for the purpose. In the department devoted to business announcements will be found the most magnificent illustrations of many of the great commercial and banking houses of Rochester, which will doubtless do much to extend the reputation of our city as being the center of enormous industrial and manufacturing activity.

The book treats of every department of effort in Rochester and includes a very valuable map of this section of the State, showing the routes of established and projected trolley lines running out of our city. It also contains the constitution and by-laws and list of the Chamber of Commerce membership, which includes most of the distinguished firms, corporations and professional citizens of Rochester.

The book was edited by Secretary John M. Ives with a view to be of special value to the Commercial interests of Rochester, and will be distributed among members of the Chamber, advertisers in the book, and to Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade and public libraries throughout the country.

PETITION SIGNED

FOR MARKET ON RIVER

BY HUNDREDS

Central Location Could Be Secured For Less Than Half a Million Dollars---Arguments For a Suburban Market Exploded by Stubborn Facts.

The Times Nov 9 1901

SIGN THE MARKET PETITION.

For the convenience of citizens who may desire to place themselves on record as favoring a centrally located public market, a copy of the petition to the Common Council will be kept at The Times business office. Persons may sign it there.

The people want the public market on the river site.

Since the petition to the Common Council asking that body to make it possible for the Public Market Commission to build the new market on the river at Mortimer Street was put in circulation, the citizens of Rochester have demonstrated their eagerness to sign the document by flocking to The Times office, where a copy of the petition is kept for the public. The petition was drawn up Thursday and during yesterday and this morning over 500 people had attached their names to the copy kept in The Times office.

The uptown merchants who are interesting themselves in the river site met with like success, none of those approached showing any hesitancy whatever in signing the petition. It seemed to be the unanimous opinion of all leading business and professional men that the public market should be centrally located.

Expense Not a Serious Obstacle.

A member of the Public Market Commission stated this morning that the matter of expense, which has been the bugbear of the river site advocates since the market was first talked of, was not such a serious obstacle after all. In the first place the men who are leading the movement against a suburban market declare that it will not cost a million dollars to build the market over the river, as has been claimed by Messrs. Gosnell and Lane, two members of the commission. It is stated that the expense would not exceed $400,000 and that this sum would include the building of a bridge across the river at Mortimer Street—a project in itself calling for action by the city authorities.

The Hartford Street Site.

It does not seem to have been a difficult task for the members of the commission living on the East Side to force their favorite site—the Hartford Street property—to the front. The statement that the river site was impracticable on account of expense was emphasized for more than it was worth and proved for a time to be an obstacle in the way of locating the market where the people for years declared it should be built.

The property on Hartford Street which is being touted by certain East Side members of the Commission, is valued at $105,000 by the people who own it, but a prominent uptown merchant, a member of the Public Market Commission, stated this morning that it had never been rated by the City Assessors at more than $60,000. He said that the city would, before long, find itself compelled to build a bridge over the river at Mortimer Street and that this could be done and a public market erected at the same place for less than half a million of dollars.

No Main Street Entrance.

The statement made by the advocates of the Hartford Street site that it would be necessary to buy the property on the north side of Main Street bridge should the market be erected over the river, is hardly true. The men who are leading in the movement for the central market have considered the matter from every possible viewpoint and the proposition to purchase the property on Main Street bridge has never been seriously thought of. In the first place it is not desired to have an entrance to the market from Main Street. Such an entrance would be too expensive and in a measure defeat the purposes of the market.

The proposition is to extend Mortimer Street across Water Street to the river, bridge the stream at that point and continue Mortimer to Front Street. This would bring Mortimer Street into Front Street almost directly opposite Corinthian Street, giving the city another through thoroughfare from Clinton Avenue North to State Street. The market would be erected over the river between Mortimer and Andrews Streets with an entrance from the Mortimer Street bridge. Should the market prove to be too small, the advocates of the central market declare, it would be an easy matter to extend it over the river between Mortimer and Andrews Street.

The property needed for the extension of Mortimer Street, it has been positively learned, could be purchased for a small figure and the city would be able, at very little more expense than the Hartford or East Rochester projects call for, to build a market where the people of the city demand that it shall be built—over the river.

Proposition to Shut Out the Public.

It is understood that the men who own the property which would have to be purchased by the city should the commission decide to build the market on Hartford Street are opposed to having a big retail market, preferring to have the public market run on the narrow plan of a market for grocerymen only. Such a scheme has already received the stamp of disapproval from the people. The citizens of Rochester want a market where they will be able to buy their vegetables first hand and any proposition to limit it to the merchants of the city would be an act of favoritism which the people will not be slow to rebel against. The idea which has inspired the whole public market agitation has been for the erection of a market for the people of the city and any attempt to build a buying-place for grocers only will be rejected with scant ceremony.

Railroad Facilities Not a Factor.

A member of the Public Market Commission this morning answered the charge made by another member of the commission, who is also interested in the Hartford Street site, to the effect that the river site was impracticable because of an alleged lack of railroad facilities, by saying that no railroad was needed to make the market a success. However, should it be decided that railroad facilities are necessary the market could be erected over the river at Court Street. This would place the market on the line of the Erie Railroad and at the same time give it a central location.

The proposition to build the market in the suburbs has already brought forth many protests and judging from the thousands of names already attached to the petition printed in The Times yesterday protesting against the plan, it would seem as though the people of Rochester have determined to have something to say in the matter before the commission makes the blunder which it seems to have mapped out for itself.

The market should be built in the center of the city and if it is taken into the suburbs the people of Rochester will hold the Public Market Commission responsible.

Popular Proposition.

Popular sentiment has been aroused by the movement seeking the adoption of the river site for the public market. Judging from the unanimous approval with which the petition has been received, the members of the Market Commission, who will hold an important meeting tonight, cannot disregard the sentiment for a more intelligent consideration of this site. The friends of the river site argue with sound sense that the desirability of a centrally located market should overweigh the question of additional expense, and that such additional expense, in view of the enormous benefits to be derived from the location proposed, should be incurred without quibbling and as expeditiously as possible.

The Times has never felt that the appropriation, $150,000, was sufficient for the construction of a satisfactory public market on any site in Rochester. Experts say now that the expenditure of an additional $350,000 will not only ensure a centrally located and ecumodious market, but will be enough to construct a large convention hall over the market, one of Rochester's crying needs. With the public market agitators and the friends of the convention hall project joining hands there should be little difficulty in raising the additional amount.

It must be remembered, furthermore, that it is only a question of time when the city will be called upon to spend in the neighborhood of $300,000 in relieving congested Main Street by the erection of a new bridge across the river between Main and Andrews Streets. The river market site project provides for such a necessity by practically making a bridge of the market and the extension of Mortimer Street across the river. This can be done at considerably less expense by combining the bridge and market schemes. The utility and economy of the project, would, therefore, it would seem, justify an additional appropriation of say, $200,000, to the original $150,000, leaving a sum of only $150,000 to be raised by the convention hall men and interested property owners.

It is to be sincerely hoped that the Market Commission will give this proposition its earnest attention and act so as to work the greatest benefit to the city and all concerned. The Times Nov 11, 1901

PROTEST DEMANDS CONSIDERATION

Public Market Commission Should Act Slowly In Selecting Site---Petition Against a Suburban Market Receives Hundreds of Signatures---The Commission Meets Today.

JOHNSTON'S DEBT STATEMENT SHOWS MONEY CAN BE HAD

The Times Nov 11 1901

SIGN THE MARKET PETITION.

For the convenience of citizens who may desire to place themselves on record as favoring a centrally located public market, a copy of the petition to the Common Council will be kept at The Times business office. Persons may sign it there.

The demand for a centrally located public market increases daily.

Since Saturday noon the number of names attached to the petition which is being circulated protesting to the Common Council against the building of the market in the suburbs, has grown to significant proportions. The protest comes from all sections of the city and from all classes of citizens, business, professional and workingmen evincing commendable eagerness to sign the paper.

Beyond the fact that the protestants are placing their opinion in writing and directing it at the Common Council and Public Market Commission, there is really no new feature in the movement. The four or five advocates of a suburban market have been able at all times to count their supporters on the fingers of one hand, but as they themselves were members of the Public Market Commission and able to raise a cry of false economy with effect the river site project suffered in consequence.

Should Avoid Hasty Action.

The written protest of a thousand or more substantial business and professional men, representing as they do, a large majority of the citizens of Rochester, makes it imperative for the Public Market Commission to take no hasty action at its meeting this afternoon. If they are unable at this time to open negotiations for the river property, the matter should be deferred until such time as it can be accorded the attention so important an enterprise demands. After having waited for two score of years for one of the greatest public necessities of the modern city, Rochesterians will, The Times is sure, be willing to wait a few months longer—if by doing so they are able to prevent the committing of a great mistake and win for themselves what common sense dictates—a centrally located market.

Since the petition against a suburban market was first circulated last week, additional evidence has come to light showing the emptiness of the argument that a central market would be impossible because of the expense involved. Rochester has a population of over 170,000 and half a million of dollars should be no bugbear to public improvement projects. Especially is this true when one remembers some of the other public expenditures of the past decade.

Would Not Exceed Debt Limit.

As was stated in The Times Saturday, however, the market could be erected on the river site, Mortimer Street extended across the river to Front Street and a convention hall built over the market for less than $500,000.

The debt statement for October,

Johnston, refutes the economy argument against the Mortimer Street site. Mr. Johnston's statement shows that should the City Fathers and Public Market Commissioners so desire, the city could issue public market bonds to the amount of $546,919 and still remain well within the debt limit. The argument raised by one of the half-dozen suburban market advocates to the effect that an expensive market over the river should be built, if at all, by private capital, is hardly entitled to serious consideration.

This argument is advanced by a very few men who are endeavoring to defeat the aims of the original public market boomers. They want a market built at the city's expense where only they themselves will be able to trade. They fear that a big public market where citizens might purchase their vegetables first hand would in a measure cripple their businesses and, having been able to catch and hold the ear of the commission, they have up to the present time succeeded in stiding the protests of more public-spirited citizens.

They argue that a market which would please them would not cost more than $150,000; but friends of a central market are anxious to know why the city at large should prefer to spend even that modest sum for a few men rather than a sum twice as large for the benefit of the whole city.

Pretentious Structure Not Wanted.

A pretentious structure is not asked for by those who want the market built in the center of the city. They are working solely for a central location and back of them are, it is safe to say, four-fifths of the people of Rochester.

In view of public sentiment, it is hardly conceivable that the Public Market Commission will allow itself to be pushed into an unpopular action by a few men who will reap all there is to be gained in a market on Hartford Street or in East Rochester.

THE CHAMBER DINNER.

Committee Will Probably Hold Its First Meeting on Wednesday.

The Chamber of Commerce dinner committee, composed of Charles Goetzmann, chairman, Wendell J. Curtis, Albert E. Vogt, Charles T. Chapin, Harry S. Woodworth, William C. Lilly and Simon N. Stein, will hold its first meeting probably on Wednesday.

Chamber of Commerce Meeting.

The first fall meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held in the rooms of the organization at 8 o'clock to-night. Secretary Ives will read his report of the convention held last month at Buffalo. The annual dinner will also be discussed.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

SHIP OR BARGE CANAL FOR NEW YORK STATE

Commerce Convention Favored the Smaller Waterway.

REPORT OF SEC. IVES

Read Last Night Before the Chamber of Commerce—Rochester Representatives at Buffalo Pleaded for the Deep Waterway to be Constructed.

The first regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to be held since the summer vacation took place last night. Those members who braved the storm were entertained by Secretary Ives's report of the recent state commerce convention, and by an address by Arthur Leibes on "The Possibilities of Advertising Rochester-Made Goods to the World." President Lamberton presided. After the business session luncheon was served by Teall.

In calling the meeting to order President Lamberton referred to the recent death of one of the prominent members of the chamber, William H. Gorsline. Mr. Gorsline was a charter member of the chamber, a member of the first board of trustees and prominent in the work of the organization. He was a trustee at the time of his death.

The reading of the minutes and the calling of the roll were dispensed with, and Secretary Ives read his report of the state commerce convention, held in the rooms of the Board of Trade of Buffalo, October 16th. The Rochester Chamber of Commerce was represented by the following members: President A. B. Lamberton, Charles E. Angle, Daniel B. Murphy, George W. Rafter, John A. C. Wright and Mr. Ives.

On the morning of the second day papers were read, in favor of a ship canal, by George W. Rafter and John A. C. Wright. President Kernan opened the convention with a speech in favor of a 1-000-ton barge canal. He said that if a ship canal was built at a cost of $300,000,000, to be paid for by the national government, New York would pay one-tenth of the amount, or $30,000,000. Why not pay $30,000,000 and own a barge canal absolutely? he asked.

Captain Marcus M. Drake, of the Buffalo Exchange, spoke on "The Future Canal System of the State of New York." The speaker was frank enough to say that what Buffalo was after was a 1,000-ton barge canal, to be paid for by the state of New York, in order to benefit Buffalo and New York.

Mr. Wright in his address on "The Waterway Question; an Adequate Solution From Niagara to the Sea," dealt with the problem as a whole from Lake Erie to the Hudson. Mr. Wright believed that there should be a sensible, businesslike union like that of the states, and that the territory interested involved the major part of the wealth, population and freight movement of the states. He did not believe that the $100,000,000 barge canal was an adequate solution. He did believe that with a through way built by the nation we could dovetail our state canal system.

Mr. Rafter followed with another paper favoring deep waterways rather than a barge canal. There were other addresses along the same line. The resolution passed was to the effect that it was the sense of the convention that the interests of the state will be best fostered and protected by the construction of a 1,000-ton barge canal. This was carried with the understanding that the approval of the 1,000-ton barge canal was not an ultimatum.

In his address on "The Possibilities of Advertising Rochester-Made Goods to the World," Mr. Leibes said, in part.

"Rochester is without doubt one of the finest cities in the United States. In your city factories abound whose output is enormous; they turn out goods of a recognized standard. You lead in the output of cameras; in the output of optical goods you hold a ranking position; already you are vying with Boston as a shoe market. A big part of the United States is now wearing clothes made by the wholesale clothiers of Rochester. Enormous amounts of capital are involved in the manufacture of flour and the propagation of nursery stock. Its facilities for the quick transportation of merchandise are so good that it might be said that with few exceptions they are unequaled. Your city offers inducements to a better class of people as a home than does almost any other city in the broad expanse of our country.

"These introductory words are made to lead up to one word—'advertise.' When the first newspaper was published for general circulation down in Philadelphia, a farmer who had a desire to change his vocation went to the newspaper in question and asked of the editor permission to announce the fact that his sheep, horse, harness and farm implements were for sale. That Philadelphia paper and that farmer were the beginning of what is today, possibly, the greatest vehicle for the spending of money, advertising.

"Gentlemen, it is almost beyond belief what fabulous sums have been spent in advertising. I can name you no less than a dozen firms whose advertising appropriations exceed $500,000 per annum; hundreds upon hundreds of concerns spend $100,000 per year, and those advertisers who spend as much as $50,000 in a year are so numerous that to count them would be a herculean task.

"But, you say, what has all this to do with the advertising of Rochester? Just this: If other people can afford to pay a half million or $100,000 or $50,000 or even $10,000 in order to make known to the world why their goods should be bought, why cannot this city of Rochester, this Flower city, through its Chamber of Commerce, enter into some plan, not by its individual manufacturers, but collectively, to spread throughout the length and breadth of this country knowledge of the sterling value of Rochester-made goods?

"And how shall this be done? There's the rub. The exploiting of a community depends a great deal on the class of people that compose that community. Take as an example the City of Chicago. Every ignorant emigrant who touches Ellis Island has heard of two great cities in the United States, New York and Chicago. They know of Chicago as an enormous town full of possibilities; yet Chicago has no concerted method of advertising, and is, next to New York, the best known city in the domains of the United States. Speak to these emigrants, and ask them what their impression of the people living in Chicago is, and they will say 'It is hustle, hustle, hustle, all the time.' They will say that they expect the Chicago man to walk fast, to talk fast, to be fast. Chicago is known as a wide-awake, up-to-the-minute town, simply because its community, or rather the people composing it, are up and doing every hour of the day.

"The city of Rochester, if you will pardon my criticism of it, certainly has none of these characteristics. You don't see that wild scramble, that hustle, that 'get-there' about its people. No one seems to be in a hurry. There is none of that energy that is an index to the possibility of achieving great results. There seems to be something lackadaisical, quiet and serene about Rochester. You are not energetic enough. But in speaking to your individual members, I have come across just this—that each and every one of you believes in advertising. You believe that your goods can be disposed of more readily if you will but advertise.

"But begin, before you spend a dollar in exploiting your city, right in your own midst. Make your town wide awake. Let it be a busy hive of busy people, each one using the other as a ladder to obtain a higher position in the financial as well as in the social world. Do not stand idly by and let cities like Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo or Pittsburg set forth their superior inducements to capitalists anxious to invest their money. Show them that Rochester, with its 30,000 horse power, offers them hundreds of grand sites for factories. Show them that your facilities for the shipment of goods, as I said before, are practically unequaled. Show them that you are within easy reach of the coal fields of Pennsylvania, that your coal supply, therefore, is convenient to get at, and low in price. Show them in short, that Rochester is a wide-awake, up-to-the-minute town, simply because its community, or rather the people composing it, are up and doing every hour of the day.

"The city of Rochester, if you will pardon my criticism of it, certainly has none of these characteristics. You don't see that wild scramble, that hustle, that 'get-there' about its people. No one seems to be in a hurry. There is none of that energy that is an index to the possibility of achieving great results. There seems to be something lackadaisical, quiet and serene about Rochester. You are not energetic enough. But in speaking to your individual members, I have come across just this—that each and every one of you believes in advertising. You believe that your goods can be disposed of more readily if you will but advertise.

"But begin, before you spend a dollar in exploiting your city, right in your own midst. Make your town wide awake. Let it be a busy hive of busy people, each one using the other as a ladder to obtain a higher position in the financial as well as in the social world. Do not stand idly by and let cities like Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo or Pittsburg set forth their superior inducements to capitalists anxious to invest their money. Show them that Rochester, with its 30,000 horse-power, offers them hundreds of grand sites for factories. Show them that your facilities for the shipment of goods, as I said before, are practically unequalled. Show them that you are within easy reach of the coal fields of Pennsylvania;

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

"By all means, then, let the Chamber of Commerce advertise. Not to-day and to-morrow but for months and months, and let your slogan be 'All for Rochester, Rochester for all,' and then keep everlastingly at it and you will reap a golden harvest.

"For the kind attention you have given me during these past few moments, I wish to earnestly thank you, and place at the disposal of any committee of the Chamber of Commerce or the Chamber of Commerce as a body my services at any time to carry out the plan or to give further advice on the possibilities of advertising Rochester-made goods to the world."

BUSINESS MEN MAKE PROTEST

The People Almost Unanimously Demand a Central Market---Names of Those Who Have Signed Petition Circulated on State St.

The Times Nov 14 '01

The Times today prints the names of the men who have signed one of the petitions to the Common Council asking that the public market be built over the Genesee River at Mortimer Street. The copy was circulated by a prominent State Street business man who confined his operations to Main and State Streets and two other thoroughfares near the Four Corners.

The circulator met with no refusals; every man approached displayed commendable eagerness to sign the paper. Most of them expressed surprise that the Public Market Commission should even so much as discuss a proposition to build the market in the suburbs. As to the matter of expense, they argued that it would be better to spend $450,000 for a market that would please the people and have their support, than to sink $150,000 in an enterprise useful only to people living in a very small portion of the East Side.

The property interests of four or five men, they argued, should not be set against the will of the people.

River Site Alone Considered.

Attention was called to the fact that as far back as 1891, when the public market scheme first received official recognition, the river site was alone considered. A proposition to carry it into East Rochester or to Hartford Street would at that time have been considered unreasonable; and now that Rochester has nearly double the population of 1891, citizens argue, it would be all the more difficult for persons living on the West Side to walk or ride to some remote section of the East Side to purchase their garden products.

In the Board of Supervisors Nov. 11, 1891, Supervisor Samuel Bradstreet introduced a resolution, which was adopted, that a special committee be appointed to consult with the Public Market Committee of the Common Council relative to the erection of a public market. A committee was named and met with the Aldermanic committee. The latter, however, politely informed the Supervisors that they were able to handle the matter themselves and the county legislators withdrew from the project. At that time the river site was the only one considered.

Copies of the petition printed below are being circulated in different sections of the city and all of them are being signed by hundreds of citizens. The Times will publish the names of the signers as soon as the copies of the petitions are filled. It is estimated that over 3,000 citizens have already placed themselves on record as favoring the river site.

The high business standing of the men whose names appear below should convince the Public Market Commission that Father Rochester is against the pet scheme of a most too energetic minority of that body.

To the Honorable, the Common Council of the City of Rochester.

Gentlemen: We the undersigned citizens and taxpayers respectfully request that you favor for a Public Market the site known as the river site, located between Main and Andrews Street bridges, for the good reasons that the aforesaid site is a central one; one that can be used for all time; one easily drained; one that all councilmen can unite on and one that will make easy of access both sides of the river and serve the purpose of a bridge now so badly needed to relieve the congestion on Main Street, and which will be needed more and more as the city increases in population. It is our opinion that the first cost of a public market, a necessity in Rochester and which should be built to endure, ought not to be given undue consideration. Much criticism was indulged in when

[illegible] Square [illegible] Square [illegible] Square [

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

THE ROCHESTER CHORAL SOCIETY OF FIFTY VOICES

Will give a Concert in Assembly Hall

Monday Evening, November 18th, 1901, at 8 o'clock, to which you and your family are invited as guests. The Concert will consist of choruses from "Stabat Mater," violin solos by Mr. LUDWIG SCHENCK, soprano solos by Miss BELLE STONE, bass solos by Mr. EDWARD ADREANSEN, etc., etc.—all under the conductorship of Mr. Ludwig Schenck. Accompanists Mrs. Ludwig Schenck, Miss F. A. Brackett, Miss Ada Koehler.

Please be in your seats promptly at eight.

JOHN M. IVES, Secretary.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 16, 1901.

The Rochester Choral Society

MR. LUDWIG SCHENCK, Conductor

Grand Concert Under the Auspices of the CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

In ASSEMBLY HALL,

Monday Evening, November 18, 1901

at eight o'clock.

The Program

CHORUS—National Hymn, "America" — Rochester Choral Society
VIOLIN SOLO—"Reverie" — Mr. Ludwig Schenck	E. Mlynarski
BASS SOLO—"Thou Art My Queen" — Mr. Edward Adreansen	E. Blackstock
CHORUS—"Eia Mater" from "Stabat Mater" — Rochester Choral Society	A. Dvorak
SOPRANO SOLO—"Villanella" (Oft' have I seen) — Miss Belle Stone	Dell 'Acqua
VIOLIN SOLO—(a) "Air"	J. S. Bach
(b) "The Bee" — Mr. Ludwig Schenck	F. Schubert
CHORUS—"Virgo Virginum" from "Stabat Mater" — Rochester Choral Society	A. Dvorak
BASS SOLO—"The Gypsies" — Mr. Edward Adreansen	D. Buck
CHORUS—"Rise! Sleep No More" — Rochester Choral Society	J. Benedict
MRS. LUDWIG SCHENCK,	Accompanist
MRS. F. A. BROCKETT,	Accompanist
MISS ADA KOEHLER,	Accompanist

CENTRAL PRINTING COMPANY, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

MUSIC BY CHORAL SOCIETY.

Herald Nov. 19/01

Programme Well Rendered at Chamber of Commerce Last Night.

Music of merit was given last night at the Chamber of Commerce, the occasion being the appearance of the Rochester Choral Society under the conductorship of Mr. Ludwig Schenck. There was a good sized audience present, which manifested its appreciation by applause that was spontaneous in the extreme, it being sufficient to secure encores in two or three instances.

The first number on the programme was "America" by the chorus, the audience, at the invitation of the conductor, joining in.

For the next number Mr. Schenck played "Reverie," a violin solo, and as played by the conductor, it was a very beautiful composition, indeed.

"Thou Art My Queen" was sung by Mr. Edward Adreansen in a fine baritone voice. This was followed by a selection from the "Stabat Mater" by the chorus, which in this as in the "Virgo Virginum" from the same work, did especially well, the singing being sympathetic, properly majestic and quite generally rising to the height of the theme.

One of the most pleasing numbers on the programme was the soprano solo, "Oft Have I Seen," by Miss Belle Stone, the possessor of a good clear voice that is well trained in doing things quite difficult. Miss Stone responded to an encore, as did also Mr. Schenck after he had favored the audience with another beautiful solo, an air of Beethoven's. The programme concluded with another solo by Mr. Adreansen, and "Rise, Sleep no More," by the chorus.

TO ENTERTAIN SPEAKERS

Chamber of Commerce Delegates Go to New York and Washington.

President Lamberton, Hon. Henry C. Brewster and Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, left Rochester last night to engage speakers for the annual dinner of the chamber to be held next month. They will go to New York and then to Washington. At the capital city they will attend the reciprocity conference to be held to-day, Wednesday and Thursday. They go as delegates of the chamber on both missions.

Daniel B. Murphy will start this morning for New York to join the party. Chas. P. Ford left last night for Washington. He will go to New York and then back to the capital. John A. C. Wright, another delegate to the reciprocity conference, is now in Washington. The delegation left with a list of prominent men, and strong pressure will be used to procure the gentlemen they are after for the dinner.

Thomas B. Dunn, nominee for second vice-president of the chamber for 1892, attended the dinner given last Saturday night to Hon. Joseph H. Choate by the Lotus Club, and brought back, yesterday, in addition to pleasant memories, several handsome souvenirs of the occasion. These he showed to Secretary Ives, with a view of possibly suggesting something for the annual dinner here.

The dinner card was an extremely handsome piece of work. It was in the form of a legal document and alongside the list of viands and wines was an excellent picture of Ambassador Choate, who is just now home from England. About 300 guests were present and on the border of the card are written the names of some of the most prominent men of the legal profession in the country. The cards were handed about at the dinner and the names subscribed with pen or pencil.

The manner of granting the freedom of the club to Ambassador Choate was very pretty. In a little gilded casket was a parchment tied with ribbon, at the end of which was a tiny seal of the club. On the parchment was this inscription:

"I confer hereby upon the honorable Joseph H. Choate, at this dinner given in his honor, the freedom of the club."

This was headed by the date and the club title. The idea was taken from a dinner given the lord mayor of London. There was a double bottom to the little casket and the ice cream was in the lower part.

Chairman Charles Goetzmann, of the Chamber of Commerce dinner committee, has not called his associates together. He is awaiting the return of the committee on speakers sent to New York and Washington.

CHORAL SOCIETY CONCERT.

Pleasing Entertainment Given at Rooms of Chamber of Commerce.

An enjoyable concert was given last evening at the Chamber of Commerce rooms by the Rochester Choral Society which was largely attended. Ludwig Schenck acted as conductor. The first number on the programme was "America," in which the audience joined in.

The violin solo of Mr. Schenck, "Reverie," was enjoyed by all present. A baritone solo, "Thou Art my Queen," was rendered by Edward Adreansen. The charming soprano voice possessed by Miss Belle Stone was heard to an advantage in "Oft Have I Seen."

Nov. 19/01 Union.

Post Expires Nov. 20. 1901

Annual Meeting Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce will be held in the rooms of the association, on Monday, December 2, 1901, at 8 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing trustees and officers of the said corporation for the year 1902.

(Signed) A. B. Lamberton,
President.

SCHEME FOR MARKET IN THE SUBURBS PRACTICALLY DEAD

Public Market Commissioners Seems To Have Been Awakened by Popular Sentiment and the River Site Is Being Seriously Considered.

Times Nov. 19 01

The absence from the city of Chairman C. H. Babcock made it impossible for the Public Market Commission to hold the meeting scheduled for 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Commissioners Lamberton, Deininger and Lane discussed the various sites, but came to no conclusion. The prevailing sentiment seemed to favor a central location. Some opposition was manifested to the river site, but none except the few living near Hartford Street advocated that site.

The claim that the market should be situated near a railroad was exploded by the Commissioners in their discussion, a majority of them insisting that a railroad switch is not necessary. Nine-tenths of all the produce used by Rochesterians is grown in the immediate vicinity and none is brought to the city by wagons. It would be impossible for farmers in Irondequoit, Brighton and other surrounding towns to get their vegetables into the city in the morning on the cars, so the railroad facilities argument is worthless.

A map of the river site at Mortimer Street was spread out upon a table and the Commissioners spent considerable time looking it over. It seemed to meet with quite general approval. The talk, quite prevalent in the Commission a few days ago, favoring a suburban market, was almost entirely lacking yesterday, while the advocates of a wholesale market for the benefit of one class of citizens only were conspicuous by their absence.

The claim that the market should be situated near a railroad was exploded by the Commissioners in their discussion, a majority of them insisting that a railroad switch is not necessary. Nine-tenths of all the produce used by Rochesterians is grown in the immediate vicinity and none is brought to the city by wagons. It would be impossible for farmers in Irondequoit, Brighton and other surrounding towns

President Lamberton of the Chamber of Commerce stated that that organization had not officially placed its stamp of approval on any site, but it is known that a majority of the Public Market Committee of the body is in favor of the river site.

Another meeting will be held on Dec. 2, when data anent public markets in Cleveland, Minneapolis and Buffalo will be at hand.

FOR RECIPROCITY.

U. & A., Nov. 19/01

National Convention Called to Order in Washington To-Day—The Officers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The national reciprocity convention began its session in the banquet hall of the Raleigh at 11 o'clock this morning.

It was called by the National Society of Manufacturers and the representatives of commercial organizations throughout the country. They will be in session three days. There are 100 delegates present.

J. A. Jeffrey of Columbus, O., called the convention to order. D. A. Tompkins of Charlotte, N. C., was chosen temporary president and E. P. Wilson of Cincinnati temporary secretary.

Mr. Tompkins spoke of the rapid commercial growth of the United States and the necessity for wider markets. The object of the convention, he said, was not to open old questions. It was to take up the new proposition of reciprocity. In the older countries commercial bodies had the ear of the government. It would be wise if they were given due consideration in this country.

Theodore C. Search of Philadelphia was elected permanent president of the convention.

THE RECIPROCITY CONVENTION

Entertaining Paper Read To-Day by James F. Taylor.

U. & A. Nov. 20/01

Special Dispatch to Union and Advertiser.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—About 725 delegates were present at the national reciprocity congress this morning. They listened for an hour to the most entertaining paper of the convention—an argument for free hides, by James F. Taylor of the American Oak Leather Company of Cincinnati.

Mr. Taylor embellished his arguments with anecdotes and apt quotations that rendered them of unusual interest. He contended that the duty on hides had no value as protection, and served only to add to the wealth of th emillionaire beef packers. He ridiculed the proposition to "let well enough alone," being made by some statesmen, and he spoke dolefully of the congressional policy of "nothing doing."

"The House blames the Senate," he said, "the Senate doubts the wisdom of the House, and the people hesitate to accept relief from either. They feel that they will be damned if Congress does and doubly damned if Congress doesn't."

The seventeenth century, Taylor said, brought religious liberty, and the eighteenth national liberty. In the nineteenth century liberty was exalted by the freeing of the slaves. The present was a commercial age, he continued, and he expressed the hope that it might be marked by the liberty of trade. In the meantime, he hoped that such tariff as might be necessary for the protection of the United States industries might be elastic, so that it could best be adjusted to trade conditions.

George A. Loughlin, of Wheeling, W. Va., interested in the manufacture of steel billets, arraigned the United States Steel Company yesterday afternoon. He said that before its organization his company had been able to buy its materials at a figure that enabled it to sell to all the markets of the world, but since the organization of the United States Company this trade has been seriously interfered with, and the present outlook was that his company's trade with South American would be extinguished shortly.

The night session, devoted to the subject of reciprocity with the Spanish-American countries, developed the fact that the delegates were having a difficult time in avoiding making straight out high tariff speeches, while striving to confine themselves to the discussion of reciprocal relations.

The discussion centered mainly around the matter of the importation of hides from Argentina. Messrs. F. B. Thurber of New York, Secretary Hoffman of the Kansas City Millers' Association, Col. J. F. Supplee of Baltimore, Charles A. Schieren of New York, W. B. Rice of Boston, H. T. Atkins of Cincinnati and Charles Carlisle of South Bend, Ind., in turn had the floor.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.,

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1901.

Times

OPPOSITION TO SUBURBAN MARKET GROWS

Originators of Plan to Build an East Side Market for Exclusive Use of Grocers at City's Expense Are Already Taking to Cover.

The public market will not be built in the suburbs unless the will of the people is ruthlessly disregarded. Since The Times first exposed the selfish interests back of the movement to take the market out of reach of all but a few residents of the city, it has been learned that at least two-thirds of the members of the Public Market Commission are enthusiastically in favor of the river site and that several others, although of the same opinion, are for business reasons keeping quiet.

The petition which is kept in The Times office for the convenience of signers has already received the signatures of over 2,000 citizens and the petitions being circulated by friends of the river site uptown are filled with ease. The only difficulty so far experienced is in supplying the demand for petitions. Many telephone messages for copies of the petition are received daily at The Times office and they are being complied with as rapidly as possible.

Commission Willing to Act.

At the meeting of the Public Market Commission Monday the commissioners almost entirely drowned the suburban market scheme, even the three or four members who are interested in the Hartford Street site devoting their remarks to the river site. The commission realizes that the people want a centrally located retail market and when the people make known their wants in proper form they will always find their servants—the Aldermen and Public Market Commissioners—ready to attend to them.

The real "nigger in the woodpile" has been discovered by the citizens and they will. The Times believes, take steps to thwart the nonsensical attempt to build the market either on Hartford Street or in East Rochester. The men who favor the Hartford Street site also favor a wholesale market—a market where grocers may buy produce but from which the private citizen is barred.

ARE THE TAXPAYERS OF ROCHESTER WILLING TO APPROPRIATE $150,000 FOR A WHOLESALE MARKET FOR THE EXCLUSIVE BENEFIT OF THE GROCERS? OR WOULD THEY PREFER TO SPEND $400,000 FOR A RETAIL MARKET AND BRIDGE ACROSS THE RIVER AT MORTIMER STREET, WHICH WOULD BE OF INESTIMABLE BENEFIT TO ALL THE PEOPLE OF ROCHESTER?

A WHOLESALE MARKET WOULD FAIL WITHIN SIX MONTHS. THE PEOPLE OF ROCHESTER WOULD MAKE A RETAIL MARKET A FINANCIAL SUCCESS.

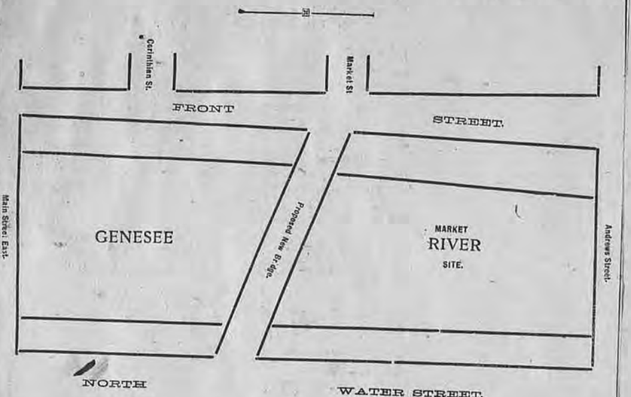
The Times' Plan.

The Times has a plan for a market on the river site which it believes will meet with the approval of a majority of the citizens of Rochester. A bridge at Mortimer Street is an absolute necessity. It will have to be built sooner or later. By building the bridge diagonally from the foot of Mortimer to Market Street the bridge would terminate at the city property on the east side of Front Street opposite Market Street. This property has been condemned and would not cost a penny if the city should decide to bring the bridge across the river at that point.

The Times will tomorrow publish a map illustrating its bridge and market scheme.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

THE TIMES' PLAN FOR A CENTRAL RETAIL MARKET



The Times today presents to the citizens of Rochester a plan for a centrally located public market, which has the unqualified approval of a majority of the members of the Public Market Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and of the Public Market Commission.

The almost unanimous response made by the people to the movement for a market on the river site has put a quietus on the attempt of a few interested parties to unload undesirable property in remote sections of the town on the city.

It is quite generally conceded by the Public Market Commissioners, Chamber of Commerce officials and members of the municipal government that the market will be built in the center of the city, probably on the river site, if it is built at all; and there is now no doubt but that it will be built.

Expense Bugaboo Exploded.

The empty argument that the market should be built in East Rochester or on Hartford Street, to save money, is no longer advanced by the advocates of a suburban market for the exclusive use of grocers; in fact, those gentlemen who, a month ago occupied the center of the stage, now have very little to say.

The river site seems to have been fixed upon by most of the city officials and certainly by nine-tenths of the taxpayers of the town. It is contended that in a matter affecting the whole city true economy should be practiced.

TO SPEND $150,000 OR $200,000 FOR A SUBURBAN MARKET, WHICH WOULD NOT ENJOY THE PATRONAGE OF ALL THE PEOPLE AND WHICH WOULD END IN DISMAL FAILURE, APPARENTLY STRIKES THE TAXPAYERS AS AN EXCEEDINGLY LAME PROPOSITION.

AND AGAIN THEY CANNOT UNDERSTAND WHY THEY SHOULD BE CALLED UPON TO BUILD AND MAINTAIN A MARKET FOR THE EXCLUSIVE USE OF THE RETAIL GROCERS OF THE CITY. THEY ARGUE THAT IF THE GROCERS WANT A PRIVATE MARKET, A BARN OR A WAGON THEY SHOULD PAY FOR IT.

A Remarkable Argument.

That the city needs the market is not denied by anyone, and it seems to be the consensus of opinion that it would be better to spend $300,000 for a centrally located retail market—which would undoubtedly be a profitable investment for the city, or $400,000 for a central market and solid stone bridge across the river at Mortimer Street.

The accompanying map shows the plan proposed by The Times and which, as stated above, has been examined and approved by leading city officials and public men. It was at first proposed to put the bridge across the river from the foot of Mortimer Street, connecting the latter thoroughfare with Corinthian Street.

This scheme was abandoned, however, when it was seen that the bridge could be brought across the river and made to connect with Market Street at a great saving of money and without impairing its efficiency. The property on North Water Street at the foot of Mortimer is for sale and could be purchased by the city at very reasonable terms.

At the other end of the bridge stands the old Front Street City Building, which has been condemned as unsafe. This property could be turned over for market and bridge purposes without one penny's expense to the city. By bringing the terminus of the bridge to the site now occupied by the city building the citizens would be given a through highway from Clinton Avenue North to State Street, greatly relieving the congestion of Main Street East.

The property adjoining the Front Street city building, which might be needed by the Market Commission, is also for sale and at very low terms.

Would Cost Only $300,000.

As to the matter of expense those interested in the enterprise stated last evening that a prominent contracting firm had figured on the job and given it as their opinion that the market could be built on the river site for $300,000. This also includes a convention hall over part of the market.

The bridge matter, it is argued, cannot fairly be included in the estimate. The bridge is a necessity. Whether it is built this year or five years hence is for the people to decide. It will have to come sooner or later, but no more opportune time for its construction will ever present itself than the present.

A bridge like the Court Street structure could be put across the river at Mortimer Street for about $75,000, bringing the total cost of the market and bridge up to $375,000.

Reports received this morning from the men who are circulating the petitions for a central market show that 99 per cent of the people approached are eager to sign the paper. It is the will of the people against the wishes of the few.

What The Times Proposes.

The Times' plan for the river bridge to be constructed in connection with the proposed public market over the river between Main and Andrews Streets, as briefly outlined yesterday, has met with the enthusiastic approval of civil engineers, city officials and the thousands of taxpayers and citizens who have signed the river project petition.

A succinct statement of The Times' plan may be made as follows: The original proposition for the river site market includes the construction of a bridge, crossing the market from Mortimer Street to Front Street. Such a plan would necessitate the purchase or acquirement of considerable property opposite Mortimer Street on Water Street and on Front Street opposite Mortimer Street. If the bridge was then built straight across the river it would open on Front Street, a comparatively narrow thoroughfare, thus affording practically no approach to the bridge on the west side.

The Times proposes that the bridge shall be built diagonally across the river from Mortimer Street to a point opposite the east end of Market Street. The buildings to be removed in this case are the condemned city buildings on Front Street, and if this was done much money that might be expended in the purchase of property would be saved. On the first page today we print a rough map of the proposition and invite free discussion of the question. What do YOU think of the proposition?

AFTER DINNER SPEAKERS.

Chamber of Commerce to Hear Messrs. Jerome, Barnes and Hedges.

Secretary John Ives and part of the committee appointed to secure speakers for the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner returned from their mission to New York last night. The committee succeeded in securing promises to speak at the dinner from Justice William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York city; Hon. Job Hedges, deputy attorney-general of New York state, and General Alfred Barnes, the veteran New York publisher. Secretary Ives says that one other speaker will probably be added to this list. A promise from Justice Jerome was secured with much difficulty, for that official said he had already refused invitations to more than 200 banquets and meetings since his election.

Justice Jerome's conspicuous part in the aggressive crusade against vice in New York city; his striking personality, said to be much like that of President Roosevelt, and his unusual gifts as a public speaker, will make him one of the most popular and forcible figures that ever appeared at a Chamber of Commerce dinner. General Barnes and Mr. Hedges, too, are well known as public speakers, and the committee feels that from an oratorical standpoint the dinner will be one of the best ever given by the chamber.

Owing to the time involved in securing speakers the committee could not attend the national reciprocity convention in Washington, as it had intended. Mr. Brewster and Mr. Ford, with their wives, are still in New York, as is also Daniel B. Murphy, who is attending the sessions of the conference of charities and corrections at the Park avenue hotel.

JUSTICE JEROME'S SPEECH.

Will Outline His Proposed Amendment of the Raines Law.

The New York "World" says to-day:

"Justice Jerome has accepted an opportunity to carry his crusade for the amendment of the Raines law into the 'enemy's country.' In an address at the dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of Rochester on December 17th he will discuss the subject for the first time before an up-state audience.

"A Rochester committee came here on Wednesday to invite him to speak. He accepted when it was pointed out that he could thus appeal to the public sentiment of the central and western portions of the state in the behalf of more liberal excise laws for New York city.

"Justice Jerome declined last night to forecast his Rochester speech. It is expected that he will make an exact statement of the amendments he favors."

JEROME ON RAINES LAW.

He Will Tell Countrymen on Dec. 17 that a Change Is Needed.

Justice Jerome has accepted an opportunity to carry his crusade for the amendment of the Raines law into the "enemy's country." In an address at the dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of Rochester on Dec. 17 he will discuss the subject for the first time before an up-state audience.

A Rochester committee came here on Wednesday to invite him to speak. He accepted when it was pointed out that he could thus appeal to the public sentiment of the central and western portions of the State in the behalf of more liberal excise laws for New York City.

Justice Jerome declined last night to forecast his Rochester speech. It is expected that he will make an exact statement of the amendments he favors.

JEROME TO SPEAK AT THE CHAMBER'S DINNER

New York's Next District Attorney Accepts Invitation to Address Rochesterians.

The dinner committee of the Chamber of Commerce has secured as speakers for the annual banquet, Hon. William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York city; General Alfred Barnes, of New York, the veteran publisher, and Hon. Job Hedges, of New York, deputy attorney-general of the state.

The committee started for New York Monday night. On its list of possible speakers were the names of several New York men and Minister Wu, of the Chinese legation at Washington. In view of the fact that three speakers have been secured, it is not likely that Minister Wu has accepted. It is probable that the list is now filled.

Judge Jerome has been before the public so prominently of late that everyone knows who and what he is. It was he who as a special pleas justice of New York led the aggressive crusade against the gambling joints of that city. He is a young man of energy, believes in reform and is not afraid to act on his convictions. He is a forceful speaker. His personal appearance is said to be much like that of President Roosevelt. Judge Jerome led one of the most aggressive municipal campaigns of the state this fall in his fight against Tammany. He will take office January 1st.

General Barnes is one of the best known publishers of the country. Hon. Job Hedges is a well-known Republican and brilliant speaker.

The exact date of the dinner has not been announced, but it is known that the event will take place on or about December 17th. Mirror hall, Powers building, will be the place and the usual high order of these dinners will be preserved. Said a Rochesterian the other day:

"An acquaintance of mine, who goes about the country a good deal, and attends many big dinners, including the best by business men in New York, told me not long ago that the dinners given by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce are second to none. He said that we always had excellent speakers, a good menu and handsome and congenial surroundings."

The committee sent to New York expected to go on to Washington and attend the reciprocity convention. The conference closed yesterday and it is probable that the committee will return home without going to the capital.

JUDGE JEROME'S SPEECH.

Address at Chamber of Commerce Dinner Will Attract Wide Interest.

Secretary John Ives and part of the committee appointed to secure speakers for the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner have returned from their mission to New York. As has been announced, the committee succeeded in securing promises to speak at the dinner from Justice William Travers Jerome, District Attorney-elect of New York City; Hon. Job Hedges, Deputy Attorney General of New York State, and General Alfred Barnes, the veteran New York publisher. One other speaker will probably be added to this list.

The New York World said on the subject yesterday: "Justice Jerome has accepted an opportunity to carry his crusade for the amendment of the Raines law into the 'enemy's country.' In an address at the dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of Rochester on December 17 he will discuss the subject for the first time before an up-state audience.

"A Rochester committee came here on Wednesday to invite him to speak. He accepted when it was pointed out that he could thus appeal to the public sentiment of the central and western portions of the state in the behalf of more liberal excise laws for New York City.

"Justice Jerome declined last night to forecast his Rochester speech. It is expected that he will make an exact statement of the amendments he favors."

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT.

Crayon Work and Vocal Illusions on Chamber of Commerce Programme.

Through the courtesy of H. H. Rich of the Central Lyceum Bureau, the entertainment committee of the Chamber of Commerce is able to announce for Monday evening at 8 o'clock the appearance of H. H. Mohr of Boston, rapid crayon and vocal illusion artist, in a unique and up-to-date entertainment, to which the members of the chamber and their families are invited.

The secretary of the Boston Art Club says of him: "Mr. Mohr can distance us all with his crayons." The New York Herald says of him: "Mohr's automatic singing is most wonderful and his crayon work exceptionally clever." Mr. Mohr has entertained at the drawing rooms of Mrs. Drexel, Mrs. Sloane, Mrs. Flagler, Mrs. Rockefeller, Mrs. Sears and others and presents a high-toned, humorous, progressive entertainment.

ONE OF OUR PROSPECTIVE VISITORS.

Justice Jerome, the district attorney-elect for New York, is coming to Rochester to speak at the Chamber of Commerce dinner. He may be assured in advance of a most cordial welcome. The people of Rochester have been deeply interested in the gallant fight he has made in the metropolis in behalf of good government, and rejoiced sincerely over his victory.

It is announced that Mr. Jerome will make a formal statement in his Rochester speech of his views, desires and purposes concerning the Raines law and the opening of the saloons in the metropolis on Sunday. The expectation of such a declaration would of itself not only assure a crowd at the banquet, but command the attention of the state at large and especially of New York city.

Rochester believes in the Sunday closing of saloons. There would be no question of a big majority in its favor if the question should ever be submitted to a popular vote here. Naturally, therefore, so far as that question and the maintenance of the essential features of the Raines law are concerned, Mr. Jerome will invade what Mr. Bryan would call "the enemy's country" in coming here on that mission. But he need not expect to be treated as an enemy, but rather as an honored guest who has a message to deliver and reasons for its acceptance to be urged.

MONDAY AFTERNOO

MORE LIBERAL LIQUOR LAWS

Dr. Stebbins Indorses Justice Jerome's Legislative Position.

GLAD HE IS COMING TO ENLIGHTEN ROCHESTER PUBLIC.

Well Understood That New York's Next District Attorney Will Strike Keynote of His Policy Here at the Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

The committee on the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce, Charles Goetzman, chairman, will hold a meeting at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon to perfect the details of that event. The date has been definitely decided upon. It will be December 17th.

At the Otis dinner there were so many guests that the dining-hall was uncomfortably crowded. This year fewer invitations to the dinner will be sent out, probably not more than 400. These, it is said, will include invitations to the presidents of the Chambers of Commerce and to the mayors of such nearby cities as Buffalo, Syracuse, Troy and Albany.

Western New York legislators, it is said, will also be invited with the special object in view of making them personally acquainted with Justice Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York city. So well understood is it that Justice Jerome's address at the dinner will strike the key-note of his future political policy that all of the leading papers of the metropolis will send representatives on that occasion.

Rev. Dr. H. H. Stebbins, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, in the course of his address before the Sunday school of the First M. E. church yesterday, said that one of the principal qualities most needed at the present time in the promotion of temperance reform is sanity. He declared that people need more intelligence concerning the facts about the liquor problem, not simply in Rochester but throughout the state, and

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

...Rochester and New York City are both alike in the...
...Democratic and Republican citizenship...
...Rochester is distinctly American. A liquor law that would be unfit and advisable for Gotham would be absolutely impossible for the Flower City. The Times heartily indorses Justice Jerome's plan for Sunday opening for New York and has spoken in favor of it. It is not so sure of the wisdom of applying such a law in Rochester. This is a public question that demands more than ordinary consideration. At present The Times is opposed to Sunday opening in Rochester, but we are open to conviction. Let us hope that the subject will be freely and fully discussed.

The Times Nov 26/1901

...similarly in other cities may throw more light upon the question and help to form a judgment of what measures should be adopted in individual localities or in the state at large. On this account, he said, he was glad that Justice Jerome was going to make a plea before the people of Rochester for more liberal legislation in the matter of the traffic in liquor, and that the public would be given opportunity to gain more rational knowledge of the problems which confront the state than it now possesses.

Since the most prominent feature of Justice Jerome's efforts a more liberal liquor legislation appears to be in favor of opening the saloons of New York city for a specified time on Sundays, Dr. Stebbins was asked if his general indorsement of Justice Jerome's efforts carried with it an approval of the Sunday opening feature.

"I would rather not say anything concerning that matter," replied Dr. Stebbins, "but would prefer to confine myself simply to what I have said."

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT.

Unique and Pleasing Programme Presented to Chamber of Commerce.

The entertainment given last night by R. H. Mohr, of Boston, before the Rochester Chamber of Commerce and guests, was of exceptional merit. Mr. Mohr, a "rapid crayon and vocal illusion artist," as he calls himself, gives a clever parlor entertainment, and his audience last night was delighted. Mr. Mohr is an ex-newspaper man.

Both the crayon work and the vocal illusions were remarkable and called forth the applause of his audience. By the use of common crayons he accomplished surprising results, drawing from any letter or figure that might be suggested to him. His picture of a sunset at sea drawn upside down was a clever piece of work. He was fully as proficient in his ventriloquism and there was none of the tiresome tricks that often attend such an entertainment. His automatic singing was remarked to be the best ever heard here.

This was the second of the course of entertainments to be given by the Chamber of Commerce during the winter. Attendance is limited to the members and their families.

Democrat & Chron. Nov 26/01

TOASTMASTER GEORGE RAINES.

Selected to Preside at the Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

The Chamber of Commerce dinner committee was called together yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock by Chairman Charles Goetzmann, who, after adjournment, said that the only business transacted was the decision to employ Teall as caterer for the annual dinner, which is to be held on the night of December 17th. Mirror hall has not yet been secured and Mr. Goetzmann said that the dinner might be held elsewhere. The price asked for the hall is not satisfactory to the committee.

Hon. George Raines has been chosen to act as toastmaster of the dinner. It is understood that District Attorney-elect Jerome is to outline his views on the excise law in his address and great interest is felt because of this. Secretary Ives says the New York newspapers are to send representatives and the address will be reported in full and placed on the wires.

Dem & Chron Nov 26/01

Paraguay Bank of Exchange.

Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, who is also vice-consul to Paraguay, has received notice from Consul-General A. A. Rutes from Paraguay that an American bank of exchange has been established in Paraguay by the United States Trust Company, of Philadelphia, of which concern Consul-General Rutes is president. Heretofore it has been necessary for Americans to do all their business of this nature through some foreign bank.

Dem & Chron Nov 26 1901

Rochester Chamber of Commerce

Through the courtesy of Mr. H. H. RICH, of the CENTRAL LYCEUM BUREAU of this city, the Entertainment Committee of the Chamber is able to announce for

Monday Evening, November 25, 1901,
at eight o'clock

THE APPEARANCE OF

MR. R. H. MOHR,

OF BOSTON,

RAPID CRAYON AND VOCAL ILLUSION ARTIST,

in one of his unique and up-to-date entertainments, to which the members of the Chamber and their families are invited to attend free of expense.

The Secretary of the Boston Art Club says of him, "Mr. Mohr can distance us all with his crayons."

The New York Herald says of him, "Mohr's automatic singing is most wonderful and his crayon work exceptionally clever."

Mr. Mohr has entertained at the drawing rooms of Mrs. Drexel, Mrs. Sloane, Mrs. Flagler, Mrs. Rockefeller, Mrs. Sears, and others, and presents a high-toned, albeit a humorous, programme, which cannot fail to please all who attend.

JOHN M. IVES,
Secretary.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.,
November 21, 1901.

ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Chamber for the Election of Officers for 1902, and for the election of eighteen Trustees for three years, and three Trustees for one year, to fill vacancies, will take place

MONDAY, DECEMBER SECOND,
Eight P. M.

EX-PRESIDENT CHARLES P. FORD will deliver a short address on the Reciprocity Convention, recently held in Washington, to which he was a delegate.

The outgoing and incoming Presidents will make remarks.

The Secretary's Report for the year 1901 will be presented.

Luncheon will be served by Teall.

John M. Ives
Secretary.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 30, 1901.

WHAT WE MAY BE THANKFUL FOR

A Symposium of Thanksgiving Thought From Prominent Men and Women of the Flower City.

Mrs. Helen B. Montgomery, Member of the Board of Education.

Your request for a brief list of specifications in answer to the query, "What Should Rochester be Thankful for?" tempts me to answer by quoting Robert Louis Stevenson's jubilant and all-inclusive couplet:

This world is so full of a number of things
That I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings.

This seems to cover the whole subject in a most suggestive and stimulating way, and leaves nothing more to be said.

If one must have particulars, those that seem to me most worthy of mention are the common blessings of the common day. Our little rills of personal blessings are bright and beautiful, but the great river of gladness is made up of gifts in which all share. The deep sources of joy belong to all—love, work, sacrifice, hope, faith. The differences that seem so great are after all superficial, and probably indistinguishable from a little distance. The flowers of joy blossom quite as freely in a cracked earthen pot as in the most elaborate of jardinieres, and no little personal good fortune can lift one an inch above the generous soil in which all true joys are growing.

Rochester—all Rochester—should be glad 365 days days in the year for our beautiful Genesee River with its untried and undeveloped powers of blessing and prosperity, glad for the beginnings of development of this our common blessing. Add to the river the gladness of the parks with their bloom of shrub and glory of autumn foliage, their play spaces for the children and coverts for the birds.

We ought to be grateful for room to have each our own bit of yard about even the humblest dwellings; glad for pure water and municipal good health; grateful for pilgrimages and lenten lectures and revival meetings that show that churches of every name are active and earnest; glad for the great movement for industrial and manual training led and inspired by the Mechanics Institute; glad that the way to a higher education is open to all Rochester girls in our own University; glad that the merchants of the city gave their employes a Saturday half-holiday last summer; glad and thankful that the street car service is improving; that people are growing more exacting in regard to clean streets; that we are to have a new High School; that there is more pride and interest in the city on the part of the citizens than ever before.

Time would fail me to speak of our wonderful market gardens that bring the best fruits and vegetables in the world within the reach of the poorest; of our flowers and shrubs and more than ordinary allowance of sunshine in October and November; of hospitals and fire department and election—but there I should drift off into subjects on which ideas of thankfulness would be hopelessly at variance—any anyway that is another story.

Dr. Rush Rhees, President of the University of Rochester.

With the return of this season of public thanksgiving for God's benefits to us as a people, it is inevitable that the tragedy of September should introduce a minor strain into all our song. That tragedy itself, however, has not been without its blessing to us, and it is peculiarly fitting that we should feel gratitude and express thanksgiving for the stirring of the deeper currents of our national life which followed the striking down of our President. It is well that, as we record our joy for continued prosperity and abounding harvests, we should have clearly in mind the truth that a nation's life, as well as an individual's, "consisteth not in the abundance of the things that it possesseth." Those finer, unmarketable treasures of uprightness, brotherhood and reverence for law and national honor, which have had fresh emphasis in these recent weeks, count largely among the causes for our grateful recognition of Him who through all the generations and in all the nations works for righteousness.

Another cause for gratitude akin to this already named is the growing spirit of generous co-operation among all the institutions in our social life which minister to civil righteousness. The Federation of Churches, which recently met in conference at Rochester, is but a sign of the way the current is setting. The passing of narrowness of understanding, and the coming of generous appreciation of the work and aims of men who phrase their creeds in other words than we should choose, is a cause for hearty thanksgiving to Almighty God.

Another cause for thanksgiving here in Rochester may be found in the greatly quickened interest in our schools begotten by the recent municipal campaign. In this the party of defeat may join equally with the party of success, for no ill can befall our schools equal in its results to lethargy and indifference. Out of honest differences of opinion most assuredly comes a truer adjustment to our actual needs than would otherwise be possible. Nothing so intimately concerns the future of the nation as the education of its children. No cause for gratitude, therefore, finds more fitting place on a day of national thanksgiving than this gladness in an aroused public interest in public education, and in a clear public demand that that education shall be the best that can be devised, and shall be determined solely with regard to the good of the children whom it is our duty to fit for citizenship.

Rev. W. C. Gannett, pastor of the First Unitarian Church.

Your question is, "What should Rochester be thankful for?" To my mind:

First—For its weather.

Second—For its low death rate.

Third—For its green-tree streets, and its back-yard hollyhocked gardens, its bits of old orchards, its parks, its river gorge in the heart of the city, and its Irondequoit suburb.

Fourth—For its multitude of individual homes—that it is a city of cottages.

Fifth—For the fact that it is still an over-grown village with a flavor of its own, and a 3-o'clock-in-the-afternoon air about it and a jog trot way—and with all this, most of the conveniences of big-city civilization.

Sixth—For its present School Board and what it has done in the last two years and what it is going to do.

Seventh—For its new High School.

Eighth—For its Mechanics Institute, and for Captain Lomb.

Ninth—For Mr. Eastman's gift and the example to others that lies therein.

Tenth—For its university opened to girls.

Eleventh—For the cradling here of the woman's rights movement, and the signs in our midst that it is going to turn into a woman's duties movement, and for Susan B. Anthony.

Twelfth—For the new civic spirit which is rising among our citizens, and the signs that the independent voter, who votes and is not voted, is multiplying.

Rev. Dr. W. R. Taylor, pastor Brick Presbyterian Church.

What should Rochester be thankful for? For every good thing she has, and for every evil thing which she has been spared; for our share in the great inheritance from the past, in the prosperity of the present, and in the promise of the future; for our favorable situation, our busy industries, our happy homes, our excellent churches, our free schools, our charities and philanthropies; our peace-loving and law-abiding people; the advantages which make our city one of the most healthful in the world; our grass and trees, breaking up the continuity of stone streets and walls, and our parks that preserve bits of God's country in man's city; and last, but not least, our part and lot in the great American Commonwealth, the grandest Republic mankind has ever seen, the United States of America.

Thankfulness always implies a personal object. We cannot be thankful to a principle, or an impersonal force, or to a thing. We cannot be thankful to nothing any more than we can be thankful for nothing. Our National Thanksgiving is the nation's recognition of a personal God, the God of Nature and of Providence, the righteous and loving Father of men. Let us praise HIM, and [illegible] with our lips but with our lives.

Rev. Frank F. Fry, Pastor of the Church of the Reformation.

To the reflective mind there are countless reasons which should prompt the citizens of Rochester to celebrate Thanksgiving Day of 1901 with a peculiar sense of gratitude. The old Saxon word "thanc" meant "think;" primarily, therefore, to be thankful is to be thinkful. When communities are thoughtful they are thankful. Cities as well as individuals have their thanksgiving periods. Memphis and Thebes offered to Isis; Athens and Eleusis had their Thesmorphia festivals; Rome celebrated the Saturnalia; Jerusalem annually kept the Feast of Tabernacles, and this prosperous and progressive city of Western New York, along with other American municipalities, has abundant reason to observe Thanksgiving Day.

Few years in its history have afforded such cause for gratitude as this initial year of the new century of progress and achievement. The sturdy, vigorous health of its people, the low rate of mortality, increasing business activity and commercial prosperity; the unimpaired integrity of its public credit; the steady and growing volume of trade, which furnishes daily employment to thousands of its people; its busy, thriving factories and industrial establishments of every description; the solid, uninflated growth of its population: all these call for serious thought and devout civic gratitude.

The passing year has many dark spots, and yet how bright it is! All about us are the bountiful evidences of Divine goodness. In home and society, in school and church, in the city and the nation, the manifestations of Providential favor and blessing have been wonderful; more than the stars of the firmament or the sands of the seashore. Every moment of 1901 has been laden with special gifts.

Bring before your mind today the delights of home with its family reunions and sweet associations. Think of the superior educational advantages we enjoy, our public schools with their elevating culture and advanced methods of learning, our academies, colleges, seminaries and university, which justly awaken our civic pride. Count up the volumes in its libraries which scatter broadcast the dissemination of knowledge and shatter every excuse for ignorance in this enlightened city. Recall its social fellowship and joys of friendship, staple as mountins and radiant as stars.

Observe in every section of Rochester the church spires pointing skyward, the temples of religion standing as very bulwarks of our faith and freedom. Let us be thankful for growth in character, in civilization, in citizenship, in Christianity. We, as well as the cities across the sea, need to utter the passionate refrain of Kipling's "Recessional:

"Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget."

F. L. Starrett, General Secretary, Y. M. C. A,

First—Rochester should be thankful for its geographical position, situated as it is in the midst of one of the finest fruit and vegetable countries in the world, thus insuring a cheap and good living for all time, preserving us from food famine and want.

Second—Rochester should be thankful for its many and varied manufactories that furnish work for vast numbers of its people, thus keeping its money in circulation. Many cities are dependent upon one industry for their livelihood. Rochester could lose one or more such industries without being seriously crippled. This keeps Rochester from business famine.

Third—Rochester should be thankful that its people rise up in their might against moral wrong and civic corruption whenever found, thus preserving us from moral famine.

Fourth—Rochester should be thankful that so many of our workingmen own their homes. Truly the home is the "bulwark of defense."

Fifth—Rochester should be thankful to Almighty God for its many churches, its strong pastors, its large church attendance and the observance of the American Sabbath.

Sixth—Rochester should be thankful for its carefully guarded and excellent school system, its colleges, its educational institutes so splendidly equipped, for its excellent newspapers and for every institution that seeks to uplift the moral and educational interest of its people.

Seventh—Rochester should be thankful for its sterling business men, whose splendid careers are known the country over.

Rev. Isaac P. Coddington, pastor First Universalist Church.

"What has Rochester to be thankful for?" Well, a good many things. You need not think this is "taffy," for I do honestly think that Rochester has good reason to be truly thankful for the large intelligence, clean public spirit and, for the most part, high moral tone of its newspapers, in which the baneful yellow streak is at least not made prominent, if indeed, it appears at all. For what should we be more thankful than for a clean press whose influence for good are felt in the community to [illegible]

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Again we have a mighty good reason for [illegible] fact that Rochester has a citizenship that [illegible] and is wise enough to keep it and to push it [illegible] progress in the same direction. I refer to the re-election of those superbly brave, wise and efficient members of the School Board whose terms had expired. Thank God and the sane, sound good sense of Rochester's splendid men and women who by influence and vote have averted from our schools the calamity that seemed to threaten. While we are about it let us be thankful that the "smoke" and "soot" nuisance is becoming so abominable that some way of abating it will have to be found.

Then again, we have to be thankful for the evidently enlarged and enlarging spirit of fraternity, good will and co-operative sympathy and helpfulness among the churches of Rochester witnessed in the attempt—even should it prove to be only an attempt, of Church Federation in Rochester. It were better to attempt a good thing and fail than never to attempt at all. The very attempt shows that the spirit is at work and the "world do move."

We may put off the fulfillment of God's will, but we cannot forever frustrate it. Let us be thankful that the dawn of day appeareth, lighting up at least the horizon's rim, when scoffers will again be forced to express the same sublime encomium upon modern followers of the Master as was pronounced upon the early disciples, towit: "See how these Christians love each other."

Rev. Charles Elbert Hamilton, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

Rochester has reason to be thankful for a clean press, for its beautiful parks, for its multitude of happy homes, for the great number of citizens who are unselfishly devoted to its welfare, for the high morals of its business community, for the intense interest of its citizens in its system of public schools, and for the men and the woman who have without remuneration, given so much time and energy to their betterment.

Rochester has also reason for thanksgiving for its many beautiful charities and philanthropies, for its Christian Associations, for the prosperity of its churches, for its great Bible classes of men.

It has also reason to be thankful for those who are lessening its vice, enlarging its virtue, and for those who expose, continuously and fearlessly, the evils inherent in the sale and consumption of intoxicating liquor.

Hon. Adolph J. Rodenbeck, Mayor-elect of Rochester.

The people of Rochester should be thankful for every prosperity that has come to them, for every success they have achieved, for every advancement they have made, and, while not unmindful that there are many who have had to face reverses, sorrows, trouble and want during the year, who have suffered bodily and mental ills and whose lives have had more of shadow than of sunshine in them, we should remember that there are blessings other than material prosperity for which we should be thankful, and that, whatever our condition, we should be grateful for these blessings, and for every kind word and deed that has helped us to bear any misfortunes that have come to us, every act of forgiveness and self-sacrifice practiced, every noble sentiment expressed and pure thought entertained, and every effort that has tended to make the world brighter and better and its people happier and more contented, for in these things rather than in our material prosperity lie the true hope for better days and the real source for Thanksgiving.

A. B. Lamberton, President of the Chamber of Commerce.

"I think that Rochester has much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving. During the past year many new labor-employing manufacturing concerns have been, through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, added to the already large list of industries in the city. We should be thankful that the work of the Chamber was attended with such success. We should also give thanks for our superb schools and for the high moral tone of our people. The Rochester University has, since last Thanksgiving, opened its doors to women and the Chamber of Commerce has admitted to its membership professional men as well as business men. These, with the continued prosperity of our city, are favors for which we should thank our Creator on next Thursday."

Rev. Clarence A. Barbour, pastor of Lake Avenue Baptist Church.

Rochester is often spoken of as a homelike city. We are glad that it is thus known. Rochester is a city of homes. It was true a few years ago, and, if I mistake not, the fact is unchanged, that statistics show that a larger percentage of our people own the houses in which they dwell than is the case with the people of any other city of equal population. Houses owned by the occupants do not guarantee that within those houses there shall be true homes, but the fact stated above would indicate a love here for the home idea, a sense of home permanency. One of the reasons for thankfulness in Rochester at this season of the year is the home idea and the home life. This is particularly emergent just now, for the home is one focal point of the ellipse of Thanksgiving; the other focal point is God. Worship and the family gathering in the home—these are and ought to be the two central thoughts of Thanksgiving.

If in our city we are rejoicing in our homes, where are those who love us, who believe in us, where are the true love of husbands and wives, the loyal and tender ties of brothers and sisters, the voices and footsteps of little children, there is cause enough for the observance of this day. And it is a good day to open homes to the homeless, a good day to see to it that some fireside blazes a welcome to every lonely and wandering one. May it be many a year before, in Rochester, there shall be less of the home idea than now, for the home is the strength and bulwark of the best municipal, and state, and national life. I do not doubt that one reason, and a main reason, why Rochester holds so enviable a position among the cities of the land is her cherishing of the idea and the fact of home life.

IN ARCHER HALL

Place Chosen for Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

PRICE FIXED AT $5 A PLATE

Number of Guests Is To Be Limited to 400 — Western New York Legislators and Mayors of Second Class Cities Are To Be Invited — A Sumptuous Feast Is To Be Served.

Arrangements for the Chamber of Commerce annual dinner are progressing with gratifying results. All that now remains is the selection of the speakers, the perfection of minor details and the actual materialization of the banquet.

These important facts were decided at a meeting of the dinner committee, held yesterday afternoon in the chamber rooms:

Time—Tuesday, December 17, 1901.
Place—Mirror Hall, Powers block.
Caterer—Isaac Teall.
Toastmaster—Hon. George Raines.
Music—By Dossenbach's Band.
Admission—Each ticket $5.
Number of Tickets—Limited to 400.
Guests—Legislators from Western New York and Mayors of second class cities.

Chairman Goetzmann presided at the meeting of the dinner committee yesterday afternoon. Negotiations had been opened for the rental of Flishugh and Eureka Club halls, but the owners of Powers Hall made a satisfactory arrangement and that hall was unanimously selected by the committee. There are no halls in the city better adapted for banquet purposes than Mirror Hall, and there was some regret expressed at first when it was suggested that the banquet be held in some other place. The hall is finished in white, has a plethora of mirrors around the walls, is beautified by a pretty balcony extending around the side walls of the room and the appointment for the cloak, ante and smoking rooms is excellent.

After this matter had been decided the question of price of tickets was discussed. Some of the committee favored $4 and there was a slight sentiment in certain quarters that the price should be reduced to $3. Caterer Teall announced that he would serve the finest banquet he has ever decocted and would provide a service par excellence provided his commissions per cover were increased over previous years. As the committee intends to make this dinner the peer of any ever given, it was agreed to grant the increase to the caterer. In view of this reason it was decided to fix the price of tickets at $5.

There was some difference on the number of guests to be invited, but the committee agreed on 400. This will not crowd the tables nor test the capacity of service of the caterer. It will also leave space in the hall for a better arrangement of the tables.

Music will be furnished by Dossenbach's Orchestra. The repertoire of selections has not been submitted to the committee, but it has been settled that classic and popular music will be about evenly discoursed. As in the past the orchestra will be hidden behind a bank of ferns and palms in the east end of the hall.

Practically all of the work devolving upon the committee has been completed and sub committees have been appointed to attend to the detail. A list of these committees was given out by Chairman Goetzmann last night. He is a member ex-officio of all of them. The list is as follows:

Menu Cards and Printing.—Wendell J. Curtis, Harry S. Woodworth.
Cigars and Wines.—Albert E. Vogt, William C. Likly.
Check Room.—Harry S. Woodworth, Charles T. Chapin.
Police.—Simon N. Stein, Wendell J. Curtis.
Music.—William C. Likly, Albert E. Vogt.
Hall and Decorations — Charles T. Chapin, Simon N. Stein.

THE COURIER is indebted to Mr. John M. Ives, Secretary of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, for an elegantly gotten-up publication just issued by the Chamber of Commerce, setting forth the wonderful business industries of the city of Rochester. The publication is exceedingly interesting and instructive, and Secretary Ives will accept our thanks for his courtesy.

[illegible] FOR ROCHESTER.

Large Milling Company Looking for [illegible] New Location.

It needs but a glance inside the covers of the big reference book kept by Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, to see that the eyes of manufacturers and other business concerns contemplating removal, have their eyes on Rochester. A little effort put forth would result in this city's acquiring several new business concerns of this sort every few months. Rochester, because of its water facilities affording cheap power, its railroad facilities, plenty laborers and other advantages, as well as the absence of disadvantages, at once attracts such business houses as contemplate removal from their present locations.

The latest letter to be received by Secretary Ives is from the Taco Milling Company, at present doing business at New Brunswick, N. J. The letter states that the plant has been in operation about one year and that present indications are that it will have to be greatly enlarged because of the increase of business. "It is destined to be one of the largest cereal manufacturers in the country," to quote the letter, and while contemplating enlargement, the firm is looking about for a suitable permanent home before increasing its present plant. The concern is open to consider a location in another city having good facilities for shipping, where labor is not too high and coal is not expensive.

The letter says that they prefer a city where there is already a building that can be acquired. The structure to be from 50 to 70 feet in width and from 150 to 200 feet long and four or five stories high and of brick construction. From 40 to 100 horse-power is needed and from fifty to one hundred hands will be employed at first.

The cost of moving the present plant will be about $6,500. New York state is preferred and Rochester is favored. Whether the concern comes here and adds its industries to those already a part of Rochester depends largely on the efforts put forth to acquire the new industry.

AFTER ANOTHER SPEAKER.

Richard Young, of New York, Wanted by the Chamber of Commerce.

Governor Voorhees, of New Jersey, cannot attend the Chamber of Commerce dinner. Previous engagements will prevent. Efforts are now being made to get Richard Young, of the firm of Richard Young & Company, leather dealers, of New York city, to accept. In his report of the reciprocity convention last night, Charles P. Ford told the Chamber of Commerce that Mr. Young made the best address of the Washington convention. A business man, thoroughly versed in his subject, he rose to address the conference with manuscript prepared, but when he warmed up, he discarded his notes. The newspapers and the trade journals gave him the credit of making the most convincing and brilliant address of the entire convention.

Mr. Ford says that Mr. Young has made a special study of the tariff question. He has traversed the world twice over and studied the relations of foreign countries to the United States. If he speaks before the Chamber of Commerce his subject will undoubtedly be reciprocity, and because of the local interest in the question it is hoped that he will accept.

Chamber of Commerce Election.

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Monday night next at 8 o'clock. At this time the election of a president and three vice-presidents will take place, as well as the choice of eighteen trustees for three years and three trustees for one year to fill vacancies. Charles P. Ford will give a short talk on the reciprocity convention held at Washington, D. C., to which he was a delegate. Retiring President Lamberton will address the chamber and Hon. Henry C. Brewster, who without doubt will be elected president, will make brief remarks on taking the chair for the year. Secretary Ives will make his yearly report. Luncheon will be served by Teall.

YOU ARE INVITED TO ATTEND THE FOURTEENTH ANNUAL DINNER OF THE ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, AT POWERS HALL, TUESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER SEVENTEEN, AT SIX-THIRTY.

THE SPEAKERS WILL BE JUSTICE WILLIAM TRAVERS JEROME, HONORABLE JOB E. HEDGES, GENERAL ALFRED C. BARNES, AND HONORABLE MARTIN W. LITTLETON.

PRICE OF DINNER WILL BE FIVE DOLLARS, WITHOUT WINE, WHICH MAY BE PURCHASED BY THOSE DESIRING IT.

THE NUMBER OF GUESTS WILL BE LIMITED TO FOUR HUNDRED.

APPLICATION FOR TICKETS SHOULD BE MADE AT ONCE, AS NONE WILL BE SOLD AFTER THURSDAY, DECEMBER TWELVE.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., DECEMBER FOUR, NINETEEN HUNDRED ONE.

DINNER COMMITTEE
ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Enclosed find my check for $ ..... payable to the ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, for ..... seats for Fourteenth Annual Dinner.

I would like to sit near .....

.....

.....

For Officers of the
ROCHESTER
CHAMBER
OF COMMERCE
for the year 1902.

For President,
HENRY C. BREWSTER.

For First Vice-President,
DANIEL B. MURPHY.

For Second Vice-President,
T. B. DUNN.

For Third Vice-President,
LOUIS N. STEIN.

ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
FOURTEENTH ANNUAL DINNER
TUESDAY DECEMBER SEVENTEEN
NINETEEN HUNDRED ONE

Mr.

TABLE .....

SEAT No. .....

For Trustees for Three Years.

George W. Aldridge,	Michael Doyle,
Charles H. Babcock,	C. C. Davy,
Herman Behn,	A. B. Lamberton,
E. Frank Brewster,	Henry Lomb,
Wm. F. Balkam,	Henry S. Mackie,
John N. Beckley,	George E. Merchant,
Harold P. Brewster,	George L. Primrose,
Milton Clark,	Irving Rouse,
Wesley Crouch,	H. H. Rich.

For Trustees for One Year.

John K. Hunt,	V. F. Whitmore,
W. H. H Rogers.

FOURTEENTH ANNUAL DINNER OF THE ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

AT POWERS HALL, ON TUESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER SEVENTEENTH, NINETEEN HUNDRED ONE, AT SIX-THIRTY O'CLOCK. RECEPTION FROM SIX TO SIX-THIRTY.

ADMIT MR.

NOT TRANSFERABLE.

A CHECK FOR YOUR SEAT WILL BE MAILED TO YOUR ADDRESS LATER.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

REVIEW OF THE YEAR'S WORK

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

ADVANCEMENT OF CITY

ROCHESTER'S PROGRESS SHOWN BY SECRETARY IVES.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Ticket Made up by the Nominating Committee Elected Without Opposition—Brief Addresses by the President-Elect and the Retiring President—Reciprocity Convention.

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held last night. The business transacted was the election of officers and trustees and the presentation of the very interesting and exhaustive annual report of Secretary Ives. Charles P. Ford read the report as delegate to the reciprocity convention held last month at Washington. The new officers made brief remarks and President Lamberton, retiring, made an informal address. Luncheon was served by Teall.

The roll call and reading of the minutes were omitted. The secretary was instructed to cast one vote for the trustees, which he did, and they were declared elected. The same procedure was followed in the election of the officers. The nominations were made some time ago by the nominating committee and were familiar to all. There was one change in the original ticket, the name of Daniel B. Murphy being substituted for that of Rufus A. Sibley, as first vice-president of the chamber. Mr. Sibley declined the honor, on account of business and health. The officers for 1902 are:

President—Hon. Henry C. Brewster.
First vice-president—Daniel B. Murphy.
Second vice-president—T. B. Dunn.
Third vice-president—Louis N. Stein.

Trustees for three years—George W. Aldridge, Charles H. Babcock, Herman Behn, E. Frank Brewster, William F. Dalkam, John S. Beckley, Harold F. Brewster, Milton Clark, Wesley Crouch, Michael Doyle, C. C. Darcy, A. B. Lamberton, Henry Lomb, Henry E. Mackie, George E. Merchant, George L. Primrose, Irving Rouse and H. H. Rich.

These were elected trustees for one year to fill vacancies caused by death and resignation: John K. Hunt, V. P. Whitmore and W. H. H. Rogers.

Mr. Ford said in his report of the reciprocity convention, that he believed the question of reciprocity has been in the minds of all business men for some time. He told of the manner in which the convention had been brought about, through the belief of certain manufacturers that there should be some modification of the tariff laws, and of the interesting of chambers of commerce, boards of trade and like organizations in the matter. He spoke especially of the existing conditions of trade with France, saying that American-made ladies' shoes were taxed about 50 cents more than those imported from other countries. This, he said, was only an instance of the discrimination against this country because of our high tariff on some things that France wishes to send here.

The report, Mr. Ford said, was his impression of the convention. He read extracts from some of the most brilliant speeches made there. Some of the addresses showed that there was objection to any modification of the present tariff laws. There was a delegation of Canadians present and these men spoke in favor of more lenient tariff laws and of the trade relations of this country with Canada. "Canada wants free trade in natural products," said the speaker, "and the Canadians said the existing conditions could not continue."

All the resolutions offered by the delegates were referred to the committee on resolutions without debate and from out of them came two sets of resolutions. The first set was unanimously adopted, with the exception of three delegates, and one of these afterward withdrew his vote and placed it with the majority. Those resolutions favored modification in the tariff in special instances. A committee was appointed to lay the resolutions before the president, the ways and means committee of the house of representatives and the finance committee of the senate. The resolutions also recommended a reciprocity commission. Mr. Ford was given a vote of thanks for his interesting report.

Secretary Ives then read his report. After a vote of thanks had been given to the secretary, President Lamberton introduced Mr. Brewster, who made brief remarks. Mr. Brewster said that it was a great pleasure for him again to accept the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce. It considered it renewed evidence of confidence and esteem. He said he should expect the support of all the members. Collectively they could accomplish many things, while some of them alone, perhaps, could accomplish little. He had had forty years' experience as a business man in Rochester, and in that time had seen the city grow to four times its former size, and he believed there was now as good opportunity for growth as forty years ago. He said that, after consulting with the secretary, he should map out a line of work, and hoped to accomplish much for the city in the next year.

Mr. Murphy thanked the chamber for the honor that had been conferred upon him and said it was only after considerable persuasion that he had accepted office. He assured all a greater efforts for the welfare of the city and said that, as a standing all that had been accomplished, there was much left undone. Mr. Dunn made a few remarks and then President Lamberton thanked the members for the co-operation they had given him, and said the year had been a very pleasant one to him. He said that no doubt Mr. Murphy had struck the right chord and that the business men of the city should support the chamber, as it was a peculiar organization, unlike any other in Rochester. It should lead, not follow, in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the city.

The report of Secretary Ives follows:

To the officers and members of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce:

I have the honor to present the fourteenth annual report, as follows:

The past year has been marked by many stirring events and some stupendous achievements in the scientific and commercial centers of our country which have had a great bearing upon the industries of Rochester. In the departments of mechanical engineering, manufacture of electrical appliances and machines there has been great activity in our local establishments than ever before. This may be accounted for by the increased demand for American inventions and machinery in foreign lands.

Your secretary has kept an eye continually upon the demands for Rochester products in foreign countries and finds that they are steadily on the increase. In fact, we are just ever on the verge of seeing manufactures for foreign markets and in the first flush of what is destined to be a foreign trade that should greatly augment the output of Rochester, thus increasing its wealth and population.

That the reputation Rochester enjoys in the foreign lands is so well established is due to the forethought of many members of the chamber of commerce, who have mailed matter published by the corporation from time to time to all parts of the world. And hereby is illustrated the wisdom of publishing such books as are issued by this chamber. They contain the very information that people living in other lands need to know about a number of buildings erected. Vast number of folders and booklets have also been published by the chamber and scattered to the four corners of the world through the correspondence of many manufacturers, merchants and professional citizens of Rochester, and this has had much to do with increasing the orders for Rochester-made goods.

There has been a surprising increase in the demand for photographic instruments and material, and could the exact amount of the output be ascertained it would astonish to cause astonishment. Rochester should be proud of the great Eastman Company and other photographic concerns here, which give employment to so many of our people and spread the name of Rochester over the entire globe. The Bausch & Lomb Optical Company is another great firm which Rochester should feel proud. It is the largest establishment of its kind in the world, and ships its products to every country, adding thereby to the fame of Rochester as a manufacturing city.

The two other industries that have been the mainstay of Rochester—in fact, they brought it to the front—are the clothing and shoe manufacturing. Rochester is famous for its high-grade shoes. During the hard times their sale fell off, but all the revival of prosperity the superior shoes of Rochester came into demand to such an extent that new firms were established and old factories built to accommodate the operatives needed to fill orders. The demand for shoes from all parts of the world are too large for the capacity of Rochester alone, but by increasing the output more factories will be necessary to meet the demands. Looking before the growing demand can be satisfactorily met. Rochester also leads in the fine clothing trade, and its productions are to be found in many parts of the globe. Never before were there so many orders on hand for Rochester clothing as are to-day booked by the various first-class clothing manufacturers of this city. Every firm is working full, and ever time, in the endeavor to meet the demands for their goods.

These very important industries—photographic appliances, optical instruments, shoes and clothing—are sufficient to establish the commanding manufacturing status of any city, but how insignificant they are in comparison to the whole of the industries that are carried on in Rochester!

The manufactures of this city as enumerated in "Rochester, The Power City," the 1900-01 publication just issued by your body has aroused the greatest astonishment in the minds of many readers, and it has been stated that no other city has such a multiplicity of industries. Indeed, to read over the list of Rochester products is one of the most interesting features of the book, and although Rochesterians have become accustomed to the list and pay little heed to it, strangers are apt to think it an exaggerated statement. But so far from its being overdrawn, there are some industries carried on here that have escaped mention.

ROCHESTER AS A TRADE MARK.

There is a tendency in all great commercial centers for certain people to become disgruntled and complain of many things they think the Chamber of Commerce ought to remedy. Rochester has a few such complainers from time to time. They claim that villages in the vicinity stand ready to buy stock in their concerns, give them buildings, and exempt them from taxation. And they actually entertain the idea of removing their industries to obscure places where they would be lost to the commercial world. Some of these grumblers are beginning to find out that the word "Rochester" on their labels has a magic effect on the markets of the world, and consider the privilege of printing that legend on their wares a fair return for they pay for it in the shape of rent and taxes.

While the word "Rochester" carries enormous weight as a guarantee, the name of some obscure village would simply act as a detriment on productions. The Chamber of Commerce as a body has always endeavored to counteract anything calculated to injure the business firms of Rochester, but it cannot control local legislation, nor provide capital to launch or support business schemes or corporations. It has always encouraged new ventures, and occasionally men have been induced to put capital into enterprises through the recommendation of the chamber.

TROLLEY EXTENSION.

Public sentiment was responsible for the reorganization and thorough re-equipment of the street railroad system of Rochester, which has extended its trolley lines to Sodus Bay, thirty-nine miles distant. The chamber has also assisted other corporations in obtaining franchises for the building of roads to Syracuse, 78 miles; Geneva, 45 miles; Horseheads, Geneseo, Mt. Morris and Dansville, 75 miles, and Niagara Falls, 123 miles. The magnificent system of long distance routes in connection with the lines running to the lake and summer resorts, and the city service will make the coming trolley service most complete.

The establishment of long-distance trolley lines will not only be of enormous commercial advantage to the cities, but the social and economic influences and conditions will be improved by increasing the happiness, comfort and contentment of thousands of people living in rural districts. An impetus will be given to commerce by bringing city people and country people in closer touch, our wholesalers and retailers, hotel keepers, theaters, institutions, societies, churches and schools will all be benefited, while dairying and agriculture will be encouraged owing to the fact that produce can be conveniently and cheaply transported to the various markets en route.

NEW BUILDINGS ERECTED.

A striking evidence of Rochester's prosperity is seen in the number of buildings erected during the past year, especially those partaking to manufactures. Among the latter may be mentioned the following structures completed and those coming and approximating better and more extensive [illegible] day to day [illegible] ...ffer, often [illegible] ...ial duties [illegible] ...ing and assistance to the [illegible] ...routine of each week, but is performed with [illegible] ...upon the patience, but by sustaining [illegible] ...alacrity and courtesy. For sustaining [illegible] ...is a stream of inquiries over the telephone [illegible] ...from all classes of our citizens regarding [illegible] ...questions pertain to the industries of our [illegible] ...city, others regarding markets, stocks, railroads, corporations, individuals at home and abroad, names, dates and [illegible] ...cost. Some of the questions are very amusing and seem to imply that the secretary's office of your chamber is a sort of encyclopedia or bureau of general information.

The entertaining of visitors from other cities frequently consumes a good deal of time. I have, however, regarded this feature of the chamber's work as very important, as certain entertainments of an expensive character for the benefit of our citizens generally and for the families and friends of members of the chamber. The project of securing good, elevating music in the public parks during the summer months was inaugurated and carried out most successfully. The first public concert in the Kimball Memorial Hahnemann Hospital, brick building, costing $15,000; Rochester Homeopathic Dispensary, an addition, costing $5,000. Total cost of hospital buildings, $20,000.

One hundred and seventy-eight thousand dollars have recently been expended in new church structures, including the elegant edifice to First Universalist Society, costing $18,000; Church of the Blessed Sacrament, brick building costing $20,000; First Methodist Episcopal Church, costing $60,000.

No less a sum than $196,500 has been appropriated for the construction of charitable, fraternal and financial buildings, as follows: German Home for the Aged, brick building on South avenue, costing $11,000; Florence Home, Mt. Hope avenue, costing $10,000; Masonic Temple Association, brick and steel building, costing $150,000; Genesee Valley Trust Company, costing $25,000. The total number of buildings erected so far in 1901 is 230, at an estimated cost of $1,768,500. Number of buildings remodeled, 161. Total number of buildings erected and remodeled 743. The cost erected and remodeled during eleven months in 1901, $2,099,101; which considering the fact that the year, as will be seen by the following table:

Total amount of building in 1898...$1,394,000
Total amount of building in 1899...1,960,...1,497,480
Total amount of building in 1900...1,680,178

HEALTHFULNESS OF ROCHESTER.

It must be very gratifying to the citizens of Rochester to know that they are living under health conditions that surpass those in any city in the United States. This is due in great measure to the watchfulness on the part of Health Officer Goler. The Chamber of Commerce has always taken a deep interest in the sanitary condition of our city. The deaths for the past ten months as reported by Dr. Goler number 1,088. Based on a population of 170,000, Rochester's annual death rate would be but 13 per thousand, a truly remarkable showing.

ROCHESTER'S WATER POWER.

A subject that has been persistently agitated and encouraged by the Chamber of Commerce is the development of Rochester's marvelous water power possibilities on a scale commensurate with the needs and progress of our city. The subject has been most obviously discussed in meetings, lectures, editorials and addresses by men and women of season. Forty thousand illustrated folders and booklets have been scattered abroad advertising Rochester as the "Power City," giving details of the advantages to manufacturers of locating their industries here. The result is that Rochester has been heralded as never before in its history as one of the most important manufacturing centers, and the results are gradually being felt by the increase in our trade and the constant inquiries regarding details by those who contemplate moving their plants from present locations.

An additional 10,000 horse power will be available for manufacturers the coming spring, and 30,000 horse power from the lower falls will be supplied later on, making 50,000 additional horse power to the city of Rochester. This certainly is most important.

I cannot be adequately announced in cold type or by word of mouth. It is an item of news that should make glad the heart of every resident of Rochester, because it means the eventual doubling of our population and the rendering in conditions of life, of comfort many thousands of our people.

PUBLIC MARKET, CONVENTION HALL, ETC.

During the year the Chamber of Commerce has endeavored to mold public opinion favorably towards several projects of the highest importance to Rochester. The one that is most difficult to handle is that in connection with the construction of a public market. There are so many interests, tastes and prejudices to overcome or conciliate that it seemed at one time as though the project would have to be abandoned. But through the efforts of a committee of progressive men the matter is assuming businesslike and tangible form.

Another project that has engaged the attention of the chamber is the building an adequate convention hall for our city. It has long been realized by the chamber that Rochester needs a building that can accommodate large conventions and be available at any time for emergency meetings, political, religious, musical and social. The absence of such a structure has been a decided detriment to Rochester in the past. It is a fact that our city would have been preferred many times by great conventions had we possessed a hall of sufficient capacity to accommodate the people attending them. It needs no very deep calculation to realize that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been lost to this city in past years by our not having this convention hall.

In its efforts to accomplish the erection of this building the chamber has had a standing committee on hall convention, but it still in power, and meetings have been held from time to time to discuss the subject, but which have lately been held in abeyance from the fact that the Masonic fraternity had entered upon the great project for building a temple, and I am happy to say that the beautiful and costly structure will soon stand among the distinguished buildings of our city. But this building does not meet the requirements of a convention hall, being, strictly speaking, devoted to the interests of Masonry and available for social functions, by courtesy, to other secret societies. The fact that the Masons have been so successful in their great enterprise should stir the citizens of Rochester to further determination to build a convention hall without further delay.

The chamber also advocates the building of a new armsal for the accommodation of our National Guard and the proper storing of arms. Having in mind the motto, "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," the chamber realizes the necessity of always being well prepared to meet any emergency.

An enlarged postoffice is also a necessity, as well as a deepened channel and a new pier at Charlotte.

DEEP WATERWAY.

Another project that has claimed the earnest attention of the chamber is a deep waterway by which it is hoped to greatly facilitate transportation to the seaboard. The chamber has been represented at various meetings and conventions held to discuss the best plans for this great waterway and ways and means for its accomplishment. Efforts have been made, and are still being put forth, to secure an adequate governmental appropriation for the accomplishment of this great work which would do as much to increase the industries of this section of the state.

UNDREADED WORK.

A great deal of work attending the year [illegible] ...ber of Commerce [illegible] ...ing [illegible] ...ing [illegible] ...ing

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

...mount of blackmail will be possible to dishonest officials. "Innocent" amusements may be suppressed by him should he determine they do not merit that designation. It will be in his power to close a theater, shut up a dance hall or stop the business of a restaurant.

Mr. Jerome is not at all likely to manifest the traits of a tyrant in the conduct of his important functions. It is certain however, that he will not countenance much that has hitherto been sanctioned under various legal loopholes.

It may be asked. If the district attorneyship is so fraught with power how is it that former incumbents of the office have not put it in force in behalf of honest and moral government? The question is easily answered. Every district attorney, with the exception of the present one, who only fills out another's term, has been hampered by politics and those around him having political ambitions.

Judge Jerome is unique in this respect, declaring that he hasn't any political ambitions—which is a common enough assertion on the part of aspirants for office. But the judge evinces most emphatic evidences that he means what he says.

He is a man of unflinching courage, as can be imagined when it is remembered how bitterly he opposed Tammany in spite of his being a Democrat, and how he assailed the leader of the Republicans, Senator Platt, notwithstanding that his election as district attorney was the result of the Republican-Fusion ticket.

It is Judge Jerome's purpose, now that he is elected, to follow out a policy of reform on certain lines unhampered by any political considerations whatever, and without any eye to personal reward or censure. That is the reason he is now considered the most important man in the municipal life of New York city. The chief characteristic of a brave man is his habit of looking you straight in the eye. Judge Jerome does this whether he likes you or not, whether he is bent on annihilating or befriending you. His intimate and detailed knowledge of the criminal conditions in the city (much of them unknown and even unsuspected even by its lifelong residents) renders him liable to greater personal peril than any other official in the state, because the office he is about to assume is, under an honest and efficient official, a sword imminent above the head of wrong doers, official and unofficial.

There will be no tiger behind Judge Jerome threatening his integrity for private gain. In his new office there will be no rewards to bestow for political services. The loyal admirers, the decent fellows who want him elected because they were awed by the energy, the vitality of the man, stand around and admire him, they wait about in corners to shake hands with him; such is his magnetic power. Mr. Jerome has a marked sympathetic personality, and his face is mostly illumined with a radiant smile, giving the impression that he is true and sincere rather than sentimental. When he sits upon the bench of the Special Sessions Court, robed in his silk gown, which he wears in a nonchalent way, he seems more impressive in his personality than his associates. In the midst of the criminal atmosphere of this court, surrounded by ignorance, misery, viciousness, suffering and all misfortunes he seems like a strong pillar of the state, calm, dignified, just, yet merciful withal. He conducts the examinations very often personally, and when he speaks it is with clearness and vigor, so that his voice is distinctly heard throughout the room. He is always keenly alert to the human side of prisoners and witnesses. To quote his own words when spoken to on the subject of sympathy from the bench: "A judge who has no heart has no business to be on the criminal bench."

As public prosecutor of the city of New York his duties will be to press for punishment, to cleanse the city of its criminal elements, and in this he will doubtless prove himself to be the foremost reformer of the twentieth century.

Rochester is extremely fortunate in being the prospective host of this remarkable man, and the Chamber of Commerce is to be congratulated upon having secured him as one of the principal speakers at the forthcoming banquet.

Herald Dec 12 1901

THE ROCHESTER

JOHN RAINES COMING.

To Hear What Jerome Says at Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

As the dinner committee of the Chamber of Commerce completes detail after detail, the fact becomes more and more apparent that the annual banquet to be served in Mirror Hall next Tuesday evening is sure to equal in brilliance any former function of a similar nature given by the chamber. The dinner will be excellent; there will be a quartette of distinguished speakers; delightful music will be discoursed, and the list of guests will include the most representative men of the city, from professional and business life.

The speaker who will be anticipated with the keenest interest of course, is Hon. William Travers Jerome, the plucky New York justice who conducted such an energetic and sensational campaign against Tammany. His subject has not yet been announced, but he will doubtless discuss some phase of the New York political situation.

...ton Young of New York City, ...ject will be the ... Correct ...

General A. C. Barnes of New York City, who is connected with the American Book Company, will discuss "Education in National Life."

The third speaker will be Hon. Martin W. Littleton, assistant district attorney of the Borough of Brooklyn. Mr. Littleton's theme will be "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age."

Hon. Job E. Hedges, Deputy Attorney General of the state, will be the fourth speaker. His subject has not yet been announced.

Chairman Goetzmann of the dinner committee has added D. M. Gordon of Brewster, Gordon & Co. to the reception committee which will receive the guests and speakers. It is intended to give an informal reception to the distinguished guests in the Powers Hotel just before the dinner.

Hon. John Raines of Canandaigua, the author of the excise law that bears his name, has been invited to the banquet and he has sent his acceptance. It is expected that Mr. Jerome will have something to say about this law; hence the anxiety of the chamber to have Mr. Raines present. Invitations have also been extended to about forty other Western New York legislators and it is expected that a large number of them will attend.

The number of guests at the dinner is to be limited to 400 and there are not a great number of seats remaining now. The dinner committee asks that business men who intend to be present purchase their tickets at once; otherwise they may not receive satisfactory places at the tables. The committee will meet to-morrow to assign the sittings at the tables, and it is hoped that all will have secured their tickets before that time.

Dec-11. 1901

POST EXPRESS: WEDNESDAY AFTERNO

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BANQUET.

To be Given in Mirror Hall, Powers Building, Next Tuesday Night—Hon. George Raines Toastmaster—Speeches by Justice W. T. Jerome, Hon. Richard Young, General A. C. Barnes, Hon. M. W. Littleton—State Legislators Coming—Hon. John Raines.

Preparations for the annual dinner of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce are nearing completion. It will be given next Tuesday night in the Mirror hall, Powers building, and it is promised that it will be fully up to the standard of the best that has been established by the chamber.

Secretary Ives has been at work for some time on the toast list, and entertainment and instruction of an unusual order are promised. Hon. George Raines will be the toastmaster. Grace will be said by Rev. Dr. William R. Taylor, of the Brick Presbyterian church. There will be opening remarks by the retiring president, Alexander B. Lamberton.

The first toast will be responded to by Justice William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York city who will discuss a phase of the political situation in the metropolis. Hon. John Raines, of Canandaigua, will be present to hear what Justice Jerome may say on the Raines law. It is expected that some of the state legislators will also be present.

Hon. Richard Young, of New York city, at the head of one of the largest leather houses in the country, will ge the second speaker. His theme will be "Reciprocity."

General A. C. Barnes, of New York city, who is connected with the American Book company, will discuss "Education in National Life."

The third speaker will be Hon. Martin W. Littleton, assistant district attorney, of the borough of Brooklyn. Mr. Littleton's theme will be "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age."

Hon. Job E. Hedges, deputy attorney general of the state, will be the fourth speaker. His subject has not yet been announced.

There is a possibility that Right Rev. Lucian L. Kinsolving, bishop of Southern Brazil, may be at the dinner.

Domenbach's augmented orchestra will play lively airs during the evening and at the close of the banquet German, French and American national songs will be sung by the guests. The banquet will be served by Teall, Secretary Ives has the tickets.

Charles Goetzmann, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce dinner committee, has appointed the following special committee to receive the speakers and out-of-town guests: A. B. Lamberton, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, Hon. A. J. Rodenbeck, Eugene T. Curtis, John M. Ives.

A distinguished guest who will grace the dinner with his presence is General Alfred C. Barnes, of Brooklyn, N. Y. He will speak on "Education In National Life."

General Barnes is the eldest son of A. S. Barnes, the eminent publisher and his wife, Harriet E. Burr, of Rochester.

He has resided in Brooklyn since he was 4 years old and received his education at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute.

At the age of 15 he entered his father's business and became a member and manager of the firm when 21. He remained as manager until the year 1869 when the educational publications were sold to the American Book company which he joined and became its vice-president.

In 1861 he accompanied the Seventh regiment, N. Y. S. N. G., to the seat of war and in 1862 went again to the front with the Twenty-third regiment and participated in the campaign around Gettysburg. He became major of the Twenty-third regiment in 1876, general inspector of rifle practice and brigadier-general in 1889, colonel of the Thirteen regiment and brevet brigadier-general in 1894, colonel of Twenty-third regiment and brevet brigadier-general in 1900.

GENERAL ALFRED C. BARNES.

He is the founder and was president of the Astor Place bank, New York city, is chairman of the Manhattan Bankers' association, trustee of the New York and Brooklyn bridge, trustee of Cornell university, trustee of Adelphi college, trustee of the Polytechnic institute, president of the Brooklyn library, director of the Brooklyn hospital, founder and president of the Oxford club, commander of Post Lafayette, G. A. R.

General Barnes is widely known as a brilliant speaker on educational topics. He is also a man of splendid physique and polished manners the result of almost a lifetime of experience as an army officer.

In the realm of literature in which he has passed his life he has gained much that he can impart with splendid magnetic power. He will prove to be a most genial and entertaining toastmaster and his words will have a high value as well as a graceful flow.

Rochester Chamber of Commerce

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 12, 1901.

Dear Sir:

The subjoined letter from Ex-President Charles P. Ford is self-explanatory, and is handed you that you may have the opportunity of attending the Fourteenth Annual Dinner of the Chamber and listening to the speech on "Reciprocity" to be made by Mr. Richard Young of New York city.

This gentleman was invited to respond to the toast in question for the especial benefit of the shoe and leather interests of Rochester, and it is to be hoped you will appreciate the situation and give Mr. Young the welcome he deserves.

Seats should be secured at once, and can be had on application to

Yours very truly,

JOHN M. IVES,
Secretary.

C. P. FORD & CO.
INCORPORATED
MANUFACTURERS OF FINE SHOES

MR. JOHN M. IVES, ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 11, 1901.
Secretary of Chamber of Commerce,
Rochester, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—

Among the excellent speakers secured for the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce, is Mr. Richard Young, of New York. Mr. Young is at the head of one of the large leather firms in this country, and has been a great traveler, and is interested in commercial lines, looking to the expansion of trade and commerce of the United States. The writer believes no man can be secured to speak on the subject of "America's future Commerce and Reciprocity," with as wide knowledge and complete understanding, Mr. Young having made a special study and personal investigation of our relations to other nations.

Certainly all the leather dealers and shoe manufacturers of Rochester should most cordially welcome Mr. Young, by their presence at the Chamber of Commerce dinner.

I venture to suggest that you expressly call the attention of the men in the shoe and leather trade in this city, to the speaker and subject he is announced to speak upon. That should be all that is necessary to secure a large attendance.

Yours truly,
(Signed) CHARLES P. FORD.

DINNER TICKETS GOING FAST

The 400 Seats at the Forthcoming Banquet of the Chamber of Commerce Will Soon be Disposed Of—Many Prominent Citizens Have Invited Friends to Attend the Dinner—Brief Mention of the Principal Speakers of the Evening—Some Characteristics of the Famous Jerome.

Union & Adv. Dec. 14/01.

There is a danger that some who desire to attend the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce will fail to secure tickets in time. People are in the habit of putting off purchasing the tickets until the very last moment and then they blame the dinner committee for not having supplied enough seats for the occasion, when they are cut off from attending the dinner.

GEN. ALFRED C. BARNES.

The arrangements for the banquet this year are on a very grand scale, out of compliment, it is presumed, to the new century. The decorations of the hall and tables will surpass anything of the kind ever attempted before by any dinner committee. Some expert artists have charge of the decorative part and no doubt they will have a very effective and patriotic background for the brilliant assemblage that is to feast in royal state.

There seems to be a decidedly twentieth century spirit actuating the dinner committee this year and the members thereof are demanding everything of the very first class. The menu will be finer than ever presented before and comprise a number of rich and toothsome delicacies. And what is of importance, the dinner will be served hot and not lukewarm as is frequently the case at big dinners. The famous Teall will have an army of experts to handle the viands and send them quickly from the ovens to the tables. In short the great caterer will leave nothing undone to make the dinner worthy of the occasion. The coming of Judge Jerome as a guest of the Chamber of Commerce has aroused intense interest among the people of Rochester on account of the brave attitude of defiance he held towards Tammany on the one hand and the Republican boss, Tom Platt, on the other, during the recent election campaign in New York.

To hear of Judge Jerome's deeds and encounters in rooting out evil, one would be led to think of him as a great, muscular, athletic man, with a fierce countenance and large fists, but a glance at his

JUDGE W. TRAVERS JEROME.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

picture reveals the face and figure of a delicate man with a countenance beaming with benevolence.

A great deal of interest is being centered on what this man, who will soon exercise the functions of district attorney of Greater New York, will have to say regarding the saloon and gambling questions in New York. In speaking to an interviewer recently he said: "I am looking forward to the duties of my office as district attorney with a certain pleasure, although I do not wish to give the impression that I am going to reform the whole town. I have certain ideas about the requirements, the necessities of the man or woman who is the wage earner in a vast struggling community. One of these notions concerns the Sunday liquor law. The speed and pressure of business life in New York in every capacity is a nerve-racking one, and I sympathize with a man who is compelled to sneak into a side door to get a drink of whisky because he needs it and because he cannot get it any other way."

Asked if he would endeavor to amend the excise law the judge replied:

"In so far as it will permit the sale of liquor during certain restricted hours openly, on Sunday."

"Will this include the Raines law hotels?" was asked.

"Something, I feel, should be done to amend the regulations governing these places. They are snares of vice in New York, more dangerous than any other." Speaking of gambling the judge said: "I do not consider gambling a paramount crime. I believe that very few public gambling houses are now on the square, although there may be one or two instances. The principal evil in these organizations, however, is the temptations they offer to squander money. I believe in protecting a community from such temptations, that is the most active form of improved principles. I want the decent self respecting residents of the city to get a chance to live up to the standards they have established in their individual lives, an opportunity they have not had under Tammany government. These people have rights, but they have not been able to get them, not because municipal officials were Democrats or Republicans, but because they were thieves."

HON. RICHARD YOUNG.

The reporter who interviewed Judge Jerome spoke of the new district attorney as follows:

"The fight that he so brilliantly won has had its effect upon him. He is perceptibly older; there are lines in his face that were not there before and his hair shows a touch of the ash that marks the burning of the candle. But there is plenty of vigor and energy left to make District Attorney Jerome's administration one long to be remembered."

Just at this particular time in the history of the Empire State no public manneers so conspicuously into view as William Travers Jerome, who will be the principal orator at the forthcoming dinner.

Another distinguished speaker at the banquet will be Gen. Alfred C. Barnes of Brooklyn, N. Y. He is the eldest son of A. S. Barnes, the eminent publisher, who was married to Harriet E. Burr, a resident of Rochester. Gen. Barnes is a veteran of the Civil War, having in 1861 accompanied the Seventh Regiment, N. Y. S. N. G., to the seat of war and again in 1862 went to the front with the Twenty-third Regiment and participated in the great campaigns around Gettysburg. He became major of the Twenty-third Regiment in 1875, general inspector of rifle practice and brigadier general in 1889, colonel of the Thirteenth Regiment and brevet brigadier general in 1900. He was founder and president of the Astor Place Bank, New York city, is chairman of the Manhattan Bankers' Association, trustee of the New York and Brooklyn bridge, trustee of Cornell University, trustee of Adelphi College, trustee of the Polytechnic Institute, president of the Brooklyn Library, director of the Brooklyn Hospital, founder and president of the Oxford Club, commander of Post Lafayette, G. A. R. Gen. Barnes is a brilliant and entertaining speaker on educational and commercial topics. Having passed his life in a literary atmosphere he is well equipped to give additional lustre to the intellectual feast in store for the banqueters. The subject of his speech will be "Education in National Life."

Other distinguished guests of the chamber who will speak at the dinner are the following:

Hon. Richard Young of New York city, whose subject will be "Reciprocity." Mr. Young is at the head of one of the largest leather houses in the United States and has a wide acquaintance with the men and affairs of many countries.

Hon. Martin W. Littleton, assistant district attorney of the borough of Brooklyn. His theme will be "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age."

Hon. [illegible] E. N[illegible] deputy attor-

Speech of the latter will appear on a subsequent page, [illegible] receiving the [illegible] attending the banquet.

The musical programme for the evening will be rendered by Dossenbach's augmented orchestra, and at the close of the banquet German, French and American national songs will be sung by the guests.

JEROME DRAWING A SUNDAY BILL

Will Make Its Provisions Known in His Rochester Speech.

INCOMING OFFICIALS FEARFUL OF OBTAINING ANY AMENDMENTS.

The Statement Is Made That Governor Odell Will Probably Oppose Any Experimenting with the Excise Law in Message to the Legislature.

1901

Special to The Post Express.

New York, Dec. 13.—Supporters of the incoming city administration who advocate a more liberal excise law for New York city than the present one, have practically abandoned all hope of inducing the legislature to pass a Sunday opening bill. They admitted to-day that it would be impossible to get a majority of either the senate or assembly to vote for such a measure even if it were within the range of possibility that the governor would sign it. Nevertheless, they will keep up the agitation in the hope that some amendments, however trivial, will be made upon the present law and that an exception will be made in the case of New York city, whose population is mostly different from that of other parts of the state in regard to the question of personal liberty.

The work of drafting a bill for a more liberal Sunday law and one that would do away with the opportunity for police blackmail is now in the hands of Justice Jerome. He has the bill practically completed but will not divulge its contents until he makes a speech before the Chamber of Commerce in Rochester on Tuesday next. He has been invited to talk on excise before that body and expects to get the support of the Rochester members of the legislature for a bill which will apply alike to all the larger cities of the state.

The attitude of the advocates of a more liberal excise law for this city will be influenced to a large extent by what Governor Odell says on the subject in his message to the legislature. At first it was thought he would ignore the excise question altogether but friends of his said to-day that he would refer to it in his message and that he would point out to the liquor dealers that the excise law was a dangerous problem to experiment with too far. The governor, it is said, is strongly opposed to a bill providing for Sunday opening of saloons in any part of the state.

Post Express
Dec 13, 1901
FRIDAY AFTERNOON

TO HEAR IT ALL HERE

JUSTICE JEROME REFERS ALL INQUIRERS TO ROCHESTER ADDRESS.

"My Views on the Excise Question Will Be Fully Expressed in the Address Which I Will Deliver in Rochester on December 17th," He Says.

The importance of the address to be given by Justice William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect, of New York city, at the Chamber of Commerce dinner, next Tuesday night, is indicated in the following from the New York "Times:"

"Justice Jerome was seen last night at the Union club and asked what he had to say in reply to the statement issued by District Attorney Philbin yesterday, in which Mr. Philbin declared against Sunday opening.

"'I have nothing at all to say for publication at this time,' he replied. 'My views on the excise question will be fully expressed in the address which I will deliver in Rochester on December 17th.'"

Post Express
Dec 13, 1901

HON. MARTIN W. LITTLETON.

One of the Guests Who Will Orate at the Forthcoming Banquet.

Among the distinguished guests at the forthcoming banquet of the Chamber of Commerce will be the Hon. Martin W. Littleton, assistant district attorney of the borough of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Littleton has risen from the farm to one of the highest positions in the gift of the people, and like so many eminent American public men has done so by the sheer force of his own perseverance. He was born in the mountains of East Tennessee and resided there until he was about 9 years old, when his father moved the family to Texas, remaining there a few years, then returning to Tennessee.

MARTIN W. LITTLETON.

Young Littleton, however, remained in Texas until 1896, during which time he was engaged on a farm and at other employments. At the age of 18 he went to school for six months and then took up the study of law and in due time, by application and industry obtained admission to the bar, and practiced law in Texas until he removed to New York city in 1896.

Soon after that he became one of the counsel for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Railroad Company and continued as such until appointed to the office of district attorney. Only a man of unusual strength of character and ability could have surmounted the difficulties necessary for this rapid promotion in life and Mr. Littleton will, by his eloquence, no doubt, prove very entertaining in treating of the subject of his speech which will be "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age."

Post Express
Dec 13, 1901

JEROME'S ADDRESS OF GREAT INTEREST

HE WILL SPEAK ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION AT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DINNER.

Last night Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce received a telegram from William Travers Jerome, District Attorney-elect of New York, in which Mr. Jerome announced the subject of his address at the annual dinner of the Chamber next Tuesday night. The subject will be "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law."

Mr. Jerome could not have chosen a more interesting subject at present than the one announced. In view of the fact that the question of opening the saloons on Sunday is being agitated by many legislators in New York City and other sections of the State, Mr. Jerome's address will be of vital importance in determining his attitude and the attitude of his administration on the question.

Dec 14, 1901.

MUNICIPAL PROBLEM AND LIQUOR TAX LAW

Jerome to Discuss Their Relations at Chamber Dinner.

TO OUTLINE HIS POLICY

Next District Attorney of New York Has Told All Who Have Sought to Learn of His Intended Action to Wait for His Rochester Address.

"The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law." That is the subject of the address to be given at the Chamber of Commerce banquet next Tuesday night by Hon. William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York city.

It has been understood all along that Justice Jerome would improve the opportunity presented by the invitation to speak at the dinner, to outline his future policy in dealing with the liquor traffic in New York, and the announced subject of his deliverance goes to prove that this understanding was correct. Secretary Ives, of the chamber, last night received a dispatch giving the subject.

It is the general belief that Justice Jerome will make a full statement of the course he intends to pursue as district attorney of the metropolis after he assumes office January 1st. His pronouncement will be all the more interesting and important because of the fact that he has consistently refused to discuss the subject since his election November 5th. Only a day or two ago he was asked by a reporter of the New York Times to say something on the declaration against the Sunday opening of saloons by retiring District Attorney Philbin. This was his reply to the newspaper man:

"I have nothing at all to say for publication at this time. My views on the excise question will be fully expressed in the address which I shall deliver in Rochester, December 17th."

Acceptances of invitations to attend the Chamber of Commerce dinner have been received from Senator Lester H. Humphrey, of the forty-sixth district of the state of New York, and Hon. John J. Clarke, district attorney of Brooklyn. The rapidity with which the tickets are being disposed of is pleasing to the dinner committee and Secretary Ives.

Rochester people naturally have an interest in William Travers Jerome. His father was Lawrence Jerome, brother of Leonard Jerome, who built and resided in the house now occupied by Dr. E. M. Moore, on South Fitzhugh street, this city. Leonard Jerome's daughter married Lord Randolph Churchill, so that her ladyship is a full cousin to Judge Jerome.

Of Judge Jerome in his office a writer says:

"The atmosphere is not that of a formal judicial dignity. It is vivified with tense, nervous action, the action that breaks down worn-out traditions and precedents and makes new ones to meet the necessities of changed conditions, action that is trying to undermine the closely welded together political depravity of New York. The man with the cigarette, now at the desk, now by the shelves, now in an adjoining room, cool and restless at once, never excited, always excited, who looks like a business man and talks like a business man, incessively and rapidly, with a quick sense of humor which can turn grave in an instant fills the place utterly. Jerome is an automatic force that originates like an inventor, weighs a decision like a judge and, the thing once settled, acts with the precision and tirelessness of a man of business. And he enjoys the action most of all."

DINNER SPEAKERS

Dinner Oct 14/6

Some Characteristics of Men Who Will Speak at Banquet.

ALL ARE MEN OF POWER

Judge Jerome's Utterances Looked Forward to With Great Interest by Citizens Throughout State — Subject Is "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by Liquor Law."

It may be said that the eyes of the entire state are just now centered upon William Travers Jerome, District-Attorney-elect, who will be the principal speaker at the Chamber of Commerce banquet to be held on Tuesday next in Mirror Hall, Powers Building. Last night Secretary Ives received a telegram announcing that Mr. Jerome's subject would be "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law."

The name "Jerome" is familiar to the older residents of Rochester, who will remember Leonard Jerome, the father of Lady Randolph Churchill. That famous lady was born in this city, it is said, in the residence now occupied by Dr. E. M. Moore on Elizhugh Street.

Leonard Jerome was the brother of Lawrence Jerome, father of the man who will soon exercise such influence in Greater New York as District Attorney.

It would seem that the Jeromes have a peculiar aptitude for achieving distinction, and the capture of an English peer of the Realm by Miss Jerome of Rochester is a good illustration of this peculiar family trait. The elder Jeromes were successful in their business operations and made fortunes. Lawrence Jerome's youngest son was named for his friend, William Travers. The boy was delicate and instead of being sent to school was put in the hands of tutors. His last tutor was a clergyman and when the young man, after a short course at Williston Seminary entered Amherst College in the class of 1882, he was a sort of straight-laced, blue-lawed Puritan, taking himself very seriously.

Developing a passion for mathematics in his freshman year he obtained the highest possible mark. He was not satisfied until he knew all there was to know about each algebraic problem. When there seemed to be nothing more to learn he tried chemistry. He went into an elementary class in that study, attended a few lectures and suddenly stopped altogether. After two or three weeks the professor in charge noticing his continued absence called him to his office.

"Mr. Jerome," he said, severely, "you have not been attending my lectures regularly."

"No, sir; I didn't think it was of any use to me," was the frank answer.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I am ready to be questioned on any of the work that has been done."

And, after quizzing him closely for some time, the professor was unable to find a question that Jerome could not answer.

That is the kind of man Judge Jerome is. He goes to the bottom of every question and masters the details of every project. It is that spirit which has actuated him in finding out the real condition of things in New York City, especially in relation to its criminology. He takes in things without ostentatious effort. Once started at a thing he learns it from top to bottom from east to west, the entire latitude and longitude of it, as a writer tersely remarks. The same writer also says:

"It was so with his studies at college and in the law. It has been so with any number of the lesser activities with which he has filled his vacant hours and it was so in his definition of the duties of a magistrate. He learned its entire three dimensions and then discovered a fourth."

Judge Jerome long ago saw the political rottenness of New York City, how impotent grand juries were to check crime. Many conditions blocked the grand jury from being the means of exposing boldly the intricate corruption which the general public indefinitely knew to exist. The city departments were rotten to the core; "grafters" were at their trade openly; a political organization untied the purse strings of the public treasury at will; crime went unpunished; and the police force was being paid by the city to do its duty, and by the criminals not to do it. The magistrate could. But to be absolutely successful he must have a District Attorney who was as dead in earnest as he was, a man who would lay before him the information by which he would be enabled to issue his subpoenas and administer an oath to anyone connected with the complaint. So he developed his plan and waited. He talked of it with a few colleagues whom he could trust and won them against their will to his side and when Governor Roosevelt appointed Mr. Philbin as District Attorney he went to work.

The results have been in the papers daily ever since. In a few months over one hundred and thirty persons have been arrested for felony on his warrants, and not a single case that has been brought to trial has failed of conviction. With the aid of the Committee of Fifteen he has, for the time being at least, either closed the gambling houses or stopped their profits. Many disorderly houses that have been an insult to public decency have closed their doors, and he is fast getting at the powers that control the trust in souls that operates in the police department. He has done this work because he is a good citizen.

It has been said that it is not dignified for a judge to raid a gambling den, to break down doors, to lead a court over the gaming table. But Jerome cares less about his own personal dignity than about the city's dignity.

Now that he has been elected District Attorney he will be able to carry out many plans that might otherwise have been impossible.

It is expected that Judge Jerome will strike the keynote of his policy in his speech at the Chamber of Commerce banquet, and that arouses deep interest on the part of those who will attend.

General Alfred C. Barnes, another speaker at the banquet, is widely known in state military circles and also among the veterans of the civil war. He was born in Philadelphia and is the son of A. S. Barnes, the eminent publisher and his wife Harriett E. Barr, a Rochester lady. In 1861 he accompanied the 7th Regiment to the seat of war and in 1863 went again to the front with the 23d Regiment and participated in the campaign around Gettysburg. He was commissioned major of the 23d Regiment in 1875, general inspector of rifle practice and brigadier general in 1889, colonel of the 13th Regiment and brevet brigadier general in 1844, colonel of the 23d Regiment and brevet brigadier general in 1900. He was founder and president of [illegible] Park Bank, New York, chairman Manhattan Bankers Association, trustee of New York and Brooklyn bridge, trustee of Cornell University, trustee of Adelphi College, trustee Polytechnic Institution, president Brooklyn Library, director Brooklyn hospital, founder and president of the Oxford Club, president of Aldine Club and commander of Post Lafayette, G. A. R.

Martin W. Littleton is a gentleman who has had rapid promotion in life through his own indomitable will. He was born in the mountains of East Tennessee in 1872 and resided there until he was 9 years old, when his father moved with the family to Texas, but returned to Tennessee after a year or two. Young Littleton, however, remained in Texas, working on a farm and other pursuits until he was 18, when he attended school for six months, took up the study of law, was admitted to the bar and practiced law until 1896, when he removed to New York City. Soon after arriving he was appointed one of the counsel for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Railroad Company and continued as such until appointed to the position of Assistant District Attorney of the borough of Brooklyn. The subject of Mr. Littleton's speech at the dinner will be "From a Constitutional To a Commercial Age."

Sunday Oct 13/6

GUESTS OF PROMINENCE.

Many Will be Present at Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

Hon. William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York city, subject, "The Municipal Problem of New York As Affected by the Liquor-Tax Laws."

Hon. Richard Young, head of the firm of Richard Young & Company, leather dealers, New York, subject, "America's Future Commerce and Reciprocity."

General Alfred G. Barnes, connected with the American Book Company, subject, "Education in National Life."

Hon. Martin W. Little, assistant district attorney of Brooklyn, subject, "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age."

These are the speakers who will respond to toasts at the Chamber of Commerce dinner, Tuesday night. As they looked over this list the dinner committee last night felt compensated for their efforts to arrange the sittings. They were still working at a late hour but the seats will not all be arranged until Monday. Hon. George Raines will be toastmaster. Rev. Dr. Taylor will ask grace.

The Lamberton dinner or the Jerome dinner, as you will, gives promise of being a grand affair. It will be held Tuesday night in Mirror hall in the Powers building. The number of tickets was limited to 400 originally, but there is little doubt that this will be exceeded. Not all of the tickets are sold, but there is always a big rush for them the last day by those who do not know until the last minute whether they can attend.

Among those who have accepted invitations to the dinner are P. S. Blodgett, general superintendent of the New York Central, and W. J. Wilgus, chief engineer of the same road. These two gentlemen will be guests of J. N. Beckley, president of the Buffalo & Toronto railroad. Judge Charles McLouth, of Palmyra, and Charles S. Abbott, of Jamestown, will also attend. Mr. Abbott is connected with the Eastman company.

Prominent brewers from Syracuse and Buffalo are expected as guests of the Rochester Brewers' Association. A large number of representatives of the legislature and the bar are expected.

Little remains to be said about the dinner. The major arrangements are already perfected and but a few details remain for the dinner committee, of which Charles Goetzmann is chairman. He and Secretary Ives and the members of the committee and President Lamberton, whose dinner it is, have done such work as seems evident will result in a social function unsurpassed in Rochester's history. President Lamberton will make his farewell address to the chamber on this occasion. President Brewster will take office the first of the year.

Twall, with his small army of assistants, will take possession of the hall to-morrow, erect the platform for the speakers' table, set up his long tables and put down the crash. Some of the decorations will be put in then and the finishing touches added Tuesday. As usual, no doubt, there will be many lady visitors to see the beautiful tables, Tuesday afternoon. The ladies are barred from the pleasures of this occasion. One reason for this is that there is not sufficient room for spectators. The balconies have been used on occasions, but Dossenbach's orchestra will be placed in one end and possibly it will be necessary for some of the diners to sit there also.

The Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

W & C Chronicle Dec 16

A very interesting feature of the Chamber of Commerce dinner to-morrow night will be the speech which Judge W. Travers Jerome, the district-attorney-elect of New York, is expected to deliver. As Judge Jerome was the star performer in an exciting political drama recently enacted in the metropolis a speech from him on any subject would be interesting at the present time. But what will lend special interest to his address to-morrow evening is the fact that in it he will set forth his ideas on the question of the opening of saloons on Sunday. There will be other addresses by entertaining speakers. The prospect is that to-morrow evening's banquet will be one of the most notable ever given by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

BEST BANQUET IN ITS ANNALS

Such is Prophesied of Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

DISTINGUISHED ARRAY OF SPEAKERS AND GUESTS WILL BE PRESENT.

Letters of Regret Have Been Received from Many Eminent Personages, Including Sir Wilfred Laurier and Archbishop Ireland.

The fourteenth annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce will take place in Powers hotel to-morrow night. All this morning, telephonic orders for tickets were pouring in upon Secretary Ives and his assistants. There will be nearly 400 guests at the dinner—just the number which the dinner committee had fixed upon as ideal for comfort. Teall will serve and he also has charge of the decorations. The most unique menu card ever gotten out at a Chamber of Commerce dinner here, is said to be in store for the guests; but the committee refuses to make public its design. Dossenbach's orchestra will play. The reception committee is scheduled to perform its functions between 6 and 6.30 o'clock, but the dinner will not begin until 7.15 o'clock at earliest. It is hoped to begin the speaking by 9.30 o'clock. Hon. George Raines will officiate as toastmaster. President A. B. Lamberton will preside.

Justice Jerome will lead in the addresses. His theme will be "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law."

Hon. Richard Young will follow. His address will deal with "America's Future Commerce and Reciprocity."

General Alfred C. Barnes, of New York, will be the third speaker. His theme will be "Education in National Life."

The last speaker will be the Hon. Martin W. Littleton, assistant district attorney of Brooklyn. His address is entitled "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age."

Past presidents who will honor the dinner with their presence are L. P. Ross, Charles E. Angle, Charles J. Brown, Max Brickner, Eugene T. Curtis, H. B. Hathaway, Charles P. Ford, Rufus A. Sibley, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, and James G. Cutler.

Distinguished out-of-town guests who will be present at the dinner in addition to the speakers are:

Hon. John Raines, Canandaigua; Assemblyman E. G. Treat, Westport; Assemblyman F. W. Griffith, Palmyra; Judge Charles McLouth, Palmyra; Hon. John F. Clark, district attorney for the borough of Brooklyn; P. S. Blodgett, superintendent of the New York Central railroad; W. J. Wilgus, chief engineer, New York Central; G. S. Miller, Buffalo; Edwin C. Howe, Herman Bartels, jr., Syracuse, State Senator L. H. Humphrey, Warsaw, and E. J. Bennett, secretary of the board of control, Arizona territory.

Among the local guests will be State Senator W. W. Armstrong, Assemblymen Merton E. Lewis, George H. Smith, Isaac W. Salyerds and Richard Gardiner; Mayor-Carman and Mayor-elect Adolph J. Rodenbeck. The following clergymen will also be present:

Rev. William R. Taylor, D. D., pastor of the Brick church, who will say grace; Rev. George D. Miller, First Presbyterian church; Rev. S. Banks Nelson, D. D., St. Peter's Presbyterian church; Rev. Henry H. Stebbins, D. D., Central Presbyterian church; Rev. C. A. Barbour, D. D., Lake Avenue Baptist church and Rev. I. N. Dalbey, presiding elder of Rochester district. President Rush Rhees, of the University of Rochester and Professor S. A. Lattimore, will also be present.

Local brewers are making arrangements to present a number of out-of-town guests at the dinner who will occupy a table of their own.

Secretary John Ives is in receipt of a number of interesting letters of regret from distinguished personages whose presence was sought for at the convention but who were unable to come. The Rt. Rev. Lucien S. Kinsolving, bishop of Southern Brazil, whose eloquence charmed many people during the recent Episcopal missionary convention, wrote as follows:

Mr. Holly, N. J., Dec. 13, 1901.
John M. Ives, Esq., Sec'y of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce:

My Dear Sir—I beg that you will express to the Chamber of Commerce of your hospitable city my warm thanks for the kind invitation to attend their annual dinner. There are few temptations greater than that which bids me come to your city once more, the sunlight of whose hospitality I shall bear with me to distant climes. But the pressure of engagements upon me is too great, and I am forced against my will to decline. From afar I shall join in the acclaim which will greet the Lion who has smitten "the Tiger" so severely—Justice Jerome. It would have given me deep pleasure to have seen and heard so splendid an exponent of our civic life. I would have been glad to do honor also to New York's big Four, Jerome and Low and Odell and Roosevelt, who represent, I take it, what is best of citizenship in the world to-day.

With deep regret that I cannot attend, and with warm appreciation of your invitation, I remain,

Faithfully yours,
Lucien S. Kinsolving,
Bishop of Southern Brazil.

Supreme Court, Appellate Division, Fourth Department.
Canandaigua, N. Y., Dec. 12, 1901.

Dear Sir—Your very kind invitation to be one of the guests of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce at its fourteenth annual dinner on the evening of December 18th reached me in due season, and I have held the same in abeyance thinking that possibly I might be able to send an acceptance. Upon returning home, however, after a somewhat prolonged term of court in your city, I find that my engagements are such as to compel me very regretfully to decline.

My official duties for the past few years have required my presence in Rochester so constantly that I am sometimes tempted to claim a residence in your thriving city, and certainly I am sufficiently identified with everything which pertains to its moral, social and material advancement to express the hope that through the medium of your worthy organization it may enjoy such a prolonged period of commercial prosperity as will soon place it in the front rank of American cities.

Very sincerely and cordially yours, etc.,
William H. Adams.

Archbishop John Ireland wrote that he sincerely wished he were able to attend the meeting. Bishop Henry C. Potter, of New York, plead a recent family bereavement. Formal expressions of regret were also received from Sir Wilfred Laurier, ex-President Grover Cleveland, Senator Foraker, of Ohio, Senator Mark Hanna, Senator John C. Spooner, John Wanamaker and James J. Hill.

Herald Dec 16, 1901

CHAMBER'S ANNUAL DINNER

Every Seat Will be Occupied at the Banquet in Powers Hall To-Morrow Night.

Every seat will be occupied at the annual dinner of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce to be held in the mirror room in the Powers building to-morrow evening. The fact that William Travers Jerome, who made a national reputation for himself as judge of the Court of Special Sessions in New York city, and who will be the first 1st of January district attorney in charge of criminal prosecutions in the metropolis, is to deliver an address in which he will outline his views on the matter of the Sunday saloon, makes the occasion one of great interest not only here but all over the state as well. Mr. Jerome's address will be watched for in every city in the state.

Mr. Jerome, however, is not the only prominent speaker who will be heard. The complete toast list follows: "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law," Judge William Travers Jerome; "America's Future Commerce and Reciprocity," Hon. Richard Young; "Education in National Life," Gen. Alfred C. Barnes; "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age," Hon. Martin W. Littleton.

Following are the names of the gentlemen who will act as the reception committee: James G. Cutler, chairman; Col. J. S. Graham, Henry B. Hathaway, Walter B. Duffy, Edward W. Peck, Chas. J. Brown, Lewis P. Ross, Max Brickner, Eugene T. Curtis, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, A. B. Lamberton, D. M. Gordon, John M. Ives, Charles P. Ford, Hon. A. J. Rodenbeck George B. Watkins Fred T. Beach, David Hoyt, Hon. George A. Carnahan, Rufus A. Sibley, George Eastman, J. N. Beckley, Henry S. Mackie, Daniel B. Murphy, Charles E. Bayliss, T. B. Dunn, William C. Barry, Harold C. Kimball, E. P. Reed, Thomas J. Nicholl, F. A. Stecher, George F. Roth, Hon. William W. Armstrong, Lansing G. Wetmore, Hon. Frederick Cook, Edward Bausch, John F. Alden, Joseph A. Crane, Edward Prizer, H. B. Graves, Charles E. Angle, Louis N. Stein, H. W. Geetmann, M. Kondolf, Michael Doyle, V. V. Critenden, Hon. Merton E. Lewis, Hon. James Breck Perkins, Hon. Richard Gardiner, Hon. I. W. Salyerds, Albert O. Fenn, John C. Moore, Albrecht Vogt, Abram J. Katz, Julius Wile, Levi Adler.

The following gentlemen will act as ushers: William Bausch chairman; John S. Wright, Gurney T. Curtis, C. M. Fisk, Jesse M. Lindsay, Charles E. Lyon, Peter W. Zeeveld, Henry F. Marks, W. J. Trimble, Edw. D. Chapin, A. B. Eastwood, Harry Likly, L. S. Foulkes, A. M. MacDonell, F. W. Yates, Edw. A. Stahlbrodt, J. C. Powers, James R. Davy, John M. Rauber, William F. Goetzmann, William P. Morse, C. S. Kellogg, Joseph B. Hone, Wm. L. Dobbin, George L. Eaton, Arthur B. Enos, James L. Hotchkiss, George Koch, J. C. Kalbfleisch, L. E. Kirstein, E. G. Pfahl.

The attention of those who are to attend the dinner is called to the fact that the State street entrance to the elevators is to be used to-morrow night.

Dec 18, 1901

IN READINESS FOR THE DINNER

ANNUAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BANQUET TO-NIGHT.

ADDRESSES OF INTEREST

FOUR SPEAKERS TO BE HEARD AFTER THE DINNER.

JEROME ON EXCISE LAW

Next District Attorney of New York Expected to Announce the Course He is to Follow After He Takes Office—Subject of Interest Throughout the State—Raines to Attend.

The fourteenth annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce is to take place tonight in Mirror hall, Powers building. From 6:15 to 7:15 o'clock there will be a reception to the guests in the parlors adjoining the hall. The dinner is scheduled to begin at 7:15 o'clock. Covers for 400 will be laid and nearly that number of tickets has been sold. The remainder will go to-day. An elaborate dinner will be served and all in all the banquet is expected to rival any ever given in Rochester.

For several days Caterer Teall and his many assistants have been at work in the hall, which presents an even handsomer appearance than usual. Dossenbach's orchestra, hidden behind palms and plants in one end of the balcony, will furnish the music. A feature of the musical programme will be the playing of the national airs of the principal countries of America and Europe, in the choruses of which the guests are expected to unite in singing. The hall will seat 400 guests nicely, without making use of the balconies.

Those having charge of the dinner wish to call attention to the fact that the State street entrance to the Powers building will be used to-night. The elevators on that side of the building will land the guests near the parlors where the reception is to be held. The hall cannot be reached through the hotel and the Main street elevators are out of commission.

General Alfred C. Barnes, one of the speakers, will be entertained at the home of D. M. Gordon. The other speakers will put up at hotels. John F. Clarke, district attorney of Brooklyn, is to come with Mr. Littleton as his guest. Justice Jerome will also be accompanied by a guest, but Secretary Ives says he has not been advised who he is.

Great interest is taken in the announcement that Justice Jerome is to outline his policy as district attorney of New York city in his address to-night. He has been referring questioners to his Rochester speech and the leading New York newspapers are to have representatives at the dinner to report the address in full. The state legislature and the bar will be well represented at the banquet.

The speakers and their subjects follow:

Hon. William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York; subject, "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law."

Hon. Richard Young, merchant, New York, and a recognized authority of reciprocity; "America's Future Commerce and Reciprocity."

General Alfred C. Barnes, publisher, New York; subject, "Education in National Life."

Dec 18, 1901

ROCHESTER DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE,
WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1901.

JEROME PLEADS FOR A NEW EXCISE LAW

Wants Restricted Sunday Opening of Saloons in New York Legalized.

SPEAKS AT DINNER OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Annual Banquet of Rochester's Business Men's Organization Attracts Widespread Attention and Proves a Notable Success Socially as Well as in the Addresses Heard—General Alfred C. Barnes and Richard Young, of New York, Among the Speakers—Hon. George Raines the Toastmaster.

Mirror hall in the Powers building was resplendent last night, the event being the fourteenth annual dinner of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce. From 6:30 o'clock, the time the first of the guests arrived for the reception in the adjoining parlors, until past midnight, the annual banquet was in progress. Great as was the success socially, it was surpassed by the interest taken in the addresses, and particularly in that of Hon. William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York, who spoke regarding the excise tax law as affecting that great city. The announcement of this speech had called together a goodly representation of state legislators who were eagerly desirous to hear Justice Jerome's views on the excise question.

The banquet was as successful as any ever held in Rochester. With one exception, the programme was carried out as originally arranged and the occasion was notable for absence of formality. Everyone seemed to be there to have a good time and get all possible enjoyment out of the event as well as to hear the prominent speakers.

Exactly 400 sat down to the dinner, and the absence of some annoyances heretofore felt because of a too great number present was noted last night. There was room for all on the ground floor and the balconies were used only for the orchestra and for those who were present merely to listen to the addresses.

The hall was beautiful in its decorations of flags and bunting, ferns and potted plants, and the handsome mirrors, which give it its name, reflected the scene many times over. Seemingly endless rows of long tables extended beyond the range of vision. The decorations were simple, as was the table appointments. The speakers' table was on a platform extending nearly the full length of the hall and at one side. The other tables ran out from this one at right angles, while round tables occupied the alcoves. They were all handsome in their settings, with china and silverware, flowers and pink candelabra with tiny red, pink and yellow shades. Many a flower was plucked for some one at home who was denied the pleasures of the occasion.

This was the first banquet to be held in two years, the event being omitted last year on account of the dinner given to Major-General Elwell S. Otis upon his return from the Philippines. This took place in midsummer. The dinners still had something to do with the extraordinary zeal that this affair brewed. It is a conservative statement to make, that for perfection of arrangement and fulfillment, last night's affair has never been surpassed in Rochester. Everything moved off like clockwork, thereby reflecting the greatest credit on Secretary Ives, the dinner committee and the others who had it in charge.

The number of guests from out of town was unprecedentedly large. Legislators from various parts of the state and members of the bar, those especially interested in the liquor tax law as applied to municipalities, were numerous. The New York press was well represented. Several reporters who came especially to hear what Justice Jerome said. Never before has a Chamber of Commerce dinner attracted such wide attention, successful as they have been socially.

The applause with which the speakers were greeted must have given them excellent impressions of a Rochester audience. The addresses were frequently interrupted by expressions of approval, and it is evident that such a rare intellectual treat falls to a local audience.

The ladies were not to be entirely crowded out. After the dinner many of them gained admission and their presence made the occasion even more enjoyable to their acquaintances who sat below about the tables. The members of the gentler sex were seemingly as interested in the remarks of the speakers as were the men, and applauded vigorously when a good point was made.

The reception in the parlors prior to the dinner was informal and brief. All were given a chance to meet the distinguished guests. At 7:30 o'clock the doors of the hall were thrown open and to the music of the orchestra the large assemblage passed in. Dossenbach's orchestra was nearly hidden by ferns and plants in the balcony at one end of the hall, and throughout the evening, until the speakers were introduced, was heard with much pleasure.

The speakers and their subjects were: "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law," Justice William Travers Jerome; "America's Future Commerce and Reciprocity," Hon. Richard Young, New York; "Education in National Life," General Alfred C. Barnes, New York; Rev. S. Banks Nelson, D. D., Rochester.

President A. B. Lamberton, retiring, made his farewell address to the chamber. Rev. William R. Taylor, D. D., of Brick Church, asked grace. If something had been needed to give the finishing touch to it all and to make the guests feel at home, the remarks of Hon. George Raines, toastmaster, could not have been better chosen. Mr. Raines extended to all a welcome, and his address was felicitous and marked by his well-known eloquence. He made an admirable toastmaster.

The programme was unique and handsome. On the front page was a picture of the upper Genesee falls, with a glimpse of a portion of the business section of the city in the distance. "Rochester, the Power City," was the wording beneath. It was a happy thought of Secretary Ives. There was sincere disappointment that Rev. Martin W. Littleton, assistant district attorney of Brooklyn, was not able to be present at the dinner. When Secretary Ives received a letter from him in the afternoon saying that he was in Albany attending a very important case that could not be put over, a dispatch was sent at once asking if he could not get through in time to get here, even though he might be late. A message was also sent to Judge William E. Werner, of the court of appeals, asking if court could not be arranged so that Mr. Littleton could get away. Judge Werner telegraphed back: "Had court arrange matters for Littleton, but his opponent would not consent to postponement."

Mr. Littleton in his letter said:

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 16, 1901.

John M. Ives, Esq.:

My Dear Sir: Mr. Clarke and I arrived here yesterday in order to be ready to argue our case before the court of appeals to-day, for which time it was previously set. We found that there was an unfinished case on and we have attended all day to-day in the hope that we would get on. The unfinished case consumed the whole day's session and left our case the first one to be called to-morrow at 2 o'clock. I am to argue for the people and having prepared the brief I cannot now shift it to him. It will be impossible for us to finish before 5 o'clock, and then it will be too late to make the dinner on time. We have applied to the courts to sit in for Wednesday but this has been refused. If it were an ordinary case I would let it go, but we represent the people in an appeal from the appellate division in the case of William F. Miller, who stole over $1,000,000 in Brooklyn by means of a $20 per cent. scheme of which you perhaps have read in the papers, and the public is holding us in strict accountability in the final appeal.

Your disappointment will not equal our regret and especially mine. I have prepared with some pains for this dinner and had expected "the time" of my life. Please convey to the committee my sincere regrets and say to them that nothing save an imperative public duty could have caused me to forego the honored pleasure of being in your midst.

I am with great regret,
Yours sincerely,
MARTIN W. LITTLETON.

General Barnes arrived from New York on an early morning train and was met at the New York Central station by David M. Gordon, an old acquaintance, and driven to the home of Mr. Gordon on Plymouth avenue, where he remained until the reception in the evening. Justice Jerome and Hon. Richard Young came in on the Empire State express. They were met at the station by President Lamberton and a committee consisting of Henry C. Brewster, Adolph J. Rodenbeck, Eugene T. Curtis and John H. Ives. Justice Jerome was accompanied by Fred M. Stein, a New York merchant, who was one of his lieutenants in the recent campaign. The guests were driven to Powers hotel hear Justice Jerome was Morris Tekulsky, ex-president of the Liquor Dealers' Association of New York state and New York city. Mr. Tekulsky came in on the Empire State express. Robert L. Woolley, secretary to Justice Jerome, also attended the dinner.

GREETING TO GUESTS BY HEAD OF CHAMBER

President Lamberton opened the after-dinner doings with a brief address in which he welcomed the guests and put in a good word for the Chamber of Commerce. Said he:

"Gentlemen of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce and Honored Guests: I can conceive of no more beneficial influence that can accrue to the city of Rochester than the holding of the annual banquets of its Chamber of Commerce. They have been in the past and will continue to be the great social event of our chamber, and I am proud to be its presiding officer on this the first banquet on the dawn of a new century. That we are so well known as a corporate body abroad, as well as at home, is due almost as much to our annual dinners, at which so many illustrious men have been our guests, as to our zeal in promoting and protecting the trade and commerce of our city. The real charm of our annual banquets centers in the fact that we have enjoyed the companionship of so many distinguished gentlemen, who have graced our board and delighted our minds with their eloquent and instructive speeches.

"There now devolves upon me as president of this chamber, the pleasing duty of extending a hearty and cordial welcome to our banquet to our honored and distinguished visitors. We are glad to have them with us on this festive occasion, whether or not the reputation of our banquets is as good as reported. The gentlemen who favor us with their presence on this occasion do, by accepting the invitation, give evidence of the high esteem in which our organization is held in all parts of the state. We have reason to congratulate ourselves that we are so highly favored with speakers this evening, who are men of affairs and great experience, widely known and esteemed for their personal worth, eloquence, wit and wisdom.

"Chambers of commerce in other cities sought to secure these gifted gentlemen as speakers at their banquets, but all in vain, and to-night we are the envy of those disappointed cities and corporations.

Work and Aims of the Chamber.

"It is very pleasant to me, and I know it will be gratifying to you, to learn that our organization is in a most flourishing condition. Our debts are all paid and we have a goodly sum in the treasury. Our secretary is a veritable master of finance and I take this opportunity of thanking him for the zeal and energy he has displayed in maintaining the high standard of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce. I take pleasure also of acknowledging the efficient and faithful services of his office assistants. We have increased our membership and made our organization stronger and more serviceable than ever, and in no year of its history have our citizens shown such interest in it, and a higher appreciation of its work.

"It has been the aim of our president to make the chamber more attractive and representative, and much benefit has accrued by the introduction of new features in policy and entertainment, such as the admission of members of the learned professions, the introduction of music in the public parks on Saturday and Sunday afternoons during the summer months, popular entertainments of an educational and amusing character, interspersed between the regular monthly meeting and luncheon of the corporation. The policy of the chamber has been to benefit all the people of Rochester and familiarize them as much as possible with the workings of the chamber as a popular tribunal for the conservation of the city's highest interests.

"The attention of the people has been called more directly than on previous years to the chamber's work because of certain financial questions, both municipal and state. The attention of this body was directed on several occasions to conditions which threatened the city with great financial loss, resulting in action that saved to the people several hundred thousand dollars.

"I hope this organization will stand more and more as the center of civic influence and enterprise. It stands for the honor and uplifting of our city as does no other institution within its borders. It has always since its foundation taken a very lively and deep interest not only in the affairs of Rochester and Monroe county, but in the affairs of the state, being dominated alone by a public spirit as conspicuously distinguished from selfish ideas.

Thanks to Co-Workers.

"To the trustees, committees and members of the chamber, I present my sincere

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

and liberal support and co-operation during my term of office. To the citizens of Rochester I also desire to convey my warmest thanks for the noble manner in which they have responded to calls for funds required to further worthy causes advocated or sanctioned by this chamber.

"The literary department of the chamber's work has been conducted at much labor and expense. The periodical publication of the chamber's book, which this year is entitled 'Rochester, The Power City,' is a very handsome volume, profusely illustrated and so directed to the interests of our city that it will be a strong influence in directing the attention of the people of this and other countries to Rochester as being one of the greatest manufacturing centers of the world. The title of the book is suggestive of the work that has been done for power by a system of low dams, rather than a menacing dam, and which has secured to Rochester already some additional 20,000 horse-power available next spring.

"Forty thousand elaborately illustrated folders and many more leaflets containing condensed information about Rochester, have been published and spread broadcast by the chamber.

"In conclusion, let us not forget those who have passed to the great beyond and who, though absent in the body to-night from their accustomed seats at our annual banquet, may be with us in spirit. Let us remember their kindly faces, helpful hands and honest hearts, as we knew them in life, and may the memory of their well-spent lives cheer us on to our best endeavors to do good in our generation."

RAINES SAYS JEROME CREATED A REVOLUTION

Mr. Lamberton introduced the toastmaster of the evening, Hon. George Raines, who was greeted with a round of applause on rising.

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Raines, "I observed with pleasure in the exceedingly appropriate address of the retiring president of the chamber a very proper and well-deserved encomium upon the services of his associate officers. Let me voice their sentiments and the feelings of every member of the Chamber of Commerce in making public our appreciation of his services. He leaves the office, gentlemen, with the record of having presided over its deliberations in the most successful year in the history of the Chamber of Commerce.

"I thank you for the honor of being toastmaster to this gathering of singularly noted and eminent men from all sections of the state, and with the duties of toastmaster which I accept, I also undertake to endeavor to perform them in such manner that they shall not be a task for me nor a burden to you. I regret being obliged to call attention to the fact that we are deprived of the address of Mr. Littleton, of Brooklyn. He is arguing before the court of appeals the Miller swindle, by which the public was robbed of thousands and for the exposure of which he was so largely responsible, and not even the efforts of our own representative on that bench, Judge William E. Werner, could obtain for us the presence here tonight of that public-spirited citizen. Instead, however, we will listen to the address of a noted divine of our own city, whose remarks will maintain the high order of merit that will characterize the speeches of this evening. The Rev. S. Banks Nelson, of St. Peter's Church, will be the fourth speaker on the programme.

Legislation for New York.

"The first theme on which my eye rested in glancing over this programme was entitled 'The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law.' The first thought inspired by that title is, How are we up-state here interested in New York's liquor law system? A moment's reflection will serve to remind us that we are vitally interested, inasmuch as we have helped for years to govern the great metropolis, and by our influence in passing legislation affecting it have contributed not a little to many of the evils that afflict that distressed city. It would not be unreasonable to suppose, then, that some citizen of Greater New York was to come here to-night to make an appeal to Cæsar: to address those hayseed legislators who control the destinies of his city.

"Lo, my friends, the banquet committee has produced here the chief culprit of the metropolis to meet the arraignment of the hayseed legislators of rural New York. It is my province to present the speaker and for him to select his subject and the manner of its treatment. But if I were inclined to embarrass him with a jibe at his expense, I certainly would select some other victim than this gentleman from New York.

"The Athenians after the battle of Marathon deified Pan and erected many temples in his honor. We are accustomed to think of Pan as the god of the woods, but the ancients tell us that he was a master of strategy, a clever general who took advantage of the defiles of the mountains to so dispose his forces that the echoes of the heights increased the strength of his army in the minds of the enemy and thus contributed to his victory by filling them with fear.

"We have our New York Pan here. Has he come among us to stand on the hills of the Genesee and emit sounds whose reverberations, magnified by echo, will spread terror and alarm through his enemies in every part of the state?

Tribute to Jerome's Work.

"It is enough to say of our distinguished guest that his lineage is interwoven most honorably with the history of our own city. He has record in New York you know as well as I. Taking the ax of authority [illegible] which the state of New [illegible] hewing down the [illegible]

[illegible] ...ork [illegible] ...ed [illegible] ...ed [illegible] ...ed

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

TABLE F.

A. J. Townsend, H. J. Moon,
Rev. L. A. Barbour, T. S. Johnson,
Prof. G. M. Forbes, E. C. Moore,
R. A. Lindsay, W. T. Reeves,
P. La Boetsellier, J. W. H. Lindsay,
A. M. Lindsay, Jos. B. Hunn,
T. J. Nicholl, Fred J. Beach, Jr.,
C. E. Bayliss, Dr. I. N. Dalbey,
A. E. Swartwout, Fred Beach, Sr

TABLE S.

A. E. Bickford, Edw. W. Burton,
Peter A. Vey, James McCabe.

TABLE T.

Marcus Strauss, Dr. Max Landsberg,
M. A. Stein, A. J. Katz.

TABLE G.

Jos. A. Crane, John W. Hanna,
Chas. A. Webster, I. J. Fisher,
Jos. H. Weiss, Geo. W. Ingmire,
C. Fox Brown, John W. Keeler,
Charles Stecher, E. P. Higgins,
Jos. J. Mandery, John Alexander,
Marcus Van Bergh, Charles A. Dunham,
A. J. Johnson, Thomas H. Christie,
James Fleesch, E. C. Lapey.
John A. Davis,

TABLE H.

H. S. Woodworth, Nathan Stein,
L. E. Kirstein, Henry S. Cohn,
Mr. Prince, Herman C. Cohn,
G. C. Guggenheimer, B. Rothchild,
John Hamilton, Dr. E. R. Howard,
W. J. Markham, Dr. E. B. Potter,
M. J. Warner, Edwin A. Fisher,
F. V. Crittenden, Powell Puffer,
Hiram R. Wood, John E. Morey.
Horace McGuire,

TABLE J.

E. A. Vogt, F. S. Stebbins,
John Fahy, C. E. Ives,
Edward Frizer, C. C. Morse,
H. Everest, W. T. Plumb,
H. A. Zimmer, J. L. Wright,
F. Gommel, Wm. S. Morse,
J. R. Lacy, F. R. Graves,
R. Dunn, T. B. Pritchard,
S. G. Grittman, A. G. Wright,
E. G. Pfahl,

TABLE K.

Edward Bausch, George F. Roth,
H. W. Goetzmann, John N. Rauber,
F. A. Stecker, William Bausch,
Albert Vogt, Adolph Lomb,
J. A. Bault, George R. Rusech,
Charles W. Weiss, F. W. Yates,
L. C. Lungstow, George J. Eaton,
J. E. Yeall, James L. Hotchkiss,
F. D. Russell, C. T. Chapin.
E. B. Burgess,

TABLE L.

Simon Stein, L. B. Jones,
Henry Likly, W. C. Likly,
C. F. Ames, Fred Thompson,
J. J. Watson, S. C. Macalpine,
Charles Hoffman, Horace Myers,
B. A. Allen, W. D. Hayes,
Lee Richmond, J. A. McBride,
J. M. Taylor, Bly Meyer,
W. J. Graham, J. T. Shoemaker.
H. H. Rich,

TABLE W.

Paul T. Markoff, Henry Barnard,
Saml. S. Simond, W. J. Robinson.

TABLE X.

Myron W. Greene, Walter J. Duffy,
W. E. Morse, W. J. Naylon.

TABLE M.

George Primson, W. H. H. Rogers,
T. J. Swanton, Geo. B. Dresser,
George J. French, W. E. Dugan,
S. S. Brewster, W. W. Dake,
P. J. Cogswell, Dr. A. Dann,
Dr. L. R. Gilbert, A. A. Dumond,
W. H. Cardwell, Wm. L. Dobbin,
Philip Present, Dr. I. N. Dalbey,
Chas. A. Mented, Fred Beach, Sr

TABLE N.

Col. J. P. Cleary, Dr. George Tegz.
R. H. England, E. W. Hunt,
W. S. Strowger, R. H. Hunt,
Col. A. W. Moon, J. K. Hunt,
S. Samuel, Henry P. Neun,
N. Samuel, R. J. Mosier,
S. B. Hershey, Thos. J. Moon,
Geo. A. Lear, G. Curtis Sickles,
Thos. W. Newcomb, C. C. Newton.
Giles B. Miller,

TABLE O.

Dr. W. A. Hoard, R. C. Kershner,
G. G. MacPherson, H. F. Marks,
Peter W. Jewett, Chas. E. Lyon,
W. J. Trimble, Harvey F. Remington,
L. D. Chapin, H. H. Pryor,
H. C. Howell, C. E. Hower,
J. M. Graham, Frank Seaman,
Milton Clark, Wm. F. Wray,
E. A. Stahlbrodt, Chas. H. Wray,
H. B. McKay. R. A. Badger.

TABLE P.

E. P. Reed, D. P. McGarvey,
Oliver De Reader, Wm. Dyer,
Allen Farley, J. W. Moon,
E. M. Myers, T. J. Smythe,
Edward Lyon, C. F. Garfield,
J. F. Westervelt, B. J. Strausenburg,
J. H. Manley, H. S. Mastic,
Chas. Salmon, J. A. P. Walter,
O. W. Brigham, J. H. Lempert.
A. W. Curtis,

TABLE R.

Dr. R. A. Adams, Chas. F. Munts,
Sol Wile, George Koch,
A. B. Enos, David Hoyt,
T. F. Ford, Michael Doyle,
E. H. Chapin, Nathaniel Foote,
G. J. Curtin, Walter B. Duffy,
John M. Ives, W. F. Balkam,
E. W. Peck,

TABLE V.

John F. Alden, Herbert L. Hall,
Jas. E. Walcott, G. C. Southard,
Chas. H. Palmer, C. C. Davy,
Arthur Robinson, J. C. Kalbfleisch,
Clinton Rogers, E. G. Fenn,
Dr. Chas. H. Sumner, N. B. Spencer,
Dr. W. W. Winans, J. H. Bolcher,
H. Parry.

Mr. Young on the Tariff.

[illegible] address delivered by Richard Young before the Rochester Chamber of Commerce last evening was interesting, practical and of real value. Its subject was "America's Future Commerce and Reciprocity," and Mr. Young proved himself well qualified to deal with the questions involved. He was, we believe, a member of the delegation that represented the New York Merchants' Association at the recent Reciprocity Conference in Washington—a conference which is generally supposed to have been quite barren of results, but which Mr. Young thinks was really of some service to the cause which it was designed to promote. He said in his speech last night that he was justified in his belief by "the fact that the President considered it so seriously and constructed a platform upon which those favoring reciprocity may stand, and has set the country to thinking upon the subject." Yet when a delegation from the conference waited upon the President to urge him to say something for reciprocity in his message he is understood to have discussed the subject as if it were dangerous, and in his message he took care to favor only such reciprocity as would require no sacrifices on the part of this country. Whether this is also Mr. Young's view or not was not made altogether plain in his discussion of the question last evening. "I believe," he said, "in the abolition of duty upon articles which do not affect our home consumption." Of course the abolition of duties would have some effect upon production in almost any line that could be named. President Schwab of the Steel Trust testified before the Industrial Commission not long ago that the tariff was necessary for the gigantic corporation which he represents and there can be no doubt that if it were abolished the trust would be very considerably affected. But Mr. Young said further: "I do not believe in putting a prohibitive tariff on any article simply to enable those engaged in the business to make excessive profits, whether their goods are sold at home or abroad. I do not believe in the many being overburdened for the few." This is definite, but there can be no agreement as to what particular lines of business are making too much money and need to be curbed by abolition of duties. That is why the resolutions adopted as an expression of the sentiment of the Reciprocity Conference were apparently so meaningless. They were exactly in line with Republican platform utterances on the subject in declaring in favor of reciprocity that would not involve disadvantage to any home interests. This was not President McKinley's policy. In his great speech at Buffalo just before he was shot he declared unequivocally that he believed the time had come when we could afford to make sacrifices in order to liberalize our commercial relations with the outside world. This is the view to which the friends of reciprocity must come if they are to accomplish anything.

JEROME FEARLESSLY DISCUSSED

THE LIQUOR QUESTION

District Attorney-Elect of the Metropolis Gives His Views on Excise Matter at Chamber of Commerce Banquet---Favors Opening of Saloons on Sunday in New York at Certain Hours

BRILLIANT ORATORS SPOKE

Besides Justice Jerome, There Were Stirring Speeches by Hon. Richard Young, General A. C. Barnes and Rev. S. Banks Nelson---Latter Made a Spirited Reply to Mr. Jerome---A List of the Guests.

For fourteen years the annual banquets of the Chamber of Commerce have been a distinguished feature in the commercial life of the city. During that time many speakers of national renown have been its honored guests and the renown of these yearly festivities has spread far beyond the borders of the State. Probably no occasion of the kind, however, has been of more interest than the fourteenth annual banquet of the Chamber which was held last night in the beautiful Mirror Hall in the Powers building.

The chief interest of course centered about the distinguished guest from New York, Justice William Travers Jerome, who is so soon to take up the administration of the criminal affairs of the metropolis as District Attorney.

Justice Jerome in his meteoric career in that city has by his sincerity and courage attracted to himself much of the popularity which in the same way came to President Roosevelt. The fact that Justice Jerome was to be here was enough in itself, therefore, to attract widespread interest in the occasion, but the fact that he was to speak on a phase of the excise question which has been dodged by the politicians of both parties for so many years that he was in fact hailed as the enemy's country and to fire the first gun in the campaign for the opening of the saloons on Sunday in New York city made his visit of especial importance.

The New York newspapers sent special staff correspondents to wire back what the District Attorney-elect had to say. Those who had expected a frank opinion on the subject were not disappointed. There were gathered at the tables last night not only the local representatives to the Legislature, but many of the so-called rural representatives from various other sections of the state, for it is anticipated that the fight led by the man who waged so successful a warfare on the protected vice of a great city would undoubtedly be one of the most bitter in the history of the Legislature. Among the guests of the chamber this year was Senator John Raines, the author of the present liquor tax law. He sat nearly across the table from Justice Jerome, but this did not deter the champion of the liberal Sunday from New York from saying exactly what he thought about the law.

Nevertheless, the liquor dealers were well represented at the banquet. Morris Tekulsky of New York City, ex-president of the Liquor Dealers Association of the state of New York and of New York City, was there for the special purpose of learning what Justice Jerome had to say on the subject. He came up from New York yesterday morning with the New York newspaper men.

Mr. Tekulsky said to a Herald reporter yesterday:

"We are especially interested in this question, and are going to make a strong fight this year in the Legislature to have a law passed which will give saloonkeepers the right to sell liquor during certain hours on Sunday. We have not been in consultation with Justice Jerome, but, of course, we want to hear what he has to say on the subject."

An Extemporaneous Speaker.

Justice Jerome did not arrive in the city until yesterday afternoon. He was met by a portion of the reception committee headed by President Lamberton of the chamber and escorted to Powers Hotel.

The Justice had no sooner arrived than he was besieged by many callers anxious to shake his hand. When seen by a Herald reporter he seemed slightly fatigued by his journey.

When asked if he used manuscript in his addresses Justice Jerome laughed. "Never tried it but once," he said, "and then I had so hard a time to keep to it that I made up my mind that I would never do it again. I do not speak on a subject unless my heart is in it, and then I feel freer when not confined to any lines.

"Yes, our campaign was lively. You can imagine what it was when I tell you that on one night in Brooklyn I addressed seven meetings, traveled 35 miles and used four automobiles, and yet I have been more fatigued since the campaign was over in preparing to take up the duties of my office and in getting ready for the fight on the question on which I am to speak to-night, than I was in all the work of the campaign.

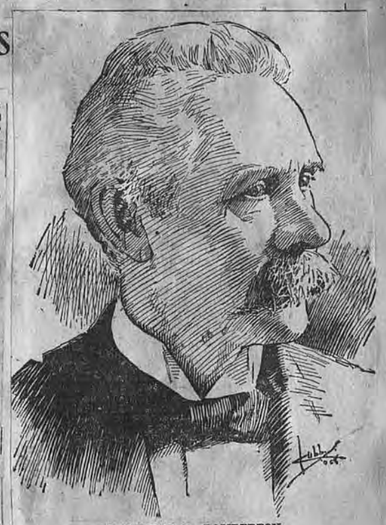
"I have found from personal experience that it is impossible to enforce any law that is unpopular. It only results in raising the price of blackmail."

Mr. Littleton Did Not Come.

Of the other speakers, Hon. Richard Young and General Alfred Barnes also arrived yesterday afternoon. Hon. Martin W. Littleton was to have spoken on the theme, "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age," but he was detained by the argument of a case in the Court of Appeals Judge Werner secured the consent of the court to postpone the case until Wednesday, but Mr. Littleton's opponent would not consent to the arrangement and Mr. Littleton was therefore unable to reach this city in time for the banquet. He sent the following letter of regret to the committee: The Tea Kryk.

Albany, N. Y., December 16, 1901.
John M. Ives, Esq.:

My Dear Sir—Mr. Clark and I arrived here yesterday in order to be ready to argue our case before the Court of Appeals to-day, for which time it was previously set. We found that there was an unfinished case to-day and we have attended all day to-day in the hope that we would get on. The unfinished case occupied the whole day's session and has not gone the first row to-day.



ALEXANDER E. LAMBERTON,
President of the Chamber of Commerce.

called to-morrow at 2 o'clock. I am to argue for the people and having prepared the brief I cannot now shift it to him. It will be impossible for us to finish before 5 o'clock, and then it will be too late to make the dinner on time. We have applied to the courts to set it for Wednesday but this has been refused. If it were an ordinary case I would go and let it go to "smash." But we represent the people in an appeal from Jam. F. Miller who stole over $1,000,000 in Brooklyn by means of a 2% per cent. scheme of which you perhaps read in the papers, and the people holding us in strict accountability in the final appeal.

Your disappointment will not equal our regret and especially mine. I have prepared with some pains for this dinner and had expected "the time" of my life. Please convey to the committee my sincere regrets and say to them that nothing save an imperative public duty could have caused me to forego the honored pleasure of being in your midst.

I am with great regret,
Yours sincerely,
MARTIN W. LITTLETON.

Mr. Littleton's place on the programme was taken by Rev. S. Banks Nelson, pastor of St. Peter's Church, who made a spirited reply to the address of Justice Jerome.

Reception to Mr. Jerome.

There was a reception from 6:15 to 7:15 o'clock in the parlors adjoining the hall to give the guests an opportunity of meeting the speakers. President Lamberton of the reception committee introduced the guests to Justice Jerome who stood at the head of the line. At the conclusion of the reception the guests took their places at the tables.

The banquet hall was tastefully decorated with the American colors hung at intervals over the balustrades of the balconies. At the east end of the balcony the orchestra played from behind a great bank of palms. Here also there was a large seal of the State of New York.

The tables were in charge of caterer Teall. Covers were laid for nearly four hundred guests. The tables were tastefully trimmed with roses and chrysanthemums. After grace had been said by Rev. Dr. William R. Taylor of Brick Church, the dinner was served. The menu being as follows:

HUITRES
Blue Points
Celery

POTAGE
Green Turtle Soup

POISSON
Lobster a la Newburg in Cases

ENTREES
Sweetbread Timbals
Sauce a l'Anglaise

RELEVE
Turkey Cutlet Brown Sauce
Potato au Gratin
Asparagus Cream Sauce
Roman Punch

GIBIER
Roast Quail
Russian Salad of Fresh Tomato
Boston Lettuce

DESSERT
Biscuit Tortoni
Assorted Cakes
Roquefort and Cream Cheese
Malaga and Catawba Grapes
Coffee

The Musical Features.

At the conclusion of the menu the guests had a surprise. Miss Mattie Fulton of New York City, the celebrated soprano who sang the Star Spangled Banner at the Kansas City Convention, sang "The Last Rose of Summer." So heartily did the guests applaud that she sang for them "The Star Spangled Banner." As the orchestra struck up the air the banqueters stood on their feet and, with long-continued applause, endeavored to secure another selection, but Miss Fulton did not sing again.

Miss Fulton was the woman who sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee" at the memorial services in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American Exposition in memory of the death of President McKinley. She happened to be in this city and in response to an invitation to sing at the banquet gracefully responded.

During the banquet a fine programme was rendered by Dossenbach's Orchestra. The numbers were as follows:

March—Invincible Eagle ..... Sousa
March—The Messenger Boy ..... Meulaer
Selection—The Strollers ..... Englander
Waltz—The Yacht, Laura Brooks Ellwanger
Dedicated to Sir Thomas Lipton.
Florodora—
a In the Shade of the Palms..... Stuart
b Sextette ..... Stuart
Intermezzo—The Feast ..... Meyer
Selection—The Rogers Bros. in Washington ..... Edgar Waltz—Romance of the Ball ..... Edgar
Dedicated to Dossenbach.
Songs of All Nations.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

General Alfred C. Barnes.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

Retiring President Lamberton Compliments His Associates.

After Miss Fulton had sung "Star Spangled Banner," A. B. Lamberton, the retiring president, arose and spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, and Honored Guests—I can conceive of no more beneficial influence that can accrue to the city of Rochester, than the holding of the annual banquets of its Chamber of Commerce. They have been in the past and will continue to be the great social event of our chamber, and I am proud to be its presiding officer on this, the first banquet on the dawn of a new century. That we are so well known as a corporate body abroad, as well as at home, is due almost as much to our annual dinners, of which so many illustrious men have been our guests, as to our zeal in promoting and protecting the trade and commerce of our city. The real charm of our annual banquets centers in the fact that we have enjoyed the companionship of so many distinguished gentlemen, who have graced our board and delighted our minds with their eloquent and instructive speeches.

"There now devolves upon me as president of this chamber, the pleasing duty of extending a hearty and cordial welcome to our banquet of our honored and distinguished visitors. We are glad to have them with us on this festive occasion, whether or no the reputation of our banquets is as good as reported. The gentlemen who favor us with their presence on this occasion, do, by accepting the invitation, give evidence of the high esteem in which our organization is held in all parts of the state. We have reason to congratulate ourselves that we are so highly favored with speakers this evening, who are men of affairs and great experience, widely known and esteemed for their personal worth, eloquence, wit and wisdom.

Chambers of Commerce in other cities sought to secure these gifted gentlemen as speakers at their banquets, but all in vain, and to-night we are the envy of those disappointed cities and corporations.

Chamber Is Prosperous.

"It is very pleasant to me and I know it will be gratifying to you to learn that our organization is in a most flourishing condition. Our debts are all paid and we have a goodly sum in the treasury. Our secretary is a veritable master of finance and I take this opportunity of thanking him for the zeal and energy he has displayed in maintaining the high standard of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce. I take pleasure also of acknowledging the efficient and faithful services of his office assistants.

"We have increased our membership and made our organization stronger and more serviceable than ever, and in no year of its history have our citizens shown such interest in it, and a higher appreciation of its work.

"It has been the aim of your president to make the chamber more attractive and representative and much benefit has accrued by the introduction of new features in policy and entertainment, such as the admission of members of the learned professions, the introduction of music in the public parks on Saturday and Sunday afternoons during the summer months, popular entertainments of an educational and amusing character, interspersed between the regular monthly meeting and luncheon of the corporation. The policy of the chamber has been to benefit all the people of Rochester and familiarize them as much as possible with the workings of the chamber as a popular tribunal for the conservation of the city's highest interests.

"The attention of the people has been called more directly than on previous years to the chamber's work because of certain financial questions both municipal and state. The attention of this body was directed on several occasions to conditions which threatened the city with great financial loss, resulting in action that saved to the people several hundred thousand dollars.

Center of Civic Influence.

"I hope this organization will stand more and more as the center of civic influence and enterprise. It stands for the honor and uplifting of our city as does no other institution within its borders. It always since its foundation taken a lively and deep interest not only in the affairs of Rochester and county, but in the affairs of the state, being dominated alone by a public spirit as contradistinguished from selfish ideas.

"To the trustees, committees and members of the chamber, I present most grateful acknowledgment and thanks for their liberal support and co-operation during my term of office. To the cussion of the theme. It is for me to present the speaker and to allow him to chose his own method without embarrassment at the hands of the toastmaster. If I were to undertake any jibes at the speakers of the evening I should not elect in the first instance the gentleman from New York as the subject of any jibe.

Hon. Richard Young.

"The ancient Athenians after the battle of Marathon established a festival to the god Pan. We are accustomed to think of Pan as the god of the woods and of the shepherds, but the ancients tell us that was also the master of strategy, the inciter of alarms, that he took his forces up in the hills in order that the reverberations among the hills might increase the terror of the forces that were opposed to him. The god Pan of the metropolis is here. He has come among the hills of the Genesee that its echoes may cause panic to those who oppose the theory that he advocates.

"I shall not go into any biographical history of the distinguished speaker of the evening. It is enough to say of him that [illegible]

[illegible] ...ghest honors in the city, municipal problems [illegible] business administration and [illegible] physical sciences, but [illegible] the study of physical sciences, and [illegible] these; some that excite religious feeling, and some that excite religious feeling, and some that excite motives base as well as some that are noble.

"You cannot solve the first problem unless you approach them honestly, and never can supreme honesty in the city of New York, because until they are solved no honest administration can resolved no honest administration can remain long enough in office to grapple with them, and they are, and always will be, remitted to the tender mercies of Tammany Hall, which will solve no problem honestly that is possible to solve at all.

"Now, one of these problems it may seem strange to you that I lay such emphasis upon, but one of these problems that confronts us now is no theory but a daily condition, embracing all other problems, embracing the province of politics and affairs in the city of New York, one that is real and one for the solution of which I have come here to put up a cry for help, is this very one, this dealing with the liquor problem in the city of New York.

"We have 15,000 saloons in the city of New York, and we have at least 7,000 saloons open on every Sunday, in spite of the severity of the laws which the Raines law has imposed in regard to us in that respect.

Buyers Are Lawbreakers.

"No saloon can keep open profitably unless at least twenty different men visit it on that day, so that you have in the city of New York at least 140,000 voters who every Sunday of the year go into the saloon and take one or more drinks, and they go there without believing that the offense that they commit is one involving moral turpitude, and they go away believing and knowing that it is not a crime, but going into the side door and soliciting another man to commit a crime in selling to them.

"The self respect of those men is lost and the self respect of the man who sells is lost, and the administration that endeavors to enforce that law goes out of office as inevitably at the expiration of its term as any administration can.

"But I am told You make no honest effort to enforce this law; what you need is more drastic punishment; what you need more is the pressure of an honest effort,' Said John Raines: 'If there is a man more cordially hated by the liquor dealers in the State than I am, I will give a thousand dollars to any charity you may name.'

"The views I advocate here to-night are views which have been forced upon me against my wishes and against my former convictions because for six and a half years have I have sat in the courts in the city of New York upon which the burden of administering this law was cast and there came at one time a combination there of three men who controlled the whole legal machinery of the city of New York and who believed as sincerely in the possibility of the so-called Raines law as the Senator himself. And that was what made the test so thorough.

"Theodore Roosevelt was president of the police board; John Goff was presiding in one part of the general sessions and I had the honor to preside in the court of special sessions. And there was nowhere they could go to, and in the vernacular of the day they were 'up against it.'

"The whole power of the county was exercised and exercised with absolute ruthlessness to enforce this law. I myself sent a widow woman, the supporter of a family, to the penitentiary for three months because she sold a glass of beer on Sunday. I do not think it can be said that that was dealing with the question very tenderly.

"There was no loophole, apparently, so far as the law could prevent it, and, gentlemen, what was the net result? Prior to the Strong administration the tariff on the liquor dealer for selling on Sunday was $5 a month. During the last four years of Mr. Van Wyck's administration, with the exception of one district of the city, the tariff has been $5 a month.

"During the administration of Mr. Roosevelt as president of the Police Board there was more danger. There were no more saloons closed than there are to-day with all this effort; but the tariff was $10 a month.

"The net result of as honest, determined an effort as could possibly be made resulted in raising the blackmail to $10 from $5. We have had beautiful developments from this wise law, which, in the city of New York, we call the 'Raines law hotel.' We have developed 2,167 of them where an India rubber sandwich was chained to the wall and it is pulled out when the drink is ordered and is allowed to go back.

"That law permits 2,167 places to sell rum on Sunday by having a 'fly-blown' sandwich which does duty all day long. That is indeed maintaining the sanctity of the Sabbath in closing the saloons on Sunday. If that is the kind of hypocrisy that the American people like, I misjudge them. It is not the kind of people to whom I made my play in the campaign. I played to that which was honest, which could look the truth in the face; that which was loyal; and I ran 17,000 ahead of my ticket.

"I am a young man and I have the misfortune to be a Democrat; but I have tried to learn the lesson of wisdom that those men who have given to the Republican party the dignity and the sentiment that it has to-day—and in my judgment it still has—but which, if it is going to maintain it, must learn a new lesson that those great leaders taught, it seems to me.

Both Political Machines Rotten.

"But to solve problems that have to be approached honestly, as these propositions have, to be solved for the welfare of the people, is more difficult. They cannot be approached for the benefit of one little clique governing one little political machine, or one governing another in the municipalities in our metropolis, for I know your politics in the country here are so pure that the dominant party always is raised above any such contemplation; but IN OUR CITY BOTH MACHINES ARE SO RADICALLY AND FUNDAMENTALLY ROTTEN THAT THERE IS NOTHING TO CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

[illegible]

[illegible] ...ANT IS NOT SEEKING TO HAVE ANY CHANGE MADE IN THIS LAW IN REGARD TO THE REVENUE, for I suppose, as we look at it, that might affect the 'hayseeds.' We do not look for that. With them there are many things that are unwise about it. We say we will waive all those. We look for one thing. WE LOOK FOR A LAW THAT WE CAN ENFORCE. We look for a law that won't debauch our public service; that won't dangle from $600,000 to $750,000 a year blackmail before our police department. These men are better when they are appointed, better morally and physically, than the average man in the community.

"But can you devise a scheme more admirable than this to debauch the public service? Can you offer $600,000 or $750,000 a year in this form of blackmail to the average man and expect him to resist it? Can you take a police captain with 200 saloons in his district and have $12,000 paid to a man in New Jersey, where you cannot trace it, just across the river?

"Can you do that and expect that the average man or all the average men are going to resist it?

"If you think so, if you think so well of humanity, if that is what happens on your hills here, come down to New York where we have no hills, and we can show you differently.

"What we want is to take from us the conditions that are defeating us, the conditions that are debauching our public life, that are keeping in politics an industry that has no more business in politics than dry goods with groceries.

"You may have all the law, have all the revenue from this thing to pay your debts up country if you please, take all the taxes of the municipalities, and let the country go free entirely, tax no haytricks or sheep, or cows, or barnyards, or any other rural paraphernalia that you want; we will pay the whole thing if need be, but do not debauch us. Do not make every effort that we make for better things futile. Do not, after the four years that we have had, throw us back into the arms of Tammany Hall, where woman's shame is rung upon cash registers and paid for in cashed checks. Do not give us that again. That is what I am here for, to ask you to help us to have it different.

Mr. Jerome's Proposed Law.

"WE WANT YOU TO CHANGE THIS LAW SO THAT FROM 1 O'CLOCK ON SUNDAY UNTIL 10 OR 11 O'CLOCK ON SUNDAY NIGHT LIQUOR MAY BE SOLD AS IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK IN OTHER PLACES THAN THE 2,167 RAINES LAW HOTELS. (Great applause.)

"We want a chance to deal with this moral question by moral means. We want a chance to save people from intemperance, to get them to lead better lives by religion, and not by trying to do the impossible with the criminal law. You won't help us? In two years you will restore us to what we have enforced for the two years past? And the fault won't be with us, for we will have tried to change it. The fault will be with the people outside of the city of New York who, not alive to the conditions there and unwilling to acquaint themselves with it restore us again to the conditions of utter hopelessness that we have been in for some years past.

"Such a law as I have indicated is enforcible, and the question is not whether or no such a law will have no evils attending it. I know no law that touches great social questions that does not have its faults. DON'T THINK THAT I THINK THAT THE OPENING OF THE SALOONS IS A DESIRABLE THING. God knows that with the experience that I have had, that if I could close them for all time I would be the first to vote 'aye' on that proposition. But the question before us is whether an unenforcible law on our statute books does not bring incidental evils more terrible than the incidental evils of allowing such an opening, and Dr. Parkhurst well said a bill for Sunday opening during limited hours in the city of New York is not a bill for Sunday opening. It is a bill for Sunday closing, and that is really what it is.

Rich Man Favored by Law.

"And then, think you, in a country where no grades that all men are born free and equal, and where we indulge in various lucubrations on the subject of anarchy; do you think that it comports with respect and deference to the law that the poor man can walk down Fifth Avenue, and he can pass the Union League Club, and the University club, and the Manhattan Club, and the Union Club, where he can see the rich man sitting there and drinking, by reason of this beautiful change in the law, and yet he cannot get a drink.

"That my wit was never able to fathom, whereby by that law all associations prior to a certain day in March and which does duty all day long. That is indeed maintaining the sanctity of the Sabbath in closing the saloons on Sunday. If that is the kind of hypocrisy that the American people like, I misjudge them. It is not the kind of people to whom I made my play in the campaign. I played to that which was honest, which could look the truth in the face; that which was loyal; and I ran 17,000 ahead of my ticket.

"I am a young man and I have the misfortune to be a Democrat; but I have tried to learn the lesson of wisdom that those men who have given to the Republican party the dignity and the sentiment that it has to-day—and in my judgment it still has—but which, if it is going to maintain it, must learn a new lesson that those great leaders taught, it seems to me.

Social Clubs Are Lawbreakers.

"THERE IS NOT A SOCIAL CLUB IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK THAT DOES NOT EVERY DAY VIOLATE THIS LAW, BECAUSE THEY ALLOW CARDS TO BE PLAYED THERE FOR MONEY.

[illegible] ...ghest honors in the city, municipal problems [illegible] business administration and [illegible] physical sciences, but [illegible] the study of physical sciences, and [illegible] these; some that excite religious feeling, and some that excite religious feeling, and some that excite motives base as well as some that are noble.

"You cannot solve the first problem unless you approach them honestly, and never can supreme honesty in the city of New York, because until they are solved no honest administration can remain long enough in office to grapple with them, and they are, and always will be, remitted to the tender mercies of Tammany Hall, which will solve no problem honestly that is possible to solve at all.

"Now, one of these problems it may seem strange to you that I lay such emphasis upon, but one of these problems that confronts us now is no theory but a daily condition, embracing all other problems, embracing the province of politics and affairs in the city of New York, one that is real and one for the solution of which I have come here to put up a cry for help, is this very one, this dealing with the liquor problem in the city of New York.

"We have 15,000 saloons in the city of New York, and we have at least 7,000 saloons open on every Sunday, in spite of the severity of the laws which the Raines law has imposed in regard to us in that respect.

Buyers Are Lawbreakers.

"No saloon can keep open profitably unless at least twenty different men visit it on that day, so that you have in the city of New York at least 140,000 voters who every Sunday of the year go into the saloon and take one or more drinks, and they go there without believing that the offense that they commit is one involving moral turpitude, and they go away believing and knowing that it is not a crime, but going into the side door and soliciting another man to commit a crime in selling to them.

"The self respect of those men is lost and the self respect of the man who sells is lost, and the administration that endeavors to enforce that law goes out of office as inevitably at the expiration of its term as any administration can.

"But I am told You make no honest effort to enforce this law; what you need is more drastic punishment; what you need more is the pressure of an honest effort,' Said John Raines: 'If there is a man more cordially hated by the liquor dealers in the State than I am, I will give a thousand dollars to any charity you may name.'

"The views I advocate here to-night are views which have been forced upon me against my wishes and against my former convictions because for six and a half years have I have sat in the courts in the city of New York upon which the burden of administering this law was cast and there came at one time a combination there of three men who controlled the whole legal machinery of the city of New York and who believed as sincerely in the possibility of the so-called Raines law as the Senator himself. And that was what made the test so thorough.

"Theodore Roosevelt was president of the police board; John Goff was presiding in one part of the general sessions and I had the honor to preside in the court of special sessions. And there was nowhere they could go to, and in the vernacular of the day they were 'up against it.'

"The whole power of the county was exercised and exercised with absolute ruthlessness to enforce this law. I myself sent a widow woman, the supporter of a family, to the penitentiary for three months because she sold a glass of beer on Sunday. I do not think it can be said that that was dealing with the question very tenderly.

"There was no loophole, apparently, so far as the law could prevent it, and, gentlemen, what was the net result? Prior to the Strong administration the tariff on the liquor dealer for selling on Sunday was $5 a month. During the last four years of Mr. Van Wyck's administration, with the exception of one district of the city, the tariff has been $5 a month.

"During the administration of Mr. Roosevelt as president of the Police Board there was more danger. There were no more saloons closed than there are to-day with all this effort; but the tariff was $10 a month.

"The net result of as honest, determined an effort as could possibly be made resulted in raising the blackmail to $10 from $5. We have had beautiful developments from this wise law, which, in the city of New York, we call the 'Raines law hotel.' We have developed 2,167 of them where an India rubber sandwich was chained to the wall and it is pulled out when the drink is ordered and is allowed to go back.

"That law permits 2,167 places to sell rum on Sunday by having a 'fly-blown' sandwich which does duty all day long. That is indeed maintaining the sanctity of the Sabbath in closing the saloons on Sunday. If that is the kind of hypocrisy that the American people like, I misjudge them. It is not the kind of people to whom I made my play in the campaign. I played to that which was honest, which could look the truth in the face; that which was loyal; and I ran 17,000 ahead of my ticket.

"I am a young man and I have the misfortune to be a Democrat; but I have tried to learn the lesson of wisdom that those men who have given to the Republican party the dignity and the sentiment that it has to-day—and in my judgment it still has—but which, if it is going to maintain it, must learn a new lesson that those great leaders taught, it seems to me.

JUSTICE JEROME'S ADDRESS.

Pleads for Open Saloons on Sunday for the Metropolis.

When Justice Jerome arose to speak he was greeted with prolonged applause. He did not speak in the fiery way he addressed many of the political meetings in New York City during the recent campaign, but his address was forcible, nevertheless. Although sarcastic at times, he did not attempt to abuse the upstate legislators, but said that if the city of New York was to secure the legislation it desired it must have their help, and for this help he was pleading. He said:

"Mr. President, Mr. Toastmaster—falsely so called, because I see that it should be Mr. Roastmaster. I am not here to try and fill your ears with any empty reverberations of strategem or Greek metaphors of a mixed variety. I am here because my heart is in a certain question, because I feel a vow to the people who have treated me well, and to whom I am in honor bound to discharge my obligations; because to do the things that those who feel as I do on this matter, to do those things we have got to have help. We have got to have help from outside the city of New York, because your learned toastmaster has said some few things in his remarks.

"There is one thing that must strike everybody that pays any attention to public affairs, and that is the enormous growth of the municipalities in the various states in this country for some years past, their growth at the expense of the rural district, their growth at the expense even of the 'hayseeds'; and while they have grown their interests have by no means ruled the interests, ruled the course of legislation.

"Their vital needs have too often been unknown to those who, in the best of good faith, I believe, have imposed laws on them radically unjust and unwise, not because they were unjust and unwise in seeking to remedy serious evils, but unjust and unwise because the evils that they brought in were greater than the evils they sought to remedy.

"In dealing with public affairs, in dealing with the affairs of life, it is by no means always best to remedy latent evils, and it was when we came to remedy a moral evil, however intense it may be, by the instrumentality of the criminal law, that evils far worse than the primary ones sought to be obviated will be in turn introduced. So this growth of the municipalities has made the municipal problem of the highest importance.

"When you realize that in the city of New York to-day there is gathered almost half the population of the state of New York; that at the time of the consolidation of the boroughs of the Bronx and Manhattan alone the population was increasing at the rate of 53,000 a year; that a great city was being added each and every year to these two boroughs of the old city of New York, you can see something of the problem, and you can realize it is but a few short years when a majority of the population of the state of New York will be gathered in the single municipality.

"It is a city with a great homogeneity of population, which holds more Germans than any other city in the world; holds more Jews than Jerusalem ever had, even in the eyes of Josephus; it is the largest Irish city in the world; it has a large Bohemian, Polish and Slavic population, with all these different nationalities, with all these differences of creed and race instincts.

"The slightest thought shows that the problem to deal with it by no means easy of solution. The probleme that confront one are of practical science; questions of waste and transportation, and each of these is difficult enough; but it has aroused no passions of race or creed. They bring in no element of religion; they bring in no jarring warfare of the different sections; whether the question water should be filtered or not—such propositions of physical science can be solved without difficulty. The question of the disposal of refuse, the question of cleaning the streets are business propositions; even the question of water, especially if you haven't a block of Ramapo stock, can be discussed impassionately.

Both Political Machines Rotten.

"But to solve problems that have to be approached honestly, as these propositions have, to be solved for the welfare of the people, is more difficult. They cannot be approached for the benefit of one little clique governing one little political machine, or one governing another in the municipalities in our metropolis, for I know your politics in the country here are so pure that the dominant party always is raised above any such contemplation; but IN OUR CITY BOTH MACHINES ARE SO RADICALLY AND FUNDAMENTALLY ROTTEN THAT THERE IS NOTHING TO CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

[illegible]

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

and I realize, gentlemen, that in the aspect of the question there was a force in this community that, if it once aroused itself, if the battle be once made for the women and the children of these people, they may have a fair chance to be respectable in this community.

"Those who stand in the way of that force, if they stand there corruptly or if they stand there merely as a matter of politics, will wish that they had never been born. You will awake a healthy sentiment and a true sentiment that will sweep before it all opposition when you get that once aroused; you get the liquor dealers of this state organized in every town of this state, you get them once aroused for the sake of their wives and the bairns, and you will have a force, a moral force, that every politician has got to reckon with.

"Now don't understand me as saying that a change in the law will make every liquor dealer respectable, but changes that will allow him to conduct his business without being disreputable, and at the same time giving him the conditions under which he may be respectable if he desires to, and from my knowledge of the trade I believe that in the boroughs of the Bronx and Manhattan in the city of New York, with a population of about two million, there may be a hundred places of a disreputable character, insofar as it is strictly saloons where they sell to children, where they would have drunken men about, and these men the dealers would be glad to see eliminated.

"Such a law as I have indicated would be upheld. I am at liberty to say that I have the pledge of the liquor association that to such a law it would give implicit obedience; that it would expel from its association anybody who violated it; that it would join with the authorities in the prosecution of any man who violated it. It is something to find a law that the trade itself is willing to accept, and for which it will give guarantees of obedience.

"It seems to me, as I look at this question, that last phase of it that I have touched upon, that a law which will almost of necessity doom to a loss of self-respect of 130,000 people in one community, presents a moral feature, the value of which, the importance of which, no language is quite adequate to describe.

"I am told that I am butting my head against a stone wall, and those who are working with me to effect such a change as this. I am told that no legislative body in the state of New York will pass such a law. I won't believe it until I see it. I have got still some faith, even in the Legislature of the state of New York. (Laughter.)

"I do not believe that they will make a party question of it if it is brought up there not as a party question. If it is brought up there as something touching the interests of three millions of people, and they are asked to give it a hearing fairly and justly on its merits, to give it a hearing and consider it in the light of our great need, I do not believe that representative institutions, and I will not believe, that they are such a failure that they will make a party issue of it, and until I have a demonstration of that fact.

There is no politics in this with the people who are associated with me in trying to bring this thing about. We humbly ask for a fair consideration of this. If it be considered fairly on its merits after careful inquiry, I for one can have no doubt of the outcome when the situation is really known, but if there are indeed those who put the vital cause of a great municipality, having nearly half the population of this great State, if they put their vital needs subservient to the interests of a political party, if motives as base as that are to lead them to a violation of their oath of office, to such I have a suggestion on a different plane.

"Let them consider whether they desire to hasten the advent of a question long since ripe for introduction and gradually forcing its way to the front, a question, the introduction of which may be delayed a very short time.

"Do such ones want to introduce the deeper or wider question or hasten the advent of that question, the deeper question to which this liquor question, if defeated on party lines, will lead? Do they want to hasten the naked political issue in this state, to be fought on political lines, the question of whether the vital needs of this people of our great municipalities shall not be considered on their merits, but shall be considered only from the standpoint of the exigencies of political parties?

"If there be those base minds who wish to lay aside this question on its merits and treat it on party lines, let them think a second time before they introduce that question, at a time when there is an election coming on in the year 1901; let them think a second time before they desire to lock horns with a party almost defunct, but which it is possible to rejuvenate and revivify if you give it an issue as broad and as deep as that, and one based on sound political philosophy and moral precedent."

At the conclusion of his speech, Mr. Jerome excused himself to the president and toastmaster and left in order to take a night train for New York.

COMMERCE AND RECIPROCITY.

Hon. Richard Young Discusses America's Future.

In introducing the next speaker, Hon. Richard Young, who spoke on "America's Future Commerce and Reciprocity," Mr. Raines spoke of his commercial activity and of the great progress of trade in this country. The toastmaster said it was indeed a treat to have one of the foremost men of the commercial world address the audience on a topic which he was so well qualified to handle. Mr. Young is becoming prominent Complete List of Guests.

Following are the names of all the guests who sat at the tables:

TABLE A.

Hon. Adolph J. Rodenbeck, Hon. John Van Voorhis, Colonel J. S. Graham, Hon. John Raines, Hon. W. S. Parkhurst, Hon. W. W. Armstrong, Hon. George W. Aldridge, Hon. Merton E. Lewis, James G. Cutler, Dr. Rush Rhees, Rufus A. Sibley, Dr. William R. Taylor, Rev. Dr. J. Banks Nelson, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, Hon. George Raines, Justice William Travers Jerome, A. B. Lamberton, Hon. Richard Young, Charles F. Ford, General Alfred C. Barnes, H. B. Hathaway, Eugene T. Curtis, Judge Charles M. McLouth, Hon. George A. Carnahan, Hon. E. G. Treat, Max Brickner, Charles J. Brown, Charles E. Angle, Charles S. Abbott, George Eastman, L. P. Ross, D. S. Bloomer, John N. Beckley, W. J. Wilgus, Thomas B. Dunn, Frederick Stein, Hon. Walter S. Hubbell, Albert O. Fenn, Louis N. Stein, Frank H. Hamlin, Rev. George D. Miller, D. M. Gordon, C. H. Babcock, Hon. F. W. Griffith, Professor S. A. Lattimore, Hon. George H. Smith, Hon. J. H. Loomis, Martin Davis, Stephen J. Warren, Judge Arthur E. Sutherland, Charles L. Hunt, Rev. Dr. George W. Peck, Judge John H. Chadsey, Dr. H. H. Stebbins, Rev. L. P. Coddington, David B. Murphy, Hon. Howard Gardiner.

TABLE C.

C. S. Lunt, William Karle, Colonel H. S. Redman, John F. Morse, G. Elbert Taylor, William H. Driscoll, William R. Welch, Henry Michaels, E. F. Blockford, H. O. Jones, Frank S. Wood, George M. Williams, H. F. Wegeman, M. Van Valkenberg, William Johnson, Frank J. Hone, James Fee, Charles R. Barnum, C. C. Loebs, John C. Enders, John Bowley, William Simon, Colonel Schwartz, John Costello, M. Kondolf, S. B. Foster, Herman Bartels, Jr., Edwin C. Hale, P. Gilman, Toby Meyers, L. L. Stone, F. G. Ranney, John A. Graham, J. S. Vick, W. S. Whittlesey, Major M. L. Hutchinson, J. C. Connelly, H. F. Drake, T. Meyer, E. J. Miner, jr., Ralph Reiler, Julius M. Wile, S. R. Stern, L. W. Moore, H. S. Holman, Hugh McNulty, Dr. N. M. Collins.

TABLE D.

George B. Watkins, C. M. Thom, C. M. Fink, H. B. Graves, Dr. M. E. Gosnell, Dr. J. M. Lee, L. G. Wetmore, A. V. Smith, Dr. W. W. Smith, C. S. Kellogg, E. J. Bennett, R. C. Dudley, Frank E. Ellison, J. G. Tyrrell, Hugh Nevin, L. R. Foulkes, M. D. Shantz, H. H. Griffith, H. Clay Eaton, D. D. Babcock, B. G. Bennett.

TABLE E.

W. J. Curtin, C. Craig Powers, Edward W. Peck, A. B. Eastwood, William E. Sloan, W. W. Powers, A. M. McDonald, T. F. Ashley, Dr. J. O. Roe, Dr. Wesley T. Mulligan, Dr. D. G. Hastings, Dr. John W. Whitbeck, A. Byron Smith, George C. Buell, H. P. Brewster, W. C. Barry, Thomas J. Devine, E. Frank Brewer, H. C. Kimball.

TABLE F.

A. J. Townson, H. J. Moore, T. S. Johnston, Eric C. Moore, W. T. Benson, J. M. H. Lindsay, Joseph B. Hone, Fred J. Beach, jr., Dr. I. N. Dudley, Fred Beach, sr., E. E. Swarthout, C. E. Bayliss, F. J. Nichell, W. J. Baker, A. M. Lindsay, B. L. Boutelier, R. A. Lindsay, Professor Forbes, Rev. C. A. Barbour.

TABLE G.

Joseph A. Crane, John A. Davis, Jacob Flocsch, A. J. Johnson, Marcus Van Bergh, J. J. Mandery, Charles Stecher, T. Fox Brown, Joseph H. Weiss, Charles A. Webster, John W. Hannan, I. J. Fisher, George W. Ingmire, John W. Keller, E. P. Higgins, John Alexander, Charles A. Dunham, Thomas H. Christie, E. C. Lapey.

TABLE H.

H. S. Woodworth, Horace McGuire, Hiram R. Wood, P. C. Crittenden, M. J. Warner, John Hamilton, George C. Sugenheim, M. Prince, L. E. Kirstein, Nathan Stein, Henry S. Cohn, Herman C. Cohn, B. Rothschild, Dr. E. H. Howard, Dr. E. B. Potter, Edwin A. Fisher, S. Powell Putter, John E. Morey.

TABLE J.

A. E. Vogt, E. G. Prahl, W. Goetzmann, R. Dunn, J. R. Davy, F. Remmel, H. A. Zimmer, R. Everest, Ed Prizer, John Fahy, P. S. Bebbins, C. E. Ives, L. L. Morse, W. T. Plumb, J. S. Wright, William S. Morey, F. H. Graves, T. B. Pritchard, H. G. Wright.

TABLE K.

Ed. Bausch, George P. Roth, J. N. Bauer, William Bausch, Adolph Lomb, G. E. Bausch, F. W. Yates, G. L. Eaton, James L. Hotchkiss, C. F. Chapin.

TABLE L.

Simon Stein, L. B. Jones, W. C. Likly, Fred Thompson, H. C. MacInnis, Horace Myers, W. D. Hayes, J. A. McBride, Ely Meyer, J. S. Shumaker.

TABLE M.

George Primrose, George B. Dresser, W. E. Dugan, W. C. Rogers, A. Dann, A. A. Dumond, William L. Dobbin, L. A. Bottridge, Levi Adler, T. J. Swanton, George J. French, S. E. Brewster, P. J. Cogswell, Dr. L. G. Gilbert, W. H. Caldwell, P. President, Charles A. Menter, W. H. H. Rogers.

TABLE N.

Colonel J. P. Cleary, Dr. George Tenney, W. Hunt, H. Hunt, J. K. Hunt, Henry P. Neunn, R. J. Mosier, Thomas J. Moore, J. Curtis Sickles, C. C. Newton, H. H. England, W. S. Strong, Colonel A. W. Moore, S. Samuel, N. Samuel, S. B. Hershey, George A. Grant, Thomas W. Newcomb, Giles B. Miller.

TABLE O.

G. G. MacPherson, H. P. Marks, Charles E. Lyon, Harvey F. Remington, H. H. Taylor, C. E. Stevens, Frank Staman, William F. Wray, Charles H. Wray, A. A. Badger, Dr. L. A. Hoard, H. H. McKay, E. A. Stahlbrodt, Milton Clark, V. M. Graham, H. C. Howlett, E. D. Chapin, W. J. Thumble, Peter Mayer, Edward Lewis, R. C. Kershner.

TABLE P.

E. P. Reid, D. P. McGarrey, William Dyer, J. W. Moore, J. Smyth, C. F. Garfield, R. J. Strassenburgh, H. S. Mackie, J. A. P. Waller, J. H. Lempert, A. W. Curtis, O. W. Bingham, Charles Salmon, J. B. Mosley, Z. F. Westerover, Edward Lyon, R. M. Myers, Allen Farley, Oliver De Ridder.

TABLE R.

Nathaniel Foote, Walter B. Duffy, W. F. Balkam, Dr. R. A. Adams, Sol Wile, Arthur B. Enos, Thomas P. Ford, E. H. Chapin, G. T. Curtis, John M. Ives, Edward W. Peck, Charles S. Mertz, George Koch, David Hoyt, Michael Doyle.

TABLE S.

E. W. Benton, Peter A. Vay, A. E. Bickford, Joseph McCabes.

TABLE T.

M. A. Rau, Marcus Strauss, A. J. Katz, Dr. Max Landsberg.

TABLE V.

James E. Wolcott, Charles H. Palmer, Arthur Robinson, Dr. Charles E. Sumner, Dr. W. W. Wimmis, Herbert L. Hall, G. C. Southard, C. C. Davy, H. Barry, J. C. Kalbfleisch, F. C. Fenn, N. E. Spencer, J. H. Boucher, John F. Alden.

TABLE W.

Henry Barnard, W. J. Robinson, Samuel S. Simonds, Paul T. Markoff.

TABLE X.

Walter B. Duffy, W. J. Naylor, Myron W. Greene, W. E. Moore.

The following gentlemen composed the reception committee: James G. Cutler, chairman; Colonel J. S. Graham, [illegible] H. Hollaway, Walter B. Duffy, W. Peck, Charles J. Brown, Lewis P. Ross, Max Brickner, Eugene T. Curtis, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, A. B. Lamberton, Hon. George W. Aldridge, D. M. Gordon, James M. Ives, Charles F. Ford, Hon. A. J. Rodenbeck, George B. Watkins, Fred T. Beach, David Hoyt, Hon. George A. Carnahan, Rufus A. Sibley, George Eastman, J. N. Beckley, Henry S. Mackie, Daniel B. Murphy, Charles E. Bayliss, F. B. Dunn, William C. Barry, Harold C. Kimball, E. P. Reed, Thomas J. Nicholl, F. A. Stecher, George F. Roth, Hon. William W. Armstrong, Lenning G. Wetmore, Hon. Frederick Cook, Edward Bausch, John F. Alden, Joseph A. Crane, Edward Prizer, H. B. Graves, Charles E. Angle, Louis N. Stein, H. W. Goetzmann, M. Kondolf, Michael Doyle, P. V. Crittenden, Hon. Merton E. Lewis, Hon. James Brock Perkins, Hon. Richard Gardiner, Hon. I. W. Salyerds, Albert O. Fenn, John C. Moore, Albrecht Vogt, Abram J. Katz, Julius Wile, Levi Adler.

The following acted as ushers: William Bausch, chairman; John S. Wright, Gurney T. Curtis, C. M. Fink, Jesse M. Lindsay, Charles E. Lyon, Peter W. Zeveld, Henry F. Marks, W. J. Trimble, Edward D. Chapin, A. B. Eastwood, Harry Likly, L. S. Foulkes, A. M. McDonnell, F. W. Yates, Edward A. Stahlbrodt, J. C. Powers, James R. Davy, John M. Rauber, William F. Goetzmann, William F. Morse, C. S. Kellogg, Joseph B. Hone, William L. Dobbin, George L. Eaton, Arthur B. Enos, James L. Hotchkiss, George Koch, J. C. Kalbfleisch, L. K. Kirstein, E. G. Prahl.

LETTERS OF REGRET.

Received From Many of the Nation's Distinguished Men.

Among those from whom letters of regret were received were the following:

Ex-President Grover Cleveland, Prime Minister Wilfrid Laurier, Bishop H. C. Potter of New York, Archbishop John Ireland, John Wanamaker, United States Senator John C. Spooner, of Wisconsin, United States Senator Marcus H. Hanna, James J. Hill, the great railroad magnate; United States Senator J. B. Foraker, Governor B. B. Odell, Mayor-elect Seth Low, Bourke Cockran, Bishop Kinsolving, Assistant United States Attorney General James M. Beck.

Letters were also received from a large number of state legislators and several members of the bench.

The letter from Grover Cleveland was written in his own hand, which is a small, fine writing, on plain white note paper, with no printed matter or other official character to it, and was dated at Princeton. It was as follows:

Princeton, Nov. 12, 1901.

John M. Ives, Secretary, etc.:

Dear Sir—I have received your courteous invitation to attend the annual dinner of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce on the 17 of December.

I am sorry to say in response that my engagements and occupations are such that it will be impossible for me to be with you.

Yours very truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Governor Odell's letter was written on a typewriter, on state stationery, bearing the state crest, and was signed by himself. It follows:

Mr. A. B. Lamberton, Rochester Chamber of Commerce, Rochester, N. Y.:

My Dear Sir—I am in receipt of your favor of the 11th, inviting me on behalf of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, to be present at the fourteenth annual dinner to take place in Powers Hall, Rochester, on Tuesday evening, December 17. I find in looking over my engagements that I am already committed for that date. It would give me a great deal of pleasure to be able to accept the invitation you have so courteously extended, and I can only express my regret at my inability to do so.

Thanking you for your courtesy, I am

Very truly yours,

B. B. ODELL.

The letter from Mark Hanna was on Senate stationery, written on a typewriter, and the writer's name was signed in a large bold hand. Senator Hanna evidently expects to be a busy man at Washington, as his letter shows:

Cleveland, Ohio, October 25, 1901.

Mr. John M. Ives, Secretary, Chamber of Commerce, Rochester, N. Y.:

My Dear Sir—Your favor of the 23d inst., signed also by the president of your Chamber of Commerce, was received in my absence on a campaign trip through the state, and has just come to my attention on my return here to-day. I note the invitation it contains, and thank you sincerely for this kind remembrance. While I am sure I would enjoy very much being with you on this occasion, it comes practically at the opening of the coming session of Congress, and there are many matters which will come up then in which I am personally interested and which demand my presence.

Trusting your gathering may be both pleasant and profitable, I remain

Truly yours,

M. H. HANNA.

REPLIED TO JEROME.

Dr. S. Banks Nelson Dissents From the Justice's Views.

Rev. S. Banks Nelson took the place of Hon. Martin W. Littleton in responding to the toast "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age." Mr. Nelson very vigorously dissented from the views of Justice Jerome, saying:

"Mr. Jerome has been called a second Roosevelt. Nevertheless, I differ from him. He does not know the Irishmen of New York as well as I do. If he did, he would not say that a law closing the saloons any part of a Sunday can be enforced in an Irish city. In Ireland several cities are excepted from the Sunday closing law. One of these is Dublin.

"Here the saloons are open for all who wish to drink after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. You can go to church in the morning without seeing open saloons but in the afternoon and evening they are open while people go to church. But in the morning you will see bottles with ropes attached to them thrown out from the saloons to drinkers and in every back alley are men drinking from 'speak-easies.' I have seen half as many men drunk there in the morning as in the evening. Because any effort to close the saloons on Sunday will be met by the genius, almost allied to madness, of the tipplers who break it is no reason why no such law should be retained in the statute books.

"Because a few clubs sell liquor on Sunday, will we make the business wholesale? He said that he had the guarantee of the saloon men that they would obey his proposed law. If he will take the guarantee of the liquor men, then he and I are not on the same ethical plane."

Taking up the topic assigned him, the speaker said there is another side to expansion and commercial supremacy. He said that in England men, women and children are hungry and cold because they have been driven from their employment by Yankee sharpness and our trade supremacy. He pleaded with intense earnestness for the observance of moral and ethical principles in reaching out for trade.

This closed the dinner, the speaking being over in time to allow the members to get the 12.30 o'clock cars home. The sentiment was general that never before has the Chamber of Commerce had speakers at its dinners who have treated the most important topics of the hour in a manner so likely to stir thought and lead to results.

Men in Charge of the Dinner.

Charles Goetzmann was chairman of the committee having charge of the dinner. He was assisted by Wendell J. Curtis, Albert E. Vogt, Charles T. Chapin, Harry S. Woodworth, William C. Likly and Simon W. Stein.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Commercial Supremacy.

Mr. Young said that the United States was now entering upon a period of commercial supremacy. The American commerce for hundreds of years

"The possibilities opening up to this country commercially seem wonderfully encouraging. The Pacific is destined to be thronged with vessels trading with Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan, China and Australia. Last year our trade with Hawaii amounted to $14,000,000; with the 40,000,000 people in Japan, $60,000,000, notwithstanding the people are very poor, the laborers earning only 10 to 20 cents per day. In the Philippines, where we are only just being introduced, our trade was $8,500,000 and, by wise legislation, we can secure almost the entire trade of the Malay Archipelago.

"In China, the conditions are different. For more than a thousand years the habits and costumes of these people have remained unchanged, and while the population is 400,000,000 they are very poor. The laboring class earns but 5 to 10 cents per day and cannot be classed as consumers in the ordinary sense of the word; still our trade with China was $42,000,000, our relations are more friendly than any other great power, and as railroads are built and the interior opened up our trade must assume great volume.

"Australia, with a population not much greater than New York City, has proven a wonderful market, our trade last year amounting to $32,000,000, and we may expect further development. Russia, with its 130,000,000 will open up to us, and instead of the $18,000,000 worth of business of last year, we should exchange $100,000,000 worth per annum.

"But our great trade must be with Europe. Our German business in 1900 was $280,000,000; with the United Kingdom $850,000,000 and with France, $155,000,000.

New York's Future.

"Mr. President, I give these figures, not only to show what we are doing, but as an evidence of what we may expect if we have the wisdom to encourage international commerce in a liberal spirit. Our foreign trade to-day is but a babe in comparison with the giant of twenty years hence. Already Germany and Russia may try by legislation to stem the current, but American machinery and energy will prove irresistible. Within twenty years New York will be the commercial and financial center of the world.

"The New World will contribute food and clothing to the old, and I sincerely believe that in time our form of government, a government of the people, by the people, will be adopted, perhaps in a modified form by the great nations, and America with a population of 200,000,000 will influence the policy of them all."

Mr. Young made a plea for a ship canal saying: "We want a ship canal to carry our freight from the lakes to the sea and across the sea. We cannot get cars enough now. We want ships of the largest capacity with a canal to parallel the railroads; ships that will sail from Duluth to Liverpool. If it will cost $200,000,000, then spend the money. You gentlemen of the Legislature need not be afraid to spend money in such broad and progressive improvements."

EDUCATION IN NATIONAL LIFE.

Subject Treated by General Alfred C. Barnes.

Mr. Raines said that Mr. Young's words were as thrilling as the tremendous facts he stated and caused a glow of patriotism, he was sure, in the hearts of all. The toastmaster spoke of this as the great age of education, when things that were academic in the school days of most of those present are living realities in the shops and offices of to-day; when the ordinary business man must have an education that would suffice for a college professor a few years ago. He called upon General Alfred C. Barnes to speak on "Education in National Life."

Mr. Barnes delivered a wise and witty address, saying in part:

"The difference between the present and all former times is the result of such attention to education as the world has never before seen. The common school is the keystone of the state. A distinguished writer and publicist has said that 'It was in making education not only common to all, but in some sense compulsory to all, that the destiny of the free republic of America was practically settled.' That our people are thoroughly in the spirit of this great advance is shown by the fact that two millions are expended annually for free education, or nearly $7 for each child of school age, and no taxes are voted more freely by legislators or paid more cheerfully by the burden-bearers.

"But this vast and universal training begets a thirst for still broader knowledge. Our youth appreciate the precept that

A little learning is a dangerous thing.
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian Spring.

And so they press onward in the limitless field of voluntary improvement open before them through the gate of elementary instruction.

Secondary schools, and even colleges, no longer content their ambition to assimilate the culture of the ages and to penetrate the mysteries of science. Then the splendid university looms up to gratify the most ambitious student and the halls of graduate study and original investigation are thronged in consequence. It is these who realize in its fullness the truth of Milton's prophetic declaration: 'I will conduct ye to a hillside and point ye out the right path to a virtuous and noble education. Laborious, indeed, at the first ascent, it runs so smooth, so green, so full of goodly prospect and melodious sounds on every side, that the harp of Orpheus was not more charming.'

Scholar Is in the Saddle.

"So far [illegible] sentiment for liberal

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

WANTS ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

Mr. Jerome Declares That It Is Impossible To Enforce the Present Raines Law--- Earnest Plea for Support From People Outside of Metropolis To Enable Authorities To Overcome the Evils There.

JUSTICE W. TRAVERS JEROME.

THE POST EXPRESS: WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, DECEMBER 18. 1901.

BUSINESS MEN AT ANNUAL MEETING

Important Subjects Ably Discussed by Leaders at Chamber of Commerce Dinner.

Justice Jerome's Plea for Change In Excise Law.

RESTRICTED SUNDAY SALE

Hon. Richard Young's Argument in Favor of Commerce.

General Barnes and Dr. Nelson the Other Speakers--Hon. George Raines the Toastmaster -- Mr. Lamberton's Retirement -- The Guests.

It is a trite thing to say that the fourteenth annual dinner of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce will pass into local annals as the most successful event of its kind ever given by that body, yet a rhetorical flourish of trumpets could add nothing more to the truth of that statement. An excellent menu, a pleasant service, a congenial company and a brilliant quartette of speakers were simply the minor elements to the success of the affair.

Such a combination of factors could be secured by such a body as the Chamber of Commerce almost at any time. The real factors in the success of the dinner last night were the political circumstances of the hour and the intense response which they have awakened in the hearts of the people. It is offering no discourtesy to the other eminent guests who spoke at the dinner to say that the center and circumference of the event were Justice Jerome and the state excise law.

It was the men and the hour that drew [illegible] to this element must be ascribed the fact that never in the history of the local Chamber's dinners, perhaps, has such a representative gathering of Rochester's citizens been seen as that gathered about the tables last night. To one who intimately knew the personnel of the body of men gathered in Mirror hall, moreover, it was obvious that all of them were not there because they had come prepared to agree with Justice Jerome and his views on the excise laws, or even because they had come prepared to be converted to his way of thinking.

As a matter of fact there were many men present who fundamentally and irreverently differed from Justice Jerome's views and who came to listen to him simply that they might themselves size up the stuff out of which he was made and the stuff out of which he proposes to make his ammunition for the coming political struggle. Of such a character was Senator John Raines, the father of the famous excise law, who sat very near Justice Jerome, yet whose presence did not in the least deter the doughty New Yorker from leveling every shaft of ridicule, sarcasm, invective and opprobrium in his rhetorical arsenal at the measure to which he constantly referred as farcical, unjust and iniquitous. Of such a character, also, were a number of the city's well-known clergymen whose voices, long ere Justice Jerome's coming, have been lifted in warning to their people against what they conceived would be the creation of a popular sentiment subversive alike of religious principles and public order.

On the other hand, the liquor interests, not only of Rochester but of the state at large, were strongly represented and at their head was Morris Tekulsky, of New York city, ex-president of the New York State Liquor Dealers' association. These men are heartily in sympathy with Justice Jerome's efforts to amend the present excise law and led in the applause which greeted every telling point scored by the district attorney even in his remarks [illegible] more beneficial [illegible] to the city of Rochester, than the holding of the annual banquets of its Chamber of Commerce. They have been in the past and will continue to be the great social event of our chamber, and I am proud to be its presiding officer on this, the first banquet on the dawn of a new century. That we are so well known as a corporate body abroad, as well as at home, is due almost as much to our annual dinners, at which so many illustrious men have been our guests, as to our zeal in promoting and protecting the trade and commerce of our city. The real charm of our annual banquets centers in the fact that we have enjoyed the companionship of so many distinguished gentlemen who have graced our board.

"I hope this organization will stand more and more as the center of civic influence and enterprise. It stands for the honor and uplifting of our city as does no other institution within its borders. It has always since its foundation taken a very lively and deep interest not only in the affairs of Rochester and county, but in the affairs of the state, being dominated alone by a public spirit as contradistinguished from selfish ideas.

"To the trustees, committees and members of the chamber, I present most grateful acknowledgment and thanks for cordial and liberal support and co-operation during my term of office. To the citizens of Rochester I also desire to convey my warmest thanks for the noble manner in which they have responded to calls for funds required to further worthy causes, advocated or sanctioned by this chamber."

Toastmaster Raines.

Mr. Raines was in one of his most felicitous moods when he arose to announce Justice Jerome as the first speaker of the night. He facetiously intimated that he would so conduct the duties of his office that they should neither be a task for himself nor a burden upon the guests. Introducing Justice Jerome as one who had "taken the axe of authority and battered down the gate-posts of crime" Mr. Raines said:

"I observe that in the exceedingly appropriate address of the retiring president he has brought to your attention the valued services of his associates in office. Permit me to say that, owing to the distinguished services of your retiring president during his term of office, this has been the most successful year in the history of the Chamber of Commerce.

"In accepting the duties of toastmaster on this occasion I have done so not as a task for myself nor as a burden to you. I am in duty bound to call your attention to the fact that we are deprived of an address by Hon. Martin W. Littleton of Brooklyn, owing to the fact that he is detained in the argument of the celebrated Miller case, involving a million dollars in the Court of Appeals, despite the efforts of our local and honored member of that court to relieve him; but I congratulate you that you are to enjoy an address from one of the most distinguished divines of the city, who will maintain that high order of merit which we expect from our speakers, from the first to the last--Rev. S. Banks Nelson, of St. Peter's church.

"The theme my eye falls on as first on the programme is 'The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law.' When I read this first on a Rochester programme I said: 'Why is it here? What have we to do with the burdens and difficulties of the citizens of the city of New York?' And then I thought that we had had so much to do with the government of the city of New York, and had perhaps contributed something to the evils that have afflicted that city, that perhaps this was an appeal to Caesar from one of its citizens, and that therefore the subject belongs here--for are we not the 'hayseeds' that make the laws for the city of New York

"It is not for me to anticipate the discussion of the theme. It is for me to present the speaker and to allow him to choose his own method without embarrassment at the hands of the toastmaster. If I were to undertake any jibes at the speakers of the evening I should not elect in the first instance the gentleman from New York as the subject of any jibe.

"The ancient Athenians after the battle of Marathon established a festival to the god Pan. We are accustomed to think of Pan as the god of the woods and of the shepherds, but the ancients tell us that was also the master of strategy, the inciter of alarms, that he took his forces up in the hills in order that the reverberations among the hills might increase the terror of the forces that were opposed to him. The god Pan of the metropolis is here. He has come among the hills of the Genesee that its echoes may cause panic to those who oppose the theory that he advocates.

"I shall not go into any biographical history of the distinguished speaker of the evening. It is enough to say of him that he has a lineage that is interwoven most honorably with the history of our own city. Of his works in the city of New York you are as well informed as I could possibly make you. He has taken the axe of authority from the shelf upon which it had rested so long, battered down the gateposts of crime, and demonstrated in a day the pusillanimity of the police department of a great city. He changed a political conflict on partisan lines into a great moral issue in which party lines were forgotten and effaced, and created a revolution in the civic affairs and the administration of the government of the metropolis of the country. He has demonstrated once more that in the last resort an appeal to the integrity and moral conscience of the American people will be responded to in all sections of the country, even in the worst. I have the honor and pleasure to present [illegible] last night was of great importance because for the first time its newly-elected district attorney clearly outlined the policy which he intends to pursue in dealing with the many-sided drink problems in the metropolis. Staff correspondents from its great dailies were on hand who quickly sent out to their papers Justice Jerome's address and this done, immediately took their departure for home. The great body of banqueters, however, remained until the close of the speeches which, notwithstanding the lateness of the hour, were of such a high character as to hold the unflagging interest of the guests to the end.

For a half hour prior to the dinner, a reception to the distinguished guests of the evening was held in the anti-rooms leading to Mirror hall. It was nearly 7.30 o'clock before the doors of the banquet room were thrown open. The tables filled rapidly. Fully 400 guests were present. The speakers' table ran the entire length of the hall and rested upon a raised dais. Below it the guest tables ran transversely. Simple decorations of the national colors adorned the walls, while the tables were garnished with roses, carnations and chrysanthemums. The menu cards bore on their front cover a design of Rochester, the Power city, and within they carried a list of seven courses.

Dessenbach's orchestra, hidden behind a bank of palms in the gallery, gave an excellent programme and received hearty applause from the diners. Grace was said by the Rev. William R. Taylor, D. D., pastor of the Brick church. The guests of the evening were as follows:

After the menu had been discussed and before the addresses were commenced, Miss Matie Fulton of New York city, sang "The Last Rose of Summer." Miss Fulton is the soprano who at the Kansas City convention sang "The Star Spangled Banner," and at the Pan-American Exposition recently sang "Nearer My God to Thee," during the memorial services held in memory of President McKinley in the Temple of Music. In response to an encore last night, Miss Fulton sang the "Star Spangled Banner," the audience impulsively arising to its feet as she did so.

Mr. Lamberton's Review.

The formal exercises of the night were then opened by President A. B. Lamberton who congratulated himself upon being permitted to preside "at the chamber's first banquet at the dawn of the new century. Before introducing Hon. George [illegible]

[illegible] first utterance by his witticism at the sarcastic proclivities of Mr. Raines whom he characterized as a "'Toastmaster' rather than a toastmaster, and a dealer in mixed metaphors of a doubtful quality to boot. The ovation which was tendered the plucky little fighter from New York was spontaneous and hearty. Just as it was subsiding, and as Judge Jerome was arising to speak, someone in the gallery shouted, "Hurrah for our next governor!" Mr. Jerome appeared somewhat embarrassed for a moment and glanced quickly in the direction of the outburst, then spoke as follows:

MR. JEROME'S SPEECH.

Plea of New York's District Attorney for Excise Law Change.

"Mr. President, Mr. Toastmaster—Falsely so called, because I see that it should be Mr. Roastmaster. I am not here to try and fill your ears with any empty reverberations or strategem or Greek metaphors of a mixed variety. I am here because my heart is in a certain question, because I feel it vital to the people who have treated me well, and to whom I am in honor bound to discharge my obligations; because to do the things that those who feel as I do on this matter, to do those things we have got to have help. We have got to have help from outside the city of New York, because your learned toastmaster has said some few things in his remarks.

"There is one thing that must strike everybody that pays any attention to public affairs, and that is the enormous growth of the municipalities in the various states in this country for some years past, their growth at the expense of the rural district, their growth at the expense even of the 'hayseeds;' and while they have grown their interests have by no means ruled the interests, ruled the course of legislation.

"Their vital needs have too often been unknown to those who, in the best of good faith, I believe, have imposed laws on them radically unjust and unwise, not because they were unjust and unwise in seeking to remedy serious evils, but unjust and unwise because the evils that they brought in were greater than the evils they sought to remedy.

"In dealing with public affairs, in dealing with the affairs of life, it is by no means always best to remedy latent evils and it is when trying to remedy a moral evil, however lutense it may be, by the instrumentality of the criminal law, that evils far worse than the primary ones sought to be obviated will be in turn introduced. So this growth of the municipalities has made the municipal problem of the highest importance.

A Cosmopolitan City.

"When you realize that in the city of New York to-day there is gathered almost half the population of the state of New York; that at the time of the consolidation of the boroughs of the Bronx and Manhattan alone the population was increasing at the rate of 53,000 a year; that a great city was being added each and every year to these two boroughs of the old city of New York, you can see something of the problem, and you can realize it is but a few short years when a majority of the population of the state of New York will be gathered in the single municipality.

"It is a city with a great homogeneity of population, which holds more Germans than any other city in the world; holds more Jews than Jerusalem ever had, even in the eyes of Josephus; it is the largest Irish city in the world; it has a large Bohemian, Polish and Slavic population, with all these different nationalities, with all these differences of creed and race instincts.

"The slightest thought shows that the problem to deal with is by no means easy of solution. The problems that confront one are of practical science; questions of waste and transportation, and each of these is difficult enough; but it has aroused no passions of race or creed. They bring in no element of religion; they bring in no jarring warfare of the different sections, whether the Croton water should be filtered or not—such propositions of physical science can be solved without difficulty. The question of the disposal of refuse, the question of cleansing the streets are business propositions; even the question of water, especially if you haven't a block of Ramapo stock, can be discussed impassionately.

"But to solve problems that have to be approached honestly, as these propositions have to be solved for the welfare of the people, is more difficult. They cannot be approached for the benefit of one little clique governing one little political machine, or one governing another in the municipalities in our metropolis, for I know your politics in the country here are so pure that the dominant party always is raised above any such consideration; but in our city both machines are so radically and fundamentally rotten that there is nothing to choose between them.

"One thing more, you can approach these problems, highly important as they are, these municipal problems that simply involve business administration and the study of physical sciences, but you have to solve some that lie deeper than these; some that excite racial feeling, some that excite religious feeling, and some that stir motives base as well as motives noble.

"You cannot solve the first problems unless you approach them honestly, and never can approach them honestly in the city of New York, because until they are solved no honest administration can remain long enough in office to grapple with them, and they are, and always will be, remitted to the tender mercies of Tammany Hall, which will solve no problem honestly that is possible to solve at all.

A Great Problem.

"Now, one of these problems it may seem strange to you that I lay such emphasis upon, but one of these problems that confronts us now is no theory but a daily condition, embracing all other problems, embracing the province of purity of municipal politics and affairs in the city of New York, one that is real until you solve these other problems you and one for the solution of which I have come here to put up a cry for help, is this very one, this dealing with the liquor problem in the city of New York.

"We have 12,000 saloons in the city of New York, and we have at least 7,000 saloons open on every Sunday, in spite of the severity of the laws which the 'hayseeds' have imposed in regard to us in that respect.

"No saloon can keep open profitably unless at least twenty different men visit it on that day, so that you have in the city of New York at least 140,000 voters who every Sunday of the year go into the saloon and take one or more drinks, and they go there without believing that the offense that they commit is one involving moral turpitude, and they go away believing and knowing that it is not a crime, but going into the side door and soliciting another man to commit a crime in selling to them.

"The self respect of those men is lost and the self respect of the man who sells is lost, and the administration that endeavors to enforce that law goes out of office as inevitably at the expiration of its term as any administration can.

"But I am told 'You make no honest effort to enforce this law; what you need is more drastic punishment; what you need more is the pressure of an honest effort.' Said John Raines: 'If there is a man more cordially hated by the liquor dealers in the state than I am, I will give a thousand dollars to any charity you may name.'

"The views I advocate here to-night are views which have been forced upon me against my wishes and against my former convictions because for six and a half years I have sat in the courts in the city of New York upon which the burden of administering this law was cast and there came at one time a combination there of three men who controlled the whole legal machinery of the city of New York and who believed as sincerely in the possibility of the so-called Raines law as the senator himself. And that was what made the test so thorough.

"Theodore Roosevelt was president of the police board; John Goff was presiding in one part of the general sessions and I had the honor to preside in the Court of Special Sessions. And there was nowhere they could go to, and in the vernacular of the day they were 'up against it.'

Attempt to Enforce Law.

"The whole power of the county was exercised and exercised with absolute ruthlessness to enforce this law. I myself sent a widow woman, the supporter of a family, to the penitentiary for three months because she sold a glass of beer on Sunday. I do not think it can be said that that was dealing with the question very tenderly.

"There was no loophole, apparently, so far as the law could prevent it, and, gentlemen, what was the net result? Prior to the Strong administration the tariff on the liquor dealer for selling on Sunday was $5 a month. During the last four years of Mr. Van Wyck's administration, with the exception of one district of the city, the tariff has been $5 a month.

"During the administration of Mr. Roosevelt as president of the Police Board there was more danger. There were no more saloons closed than there are to-day with all this effort; but the tariff was $10 a month.

"The net result of as honest, determined an effort as could possibly be made resulted in raising the blackmail to $10 from $5. We have had beautiful developments from this wise law, which, in the city of New York, we call the 'Raines law hotel.' We have developed 2,167 of them where an India rubber sandwich was chained to the wall and it is pulled out when the drink is ordered and is allowed to go back.

"That law permits 2,167 places to sell rum on Sunday by having a 'fly-blown' sandwich which does duty all day long. That is indeed maintaining the sanctity of the Sabbath in closing the saloons on Sunday. If that is the kind of hypocrisy that the American people like, I misjudge them. It is not the kind of people to whom I made my play in the campaign. I played to that which was honest, which could look the truth in the face; that which was loyal, and I ran 17,000 ahead of my ticket.

"I am a young man and I have the misfortune to be a democrat; but I have tried to learn the lesson of wisdom that those men who have given to the republican party the dignity and the strength that it has to-day—and in my judgment is still has—but which, if it is going to maintain it, must learn a new lesson that those great leaders taught, it seems to me.

Public Service Debauched.

"Now, what those who feel as I do want, is but one thing. We are not seeking to have any change made in this law in regard to the revenue, for I suppose, as we look at it, that might affect the 'hayseeds.' We do not look for that. With them there are many things that are unwise about it. We say we will waive all those. We look for one thing. We look for a law that we can enforce. We look for a law that won't debauch our public service; that won't dangle from $600,000 to $750,000 a year blackmail before our police department. These men are better when they are appointed, better morally and physically, than the average man in community.

"But can you devise a scheme more [illegible] than is able to debauch the pow

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

service." Can you solve [illegible] or $75,000 a year in this form of blackmail to the average man and expect him to resist it? Can you take a police captain with 200 saloons in his district and have $12,000 paid to a man in New Jersey, where you cannot trace it, just across the river?

"Can you do that and expect that the average man or all the average men are going to resist it?

"If you think so, if you think so well of humanity, if that is what happens on your hills here, come down to New York where we have no hills, and we will show you differently.

"What we want is to take from us the conditions that are defeating us, the conditions that are debauching our public life, that are keeping in politics an industry that has no more business in politics than dry goods with groceries.

"You may have all the law, have all the revenue from this thing to pay your debts up country if you please, take all the taxes of the municipalities, and let the country go free entirely, tax no hayricks or sheep, or cows, or barnyards, or any other rural paraphernalia that you want; we will pay the whole thing if need be; but do not debauch us. Do not make every effort that we make for better things futile. Do not, since the four years that we have had, throw us back into the arms of Tammany Hall, where woman's shame is rung upon cash registers and paid for in cashed checks. Do not give us that again. That is what I am here for, to ask you to help us to have it different.

Plan Proposed.

"We want you to change this law so that from 1 o'clock on Sunday until 10 or 11 o'clock on Sunday night liquor may be sold in the city of New York in other places than the 2,167 Raines law hotels. (Great applause.)

"We want a chance to deal with this moral question by moral means. We want a chance to save people from intemperance, to get them to lead better lives by religion, and not by trying to do the impossible with the criminal law. You won't help us? In two years you will restore us to what we have suffered for the two years past? And the fault won't be with us, for we will have tried to change it. The fault will be with the people outside of the city of New York who, not alive to the conditions there and unwilling to acquaint themselves with it, restore us again to the conditions of utter hopelessness that we have been in for some years past.

"Such a law as I have indicated is enforcible, and the question is not whether or no such a law will have no evils attending it. I know no law that touches great social questions that does not have its faults. Don't think that I think that the opening of the saloons is a desirable thing. God knows that with the experience that I have had, that if I could close them for all time I would be the first to vote aye on that proposition. But the question before us is whether an unenforcible law on our statute books does not bring incidental evils more terrible than the incidental evils of allowing such an opening, and Dr. Parkhurst well said a bill for Sunday opening during limited hours in the city of New York is not a bill for Sunday opening. It is a bill for Sunday closing; and that is really what it is.

"And then, think you, in a country where we profess that all men are born free and equal, and where we indulge in various incubrations on the subject of anarchy; do you think that it comports with respect and deference to the law that the poor man can walk down Fifth avenue, and he can pass the Union League club, and the University club, and the Manhattan club, and the Union club, where he can see the rich man sitting there and drinking, by reason of this beautiful change in the law, and yet he cannot get a drink?

"That my wit was never able to fathom, whereby by that law all associations prior to a certain day in March in a certain year could do all these things which the poor man could not.

The Rich and the Poor.

"What force put them there? I should like to ask. Who dared stand up before the plain people and justify such a provision, which draws a distinction in favor of the rich and against the poor?

"I can go to the Waldorf, or any one of a dozen hotels in the city of New York, and see the law shamelessly violated every day under guise of the hotel laws.

"There is not a social club in the city of New York that does not every day violate this law, because they allow cards to be played there for money.

"If you don't believe it, some humble citizen may address an open letter to the powers, with the scurgestion that the liquor tax commissioner of the state of New York lay before the incoming district attorney an information against the Union League club of the city of New York, and that they take the club book and begin with the A's and subpoena them down until they found the gentleman who saw the whist at 10 cents a point played there, and another man, it may be Mr. So and So, or Mr. So and So, who had a drink there, and you may ask the commissioner to forfeit the license of the club. It was saddled with a $50,000 rental for ten years and couldn't sell any liquor for five years, before they could get a license. Do you think a change in the law would be made at the clamor of the rich, which would not be at the clamor of the poor? It would be a good political play.

"But who is it that sets himself up for a moral standard, who has a right to say it is a crime to take a drink on Sunday? They have no right under our institutions. I do not want to go to a saloon on Sunday. I differ in my views from those people; but who is it, and upon whom did the spirit of American institutions, whether they be Bryanite or Republican, confer the right to dictate to 10,000 [illegible] and then [illegible] such a law as I [illegible] implicit obedience; that it would expel from its association anybody who violated it; that it would join with the authorities in the prosecution of any man who violated it. It is something to find a law that the trade itself is willing to accept, and for which it will give guarantees of obedience.

Great Moral Feature.

"It seems to me, as I look at this question, that last phase of it that I have touched upon, that a law which will almost of necessity doom to a loss of self-respect of 150,000 people in one community, presents a moral feature, the value of which, the importance of which, no language is quite adequate to describe.

"I am told that I am butting my head against a stone wall, and those who are working with me to effect such a change as this. I am told that no legislative body in the state of New York will pass such a law. I won't believe it until I see it. I have got still some faith, even in the legislature of the state of New York.

"I do not believe that they will make a party question of it if it is brought up there not as a party question. If it is brought up there as something touching the interests of three millions of people, and they are asked to give it a hearing fairly and justly on its merits, to give it a hearing and consider it in the light of our great need, I do not believe that representative institutions, and I will not believe, that they are such a failure that they will make a party issue of it, and until I have a demonstration of that fact

"There is no politics in this with this people who are associated with me in trying to bring this thing about. We humbly ask for a fair consideration of this. If it be considered fairly on its merits after careful inquiry, I for one can have no doubt of the outcome when the situation is really known, but if there are indeed those who put the vital cause of a great municipality, having nearly half the population of this great state, if they put their vital needs subservient to the interests of a political party, if motives as base as that are to lead them to a violation of their oath of office, to such I have a suggestion on a different plane.

"Let them consider whether they desire to hasten the advent of a question long since ripe for introduction and gradually forcing its way to the front, a question, the introduction of which may be delayed a very short time.

"Do such ones want to introduce the deeper or wider question or hasten the advent of that question, the deeper question to which this liquor question, if defeated on party lines, will lead? Do they want to hasten the naked political issue in this state, to be fought on political lines, the question of whether the vital needs of this people of our great municipalities shall not be considered on their merits, but shall be considered only from the standpoint of the exigencies of political parties?

"If there be those base minds who wish to lay aside this question on its merits and treat it on party lines, let them think a second time before they introduce that question, at a time when there is an election coming on in the year 1902; let them think a second time before they desire to lock horns with a party almost defunct, but which it is possible to rejuvenate and revivify if you give it an issue as broad and as deep as that, and one based on sound political philosophy and moral precedent."

THE NATION'S COMMERCE.

Discussed by Hon. Richard Young, of New York City.

In introducing Hon. Richard Young, of New York city, as the next speaker, Toastmaster Raines took occasion to relieve the tension which followed Justice Jerome's speech, by telling a funny story. In the welcome relaxation that ensued, Mr. Young arose. His theme was "America's Future Commerce and Reciprocity." Before entering upon the body of his address, Mr. Young digressed to pay a tribute of respect to Justice Jerome, whose unanswerable had left the hall. In terms of manifest sincerity, Mr. Young spoke of the gratitude of the citizens of New York for the efforts which Justice Jerome is making to rid that city of vice and make it a safe and beautiful place of residence.

"It is the greatest city the sun has ever shone on and one of the best," declared Mr. Young with such evident emotion of patriotic pride that it carried with it the sympathy of all his auditors. Jerome is characterized as "that man of destiny—a Roosevelt No. 2."

Plain in personal appearance and exceedingly simple in address, Mr. Young nevertheless demonstrated that despite his modest characterization of himself as a humble business man he is a public speaker of no mean ability. He said in part:

"Mr. President, we have heard a great deal about the decline of American shipping but it is a pleasure to say to-night that in the last few years while our sailing vessels have decreased from 8,800 to less than 7,000, our steam vessels have increased from 926 to 7,399, and, if you will follow the public press you will see that American capitalists are endeavoring to purchase the finest merchant vessels in the world. New York city and state are taking a great part in the battle for commercial supremacy. Of the 24,000 vessels clearing from the ports of the United States, over one-half left the port of New York. That peerless city of the New World has a water front of 450 miles and remains the gateway of American commerce for hundreds of years.

"The possibilities opening up to this country commercially seem wonderfully encouraging. The Pacific is destined to be thronged with vessels trading with Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan, China and Australia. Last year our trade with [illegible] amounted to the [illegible] for wanting a change of the Raines law, and that in the presence of the Hon. John Raines of Canandaigua, father of the measure. He incidentally remarked that, next to Senator Raines, nobody in New York state is more cordially hated than he is.

Judge Jerome got into the city on the Empire State yesterday afternoon and was met at the station by a committee consisting of A. B. Lamberton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, Mayor-elect Rodenbeck, Eugene T. Curtis, D. M. Gordon and Secretary Ivor. He went at once to Powers Hotel, where he was in the hands of the committee up to the hour of the dinner. Several visitors were admitted and Judge Jerome chatted cordially with them. All remarked his earnestness of manner, sharp, rather rasping tones and vigorous language. He appeared younger than many had expected to see him, but there was nothing of the immature in his manner.

Judge Jerome was accompanied by his secretary, and Morris Ubsdell, president of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association of New York city, was with the party. Several New York papers were represented by staff correspondents on the Jerome train, for it was rightly judged that he would say something of vital interest regarding the Raines law.

Hon. Martin W. Littleton of Brooklyn, who was on the programme, was unable to attend because of argument of the celebrated Miller case in the Court of Appeals. His place was taken by Rev. S. Banks Nelson of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church.

Fully 400 guests were in attendance. Along one side of the hall was ranged the guest table, where sat the speakers of the evening and men prominent in business, professional and political life. The tables were beautifully decorated, and Teall's service was unexcelled.

From 6:30 to 7:45 a reception was held and many crowded about Judge Jerome, anxious to shake the hand of the man who had attracted to himself and the cause he represents so much of attention. The reception was held in the large rooms adjoining the banqueting hall. The hour for the dinner to commence having arrived, there was no delay in seating the guests. Each found his place in a prearranged group, while others sat with some selected friend, with whom the seating could be planned most agreeably. The [illegible] will [illegible] [illegible] that is made along the line of Sunday closing."

Dr. Nelson then narrated scenes which he avers may be witnessed any Sunday in the city of Dublin where the saloons are closed up to 2 o'clock every Sunday afternoon. He told how bottles are lowered from upper story windows and how men even insert funnels through the broad-mouthed keyholes of the saloon doors and through these suck their liquid refreshments.

"But there is one feature of Justice Jerome's argument," said he, "that must certainly appear very humorous to those people who are fighting the saloons. He solemnly declares that he has the guaranty of the saloon-keepers of New York city that if they may be allowed to sell liquor open certain hours on Sunday they will faithfully abide by the laws. He repeats that on the guaranty of these men who are trying to sell liquor and be respectable he knows that a liberal liquor law can be enforced."

The Committees.

DINNER COMMITTEE.

Charles Goetzmann, chairman; Wendell J. Curtis, Albert E. Vogt, Charles T. Chapin, Harry S. Woodworth, William C. Likly and Simon W. Stein.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

James G. Cutler, chairman; Colonel J. S. Graham, Henry B. Hathaway, Walter B. Duffy, Edward W. Peck, Charles J. Brewer, Lewis P. Rose, Max Briekner, Eugene T. Curtis, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, Eugene D. Lamberton, Hon. George W. Aldridge, D. M. Gordon, John M. Ives, Charles E. Ford, Hon. A. J. Rodenbeck, George B. Watkins, Fred T. Beach, David Hoyt, Hon. George A. Carnahan, Rufus A. Sibley, George Eastman, J. N. Beckley, Henry S. Mackie, Daniel B. Murphy, Charles E. Bayliss, Carl B. Dunn, William C. Barry, Harold C. Kimball, Hon. Thomas J. Nicholson, Hon. A. Steeper, George E. Roth, Hon. William W. Armstrong, Lansing G. Wetmore, Hon. Frederick Cook, Edward Bausch, John F. Alden, Joseph A. Grant, Edward Fraser, H. B. Graves, Charles E. Angle, Louis N. Stein, H. W. Goetzmann, M. Kondorf, Michael Doyle, P. V. Crittenden, Hon. Merton E. Lewis, Hon. James Breck Perkins, Hon. Richard Gardiner, Hon. J. W. Balyerds, Albert O. Fenn, John C. Moore, Albrecht Vogt, Abram J. Katz, Julius Wile, Levi Adler.

USHERS.

William Bausch, chairman; John S. Wright, Gurney T. Curtis, C. M. Fisk, Jesse M. Lindsay, Charles E. Lyon, Peter W. Zeeveld, Henry F. Marks, W. J. Trimble, Edward D. Chapin, A. B. Eastwood, Harry Lidly, L. S. Foulkes, A. M. McDonnell, F. W. Yates, Edward A. Stahlbrodt, J. S. Powers, James R. Davy, John M. Rauber, William F. Goetzmann, William F. Mercer, C. S. Kellogg, Joseph B. Hone, William L. Dobbin, George L. Eaton, Arthur R. Enos, James L. Holchkiss, George Koch, L. C. Kalbfleisch, L. K. Kirsten, E. G. Pfahl.

THE UNION AND ADVERTISER: WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 18 1901.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DINNER A GREAT SUCCESS

Brilliant Function Held in Mirror Hall, Many Distinguished Men Being Present.

Judge Jerome of New York Declares War on the Raines Law, and Advocates Sunday Sales.

Implores the Up-State Districts to Aid the Metropolis—Eloquent Speeches from Hon. Richard Young, Gen. Alfred C. Barnes and Rev. S. Banks Nelson—President's Address.

The fourteenth annual banquet of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce was successfully held at Mirror Hall in the Powers building last night. It was a most brilliant affair and reflected the business, social and political life of the city as has no other event of recent years. A distinguished array of prominent speakers, including the Hon. William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York city, Hon. Alfred Barnes, Hon. Richard Young and others, graced the occasion with their presence, and their voices were heard in eloquent speech at various stages of the evening's proceedings.

Mirror Hall was a scene of beauty never surpassed in similar functions of the chamber. There was before the minds of all the great success of the Old Home of last year, and in order to retain the prestige of that occasion the committees in charge were compelled to bend their utmost energies. That they succeeded so admirably is due to each member of the various committees, all of whom deserved a share of praise for the successful termination of the affair.

Far and above the other outside speakers in point of interest was Judge Jerome, who has stirred New York to the depths, and is just now engaged in getting into a shape a bill which shall be a modification of the Raines law, and which is designed to allow the sale of liquor during certain hours on Sundays. His plan was outlined by him in his address last night. He and his remon

The dinner committee was made up of the following gentlemen: Charles Goetzmann, chairman; Wendell J. Curtis, Albert E. Vogt, Charles T. Chapin, Harry S. Woodworth, William C. Likly and Simon W. Stern.

Grace was said by the Rev. William R. Taylor, D. D., of Brick Presbyterian Church. The menu was as follows:

HUITRES
Blue Points
Celery
POTAGE
Green Turtle Soup
POISSON
Lobster a la Newburg in Cases
ENTREES
Sweetbread Timbale
Sauce a L'Anglaise
RELEVE
Turkey Cutlet
Brown Sauce
Potato au Gratin
Amorante
Cream Sauce
Roman Punch
GIBIER
Roast Quail
Russian Salad of Fresh Tomato
Boston Lettuce
DESSERT
Biscuit Tortoni
Assorted Cakes
Neufchatel and Cream Cheese
Malaga and Catawba Grapes
Coffee

A surprise was in store for the guests at the conclusion of this repast. Miss Mattie Fulton of New York city, the celebrated soprano, who sang the "The Star Spangled Banner" at the Kansas City convention, sang "The Last Rose of Summer." So great was the applause that an encore was demanded and "The Star Spangled Banner" was given an encore. The guests stood while the [illegible] was sung.

At appropriate intervals the following programme was rendered by Dellbach's orchestra:

March—Invincible Eagle ..... Sousa
March—The Messenger Boy ..... Mc
Selection—The Singing ..... Eng
Waltz—The Yacht...James Brooks Ell
Dedicated to Sir Thomas Lipt
Florodora ..... Stern
(a) In the Shade of the Palms.
(b) Serenade.
Intermezzo—The Pansy .....
Selection—The Rogers Bros. in W
Ingleton .....
Waltz—Romance of the Hall.....
.....Edgar H.
Dedicated to Dossenbach
Songs of All Nations.....

PRESIDENT LAMBERTON

Description of a Successful Year as Chamber's Life.

After Miss Fulton's solo, A. B. Lamberton, the retiring president, arose and addressed the assemblage. He said as follows:

Retiring President Lamberton Comments His Associates.

"Gentlemen of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, and Honored Guests: I can conceive of no more beneficent influence that can accrue to the city of Rochester, than the holding of our annual banquets of its Chamber of Commerce. They have been in the past, will continue to be the great events of our chamber, and I am sure that its presiding officer on this, the night on the dawn of a new year, That we are so well known to the commercial body abroad, as well as at home, is almost as much due to the [illegible] of which we promoting and protecting the trade and commerce of our city. The real charm of our annual banquets centers in the fact that we have enjoyed the companionship of so many distinguished gentlemen, who have graced our board and delighted our minds with their eloquent and instructive speeches.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

"There now devolves upon me as president of this chamber, the pleasing duty of extending a hearty and cordial welcome to our banquet our honored and distinguished visitors. We are glad to have them with us on this festive occasion, whether or no the reputation of our banquets is as good as reported. The gentlemen who favor us with their presence on this occasion, do, by accepting the invitation, give evidence of the high esteem in which our organization is held in all parts of the state. We have reason to congratulate ourselves that we are so highly favored with speakers this evening, who are men of affairs and great experience, widely known and esteemed for their personal worth, eloquence, wit and wisdom.

Chambers of Commerce in other cities sought to secure these gifted gentlemen as speakers at their banquets, but all in vain, and to-night we are the envy of those disappointed cities and corporations.

"It is very pleasant to me and I know it will be gratifying to you to learn that our organization is in a most flourishing condition. Our debts are all paid and we have a goodly sum in the treasury. Our secretary is a veritable master of finance and I take this opportunity of thanking him for the zeal and energy he has displayed in maintaining the high standard of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce. I take pleasure also of acknowledging the efficient and faithful services of his office assistants.

"We have increased our membership and made our organization stronger and more serviceable than ever, and in no year of its history have our citizens shown such interest in it, and a higher appreciation of its work.

"It has been the aim of your president to make the chamber more attractive and representative and much benefit has accrued by the introduction of new features in policy and entertainment, such as the admission of members of the learned professions, the introduction of music in the public parks on Saturday and Sunday afternoons during the summer months, popular entertainments of an educational and amusing character, interspersed between the regular monthly meeting and luncheon of the corporation. The policy of the chamber has been to benefit all the people of Rochester and familiarize them as much as possible with the workings of the chamber as a popular tribunal for the conservation of the city's highest interests.

"The attention of the people has been called more directly than on previous years to the chamber's work because of certain financial questions both municipal and state. The attention of this body was directed on several occasions to conditions which threatened the city with great financial loss, resulting in action that saved to the people several hundred thousand dollars.

"I hope this organization will stand more and more as the center of civic influence and enterprise. It stands for the honor and uplifting of our city as does no other institution within its borders. It has always since its foundation taken a very lively and deep interest not only in the affairs of Rochester and county, but in the affairs of the state, being dominated always by a public spirit as contradistinguished from selfish ideas.

"To the trustees, committees and members of the chamber, I present most grateful acknowledgment and thanks for cordial and liberal support and co-operation during my term of office. To the citizens of Rochester I also desire to convey my warmest thanks for the noble manner in which they have responded to calls for funds required to further worthy causes, advocated or sanctioned by this chamber.

"The literary department of the chamber's work has been conducted at much labor and expense. The periodical publication of the Chamber's book, which this year is entitled "Rochester, The Power City," is a very handsome volume, profusely illustrated and so directed to the interests of our city, that it will be a strong influence in directing the attention of the people of this and other countries, to Rochester as being one of the greatest manufacturing centers of the world. The title of the book is suggestive of the work that has been done for power by a system of low dams, rather than a menacing dam, and which has secured to Rochester already some additional 20,000 horse-power available next spring.

"Forty thousand elaborately illustrated folders and many more leaflets containing condensed information about Rochester, have been published and spread broadcast by the chamber.

"In conclusion let us not forget those who have passed to the great beyond and who though absent in the body tonight from their accustomed seats at our annual banquet, may be with us in spirit. Let us remember their kindly faces, helpful hands and honest hearts, as we knew them in life, and may the memory of their well spent lives cheer us on to our best endeavors to do good in our generation."

President Lamberton then introduced Hon. George Raines, the toastmaster of the evening. In a short speech Mr. Raines directed himself to the task at hand. Said he:

"The theme my eye falls on as first on the programme is 'The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law.' When I read this first on a Rochester programme I said: 'Why is it here? What have we to do with the burdens and difficulties of the citizens of the city of New York?' And then I thought that we had had so much to do with the government of the city of New York, and had perhaps contributed somewhat to the evils that have afflicted that city, that perhaps this was an appropriate theme for us. [illegible] [illegible] Its also about [illegible] Dad Pan of the Metropolis." He then introduced Judge Jerome.

RAINES LAW INEFFECTIVE.

Demand That It Give Way to New Measure Allowing Sunday Sales.

Loud applause greeted Judge Jerome as he rose to address the audience. One of the gentlemen shouted:

"The next governor of New York."

This remark also brought loud applause.

Judge Jerome spoke as follows:

"Mr. President, Mr. Toastmaster—falsely so called, because I see that it should be Mr. Roastmaster. I am not here to try and fill your ears with any empty reverberations of straitegm or Greek metaphors of a mixed variety. I am here because my heart is in a certain question, because I feel it vital to the people who have treated me well, and to whom I am in honor bound to discharge my obligations; because to do the things that those who feel as I do on this matter, to do those things we have got to have help. We have got to have help from outside the city of New York, because your learned toastmaster has said some true things in his remarks.

"There is one thing that must strike everybody that pays any attention to public affairs, and that is the enormous growth of the municipalities in the various states in this country for some years past, their growth at the expense of the rural district, their growth at the expense even of the 'hayseeds'; and while they have grown their interests have by no means ruled the interests, ruled the course of legislation.

"The evils that have too often been unknown to those who, in the best of good faith, I believe, have imposed laws on them radically unjust and unwise, not because they were unjust and unwise in seeking to remedy serious evils, but unjust and unwise because the evils that they brought in were greater than the evils they sought to remedy.

"In dealing with public affairs, in dealing with the affairs of life, it is by no means always best to remedy latent evils, and it is when trying to remedy a moral evil, however intense it may be, by the instrumentality of the criminal law, that evils far worse than the primary one sought to be obviated will be in turn introduced. So this growth of the municipalities has made the municipal problem of the highest importance.

"When you realize that in the city of New York to-day there is gathered almost half the population of the state of New York; that at the time of the consolidation of the boroughs of the Bronx and Manhattan alone the population was increasing at the rate of 25,000 a year; that this great city was being added each and every year to these two boroughs of the old city of New York, you can see something of the problem, and you can realize it is but a few short years when a majority of the population of the state of New York will be gathered in the single municipality.

"It is a city with a great homogeneity of population, which holds more Germans than any other city in the world; holds more Jews than Jerusalem ever had, even in the days of Josephus. It is the largest Irish city in the world; it has a large Bohemian, Polish and Slavic population, with all these different nationalities, with all these differences of creed and race instincts.

"The slightest thought shows that the problem to deal with is by no means easy of solution. Some of the problems that confront us are of practical science; questions of waste and transportation, and each of these is difficult enough; but it has aroused no passions of race or creed. They bring in no element of religion; they bring in no jarring warfare of the different sections; whether the Croton water should be filtered or not—such propositions of physical science can be solved without difficulty. The question of the disposal of refuse, the question of cleaning the streets are business propositions; even the question of water, especially if you haven't a block or Ramapo stock, can be discussed impassionately.

Both Political Machines Rotten.

"But to solve problems that have to be approached honestly, as these propositions have, to be solved for the welfare of the people, is more difficult. They cannot be approached for the benefit of one little clique governing one political machine, or one governing another in the municipalities in our metropolis, for I know your politics in the country here are so pure that the dominant party always is raised above any such considerations; but in our city both machines are so radically and fundamentally rotten that there is nothing to choose between them.

"One thing more: you can approach these problems highly important as they are, these municipal problems that simply involve business administration and the study of physical sciences, but you have to solve some that fix deep in than these; some that excite racial feeling, some that excite religious feeling, and some that stir motives base as well as motives noble.

"You cannot solve the first problems unless you approach them honestly, and you never can approach them honestly in the city of New York, because until they are solved, no honest administration can remain long enough in office to grapple with them, and they are, and always will be, remitted to the tender mercies of Tammany Hall, which will solve no problem honestly that it is possible to solve at all.

"Now, one of these problems, it may seem strange to you that I say such an obvious proposition, but one of these problems [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

which inspired the great speech of Mr. McKinley at Buffalo and which was his dying message to his country. These were the sentiments which crystallized at the reciprocity convention, and are embodied in President Roosevelt's message. I know some newspapers say the convention at Washington was barren of result, but I am justified in denying this by the fact that the President considered it so seriously and that it constructed a platform upon which those favoring reciprocity may stand, and has set the country to thinking upon the subject. I never saw such a body of men representing such great and varied interests as gathered at the convention and am sure good must result.

"The subject of American commerce is one of such magnitude it is difficult to appreciate. A few years ago our foreign trade was small and we heard but little criticism or complaint, but during the last few years, owing to increased producing capacity, due to the ingenuity of American inventors, the skill of mechanics and the courage of capitalists, such progress has been made that production has far exceeded our needs, and we have been compelled to seek new outlets. At first we met with slight encouragement, but with the indomitable perseverance peculiar to the American character, we forged ahead step by step until we have reached a place where we command the respect of some nations and have incurred the commercial antagonism of others. This is not surprising when we realize that since 1895 our exports have grown from $900,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 and our imports have grown from $785,000,000 to $929,000,000.

"This enormous trade with every port in the world required the use of 24,000 vessels, only 13,000 of which floated the American flag. Mr. President, we have heard a great deal about the decline of American shipping, but it is a pleasure to say to-night that in the last twenty years while our sailing vessels have decreased from 3,000 to less than 7,000, our steam vessels have increased from 928 to 7,390, and, if you will follow the public press you will see that American capitalists are endeavoring to purchase the finest merchant vessels in the world. New York city and state are taking a great part in the battle for commercial supremacy. Of the 24,000 vessels clearing from the ports of the United States, over one-half left the port of New York. That peerless city of the New World has a water front of 450 miles and will be the gateway of American commerce for hundreds of years.

"The possibilities opening up to this country commercially seem wonderfully encouraging. The Pacific is destined to be thronged with vessels trading with Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan, China and Australia. Last year our trade with Hawaii amounted to $34,000,000; with the 40,000,000 people in Japan, $60,000,000, notwithstanding the people are very poor, the laborers earning only 10 to 20 cents per day. In the Philippines, where we are only just being introduced, our trade was $8,500,000 and by wise legislation we can secure almost the entire trade of the Malay archipelago.

"In China the conditions are different. For more than a thousand years the habits and customs of these people have remained unchanged, and while the population is 400,000,000 they are very poor. The laboring class earns but 5 to 10 cents per day and cannot be classed as consumers in the ordinary sense of the word, still our trade with China was $42,000,000, our relations are more friendly than any other great power, and as railroads are built and the interior opened up our trade must assume great volume.

"Australia, with a population not much greater than New York city, has proven a wonderful market; our trade last year amounting to $72,000,000, and we may expect further development. Russia, with its 120,000,000, will open up to us, and instead of the $18,000,000 worth of business of last year we should exchange $100,000,000 worth per annum.

"But our great trade must be with Europe. Our German business in 1900 was $280,000,000, with the United Kingdom $650,000,000, and with France, $155,000,000.

"Mr. President, I give these figures, not only to show what we are doing, but as an evidence of what we may expect if we have the wisdom to encourage international commerce in a liberal spirit. Our foreign trade to-day is but a babe in comparison with the giant of twenty years hence. France, Germany and Russia may try by legislation to stem the current, but American machinery and energy will prove irresistible. I believe within twenty years New York will be the commercial and financial center of the world.

"The New World will contribute food and clothing to the Old, and I sincerely believe that in time our form of government, a government of the people, by the people, will be adopted, perhaps in a modified form, by the great nations, and America with a population of 200,000,000 will influence the policy of them all."

NATIONAL EDUCATION.

Important Address by General Alfred C. Barnes on "Education in National Life."

The remarks of Gen. Alfred C. Barnes, who followed, were devoted to the subject of "Education in National Life." He said in part:

Mr. Raines said that Mr. Young's words were as thrilling as the tremendous facts he stated and caused a glow of patriotism, he was sure, in the hearts of all. The toastmaster spoke of this as the great age of education, when things that were academic in the school days of most of those present are living realities in the shops and offices of to-day; when the ordinary business man must have an education that would suffice for a college professor a few years ago. He called upon General Alfred C. Barnes to speak on "Education in National Life."

General Barnes said that all former times is the result of such attention to education as the world has never before seen. The common school is the keystone of the state. A distinguished writer and publicist has said that 'It was in making education not only common to all, but in some sense compulsory to all, that the destiny of the free republic of America was practically settled.' That our people are thoroughly in the spirit of this great advance is shown by the fact that two millions are expended annually for free education, or nearly $7 for each child of school age, and no taxes are voted more freely by legislators or paid more cheerfully by the burden-bearers.

"But this vast and universal training begets a thirst for still broader knowledge. Our youth appreciate the precept that

'A little learning is a dangerous thing.
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian Spring.'

And so they press onward in the limitless field of voluntary improvement open before them through the gate of elementary instruction.

Secondary schools, and even colleges, no longer content their ambition to assimilate the culture of the ages and to penetrate the mysteries of science. Then the splendid university looms up to gratify the most ambitious student and the halls of graduate study and original investigation are thronged in consequence. It is these who realize in its fulness the truth of Milton's prophetic declaration: 'I will conduct ye to a hillside and point ye out the right path to a virtuous and noble education. Laborious, indeed, at the first ascent, it runs so smooth, so green, so full of goodly prospect and melodious sounds on every side, that the harp of Orpheus was not more charming.'

Scholar Is in the Saddle.

"So far has the sentiment for higher education progressed that in some states the entire expense of the pupil from the kindergarten to the university is defrayed by the government. But without any such aid, in this era of stupendous private fortunes, there are found noble men and women to lavish munificent sums on this department of the public weal. Witness Andrew Carnegie's heroic attempt to 'die poor.' While the names of Rockefeller and Stanford stand resplendent with thousands of lesser benefactors (who give perhaps just as much in proportion to their means) at the head of the list started by Abou ben Adhem in the Golden Book of Paradise, of those who 'loved their fellowmen.'

"Such an expansion of the human mind must result in such betterments of the conditions of existence during the present century as the world has never conceived or approximated. We think that we dwell in an era of wonderful development. So we do, but we stand only on the threshold of possibilities. For one thing, the inculcation of right sentiment must result in the purification of politics, which are now in many instances so degraded. There is no more encouraging sign of the times than the recent redemption of the Imperial City of New York from its sordid interests, under the leadership of the president of Columbia University and that gallant graduate of Yale, who has already addressed you. The scholar is in the saddle, and will infuse his gentle scholarship, with his brave and strenuous methods, into the dark places and hard propositions of civic administration."

TALKED BACK TO JEROME.

Rev. S. Banks Nelson Does Not Approve of the Judge's Policy.

The place of Hon. Martin W. Littleton on the programme was taken by Rev. S. Banks Nelson, pastor of St. Peter's Church, who discussed "From a Constitutional to a Commercial Age." He said in part:

"Mr. Jerome has been called a second Roosevelt. Nevertheless, I differ from him. He does not know the Irishmen of New York as well as I do. If he did, he would not say that a law closing the saloons any part of a Sunday can be enforced in an Irish city. In Ireland several cities are excepted from the Sunday closing law. One of these is Dublin.

"Here the saloons are open for all who wish to drink after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. You can go to church in the morning without seeing open saloons but in the afternoon and evening they are open, while people go to church. But in the morning you will see bottles with ropes attached to them thrown out from the saloons to drinkers and in every back alley are men drinking from 'speak-easies.' I have seen half a many men drunk there in the morning

FOR AND AGAINST JUSTICE JEROME.

Brief Opinions from Many City Clergymen on Propositions Advanced by New York's District Attorney-Elect for More Liberal Excise Law—Mass Meeting of Protesting Citizens to be Held in Fitzhugh Hall on Sunday—Interest Manifest.

The Post Express presents to-day short opinions from clergymen of various denominations in Rochester, on Justice Jerome's proposition to amend the present excise law, especially by allowing saloons in New York city to keep open for a limited time on Sundays. Among the clergymen whose opinions are here expressed are several who have taken an active part in temperance work in Rochester and in other places, as the Rev. Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, a well known leader in the local Good Government club, and the Rev. Dr. MacLaurin, who for several years was a member of the executive committee of the Good Government league of Detroit.

Interviews with these clergymen elicited the information that most of them are to give extended attention to Justice Jerome's recent remarks here, from their pulpits next Sunday and on this account a few of them declined to make a public expression of opinion at this time. Among these was the Rev. Dr. Taylor, of the Brick church.

Others preferred not to express an opinion either because they had not yet arrived at a decision on the question, or because they had not read Justice Jerome's remarks and so were not in a position to know his ideas. Among the latter was the Rev. Algernon S. Crapsey, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church.

Rev. Dr. Stebbins, the pastor of Central Presbyterian church, who all along has expressed himself as being in sympathy with Mr. Jerome's views on the excise law, is out of the city to-day, so no expression of opinion could be obtained from him.

A mass meeting to protest against the proposition set forth by Justice Jerome will be held in Fitzhugh hall next Sunday afternoon, under the direction of the Prohibition union. Among the speakers will be Rev. Dr. C. A. Barbour, Rev. Frederick D. Leete, Rev. Dr. Donald D. MacLaurin, Rev. Dr. C. E. Hamilton, Rev. Dr. George H. Dryer, Rev. Dr. J. T. Gracey.

Rev. Dr. D. D. MacLaurin.

Rev. Dr. D. D. MacLaurin, of Second Baptist church—"I am opposed to Justice Jerome's proposition, because it is a surrender of an American institution which has been at least of equal value as a factor in the development of our country, viz., the American Sunday. The American Sunday has had a recognized place in the history of our country from its very beginning, and to yield to Mr. Jerome's proposition is to surrender that factor in our institution to a foreign people who have never been blest by the prosperity and privileges which the citizens of this country have enjoyed. Justice Jerome's proposition is simply to legalize a violation of the Sunday institution and that in behalf of the worst institution in our country. That saloon-keepers are under a stigma, in this country and in this country only, as Justice Jerome claims, is the highest eulogy which even he could pay to the spirit and ethical sense of the American people."

Rev. Dr. C. A. Barbour.

Rev. Dr. C. A. Barbour, of Lake Avenue Baptist church—"I presume that Justice Jerome accomplished this by his speech; he pleased the people in New York who want open saloons on the first day of the week. That, perhaps, was all that he hoped to accomplish. So far as putting such a law as he proposes upon the statute books, I think the chances of it are very remote."

Rev. Dr. H. C. Riggs.

Rev. H. C. Riggs, D. D., pastor emeritus of St. Peter's Presbyterian church—"That Justice William Travers Jerome, standing in the midst of such facts and personal experiences as he has been called to face in his official relations to the civic life of New York city, and having such outlook towards the future of that life as he must have, should cast about almost desperately for some way of making things better than they are, and of making sure any gains already in sight, is not at all strange. But it is strange that he does not seem to realize in connection with his proposed Sunday opening of saloons in New York city, that this is a question involving a great moral as well as economic principle, and one which cannot be taken up out of vital relations to other most important questions. To break down the law of the Sunday rest, which every worker needs and is entitled to have secured to him, in the interest of the retailer of liquors, is putting in peril far more than that one thing seems at first thought to involve. This granted, and other demands will surely follow in the same direction, and the outcome will be widely disastrous. If protection can possibly be had against evident and manifold evasions of the 'hotel' feature in the present law, either by amendment of the law itself or by its more exact enforcement, this certainly ought to be secured. But the promise on the part of law breakers, that upon certain concessions they will obey the law, is not worth the breath with which it is made, and if Tammany's defeat to which Justice Jerome made such grand contribution, was possible last month with this law just as it now is, why will it be impossible two years from last month even though the law remains essentially unchanged."

Rev. Dr. F. D. Leete.

Rev. Dr. F. D. Leete, of Monroe Avenue Methodist Episcopal church—"I should say that Justice Jerome's proposition, reduced to its essence, is as follows: 'Let us ask the law-breaker what he would like to have the law be, and let us legislate accordingly,' whereas I would say to the law-breaker: 'Let him first show that he has the disposition to keep the law as it is; then let him make his complaint of any injustice and we will legislate, not necessarily according to his request, but for the highest good of all concerned.' The proposition seems to be, also, to be subversive of the rights of the state, inasmuch as it is claimed to be purely a matter of local government. If New York city is permitted to become a centre of pestilence, no legislation is able to save the other cities of this country. Again, the proposition seems to me to be a case of partial legislation, favoring the business of one class against the moral, financial and religious interests of all other classes, against the moral interest, because it will not fail to increase the evils of intemperance; against the financial interests, because it will give the saloon keepers first chance at the wages of the workingman; against the religious interests, because it legalizes the fracture of the Ten Commandments and the desecration of the special day without whose continued sanctity successful worship will be made impossible."

Rev. F. T. Clayton.

Rev. F. T. Clayton, acting pastor of Third Presbyterian church—"We must remember that when Justice Jerome spoke, he dealt with conditions in New York city of which people in Western New York naturally know little and consequently are less competent to judge than one who for six years at least, has grappled face to face with these conditions. His statement of the conditions and his proposed solution of the problem appeal to me as being very sane. When I stop to think of the character of the man whence such utterances proceed, I can more confidently give my assent to his proposed measures. Whether not such a solution would solve the problem elsewhere than in New York city I am not ready to judge. I believe local conditions must be studied by sane-minded men. It is far better to have saloons closed for 12 or 18 hours of the day and to be sure of it, than to have them closed supposedly all day and endure 24 hours of deceit and lawbreaking of a most demoralizing character."

Rev. Dr. S. B. Nelson.

Rev. Dr. Nelson, of St. Peter's Presbyterian church—"Justice Jerome presented five argument, viz.:

1. The Raines law is ineffective.
2. Temptation to blackmail is too strong for the police.
3. We should help the saloon keeper and his family to be respectable.
4. Give us a law such as the Liquor association will accept and for the observance of which I have their guaranty.
5. And, above all, help us, for God's sake, to get this legislation, or we shall be relegated to limbo the next time the people have a chance to vote.

"These arguments were not discussed by Mr. Jerome, because he never once paused to consider the well-known reasons given for Sunday closing, but instead of discussion, which he evidently feared, he bolstered himself up with the bravado of a threat, and the bluster of defiance for if you don't open the saloons on Sunday you will be made, said he, to face the question 'whether great public needs are to be considered only from the standpoint of political exigencies,' and we defy you to refuse to open the saloons on Sunday for such refusal is unconstitutional. To whom has the spirit of the constitution given the right to say that 140,000 persons in New York shall not take a drink on Sunday.

"Now that threat is as harmless as the flap of a fly's wing for it is the offspring of a pair of flies. The open Sunday is not a public need, and the opposition to it is not a political expedient or vote-courting policy, but a protest of the American conscience in one of its best moods, hence we have no need to fear 'righteous indignation' or the 'true spirit of liberty' rising to throw off such wholesome and happy restraint, and the defiance is perfect bluster for the spirit of the American constitution is certainly found in greater measure in the lives and the public spirit of those who do not run points or patronize them on Sunday. The declaration of independence was not written in a saloon, not by a long shot.

"No law is absolutely water-tight, why should we expect a liquor law to be tee-totally tight. The proverb is true to experience that 'you can run a coach and force through any statute.' The Raines' law is doubtless capable of improvement, and Mr. Jerome really testified to it's value when he was unable to say that more than an average of twenty patrons receive drinks in each of 7,000 saloons on Sunday, while 6,500 were sour right. Under the British law of partial sunday closing during the day hours there is no saloon that cannot and on the average does not secretly give drinks to twenty of its favorite customers. The Raines law is a relative success. No one expects absolute success until we are nearer the millennium. Thirteen thousand saloons have their blinds drawn, doors shut, lights out, are silent as though the inmates were at prayer. Can anyone calculate the influence of this corking-down of the tavern stench and stopping the saloon brawl, on the young folks of New York, and on our young people, without whom New York would have gone to the devil long ago both temporally and spiritually. We have a right even 'hayseeds' though we be to deny the authority of Jerome and Bishop Potter to open traps for the children of 'hayseeds,' and we shall continue to exercise our right. All emigrants are not tipplers and the major cause of the slum problem of New York is that her saloons have made the multitudes of greenhorns indisposed to the exertions of our American life and robbed them of the ambition when out of employment to get up and try their fortunes elsewhere.

"Now is the hour to rise in the name of the best though of the best citizens and squelch this brazenly degenerate plan to haul us back under the domination of the worst thought and the worst citizenship. We have had men 'who would rather be right than be president' and Mr. Jerome will never earn the title Roosevelt II. unless like Theodore he sets himself with all his strength against a public evil."

Rev. Dr. E. B. Olmstead.

Rev. Dr. Olmstead, of Asbury Methodist Episcopal church said: "I am not in sympathy with the views expressed by Mr. Jerome. If no stronger arguments can be presented than those he has given us I think it will be a long time before the Christian people of this state will be converted to the theory that it will be an advisable thing to legalize the opening of the saloons in New York city or any other place during any part of the Lord's day. Mr. Jerome seems to think that about 140,000 voters in New York city, whom he says see no harm in the violation of the law, are worthy of more consideration than a vastly larger number of law-abiding citizens who believe in temperance and Sunday observance.

"Conceding that the saloon-keepers of New York as a class are persistent lawbreakers, Justice Jerome pleads with us to make them and their business respectable. He warns us against the time when the liquor men will begin to organize for the uplifting of their families. For one, I hope that time will soon come. I think the best thing they can do to uplift their families is to go out of a disreputable business, or at least to cease breaking the laws which the people have written in the statute books of the state. Certainly they will not uplift their families by continuing to open their saloons on the Sabbath day or on any part of it. I think the people want to see enforced such laws as they now have. They expect their officials to use every effort to accomplish this and I think public men will find honor and fame in that direction."

Rev. Dr. G. B. F. Hallock.

Rev. Dr. Hallock, assistant pastor of Brick church—"I'm in favor of local option by wards. I am not in favor of opening the saloons on Sunday or of putting them on any legal standing whatever on Sunday. It would be very exceptional to put the saloons on a par with the churches and other religious institutions on the Lord's day."

Rev Murray Bartlett.

Rev. Murray Bartlett, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church—"I believe that the saloons in New York city should be closed all day Sunday if it is a possible thing, but my experience in the metropolis makes me feel that there is much to be said of Justice Jerome's attitude, and it deserves the sympathetic and careful consideration of the legislature. I have great respect, too, for the opinions of Bishop Potter and Dr. Rainsford, with both of whom I am personally acquainted and whose views, I am sure, are founded on a great deal of personal experience."

Rev. Dr. George H. Dryer.

Rev. Dr. Dryer, of West Avenue Methodist Episcopal church said: "I should think it no more easy to keep saloon doors shut part of a day than to keep them shut for the whole day. Justice Jerome's proposition strikes me as being wholly impracticable."

Rev. Dr. C. E. Hamilton.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Hamilton, First Methodist Episcopal church—"I am thoroughly opposed to Justice Jerome's proposition and surprised that the only argument advanced in its favor is the fear of defeat at the next election. It would seem as though an administration just coming into power, with a full term before it for the right to vindicate itself, ought not at the very beginning to advocate a position which it confesses is undesirable. During the hours it is proposed to open the saloons, most of the Sunday schools of New York city are held and thousands of children are upon the streets. I believe, of course, that the proposition is contrary to the fundamental law of God. It may be politica to defy that law but the wisdom of that course does not derive much support from history and does not seem to find a very hearty response from most of our conscientious citizens."

Bishop McQuaid.

Bishop McQuaid did not care to be quoted in the matter. He did not hear Justice Jerome's speech and does not attach much importance to the proposition to subsidize. The Bishop apparently [illegible] Justice Jerome's [illegible]

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

and political advancement.

Rev. Thomas A. Hendricks, LL. D., is in Albany attending a meeting of the Board of Regents.

Rev. Thomas F. Hickey, rector of the Cathedral also did not desire to be quoted. He told his friends, however, that he is in favor of closing the saloons on Sundays, as other places of business are closed.

Legislators Non-Committal.

Monroe county's delegation to the state legislature is inclined to be non-committal in the matter.

Senator-elect Merton E. Lewis declined to be quoted at all.

Senator William W. Armstrong said: "I must decline to be quoted in advance of the presentation of the proposition to the legislature."

Assemblyman Richard Gardiner said: "I have heard more convincing arguments without being convinced."

Assemblymen Salyerds, Smith and Davis declined to be quoted.

The Rochesterian.

There is much discussion over the speech of William Travers Jerome at the Chamber of Commerce dinner, and the policy of opening the saloons in New York city on Sunday from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 11 o'clock at night; and as one has to give an opinion and the reasons for it in private conversation, he might as well write out what he thinks.

It is best to put aside at the outset all false pretense. The plea of Mr. Jerome that the opening of the saloons on Sunday is a great moral movement, tending to elevate the character of the people and make more honorable the calling of retail liquor-selling, is not worth considering. It is due to the human impulse to shrink away from the real motives of our actions, and persuade ourselves and others that we are prompted by higher and holier designs than mere self interest. The plain fact is that the manufacturers and sellers of liquors are business men; and they are at work to make money. The more liquor they sell, the more money they make; if the saloons of New York be open on Sunday, the men in the liquor business there will sell about a third more liquor in the week than they do now, and so increase their earnings largely. This is not meant as a censorious judgment at all but as a statement of fact; and it deals with a broad class interest not with individuals. There are men in the liquor trade who would not push their traffic beyond the point of legality or morality, into an influence for evil, on any consideration of gain.

The politicians who advocate this course in New York city urge it also as a matter of reform; but as politicians the main consideration with them is the means of getting into power and keeping there. They desire nothing but good to the community, and they may think themselves qualified to furnish the best government; but as politicians the essential thing to them is to carry elections. In the metropolis, the problem presents itself to all republicans and to many ambitious democrats in a concrete form. To help ourselves or our party, or our faction, they urge, it is necessary to beat Tammany Hall; and to that end we must make an alliance with the liquor interests; and to win over the liquor dealers it is essential to promise them open saloons on Sunday. Tammany might be glad to abolish the excise law but cannot do it; and the best that the organization can do for the saloon keepers is to let them sell quietly on Sunday, which favor is apt to involve a levy of blackmail, but we do promise a change in the law, legalizing Sunday traffic and increasing the liquor business enormously. Mr. Strong was elected mayor of New York by a coalition formed in this way, and Mr. Low has been elected by another such coalition. Mayor Strong appointed a police board, however, with Mr. Roosevelt as president, and he enforced the excise law firmly; and Tammany came into power at the next municipal election, but in due time the man who stood by the law became governor and then President of the United States. Judge Jerome, in his speech, made it very plain that in his opinion Tammany will win again if the more recent pledge to secure an open Sunday is not carried out. Now in a matter of this kind, the law should be shaped for the good of the community; not to influence the political game in favor of any man, any faction, or even any party. One of the greatest benefits arising from the Raines law was the elimination of the liquor business from municipal politics. Nearly all the corruption in our city government comes directly or indirectly from the influence of great business interests, seeking advantages in municipal administration; and in every city in the state the liquor business, which the community assumed to regulate, was active in the task of regulating the community. As a result, no candidate for office, in Rochester, and it was the same elsewhere, could be put in the field by any great party without the approval of the leading brewers and liquor dealers. It was given very unobtentatiously to some men, but the man who could not get it was not considered to [illegible] to that branch of business, but because public affairs should not be managed to suit any private occupation, and because it would be far better to put other great corporate interests out of politics than bring back the particular business interest already cut.

Of course to many people the opening of saloons on Sunday is a religious issue, as they think that means a violation of the command to keep holy the Sabbath day. This religious sentiment is sincere, strong, and worthy of respect, but it must be conceded that there are multitudes of our people who do not have it; and even among Christians in this country there is a difference of opinion as to what is essential to the holy observance of Sunday, many of them holding to the customs of Continental Europe in regard to the matter. Therefore one can not settle the policy of open saloons by an appeal to purely religious authority. It may bind you, but it can not bind your neighbor. Nevertheless the state has set apart Sunday as a day of rest, in consideration for the convenience of us all, and in respect for the belief of the people who keep that day; and below the municipal law lies the deeper foundation of natural law. The day of rest is a necessity, and, apart from religious sanction, a source of great good, since it is well for us to pause at times in the rush of labor, amusement, enterprise, and think not for the hour, but for the year, the lifetime, or may hap eternity. And if we concede that it is necessary for each of us, or best for each of us to rest one day in seven, then it follows, that so far as possible we must rest together on the same day; and so the Sunday becomes, even in a civil sense, and as an economic institution, a time when no work, not of necessity, should be done. The law does not create the day of rest: it merely recognizes and regulates it. And why, in legislation, should the state favor saloons or give privileges to the liquor business which are denied to other branches of business in Sunday legislation? And why should saloon keepers want to pursue their traffic on Sunday when other business men are glad to cease theirs?

Now there is nothing wrong in pure, honest liquor, and nothing wrong in making and selling it; but it is one of those things liable to misuse by men, and therefore in a measure dangerous. Among savage peoples, unaccustomed to restrain their appetites, it is often a source of utter destruction, and civilized men of a certain temperament who taste it lose control of themselves, and rush into every excess. The longing for it leads thousands into misery, and the indulgence in it is a source of pauperism, vice, and crime. People should know better, of course, but we have to take facts as we find them not theories; and conceding every possible benefit claimed for the temperate use of liquor, we have to concede also the evil coming from the misuse of it, so great as to make it an element of individual and social danger. For this reason the state, commonly, assumes the control of the liquor traffic, forbids it in some cases, and licenses it and regulates it in others. It is among the conditions imposed by this state that licensed saloons shall be closed on Sunday. Is there good ground for such a regulation? Let us see. On Sunday nearly all business ceases; the shops are closed; the manufactories stop work; theaters are no longer open; people do not give parties; or play games; men are idle, and, unless devoted to their families or forward in church work, they are apt to be abroad seeking amusement and open to temptation. Moreover those who are wage-earners are likely to have a week's wages in their pockets. If the saloons be wide open and everything else but the churches closed, the simple result will be that multitudes of these men will drift into the former, drink more liquor than is good for them, and spend the money necessary for their own comfort and prosperity, or, in many cases, for the purchase of food for their families. It is idle to speculate on this matter. Here is the plain condition that confronts us. The state which assumes the right to regulate the liquor traffic on the ground that there is an element of social danger in it, is asked to relax control at the very moment when every circumstance calls for redoubled vigilance. In the days when Sunday traffic was common saloonkeepers used to say that they made more money on that day than during the rest of the week; and that meant that hosts of people were spending sums that they could not afford to spend. Now the state has no right to create special opportunities for any business. And if the saloons are to be open on Sunday, then, in the name of common sense, let us secularize the day altogether, and give everything else a fair chance. Let us not devote the season of rest to churches and saloons alone, but give everybody an opportunity to work, trade, or go to places of amusement. In that case the liquor dealers would probably care less about the privilege as their profits on Sunday would be no more than on Tuesday or Wednesday.

J. O'C.

Justice Jerome's Speech.

The speech of Justice William Travers Jerome, District Attorney elect of the city of New York, delivered at the Rochester Chamber of Commerce banquet last Tuesday evening and printed in extenso in the columns of The Herald yesterday, merits careful and deliberate consideration. Whatever the political, religious or ethical bias of the reader, he will be forced to the conclusion that the speaker was influenced by no considerations of political expediency, that he was absolutely sincere and that he spoke from conviction born of long and intimate association with and knowledge of the conditions he discussed. In conversation with a Herald reporter prior to the delivery of the address on "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law," Justice Jerome said: "I do not speak on a subject unless my heart is in it." His speech at the banquet bore eloquent and forceful testimony to the truth of that statement.

Whether or not, in his advocacy of the opening of saloons on Sunday for a portion of the day in the city of New York, Justice Jerome has hit upon the best possible expedient to remedy the worst of the evils for which the notorious Raines law is directly responsible—the plan will number among its opponents many able and conscientious men—in his plea for an enforcible law he at least touched upon one point on which all fair-minded persons ought to find it easy to agree with him. That was his demand for a law that will permit the saloonkeeper to be respectable, that will enable him to retain his self respect, that will not compel his degradation by providing a loophole for the evasion of the law and practically forcing him to take advantage of it.

This aspect of the question, the speaker said, appealed to him more strongly than any other. "The only civilized country on the face of God's footstool that has succeeded by its wisdom in degrading the retail liquor business has been the United States of America. In Germany, Austria, France, all continental Europe and in England the man engaged in the business is not of necessity looked upon as disreputable. His children in the public schools do not have to suffer because of the industry with which their father is connected."

The point is perfectly clear. The state ought not to legalize a business in such a way as to make it disreputable and to degrade the men who are engaged in it. That is precisely what the infamous Raines law does. It legalizes the saloon business six days in the week; and it legalizes it on the seventh, provided the man engaged in it will conform to certain farcical requirements that enable him to [illegible] law to [illegible] keen within the letter and so escape the [illegible]

JEROME LASHES CLUBS OF RICH.

Declares They Violate the Excise Law and Intimates That He Will Help to Prosecute Them and Forfeit Their Licenses.

SPEECH TO ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Threatens Republicans with Home Rule Issue if They Inject Partisanship Into Excise Question—Says Liquor Men's Association Has Agreed to Enforce Restricted Sunday Opening Law—Hits Senator Raines.

(Special to The World.)

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 17.—Justice Jerome went even further than anybody expected he would in his speech before the Rochester Chamber of Commerce to-night on the excise question.

He threatened that if the Republican majority in the Legislature should make a party issue of the question the Democratic party in the next State campaign would adopt as its platform the larger question whether or not the "Hay Seeds" are to rule the city of New York for partisan advantage.

This was the closing shot of a speech which was characterized throughout by great boldness. The address made a profound impression on an audience of four hundred representative men of Western and Central New York.

This was not the only surprise of the evening. Justice K. Jerome for the first time disclosed some of the results of the work which he has been doing since election.

He declared he had obtained the pledge of the Liquor Dealers' Association to support the rigid enforcement of a law which would provide for the closing of saloons between the hours of 1 and 10 or 11 P. M. on Sunday.

That association, he said, had pledged itself to expel and aid in the prosecution of any member who should open his saloon during any other hours than those prescribed.

One of the most startling passages in his speech suggested the prosecution of all the wealthy clubs of New York for violation of the Excise law.

He declared that the law was constantly violated in every club because card-playing for money was carried on. This is prohibited by the Raines law in all places where liquor is sold.

Will Hold Clubs to Account.

He declared that after the first of January he would offer his services to the State Liquor Tax Commissioner to aid in the revocation of the license of every club in New York.

In the same connection he pointed out the inequality of the Raines law in permitting the sale of liquor on Sunday in rich men's clubs, while prohibiting it in the poor man's club, the saloon.

He declared that the man who "sneaked" this provision into the law, would not dare to arise and defend it. At the same time he looked hard at Senator John Raines, of Canandaigua, the author of the law, who sat in the thirteenth seat from him.

The Senator's face flushed. In fact, his countenance was a study in red and white throughout the speech. The blood rushed to his cheeks again when Justice Jerome denounced the evils of the Raines law hotels.

Many of the Justice's remarks were apparently direct shots at Senator Raines. At 7 o'clock this evening, a short time before the dinner, Senator Raines called on Justice Jerome at the Powers Hotel. Nobody else was present during the interview, which lasted about fifteen minutes, and neither man would tell what had been said, but it was learned that the discussion waxed warm at times.

How He Impressed Raines.

They parted on apparently friendly terms and Senator Raines said afterward:

"Justice Jerome is evidently very much in earnest. He has undertaken a hard task, but if he can convince us that he is right, we shall all be with him."

Everybody who listened to Justice Jerome's speech admits that it created the main issue which will be considered at Albany this winter. Ex-Congressman Henry C. Brewster, one of the leading Republicans of this city, said to the Justice when they parted for the night:

"I don't often spit my ticket, but I shall have to whenever my vote affects you. You have accomplished great results by your visit here. I believe public sentiment will be with you when the subject is fairly considered."

In one respect Justice Jerome was disappointed by his reception here. He expected that there would be among his auditors a large number of Republican members of the Legislature. Forty invitations had been sent to Senators and Assemblymen, but only nine were present. Besides Senator Raines, there [illegible] Armstrong, and Assemblymen Davis, Smith, Salyerd and Gardiner, together with Assemblyman Treat, of Cayuga, and Grimm, of Wayne.

It suggested that there was no great desire on the part of the rural legislators to be instructed as to the needs of the City of New York. Among those invited who did not attend were: Speaker Nixon and Leader Olds, of the Assembly, together with Senators White, Green, Stranahan and others.

Mr. Jerome's Address.

Mr. Jerome said:

"There is one thing that must strike everybody that pays any attention to public affairs and that is the enormous growth of the municipalities in a great number of our States, their great growth at the expense of the rural districts, and while they have grown their needs have also grown and they have looked to the Legislature for help.

"Their vital needs have often been almost unknown to those who, in good faith have imposed upon them unjust and unwise laws not because they were unjust and unwise in seeking a remedy for the evils they sought to remedy, but because the evils that followed in their train were greater than those very evils they sought to remedy.

"Now the growth of the municipalities has made municipal law of the greatest importance. When you realize that in New York are gathered together almost one-half of the population of the State; that the boroughs of the Bronx and Manhattan have increased at the rate of 50,000 a year, you can get some faint realization of the problem and understand that it will be only a few short years before the majority of the population of this State will be gathered in that great city—a city that is the second German city in the world, a city that has more Jews than Jerusalem, the greatest Irish city on the globe, the greatest Italian, Polish, Hungarian and Slavonic in the world.

The City's Problems.

Now the solution of the ordinary problems of the life of such a city is not easy. The problem of the disposal of sewerage, of the cleanliness of the streets, of the water supply, are not easy, but these bring in no questions of warfare with the moral life of the people.

"But there are other problems deeper than those; there are some that you cannot solve unless you approach them honestly and, if not solved, no administration can exist, no administration can remain in power long enough to solve them, and we will be remitted to the reign of Tammany Hall, which will not solve any problem that is possible of solution at all.

"Now one of these problems which confront us now is not a theory, it is a deadly condition. It dominates all other problems, embarrasses all purity of politics in the city of New York. I have come to you to ask your help in dealing with the liquor problem in New York city.

"But I am told that what we need is a more drastic enforcement of the law.

"Except John Raines, gentlemen. If there is a man who lives in the State of New York that is more hated and despised than I am by the liquor dealers, I will give $1,000 to any charity you may indicate."

"A few years ago Theodore Roosevelt was President of the Police Board. John W. Goff was presiding in one part of the General Sessions at that time, and I had the honor to preside in the Court of Special Sessions. There was no place for the liquor-dealers to go for relief. The whole power of the county was exercised to enforce the law.

Why He Was Disliked.

"I myself sent a widow, who had a family to support, to the penitentiary for three months because she sold a glass of beer on Sunday. I do not think it can be said that was dealing with the question very tenderly. There was no loophole. Apparently so far as the law could prevent it.

"What was the result, gentlemen? Prior to the Strong administration the liquor dealer for selling on Sunday was assessed $5 a month. During the last year of Mr. Van Wyck's administration the blackmail was $5 a month.

During Mr. Roosevelt's administration of the public affairs there were no fewer saloons open on Sunday, but the tariff was raised to $10 a month. The result of the whole business was that the blackmail on the liquor dealer was increased $5 a month.

We have as the chief development of that law the Raines law hotel. There are 2,167 of them. Now, we are not seeking to have any change in this law that will in any way affect the revenues coming from it. I suppose our effort has been looked at as an attempt at the hayseed's existence. We do not want your money.

"What we want is this: Take from us that which is demoralizing us, take from us that which is debauching our public service and give us a law that we can enforce, a law that will not keep in politics an industry that has no more business there than the dry-goods business.

"We seek but one thing. Take all the revenue that may come from this law and pay your counties' debts with it if you please. Take all your taxes off your cows and hay racks and sheep yards and put them on the municipalities. We will pay the whole thing if you want us to, but do not demand, do not make evil of everything that we have; do not throw us back into the grasp of Tammany Hall.

"We want you to change this law so that from 1 o'clock until 11 o'clock P. M. on Sundays liquor may be sold in other places than the 2,167 Raines law hotels.

"We want a chance to save people from intemperance, as we save them from other sins, by making sweeter lives for them. We have been trying to do the impossible with the criminal law. Won't you please help us? If not, in what was offered in the past, and the fault will not be with us, but with you

"RAINES AND I MOST HATED." --JEROME.

"Except the Author of the Present Liquor Law, There Is No Man in New York More Cordially Disliked Than I Am."

SPEAKS IN ROCHESTER ON LIQUOR PROBLEM.

Rochester, Dec. 17.—At the annual banquet at the Chamber of Commerce held in Minor Hall to-night was gathered a brilliant assemblage of the business and political life of this locality.

Edgar Raines, brother of Senator John Raines, author of the Raines law, was toastmaster. Among the guests prominent in political life was John Raines, who occupied a seat near Justice Jerome, and Morris Tekulsky, president of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association of New York City, was also present.

Alexander B. Lamberton, president of the Chamber, made some introductory remarks, and the principal speaker of the evening, Judge Jerome, of New York City, was then introduced. His subject was "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law." He said:

"Mr. President and Toastmaster (falsely so called, because I feel it should be Mr. Toastmaster)—I am here because my heart is in a certain question, and I am in honor bound to discharge my obligation.

"We have got to have help outside of the city of New York.

"There is one thing which must strike everybody that pays any attention to public affairs, and that is the enormous vote of the municipalities and their growth at the expense of local districts, their growth at the expense of the hayseed.

"This growth of municipalities has made a municipal problem of the highest importance. In the city of New York to-day there has gathered almost half the population of the State of New York.

"Both Machines "Rotten."

"Politics in this part of the country are pure, but in our city both machines are so fundamentally rotten that there is nothing to choose between them.

"Highly important as they are, these problems have never been studied.

"Unless you approach them honestly you can never solve them. In the city of New York, because no administration can remain long enough in office and grapple with them, but will be at the tender mercy of Tammany Hall, and they will solve no problem which is possible to be solved at all.

"One of these problems which confront us now is vital, and it is for this one I have come here to cry for help.

"That is, the dealing with the liquor problem in the city of New York. We have 13,000 saloons in the city of New York, and we have at least to-day 1,000 saloons open every Sunday despite the austerity of the law which the Hayseeds have breached on them. So that you have in the city of New York at least 140,000 voters who every Sunday in the year go into a saloon and take one or more drinks.

"They cannot be made to believe that the offense is a moral one or one involving moral servitude. They cannot be made to feel that it is a crime to go by the side door and open another man to commit a crime by selling them, and lower the self-respect of every man that sells them.

"If you endeavor to enforce that law the adulteration that endeavors to enforce it goes out at the end of its terms.

"But I am told that those who make no honest effort to enforce the law meet with no drastic punishment. Except John Raines, there is no man that lives in the State of New York who is more cordially hated than I am.

"The views that I advocate here to-night has been driven upon me by honest conviction. For six years and a half I have set in the court in New York, upon which the burden of enforcing this law is cast. There are men who control the local machine of New York and upon them rested the so-called enforcement of the Raines law. Theodore Roosevelt was the President of the police force. John Goff presided at the only court of sessions in which the question was touched.

New York Sun
10 Dec 86.

JEROME ATTACKS RAINES LAW

TELLS ROCHESTER HAYSEEDS HAVE RULED THE CITY.

To John Raines (Present): "No Man More Hated Than You, Except Myself"—Law-Bred Blackmail and Fly-Blown Sandwiches—Give Us Enforceable Law

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 17.—William Travers Jerome, District-Attorney-elect of New York city, spoke at the banquet of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce to-night, his subject being "The Municipal Problem in New York as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law."

Many politicians of State renown, including the Hon. John Raines, heard the speech. George Raines, his brother, acted as toastmaster. Judge Jerome said:

"I am not here to try and fill your minds with empty representations and unsafe theories. I am here because my heart is in a certain question, and because I feel it vital to the people who have treated me well, to whom I am in honor bound to discharge my obligation. We have got to have help and we have got to have help outside of the city of New York.

"There is one thing which must strike everybody that pays any attention to public affairs, and that is the enormous vote of

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

the municipalities in this country for some years, and their growth at the expense of local districts, their growth at the expense of the harassed, if you please, and while they have grown their interests have by no means ruled.

"In our city both machines are so fundamentally rotten and there is nothing to chose between them. Highly important as they are, many municipal problems have never been studied. Unless you approach them honestly you can never solve them in the city of New York because no administration can remain long enough in office to grapple with them. It will shortly be at the tender mercy of Tammany Hall and they will solve no problem honestly which is possible to be solved otherwise."

Judge Jerome then took up the Raines law problem. He said:

"We have 13,000 saloons in the city of New York and we have at least to-day 1,000 saloons open every Sunday despite the austerity of the law which the hayseeds have put on them. So that you have in the city of New York at least 140,000 voters who every Sunday in the year go into a saloon and take one or more drinks. They cannot be made to believe that the offence is a moral one or one involving moral turpitude. They cannot be made to feel that it is a crime to go by the side door and solicit another man to commit a crime by selling to them.

"If you endeavor to enforce that law the administration that endeavors to enforce it goes out at the end of its term. But I am told that those who make no honest effort to enforce the law meet with no drastic punishment. Except John Raines, there is no man that lives in the State of New York who is more cordially hated than I am. I myself sent a widow woman who had a family to support to the penitentiary for three months because she sold a glass of beer on Sunday. I don't think that question occupied over ten minutes, and there was no help for it, apparently, so far as the law courts could provide.

Judge Jerome said that he was not seeking to have any change made in this law in regard to revenue funds. He looked for a law that would not debauch the party service; one that would not give from $100,000 to $170,000 a year blackmail to the Police Department.

The Raines law had the fairest possible test when there were three men in control of the legal machinery of New York, Theodore Roosevelt, Recorder Goff and himself, who believed as sincerely in the law as did John Raines himself.

"The result of this fair test of the laws," said he, "was to raise the amount of blackmail from the $5 a month levied on the saloonkeeper during former administrations to $10 during ours. That test produced the world-famous fly-blown sandwich that does duty all day long, and the India rubber sandwich attached to the wall that is displayed when a drink is ordered, and allowed to snap back into the wall when the drink is finished. We look for a law that we can enforce, for a law that will not dangle blackmail of thousands of dollars before the Police Department, a department made up of men who were individually physically and morally above the average when they were appointed on the force, but who have deteriorated under the influence of a system than which nothing could be better adapted to debauch men."

Here followed a dramatic appeal in behalf of the people of the metropolis, in the course of which Justice Jerome said:

"We seek at least those who think as I do on one single proposition, even if the law directs all the revenue from this year to pay debts upcountry. If you please, tax hay and sheep, cows or cow barns; we will pay all, if it is necessary. Do not debauch us. Do not make every effort that we use for better influence futile. Do not throw us back into the arms of Tammany Hall, where women's shame is rung up on registers and trafficked in with brass checks. We ask you to take from us the conditions that are debauching our public life.

"Take the saloon business out of politics, where it has no more business than the grocery or the dry goods business. Tax us all you want, but do not give us this law that lowers us with shame. Change this law and legitimatize Sunday sales of drinks in public places and the 2,167 Raines law hotels of the metropolis.

"We want a chance to deal with this moral question by moral means; we want a chance to save people from intemperance. We would save them from any other sin, by sweeter lives, by religion, by better influences, and not by trying to do the impossible with the criminal law. The fault lies with the people outside of the city of New York who are unable to account themselves to our conditions. The question is not one that, whether or not, such a law will have evils attending it; I know of no law that does not have incidental evils attending it.

"God knows with the experience I have had, if I could close the saloons for all time, I would vote on that proposition. As Dr. Parkhurst says: 'A bill for Sunday opening during limited hours in the city of New York is not a bill for Sunday opening; it is a bill for Sunday closing.'

"In a country where all men are born free and equal, do we think it comports with respect and to the law that a poor man can walk down Fifth avenue and pass the University Club, the Manhattan Club, Union League Club and others, and can see them drinking and enjoying themselves while the poor go thirsty?"

Judge Jerome said a change in the law would not make every liquor dealer respectable, but would give him a chance to be respectable if he desired to be. His remarks in closing were greeted with wild applause, in which the many Assemblymen, invited from various parts of western New York, joined.

The Rev. S. Banks, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Rochester, was one of the speakers to follow Judge Jerome. He said Justice Jerome had evidently signed a compact with the liquor dealers and he thought it merited condemnation, "even if made by a second Roosevelt."

JEROME AND HIS PROBLEM.

The address of William Travers Jerome, district attorney-elect of New York city, at the Rochester Chamber of Commerce banquet Tuesday evening was one of the principal features, though by no means the only interesting feature, of that occasion.

Justice Jerome came to this city with a message. He came with the laurels of a great victory on his brow and with a strong, burning desire in his breast. He came from the heart of a great conflict between the forces of righteousness on the one hand and [illegible] on the other. [illegible] declared, "the State could not [illegible] and administrative honesty, some of the most prominent clergymen in this city favor Sunday opening under careful restriction, and they know a thousand times more about the requirements of practical Christianity here than the Rochester pastor, who is so quick to charge that Mr. Jerome has made a compact with the liquor dealers.

Mr. Jerome is trying to accomplish a great good. Whether the opening he desires would succeed in accomplishing it, and whether, even if it would, his method is the wise one, is a matter for consideration. Many who fully appreciate the difficulties and dangers of rigorous and inquisitorial enforcement of the liquor law on Sunday in a community where thousands of people are accustomed to drink beer with their dinner as the average American drinks water feel that a general Sunday opening would involve most serious evils, owing to our climate, temperament and social customs. They think that, instead of having families enjoying themselves harmlessly in beer gardens after the German fashion, we should have men leaving their wives and children for overindulgence in the saloons. District Attorney Philbin and ex-Mayor Schieren, a German and a liberal share these views, and they are not less experienced in human nature and the problems of government than Mr. Jerome. They do not deny that some way should be found to supply the legitimate Sunday demand for liquor without permitting the liberty to be either an excuse for official blackmail or an opportunity for a riotous day. Mr. Jerome's plea in the name of religion, morality and liberty for the adoption of his plan to cure the real evils which he feelingly describes does not meet these objections. Thousands will agree to all he says about the bad conditions which have existed under the present law, some of which are apparently inherent in it, who are not convinced of the wisdom of his particular plan and will not be by being lectured.

Moreover, there is need of enlightenment as to just what Mr. Jerome's plan is. Does it involve submission of the Sunday opening question to local option, or the opening of saloons by act of the Legislature out of hand, either for a section of the state or the whole of it? If the former, the possibility of securing a vote for more liberal excise restrictions is to be considered. Possibly even in this borough the majority might be adverse, and as a consequence the reform administration would have a worse problem to face than now. If this danger is to be discounted by an appeal to the Legislature to settle the matter itself, the question of home rule is injected into the discussion. It is, therefore, necessary for Mr. Jerome, before he can expect general support of his propositions, to get them carefully defined so that people may know just what they involve. This matter is far too difficult to be decided by appeals to sentiment, no matter how high, without considering most minutely practical results.

JEROME DENOUNCES RAINES' LIQUOR LAW

District Attorney Elect Talks Plainly on the Excise Question to "Up-State" Legislators at Chamber of Commerce Dinner in Rochester.

SAYS HE WILL FAITHFULLY EXECUTE THE LAW

Announces That He Will Close Every Saloon and Club in New York City, if Called Upon, but Seeks to Control the Evil.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Tuesday.—Senator John Raines sat before four hundred of his fellow citizens from this part of the State to-night and listened to a scathing arraignment by Judge William Travers Jerome of the liquor law popularly known by his name.

Judge Jerome had come here to be the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce, and to declare himself on the question of the liquor laws, and how to amend them, so that the people, not only of New York city, but of the whole State, should benefit. As Judge Jerome spoke Senator Raines was seated thirteen chairs away, and next to the Judge sat the Senator's brother, George, who was toastmaster, but whose introduction of Judge Jerome was such that the Judge referred to him as the "toastmaster."

Not as many "up State" politicians as had been expected appeared at the dinner. It was a function which they seemed desirous of avoiding, possibly because of the announcement that Judge Jerome would have a few plain truths to tell about the Excise law as he found it, and what he would do, as the next District Attorney of New York county, to better it.

He did not mince matters in the least, and the fact that he seldom was interrupted by applause was significant of the deep attention of his auditors.

HE WILL ENFORCE THE LAW.

"If fifteen minutes after I am sworn in as District Attorney of New York county," he declared, "the State excise authorities should request me to do so, I would close every social club in New York city that is violating the Raines law. They can command me and the powers of my office. I'll give them the chance to observe the law if they want to do it."

There was a shout of applause, and a smile flitted over the face of Senator Raines, who had seen Judge Jerome in his room before the speech, and he afterward said that if the Judge could carry through his project no one in the republican party would put a stone in his path.

There were many men prominent in the liquor business among the Judge's audience. None was more interested than Morris Tekulsky, formerly president of the New York City Retail Liquor Dealers' Association, who had come all the way from New York to hear him.

"I am told I am butting my head against a stone wall," said the Judge. "I am told that no legislative body in New York State will pass such a law as I advocate."

This was the opening of all saloons from one o'clock until eleven o'clock at night on Sunday, and he had declared that this opening really would result in the closing of the saloons.

He told his hearers that the people of New York city looked to them for help, and expected to get it. He also said that, personally, he would close all the saloons for all time if he could, but inasmuch as he could not, he was ready to do all in his power to help remedy an evil.

Judge Jerome responded to the toast, "The Municipal Problem in New York City, as Affected by the Liquor Tax Law."

JUDGE JEROME'S SPEECH.

"I am here because my heart is in a certain question. I am here because I feel so vitally for the people who have asked and directed my work, to whom I am in honor bound to discharge my obligations.

"We want help from the 57 of New York [illegible] There is one thing that [illegible]

LAW FAVORS THE WEALTHY.

"If you go up Fifth avenue you will pass the Union League Club, the University Club, the Union Club (a little off the avenue), and you can see rich men sitting there drinking, by reason of the beautiful provision in the Raines law, that certain corporations that existed prior to a certain March day of a certain year could do things a poor man could not.

"Who put that there? Who had the face and power to put that there? Who can stand up before the people and say he drew such a distinction in favor of the rich and against the poor? I can go to the fashionable hotels in New York every Sunday in the year and see the law violated among the higher classes.

In his speeches in the last campaign the Judge outlined the idea that although New York city might ask for what it wanted the Legislature of the State of New York was made up largely of members who came from above the Bronx. For this reason, in making his plan of campaign he decided that in order to win it was necessary for him to get the support of the up State members of the Legislature.

FEW LEGISLATORS PRESENT.

To them chiefly he addressed himself to-night. As a matter of record there were few members of the Legislature present. The Chamber of Commerce had a larger assortment of letters of regret than any dinner committee ever had a chance to put on file.

Most of the Senators and Assemblymen who live in this part of the State had no hesitation in making a courteous reply to the invitation and saying a previous engagement prevented its acceptance.

The list of names of those whose replies are now on file includes every member of the Legislature elected in the last year between Buffalo and Syracuse, with the exception of Senators John Raines, Morton E. Lewis, William W. Armstrong, and Assemblymen E. S. Treat, of Cayuga; F. W. Griffith, of Wayne, and Isaac W. Sayers, George R. Smith, Martin Davis and Richard Gardner, of Monroe.

After the dinner Judge Jerome took the train which leaves here for New York at 12:56 A. M. to keep an engagement to deliver an address embodying his ideas on Sunday opening, before the Brewers' Exchange, in East Fifteenth street, at two o'clock to-morrow.

In the course of Judge Jerome's speech it was made evident that he believes that he has the pledge of the liquor dealers of New York city that if his amendment to the Raines law is passed by the Legislature this winter, they will conform to the requirements of the law as it stands on the statute books.

In plain words, the liquor dealers, as represented by the president of their local and State organizations, have told Judge Jerome that if he succeeds in passing the law which will allow saloons to be open after church hours on Sunday, they will keep their front and side doors and all other doors closed absolutely during all the prohibited hours.

Although Judge Jerome did not say it in so many words, it was allowed to be inferred that the movement for the opening of saloons on Sunday will be fought out purely on political lines if it is made a political issue.

EDITORIAL SYMPOSIUM.

Mr. Jerome's Appeal.

New York Tribune.

The Rochester clergyman who, at the conclusion of Mr. Jerome's speech on Sunday opening in that city, declared that Justice Jerome had evidently signed a compact with the liquor dealers which merited condemnation, "even if made by a second Roosevelt," entirely missed the point of the question at issue. Such criticism as he and men of his type make of Mr. Jerome's unquestionably high minded attempts to solve the liquor problem in the interest of good morals and good government merely gives the average person an impression of narrowness and bigotry which hurts the temperance cause. The wisdom of the change in the law which Mr. Jerome advocates is open to serious question, but there is not the slightest doubt that a great number of serious, temperate, Christian men and women in this city believes that the law as it stands puts a premium on misconduct, and that [illegible] would

Mr. Jerome and the Excise Law.

New York Press.

The announcement in Rochester by Justice Jerome, District Attorney elect, that he is to be the champion of the Sunday opening cause forbodes some excitement in New York city after January 1 and some spark-flying friction in the Legislature at its next session and the session of the following year. Mr. Jerome's policy, we infer, will be no rigid an enforcement of the present liquor law that if the Legislature does not pass some amendatory excise legislation at this session the excise question and the Sunday opening question will be made the issue of the next state election.

We take it that it will be Mr. Jerome's idea to make the present law so odious that there will be a popular uprising against it in this city; and to make the law odious equally to all "classes" he will begin its enforcement, first of all, with the clubs and the hotels, accompanied by a closing of all other places where liquor is now sold on Sunday in violation or evasion of the law.

We have an idea that probably a majority of the voters of this city would not object to a more liberal Sunday law if its results should not infringe upon the rights or offend the moral sense of too many citizens who do not themselves desire open drinking places on Sunday, but who are yet willing that others should have them, if the change could be accomplished without the aforesaid disadvantages. We have an idea also that a majority of the voters of the whole state do not view with complacency the suggestion that saloons shall be open, legally, on Sunday anywhere. Still another idea which we have is that if Sunday opening were made a partisan question the "up-state" voters would pitch in and fight it. Mr. Jerome's plan, as we see it, would tend to make a partisan issue of the question. And one more idea which we entertain on the subject is that if it were made a partisan issue, and if the "up-state" voters "pitch into" it, Mr. Jerome's policy would suffer defeat.

If we comprehend Mr. Jerome's intentions aright, there will be a great deal of Sunday excitement in New York city a few weeks from now; there will be a "frumpus" in the Legislature; there will be some highly flavored newspaper sensations, and there will be no Sunday opening law!

Mr. Jerome and the Sunday Question.

New York World.

The speech of Mr. Jerome at Rochester was, like all his public utterances, fearless, forceful and very earnest. He told the up-state people some truths which they need to learn, but which nobody who knows the sentiment that controls the Legislature believes will result in its acquiescence in a Sunday-opening saloon law for this city.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

THEY DENOUNCE JEROME'S PLAN

FIVE SPEAKERS HEARD AT FITZHUGH HALL.

PROTEST MEETING HELD

LARGE ASSEMBLAGE LISTENS TO VIGOROUS ADDRESSES.

SANCTITY OF SABBATH

All Agree That no Law Tending to Mer it Should be Enacted—Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian Preachers Speak — Resolution Condemning Proposed Action Adopted.

A very large audience assembled at Fitzhugh hall yesterday on the occasion of the mass meeting under the auspices of the Prohibition Union of Christian Men to protest against the sentiments expressed by District Attorney-elect Jerome, of New York, at the Chamber of Commerce dinner, on the question of the enforcement of the Sunday closing provision of the Raines liquor law.

The sentiment of the speakers and their hearers was given tangible form by the adoption of the following resolution:

Whereas, It has pleased God, our Heavenly Father, to set apart one day of the week as a day of rest from gainful operations, as a day of worship and holiness unto the Lord; and

Whereas, God, since the morning of creation, has commanded His people to "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy;" and

Whereas, We believe that the Christian Sabbath, which has become the American rest day, is a gracious gift from God to all the people; and

Whereas, We believe that continued divine favor, respect for all law, the priceless heritage of liberty bought with the blood of our fathers, and the republic itself, are put in jeopardy by the surrendering of that day to the most gainful, harmful and indefensible occupation in the land; therefore

Resolved, That the Christian people here assembled do solemnly protest against the proposition to legalize the opening of the saloons upon any portion of that day which is God's holy day and the American day of rest, and we ask the representatives of this county, in the event of such a bill appearing at the coming session of the legislature of this state, to work and vote for its defeat. We congratulate the citizens of Rochester upon the fact that the mayor-elect of this city has solemnly pledged himself to enforce the Sunday law as it stands; and we pledge him our undivided support in that endeavor.

After an overture by DuRobert's orchestra, C. N. Howard, the presiding officer, introduced Rev. C. A. Barbour, D. D., who read a portion of the eighth chapter of Deuteronomy. Rev. Charles Elbert Hamilton, D. D., led in prayer.

Jerome on Law Enforcement.

Rev. S. Banks Nelson, D. D., pastor of St. Peter's Church, was the first speaker. Dr. Nelson was one of the speakers at the Chamber of Commerce dinner, and on that occasion he placed himself on record as opposing the plan advanced by Justice Jerome for the treatment of the Sunday liquor selling business in New York. Dr. Nelson said:

"Justice Jerome had the pleasure of addressing a Rochester audience last Tuesday evening. Since that speech he has become the spokesman of the Millionaire Brewers' Association of New York. Here he said that the Sunday clause of the liquor law could not be enforced in New York city. He took a sleeper and went to New York, and the next day he told a meeting of the brewers that he could, as district attorney, enforce the law, and that if the brewers spent a single dollar to procure the repeal of the law, he would enforce it and make New York a very dry place. He had forgotten what he said the night before.

"Does Justice Jerome think that we 'upstate hayseeds' can be so easily deceived? Jerome has now made a compact with the liquor dealers. Had he made the statements which he now makes, before election, he would not have been elected. Jerome favors a Sunday opening law which was not before the electorate of the city of New York at the last election. He is trying to qualify the promises he made before the election. Mr. Jerome says that New York wants a different law from other cities. He says: 'The people of my city would not vote for my Sunday opening scheme because it would not be put before them in the proper light.' To meet the views of about 120,000 people of New York who want liquor sold on Sunday, he would open the saloons for certain hours on that day.

"Justice Jerome is very careful not to touch the question of local option. He knows that the people of New York would vote against the open saloon on Sunday if they had the chance."

Dr. Nelson was scathing in his denunciation, what he called Jerome's wavering course with reference to the Sunday closing clause of the Raines liquor law.

"The curse of Reuben is upon him," said Dr. Nelson. "Unstable as water he shall not excel."

Dr. Barbour Defines His Position.

The second speaker was Dr. Barbour, who said in part:

"Justice Jerome has come, and has seen, but can hardly be said to have conquered. He was received with the respect and honor due to whatever of good he has accomplished in the metropolis. His speech, to be frank, was unworthy of the reputation of the man. It was a woeful man pleading a bad cause.

"Before he came it was claimed, by some who thought they knew, that he was going to recommend local option for all the cities of the state by means, first, as to whether or not the voters should vote at all at which to put [illegible] license was voted, there shall be any open hours on the first day of the week.

"Later it was said, by those who also claimed to know, that there was no proposition for local option, whether by the municipality as a whole or by any of its subdivisions, except the city of New York, but that the proposition was to submit to the people of New York city whether or not they should have the open saloon within certain hours on Sunday.

"If any such proposition as this was in the mind of Justice Jerome it was not expressed. The Sunday laws, therefore, are ours by his Rochester speech was that the legislature, the same 'hayseed' legislature, to the non-metropolitan members of which he did not fall, somewhat contemptuously, to refer, shall, without the submission of the question to the people of New York city, impose upon the metropolis a Sunday-opening provision.

"If that be his proposition, I am against it first, last and all the time. I am against it on religious grounds. I am against it as upon those grounds. I am against it as a citizen on civil grounds, as subversive of the highest civic rights of the people of New York city and as worse than the American rest day, which is an essential and integral part of our national life.

"But I do not think that we need to take Justice Jerome's proposition seriously. Doubtless he accomplished that which he expected to accomplish, namely, the pleasing of those voters of many put but the fire on him. To whom he made his appeal during the recent campaign. Beyond this I do not believe that he hoped to go. If he did hope to accomplish more than this, I greatly misjudge the spirit of the legislature, his hopes will be badly frosted.

"It would be easy to severely characterize the speech if it were a man of less worth who spoke. If a dyed-in-the-wool and unscrupulous politician had made the speech, it would have been condemned entirely. Sitting for him. As it was Justice Jerome, who certainly merits honorable recognition by right-minded citizens, I would simply say that I am sorry, and I hope sincerely that he will be sorry that the speech was made.

"With one part of it I am in thorough accord, namely, that rich and poor should be put upon the same footing in the matter of the liquor-tax law, but the remedy for any inequality which now exists does not lie in the path which Jerome proposed; it lies along the line of the restriction of the unwarranted privileges which are now enjoyed by the so-called upper classes. If he proposes to proceed along the lines of such restriction as he indicated he was willing to follow as district attorney in New York city, strength to his arm and edge to his ax !"

Local Option Not Wanted.

Dr. Barbour was followed by Rev. George H. Dryer, pastor of the West Avenue Methodist Church. Among other things, Mr. Dryer said:

"I have nothing to say about Justice Jerome, Mr. Low or Dr. Potter. I respect them, but I disagree with them. But no man's position shall impose a bad law on me or on those whom I can influence, if I can help it.

"In matters of conscience we do not submit to local option. Matters which concern public welfare are not submitted to local option. When the whole is affected the rights of the whole must prevail. It is so with the business of liquor selling. It is not on the same basis as other forms of business. The settled policy of the people looks towards restriction. So we say that the policy of the state and nation cannot be submitted to local option."

Mr. Dryer spoke of his residence of three years abroad, and said:

"The European workingmen want our Sabbath, not the Continental Sabbath. They want Sunday rest. They haven't it and they want it. We have got it and, with God's help, we mean to keep it. The workingman needs his Sunday, and only his enemy would try to take it from him. There should be an amendment to the Raines law. The Raines law hotel is a curse.

"Will you make your voice known in this matter? Then thank Mr. Jerome for giving you the opportunity."

Sunday a National Institution.

The next speaker was Rev. Dr. Donald D. MacLaurin, pastor of the Second Baptist Church. In the course of his address Dr. MacLaurin said:

I am unalterably opposed to the proposition made by Mr. Jerome in Rochester, and reiterated before the Breweries' Association in New York city on the day following. I am unalterably opposed to it because it is an invasion upon the right of the vast majority of people who constitute the backbone of this country, and because it is a violation of one of the most sacred and helpful institutions of this great country.

The American Sunday is neither a myth nor a misnomer. It is as historical as any event or institution there is in the life and annals of this nation. You may call it what you please—Sunday, the Lord's day, the Christian Sabbath—and maintain or oppose it, as men do; its place and power as an American institution can neither be ignored nor destroyed. It is an integral part of our national history, character and life, and no argument can change that fact.

Now, fundamental to a pure Christianity is the observance of the Lord's Day. It is impossible to maintain our Christian institutions and allow this day to be destroyed. Decisions of the supreme courts of New York and Pennsylvania, I understand, declare unmistakably to be a part of the common law of these commonwealths. And, if I am not mistaken, the decision of the supreme court of the United States in the World's Fair opening case is to the same effect, namely, that this is a Christian nation.

We know that the constitution of the United States recognizes Sunday, by excepting it from the working days of the president for signing congressional bills. Contracts made on Sunday are illegal. These and other facts prove that Sunday is a fully recognized factor in our American governmental, society and life. And many of us are persuaded that it is necessary to the maintenance of our distinctive civil and religious liberties, and that the day of its desecration is a moral and spiritual force would be the doom day of the institutions so precious to us, and to the national character with which it is synonymic. A land without a Sunday is a land without practical religion and good morals.

And, besides all this, the use of Sunday as a day of rest from toil is of unspeakable value to all working men. Every man needs a day of rest. Every animal needs a day of rest. Nothing has been demonstrated more perfectly than the one assertion that is the otherwise reasonable to the [illegible]

[illegible] necessary burdens upon this [illegible] Christian Sunday [illegible] Sabbath of the Jews [illegible] more closely crepes.

"Second, we should distinguish clearly between the Christian Sunday and the civil Sabbath. We have both these institutions in our land, but it should be remembered that under our national constitution and that what I have read of the movements of working men through out the country that they differ since is or can be recognized and enforced by legal enactment. That they fail upon the same day may confuse the distinction in some minds, but in the eye of the law this coincidence is merely a matter of public convenience and expediency. Our Sunday laws, therefore, are not religious, but essentially secular in character. They seek both to secure periodic rest by cessation from labor and to guard its leisure so secured against scandalous perversion, but they do it not in the name of religion, but in the name of physical need and social welfare.

"This is the standard then—and not our common or individual religious preposessions—by which civil enactments new or old respecting Sunday in connection are to be tested. We must remember also that methods and regulations that do and do well for a limited and homogeneous community may not or less than fail if applied to a vast and varied population, for instance like the metropolis of New York. Social problems, in a word, simply by alteration in volume and extent change and change essentially the nature of the remedies and restrictions that are applicable. An 'upstate' man may put out the fire on his parlor floor with the aid of the hearth rug, but he could hardly apply with success the same method of extinction to a conflagration raging over a hundred squares of New York or Chicago.

"New York city has a great and trying problem on its hands. The results of present legislation and regulation are unspeakably bad. Something must be done. What move will be wise and be warranted by the conditions only those who know the conditions thoroughly and are surrounded by them are competent to judge. Distinctively religious, interests we may safely assume, will not be lost sight of in any measures advocated by such men as Bishop Potter and Charles Parkhurst."

RAINES ANSWERS JUSTICE JEROME

THE ROCHESTER SPEECH PICKED TO PIECES.

THE SUNDAY SALOON

STRONGLY OPPOSED BY AUTHOR OF THE EXCISE LAW.

JEROME'S ARGUMENTS

Sunday Opening as a Remedy for Existing Evils Scoffed at by the Senator—He Tells Who Want the Change —Alleged "Degradation" of Retail Liquor Dealers—Motive Discovered.

Canandaigua, N. Y., Dec. 22.—The Democrat and Chronicle correspondent handed to Senator Raines a copy of Judge Jerome's speech at Rochester, which the senator said he had listened to with some pleasure and much astonishment, and had read carefully. In response to a request for an interview, he consented to review the speech, which he did as follows:

"Mr. Jerome says that 'until certain problems are solved in the city of New York, no honest administration can remain long enough in office to grapple with them, and they are and always will be permitted to the tender mercies of Tammany Hall, which will solve no problem honestly that it is possible to solve at all.' It would seem then to be the duty as well as the policy of the incoming reform administration to solve these problems during its present lease of office. That this will be done is without doubt what the people who elected these officials expect, as they were chosen as a protest against the methods of Tammany Hall. It is therefore to be presumed, if these questions are rightly solved, an 'honest administration' will be able to remain in office in the city of New York, where I believe to-day, as always, the better and not the worse elements are in the majority.

"Mr. Jerome details the several problems to be solved, but finally sums them all up in one, as follows: 'One of these problems that confronts us now is no theory, but a daily brutal condition, embracing all other problems, embracing the province of purity of municipal politics, and affairs in the city of New York, one that is real, and one for the solution of which I have come here to put up a cry for help. It is this very one, this dealing with the liquor problem of New York.' So far I agree with Mr. Jerome, though it does seem startling that the few brewers (about 200 all told) and the few thousand people holding liquor-tax certificates, entitling them so-and-again to drank on the premises, should have produced such a state of affairs in New York City as Mr. Jerome sets it. In search of the writers of the first five or six centuries shows not a single case where the fourth commandment is quoted as the reason for enforcing the Lord's day. There is not the slightest evidence that its origin was due to command.

"It was not an enactment but grew up—no one knows precisely how or when—as the outcome and expression of the new life and new spirit. 'I have to answer,' says Origen, 'that to the perfect Christian who is in the authority for keeping

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

...on its merits or treat it on any basis ... Court think a second time before they ... evidence that question at a time when ... there is an election coming on in the year ... 1902; let them think a second time before ... they desire to lock horns with a party almost defunct, but which it is possible to revivify and revivify if you give it an issue as broad and as deep as that, and one based on sound political philosophy and moral precedent.' The issue remember is this Sunday opening of saloons. What party now 'almost defunct' is to champion it, and so be 'rejuvenated and revivified,' and above all we would like to know whom Mr. Jerome has in his mind for its leader? Who is hidden in the thicket for a burnt offering? Sunday opening a political question? Anything may be a political question which touches the welfare of the citizen, if there are enough in opposition to that welfare to demand organized effort against them. If there is any desire on Mr. Jerome's part to revivify that 'almost defunct party' by putting Sunday opening in its platform, he will find its opponents already in the field, under the declaration for the 'maintenance of the Sunday laws in the interest of labor and humanity' waiting the conflict, not doubting the result.

"Why should not New York city under its reform administration have a demonstration of the results to be secured through the enforcement of laws as they are, before we make changes? A few Churchills and Goddards may work great changes there, with the assistance of a district attorney of Mr. Jerome's ability, so great that we may have no fear of a new 'Tammany graft' which might be involved in the revivification of that 'almost defunct party,' with which Mr. Jerome threatens us."

Judge William Travers Jerome's recent speech in this city before the Chamber of Commerce, in which he presented his views on the Sunday opening question, has attracted wide attention. The New York Evening Post says: "Jerome's proposition that the Legislature pass an act opening all the saloons in New York city Sunday afternoon and evening without consulting the voters of the city has met the reception which was anticipated by those who know the strength of the home-rule sentiment in this state. Not a single newspaper either in this city or in any other part of the commonwealth, endorses the idea that so radical a step should be taken by the lawmakers at Albany without a reference to the people, and in this attitude the press undoubtedly reflects public opinion. It is obvious that the only policy which can possibly secure favorable consideration by the Legislature is that of local option, in the shape of a bill giving the voters of New York city a chance to show at the polls whether they want open saloons on Sunday or not. The movement for this secures considerable support from people who oppose such opening, because it is now the general belief—shared by the shrewdest politicians in both parties—that such a referendum would show a large majority against Sunday saloons. For this very reason, however, those who favor Sunday opening are against applying the local-option idea—especially the liquor-dealers, who fear that, if the people should once vote against opening saloons on Sunday, there might be a movement for a similar vote by wards or election districts upon the question of having saloons open on week-days, which would result in making some sections of the city 'dry' all the time." The view that those favoring Sunday opening are afraid to put the question to the test of a popular vote will surprise many. But in any case, it is the only fair way of treating the matter. It is something the people of New York should decide for themselves, and the Legislature should act in accordance with their decision.

RAINES TO SPEAK HERE IN REPLY TO JEROME

Senator Has Agreed to Speak at Railroad Men's Dinner.

EXCISE LAW QUESTION

There Will be Much Interest in Canandaigua Man's Appearance in Rochester One Month From To-day—Rev. Murray Bartlett Also to Speak

Hon. John Raines is to reply to District Attorney-elect Jerome at the dinner of the Railroad Men's Sound Money Association. Justice Jerome stirred up the father of the Raines law when he spoke at the Chamber of Commerce dinner last week. Mr. Jerome said that the saloon ought to be open from 1 o'clock to 11 o'clock Sundays in New York and made assertions against the Raines law that have called forth considerable criticism since the utterances were made. Senator Raines has accepted an invitation to speak at the railroad men's dinner and reply to Justice Jerome.

The dinner will be held Friday night, January 24th, in the dining hall of the Powers hotel. There will be other speakers, but interest will center on the reply of Senator Raines. It is known that he is 'looking for a law that won't debauch our public service; that won't dangle $600,000 to $750,000 a year blackmail before our police department.' What an indictment 'one of the liquor dealers who 'dangle' the blackmail before the eyes of the police!" The logic of that argument by Mr. Jerome is that because law-breakers do not like the law, and because police officers are corrupt, therefore the law should be changed to suit their convenience and pleasure, and if it is not, then these men, for whom that extraordinary concession is asked, will proceed to bribe and debauch the public service. In short, it is a hold-up by criminals in the interest of crime. The public opinion of this state is not likely to succumb to such intimidation.

RAINES ON THE RAINES LAW.

The answer of Senator John Raines, the father of the celebrated Raines excise law of this state, to Justice Jerome, published in the columns of this paper yesterday, is exhaustive and conclusive.

Senator Raines takes up every phase of Justice Jerome's plea at the banquet in this city and subjects it to the test of logic, common sense and the obligations as well as interests of citizenship, with the result that the weaknesses and sophistries of Mr. Jerome's position are thoroughly exposed. The senator touches a vital and important feature of the controversy when he calls attention to the fact that the reform of abuses, the enforcement of law and the abolition of evils were what the people who elected the incoming administration in New York expected and intended when they voted for Messrs. Low, Jerome and their associates on the Fusion ticket. When those officials enter upon the duties of their offices the answer to the well known question, "What are we here for?" will be found in the enforcement of such laws as they find on the statute books of the state.

Justice Jerome himself admits that the open saloon on Sunday is an evil. He declares that personally he would be glad to see it closed "for all time." One would say, therefore, that the situation, for a man holding that position who has demonstrated his courage and thoroughness in smashing notorious evils in his capacity as a jurist, is complete. The incoming mayor is a champion of law and order. He has the appointment of the heads of departments, and the police will be subject to his authority. Mr. Jerome is the district attorney-elect, and it will be for him to see to it that law-breakers are prosecuted and punished. It is a great opportunity, and a sincere, fearless, honest public official should rather rejoice over it than try to shirk the obligations it imposes.

Senator Raines's answer to Mr. Jerome's remarkable plea in behalf of the respectability of saloonkeepers shows that plea up in its true light. He asks what there is in the present law, as it stands, to lower the respectability of the saloonkeeper? He shows that under the old law, always circumvented, the saloonkeeper had to get the certificates of twenty citizens as to his moral character. That was a sham, as we know, but it was also a brand on every man who went into the liquor business. Under the new law it is required of him that he shall satisfy the authorities that he is not a criminal, means to conduct his business in conformity with the law, and to pay his tax. There is nothing humiliating or degrading about that. Mr. Jerome worked on the sympathies of his hearers by portraying the saloonkeeper in tears because his family is socially ostracized in many cases. What has that to do with it? The law has not ostracized him or his family, and whatever the law

...man who drew up the Raines law.

Senator Raines was present at the Chamber of Commerce dinner and sat but a short distance from Justice Jerome. He was an interested and attentive auditor. His brother, Hon. George Raines, was toastmaster. Mr. Jerome says that the people up state do not understand the conditions in New York city. The Raines law cannot be enforced there, said he, and rather than have a law that cannot be enforced, it would be better to moderate the law, especially as present conditions tend to demoralize the police force. Senator Raines is of a contrary belief and will make his views clear at the railroad men's meeting banquet.

Another speaker who will be heard with interest is Rev. Murray Bartlett, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Mr. Bartlett has not announced his subject. As he was for some time in charge of a mission on the Front, as the Bowery is called, and was worked under Bishop Potter in the red light district, it is not unlikely that he may touch on the question of excise law enforcement in the slums of New York. He has had experience among the people that Justice Jerome says must have their beer on Sunday.

Mr. Bartlett at one time taught a Sunday-school class on the Bowery. One day one of his little pupils was absent and he asked one of the other boys where Johnny was.

"He's home watchin' the cop," said the boy.

Johnny's father was a saloonkeeper and his boy was set to the task of watching for the officer on the beat while the father ran the place.

William F. Balkam will be toastmaster. Mr. Balkam acted in a like capacity at the McKinley dinner given by the Chamber of Commerce. This was the largest banquet the chamber has held, 600 covers being laid. Mr. Balkam is a ready and witty talker and the railroad men are greatly pleased to have secured him.

The success of the banquets given in the past by the Sound Money Association warrants a good attendance. The committee on speakers is after another man and hopes to announce his name within a few days. This is a time when the railroad men can get together and cultivate better acquaintance and have a good time. The public will also have a chance to hear Senator Raines, as attendance at the dinner is not to be restricted to railroad men. Senator Raines is said to have spoken but once in Rochester, at a Chamber of Commerce banquet several years ago.

Good music will be in attendance.

POSTAL CHANGE SUGGESTED.

Matters of Interest Considered by Chamber of Commerce Trustees.

President Lamberton took occasion yesterday afternoon to make farewell remarks to the members of the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce. The new board will take up the affairs of the chamber after the first of the year. President Lamberton thanked the trustees for their help and attendance during the year. The standing committee for the ensuing year were passed upon by the old board of trustees, but they will not be published until President Brewster takes office the first of the year.

A matter of interest to seedsmen and all others who send much circular matter through the mails was brought up. It is in regard to a suggestion to do away with postage stamps from this sort of mail. It is advocated that the same rates be paid as now, but that instead of putting stamps on the bundles the postoffice authorities weigh the mail in the office. Bags of 100 pounds capacity are suggested.

The National Board of Trade will meet in Washington soon and the question will be presented at that time. The wholesale seedsmen have passed resolutions asking the board to take favorable action on this matter. Congressman Hitt, of Illinois, will introduce the bill at this session.

Another phase of postal reform was suggested in the recommendation for a uniform rate between the United States and Germany. The wholesale seedsmen meeting in New York this month suggests this. Favorable action on both suggestions was taken by the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce. Letters will be written to the local representative in congress asking him to indorse the suggested third-class mail matter change.

The bill to amend the interstate commerce law was read and referred to the railroad committee.

The proposition to build a railroad to connect with Russia's great Trans-Siberian line was brought up. The idea is to build a Trans-Alaska railroad, connecting the two at Behring strait. The matter was left to the railroad committee.

The secretary was authorized to write a letter of congratulation to Governor Lester M. Shaw, of Iowa, on his being offered the office of secretary of the treasury. Governor Shaw spoke before the Rochester Chamber of Commerce at the Sampson dinner.

The following men and firms were elected to membership: F. H. Hamlin, first vice-president Genesee Trust Company; W. D. Hale, manager E. R. Andrews Printing Company; Hon. James M. E. O'Grady, attorney, Ellwanger & Barry building; Herbert E. Locke, manager Livingston hotel; W. F. Sandway, fire insurance, Wilder building; H. F. Remington, attorney, Powers building; Dr. John M. Lee, No. 170 Lake avenue; H. S. Brewer, real estate, No. 10 Hebert street.

THE CITY'S FUTURE OF ROSEATE HUE

Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce Makes a Statement.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

John M. Ives Comments on Rochester's Prosperity In 1901.

"The past year has been marked by a great increase in Rochester's commerce. Industrially, commercially and financially, reports from authentic sources show great gains and very prosperous conditions. The wheels of industry have been whirling at a rate never known before in the history of our city. Orders have been pouring in and are still coming from all parts of the world for the multifarious products of Rochester, and it is necessary in many instances for employes to work overtime in order to fill them.

"The reputation of Rochester as a manufacturing center has extended to all parts of the civilized world, and the diversity of our city's products enter...

...people throughout the land. Indeed, to read ... Rochester's products as published in the book entitled 'Rochester, the Power City,' recently issued by the Chamber of Commerce, fills the mind of the read with admiration at the enterprise exhibited by our people.

"There are disgruntled people in every community and Rochester contains a few whose lack of business mismanagement prevents them from keeping to the front with their neighbors. They claim that villages in the vicinity stand ready to buy stock in their concerns, give them buildings and exempt them from taxation. While the name of 'Rochester' carries enormous weight as a guarantee for manufactured products, the name of some obscure village would simply act as a detriment on productions.

"During the past year railroad companies centering in this city have had their facilities for handling the products of Rochester factories taxed to their capacity and the prosperity has also been felt by the roads in the large amount of passenger business handled. One hundred and seventy thousand tickets were sold to Rochester people who attended the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, and notwithstanding the enormous amount of money taken out of Rochester and spent in Buffalo the past season, local tradesmen state that the trading done during the month of December just past, fully equalled past years and in some instances exceeded former holiday takings—another illustration of the financial strength of the people of the Power City.

"A striking evidence of Rochester's prosperity is seen in the number of buildings erected during the past year. Seventeen new industrial structures have been built at a cost of $385,575. Twenty thousand dollars has been expended in additional hospital buildings. One hundred and twenty-eight thousand dollars has been expended in new church edifices.

"No less a sum than $196,500 has been appropriated for the construction of charitable fraternal and financial buildings. The subject of adequate water power for our city has constantly engaged the attention of the Chamber of Commerce, resulting in the acquisition of an additional 10,000 horse power available for manufacturers by the coming spring and 10,000 horse power from the lower falls will be supplied later on, making 20,000 additional horse power to that already available. This certainly is most important news and cannot be adequately announced in cold type or by word of mouth. It is an item that should make glad the heart of every resident of Rochester because it means the doubling of our population and the rendering in condition of honorable comfort, many thousands of our people.

"All things considered, Rochester has reason to rejoice at its present prosperity, and to look forward with enthusiasm to the vast increase in its manufactures and commerce that cannot in the nature of things fail to materialize."—John M. Ives, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

ROCHESTER'S CHAMBER

Chat With One Who Has Watched Its Work.

Interesting Details About the Chamber of Commerce During Past Year—Many Visitors Entertained.

Popularity and Good Work of Its Presidents—President Lamberton Eulogized—His Successor Praised.

Daily Union Dec 31/01

One who has had opportunities of making very close observations of the work done by the Chamber of Commerce during the year 1901 gave to a Union reporter in substance the following information on the subject.

"The Rochester Chamber of Commerce grows in value as a representative body more and more as the years go by. It stands among the first-class institutions of its kind in this country, not only in regard to the personnel of its membership, but also the dignified character of its chambers which includes the most ornate and spacious assembly hall in the state. The group of rooms occupied by the chamber are the admiration of visitors from all parts of the Union and from foreign countries. Not a day passes but strangers make their appearance at the Chamber of Commerce and express surprise that after an elevation of eleven stories they enter such stately halls. Among these visitors are many who are looking the country over, either to find suitable locations for industries or to secure homes in which to pass the remainder of their days on the fruits of past labors and enterprises. It requires no argument to show that even in the apparently trivial matter of entertaining strangers by authorized representatives of the body politic that it is a very important feature of the chamber's work. It may be truly said that of the hundreds of visitors to the chamber not one has been allowed to depart without having been treated with the utmost courtesy and upon occasions with liberal hospitality given in the name of the people of Rochester.

Good impressions of Rochester made upon these visitors help to make her a better market in this section and on

...ment of the Chamber of Commerce never did any other service than this it would pay to keep it going. But this is a mere incident in the work of the institution. Another incident may be mentioned, and I might call it the "question box," which is operated by telephone, correspondence and personal inquiry. The chamber is getting quite a reputation as an 'encyclopedia of useful knowledge. Of course the main questions pertain strictly to business, and these comprise inquiries regarding stocks, values, statistics, historical data, standing of firms and corporations, real estate, names of firms making specialties, etc., exports and imports, custom rates on merchandise, distance to certain localities, how to get there and the cost and many other questions. Then there are the less important calls, some of which are very amusing, relating occasionally to domestic troubles and asking the best way out of them, while others seek advice in matters pertaining to contemplated divorce and courtship entanglements. Secretary Ives is, fortunately, a man of large intellectual resources and if he can't get people out of domestic scrapes he manages not to lure them deeper into trouble by too much advice, but refers them to the proper specialists.

"Here is a real estate register at the chamber which has proved a very valuable adjunct. The property registered is only such as is adapted for manufacturing and commercial purposes. It has been found of the greatest convenience when parties have called to inquire about sites. This feature of the chamber will grow in value as the years go by and in the forthcoming "boom" which everybody seems by instinct to realize is soon to come the real estate register will prove a boon to those who have recorded their property in it.

During the past year the membership has been increased by the admission of gentlemen belonging to the learned professions. When the chamber was first organized it was thought best by the founders to confine the membership strictly to business men. There were, however, many subjects for discussion which came up before the corporation that needed the legal or medical mind in addition to the commercial. It was years before any member had the courage to "confess the fault" and move for the admission of their learned brethren. But at last the motion was put and the way it was carried almost raised the roof. In admitting the learned professions and the citizenship generally the Rochester chamber is only following the rule of many other similar bodies throughout the country.

No question can now be brought before the Rochester chamber for discussion that cannot have the benefit of the very highest legal and medical wisdom, and there can be no doubt the admission of the professions will enormously increase the popularity and usefulness of the chamber.

The corporation has been exceedingly fortunate in its choice of presidents. During the term of President Henry B. Hathaway in 1900 the chamber achieved much that was of immense benefit to Rochester. Perhaps no event in one city's history did so much to bring our people and city to the notice of the entire country as the magnificent ovation and celebration in honor of Gen. Otis. Through Mr. Hathaway's influence the United States government contributed over $100,000 in sending regular troops to make the event more successful. Mr. Hathaway was one of the most popular presidents the chamber ever had and the membership increased considerably during his term.

His successor, Alexander B. Lamberton, the present presiding officer, is also very popular with the people. During his term some new features have been introduced. Upon first assuming office Mr. Lamberton began to think of the people, the teeming thousands who do the work that enriches Rochester and maintains its high commercial standard. Could the chamber do anything to contribute to the enjoyment of these noble workers? Then he conceived the plan of having music in the parks on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, and carried it out in a way that won the chamber the gratitude and thinks of the entire population. Secretary Ives was instructed to move in this matter early in the spring and the first park concert was given June 30th in the presence of an immense concourse of people. These concerts were continued alternately by the Fifty-fourth Regiment Band, Heins's Artillery Band and Dossenbach's Band, each Saturday and Sunday afternoons during the summer months. During the year there have been a number of popular entertainments at the Chamber of Commerce hall consisting of musicales, illustrated lectures, etc., to which members and their families were invited.

During Mr. Lamberton's term Secretary Ives issued a vast amount of literature which has been spread broadcast throughout the country. This printed matter consists of a profusely illustrated folder giving information about Rochester, also a leaflet containing in condensed form the same for enclosing with ordinary correspondence. Forty thousand of the former and many more of the latter have been sent away and will be productive of much benefit to the city. But the crowning work of Secretary Ives during the administration of President Lamberton is the publication of the magnificent illustrated volume entitled "Rochester the Power City." The highest commendation of this work is the unanimous opinion of press critics that it is even more meritorious than the book published by Mr. Ives in 1899, entitled "Illustrated Rochester," which was pronounced to be the most elaborate and instructive book relating to our city that had ever been published. Both books were printed by The Union and Advertiser Company.

Mr. Lamberton will retire from the ...ent of the Chamber of Commerce ...

...with discretion and tact to some very difficult points in a masterly and conservatively wise manner. He has followed a policy that has best served the interests of the people, in doing which he was compelled to antagonize some very powerful influences. He is to be succeeded by one of Rochester's most notable and highly esteemed citizens—the Honorable Henry C. Brewster, ex-member of Congress, president of the Traders National Bank and identified with many important corporations. Mr. Brewster's wide knowledge of men and affairs, his great influence in the commercial and social world, his experience as a national legislator, his genial affability, and culture, all combined, renders it most probable that his administration will be marked by high achievements for the good of the people of Rochester, that under his watchful eye and the continued energy and resourcefulness of Secretary John M. Ives, the chamber will increase its already wide usefulness as Rochester's representative corporate body.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

ROCHESTER'S PROSPERITY IN 1901

MILLIONS SPENT IN LOCAL BUILDING

$320,000 Increase In Value of Structures Erected In First Eleven Months of 1901 Over That of Twelve Months of the Previous Year.

The first eleven months of the year 1901 showed a building boom of great magnitude. The Fire Marshal's office records show that there was, during that time, an increase in the value of buildings erected or in process of erection of $320,000 over last year for 12 months.

The following communication from the Fire Marshal to the Chamber of Commerce gives the details and the classification of the structures. The total value of buildings erected or in process of erection during the first 11 months of 1901 was $2,066,101. Following is Mr. Walter's summary:

Industrial Buildings.

Ocorr-Rugg Company, manufacturing plant, corner Davis and Augusta Streets, 80x200x30 feet; estimated cost, $25,000.

Vogel & Binder, brick factory, 324 St. Paul Street, 40x100 feet, four stories; estimated cost, $15,000.

Rochester Stamping Works, new factory on Anderson Avenue, 97x127 feet, three stories; estimated cost, $10,000.

William H. Bontell, new brick machine shop on Lois Street, 33x104 feet; estimated cost, $8,000.

Haskins & Collyer, brick building on Main Street East, 44x60 feet, three stories high, to be used for store and light manufacturing; estimated cost, $5,000.

Rochester Railway Company, brick building for car shop, 166x192 feet; estimated cost, $30,000.

Citizens Light and Power Company, fireproof building, 52x181 feet, to be used as an electric station; estimated cost, $150,000.

D. Armstrong & Company, addition to shoe factory, 45x64x70 feet; estimated cost, $14,000.

Stecher Lithographing Company, brick factory, 246 North Goodman Street, 150x256x36 feet; estimated cost, $40,000.

Swarzchild & Sulsberger, brick addition, 66x66 feet, on Commercial Street, dress beef house; estimated cost, $5,000.

New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company, frame building on Atlantic Avenue, 40x184x22 feet, to be used as a car cleaning house; estimated cost, $7,275.

Henry J. Moore, brick building on Stone Street, 64x132x23 feet, for plank block manufacturing; estimated cost, $15,000.

Vacuum Oil Company, brick building, 63x31 feet, to be used as an office and laboratory; estimated cost, $4,000.

J. W. Jenkins Company, brick building on South Goodman Street, 51x155x35 feet, to be used as a shoe factory; estimated cost, $13,000.

C. H. & F. E. Mason, brick building on Exchange Street, 66x86 feet, to be used as a laundry; estimated cost, $9,000.

Bartholomay Brewing Company, brick addition, 50x80 feet, three stories, to be used as an ale brewery; estimated cost, $12,000.

The Rochester News Company, brick building, 44x80 feet, three stories; estimated cost, $20,000.

Total number of industrial buildings, 17; total cost of same, $335,275.

Educational Buildings.

New school building, corner Monroe and Costar Streets, 106x192, two stories; estimated cost, $55,000.

New fireproof High School, on Alexander Street; estimated cost, $187,300.

Number of educational buildings, 2; total cost of same, $242,300.

Hospital Buildings.

Hargous Memorial-Hahnamann Hospital, brick building, 40x70, two stories; estimated cost, $15,000.

Rochester Homeopathic Hospital, an addition, 26x32 feet, situate 236 Alexander Street; estimated cost, $5,000.

Number of hospital buildings, 2; total cost of same, $20,000.

Church Buildings.

First Universalist Society, brick addition to be used as a church and Sunday School; estimated cost, $18,000.

Church of the Blessed Sacrament, brick building, Monroe Avenue, 48x123x46 feet, to be used as a church and school; estimated cost, $20,000.

Number of church buildings, 2; total cost of same, $48,000.

Charitable, Fraternal and Financial Buildings.

German Home for the Aged, brick building, 45x23 feet, three stories, situate on South Avenue, to be used as a home; estimated cost, $11,500.

Church Home, Mt. Hope Avenue brick addition; estimated cost, $10,000.

Masonic Temple Association, brick and steel building, 66x66 feet; estimated cost, $150,000.

Genesee Valley Trust Company, fireproof building, Exchange Street, to be used as a bank and trust company; estimated cost, $25,000.

Number of buildings, 4; total cost of same, $196,500.

Total number of buildings erected in 1901, 11 months, 539; estimated cost of same, $1,766,503.

Number of buildings remodeled, 224; total number erected and remodeled, 813; total cost, erected and remodeled, for 11 months, 1901, $2,066,101, which exceeds any previous full year as will be seen by the following. Total amount of building, 1898, $1,294,066; 1899, $1,467,480; 1900, $1,680,178.

ALL RECORDS WERE BROKEN

TREMENDOUS PASSENGER AND FREIGHT BUSINESS DONE BY ALL RAILROADS.

Nowhere has the general prosperity been felt more keenly than on the railroads. There was an extraordinary heavy passenger business all during the summer, and in fact the passenger traffic, coupled with the enormous freight moving from all sections of the country, has made the year one long to be remembered in railroad circles.

The employes who have by faithful work and attention to duty, assisted in earning dividends for stockholders, have also felt the quickening touch of prosperity and in many instances railroads are already announcing an increase in wages beginning with the new year, the first among the big corporations to announce increased wages for employes being the trunk lines east of Chicago.

In this city there has never before been the enormous freight and passenger business that has been done during the year just closing, and the outlook for the future, so far as railroad men here see it, is a very bright one.

All Records Broken.

"While I am not able to give the figures in detail, I may state that the passenger business during the past year has been the largest in the history of the New York Central Railroad. We are well pleased with the outlook. We have had a splendid year and the outlook for the future is very bright. We carried the largest number of passengers to the Pan-American Exposition, and in general the year has been one of great prosperity for the road."—J. C. Kalbfleisch, District Passenger Agent New York Central.

"We have had a very prosperous year on the Erie and the road has done its share of the business out of this city. We did a big business during the Pan-American Exposition and in general we are very well pleased with the business done during the past year and the outlook for the future."—J. Gilbert, City Passenger Agent Erie Railroad.

Big Year on the Lehigh Valley.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad during the year now closing did a splendid business on the main line, although there was not more than the usual amount of local business done out of here, due to the fact that the road was handicapped by lack of terminal facilities in this city. But on the main line trains were run in sections all during the summer, and in the estimate of the number of passengers carried this applies during the busy American season the road stands third among the lines entering there. The outlook for the future is good.

Freight Situation Good.

In the freight service of the railroads there has never been such a heavy year known in the amount of business done by the various lines. For a time early in the year the railroads were able to handle freight business with little or no trouble, but as the year advanced the business increased to such an extent that roads were compelled to refuse some of the business offered them on account of the shortage of cars which was in reality a famine. The outlook for continued big business was never brighter than at present and the years 1901-2 will long stand as the record breakers in the amount of business done.

What Freight Agents Say.

"We have done a big local business out of here during the past year; larger than the previous year, and the outlook for the future is very bright."—H. P. West, Freight Agent New York Central.

"This year's freight business was a great deal better than last year's and I expect it to continue. I find that manufacturers are experiencing a period of great prosperity and the railroads are benefiting in proportion."—C. B. Jarvis, Lehigh Valley Railroad.

"The year now closing is the best one we have ever had since the road first entered this city. We have done 25 per cent more business than ever before and we are well satisfied with the outlook for the future."—P. W. Powell, Erie Railroad.

"The B. R. & P. has done a big freight business during the year, far larger than in 1900, and the outlook for continued heavy movement of freight during the future is very good."—R. W. Davis, General Freight Agent B., R. & P. R. R.

"The first of the year there will be a new book issued by the road which will contain several hundred changes of ratings of freight points on the road. It would be well for shippers to ask for a copy of the book, which is known as rating book class 22.

"The B., R. & P. has done, during the past year, the largest passenger business in the history of the road, occasioned by the Pan-American Exposition and the general good times."—F. A. Taipey, General Passenger Agent B., R. & P. R. R.

GOOD YEAR IN CAMERA WORLD

ABOUT TWO THOUSAND PERSONS ARE NOW EMPLOYED IN THE KODAK PARK PLANT.

"There has been a remarkable increase in business during the past year. We now employ about 2,000 persons in the local establishment. This is a larger number than we have employed for several years past. The prospect is that we soon will have to increase this number," said George Eastman today. "Photography is not a good barometer. When other businesses thrive the Kodak business generally decreases and it often increases when there is a general business depression. The camera business throughout the United States has been fair during the past year, but here have been better years for it. The business thrives in Germany today.

"It has never been better in that country than at the present time. Now, every reports from that country are not so favorable as far as other businesses are concerned."

Rochester, in common with the other cities of the country, today closes 12 months of unparalleled prosperity in business and financial circles. And when these two departments of life are prosperous it is safe to assume that the workingmen are also enjoying the fruits of their increased labor.

Millions of dollars worth of business have been done in the Flower City, millions of dollars have been paid in wages and the factories and stores have been taxed to their utmost to supply the demands upon them.

In the manufacturing world, local manufacturers have witnessed a remarkable, revival. Clothing manufacturers report a marvelous revival in their industry. The statement of Fire Marshal Walter, printed in another column, shows that over $2,000,000 has been spent during the past year in building operations.

Local breweries complain loudly against the Raines law, but at the same time prove by their books that they have experienced a most profitable year.

BIG YEAR FOR THE BREWERIES

ENFORCEMENT OF RAINES LAW HURT BUSINESS BUT THE OUTPUT WAS LARGE.

Although handicapped to a large extent by the Raines law, which, figuratively speaking, hung like a millstone around their necks, the breweries of Rochester did a business during the past year that can be favorably compared with that of any city of its size in the country.

There has been a slight increase in both the output and the consumption, and but for the fact that the saloons had to be kept closed on Sundays, the year would have been a record breaker for the breweries. The output of the several beer making concerns in this city will amount to somewhat over 650,000 barrels.

In 1900 the beer output for the whole State of New York was 10,000,000 barrels. The output for 1901 shows a decrease of 1,350 barrels. This decrease is attributed to the Sunday closing of the saloons by the enforcement of the Raines law.

The output of the Bartholomay Brewing Company, the largest brewery in this city and one of the largest in the State, was 250,000 barrels for the year. This brewery is one of the most successful and best managed beer making concerns in the country. The company makes none but the best beers and its product finds a ready market in such large cities as New York, Philadelphia and Boston. Like the celebrated brand of beer that "made Milwaukee famous," the beers of all the local breweries have done much to enhance the fame of Rochester in all sections of the country.

The Bartholomay Company employs about 100 men all the year round, and in the busy months of the summer the number is largely increased. During the past year large sums of money have been expended in improving the plant and it is proposed to make at least $50,000 worth of improvements during the coming year. At present some of the finest machinery for the manufacture of beer that can be procured is being put in position at the plant. Twelve of the latest improved racking machines and two Heine boilers of a very large capacity have but lately been added to the company's equipment.

The other breweries of the city, the American Brewing Company, the Miller Brewing Company, the Monroe Brewing Company and the Standard Brewing Company, have all increased their business during the year and are making preparations for an increased output next year. The breweries all contemplate making extensive improvements which will make the employment of much extra help necessary. It is estimated that the output of all the Rochester breweries for 1902 will exceed 500,000 barrels.

The Standard has only recently erected a large brick building to be used as a bottling department.

PROSPERITY IN CLOTHING TRADE

OUTPUT OF LOCAL FACTORIES DURING PAST YEAR GREATER THAN EVER BEFORE.

The year just drawing to a close has been one of unprecedented prosperity to the wholesale manufacturers of clothing.

In this branch of industry Rochester is one of the leading cities of the Union and the value of the finished goods sent out by her clothiers mounts up into the millions. A member of one of the largest firms engaged in this business stated to a Times reporter today:

"The year has been remarkably prosperous for the clothing trade. I believe that I am not exaggerating when I say that wholesale clothing firms in this city have made and delivered to all parts of the United States at least 30 per cent more goods this year than they did last year and I estimate the total value of the output at not less than $16,000,000.

"The increased demand is in all lines but is very marked in the finer and higher priced grades of clothing.

"To be specific, I might state that the demand for Rochester-made overcoats from all over the country was enormous and we have been kept busy night and day trying to fill our orders. We have kept at it right up to Christmas time this year when in other years the demand is over long before.

"One of the reasons for the great demand aside from the general prosperity of the country is the fact that the style of overcoats to be worn this year as the fashion was not determined upon definitely until late in the season. When it was declared that the long overcoat was to be the thing, the orders poured in to the big firms taxing them beyond their capacity and the demand was steady.

"Rochester has at least four leading clothing firms and I am certain that

ACTIVITY IN SHOE BUSINESS

ALL LOCAL FACTORIES ARE RUNNING FULL TIME AND SPRING ORDERS ARE HEAVY.

"The year just closing has been accompanied by a wonderful increase in the shoe business, which is now better than it has been for years past. In our factory we have a larger number of employes than we ever have had before. We now employ about 200 hands and a further increase will probably be made.

"There has been a greater advance in the shoe trade, I believe, than in almost any other industry during the year. Our spring orders are much heavier than ever before and the business for the year shows an advance month by month over that of last year.

"So rapid has been the increase in the volume of our business that we have found it necessary to build a six-story addition to the rear of the large building which the factory occupies.

"I think this prosperity applies in a greater or less degree to every other shoe factory in Rochester."—D. Armstrong.

BIG INVESTMENTS IN MANUFACTURING

Names of New Companies Formed In 1901—Capitalization of the Corporations Amounts to a Fabulous Sum.

Name.	Capital Stock.
Automatic Coin Machine Company	$15,000
Max Brickner & Sons Company
Bagdad Mining and Melting Company	300,000
Bernard & Simonds Company
Beadle, & Sherburne Company
William C. Brown Company	3,000
B. H. Bacon Company
Bantleon Brothers Company	25,000
Byron Natural Mineral Water Company	20,000
Bakers Exchange Yeast Club	1,000
Burton Brewing Company	20,000
Big Elm Farms Dairy Company
J. A. Bezy Company	10,000
Central Express Bureau	20,000
Central Printing and Engraving Company	25,000
A. W. Child Company	6,000
Citizens Light & Power Company, stock incorporated
Curtice Brothers Company	1,500,000
Curtice Brothers Company, merger
Curtice Canning Company, merger
The DeLand Company	225,000
The Diamond Nickel Plating Company	3,000
Erie Foundry Company, incorporated	50,000
Electro Surgical Instrument Company	30,000
Erie Dry Goods Company
Forest Lawn Water Company
Thomas W. Finucane Company
A. Faber Company	7,000
Fairport Electric Railroad Company
Genesee Valley Telephone Company	100,000
Gas Stove Improvement Company	25,000
W. V. Greaser Company	10,000
Gleason & Loomis Cold Storage Company	500,000
Genesee Valley Trust Company	300,000
Grand Avenue Horse Company	5,000
Grand View Beach Club	2,000
Gleason & Loomis Cold Storage Company, incorporated	20,000
German Equity Fire Insurance Company
Genesee Exchange Company	500
Goddard, Anthony & Company	5,000
Handy Company	50,000
Harding & Sons Company	35,000
Home Realty Company	50,000
Ideal Time and Wage Computer Company	100,000
Interstate Printing Company	10,000
Irondequoit Coal and Supply Company, incorporated
Jermyn Manufacturing Company	10,000
Jenkinson Apartment House Company	10,000
Johnson Compound and Supply Company	2,000
Jenkins & Macy Company	50,000
Levis & Pifer Company	25,000
Levis Brothers & Broxholm	35,000
Lake Ontario Wine Company	60,000
Monroe Pearl Button Company	25,000
McCurdy & Norwell Company	150,000
Merchants & Mechanics Fire Insurance Company	200,000
Macaulay, Dan Milling Company	50,000
W. L. Mohr	10,000
Monroe Stock Company	1,000
Monroe County Electric Belt Company	250,000
W. C. McDonnell Company	8,000
McMillan Lithographic Company	100,000
Monroe Optical Company, Incorporated	75,000
Niagara Fruit Company	75,000
Nunn Bears Works	4,000
Napier Shoe Company	25,000
Osburn Hose Company	20,000
[illegible]	[illegible]

Peerless Bed Rest Company	50,000
Pilot Ribbon and Carbon Company	10,000
Palmer Grocery Company	100,000
P. P. Paul Company	20,000
Pullman Railroad Supply Company	20,000
Paul, Walters & Company	5,000
Roberson Cutlery Company, Incorporated
Rochester Batting Mills	15,000
Radiant Incandescent Light Company	10,000
Rand Powder Company	21,000
Rochester Steam Motor Works	100,000
Rochester Fireworks Company, Incorporated	25,000
Ropelt & Sons' Piano Company	12,000
Regas Vehicle Company	25,000
Riverside Rabbitry	1,000
Rochester Infants' Shoe Company	5,000
Rochester Engineering and Supply Company	5,000
E. P. Reed & Company	500,000
Rochester Die Shaper Company	50,000
Rochester-Mexican Plantation Company	60,000
Rochester Bridge & Construction Company	40,000
Rochester & Sodus Bay Railroad, incorporated	1,750,000
Rochester Non-Rust Tinware Company
Standard Electric Construction Company, incorporated
A. J. Spies Company	4,000
Sill Stove Works	100,000
Sterns, Oliver & Jenkins Company	10,000
J. B. Snyder Supply & Electric Company	25,000
Summer Land Company	10,000
J. B. Stevens & Son Company	20,000
Stecher Lithographic Company, incorporated	180,000
Smith Railroad Mail Service Company	1,000,000
Snow Wire Works Company
Traders Oil Company	400,000
Talbots Piano Company	10,000
Todd, Bancroft & Company, incorporated	75,000
Vertical Die Shaper Company	6,000
Vapor Shower Bath Company	15,000
G. D. Van Reypen Company	15,000
Vogel & Binder Company	45,000
Weaver, Palmer & Richmond	75,000
Weiss & Fisher Company	125,000
Warniea Company	50,000
W. A. Wilson Machine Company	60,000
Wheeler-Green Electric Company	4,000

CARRIAGE TRADE MUCH ALIVE

LOCAL MANUFACTORIES HAVE DONE HEAVY BUSINESS DURING THE PAST YEAR.

The general prosperity that has visited all lines of trade during the past year has not forgotten the carriage trade. Since last January the carriage manufacturers of this city have become very aggressive and have advanced their interests to a large extent. Never before in the history of this line of business in Rochester have the manufacturers worked so hard as they have during the past 12 months, and never have they had more gratifying results.

Rufus K. Dryer, Vice President and Treasurer of the James Cunningham, Sons & Company, manufacturers of coaches and hearses, on Canal Street, said yesterday that the year has been a very successful one for his company. Mr. Dryer said that there is a demand for the product of their factory from all parts of the world and that during the year they have shipped coaches and hearses to cities in England, France, Germany, Austria and Australia.

The Cunningham Company employs about 600 men in its Canal Street factory all the year round. The factory is the largest manufactory of heavy vehicles in the world and it is confined to the making of coaches and hearses. No light work is done by the company. The Cunningham people do not claim to make the best vehicles in the world, but claim that their work is of the first class.

The concern has large warehouses and salesrooms in New York, Boston, Chicago and St. Louis. There is but little local demand for their work and almost the whole product of the factory is shipped to the warehouses in the above cities.

The company manufactures about 1,200 vehicles a year, averaging about 100 a month. Twenty men are constantly traveling about the United States and the several European countries in the interests of the company.

MANUFACTURE OF AUTOMOBILES

MARVELOUS GROWTH OF A NEW INDUSTRY IN THE FLOWER CITY.

One of the new industries created within the last two or three years has been the manufacture of automobiles both for pleasure and business.

Local capital became interested in the manufacture of the horseless carriages about two years ago and established the Foster Automobile Company, which is located on State Street.

Ten firms is at present turning out five finished machines a week, each costing at retail $90 apiece. The concern employs 50 men, the majority of them skilled mechanics, although they use a small number of boys as apprentices.

"The prospects for the coming year are very bright," said Manager Densmore this morning, "and we look for a large business during the coming spring. There are very few of the machines used here; I think 25 is the total number used at present in this city. We ship 40 per cent of our finished product abroad, the machines going to England and South America. We also ship some of the machines to the Pacific coast.

"I think there is room for improvement in the automobile and they are liable to get out of order the same as any machinery; but I look for a decided improvement in the future in their construction."

WANTS THE ARMY POST.

Chamber of Commerce to Try to Get It for Rochester.

Rochester is to make an effort to get the regular army post that is to be established in Western New York. Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, has written to Congressman Perkins telling him that he hopes the congressman may be able to do something along that line, and asking for advice regarding assistance from the chamber.

The following letter written by the secretary to Congressman Perkins explains itself:

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1901.

Hon. J. Breck Perkins, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.:

Mr. Dear Sir: I am inclosing you a clipping from the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle of Friday, December 27th, which is self-explanatory. I am sending you this in the hope that you may be able to secure the army post spoken of for Rochester. Certainly our location is better than Geneva, and Rochester can offer for the army post not only strategic position, but situations which nature has provided as to drainage, water and healthfulness. Will you kindly advise if we can be of further assistance and how?

Yours very truly, JOHN M. IVES, Secretary.

Secretary Ives says the matter will be taken up immediately by the public improvement committee of the chamber.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

THE FIRST REGULAR MEETING OF THE CORPORATION FOR THE YEAR WILL TAKE PLACE IN ASSEMBLY HALL, MONDAY, JANUARY 6, 1902, AT 8 P. M.

Hon. Henry C. Brewster, the New President, will deliver an address, A. B. Lamberton, the retiring President, will follow.

Short addresses are expected from the Chairmen of the New Standing Committees:—Messrs. Babcock, Ford, Graham, Beckley, Brickner, Brown and McClintock.

The New Standing Committees will be announced.

Luncheon will be served by Teall.

John M. Ives
Secretary.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan'y 4, 1902.

Chamber of Commerce Meeting.

The Chamber of Commerce will hold its first meeting of the new year to-night. Addresses will be made by President H. C. Brewster, by A. B. Lamberton, the lately retired president, and by Messrs. Babcock, Ford, Graham, Beckley, Brickner, Brown and McClintock, chairman of the standing committees. The new committees will be announced.

Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 1. 1902.

DEAR SIR:—

I am pleased to advise you that owing to the assistance of yourself and others, who have given their influence and money to advance the best interest of Rochester, the Chamber is in a flourishing condition, and with prospects of doing better and larger work the coming year than ever before. To this end we ask your regular attendance and counsel at the meetings of the Chamber.

In all cities there are carpers. We have them in Rochester who say "What is the good of a Chamber" or "What has the Chamber accomplished?" To all such we submit the accompanying report of the Secretary, touching only on the salient points of what the Chamber has accomplished in a single year. Anyone can find fault but the fault-finders are not the ones who make things come to pass. The Rochester Chamber of Commerce is doing a big work. Its fame is increasing daily. The last dinner given by the Chamber has advertised it in every state in the Union, and by way of parenthesis, let us add no other organization in this country outside of the Chamber of Commerce of New York City gives a dinner comparable with the Annual Dinner of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce. This is but one item of the many which could be mentioned as to the pre-eminence of our local Chamber.

The Officers and Standing Committees for 1902 are men of experience and energy, fully determined to let it be known that Rochester is the one place in which to live and do business. Will you not also become imbued with this spirit of civic pride and assist in making Rochester a model for less ambitious municipalities?

Yours very truly,

John M. Ives
Secretary.

WORK CUT OUT FOR NEW YEAR

Dec 6 Jan 7 02

PRESIDENT BREWSTER TO THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

AFTER THE ARMY POST

AND WATER STORAGE MUST COME SOONER OR LATER.

PUBLIC MARKET WANTED

Commissioner McClintock at Head of Committee on Market and Convention Hall—Several Enthusiastic Addresses Advocating a General Shaking up of the Chamber of Commerce

The Chamber of Commerce began its fifteenth year last night with a meeting during which several of the members called for more united effort on the part of the members in working for the interests of the city. There was not a large attendance, but considerable enthusiasm was infused into the meeting and several excellent addresses, clear but to the point, were made.

President Brewster, just taking office, made appropriate remarks and was followed by others. The standing committees for the new year were announced and are printed herewith:

J. Y. McClintock, commissioner of public works, is made chairman of the convention hall and public market committee, and Colonel James S. Graham is made chairman of the committee on public improvements, which is to have charge of the attempt to get the projected regular army post for Rochester.

After the meeting had been called to order President Brewster addressed the members as follows:

"We are commencing a new year, and I trust with united effort we may be able to assist in the further growth and happiness of our beautiful city. Your secretary at a previous meeting told you what progress has been made during the past year. Now what should and can we do in the year to come? For one thing we can watch public affairs and assist our new city government in its laudable determination to reduce public expenditures and get value received for every dollar of the taxpayers' money.

"We can look over the state of New York at this time and rejoice at its growing efforts to bring about economy and adequate return for money put into public improvements.

"This is a day of great corporations, and such corporations are a public benefit when confined to their proper duties and not permitted to overrun the rights of the people. We have such corporations in our city; let us watch and encourage them to give the public the best service. The best to be had in any city is none too good for us, and we should be willing to pay a reasonable price for such service. The best service cannot be had at a stingy price. But also we must see that they do not attempt to deprive us of our just rights and privileges. They must not destroy our highways nor render them unsafe and if healthy competition is offered which promises to give us better service at reduced rate we must see that our public servants procure for us such advantages.

"The men who first settled in this region wisely chose for the site of this city, not the shores of Lake Ontario, as one would at first think most advantageous, but the region above the upper falls. In other words the water power of the Genesee river made Rochester what it is, and can continue to promote its growth if wisely improved and distributed where it will give the greatest good to the greatest number. Let us then insist that this great privilege shall be used to promote our further growth and population and property, that this city may be in fact what it is sometimes called, the 'Power City of America. If this is ever to be an actual reality, we must secure low rates for the use of such power and more of it.

"This subject of additional water power for Rochester is one that has been prominent in the thoughts and efforts of this chamber from its first start. Do not permit your interests in the subject to die down. The project has taken a somewhat different aspect and for that reason, if for no other, it requires your warmest thought and earnest care.

"One thing that this chamber has done for Rochester is now so much a matter of ...chamber has since much ...ed the habit of getting together ... far ahead of other cities in this respect. I trust that during this year the members of the body will set aside the time for our monthly meetings and be on hand at each and every one, prepared to take an active part in the proceedings. Suggestions from members as to subjects to be considered and discussed will be appreciated by the officers.

"I believe our bountiful supply of Hemlock water—the best in the world—might be utilized to give greater benefit to the business interests of our city. And I suggest this subject for your early attention and investigation.

"A proper building should be provided, either by a private corporation or by the city, for the use of those persons engaged in supplying our people with farm products, that the business may be carried on at all seasons of the year and in all kinds of weather under cover, properly protected from the elements. As it is at present, the wagons obstruct certain streets of our city nearly all night and a part of the day, to the great annoyance of those residing in that vicinity or having occasion to go through those streets during those hours. And it is detrimental to the health and comfort of citizens.

"I believe if an opportunity were given by the city officials a corporation could be organized to provide proper facilities for this business and, as a result, an increased business would be built up, providing better shipping advantages for such products and fruits as could not be consumed at home.

"Rochester, from its location and beautiful situation, is a very desirable place for holding conventions, but no proper building has as yet been provided. The village of Saratoga Springs is far ahead of us in this respect. We have a special committee in charge of this subject, and I trust before the year is out we shall have from it a report promising a remedy in the near future.

"Time does not permit me now to refer to the many things coming before your board of trustees and standing committees, but from long service on those committees I know that this chamber has, and is, contributing in a very large degree to the business prosperity of our members and fellow citizens, and that if each one of you would contribute a small portion of your time and thoughts, you could largely assist in increasing those efforts and benefits."

Ex-President A. B. Lamberton was to have spoken, but Mr. Lamberton fell on an icy sidewalk on East avenue last Saturday afternoon and was not able to be present last night. His injuries consist of a sprained wrist and back.

The chairmen of several of the standing committees made brief remarks. Charles P. Ford spoke first. He said he had listened with pleasure to the remarks of the president, because he had thought for some time that the chamber needed a good stirring up. He said the president had given them a good talk and that it now remained with them as to whether they would support him. They were all very busy men, said Mr. Ford, but had time to attend the meetings. He believed it a good deal of a farce that standing committees should be appointed each year and not hold meetings. Water storage, he said, everyone knew would be a great blessing to the city, and yet all stood by and left it for someone else to accomplish.

Charles J. Brown said that the one thought with him was that made prominent at the previous meeting by Vice-President Daniel B. Murphy and referred to by President Brewster and Mr. Ford, the greater advantages that might accrue to the chamber. "Let us get together and work hand and hand," said he. "If we hold up the hands of the president we can make a record this year."

Mr. McClintock was introduced as a former secretary of the chamber and was warmly welcomed. After greeting the members after an absence of several years he told them what a pleasure it was to be again among them. He said he was glad to be appointed on the committee and glad to have such strong backing. He felt that there was enough variety and ability in the committee to make a distinct advance toward the two projects, the market and the hall. He said: "What Rochester wants she will get." He felt sure that the water storage project would materialize. Said he, "It simply means that we have got to keep at it and seize every opportunity that comes. I believe there is no such thing as failure."

Frank H. Hamlin, vice-president of the Genesee Trust Company and president of the Canandaigua National Bank, a new member of the chamber, spoke briefly. He has just come to Rochester. He spoke of the many advantages of the city, its water power and possibilities along that line, its educational advantages, and said regarding the chamber: "The opportunities of any such organization depend not exclusively on the officers, but more especially on its members."

President Brewster referred briefly to the army post and said that efforts were being made to get it located at Rochester. He believed this an ideal site for such a post. Adjournment was taken to the library, where luncheon was served.

The following are the standing committees announced last night by President Brewster:

President, Henry C. Brewster; first vice-president, Daniel B. Murphy; second vice-president, Thomas B. Dunn; third vice-president, Louis N. Stein; treasurer, Benjamin H. Chase; secretary, John M. Ives.

Executive committee—Henry C. Brewster, Daniel B. Murphy, Thomas B. Dunn, Louis H. Stein, Benjamin H. Chase, Charles H. Babcock, Charles P. Ford, James S. Graham, John N. Beckley, Max Brickner, Charles J. Brown and J. Y. McClintock.

Board of trustees—One year, John F. Aldous, Edward Bausch, John N. Beckley, Max Brickner, Charles J. Brown, Joseph Dorsey, Charles P. Ford, James S. Graham, William A. Hubbard, Jr., J. Y. McClintock, Daniel B. Murphy, Edward W. Peck, Fernando E. Rogers, W. H. H. Rogers, Clinton Rogers, Morley A. Stern, Albrecht Vom Hofe and V. F. White. Two years, Charles F. Bayles, Fred Cleary, Gad E. Brownell, R. B. Chase, O. H. Halloway, Henry J. Moore, L. W. Moore, George J. Oatis, Orie D. Palmer, Edward Priest, E. Ross, R. S. Rumsey, Burton S. Story, W. H. Smith, Lansing G. Weimore and John C. Woodbury.

Railroads and transportation—John N. Beckley, chairman; E. M. Upton, vice-chairman; William C. Barry, E. W. Keck, George A. Bowman, C. S. Kellogg, B. Frank Brewster, E. C. Lapey, Charles R. Bennis, H. B. Graves, S. R. Mott, Jr., A. T. Hagen, E. D. Reed, George W. Ham, Daniel Smith, C. R. Jarvis, Nathan Stein, J. C. Baldwin and George H. Watkins.

Postal facilities, telegraphy and insurance—Max Brickner, chairman; Michael Doyle, vice-chairman; F. J. Amsden, Edwin A. Fisher, E. F. Adler, H. A. Hamilton, R. G. Benner, G. W. Maguire, Horace C. Brewster, James Johnston, Seth J. T. Bush, Joseph Mosher, James D. Casey, L. W. Moore, Milton Clark, W. C. McDonell, A. W. Curtis and R. V. Strasenburg.

Statistics and publications—Charles J. Brown, chairman; William D. Hale, vice-chairman; W. P. Andrus, B. P. Hamlin, George F. Argetsinger, J. P. Henry, Max Binswanger, Lyman Hoirs, Charles Brasw, C. E. Kohlmetz, H. W. Calkins, J. W. Moore, Frederick P. Church, Charles K. Nyerberg, W. H. Cooley, R. Ralph Plass, C. M. Fisk and John A. P. Walter.

Convention hall and public market—J. Y. McClintock, chairman; H. H. Rich, vice-chairman; William Aikenhead, John B. Hamilton, Henry Barnard, David Hoyt, J. H. Boehler, L. A. Jeffries, James Brady, J. Emory Jones, William H. Briggs, William Lilly, H. J. Butterfield, Max Rosenthal, William Carson, Henry S. Mackie, J. E. Cleary, J. J. Manbery, J. G. Davis, B. P. Neun, J. C. J. Dellinger, James Palmer, Jr., R. F. Dunn, Walter A. Pierce, H. R. East, Philip Proper, H. S. Eaton, Henry A. Schaefer, L. J. Ernst, Charles A. Stone, Raleigh Farrar, L. L. Stone, James Fee, George A. Tegg, T. W. Ford, C. W. Trotter, George J. French, B. S. Underhill, M. M. Garson, F. F. Van Hoosen, Charles Goodman, Charles Vogel, Sam Gottry, John A. Porter, C. L. Griffith, M. J. Warner and C. H. Yost.

WANT ARMY POST LOCATED HERE

Chamber of Commerce Endeavoring to Induce Federal Authorities to Build Fort In Rochester When Porter and Niagara Are Abandoned.

WOULD BE OF BENEFIT TO THE FLOWER CITY

Times 7th Jan 1902

(From Yesterday's Last Editions.)

The Rochester Chamber of Commerce has awakened to the fact that the acquisition of an army post to the already multitudinous features of the city, would be of great benefit to the community in various ways, and has decided to put forth every effort to induce the United States authorities to locate the proposed new post in Rochester or in one of its outlying suburbs.

When the government first announced its intention of abandoning Forts Porter and Niagara near Buffalo, and establishing a new regimental post in Western New York, prominent business men in the cities of Buffalo and Geneva immediately set in motion all the machinery of their municipalities in efforts to bring the coveted post to their cities.

Secretary Ives now announces that the Rochester Chamber will do all in its power to bring the post here. A new committee of public improvement will be appointed at tonight's meeting of the Chamber, which will probably hold a meeting later in the week for the purpose of considering ways and means to set the advantages of the city before the eyes of the federal authorities.

Would Benefit the City.

The proposed post, in case it should come to Rochester, would benefit the city in many ways. From 1,500 to 2,000 soldiers would have permanent quarters at the post and the contracts for furnishing the supplies necessary to feed such a large number of men would no doubt be given to some of the business houses of this city. This fact alone is sufficient to induce the business men of Rochester to strive with might and main for the post.

Besides the benefit the city would derive in a business way the acquisition of the army people to the society of Rochester would have a very enlivening effect. The advent of the soldiers and their families, while it could not improve the tone of Rochester's society, would brighten it greatly with the gaities for which the army officers are noted. These polished gentlemen from West Point are not only well versed in the tactics pertaining to war, but are equally proficient in manoeuvers of the ballroom and parlor.

The numerous railroads running into the city could within a short period of time transport thousands of troops in or out of Rochester. This fact would not only be of great advantage to the railroad people, but the army would also derive no small benefit from Rochester's excellent railroad facilities in case of any emergency.

Location on Lake Shore.

"A good site for the post could be found at any of the small places along Lake Ontario, on the beach, within a few moments' ride of the city. By being situated along the lake shore, the soldiers would get the benefit of one of the most salubrious and healthy climates in the country," said Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce.

The matter is being discussed among the business men of the city and some action in the matter may be looked for within a very few days. It is an assured fact that the Chamber of Commerce will make a strenuous effort to bring the post to Rochester. There is no reason why they should not be successful if the manifold advantages of the city are placed before the government in a proper light. The attractions of Buffalo and Geneva are infinitesimal beside those of Rochester.

ARMY POST PLANS.

Dec 6 Jan 7 02

Congressman Perkins Will Try to Secure It for Rochester.

A few days ago Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, wrote to Congressman Perkins, asking him to do what he could toward securing for Rochester the new military post and hospital, which the government proposes to establish in Western New York. Congressman Perkins has replied to Mr. Ives, assuring the Chamber of Commerce of his hearty co-operation in the matter, and suggesting that a site be selected so that Rochester may have something definite to offer.

President Brewster referred to the army post in his address before the chamber last Monday night, and the chamber's committee on public improvements, of which Colonel James S. Graham is chairman, was instructed to bend its energies towards bringing the post here.

Public opinion, so far as it has been expressed, favors the lake front as an ideal site for a post and hospital designed to afford rest and recuperation for the soldiers who come home from the Philippines. Colonel Graham said last night that the Greenleaf farm, on the Manitou line, and the site of the White City, at Windsor beach, had been especially spoken of.

Information will soon be sent to Congressman Perkins with respect to what Rochester has to offer in the way of a site and other facilities, and then the matter will probably rest, so far as the chamber is concerned, until it is deemed advisable to send a local committee to Washington.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

COMPETITION IN LIGHTING

Dec to Jan 2.

NEW LOCAL GAS COMPANY INCORPORATED YESTERDAY.

TO CHEAPEN PRODUCT

THAT IS THE AVOWED PURPOSE OF THE NEW CONCERN.

TO ASK FOR FRANCHISE

Illuminating Gas Promised at $1 Per Thousand Feet—Company Authorized to Manufacture Electricity—What Director Horace C. Brewster Says—An interview With Mr. Cook

For several days past there have been rumors of the contemplated organization of a company for the purpose of furnishing gas in this city. Yesterday articles of incorporation were filed in Albany which showed that the rumor was not without foundation. It was learned, upon good authority, that the capitalists who are interested in the new gas company are identical with the real parties in interest behind the Citizens Light and Power Company, and that the consolidation of the two interests, with greatly increased capital stock, is to be the ultimate outcome.

The articles of incorporation follow:

We, the undersigned, all being persons of full age and citizens of the United States, and residents of the state of New York, desiring to become a corporation for the purposes hereinafter specified, pursuant to the provisions of article VI. of chapter 500 of the laws of 1890, being chapter XL. of the general laws of the state of New York, entitled "The Transportation Corporations Law," and of the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, do hereby certify:

First—The name of the corporation is Municipal Gas and Electric Company of Rochester.

Second—Its objects are manufacturing and supplying gas for lighting the streets and public and private buildings of cities, villages and towns in the state of New York, and for manufacturing and using electricity for producing light, heat and power, and in lighting streets, avenues, public parks and places and public and private buildings of cities, villages and towns within the state of New York, and such other purposes, with such additional powers as corporations incorporated for the foregoing specified purposes are authorized by law to have and exercise.

Third—The amount of its capital stock is two million five hundred thousand dollars ($2,500,000).

Fourth—The term of its existence is fifty (50) years.

Fifth—The number of shares of which the stock shall consist is twenty-five thousand (25,000) shares, of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100) each.

Sixth—The number of directors is three (3).

Seventh. The names and places of residence of the directors for the first year are as follows, viz.:

Anson R. Flower, borough of Manhattan, New York city.

C. K. G. Billings, borough of Manhattan, New York city.

Horace C. Brewster, Rochester, New York.

Eighth. The names of the towns, villages, cities and counties in which the operations of the corporation are to be carried on are as follows:

The county of Monroe;

The city of Rochester;

The towns of Brighton, Chili, Clarkson, Gates, Greece, Hamlin, Henrietta, Irondequoit, Mendon, Ogden, Parma, Penfield, Perinton, Pittsford, Riga, Rush, Sweden, Webster and Wheatland, all in the county of Monroe;

The villages of Brighton, Brockport, Charlotte, Churchville, Fairport, Honeoye Falls, Mendon, North Parma, Pittsford and Spencerport, all in the county of Monroe, and all other towns, cities and villages in said county of Monroe.

Ninth. The principal office of the corporation is to be located in the city of Rochester, in the county of Monroe, state of New York.

Tenth. The corporation is authorized to purchase, acquire, hold and dispose of the stocks, bonds and other evidences of indebtedness of any corporation, domestic or foreign, and issue in exchange therefor its stock, bonds or other obligations.

Directors of the corporation need not be stockholders unless otherwise provided in a by-law adopted by a stockholders' meeting.

In witness whereof, we have signed and acknowledged this certificate in duplicate this 7th day of January, 1902.

ANSON R. FLOWER.
C. K. G. BILLINGS.
HORACE C. BREWSTER.

The directors, Anson R. Flower, head of the Roswell P. Flower Company, of New York City; C. K. G. Billings, of the Chicago Gas & Coal Company, and Horace C. Brewster, of this city, are all well-known men.

It is understood that application is to be made at the next meeting of the common council for a franchise for the new company. It proposed to supply guaranteed twenty-four-candle-power gas at the rate of $1 per thousand cubic feet and electricity for light, heat and power purposes at correspondingly low rates.

Horace C. Brewster, who is named in the articles of incorporation of the new company as the local director, was seen by a Democrat and Chronicle reporter yesterday afternoon. When asked regarding the new enterprize, Mr. Brewster said that the articles of incorporation as published yesterday were correct.

"Will the new company take over the Citizens Light and Power Company?" was the next question asked.

"If that is the intention," said Mr. Brewster, "I do not know it. You know it is possible to increase the number of directors and also increase the capital stock. Only three directors are named in the articles of incorporation of the new company.

"Is it the intention of the new company to place mains and supply the entire city with gas?"

"Yes, that is the plan."

"Has the possible opposition of property owners to tearing up the pavements for gas mains been taken into consideration?"

"Yes, the New York people have planned for all that but that will be all provided and the people will get cheaper gas. I ventured the city on the main [illegible]

[illegible] Dec. 31, 1901.

[illegible] Jan. 1, 1902.

[illegible] Jan. 2, 1902.

[illegible] Jan. 3, 1902.

[illegible] Jan. 4, 1902.

[illegible] Jan. 5, 1902.

[illegible] Jan. 6, 1902.

[illegible] Jan. 7, 1902.

[illegible] Jan. 8, 1902.

ROCHESTER'S FIGHT FOR ARMY POST

Two Sites for Location at Lake Front are Suggested.

This Done at Suggestion of Congressman Perkins So This City Would Have Something to Offer.

Chamber of Commerce Committee on Improvements Has Charge of the Matter.

Rochester is making a strong fight for the establishment of an army post. The matter has been talked of for some time and the chamber of Commerce has taken hold of it and determined efforts are being made by that body to have the government establish a post and hospital here. Secretary Ives wrote to Congressman Perkins a few days ago asking him to do what he could for the project, and a letter has been received from him asking that a site be selected, so that Rochester would have something to offer. In his letter Congressman Perkins gave every assurance that he would do all he could to bring the post here. Towards the end of the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night President Brewster referred to it. The public improvements committee of the chamber, of which Col. James S. Graham is chairman, is making a fight for the post. Col. Graham has considerable influence at Washington and is backed by the members of his committee. South Buffalo is also making a fight for it, but if she wants it she will have to make a very hard fight. In that city committees have been appointed to have charge of the fight for the establishment of the post there, but nothing will be left undone in Rochester to have a post and hospital established here.

In speaking to the members of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night President Brewster said: "There is a good deal of agitation through Western New York about the establishment of an army post in the war department. Secretary Ives has had some correspondence with Congressman Perkins about the matter, with a view of having Rochester heard in the matter before the selection is made."

President Brewster believes Rochester an ideal place for a post and thinks there is no more suitable place for a hospital for convalescent soldiers from the Philippines than this city. We [illegible] city; it [illegible] over the public improved surface.

Edward A. Stahlbrodt, chairman of the local committee on arrangements for the annual dinner of the Society of the Genesee, to be given February 8th at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, in honor of Judge William E. Werner, is receiving applications for seats.

The Rochester committee on arrangements will meet in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 5 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, to complete plans for the attendance at the dinner of guests from this city.

Among those who have promised to attend the dinner are the following:

Hon. George B. Adams, judge United States district court; H. C. Adler, publisher the "Times," Chattanooga, Tenn.; Perry Belmont, former congressman; W. C. Brant, president New York Press club; Thomas H. Martindale, president Canadian society of New York; Charles J. Brooks, San Francisco "Chronicle;" Bird S. Coler, ex-comptroller; Frank A. Canton, president of Manhattan borough; George H. Daniels, general passenger agent, New York Central; H. C. Duval, New York Central; Ashbel P. Fitch, president Franklin County society; Charles Frohman, Justice Leonard A. Giegerich, Supreme court; George Gould, Randolph Guggenheimer, ex-president of council; Arthur Grooves, city editor New York "Times;" ex-Senator David B. Hill, Chester S. Lord, managing editor New York "Sun;" Jefferson County society; William Leary, secretary New York fire board; Louis Marshall, John Norris, Adolph S. Ochs, publisher New York "Times;" George W. Ochs, publisher Philadelphia "Times;" Robert C. Ogden, vice-president Pennsylvania society; Whitelaw Reid, editor New York "Tribune;" Henry L. Stoddard, editor "Mail and Express;" Valentine P. Snyder, president Western National bank; Thomas F. Shea, manager Empire theater; Louis Stern, president Albany society; John A. Stichter, editor "Frank Leslie's Weekly;" Justice Charles H. Truax, president Canada society; Samuel Untermyer, John W. Vrooman, Holland society; Lieutenant-Governor Timothy L. Woodruff, Henry Woolman, S. S. Terry, George W. Aldridge, Frank A. Acer, Judge J. P. Hinsdale, Hamilton Odell, M. T. Wilbur, James L. Bishop, James B. Dill, Hy. G. Piffard, F. R. Travers, A. F. Travers, J. G. Graves, Leo Stein, H. W. Gluck, Rochester; Dr. S. M. Brickner, Waldo G. Morse, Dr. F. Norris, James D. Cruder, S. Pratt, George L. Fiolin, Charles Allen, James M. Ashman, Groveland, N. Y.; George Eastman, George F. Roth, George L. Fisher, James R. Lothrop, Frank T. Goldsmith, F. W. Ayer, president Mercantile National bank, Philadelphia; Isaac Alvord, Charles V. Morgan, Claude E. Marvin, George F. Ludlam, James McMahon, president Emigrant Industrial Savings bank; E. E. Almy, M. B. Bowen, Thomas F. Goodrich, vice-president National Surety company; E. S. Marvin, Dr. Richard D. Harlan, president Lake Forest university.

Union & Advertiser Jan. 8, 1902.

SITE FOR THE ARMY POST

Greenleaf Tract Near Ontario Beach Offered to the Government.

Chamber of Commerce and Congressman Perkins Booming Project.

The Times Jany 9, 1902

There is every prospect of a lively scramble of the people of Rochester and vicinity who have property for sale that would in any way be suitable for a site for the proposed new army post. Already several men with large tracts of land for sale have become interested in the matter and are out booming the merits of their respective properties.

The sites most prominently mentioned are the Manitou Beach property, recently purchased by Fred Odenbach, who conducts a restaurant at 112 State Street; the Greenleaf tract near Charlotte, and Windsor Beach, the site of the White City. There are several other sites in various parts of Rochester and the outlying suburban towns that have been suggested as good locations for the establishment of an army post. The owners of these properties, however, have not yet taken any steps in booming their land, but several of them give evidence of becoming deeply interested in the army post question. It is safe to say that before the middle of next week one or two of them at least will have [illegible] properties for [illegible] The public [illegible] committee is good to have a meeting and after this plans for the fight for the post will have taken more definite form.

Of course there would be no fortifications, as this would be a violation of the Endicott agreement with Great Britain. The war department is abandoning small posts and establishing large ones, and it is to cut off Fort Porter in Buffalo and Fort Niagara at the mouth of the Niagara river. The new post will probably be a headquarters and a twelve-company post, with a colonel in charge and his staff and band attached.

Col. Graham says that two sites have been suggested, the Greenleaf farm on the route of the Charlotte plank road and trolley line, and Windsor Beach, the site of the White City. Military men believe either would make an ideal location. Col. Graham, in speaking of the advantages of an army post said that it would attract people, be a social help and considerable money would be spent in the course of a year. He thinks that that can be done at present is to give Congressman Perkins an idea of a site and he would have to do the fighting at Washington until the matter required a committee sent there. Col. Graham thinks it too early for such committee work at present.

In such a post as the government talks of establishing in western New York there would be from 1,500 to 2,000 people irrespective of the general hospital.

LOW RATES ANNOUNCED.

All Railroads Make Concession for Society of the Genesee Banquet.

At the meeting of the committee which has charge of the Rochester arrangements for the Society of the Genesee banquet in New York City yesterday afternoon, announcement was made that the railroads had agreed to make a rate of a fare and one-third from this city to the metropolis for those desiring to attend the dinner, provided that a party of at least 100 is made up. It would seem that there should be little difficulty in getting the required number, in view of the fact that the banquet this year is in honor of the elevation of Judge William E. Werner of this city to the Court of Appeals.

The banquet is to be held on February 8 in the Waldorf-Astoria. The tickets will be good for one week, from the 5th to the 8th of February. This will give people an opportunity of spending several days in New York and also enjoying the dinner. Those who go on this excursion rate will have to pay the full fare to New York and can then have their tickets signed there, allowing them the reduced return rate. The tickets are to be canceled at the Hotel Victoria on Saturday, the day of the banquet, although they will be good returning, as stated, any time until the 11th. Those intending to go to the metropolis can go by way of the Central, Lehigh Valley, Erie or West Shore.

Edward A. Stahlbrodt, chairman of the local committee, and Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce, who acts as secretary of the committee, will be glad to furnish information regarding the dinner and railroad arrangements to any one desiring it. Herald Jan 9 02

SOCIETY OF THE GENESEE.

Jan. 10, 02.

More Than Half the Tickets Already Purchased.

One hundred and seventy-five persons have already engaged seats for the dinner of the Society of the Genesee in honor of Judge William E. Werner at the Waldorf-Astoria on Saturday evening, February 8th. As the accommodations at the dinner will be limited to three hundred persons, it beehoves Rochesterians who wish to attend to make immediate applications for seats. Applications may be made to E. A. Stahlbrodt, chairman of the Rochester committee, or to Joseph Walmsley, secretary of the committee, Tribune building, No. 154 Nassau street, New York. The price of dinner seats is $6 each. The menu will be an elaborate one, as follows:

Oysters
Soup, Jenny Lind
Radishes Olives Celery Salted almonds
Planked shad
Potatoes, Palestine Cucumber salad
Sweetbread a la Dreux
Escalopes of lamb, Colbert sauce.
Potatoes, Duchesse. String beans panache
Fancy sherbet
Roasted grass plover
Waldorf salad
Assorted ices
Cakes, Fruit,
Cheese,
Coffee.

TRIBUTES TO JUDGE WERNER.

1/10/02

President Roosevelt and Governor Odell on the Rochester Jurist.

The dinner committee of the Society of the Genesee met Saturday at noon in the office of President Job E. Hedges, No. 141 Broadway. A communication was read from E. A. Stahlbrodt, of Rochester, saying that at least one hundred members of the society and friends of Judge Werner would attend the dinner, to be given in honor of Judge Werner by the society at the Waldorf-Astoria on February 8th. H. C. Davis, general freight agent of the Lehigh Valley railroad, who is a member of the dinner committee, reported that arrangements had been made with the trunk line association for a special rate of one fare and a third for the round trip from Rochester to New York and return, good for five days.

Joseph Walmsley, secretary of the dinner committee, reported over one hundred and seventy-five seats already engaged. Eugene Whitney, chairman of the dinner committee, reported that Edward P. Barrow and George H. Dadley, of the "Message From Mars" company, now playing at the Garrick theater, will sing several selections during the progress of the dinner. They have rich baritone voices and their presence will prove a musical treat. The Society of the Genesee Quartette, consisting of Fred Rycroft, C. W. Potter, F. T. Millham and W. A. Hudson, will also sing.

The revised toast list is as follows: "The City of New York," Mayor Seth Low; "The Court of Appeals," Chief Judge Alton B. Parker, of the court of appeals; "The City of Rochester," Mayor Adolph J. Rodenbeck; "The Bar," William B. Hornblower; "The Bar of Western New York," John G. Milburn, Buffalo; "The Old and the New," J. H. Canfield, Columbia University; "The Genesee Valley," W. F. Hudson; "An Educational Idea," Richard Greenleaf Property Offered.

Mr. H. G Brooks, manager of the Sargent & Greenleaf Company on Court Street, who is also manager of the Greenleaf tract, in speaking to a Times reporter about the matter this morning, said:

"Our property at Charlotte is for sale and we would be glad to have the representatives of the government inspect the land. I am sure no more suitable site for an army post could be found in the vicinity. We could sell the Government from 10 to 140 acres of land that is possessed of all the natural advantages that would be required for a post. If the Government wants the property we will sell it to them."

Mr. Odenbach, the owner of the Manitou Beach site, is superintending the improvements now being made at the beach in preparation for the coming summer season, and could not be seen. It is thought, however, that he could be induced to consider a proposition from the Government in regard to the sale of his property.

In addition to the sites above mentioned, there are several tracts of land that would make fine locations for the post, in the country surrounding Rochester, at a distance of from 11 to 24 miles from the city.

When the owners of the sites have all presented the merits of their properties to the Chamber of Commerce, it is the intention of the Chamber to select the sites possessing the best requirements for the establishment of a post, and invite the army experts to make a thorough inspection of them, with a view to selecting the best, in case it is decided to locate the post in Rochester or vicinity.

Secretary Ives Interested.

Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce has taken hold of the matter with his characteristic energy and is pushing it for all it is worth. Today Mr. Ives said: "When we have selected a site, a description of it will be forwarded to Congressman Perkins at Washington and the real fight begun. Congressman Perkins will make every effort to induce the Federal authorities to consider the Rochester site favorably."

Colonel Graham, who was named as Chairman of the committee having the matter in charge, is thoroughly versed in military affairs and the fact that he was chosen Chairman of the committee can be taken as an indication of the interest the project is arousing among the members of the Chamber. The committee will hold a meeting shortly to outline a plan of action.

Jan. 14, 1902.

SITE FOR ARMY POST.

Congressman Perkins Urges That One Be Selected at Once.

Another letter regarding the army post has been received from Congressman Perkins by Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce. Congressman Perkins again calls pushing it for all it is worth. Today Mr. Ives said: "When we have selected a site, a description of it will be forwarded to Congressman Perkins at Washington and the real fight begun. Congressman Perkins will make every effort to induce the Federal authorities to consider the Rochester site favorably."

Colonel Graham, who was named as Chairman of the committee having the matter in charge, is thoroughly versed in military affairs and the fact that he was chosen Chairman of the committee can be taken as an indication of the interest the project is arousing among the members of the Chamber. The committee will hold a meeting shortly to outline a plan of action.

Jan. 11, 1902.

Dear Mr. Wiley:

I am extremely sorry not to be able to attend the dinner to be given by the Society of the Genesee on Saturday evening, February 8, 1902, in honor of Judge William E. Werner, whom I warmly esteem.

Judge Werner hardly needs any assurance of my cordial personal regard or of my high opinion of his ability, but I wish you would on this occasion present to him my heartiest congratulations.

I thank you and the members of your society for your kind invitation.

Faithfully yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

My Dear Mr. Wiley:

As I advised you recently, it was my earnest wish that I might be able to attend the dinner of the Society of the Genesee. That I now find it impossible to do so, is a source of very great regret.

I desire, however, to take this opportunity to say to the members of the Society of the Genesee, that none of them can accord to Judge William E. Werner greater honor and greater respect than I. When a man has accomplished as much in a lifetime as Judge Werner has already during his career, and he has by the force of pure merit and native ability worked his way up the rounds of the ladder of his profession until he has reached the very top, then that man should command the admiration of all who know him. You gentlemen are doing his personal friends, his fellow townsmen. Your acquaintance with him has probably been longer than mine, but I know you cannot esteem his personal friendship higher than I do, and it can give none of you more pleasure to testify to his worth than I take in writing this letter.

Wishing you a happy new year, I am,

Very truly yours,

E. B. ODELL, JR.

MR. PERKINS ACTIVE AT WASHINGTON

Times Jan. 15 1902.

Congressman Writes to Secretary Ives Asking For Plans of Sites For the Army Post.

The new army post project is arousing the keenest interest among the members of the Chamber of Commerce and other business men of the city. The people who own property available for sites are beginning to realize that the chances for the location of the post in the immediate vicinity of Rochester are brightening, and are booming their land.

Fred Odenbach, owner of the Manitou Beach site, was approached on the army post subject at his state Street restaurant by a Times reporter this morning. When asked what he thought of the property as a site for the post, Mr. Odenbach said:

"No better site for an army post than the Manitou Beach property could be found in Monroe County. Situated as it is, on the shore of Lake Ontario, it makes one of the most beautiful pleasure resorts in the country and it would be an ideal place for broken-down soldiers returning from the Philippines to recuperate.

"The ozone in the healthful breezes that are blown in from the lake would have the sick soldiers in good shape in very short order. Besides its advantages from the standpoint of health, its advantages from a topographical point of view are innumerable.

"There are 70 acres of perfectly level ground in the tract. Along the lakeshore are several cottages worth $3,000 apiece which would make, with a little improvement, fine quarters for the officers. Barracks for the enlisted men could be built and an ideal parade ground laid out. The Manitou Beach Railway runs right into the plot and the trip can be made from the center of the city in a little less than an hour.

"If the government wishes to buy the property they can have it, and I feel confident that they can find no site better suited to their purposes than the Manitou Beach property."

George W. Archer, President of the Rochester & Suburban Railroad Company, which owns the site of the White City at Windsor Beach, was asked if his company would sell the property to the government for the establishment of an army post. Mr. Archer said:

"We have been spoken to about the matter, but not officially. If the government would pay our price, we would certainly sell."

Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce received a letter from Congressman Perkins on Saturday asking that plans of sites be sent to him and that any action taken by the Chamber be reported to him in order that he might lay the whole matter before the Secretary of War. Mr. Ives stated that the outlook for Rochester's success was very encouraging.

A meeting of the Public Improvement Committee will be held some day this week to consider what action will be taken in the matter.

NEW GAS COMPANY'S OFFICERS

Jan. 18 02

Election of the Municipal Gas and Electric Company in New York.

At a meeting of the directors of the newly organized Municipal Gas and Electric company, held in New York city on Saturday, the following officers were elected: President, C. K. G. Billings, New York; vice-president, Horace C. Brewster, Rochester; secretary and treasurer, Charles H. Werner, New York.

The company is organized to supply gas and electric lighting and electric power in the city of Rochester and towns of Monroe county and is expected to apply for a city franchise at the meeting of the Common Council to-morrow night. It is capitalized at $2,500,000.

DECEMBER 28, 190[illegible]

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

SOCIETY OF GENESEE TO BANQUET.

List of Speakers for the Annual Function.

Present indications are that the annual dinner of the Society of the Genesee to be held in New York on February 8th, will be the most largely attended in the history of the organization.

The toast list as revised follows: "The City of New York," Mayor Seth Low; "The Court of Appeals," Chief Judge Alton B. Parker of the Court of Appeals; "The City of Rochester," Mayor Adolph J. Rodenbeck; "The Bar," William B. Hornblower; "The Bar of Western New York," John G. Milburn, Buffalo; "The Old and the New," J. H. Canfield, Columb a University; "The Genesee Valley," W. F. Bai kam; "An Educational View," Richard D. Harlan, president of Lake Forest University. "The Bar of Rochester," George Raines, Rochester.

THE POST EXPRESS: MONDAY AFTERNOON JANUARY 13 1902.

THREATENS TO STUB TROLLEY LINES.

General Manager Nicholl Talks Plainly to Governor—Says Rochester Railway Company Will Not Use Bridges if State Insists on Making it Pay for Their Repairs —Important Meeting of Stockholders and Directors Called for January 21st.

Stockholders and directors of the Rochester Railway company have just received notification that a meeting will be held in the general offices on State street, on January 21st.

Considerable interest attaches to this meeting, because of the recent rumors of changes about to be made in the officials of the road. Inquiry at the offices this morning failed to adduce anything definite on these reported changes. Nevertheless all of the officials inferred that something might be done, yet none was positive in stating that nothing of importance would take place. General Manager Nicholl said a few things about Governor Odell and the canal bridges, and threatened to stub his lines if the railway company should be forced to keep the bridges in repair.

One of the objects of the meeting is to elect a new set of officers. General Manager Thomas J. Nicholl stated that so far as he knew all of the present officers would be candidates for re-election. To his knowledge no resignations have been tendered by any of the present officials.

About a year ago a syndicate of Philadelphia and New York capitalists gained control of the road. At that time there were rumors of changes, but none took place. Perhaps the same reason for the rumors can be assigned this year, namely, the uncertainty of the actions of outside directors.

The names of the members of the syndicate who will attend the meeting are:

E. W. Clark, E. W. Clark, Jr., C. M. Clark, all of Philadelphia; James Richardson, of Providence, R. I.; W. W. Kurtz, of Philadelphia; and Arthur A. Hodenpyl, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The out of town stockholders, Benjamin Graham, of New York, and H. Sellers McKee, of Pittsburgh, Pa., will attend the meeting as will all of the local members.

The present officers of the road are: President, Frederick Cook; vice-president and general manager, Thomas J. Nicholl; secretary, G. G. Morehouse; treasurer, Frederick P. Allen. C. M. Clark, of Philadelphia, is chairman of the executive committee.

Undoubtedly the directors will discuss the improvements in the road and erection of a new power house. Also, the matter of the road, keeping the canal bridges over which its cars pass, in repair, as outlined by Governor Odell recently, will be discussed. General-Manager Nicholl made the following positive statement this morning:

"If the governor expects us to keep the canal bridges in repair he is reckoning without his host. I have been in communication with officers of other roads in other cities and they tell me that the policy of the governor amounts to confiscation. There seems to be a general sentiment all along the line in every city of the state to fight this policy. Concerted action may be taken.

"You can say this much for me: If the governor insists on the Rochester Railway company keeping the bridges in repair we will not use the bridges. We will stop our cars at the bridges and stub the lines. Passengers may walk over the bridges and board the cars on the other side. Surely, if we do not use the bridges we cannot be compelled to keep them in repair because the passengers of our cars walk over them."

ARMY POST SITE.

Chamber of Commerce and Council Are Interested in Matter.

Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce has received a letter from Congressman Perkins stating that if a new army post is to be established near Rochester, an available site must be agreed on and its adoption urged by united effort. Several sites have been suggested but none have been offered.

At the council meeting last night Alderman Baker introduced a resolution which was unanimously adopted, requesting the Secretary of War to establish a post of the regular army in or near Rochester.

NEW ARMORY

Agitation Started Again by Militia Men.

TO COST $250,000

Will Ask Legislature To Make Such Appropriation.

MAY FORM NEW COMPANY

If Battalion Armory Is Secured It Will Be Necessary To Create a Third Company—Comment on Present Era of Harmony — Series of Battalion Drills by Both Companies.

Once more the question of a new armory has come to the fore. Militia men discussing the proposition and they have good and considerable interest in the project. A desultory agitation for such an armory has been carried on for the past three years, but somehow decisive action has always been negatived by some unforeseen obstacle. Now, however, with the Legislature in session the soldier boys have taken new inspiration and are booming the question with a will.

During the past twelve months considerable quiet work along this line has been carried on and now lobbying will be done in Albany. If possible, it is the plan of the promoters of the scheme to secure an appropriation early in the session so that no opposition to it will have a leg to stand on later in the day, when all other legislative matters have been cared for, on the ground of economy.

Undoubtedly a bill will be prepared within the next ten days and given to one of the members of the Monroe delegation to present in the Assembly. As soon as this has been presented active steps will be taken to secure its early passage—in fact they hope to railroad it through by a concerted movement. The bill will call for a battalion armory and will ask for about $250,000.

There are at present in the armory only two National Guard companies, the 1st Separate, captained by Frank G. Smith, and the 8th Separate, captained by C. Alonzo Simmons. Under the code each company is supposed to have 104 men, but neither of the companies has a full complement of men. The 2d Separate Naval Division is also quartered at the armory.

The fact that there are only two companies here raises the point that under the military code no less than three companies can form a battalion. The maximum number is seven companies. In order to meet this contingency it is planned to organize another company.

Among the members of the 1st and 8th companies there is no doubt that a third company can be formed with a full complement of 104 men and they argue that if such is done, aided by the assurance of a new armory that it will stimulate the spirit of many who are not enlisted to join and by this means it is hoped to fill out all the three companies to the limit. With the first sign of encouragement the soldier boys will ask for a charter and for other necessary formula for the organization of the new company.

Naturally the question of a new site will enter into the plans for a new battalion armory. The consensus of opinion is that the present site is the most available. It is central, easily reached, embraces a square of valuable land and is sufficiently large to accommodate a new building. Anyway, the site is only a secondary matter at the best.

And, besides all the other arguments in favor of a new armory, there is one, local pride, that has been forgotten. The members of the two militia companies and the naval reserves point to the fact that Buffalo has a regimental armory with a complement of eight companies and provisions for twelve. Here the old armory can hardly give accommodation to two companies. None of the Buffalo companies has a full complement of men, it is claimed.

Heretofore one of the objections to a new armory has been the fact that keen rivalry, amounting almost to personal bitterness, has existed between the members of the two companies. Such flimsy argument has been literally wiped out now.

For the first time in the history of the militia companies here a joint dress ball was given on New Years eve. Both militia companies and the Naval Reserves united in the effort to make it a success and such it was. That was the cornerstone of the era of good feeling and harmony. But the men did not stop there. They have taken another step.

A series of six battalion drills will be given in the near future. The first will be held on Wednesday, January 29. Both companies will participate. Assistance will be given by the Reserves in every possible manner to make the drills a success. Although they cannot take active part they will lend their moral and financial support. Thus it is hoped by such prima facie evidence to blot out the specious argument of lack of harmony and to give bluntly the lie to the slanderers who circulate the story.

Two preliminary drills for the series have already been held. Captain Simmons of the 8th acted as major in one and Captain Smith of the 1st as major in the other. In the opening drill on January 29 Captain Smith will rank as major. He will alternate with Captain Simmons in the others.

One may ask how can two companies give a battalion drill. It is easily answered. Each company has been split into two companies, thus making four companies.

While speaking of the harmony of the companies now it is only fair to award to Captain C. Alonzo Simmons h[illegible] for the credit. He was instrumental to[illegible]

INTERESTING AND IMPORTANT.

Application for Gas and Electric Franchise To-night—New Committees.

The meeting of the Common Council to-night will probably be important and may be interesting. Attorney Horace McGuire of the Municipal Gas and Electric company is quoted as saying that formal application will be made to-night for a franchise, but the application will contain no pledges of dollar gas or other improvements; those features, he says, are more properly the subject of aldermanic determination later. The franchise will be sold at auction, in accordance with law, after favorable aldermanic action.

President Edgerton will announce the Common Council standing committees, or the more important of them, at least, and the special committee on a revision of the rules will make report which it is expected will result in a cutting off of several committees for which there is no use under the White charter. The rules committee will report in favor of meetings on the first and third Tuesday night of each month instead of on alternate Tuesday nights as at present and it is possible the report will also provide for meetings at 7 o'clock instead of 7.30 as heretofore.

Union. Army Post Site. Jan 14 [illegible]

Congressman Perkins has written to Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce saying that he must have a site soon to offer for the army post of the regular army to be established in Western New York, if Rochester wishes the post. Several sites have been spoken of, but none has been offered and it is necessary to have one so that the committee in charge of the affair may know just what Rochester has to offer. Secretary Ives will be glad to receive offers of sites for the purpose. The cost of reaching the site will be considered in reckoning its adaptibility for the purpose.

COLER PLEADS FOR HOME RULE IN NEW YORK CITY

Addresses the Credit Men at Their Fourth Annual Dinner—W. A. Prendergast Urges Restoration of United States Merchant Marine.

ASSOCIATION'S BANQUET A BRILLIANT SUCCESS

The Times, Jan 15, 1902

The fourth annual dinner of the Rochester Credit Men's Association, held last evening at the Eureka Club, was the most successful social function ever given by the organization. Every detail had been carefully looked after by the dinner committee, speakers of national reputation discussed topics of the day and every plate on the four long tables was taken.

The greatest interest centered, of course, in the address of Hon. Bird S. Coler, ex-comptroller of New York City, who, in line with all present-day orators from the Metropolis, made an earnest plea for home rule in America's largest municipality. Hon. William H. Hotchkiss of Buffalo and William A. Prendergast of New York City also spoke on subjects of interest to business men. The three speakers arrived yesterday afternoon and were met at the Central Avenue station by the reception committee, which conducted them to the Powers hotel.

Handsome Hall Decorations.

Theater Hall, as the banquet room of the Eureka Club is called, presented a beautiful appearance at 7 o'clock, when the doors were thrown open and the guests filed in and took seats. Moll's Orchestra was seated on the stage and it was with difficulty that the guests were able to see the musicians through the bower of palms and ferns. Red and pink carnations formed the table decorations, while flags and bunting were draped artistically from the ceiling and along the front of the gallery and four walls.

One of the pleasant incidents of the evening was the applause which greeted Hon. William E. Werner, Judge of the Court of Appeals, when he arrived at the dinner. Judge Werner came in shortly after 8 o'clock and was escorted by a member of the reception committee to a seat at the table of honor. As soon as the diners caught sight of the distinguished jurist they applauded vigorously.

After the guests had been seated President Elmer Roblin introduced Rev. J. Lyon Caughey, pastor of Memorial Presbyterian Church, who said grace. The serving of the banquet took more than two hours and after cigars had been passed by Secretary Nelson, President Roblin gave a brief sketch of the history of the local Credit Men's Association. He told of its early struggles and paid a graceful compliment to its founder and first President, Daniel B. Murphy. Mention of Mr. Murphy's name was the signal for hearty applause. He then introduced Hon. Walter S. Hubbell, who covered himself with glory as toastmaster.

In introducing Mr. Coler, the toastmaster said that he stood for honesty in the city, state and government. He said that Mr. Coler had at one time been a Tammany officeholder, but that if he ever held office again, he would do so as a Republican or fusionite.

A Plea for Home Rule.

Mr. Coler's subject was "The City and the State" and he devoted nearly all of his remarks to a plea for home rule in New York. The injustice of allowing up-state legislators to make laws for New York City, he declared, should be ended. He said, in part:

"In my brief discussion of the problems involved in a fair adjustment of the legal and political relations of city and state, I shall in a general way speak of the splendid city of New York as the city, and the remainder of the commonwealth as the state.

"There should be no friction in politics or legislation between city and state, between the farmer, the merchant and the banker.

Problems In Metropolis.

"We must deal with thousands of peo[illegible] born, who coming to us [illegible] and ways and our [illegible] conditions that are [illegible] burden is ours and we cheerfully assume it, asking only that we may be left to solve it as seems best to us. The City of New York now pays almost 70 per cent of all the tax collected for the support of the state government. We imply no reflection upon the wisdom, patriotism or good intentions of the state when we ask in return for this great burden of taxation that we may be permitted a large measure of local self-government.

"The countrymen can legislate for the city, the power is theirs under the constitution, and they are making progress; but speaking as a New Yorker and for the city so far as I may, I do not believe that any grave danger will ever threaten the metropolis from the men of the valleys, the villages, the hills or the mountains of the great commonwealth of New York.

"There are misunderstandings on both sides, some of them unfortunate, but none dangerous. Some public men of the city have underestimated the intelligence and honesty of the men from the country, and some of the able representatives at Albany of the country have appeared over-anxious to live up to the constitution. If we have taught you a few tricks in politics, you have not failed, when the Legislature met, to remind us that we live under a constitutional government, and that we of the city are the minority. We now know the lesson well and there is no need to rub it in. We are not saints or even wise men, collectively, but we are trying a big experiment down there, and an expensive one, so it is not asking too much to ask our good friends of the State to give us a chance to learn the business by degrees.

"We are not given to boasting, but, with the ever-willing assistance of our brothers of the country, we may in time be able to properly govern ourselves.

"When the good citizens in the country find that the Court House ring or the town machine is a disgrace upon the country they get just as mad about it as the good men in the city under similar conditions. But the countryman stays mad until election day and votes the ring out of power. In the city we get mad so far ahead of the election that we do not always keep it up through the summer vacations.

Able to Govern Itself.

"The city of New York is great enough and there are enough good citizens to entitle the municipality to a full measure of local self-government. Such government is the basis and the essential principle of our political system. Whenever it is indefinitely suspended or permanently destroyed there you weaken the foundation of the republic. I, for one, do not believe that we are deliberately deprived of home rule, or any essential feature of it, by the wish or the acts of the great mass of the good citizens of the other counties.

"The people of the great city of New York can have no quarrel with the sturdy, honest, patriotic countryman of their state. What differences there may be are brought about by representatives to the Legislature elected by them who become untrue to their trust. The city statesman often interferes in a country district by reason of politics or otherwise, and the country member very often finds it very profitable to himself to vote away a franchise in a great city.

"Our farmer friends, I know, would repudiate any representative who does such a thing.

"A spirit of grasping commercialism has invaded the country and by stealthy steps has made its way to almost every seat of government. It has invaded politics and public life and shared profits with the servants of the people until they, in the pride and power of their unearned wealth, would become the masters of those they were elected to serve. It is now demanded of the farmer that he shall do more than feed them all. He is asked to pay from the substance of his patient toil dividends on inflated stock, to pay the profits of the great combinations of capital, and when he has paid them all, the cry of the trusts is for more! More!

"Corrupt bargains between government and capital have been made and unfair union of trade interests permitted in this country until almost the only unadulterated honesty that remains is represented by the farmer and the product of his farm. Every ton of produce that is shipped to the seaboard to swell the great volume of international trade now netting so strongly in our favor pays a mill a mile or more, to the profits of a railroad pool or the dividends upon a watered share of stock.

"The farmer, however, is not the only sufferer from the greed of corporate interests and the poison of commercialism in politics and government. The rights of the people of the cities have been invaded; their public franchises and utilities stolen from them, their taxes increased and their future prosperity threatened by the same forces that have taken from the countryman an unjust share of the fruits of his labor."

"Dynamics of Credit."

Mr. Hotchkiss' subject, "Dynamics of Credit," was of deep interest to the business men present and contained much good advice to creditors.

"Dishonesty is rarely a good friend of credit," he said. "No man who cheats, nor a dishonest nation is long in being found out."

Speaking of the City of Buffalo since the close of the Pan-American Exposition, Mr. Hotchkiss said that the city was bigger, stronger and wealthier than ever before. He thought the nation owed more to its credit than to its natural resources. The farmer [illegible] not notice as [illegible] Jew [illegible] right and left and the railroad [illegible] might not know it but credit coaled the engine, gave him his roadbed and car[illegible] on his business.

Mr. Prendergast, Secretary of the national association, responded to the toast, "National Duty and Commercial Interests." He urged the necessity of resuscitating the United States merchan marine.

NAMES OF THE GUESTS.

The following attended the dinner:

Table of honor—Commissioner George A. Gilman, Thomas J. Neville, Commissioner J. Y. McClintock, Hon. A. J. Rodenbeck, Judge J. B. M. Stephens, George G. Ford, William A. Prendergast, Hon. George Raines, Daniel B. Murphy, Hon. Bird S. Coler, President Elmer Roblin, Hon. Walter S. Hubbell, Hon. William H. Hotchkiss, Rev. J. Lyon Caughey, Louis S. Foulkes, Justice William E. Werner, John H. Gregory, Horace McGuire, Judge A. E. Sutherland, Commissioner J. A. Crane, M. H. Van Bergh, Comptroller James Johnston, Joseph H. Smith, S. B. Williams, Isaac A. Wile, George W. Farnham, George F. Dominick, J. J. Dolphin, William C. Barry, Frank J. Hone, James Fee, Peter A. Vay, Herman C. Cohn, J. H. Lempert, George B. Watkins, Rudolph Stein, Ira D. Kingsbury, Joseph Farley, William R. Peters, William Pitkin, J. C. Kalbfleisch, J. K. Hunt.

Table A—Philip Present, Lee Richent, Lee Richmond, A. E. Nelson, mond, A. E. Nelson, Joseph Farley, M. H. Van Bergh, Ira D. Kingsbury, Peter A. Vay, L. S. Foulkes, John F. Snyder, George F. Clark, T. J. O'Brien, Joseph J. Mandery, Henry J. Utz, W. H. Dunn, Henry W. Utz, George H. Buff, S. Gentry, A. J. Perkins, C. P. Woodruff, A. E. Bicknell, J. Fred Farber, Phil H. Farber, L. O. Graham, H. C. Phillips, George E. Wyman, J. P. Wyman, Manuel Present, Arthur D. Hill, Henry J. Andrew, Frank I. Stark, Herman C. Cohn, John H. Lenahan, E. T. Gilbert, J. W. Fulreader, J. C. Dyer, Louis Lowenthal, H. V. Clark, E. W. Burton, W. G. Watson, A. Kineman, H. E. Kirstein, Mortimer Adler, W. L. Dobbin, John H. Gregory, W. H. Goodger, A. A. Dummond, H. J. Barnham, A. B. Headley, W. D. Clapp, W. E. Macy, J. M. Acker, Frank Kramer, J. H. Thompson, S. A. McOmber, J. B. Crouch, E. J. Wesp, C. A. Sardam, George G. Ford, C. H. Gage, John Lobbett, S. P. Halderman, Alvin H. Dewey, J. J. Menneilley, C. P. Webbring, W. G. Sieffert.

Table B—B. B. Blyth, H. E. Wetmore, George M. Neel, Charles P. Cox, Henry J. Cox, M. Higgins, A. J. Bolton, L. A. Lewis, M. O'Brien, T. F. Barrows, F. D. Morgan, A. T. Hagen, E. F. Underhill, W. B. Conkling, Andrew J. Townson, L. H. La Fontaine, D. W. Bruce, Kendall B. Castle, William Molloy, J. H. Lempert, Fred Blum, J. Thallheimer, H. H. Clapp, Louis F. Stupp, Richard I. Barker, Stephen West, E. P. Olmstead, F. P. Reichert, E. Wheeler, Jr., Charles L. Barton, Thomas Lannin, E. F. Pillow, Thomas Parsons, T. P. Ford, A. B. Enos, W. T. Plumb, John W. Kimble, J. H. Gilmore, Jr., P. T. Leitweiler, J. H. Luitwieler, E. W. Hunt, R. H. Hunt, J. K. Hunt, John Connors, Charles J. Maiory, George E. Noeth, David Black, E. J. Scheer, H. O'Aldeman, C. A. Elwood, James Barnes, W. Jay Guthrie, M. M. Meyers, Edward Weter, Gustave Erbe, Fredrick Erbe, Francis J. Yawman, J. Albee, Herbert S. Draper, William C. Barry, J. V. Alexander, George Baxter, M. E. Van Bergh, A. C. Mayer, Joseph A. Cramer, C. W. Ward, C. D. Van Zandt.

Table C—Lincoln Doumoux, George Fichter, John J. Casey, Thomas Flynn, Maurice J. Murphy, Filon W. Jones, S. J. Kanon, John O. Sneeberger, J. T. O'Neil, Frederick D. Wootman, Edmund P. Rombaut, John M. Dyer, G. Edward Conn, W. W. McClymonds, William E. Gardiner, Anson W. Squires, Oscar C. Reiber, Francis W. Sutton, James P. McMannis, Frank J. Hone, Mortimer J. Cullinan, J. D. Carson, Daniel L. Van Hee, Edward H. Engert, I. A. Wile, Milton Clark, Martin Bier, Theodore Steinhausen, James Cox, Charles R. Barber, M. D., Albert E. May, Arthur L. Stern, William Marth, H. C. Goericke, Ira D. Kingsbury, W. V. Kell, Frank W. Hahn, Charles L. Hahn, G. A. Gruley, Charles M. Lane, Irving F. Hoyt, Mark Solomon, Max L. Holtz, J. M. Reddington, J. S. Hamilton, D. S. Findlay, H. B. B. Griffith, E. A. Benedict, J. Elmer Booth, Charles Silcox, H. R. Lewis, L. Sunderlin, Oscar Spiehler, W. R. Spears, James Fee, John C. Fee, J. George Schieber, William C. Kohlmetz, W. T. Walker, Egbert F. Ashley, Osborne Ashley, J. N. Levi, Henry P. Neun, Louis J. Neun, E. L. Hammond, Joseph Rice, Leo August.

Table D—Fred H. Lewis, Rudolph Stein, Joseph P. Fess, Edward Loeb, M. J. Iselhard, Charles F. Mertz, H. R. Howard, Barrie L. Howard, Henry J. Moore, A. S. Osborne, S. C. Williams, William E. More, A. Greenberg, Morris M. Meyer, J. M. Charlton, E. S. Osborne, John G. Ellis, Maurice M. Garson, Moses Garson, Tobey Meyer, Henry W. Kimmel, Dana C. Neel, William J. Wegman, Fred J. Wegman, J. O'Brien, William H. Williamson, William A. Williamson, William P. Showers, Arnold Behn, Avery B. Davis, F. W. Bickford, George W. Colburn, James Johnston, W. R. Peters, W. R. Peters, Arthur J. Parry, E. J. Dwyer, Henry R. Kirk, Joseph Hemple, A. E. Reed, J. P. McMahon, J. Frank Dade, F. P. Van

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

THE TIMES
Produces results for advertisers because it has a verified home circulation.

DECEMBER 29, 1904

THE EVENING TIMES

THE TIMES
Is the only afternoon paper in Rochester that verifies its circulation claims.

THE WEATHER { Snow flurries tonight. Friday, light snow and warmer.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1904. FIRST EDITION

THE TIMES GUARANTEES TO ADVERTISERS A VERIFIED HOME CIRCULATION IN ROCHESTER AND VICINITY TOWNS GREATER BY ONE-THIRD THAN EITHER OF IT AFTERNOON COMPETITORS

THREE PERSONS CREMATED IN A FIRE AT CONESUS LAKE!

JAPANESE ARMY TAKES AN IMPORTANT FORT

Besieging Army Captures Fort Erlungshan After a Desperate Battle With Russians. Fort Is Regarded in Naval and Military Circles As One of the Highest Importance.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister to Great Britain, received a telegram from Tokio today announcing that the Port Arthur besieging army captured, on Wednesday night, Fort Erlungshan. The capture of the fort is regarded in naval and military circles here as of the highest importance, and will materially hasten the fall of the fortress.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE CAPTURE OF THE HILL

The Port Arthur besieging army reports having left the center army at 10 a. m. Wednesday. They blew up the parapet in front of Erlungshan fort, then, occupying the parapet by assault, they constructed defensive works under cover of heavy guns and field guns, despite the fire of the enemy. After the placing in position of heavy guns the army proceeded to the George fort, when the enemy was eventually dislodged after a stout resistance, when the fort fell into our hands at 7:30 in the evening.

The Japanese casualties in the capture of the height are estimated at 1,000 killed and wounded.

GENERAL CONDITION OF TROOPS IS IMPROVED

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 29.—A dispatch from a correspondent of a newspaper who is with General Kuropatkin states that the General told him in a recent interview that he had personally examined into the details regarding the condition of the Russians at every position.

General Kuropatkin declared that he was more than content with the state of affairs as the percentage of the sick was below that in time of peace. This was due to the pure air, a mild winter and the absence of barracks, which always has an ill effect upon the health of the troops.

RUSSIANS AT TOULON TO GET SHIPS BUILT

NICE, Dec. 29.—It is stated that the purpose of the visit of three Russian officials who have arrived at Toulon is to try to arrange for the immediate construction of several warships. They have offered to pay highly, it is said, for excessive speed in the completion of the vessels.

POLITICAL POT BOILS

Race for Senatorship Between Messrs. Black and Depew Grows Warmer Every Day.

GOVERNOR ODELL IS SILENT

Has Not Yet Announced His Preference But Will Do So Within a Few Days.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Secret conferences which were held at the Republican Club yesterday between Governor Odell, ex-Governor Frank S. Black and the supporters of the latter's candidacy for United States Senator as successor to Chauncey M. Depew, were believed to portend a long-expected announcement from Governor Odell.

As a result of his protracted talks yesterday, the Governor was expected to pronounce himself in some fashion, either for Mr. Depew or Mr. Black, or to make a declaration that he would take no part in the senatorial contest. Up to a late hour the conferences were still in progress. The Governor declined to see other than political callers.

Another Conference Today

There will be another conference today. Although yesterday's conference lasted many hours apparently no decision had been reached when time came for adjournment. A final decision is looked for today.

None of the men who took part in the conference would say what form the discussion took. The Governor did not tell the supporters of Mr. Black what he had made up his mind to do. The only statement he would make for publication was that he had nothing to say about the senatorship.

"I may make a statement today," he said, "but I shall not promise positively. I think that everybody will be satisfied when the question is decided."

The series of talks began in the morning and continued without interruption practically all day.

Mr. Aldridge There

Early in the afternoon former Governor Black and a few of his friends, including George W. Aldridge of Rochester, Secretary of the State Railroad Commission, and Senator Edgar T. Brackett of Saratoga, met at the Manhattan Hotel. Later they were all said to be closeted with Governor Odell at the Republican Club.

Others who were said to be in conference at the latter place were: W. L. Ward of Westchester, Judge Julius M. Mayer, State Senator Malby and Louis F. Payn.

During the afternoon Mr. Black was asked if there was any truth in the report that Governor Odell had told him he could not support him for Senator.

"You will have to ask the Governor about that," replied Mr. Black.

"Sounding Party Sentiment"

From a source close to Mr. Depew it was ascertained that Mr. Depew was unaware of the purport of the Odell-Black conferences and that the Senator did not know what to expect as an outcome of them. The Depew men supposed Governor Odell was "sounding party sentiment," and that when he found out what it was he would get into line with it.

What transpired at the talk between Governor Odell and former Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff on Tuesday was kept secret.

Senator Platt was not in town yesterday, having gone to Highland Falls, N. Y., to remain until tomorrow.

M'MILLAN HOMESTEAD IS DESTROYED AND THREE OF FAMILY BURNED TO DEATH

Flames Discovered Shortly After 4 O'Clock This Morning by a Servant, Who, With Miss Luna McMillan, Were the Only Ones to Escape. Burned Residence the Home of One of Livingston's Oldest and Wealthiest Families.

LIVONIA, Dec. 29.—The most disastrous fire that ever occurred in Livingston County destroyed the McMillan farmhouse at the head of Conesus Lake at 4 o'clock this morning, and three members of the McMillan family were burned to death. The dead are:

FRANK M'MILLAN, aged 76.
MISS LOTTIE M'MILLAN, aged 68.
CHARLES M'MILLAN, nephew of Frank McMillan, aged 49.

One sister, Miss Luna McMillan, aged 65, and a servant, Miss Mary Borman, aged 35, of Rochester, escaped in their night clothes and are now at a neighbor's house suffering from severe shock and exposure.

Discovered By a Servant.

The fire was discovered by the servant, Miss Borman, shortly after 4 o'clock. She had been awakened by the smell of smoke and going into the cellar discovered flames issuing from the woodwork around the furnace.

She made her way upstairs as rapidly as possible and tried to arouse the sleeping inmates, but the only one she succeeded in getting out of the house was Miss Luna McMillan. Both women hurried to a neighbor's house and gave the alarm, but it was too late to save either the other inmates or the residence.

The house was situated in a sparsely settled community and before enough men could be gathered at the scene to do anything to check the flames, the house was in ashes. The three inmates who were burned to death knew nothing of the fire until the flames had crept into the upper story and into their sleeping rooms.

Burned House a Landmark.

The McMillan homestead was one of the oldest and best known residences in Livingston County. It was a story and one-half frame structure and was located at the head of Conesus Lake, on the east side. The farm consists of between 600 and 700 acres and the McMillan family is among the wealthiest in this county.

Frank McMillan, who was regarded as the head of the family, is estimated to have been worth between $300,000 and $400,000.

The only surviving relative of the McMillans, aside from his sister, Miss Luna, who escaped from the burning house, is a brother of Frank, Major James McMillan of Georgetown, D. C.

The buildings on the farm were totally destroyed and the monetary loss will be in the neighborhood of $15,000. The furnishings of the residence were of the most expensive kind and there were many intiquities and rare paintings destroyed.

Search will be made in the ruins to recover the bodies, but it is believed that the unfortunate inmates were burned to ashes.

"I NEED THE MONEY"

Wrote Charley Burke to His Employers, Before Leaving With the Funds.

GLOOM AT BAKER THEATER

Young Candy Agent, His Wife and the Week's Receipts Have Disappeared.

"I am sorry that I have to do this," apologized Charley Burke, in a letter to his employers Tuesday, "but I need the money." Then he quit the Baker Theater, taking with him $70. The police are looking for him with a warrant charging grand larceny.

Until Monday night Burke, who is about 22 years old, was the "boss candy butcher" at the theater. He sold chocolates, salted peanuts and other sweetmeats calculated to add to the enjoyment of melodrama. Garbed in a neat fitting gray uniform coat he passed through the aisles during intermissions and disposed of considerable goods. The Theatrical Supply Company of Buffalo, which controls the candy privilege at the theater, employed him. Burke came to Rochester about a month ago, bringing with him a demure looking young woman who guarded the sweetmeat case at the main entrance and smiled upon patrons.

Several Bills Unpaid

From Saturday to Monday there were no banks open so that Burke could put the money he had beyond temptation. The roll of bills proved too much for him to withstand, and he made up his mind to decamp. The demure young woman went with him.

Tuesday he sent his keys and bank book to the theater. Their receipt there caused an investigation, which was followed by the sending of a telegram to the Lyceum Theater, Buffalo, notifying Burke's employers of his disappearance. One of the firm came to town yesterday and continued the inquiry. He learned that the young man had left town without the formality of paying for his lodgings. There are also numerous other items of a trifling nature, which in the aggregate amount to a considerable sum, charged against him at various places. It was also learned that the demure young woman was for a time in one of the local hospitals. The bill for her attendance there is still unpaid, according to the theater employes.

The manager of the Buffalo concern, after satisfying himself that Burke had really left town, applied for a warrant for his arrest.

WIDESPREAD REVOLUTIONARY OUTBREAKS ON RUSSIAN FRONT

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—Reports received here from the Russian frontier state that widespread revolutionary outbreaks have occurred. Railways have been destroyed, bridges damaged and the telegraph lines cut. Bomb outrages are also reported from various towns. In the revolt at Kielce, Poland, many persons were killed and wounded and the same condition of affairs is reported from Kourk, where factories were demolished by the rioters.

AMBASSADOR CHOATE WILL NOT RETIRE UNTIL SPRING

AMBASSADOR CHOATE

LONDON, Dec. 29.—While numerous semi-official statements have been published here that Ambassador Choate is about to retire from diplomatic life, it can be stated that Mr. Choate has not sent his resignation or any communication on the subject to President Roosevelt or the State Department, nor has he received any inquiry either from the President or Secretary Hay concerning his future plans.

It can be safely asserted, however, that it is Mr. Choate's intention to tender his resignation soon after the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

"Six years is a long slice out of the life of a man of my age," said Mr. Choate recently to friends here, "and while I have enjoyed the life and the people I have met in England, I have determined to go home and devote the remainder of my time to looking after my own affairs."

ANXIETY FELT FOR SAFETY OF BIG SOUND PASSENGER STEAMER

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—Great anxiety is felt here today for the big Sound steamer, Puritan, bound from Fall River to New York, which was reported early today at anchor off Stonington with a broken wheel in a heavy sea with the wind blowing 40 miles an hour. The information as to the peril of the steamer came through the wireless telegraphy station at Point Judith. The message said that the freight steamer Boston, of the same line, had been signalled and had gone to the assistance of the big passenger boat.

It was said that a rod in the wheel of the Puritan broke, preventing her from continuing her trip. The accident occurred between 1 and 2 o'clock. By long distance telephone it was learned from Point Judith this morning that at 7:30 o'clock the Puritan was still at anchor where the accident occurred. So far as could be told, the vessel was not aground. The wind, it was said, had moderated to 20 miles an hour. The big boat had just passed through the rough waters off Point Judith and was off Watch Hill when the break to the wheel occurred. There was a good complement of passengers aboard.

The steamer Puritan is one of the biggest sidewheelers in the world and is second in size in the Fall River fleet.

INSTALLATION AT VALLEY LODGE

C. C. Gifford Begins His Fiftieth Term as Secretary. George W. Cooper Is Master.

Acting Deputy Grand Master John B. Mussan installed the following officers of Valley Lodge, 109, F. and A. M., at Masonic Temple last night: Worshipful Master, George W. Cooper; Senior Warden, Frank H. Mosher; Junior Warden, John McKee; Treasurer, Maurice Leyden; Secretary, C. C. Gifford; Senior Deacon, Fred H. Beeh, Jr.; Junior Deacon, Arthur D. Rees; Senior Master of Ceremonies, Goldsmith B. Tuttle; Senior Steward, Fay L. Gates; Junior Steward, Alfred C. Gunkle; Tiler, Matthew J. Steel. The double quartette of the lodge sang.

Clinton C. Gibbard was installed as Secretary for the 50th time. Matthew J. Steele has been tiler a quarter of a century.

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—The students here have sent a demand for an impartial inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the riots that have occurred recently in this city.

STOCK MARKET

(Special to George B. Dresser.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Town Topics says: Speculative sentiment is more confident and the indications are for another strong market and some further advance today. The encouraging reports regarding activity present and prospective in iron and steel trades, the more favorable railroad returns and the publication yesterday of a final report of the Agricultural Department giving the farm value of principal crops, will stimulate confidence in the general situation. Appreciation regarding possible legislation affecting railroads is gradually disappearing and it is now believed that this agitation will have results beneficial to both the railroads and the shippers. The increase in the Pennsylvania Company dividend strengthens the belief that later on an increase will be made in the dividend rate on B. & O. and Norfolk. The banking interests appear to be in control of situation and with time money offered freely at 3½ per cent and with stocks concentrated in strong hands the remainder of the week promises to be characterized by strength and higher prices. Wheat is nervous but traders appear to favor some recovery in price. Cotton situation bearish and notwithstanding present low level some further decline is regarded as possible.

T. A. M'INTYRE & CO.

STOCK QUOTATIONS

(Special to Geo. B. Dresser.)

	Today's Open'g 10 o'clock	High	Low	Close Yesterday
Am. Locom. Com.	35⅝	36¼	34	35¼
Amer. Loco. Pfd..	104	103¾	103	104
Amalga'd Copper	70⅛	69⅝	67	70
Am. Sugar Ref Co	143⅞	143⅝	142¼	143½
Amer S. & R. Co.	82	82	81½	82
Am. Car Foundry	35½	35½	34¾	35½
A. T. & S. F...	87⅛	87½	86⅞	87⅜
Atchison Top. Pfd	101½	102	101½	101½
Baltimore & Ohio	102½	102	101½	102½
Brooklyn . . .	62	61½	61½	61⅝
Canadian Pacific	133½	132½	132	133
Chesapeake . .	49	48¼	488	48½
Chicago Gt West'n	22⅛	22⅝	22⅜	22⅝
Chic. Mil & StPaul	172⅝	172½	171½	172½
C. C. C. & St L..	....	91⅞	91⅝	91⅝
Colorado F. & I.	49½	48	45⅞	48½
Consolida'd Gas Co.	203½	203½	101	202½
Consolida'd Tobac.	....	74	74	75
Del&HudsonCanal	186	187⅜	184½	186⅜
Erie Com. . . .	38⅛	37⅜	37½	37⅝
Erie 1st. Pfd. . .	75⅜	75½	74⅜	75½
IllinoisCentral	156⅜	155⅜	155	156⅛
Louis & Nash. .	141½	141	140	141
Met. St. Ry. .	121½	121½	120½	121
Manhattan Elev'd	165	165½	163⅝	164⅜
Mexican Central .	21⅛	21	20½	21⅜
Missouri Pacific .	107⅝	107⅜	106⅜	107⅜
N. Y. Cen. & Hud	144½	145⅜	144½	102⅝
N Y. Ont. & West.	41½	41⅜	40½	41½
Norfolk & Western	79½	79⅜	79	79⅜
Pac. Mail St. Co..	44	....	....	....
Pennsylvania R R	138½	138½	137⅞	138½
Peoples Gas Co.	107⅜	107½	107	107⅜
Readinglst. . . .	....	91½	91	91
Reading	80	79⅜	78⅜	78
Rock Island Com.	37	37½	36⅞	36⅞

SMITH PROBABLY WILL STAND TRIAL

Justice Nash Hands Down Decision Denying Attorney McKay's Motion for Leave to Inspect Minutes of Grand Jury.

It is now practically certain that Ervin N. Smith, under indictment for murder, second degree, charging him with the killing of "Birdie" Hart of Webster, last July, will have to stand trial.

Justice Nash in Supreme Court this morning handed down a decision denying the motion of Attorney Clarence McKay, for Smith, for permission to inspect the Grand Jury minutes preliminary to the making of a motion to quash the indictment.

When Mr. McKay made his motion for leave to inspect the minutes, Justice Nash said that he would have the minutes transcribed to enable him to read them.

The minutes made two volumes and Justice Nash, after reading them through, denied Mr. McKay's motion.

Justice Nash's decision, it is believed, means that the motion to quash the indictment, which Mr. McKay will make, will not contain any new points and will, therefore, be denied.

CAPTAIN REFUSES TO GIVE UP HIS SHIP

Commander and Crew of British Steamer Drumelzier Stick to Their Posts in Hope That They Will Be Able to Save Her.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Dec. 29.—At 9 o'clock this morning the steamer Drumelzier is resting more quietly in the outer bar, three-quarters of a mile off Fire Island Point. The Captain and crew are still on board and can be seen scurrying about the ice-clad decks, over which the seas are still washing.

The tug which was seen alongside last night has fastened a heavy hawser to the Drumelzier, which is reported to have steam up, and may remove the Captain and crew should the former's obstinacy which prevented him abandoning the vessel on Monday morning moderate sufficiently to cause him to leave the vessel.

Another tug is now seen coming out of the west and will assist the one already lying close by.

The surf continues too high to permit the launching of the life boats. It is impossible to learn the extent of damage to the vessel, but it is believed she is in bad condition and no attempt to float her can be made before the sea subsides sufficiently to permit the lightening of the cargo. This, however, can not be accepted until more favorable weather follows and lighters arrive from the city.

The crew on board last night suffered extreme hardships by the water-filled cabin and intense cold. The great south bay is filled with floating ice and the greatest difficulty is sustained in securing news from the scene of the wreck. It being accessible only by telephone relays over the 30-mile stretch of beach to the mainland. Last night $100 could not induce bay men to cross the treacherous ten miles extent of bay to visit the beach and reporters are strung along the south side of the island in a desperate but futile attempt to reach Fire Island. Cable communication is broken to that point which still further destroys news facilities.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

JAPANESE ARMY TAKES AN IMPORTANT FORT

Besieging Army Captures Fort Erlungshan After a Desperate Battle With Russians. Fort Is Regarded in Naval and Military Circles As One of the Highest Importance.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister to Great Britain, received a telegram from Tokio today announcing that the Port Arthur besieging army captured, on Wednesday night, Fort Erlungshan. The capture of the fort is regarded in naval and military circles here as of the highest importance, and will materially hasten the fall of the fortress.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE CAPTURE OF THE HILL

The Port Arthur besieging army reports having left the center army at 10 a. m. Wednesday. They blew up the parapet in front of Erlungshan fort, then, occupying the parapet by assault, they constructed defensive works under cover of heavy guns and field guns, despite the fire of the enemy. After the placing in position of heavy guns the army proceeded to the George fort, when the enemy was eventually dislodged after a stout resistance, when the fort fell into our hands at 7:30 in the evening.

The Japanese casualties in the capture of the height are estimated at 1,000 killed and wounded.

GENERAL CONDITION OF TROOPS IS IMPROVED

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 29.—A dispatch from a correspondent of a newspaper who is with General Kuropatkin states that the General told him in a recent interview that he had personally examined into the details regarding the condition of the Russians at every position.

General Kuropatkin declared that he was more than content with the state of affairs as the percentage of the sick was below that in time of peace. This was due to the pure air, a mild winter and the absence of barracks, which always has an ill effect upon the health of the troops.

RUSSIANS AT TOULON TO GET SHIPS BUILT

NICE, Dec. 29.—It is stated that the purpose of the visit of three Russian officials who have arrived at Toulon is to try to arrange for the immediate construction of several warships. They have offered to pay highly, it is said, for excessive speed in the completion of the vessels.

"I NEED THE MONEY"

Wrote Charley Burke to His Employers, Before Leaving With the Funds.

GLOOM AT BAKER THEATER

Young Candy Agent, His Wife and the Week's Receipts Have Disappeared.

"I am sorry that I have to do this," apologized Charley Burke, in a letter to his employers Tuesday, "but I need the money." Then he quit the Baker Theater, taking with him $70. The police are looking for him with a warrant charging grand larceny.

Until Monday night Burke, who is about 22 years old, was the "boss candy butcher" at the theater. He sold chocolates, salted peanuts and other sweetmeats calculated to add to the enjoyment of melodrama. Garbed in a neat fitting gray uniform coat he passed through the aisles during intermissions and disposed of considerable goods. The Theatrical Supply Company of Buffalo, which controls the candy privilege at the theater, employed him. Burke came to Rochester about a month ago, bringing with him a demure looking young woman who guarded the sweetmeat case at the main entrance and smiled upon patrons.

Several Bills Unpaid

From Saturday to Monday there were no banks open so that Burke could put the money he had beyond temptation. The roll of bills proved too much for him to withstand, and he made up his mind to decamp. The demure young woman went with him.

Tuesday he sent his keys and bank book to the theater. Their receipt there caused an investigation, which was followed by the sending of a telegram to the Lyceum Theater, Buffalo, notifying Burke's employers of his disappearance. One of the firm came to town yesterday and continued the inquiry. He learned that the young man had left town without the formality of paying for his lodgings. There are also numerous other items of a trifling nature, which in the aggregate amount to a considerable sum, charged against him at various places. It was also learned that the demure young woman was for a time in one of the local hospitals. The bill for her attendance there is still unpaid, according to the theater employes.

The manager of the Buffalo concern, after satisfying himself that Burke had really left town, applied for a warrant for his arrest.

WIDESPREAD REVOLUTIONARY OUTBREAKS ON RUSSIAN FRONT

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—Reports received here from the Russian frontier state that widespread revolutionary outbreaks have occurred. Railways have been destroyed, bridges damaged and the telegraph lines cut. Bomb outrages are also reported from various towns. In the revolt at Kielce, Poland, many persons were killed and wounded and the same condition of affairs is reported from Kourk, where factories were demolished by the rioters. The Czar was burned in effigy in scores of towns.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

BAKER Bath Cabinets for every house in city. Sufferers please notify S. Baker, 40 Pearl Street, City. 1229

AMBASSADOR CHOATE WILL NOT RETIRE UNTIL SPRING

AMBASSADOR CHOATE

LONDON, Dec. 29.—While numerous semi-official statements have been published here that Ambassador Choate is about to retire from diplomatic life, it can be stated that Mr. Choate has not sent his resignation or any communication on the subject to President Roosevelt or the State Department, nor has he received any inquiry either from the President or Secretary Hay concerning his future plans.

It can be safely asserted, however, that it is Mr. Choate's intention to tender his resignation soon after the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

"Six years is a long slice out of the life of a man of my age," said Mr. Choate recently to friends here, "and while I have enjoyed the life and the people I have met in England, I have determined to go home and devote the remainder of my time to looking after my own affairs."

ANXIETY FELT FOR SAFETY OF BIG SOUND PASSENGER STEAMER

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—Great anxiety is felt here today for the big Sound steamer, Puritan, bound from Fall River to New York, which was reported early today at anchor off Stonington with a broken wheel in a heavy sea with the wind blowing 40 miles an hour. The information as to the peril of the steamer came through the wireless telegraphy station at Point Judith. The message said that the freight steamer Boston, of the same line, had been signalled and had gone to the assistance of the big passenger boat.

It was said that a rod in the wheel of the Puritan broke, preventing her from continuing her trip. The accident occurred between 1 and 2 o'clock. By long distance telephone it was learned from Point Judith this morning that at 7:30 o'clock the Puritan was still at anchor where the accident occurred. So far as could be told, the vessel was not aground. The wind, it was said, had moderated to 30 miles an hour. The big boat had just passed through the rough waters off Point Judith and was off Watch Hill when the break to the wheel occurred. There was a good complement of passengers aboard.

The steamer Puritan is one of the biggest sidewheelers in the world and is second in size in the Fall River fleet.

FIERCE CONFLAGRATION IN ZURICH

ZURICH, Dec. 29.—A conflagration in which 40 factories were destroyed occurred here last night. The loss is very heavy.

POLITICAL POT BOILS

Race for Senatorship Between Messrs. Black and Depew Grows Warmer Every Day.

GOVERNOR ODELL IS SILENT

Has Not Yet Announced His Preference But Will Do So Within a Few Days.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Secret conferences which were held at the Republican Club yesterday between Governor Odell, ex-Governor Frank S. Black and the supporters of the latter's candidacy for United States Senator as successor to Chauncey M. Depew, were believed to portend a long-expected announcement from Governor Odell.

As a result of his protracted talks yesterday, the Governor was expected to pronounce himself in some fashion, either for Mr. Depew or Mr. Black, or to make a declaration that he would take no part in the senatorial contest. Up to a late hour the conferences were still in progress. The Governor declined to see other than political callers.

Another Conference Today

There will be another conference today. Although yesterday's conference lasted many hours apparently no decision had been reached when time came for adjournment. A final decision is looked for today.

None of the men who took part in the conference would say what form the discussion took. The Governor did not tell the supporters of Mr. Black what he had made up his mind to do. The only statement he would make for publication was that he had nothing to say about the senatorship.

"I may make a statement today," he said, "but I shall not promise positively. I think that everybody will be satisfied when the question is decided."

The series of talks began in the morning and continued without interruption practically all day.

Mr. Aldridge There

Early in the afternoon former Governor Black and a few of his friends, including George W. Aldridge of Rochester, Secretary of the State Railroad Commission, and Senator Edgar T. Brackett of Saratoga, met at the Manhattan Hotel. Later they were all said to be closeted with Governor Odell at the Republican Club.

Others who were said to be in conference at the latter place were: W. L. Ward of Westchester, Judge Julius M. Mayer, State Senator Malby and Louis F. Payn.

During the afternoon Mr. Black was asked if there was any truth in the report that Governor Odell had told him he could not support him for Senator.

"You will have to ask the Governor about that," replied Mr. Black.

"Sounding Party Sentiment"

From a source close to Mr. Depew it was ascertained that Mr. Depew was unaware of the purport of the Odell-Black conferences and that the Senator did not know what to expect as an outcome of them. The Depew men supposed Governor Odell was "sounding party sentiment," and that when he found out what it was he would get into line with it.

What transpired at the talk between Governor Odell and former Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff on Tuesday was kept secret.

Senator Platt was not in town yesterday, having gone to Highland Falls, N. Y., to remain until tomorrow.

INSTALLATION AT VALLEY LODGE

C. C. Gifford Begins His Fiftieth Term as Secretary. George W. Cooper Is Master.

Acting Deputy Grand Master John B. Mussan installed the following officers of Valley Lodge, 166, F. and A. M., at Masonic Temple last night: Worshipful Master, George W. Cooper; Senior Warden, Frank H. Mosher; Junior Warden, John McKee; Treasurer, Maurice Leyden; Secretary, C. C. Gifford; Senior Deacon, Fred H. Bech, Jr.; Junior Deacon, Arthur D. Rees; Senior Master of Ceremonies, Goldsmith B. Puttle; Senior Steward, Fay L. Gates; Junior Steward, Alfred C. Gunkle; Tiler, Matthew J. Steel. The double quartette of the lodge sang.

Clinton C. Gibbard was installed as Secretary for the 50th time. Matthew J. Steele has been tiler a quarter of a century.

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—The students here have sent a demand for an impartial inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the riots that have occurred recently in this city.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 29.—All departments of work on Russia's 25 state railroads, including signalling, have been opened to women, of whom 22,000 are already employed. This move on the part of the government is caused by the drafting of all available men for war purposes.

For the best and quickest results place your want ads in THE TIMES.

M'MILLAN HOMESTEAD IS DESTROYED AND THREE OF FAMILY BURNED TO DEATH

Flames Discovered Shortly After 4 O'Clock This Morning by a Servant, Who, With Miss Luna McMillan, Were the Only Ones to Escape. Burned Residence the Home of One of Livingston's Oldest and Wealthiest Families.

LIVONIA, Dec. 29.—The most disastrous fire that ever occurred in Livingston County destroyed the McMillan farmhouse at the head of Conesus Lake at 4 o'clock this morning, and three members of the McMillan family were burned to death. The dead are:

FRANK M'MILLAN, aged 76.

MISS LOTTIE M'MILLAN, aged 68.

CHARLES M'MILLAN, nephew of Frank McMillan, aged 49.

One sister, Miss Luna McMillan, aged 65, and a servant, Miss Mary Borman, aged 35, of Rochester, escaped in their night clothes and are now at a neighbor's house suffering from severe shock and exposure.

Discovered By a Servant.

The fire was discovered by the servant, Miss Borman, shortly after 4 o'clock. She had been awakened by the smell of smoke and going into the cellar discovered flames issuing from the woodwork around the furnace.

She made her way upstairs as rapidly as possible and tried to arouse the sleeping inmates, but the only one she succeeded in getting out of the house was Miss Luna McMillan. Both women hurried to a neighbor's house and gave the alarm, but it was too late to save either the other inmates or the residence.

The house was situated in a sparsely settled community and before enough men could be gathered at the scene to do anything to check the flames, the house was in ashes. The three inmates who were burned to death knew nothing of the fire until the flames had crept into the upper story and into their sleeping rooms.

Burned House a Landmark.

The McMillan homestead was one of the oldest and best known residences in Livingston County. It was a story and one-half frame structure and was located at the head of Conesus Lake, on the east side. The farm consists of between 600 and 700 acres and the McMillan family is among the wealthiest in this county.

Frank McMillan, who was regarded as the head of the family, is estimated to have been worth between $300,000 and $400,000.

The only surviving relative of the McMillans, aside from his sister, Miss Luna, who escaped from the burning house, is a brother of Frank, Major James McMillan of Georgetown, D. C.

The buildings on the farm were totally destroyed and the monetary loss will be in the neighborhood of $15,000. The furnishings of the residence were of the most expensive kind and there were many intiquities and rare paintings destroyed.

Search will be made in the ruins to recover the bodies, but it is believed that the unfortunate inmates were burned to ashes.

STOCK MARKET

(Special to George B. Dresser.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Town Topics says: Speculative sentiment is more confident and the indications are for another strong market and some further advance today. The encouraging reports regarding activity present and prospective in iron and steel trades, the more favorable railroad returns and the publication yesterday of a final report of the Agricultural Department giving the farm value of principal crops, will stimulate confidence in the general situation. Apprehension regarding possible legislation affecting railroads is gradually disappearing and it is now believed that this agitation will have results beneficial to both the railroads and the shippers. The increase in the Pennsylvania Company dividend strengthens the belief that later on an increase will be made in the dividend rate on B. & O. and Norfolk. The banking interests appear to be in control of situation and with time money offered freely at 3½ per cent and with stocks concentrated in strong hands, the remainder of the week promises to be characterized by strength and higher prices. Wheat is nervous but traders appear to favor some recovery in price. Cotton situation bearish and notwithstanding present low level some further decline is regarded as possible.

T. A. M'INTYRE & CO.

STOCK QUOTATIONS

(Special to Geo. B. Dresser.)

	Today's Opn'g 10 o'clock	High	Low	Close Yesterday
Am. Locom. Com.	35⅜	36¼	34	35⅛
Amer. Loco. Pfd..	104	103⅜	103	104
Amalga'd Copper	70¼	69⅜	67	70
Am. Sugar Ref Co	143⅜	143⅜	142½	143½
Amer S. & R. Co.	82	82	81½	82
Am. Car Foundry	35⅛	35½	34⅜	35½
A. T. & S. F...	87⅛	87½	86⅜	87⅜
Atchison Top. Pfd	101½	102	101½	101½
Baltimore & Ohio	102½	102	101½	102½
Brooklyn . . .	62	61½	61¼	61⅜
Canadian Pacific	133½	132⅜	132	133
Chesapeake . .	49	48⅛	48⅜	48⅛
Chicago Gt West'n	22⅜	22⅜	22⅛	22⅜
Chic. Mil & StPaul	172⅜	172½	171½	172⅛
C. C. C. & St L..	....	91⅜	91⅜	91⅜
Colorado F. & I.	49½	48	45⅜	48⅛
Consolida'd Gas Co.	203½	203½	101	202½
Consolida'd Tobac.	....	74	74	75
Del & Hudson Canal	186	187⅜	184½	186⅜
Erie Com. . . .	38⅛	37⅜	37½	37⅝
Erie 1st. Pfd. . .	75⅜	76¼	74⅜	75⅛
Illinois Central	156⅛	155⅜	155	155⅛
Louis & Nash. .	141½	141	140	141
Met. St. Ry. .	121⅛	121½	120½	121
Manhattan Elev'd	165	165⅞	163½	164⅜
Mexican Central .	21½	21	20⅜	21⅜
Missouri Pacific .	107⅜	107⅞	106⅜	107⅜
N. Y. Cen. & Hud	144½	145⅜	144¼	102½
N. Y. Ont. & West.	41½	41⅜	40⅜	41⅛
Norfolk & Western	79⅜	79½	79	79½
Pac. Mail St. Co..	44	....	....	....
Pennsylvania R. R	138⅛	138⅜	137⅞	138⅛
Peoples Gas Co.	107⅜	107¼	107	107⅜
Reading 1st. . .	....	91½	91	91
Reading	80	79⅜	78⅜	78
Rock Island Com.	37	37⅛	36⅞	36⅞
Rock Island Pfd. .	84⅜	85⅜	84½	84⅞
Southern Pacific .	65⅛	65½	64½	65⅜
St. L. Southw'n Pfd	58½	58⅝	58¼	58⅜
Southern Railway.	35⅜	35⅜	34⅜	35½
Southern Ry. Pfd.	97	97	97	97½
Tenn. Coal & Iron	73⅛	72½	71⅜	73⅛
U.S. Steel	31	30½	29⅞	30⅜

SMITH PROBABLY WILL STAND TRIAL

Justice Nash Hands Down Decision Denying Attorney McKay's Motion for Leave to Inspect Minutes of Grand Jury.

It is now practically certain that Ervin N. Smith, under indictment for murder, second degree, charging him with the killing of "Birdie" Hart of Webster, last July, will have to stand trial.

Justice Nash in Supreme Court this morning handed down a decision denying the motion of Attorney Clarence McKay, for Smith, for permission to inspect the Grand Jury minutes preliminary to the making of a motion to quash the indictment.

When Mr. McKay made his motion for leave to inspect the minutes, Justice Nash said that he would have the minutes transcribed to enable him to read them.

The minutes made two volumes and Justice Nash, after reading them through, denied Mr. McKay's motion.

Justice Nash's decision, it is believed, means that the motion to quash the indictment, which Mr. McKay will make, will not contain any new points and will, therefore, be denied.

CAPTAIN REFUSES TO GIVE UP HIS SHIP

Commander and Crew of British Steamer Drumelzier Stick to Their Posts in Hope That They Will Be Able to Save Her.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Dec. 29.—At 9 o'clock this morning the steamer Drumelzier is resting more quietly in the outer bar, three-quarters of a mile off Fire Island Point. The Captain and crew are still on board and can be seen scurrying about the ice-clad decks, over which the seas are still washing.

The tug which was seen alongside last night has fastened a heavy hawser to the Drumelzier, which is reported to have steam up, and may remove the Captain and crew should the former's obstinacy which prevented him abandoning the vessel on Monday morning moderate sufficiently to cause him to leave the vessel.

Another tug is now seen coming out of the west and will assist the one already lying close by.

The surf continues too high to permit the launching of the life boats. It is impossible to learn the extent of damage to the vessel, but it is believed she is in bad condition and no attempt to float her can be made before the sea subsides sufficiently to permit the lightening of the cargo. This, however, can not be accepted until more favorable weather follows and lighters arrive from the city.

The crew on board last night suffered extreme hardships by the water-filled cabin and intense cold. The great south bay is filled with floating ice and the greatest difficulty is sustained in securing news from the scene of the wreck, it being accessible only by telephone relays over the 30-mile stretch of beach to the mainland. Last night $100 could not induce bay men to cross the treacherous ten miles extent of bay to visit the beach and reporters are strung along the south side of the island in a desperate but futile attempt to reach Fire Island. Cable communication is broken to that point which still further destroys news facilities.

FRANCE TO SEND BATTLESHIPS

PARIS, Dec. 29.—It is rumored in naval circles that two battleships will be sent to Morocco immediately to assist in suppressing the threatened disorders there.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

SIBLEY, LINDSAY & CURR CO.

Remnants of Dress Goods.

A third taken from the yard price is making a quick distribution of these short lengths of dress goods.

Remnants contain from a yard to four and one-half yards. You will find enough for a separate waist or a child's dress in most of them. Light and dark colors; plain fabrics and fancy weavings.

A New Dress for the Miss.

Prettiest of dresses for the school miss seek to save mothers the bother of dressmaking.

Inexpensive in the first place these stock clearance days bring still lower prices. A glimpse at one of the Main street windows will tell you more than we do here.

Gretchen dresses of brown, red, and blue flannel, made with round yoke and bertha trimmed with white braid, gathered skirt, suit lined throughout, reduced from $2.19 to $1.49.

Buster Brown dresses of blue, red and brown cashmere, made with round yoke, box plaited front and back, trimmed with stitched straps, white braid and buttons, patent leather belt, bishop sleeves with cuffs, lined throughout, reduced from $2.75 to $2.25.

Russian dresses of shepherd check suitings--blouse with standing collar, side strap, and cuffs and belt of red flannel trimmed with fagotting braid, full kilted skirt, lined throughout, reduced from $2.75 to $2.25.

Peter Thompson dresses of blue and brown serge—blouse with embroidered emblems on shield, collar and sleeve, gored skirt, lined throughout, reduced from $4.95 to $3.50.

Felt Slippers 59c

There were several hundred pairs of those warm felt slippers for women which we made 59c yesterday, so there are plenty left for a day or two's selling.

Here's the biggest bargain in this sort of footwear we have ever known. They are all dollar numbers.

There is black, dark green and red, some are plain and some fur trimmed.

SIBLEY, LINDSAY & CURR CO.

Great Removal Sale
Of Our Large
SHOE STOCK
Commencing January 5th.
It Will Pay You to Wait.
GOULD, LEE & LUCE,

NEW YORK CENTRAL EXCURSION
Monday, January 2nd

Syracuse and Return -	$1.65
Buffalo and Return - -	$1.25
Niagara Falls and Return -	$1.25

Good going on morning trains and returning on afternoon and evening trains.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of Monroe County, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank E. Byam, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe and State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, Isabella Page, executrix, at her place for the transaction of business as such executrix, at 17 and 18 Elwood building, in the City of Rochester, N. Y., on or before the first day of January, 1905.
Dated June 22, 1904.
ISABELLA PAGE,
Executrix.
Peck & Whitbeck, Attorneys for Executrix, 17 and 18 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y. 6-27-law-4m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, no-

LADIES' RELIEF
Compound Cotton Root Tablets will positively remove the most obstinate female irregularities, obstructions, etc., from any cause, in twelve hours. Price $1. Guaranteed. A powerful harmless regulator for women. Will not injure the most delicate person. Failure impossible. Specialist of 40 years' experience. Ladies' Relief particulars and testimonials free. Lady attendant. Office or mail. Hours 12 to 6 P. M. Saturdays 12 to 9 P. M. Address Dr. Darwin Co. 103 Beckley Bldg., opposite Lyceum Theater, Rochester, N. Y.

LADIES. DR. LaFRANCO'S COMPOUND.
Safe, speedy regulator; 25 cents. Druggists or mail Booklet free. DR. LaFRANCO, Philadelphia, Pa.

CHIEF J. P. CLEARY RESIGNS FROM THE POLICE DEPARTMENT

Mayor Cutler Pays Glowing Tribute to Honorable Record of the Retiring Official in the Civil War, in Police Work and the G. A. R.

SCHOEFFEL WILL ACT AS CHIEF UNTIL A SUCCESSOR IS NAMED

Continued ill health caused Chief of Police Cleary to send a formal resignation to Commissioner of Public Safety Gilman yesterday. The date fixed upon by the chief is March 1, 1905. He has been in command of the department nearly 20 years, and reached the position after passing in succession from the grade of patrolman to that of roundsman, lieutenant, captain and chief. His formal letter to Commissioner of Public Safety Gilman follows:

I have the honor to state that after 28 years continuous service in the Police Department of the City of Rochester, having been appointed as a patrolman on the first day of December, 1876, and having been promoted from patrolman to the different grades of day roundsman at large, detective, lieutenant, captain and chief of police up to the present time, that I have always endeavored to the best of my ability and judgment to serve the citizens of Rochester and my superior officers faithfully in the discharge of my very strenuous duties, especially as chief of the department.

COL. JOSEPH P. CLEARY.

My duties as chief of police for the last four years have been very strenuous, there being no limit to my hours of duty. In that time I have personally investigated three murder cases, assisted by the District Attorney, where I was obliged to be up night and day in my office for six or seven weeks at a time in each case, thus impairing my health very materially, and in which condition I find myself at the present time, and of which my physicians are fully aware, and I feel it my duty to sever my connection with the police for the benefit of my health and to give my superior officers an opportunity to secure the services of some younger man who is physically able to attend to the duties of the office of chief of police. It will take me some time to straighten up the affairs of my office and turn it over to my successor.

I take this occasion to extend my sincere thanks to His Honor, Mayor James G. Cutler, and to Hon. George A. Gilman, Commissioner of Public Safety, for many acts of kindness and courtesies extended to me during my time as chief of police under their administrations.

Under these conditions, I most respectfully request to be retired from the department, and my name placed on the pension roll of the Police Department of the City of Rochester, to take effect the first day of March, 1905.

The letter was immediately transmitted to Mayor Cutler, who, in accepting the resignation, paid a high tribute to the retiring official. In conclusion the Mayor expressed his personal regard for "one who, as a police officer, a soldier and a past department commander of the Grand Army, has so long occupied an important place in the hearts of his comrades and many friends."

Chief Cleary's Life

Joseph P. Cleary was born in Limerick, Ireland, March 11, 1842, and came to Rochester at the age of 12 years. He joined his brother, N. F. Cleary. In 1858 the brothers engaged in the nursery business near Chicago. At the outbreak of the Civil War, Joseph P. Cleary returned to Rochester and enlisted in Company E, Thirteenth New York Infantry.

The Old Thirteenth Regiment, in command of General Quinby, saw heavy fighting at Blackborn's Ford, First Bull Run, the siege of Yorktown, Hanover Court House, Mechanicsville and Gaines Mill.

At Gaines Mill, Cleary was captured by the rebels, while he was assisting a wounded comrade, and was sent to Libby Prison, where he spent three weeks, afterward being transferred to Belle Isle. On Aug. 6, 1862, he was exchanged and conveyed under a flag of truce to Harrison's Landing, then the base of supplies of General McClellan.

At the Battle of Bull Run

At the second battle of Bull Run, Corporal Cleary was severely wounded. He was taken through the lines to Washington and removed to the hospital on Meriden Hill. Later he was transferred to Annapolis, where he remained to Dec. 2, when he rejoined his regiment before Fredericksburg. On the morning of the battle of Chancellorsville the term of enlistment of the Thirteenth expired and the regiment was sent to Elmira and mustered out of service.

June 29, 1863, the Fourteenth New York Heavy Artillery was organized, with some of the members of the Old Thirteenth as a nucleus. Cleary went out as sergeant major of the regiment. Fotomac under General Grant. It was engaged in the battle of the Wilderness, during which Lieutenant Cleary was acting adjutant of the regiment.

The Fourteenth was engaged in the battles of Spottsylvania Court House, North Anna River, Cold Harbor, Petersburg and Weldon Railroad. At Weldon Railroad Lieutenant Cleary was placed in command of the 179th Regiment, whose officers were on the sick list. At Spottsylvania Court House he was promoted to be first lieutenant and at Pegram's farm, to captain, in command of a battalion. The battalion moved back to the front of Petersburg for the winter, and Captain Cleary was placed in command of six mortar batteries in front of Fort Hell. In the following March he was wounded in the head by an exploding shell. In the same month he was promoted to major and his command was attached to Tidball's Artillery Brigade, which went as far as Berksville Station, supporting the center of Grant's army.

After Lee's surrender the Fourteenth marched to Washington and thence to Carrytown, making headquarters at Fort Reno. Major Cleary had been breveted Lieutenant Colonel by Governor Fenton of New York in May, 1865, and was brevetted Major of United States Volunteers by act of Congress for gallant conduct at Ford Stedman, March 25, 1865. He was afterward made full Major of his regiment.

His Police Record

Major Cleary was appointed night patrolman Dec. 1, 1876, by Commissioners Moore, Hebard and Howes. He served until 1878, when he was given a day beat, and in the following year was appointed a roundsman. He was made a detective in 1879, and a lieutenant in 1881. In 1883 he was promoted to captain and two years later became superintendent of police. The title of this office was later changed to chief of police. He earned his promotion step by step, and as chief brought into play the knowledge and experience gained in the lower positions. He has accomplished much for the Police Department, fact recognized by Commissioner Gilman and the Mayor.

Chief Cleary is connected with various veteran organizations, having first joined O'Rorke Post, G. A. R., in 1878. He afterwards became the first commander of E. G. Marshall Post, 26. He was re-elected commander three times. He represented his post as delegate to several department and national encampments.

In 1899 Chief Cleary was elected department commander of the Grand Army of the State of New York, by a unanimous vote, a compliment not paid to any other department commander. He has always taken an active interest in Grand Army work, and generous in his donations for the relief of destitute veterans. He has a very large number of friends, limited by no means to Rochester, or even to New York State.

Chief Cleary will retire on half pay, $1,200 per year. Deputy Chief Schoeffel will act as chief until Chief Cleary's successor is appointed. The position is noncompetitive by consent of the State Civil Service Commission.

Civil Service Examinations

The State Civil Service Commission will hold examinations Jan. 21, 1905, for examiner in drawing, Education Department, and for inspector, State Board of Charities. Application must be made for these examinations on or before Jan. 16.

HEINZ
57 Varieties

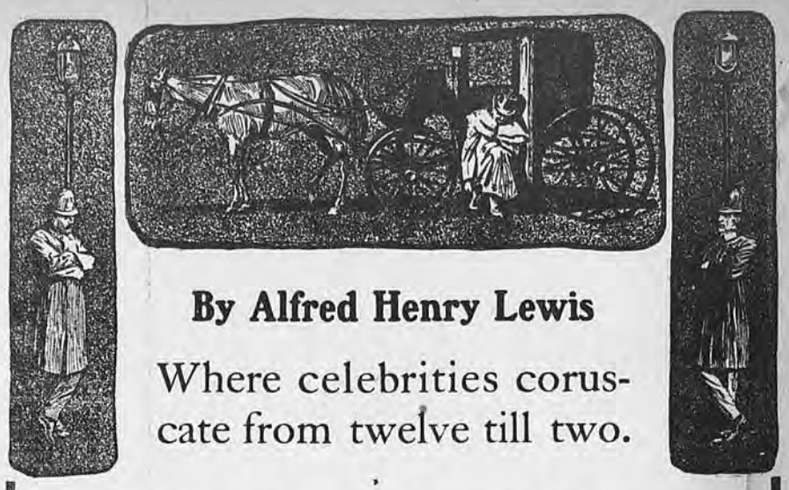
Pure Vinegar

Many have the impression, and quite reasonably so in these days of harmful food adulteration, that wholesome vinegar is no longer obtainable. The idea is a mistaken one.

HEINZ
PURE MALT VINEGAR

made from malted barley by fermentation and natural acidulation, possesses in the highest degree purity, healthfulness and delicacy of flavor.

The Lights of Long Acre



By Alfred Henry Lewis

Where celebrities coruscate from twelve till two.

In the General Manager's Car
By J. E. CALKINS
A comedy of dots and dashes that changed the Inspection Special to the Honeymoon Limited.

Clean Streets and Clean Government
By David Buffum
Making the White Wings good enough to fly.

Use and Abuse of Inside Information
By Edwin Lefèvre
An article about how Wall Street plays the game with loaded dice.

Old-Time Hosts and Hospitality
By Rebecca Harding Davis
Something about the ghost of New Years past.

OUT TO-DAY
Sold Out To-Morrow
Buy your copy to-night of this week's number of
THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
An illustrated weekly magazine, selling more than 730,000 copies a week. 5 cents the copy, or sent to any address every week for four months on receipt of only 50 cents.
THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

CAPTAIN ELECTED FOR 25TH TIME

Hancock Volunteers Chose Officers for 1905 at the Annual Meeting Last Night.

For the 25th consecutive term, Captain Millard T. Morse was last night elected President of the Hancock Volunteers, one of Rochester's oldest and most famous political organizations. Captain Morse is the only President the club has had since its formation. He is also Commander of the crack drill corps of the club.

The full list of officers elected at last night's annual meeting is as follows: President, Millard T. Morse; First Vice President, Dr. George Tegg; Second Vice President, A. T. Aab; Secretary, George E. Peart; Treasurer, John Knarr, Sr.; Conductor, A. H. Webster; Sergeant-at-arms, J. E. Thorn; Trustees, John Cawthra, Charles Link and George F. Nunnold; Inspectors of Election, Alfred Hall, George Seibert and Henry Ford.

The members of the club were entertained at luncheon by the officers after the election. Music was furnished by Link's Band.

Sent to S. I. S.

SPENCERPORT, Dec. 29.—Benjamin H. Place, 15 years old, was sent to the State Industrial School, Tuesday, by Judge O. P. Colby. Place was accused of taking a watch from Mrs. Charles Hall of this place, on Sunday morning. Sunday afternoon Officer Frank J. Russ found Place with the watch. Place was convicted of burglary last July and sentenced to the State Industrial School but it being his first offense, he was placed on parole.

A GUARANTEED CURE FOR PILES
Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Druggists will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure in 6 to 14

COUNTY COURT, MONROE COUNTY.—Mary A. Van Voorhis vs. George A. Gillette, Henry J. Stevenson, et al.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to a judgment of foreclosure and sale entered in this action in Monroe County Clerk's office on the 24th day of March, 1904, I, the undersigned Referee appointed in and by said judgment for that purpose, will sell at public auction, on the 7th day of January, 1905, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the front vestibule of the Court House in the City of Rochester, New York, the following described premises:

"All that tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Brighton, County of Monroe, and State of New York, being the same land described in and conveyed by a certain deed executed by Quincy Van Voorhis and wife to John J. Hevero'i, dated March 29th, 1892, and acknowledged April 4th, 1892, and recorded in the Clerk's office of said county in Liber 502 of Deeds at page 418; and also described in a certain other deed made by Arthur E. Sutherland, Referee, to Quincy Van Voorhis and dated January 30th, 1894, and recorded in said Clerk's office in Liber 537 of Deeds at page 28, and consisting of about forty acres; and being the farm owned and occupied by James Duck in his lifetime, and sometimes called the Duck farm.

Dated, Rochester, N. Y., November 25th, 1904.

GEORGE B. DRAPER,
Referee.
11-26-law-6w

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Hannah H. Alleyn, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Rochester Trust & Safe Deposit Company, at its place for the transaction of business as such executor, at its office on Exchange Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 19th day of May, 1905.
Dated Nov. 18th, 1904.
ROCHESTER TRUST & SAFE DEPOSIT CO.,
Executor of Hannah H. Alleyn, Deceased.
Baker & Remington, Attorneys for the Executor, 829, 830 and 831 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y. 11-19-law-6m

NOTICE ... EDITORS—Pursuant to ... Hon. George A. Benton, ... County of Monroe, notice ... according to law to all ...

COUNTY COURT, MONROE COUNTY.—John C. A. Upton, Plaintiff, against Lydia Upton, individually, and as administratrix of the estate of Julia Foote, deceased, James Henry Clark, Edward Clark, Elizabeth Ann Wright, Laura Clark, Esther Downs, Henry Brownyard, Libbie Brownyard, his wife; Esther Cook, Margaret Mosher, Reuben Brownyard and Mary Brownyard, his wife; Charles Clark, Harriet Clark, his wife; Laurietta Wright, Edward Clark, J. D. Clark, Emma Clark, his wife; Emert Clark North, George Clark and Mary Clark, his wife, (the name Mary being fictitious, her given name being unknown); Henry Whitbeck, Mary Whitbeck, his wife; Dora Davis, Ann Wright, Peter Whitbeck, Andrew Whitbeck, Melinda Cook, Lizzie Antes, and all of the heirs at law and devisees of Dora Whitbeck, deceased, whose names are unknown.

To the above-named defendants:

You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action and to serve a copy of your answer on the plaintiff's attorney within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service; and, in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Dated this 14th day of November, 1904.

H. G. PIERCE,
Plaintiff's Attorney.
Office and Postoffice address, 309 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y.

To Edward Clark, James Henry Clark, Elizabeth Ann Wright, Margaret Mosher, Reuben Brownyard, Mary Brownyard, Charles Clark, Harriet Clark, J. D. Clark, Emma Clark, Emert Clark North, George Clark, Mary Clark, Henry Whitbeck, Mary Whitbeck, Dora Davis, Ann Wright, Peter Whitbeck, Andrew Whitbeck, Melinda Cook, Defendants:

The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication pursuant to an order of Hon. Arthur E. Sutherland, County Judge of Monroe County, New York, dated the 19th day of November, 1904, and filed with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of Monroe County, at Rochester, N. Y.

H. G. PIERCE,
Plaintiff's Attorney.
Office and Postoffice address, 309 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y.
11-23-law-6w-7t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

A New Dress for the Miss.

Prettiest of dresses for the school miss seek to save mothers the bother of dressmaking.

Inexpensive in the first place these stock clearance days bring still lower prices. A glimpse at one of the Main street windows will tell you more than we do here.

Gretchen dresses of brown, red, and blue flannel, made with round yoke and bertha trimmed with white braid, gathered skirt, suit lined throughout, reduced from $2.19 to $1.49.

Buster Brown dresses of blue, red and brown cashmere, made with round yoke, box plaited front and back, trimmed with stitched straps, white braid and buttons, patent leather belt, bishop sleeves with cuffs, lined throughout, reduced from $2.75 to $2.25.

Russian dresses of shepherd check suitings--blouse with standing collar, side strap, and cuffs and belt of red flannel trimmed with fagotting braid, full kilted skirt, lined throughout, reduced from $2.75 to $2.25.

Peter Thompson dresses of blue and brown serge—blouse with embroidered emblems on shield, collar and sleeve, gored skirt, lined throughout, reduced from $4.95 to $3.50.

Felt Slippers 59c

There were several hundred pairs of those warm felt slippers for women which we made 59c yesterday, so there are plenty left for a day or two's selling.

Here's the biggest bargain in this sort of footwear we have ever known. They are all dollar numbers.

There is black, dark green and red, some are plain and some fur trimmed.

SIBLEY, LINDSAY & CURR CO.

Great Removal Sale
Of Our Large
SHOE STOCK
Commencing January 5th.
It Will Pay You to Wait.
GOULD, LEE & LUCE,

NEW YORK CENTRAL EXCURSION
Monday, January 2nd

Syracuse and Return	-	$1.65
Buffalo and Return	- -	$1.25
Niagara Falls and Return	-	$1.25

Good going on morning trains and returning on afternoon and evening trains.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of Monroe County, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank E. Bynam, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe and State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, Isabella Page, executrix, at her place for the transaction of business as such executrix, at 17 and 18 Elwood building, in the City of Rochester, N. Y., on or before the first day of January, 1905.

Dated June 22, 1904.

ISABELLA PAGE,
Executrix.

Peck & Whitbeck, Attorneys for Executrix, 17 and 18 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y. 6-27-1a-w-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Phebe E. S. Blossom, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned administrators, at their place for the transaction of business as such administrators, at 837 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of January, 1905.

Dated, May, 1904.

BESSIE O. SHAUGHNESSY,
FLORENCE ALLEN,
Administrators.

C. M. Allen, Attorney for Administrators. 6-15-law-6m

LADIES' RELIEF
Compound Cotton Root Tablets will positively remove the most obstinate female irregularities, obstructions, etc., from any cause, in twelve hours. Price $1. Guaranteed. A powerful harmless regulator for women. Will not injure the most delicate person. Failure impossible. Specialist of 40 years' experience. Ladies' Relief particulars and testimonials free. Lady attendant. Office or mail. Hours 12 to 5 P. M. Saturdays, 12 to 9 P. M. Address Dr. Darwin Co. 100 Beckley Bldg., opposite Lyceum Theater, Rochester, N. Y.

LADIES. DR. LaFRANCO'S COMPOUND.
Safe, speedy regulator; 25 cents. Druggists or mail. Booklet free. DR. LaFRANCO CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup
Cures a cough or cold at once, Conquers croup, bronchitis, grippe and consumption. 25c.

Always Remember the Full Name
Laxative Bromo Quinine
Cures a Cold in One Day, Grip in 2 Days
E. W. Grove on every box. 25c

SCHOEFFEL WILL ACT AS CHIEF UNTIL A SUCCESSOR IS NAMED

Continued ill health caused Chief of Police Cleary to send a formal resignation to Commissioner of Public Safety Gilman yesterday. The date fixed upon by the chief is March 1, 1905. He has been in command of the department nearly 20 years, and reached the position after passing in succession from the grade of patrolman to that of roundsman, lieutenant, captain and chief. His formal letter to Commissioner of Public Safety Gilman follows:

I have the honor to state that after 38 years continuous service in the Police Department of the City of Rochester, having been appointed as a patrolman on the first day of December, 1866, and having been promoted from patrolman to the different grades of day roundsman at large, detective, lieutenant, captain and chief of police up to the present time, that I have always endeavored to the best of my ability and judgment to serve the citizens of Rochester and my superior officers faithfully in the discharge of my very strenuous duties, especially as chief of the department.

COL. JOSEPH P. CLEARY.

My duties as chief of police for the last four years have been very strenuous, there being no limit to my hours of duty. In that time I have personally investigated three murder cases assisted by the District Attorney, where I was obliged to be up night and day in my office for six or seven weeks at a time in each case, thus impairing my health very materially, and in which condition I find myself at the present time, and of which my physicians are fully aware, and I feel it my duty to sever my connection with the police for the benefit of my health and to give my superior officers an opportunity to secure the services of some younger man who is physically able to attend to the duties of the office of chief of police. It will take me some time to straighten up the affairs of my office and turn it over to my successor.

I take this occasion to extend my sincere thanks to His Honor, Mayor James G. Cutler, and to Hon. George A. Gilman, Commissioner of Public Safety, for many acts of kindness and courtesies extended to me during my time as chief of police under their administrations.

Under these conditions, I most respectfully request to be retired from the department, and my name placed on the pension roll of the Police Department of the City of Rochester, to take effect the first day of March, 1905.

The letter was immediately transmitted to Mayor Cutler, who, in accepting the resignation, paid a high tribute to the retiring official. In conclusion the Mayor expressed his personal regard for "one who, as a police officer, a soldier and a past department commander of the Grand Army, has so long occupied an important place in the hearts of his comrades and many friends."

Chief Cleary's Life

Joseph P. Cleary was born in Limerick, Ireland, March 11, 1842, and came to Rochester at the age of 12 years. He joined his brother, N. F. Cleary. In 1858 the brothers engaged in the nursery business near Chicago. At the outbreak of the Civil War, Joseph P. Cleary returned to Rochester and enlisted in Company E, Thirteenth New York Infantry.

The Old Thirteenth Regiment, in command of General Quinby, saw heavy fighting at Blackburn's Ford, First Bull Run, the siege of Yorktown, Hanover Court House, Mechanicsville and Gaines Mill.

At Gaines Mill, Cleary was captured by the rebels, while he was assisting a wounded comrade, and was sent to Libby Prison, where he spent three weeks, afterward being transferred to Belle Isle. On Aug. 6, 1862, he was exchanged and conveyed under a flag of truce to Harrison's Landing, then the base of supplies of General McClellan.

At the Battle of Bull Run

At the second battle of Bull Run, Corporal Cleary was severely wounded. He was taken through the lines to Washington and removed to the hospital on Meriden Hill. Later he was transferred to Annapolis, where he remained to Dec. 2, when he rejoined his regiment before Fredericksburg. On the morning of the battle of Chancellorsville the term of enlistment of the Thirteenth expired and the regiment was sent to Elmira and mustered out of service.

June 29, 1863, the Fourteenth New York Heavy Artillery was organized, with some of the members of the Old Thirteenth as a nucleus. Cleary went out as sergeant major of the regiment and was promoted to be second lieutenant of Company B in October of the same year. During the winter of 1863 four companies were stationed at Sandy Hook, and during this time Lieutenant Cleary acted as post adjutant and post quartermaster. The company went to Washington the following spring, and was attached to the Third Brigade, First Division, Ninth Army Corps, under Burnside. The company marched to Warrentown Junction and joined the Army of the Potomac under General Grant. It was engaged in the battle of the Wilderness, during which Lieutenant Cleary was acting adjutant of the regiment.

The Fourteenth was engaged in the battles of Spottsylvania Court House, North Anna River, Cold Harbor, Petersburg and Weldon Railroad. At Weldon Railroad Lieutenant Cleary was placed in command of the 179th Regiment, whose officers were on the sick list. At Spottsylvania Court House he was promoted to be first lieutenant and at Pegram's farm, to captain, in command of a battalion. The battalion moved back to the front of Petersburg for the winter, and Captain Cleary was placed in command of six mortar batteries in front of Fort Hell. In the following March he was wounded in the head by an exploding shell. In the same month he was promoted to major and his command was attached to Tidball's Artillery Brigade, which went as far as Berksville Station, supporting the center of Grant's army.

After Lee's surrender the Fourteenth marched to Washington and thence to Tarrytown, making headquarters at Fort Reno. Major Cleary had been brevetted Lieutenant Colonel by Governor Fenton of New York in May, 1865, and was brevetted Major of United States Volunteers by act of Congress for gallant conduct at Ford Stedman, March 25, 1865. He was afterward made full Major of his regiment.

His Police Record

Major Cleary was appointed night patrolman Dec. 1, 1866, by Commissioners Moore, Hebard and Howe. He served until 1872, when he was given a day beat, and the following year was appointed a roundsman. He was made a detective in 1878 and a lieutenant in 1881. In 1883 he was promoted to captain and two years later became superintendent of police. The title of this office was later changed to chief of police. He earned his promotion up by step, and as chief brought into play the knowledge and experience gained in the lower positions. He has accomplished much for the Police Department, and was recognized by Commissioner Gilman and the Mayor.

Chief Cleary is connected with various veteran organizations, having first joined O'Rorke Post, G. A. R., in 1868. He afterwards became the first commander of E. G. Marshall Post, 357. He was re-elected commander three times. He represented this post as delegate to several department and national encampments.

In 1893 Chief Cleary was elected department commander of the Grand Army of the State of New York, by a unanimous vote, a compliment not paid to any other department commander. He has always taken an active interest in Grand Army work, and generous in his donations for the relief of destitute veterans. He has a very large number of friends, limited by no means to Rochester, or even to New York State.

Chief Cleary will retire on half pay, $1,200 per year. Deputy Chief Schoeffel will act as chief until Chief Cleary's successor is appointed. The position is noncompetitive by consent of the State Civil Service Commission.

Civil Service Examinations

The State Civil Service Commission will hold examinations Jan. 21, 1905, for examiner in drawing, Education Department, and for inspector, State Board of Charities. Application must be made for these examinations on or before Jan. 16.

HEINZ 57 Varieties

Pure Vinegar

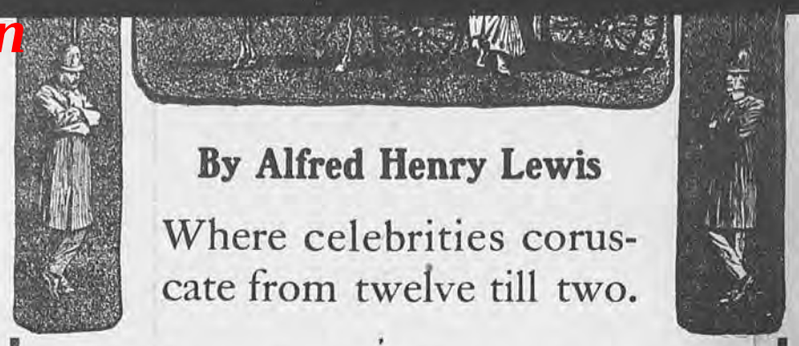
Many have the impression, and quite reasonably so in these days of harmful food adulteration, that wholesome vinegar is no longer obtainable. The idea is a mistaken one.

HEINZ
PURE MALT VINEGAR

made from malted barley by fermentation and natural acidulation, possesses in the highest degree purity, healthfulness and delicacy of flavor.

In sealed Glass bottles at your Grocers.

H. J. HEINZ CO., Pittsburg, Pa.



By Alfred Henry Lewis

Where celebrities coruscate from twelve till two.

In the General Manager's Car
By J. E. CALKINS
A comedy of dots and dashes that changed the Inspection Special to the Honeymoon Limited.

Clean Streets and Clean Government
By David Buffum
Making the White Wings good enough to fly.

Use and Abuse of Inside Information
By Edwin Lefèvre
An article about how Wall Street plays the game with loaded dice.

Old-Time Hosts and Hospitality
By Rebecca Harding Davis
Something about the ghost of New Years past.

OUT TO-DAY
Sold Out To-Morrow
Buy your copy to-night of this week's number of
THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
An illustrated weekly magazine, selling more than 730,000 copies a week. 5 cents the copy, or sent to any address every week for four months on receipt of only 50 cents.
THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

CAPTAIN ELECTED FOR 25TH TIME

Hancock Volunteers Chose Officers for 1905 at the Annual Meeting Last Night.

For the 25th consecutive term, Captain Millard T. Morse was last night elected President of the Hancock Volunteers, one of Rochester's oldest and most famous political organizations. Captain Morse is the only President the club has had since its formation. He is also Commander of the crack drill corps of the club.

The full list of officers elected at last night's annual meeting is as follows: President, Millard T. Morse; First Vice President, Dr. George Tegg; Second Vice President, A. T. Aab; Secretary, George E. Pearl; Treasurer, John Knarr, Sr.; Conductor, A. H. Webster; Sergeant-at-arms, J. E. Thorn; Trustees, John Cawthra, Charles Link and George F. Nunold; Inspectors of Election, Alfred Hall, George Seibert and Henry Ford.

The members of the club were entertained at luncheon by the officers after the election. Music was furnished by Link's Band.

Sent to S. I. S.

SPENCERPORT, Dec. 29.—Benjamin H. Place, 15 years old, was sent to the State Industrial School, Tuesday, by Judge O. P. Colby. Place was accused of taking a watch from Mrs. Charles Hall of this place, on Sunday morning. Sunday afternoon Officer Frank J. Russ found Place with the watch. Place was convicted of burglary last July and sentenced to the State Industrial School but it being his first offense, he was placed on parole.

A GUARANTEED CURE FOR PILES
Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Druggists will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

COUNTY COURT, MONROE COUNTY—Mary A. Van Voorhis vs. George A. Gillette, Henry J. Stevenson, et al.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to a judgment of foreclosure and sale entered in this action in Monroe County Clerk's office on the 24th day of March, 1904, I, the undersigned Referee appointed in and by said judgment for that purpose, will sell at public auction, on the 7th day of January, 1905, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the front vestibule of the Court House in the City of Rochester, New York, the following described premises:

"All that tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Brighton, County of Monroe, and State of New York, being the same land described in and conveyed by a certain deed executed by Quincy Van Voorhis and wife to John J. Heverott, dated March 29th, 1892, and acknowledged April 4th, 1892, and recorded in the Clerk's office of said county in Liber 502 of Deeds at page 418; and also described in a certain other deed made by Arthur E. Sutherland, Referee, to Quincy Van Voorhis and dated January 30th, 1894, and recorded in said Clerk's office in Liber 537 of Deeds at page 58, and consisting of about forty acres; and being the farm owned and occupied by James Dack in his lifetime, and sometimes called the Dack farm."

Dated, Rochester, N. Y., November 25th, 1904.

GEORGE B. DRAPER,
Referee.
11-26-1a-w-6w

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Hannah H. Alleyn, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Rochester Trust & Safe Deposit Company, at its place for the transaction of business as such executor, at its office on Exchange Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 19th day of May, 1905.

Dated Nov. 18th, 1904.

ROCHESTER TRUST & SAFE DEPOSIT CO.,
Executor of Hannah H. Alleyn, Deceased.

Baker & Remington, Attorneys for the Executor, 829, 830 and 831 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y. 11-19-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against William Donnelly, late of the Town of Wheatland, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned administrator, Mary Donnelly, at her place for the transaction of business as such administrator, at 678 Powers Building, Rochester, Monroe County, N. Y., on or before the 15th day of March, 1905.

Dated Sept. 3, 1904.

MARY DONNELLY,
Administrator.

Smith & Hebbard, Attorneys for Administrator, 677-678-679 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y. 4-6-1aw-6mo

COUNTY COURT, MONROE COUNTY—John A. Upton, Plaintiff, against Lydia Upton, individually, and as administratrix of the estate of Julia Foote, deceased, James Henry Clark, Edward Clark, Elizabeth Ann Wright, Laura Clark, Esther Downs, Henry Brownyard, Libbie Brownyard, his wife; Esther Cook, Margaret Mosher, Reuben Brownyard and Mary Brownyard, his wife; Charles Clark, Harriet Clark, his wife; Lauretta Wight, Edward Clark, J. D. Clark, Emma Clark, his wife; Emert Clark North, George Clark and Mary Clark, his wife, (the name Mary being fictitious, her given name being unknown); Henry Whitbeck, Mary Whitbeck, his wife; Dora Davis, Ann Wright, Peter Whitbeck, Andrew Whitbeck, Melinda Cook, Lizzie Antes, and all of the heirs at law and devisees of Dora Whitbeck, deceased, whose names are unknown.

To the above-named defendants:

You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action and to serve a copy of your answer on the plaintiff's attorney within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service; and, in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Dated this 14th day of November, 1904.

H. G. PIERCE,
Office and Postoffice address, 309 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y.

To Edward Clark, James Henry Clark, Elizabeth Ann Wright, Margaret Mosher, Reuben Brownyard, Mary Brownyard, Charles Clark, Harriet Clark, J. D. Clark, Emma Clark, Emert Clark North, George Clark, Mary Clark, Henry Whitbeck, Mary Whitbeck, Dora Davis, Ann Wright, Peter Whitbeck, Andrew Whitbeck, Melinda Cook, Defendants:

The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication pursuant to an order of Hon. Arthur E. Sutherland, County Judge of Monroe County, New York, dated the 19th day of November, 1904, and filed with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of Monroe County, at Rochester, N. Y.

H. G. PIERCE,
Plaintiff's Attorney,
Office and Postoffice address, 309 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y.
11-23-1aw-6w-7t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Conrad Gleiser, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Chas. F. A. Young and Peter Gleiser, Executors, at their place for the transaction of business as such Executors at 417 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of April, 1905.

Dated September 23d, 1904.

CHAS. F. A. YOUNG,
PETER GLEISER,
Executors.

Isaac M. Brickner, Attorney for Executors, 417 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

THE NEWS OF WESTERN NEW YORK

COON HUNT WAS FATAL

Levant Chase, Aged 13 Years, Instantly Killed by Accidental Discharge of Shotgun.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES

BATAVIA, Dec. 29.—Levant Chase, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Chase, who live on the Byron-Bergen town line road, east of this village, by accident fatally shot himself on the H. W. Merriman farm, near his home, yesterday morning.

Frank Dibble, who works the Merriman farm, started for the woods on the place with a team for a load of wood, about 11 a. m., accompanied by Levant Chase and Mr. Merriman's son, Clark, who is about 13 years old. The two boys went to the woods to hunt.

They discovered a coon in the top of a tree and called Dibble to their assistance. The tree was chopped down, but lodged in the branches of another tree when about halfway over.

Young Chase seized his shotgun and started to climb over the severed tree trunk, apparently thinking the coon might jump from the limbs. He was on the trunk when the trigger struck one of the limbs, discharging the weapon.

The entire charge entered the boy's head, killing him instantly. Dibble and Clark Merriman placed the body in the wood wagon and took it to his home.

Coroner Snow of Batavia was summoned. Besides his parents, the boy leaves two brothers, Harry and Ray Chase.

TO TRY BREACH OF PROMISE CASE

Judge Lynn Will Preside at Pittsford Mock Trial Tomorrow Night. The Witnesses.

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

PITTSFORD, Dec. 29.—Frank Dehmler, plaintiff, vs. Miss Allie Louise Kenyon, defendant, both of this place, is the title of an action in a mock trial to be held tomorrow evening at the Town Hall. Hiram M. Rogers, a young attorney of Rochester and a recent graduate of the Pittsford High School, is attorney for the plaintiff, and Frank Coneybear, of Rochester, for the defendant. Hon. John D. Lynn will be the presiding judge.

The witnesses are: Orla Welch, Miss Beatrice Ginn, Miss Lillie Wiley, Lou Miller, Eugene Barker, William Cleveland, Miss Ollie Evans is court stenographer, and Charles Emmons court crier. A small admission will be charged, the proceeds to be given for the benefit of the King's Daughters.

WADSWORTH FARM VISITED BY FIRE OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.

GENESEO, Dec. 29.—J. W. Wadsworth yesterday morning lost 25 tons of baled hay and a fine barn on the Maple lot, west of the village, by fire. The barn was on part of the home farm of Major W. A. Wadsworth and was rented to J. W. Wadsworth. It is suspected that boys who skated on a pond near may have left a cigarette stub around the barn and that it smouldered over night, finally setting the barn afire. The loss is about $1,000.

Red Men in Annual Meeting

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES

FAIRPORT, Dec. 29.—The seventh annual ball of Ka-Na-Hoot Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men, was held last evening. Music was furnished by a ladies' orchestra from Rochester.

The tribe has elected the following officers: Sachem, John Bahler; Senior Sagamore, John Dickinson; Junior Sagamore, Henry Schmidt; Prophet, Richard Dillon; Chief of Records, Frank Hyde; Keeper of Wampum, Lawrence Welch; Collector of Wampum, George Carroll; Trustees, Fred Richburg and John McCarthy; Keeper of Faith, John Finnegan.

Off for Sunny Florida

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.

LYNDONVILLE, Dec. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. James Lake, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Mitchell, Mrs. Dr. Fraser and Mrs. E. C. Barrett started Tuesday night for St. Petersburg, Florida, where they will spend the winter.

THEIR PAST RECORD

No Stronger Evidence Can Be Had in Rochester.

Look well to their record. What they have done many times in years gone by is the best guarantee of future results. Anyone with a bad back; any reader suffering from urinary troubles, from any kidney ills, will find in the following evidence proof that relief and cure is near at hand:

Mrs. E. A. Babcock, of 19 Alexander St., says: "Some twenty years ago I had a bad spell of sickness. One of the arteries in my limbs burst and I lost almost a pail of blood. I was left very weak and kidney trouble set in in a severe form. Backache laid me up on more than one occasion. The action of the kidneys was irregular, the secretions being too frequent. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a box and used them carefully as directed. I never found anything that acted so quickly and brought such positive relief. The aching and pains disappeared

DR. DUNLOP ARRESTED ON FORGERY CHARGE

Mt. Morris Physician Alleged To Have Forged Name of Capitalist G. C. Branch to Checks Accepted by Local Merchants.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.)

MOUNT MORRIS, Dec. 29.—This village is scandalized over the behavior yesterday of Dr. S. R. Dunlop, the well known physician and surgeon who practiced in the village for the last two years. After borrowing $15 from Archibald Wasson, recently a candidate for Assembly on the Prohibition ticket, Dr. Dunlop boarded the Pennsylvania train at 8:45 a. m. for Rochester. It was but a short time later when numerous merchants were flying around town trying to find him.

Dr. Dunlop left not without reason, for a warrant was even then awaiting him, charging him with forgery, second degree, by passing a forged check for $15 on Justice Edward R. Creveling, a shoemaker of this village. He secured a warrant through Justice Charles Harding and placed it in the hands of Chief of Police Patrick O'Leary. Mr. Creveling had accepted a check from Dr. Dunlop, for $15, signed with the name of G. C. Branch, the well known capitalist of Mount Morris. Mr. Branch repudiated the check.

Mr. Branch learned yesterday that checks were out, bearing his name, unknown to him, and held by the following persons: William H. De Camp, druggist, check for $15; F. D. Harris, general store, $15; Nathan N. Nast, $15; John McMahon, proprietor American Hotel, $15; Mrs. Emma Dale, restaurant, $50.

Mrs. Dale has boarded the veteran doctor for a long time and within the last few days accepted two checks in payment for back board. One was for $20 and the other for $30. She turned the $20 check over to Grocer Alfred D. Donovan. Landlord McMahon says the doctor owes him $33 for board.

Chief of Police O'Leary telegraphed to Scotteville a description of the doctor, and the message was given the conductor. The latter went through his train and found a man he thought was Dunlop. Upon being asked if that was his name the man denied it. However, the same man left the train at the Genesee Junction.

Dunlop Arrested

Superintendent Hayden of Rochester was notified and sent a detective to meet the doctor. Detective McDonald drove out Genesee Street and was just in time to see a man leave a sleigh and board a car. McDonald gave chase and arrested Dunlop. He will be brought back to Mt. Morris this morning.

Dr. Dunlop came here two years ago from Tuscarora and worked up a good practice. He is 44 years old and has a wife and three children at Scranton, Pa. Dr. Dunlop served in the regular army and has medals for bravery on the field. He receives a pension of $1,100 per annum. He is said to have several wounds. He has diplomas from leading medical colleges. At one time he had a large practice in New York City.

MISSING ITALIAN IS BLAMED FOR SHOOTING

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.)

CANANDAIGUA, Dec. 29.—After an all-day session of the investigation by Coroner Warner, to get at the bottom of the Italian shooting affray which resulted in death for Guiseppe Sennecroppi, Dec. 22, but little was learned that will aid in prosecution of the guilty one, even if he ever be found.

Arthur Wilson, bartender for Boswell & Egan, told on the witness stand of six Italians and two Americans visiting the saloon and having loud words in a back room.

Frank Sennecroppi swore to being in the saloon with two American foremen employed at Mrs. Thompson's place, the two Suraci brothers, Mariafadi, Dominick Gallimi, Sennecroppi and one named Luigi. These are the principal characters in the case. Luigi is charged with firing the first shots in the quarrel which followed the departure from the saloon.

It was brought out that Luigi, who is missing, is little known in Canandaigua. His last name is not positively known, but the officials learn that one Luigi Nuratti has been in the village. Henry Griffin, another Boswell & Egan bartender, testified. The investigation will be resumed by Coroner Warner at 2 o'clock today.

BATH CITIZEN CELEBRATES SEVENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

BATH, Dec. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Abram Beekman last evening gave a dinner in honor of Mr. Beekman's 75th birthday. Mr. Beekman, who is one of the prominent residents of the village, is in excellent health. He has resided the greater part of his life in Bath and for over 50 continuous years has been in business here. He is owner of the Beekman sash and blind factory, affording employment to many men. A few relatives and friends were Mr. Beekman's guests last evening, and the event was a most pleasant one.

LYONS

LYONS, Dec. 29.—Mrs. George Milem and daughter are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jennings in South Lyons.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Young of Syracuse and Mr. Otto Webler of Schenectady are being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. William Webler.

Mr. Frank Wells of Holland Patent has been engaged to conduct the Alloway creamery next season.

Mrs. Gertrude Rose of Rochester is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Bockoven.

The Wayne County Mail Carriers' Association will meet in Newark Jan. 1.

Mrs. Julia Rogers has returned from Detroit.

Charles Deuchler of Chicago is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Deuchler.

Rev. E. M. Mills, D. D., will speak at the Methodist Church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Friend are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Luck of Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Streeter of Iowa are the guests of Mr. Streeter's parents on Broad Street.

Liberty Lodge Officers

COHOCTON, Dec. 29.—Liberty Lodge No. 510, F. and A. M., has elected the following officers for 1905: Master, E. S. Brown; Senior Warden, L. R. Partridge; Junior Warden, F. J. House; Treasurer, C. Oliver; Secretary, J. L. Waugh; trustee, three years, W. E. Waite. The following officers have been appointed by the Master-elect: Senior Deacon, W. D. Stanton; Junior Deacon, M. A. McDowell; Senior Master of Ceremonies, A. H. Wilcox; Junior Master of Ceremonies, D. Marsh; Marshal, E. A. Draper; Chaplain, C. Gray; Tyler, John Snyder. Officers will be installed Monday evening, January 9. The third degree will also be conferred.

FAIRPORT.

FAIRPORT, Dec. 29.—Charles Hammond of this village has purchased the Spring Brook Hotel at Egypt and will take possession next week.

William Collins, who lives on West Avenue, was arrested Tuesday morning by Officer P. A. Welch on the charge of non-support. He was taken before Justice of the Peace Henry A. Walker and the case was adjourned until Thursday at 4 o'clock.

The R. O. T. M. will hold its annual banquet and installation of officers in Brooks Hall Tuesday evening. W. D.

TELEPHONE ROMANCE ENDS IN A WEDDING

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

SODUS, Dec. 29.—The telephone figures prominently in the romance of Miss Edna M. Stockard and Ross E. Beach, who were united in marriage yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Stockard, of this place. Miss Stockard has been manager of the Empire State Telephone exchange at Sodus for the last year and Mr. Beach was the day operator at Wallington. Mr. and Mrs. Beach left for a wedding trip which will include New York, Philadelphia and Washington. They will live at Sodus upon returning.

PALMYRA

PALMYRA, Dec. 29.—The following will spend the holiday week as stated: Louis M. Chase, with his family in town; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bolt, M. D., of Buffalo, at Major McIntyre's, entertained by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Bush; Harry Williams of Buffalo and sister of Seneca Falls, with relatives; Miss Lulu Wilson, teacher at Monticello, N. Y., with Mr. and Mrs. Williamson; A. J. Hornsby of Schenectady and Miss Hornsby of Geneva, N. Y., at the homes of friends; Charles Parker, George Elton, Carl Weber and Mr. Sessions, from New York City, with their parents; Miss Grace Dunning, teaching in Greater New York, at home in Palmyra town; Miss Nellie Congdon, teaching at Sodus, is spending the week with her mother in Newark and Carl Boheim, from Syracuse, at home; John J. O'Brien of Port Gibson, with acquaintances; Charlie Drake of New York, Rob Van Duzer, wife and daughter of Newark, N. Y., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Williamson; Louis Ziegler of Rochester, with his parents.

B. H. Davis and wife are spending a few days with their daughter at the home of William T. Webster in Montclair, N. J.

DELLINGER OPERA HOUSE TO BE REOPENED SOON

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

BATAVIA, Dec. 29.—Edwin Houghton, proprietor of the Dellinger Opera House, has agreed with the village trustees to reopen his theater as soon as the necessary changes can be made to meet their requirements. The theater was closed soon after the Iroquois Theater disaster in Chicago and has been closed ever since. Mr. Houghton discussed the matter with the trustees at the regular meeting last evening.

RUSH

RUSH, Dec. 29.—Town Clerk William S. Wilson of East Rush has returned from a holiday visit with his mother, Mrs. John Wilson, and sister, Miss Martha H. Wilson, and brothers, Frank E. and Harry C. Wilson, of Brockport.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Glosser, from Rochester, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Rodenbush and little daughter, Martha, also from Rochester, spent Christmas with relatives in and around East Rush.

WHAT'S THE USE OF FOOD

unless it is turned into good red blood that rushes through the arteries and carries life and strength to every part of you? Many hearty eaters are thin, pale, languid and weak because they are in the clutches of nervous dyspepsia. With the friendly help of Vernal Iron Nerve Food Tablets you

WEDDINGS

Guthrie-Brooks

LE ROY, Dec. 29.—Miss Emma Brooks yesterday afternoon became the wife of Professor Joseph Edward Guthrie of Ames, Ia. The wedding service was performed at the Methodist Church by Rev. G. M. Harris of Rochester, formerly pastor of the Methodist Church in Le Roy. Only the immediate relatives and friends of the bride and groom were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie left for a Western trip and in a few days will go to Ames, Ia. Professor Guthrie is an instructor in the zoological department of the Iowa State College.

Robinson-Brown

CHURCHVILLE, Dec. 29.—Edna M. Brown and Alfred Robinson were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. E. Williams, of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The young people of the Methodist Church gave the bride a kitchen shower last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson left on an Eastern trip, and after January 15th will be at home on the Kendall farm at Churchville.

Bonk-Miller

WATERLOO, Dec. 29.—Spencer G. Peak and Miss Maud T. Miller were quietly united in marriage Tuesday at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emma Miller, in South Waterloo, Rev. J. Q. Adams performing the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families only.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonk will spend a week with relatives in the western part of this state, and will be at home after January 1, at the home of the bride's mother.

ST. MARY'S FAIR A BIG SUCCESS

Bemis Hall, Canandaigua, the Destination of Crowds to See Big Church Fair.

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

CANANDAIGUA, Dec. 29.—The following is a list of some of the principal committees, through whose enterprise and good management the big holiday fair of St. Mary's Church, now being held in Bemis Hall, has been made such a big success:

Entertainment—W. F. Predmore, Rev. J. J. Clark, Julia Widman, Miss Hyde, Ethel Stewart, Ray O'Brien, Bessie Dugan, Bessie Doyle, John Enright, M. W. Tuohey, Elizabeth Burke, John E. Doyle, Dr. P. M. Donovan, C. E. Stewart, Frank Burke, John Mary, Will O'Brien, Richard Rechford, J. C. Costello, Gertrude Tuohey, James Hughes, Mary Keefe, John Scantlin, Lulu Mens, Frank Welch.

Newspaper—Frank Caplise, Agnes Farrell, Mary O'Neil, Margie Quinn, Anna McKenna, Mollie Carroll, Nellie Martin, Mary Ryan, Grace O'Connor, Christina Hilrech, W. J. Donovan, Patrick Turner, J. H. S. Kennedy, W. Martin, Andrew Brady, Jr., Rev. J. J. Clark, Fred Haubner, William Howley, William Haubner, Joseph Monto, John Law, Thomas McCarthy, Ed. Devereaux, Milton O'Neil, Irving O'Neil, John Gleason.

Reception—Thomas E. Murphy, Edward McNamara, A. J. McIntyre, C. J. Brady, James Scanlan, J. A. Taylor, W. D. Powers, J. H. McCormack, J. E. Devereaux, J. S. Flanigan, M. F. Kerwin, P. J. Doyle, D. W. Berrigan, Mrs. J. R. McLaughlin, Mrs. John Flynn, Mrs. H. H. Pohl, Mrs. Thomas Nix, Mrs. T. P. Murray, Mrs. Floyd Hutchens, Mrs. Thomas H. O'Brien, Mrs. Patrick Gleason, Mrs. P. Quigley, Mrs. T. P. Coyle, Mrs. Charles Lemon, Mrs. Frank Flynn, Mrs. H. Van Vooren, Miss Emma Caplise, Miss Elizabeth Murray, Miss Agnes Harrigan, Miss Katherine Dugan.

HENRIETTA

HENRIETTA, Dec. 29.—Rev. S. Banks Nelson, pastor of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church of Rochester, officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Mary Landers at her late home, Tuesday afternoon. A quartette from Rochester sang.

Floyd S. Winslow of Cornell University is spending a week with his mother, Mrs. B. S. Winslow.

Mr. and Mrs. Galloway and daughter, Miss Ruth Galloway, and son, Clarence, of Harvard Street, Rochester, spent Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Stone's.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Holcombe entertained on Monday about a dozen relatives at their home on College Avenue.

The following are home for the holidays: Miss Bessie B. Mason, from Hilton; Howard Harding, from Rochester Mechanics Institute; B. Frank Clark, of the University of Buffalo; Miss Harriet Jones, of Toledo, O., and Miss C. Louis Jones, of Syracuse.

Rev. H. A. Hanaford of Lafayette, N. Y., is visiting his daughter, Mrs. F. P. Peasle, and family.

WEST WEBSTER

WEST WEBSTER, Dec. 29.—The Ideal Two-Step Club, composed of the following persons, held their first dancing party Tuesday evening: Roy Dewitt, J. Barth, F. Barth, R. Murphy, William Pitt, Charles Prime, Ed Shoemaker, J. Shoemaker, A. J. Smith, George Herman, John Herman, Arthur Herman.

Fred Spencer of Rochester spent Sunday with his brother, Tony Spencer, of this place.

F. J. Aldridge is home from Syracuse University.

William Mohr of Honeoye Falls is the guest of his uncle, William R. Bancroft.

Henry Copeland, who is attending Syracuse University, is home visiting his parents, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Copeland.

Jacob Drake is spending the holidays with friends at Canandaigua.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sanford and family of Charlotte and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodworth of Rochester were entertained here Monday by friends and relatives.

Funeral of Alfred Wadsworth

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

WARSAW, Dec. 29.—The funeral of the late Alfred Wadsworth was largely attended yesterday afternoon. Rev. George D. Miller of Rochester, assisted by John B. Smallwood, officiated. The Masonic fraternity attended in a body and conducted the services at the grave. Among the out-of-town relatives in attendance were Dr. and Mrs. Robert Wadsworth and Mr. and Mrs. William Kitchell of Rochester, and Mr. and Mrs. John Wadsworth of Brockport.

SODUS

SODUS, Dec. 29.—Josiah S. Buckley has sold his farm of 36 acres, between Sodus

One of Nature's Secrets.

A PROBLEM HITHERTO UNSOLVED.

SOME time ago the country was horrified at the report of a most brutal murder. A prominent western manufacturer was accused of killing his wife and destroying her body with strong chemicals which dissolved every trace of her frame. A great question arose during the trial as to whether any chemicals could be found strong enough to completely obliterate a human body, and many experts were called in to testify. Our minds stand appalled at the idea of so powerful an agent, but we forget that within our own bodies there occurs naturally a fluid which is capable of breaking down and reducing to a solution almost every organic substance. The power of the juice of the stomach to digest our food is most wonderful, when we consider the great variety of materials which we daily put into it. A healthy stomach will digest easily enough food to keep the body strong and vigorous. It seems remarkable that so powerful an agent as the gastric juice could be contained in an animal tissue without destroying it, and the problem of what prevents the stomach from being dissolved in its own secretions has never been satisfactorily solved. If a portion of another stomach (as when tripe is eaten) is taken into a stomach it is promptly attacked, and we sometimes find that the organ itself does yield in spots, causing the distressing and dangerous disease known as "gastric ulcer." This can never happen, however, unless the vitality of the organ is weakened at that one spot. One of the first signs of stomach trouble is a loss of appetite, or possibly the appetite becomes ravenous, and soon the patient begins to lose flesh which shows that the stomach should be toned up with a harmless tonic which will increase the secretions of the digestive tract. A tonic made up of medicinal herbs which will stimulate the stomach into greater activity and increase the secretions of the phosphates from the food—a remedy which will do this is one which has stood the test of public approval for nearly forty years, containing no alcohol or narcotic. We refer to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It can be given to the smallest child with perfect freedom. If the blood is impure, if pimples, boils, headaches occur, if the stomach is weak—first eradicate the poisons from the blood.

"I was all run down, very nervous, and suffered terribly from stomach trouble, which the doctors pronounced indigestion," writes Mrs. Wm. Morey, of Marshall, Mich. "I doctored for a year without permanent relief. Was advised by a friend to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and after the use of nine bottles I was cured. I can heartily recommend the 'Golden Medical Discovery' to any one suffering from stomach trouble. My husband was greatly benefited by its use."

AN IMITATION OF NATURE'S METHOD

of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous force is used when you take an alterative extract of herbs and roots, without the use of alcohol, like Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This vegetable medicine coaxes the digestive functions and helps in the assimilation of food, or rather takes from the food just the nutriment the blood requires.

While using it one should get all one can of God's sunlight and air, and practice a mild breathing exercise each day. This "Medical Discovery" gives no false stimulation, because it does not contain alcohol or a narcotic. It helps digestion and the assimilation of such elements in the food as are required for the blood. Instead of a cod liver oil, against which the already sensitive stomach will declare open rebellion, this tonic has a pacifying action upon the sensitive stomach and gives to the blood the food elements the tissues require. It maintains one's nutrition by enabling him to eat, retain, digest and assimilate nutritious food. It overcomes gastric irritability and symptoms of indigestion, and, in this way, fever, night-sweats, headaches, etc., are done away with.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood and entirely eradicates the poisons that breed and feed disease. It thus cures scrofula, eczema, erysipelas, boils, pimples, and other eruptions that mar and scar the skin. Pure blood is essential to good health. The weak, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people experience is commonly the effect of impure blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery increases the activity of the blood-making glands, and enriches the body with an abundant supply of pure, rich blood.

THE EXPLANATION OF THE MYSTERY

of healthful living is not difficult. Dr. R. V. Pierce has prepared a wonderful book, which he calls the "Common Sense Medical Adviser," and this he sends free to any one who sends him, at Buffalo, N. Y., 31 one-cent stamps, to pay cost of mailing only. No one can afford to be without this great Doctor-book of over a thousand pages, in which you will find a full description of the human frame, the cause and prevention of disease and many wonderful facts concerning our bodies.

We guarantee that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery does not contain alcohol, opium, or any harmful drug. It is a pure compound of medicinal plants scientifically combined. Persons making false statements concerning its ingredients will be prosecuted.

World's Dispensary Medical Association,
R. V. Pierce
PRESIDENT.

RAILROADS.

HOTEL EMPIRE

Broadway and Sixty-third St
Empire Park
New York City
OVER $250,000 in Improvements
JUST COMPLETED
ELECTRIC CLOCKS, TELEPHONES AND AUTOMATIC LIGHTING DEVICES IN EVERY ROOM
Completely Remodeled, Redecorated and Refurnished throughout.
One minute to Elevated and Subway Stations.
Take nearest car at any Railroad or Steamboat Terminal, they all pass or transfer to the Empire.
Within easy walking distance of all Theaters and Department Stores.
Restaurant noted for Excellent Cooking, Efficient Service and Moderate Charges
Rooms (with use of bath), $1.50 per day up
Rooms (with private bath), $2.00 per day up
Suites (with private bath), $3.50 per day up
W. JOHNSON QUINN

WARSAW

WARSAW, Dec. 29.—Miss Helen Tearse of Winona, Minn., and Miss Lillian Stebbins of Rome, N. Y., are guests of Professor H. Smith and family.

Miss Hedges of Haverstraw is the guest of C. P. Bartlett and family.

Mr. Jamieson of Buffalo is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Onias Humphrey.

Philip Greff of Scranton, Pa., was home to spend Christmas.

Mrs. Louisa Howe of Victor has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. L. L. Thayer.

Miss Marian Walker went to New York Tuesday night to spend a week with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Gill.

Grange Officer Honored

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.

SPENCERPORT, Dec. 29.—Ogden Grange, 311, held a box social Tuesday evening. It was well attended. Entertainment was furnished by the Social Committee, after which Brother William Clark congratulated the master in his eloquent manner, on having been elected the fourth term by an entire vote of the Grange, which had never occurred in the history of the organization.

He then presented the master with a solid gold watch chain and charm and a beautiful clock. The master was so overcome by the surprise that he was unable to make a response of any note but will do so in the future.

CLARKSON

CLARKSON, Dec. 29.—Mrs. Nancy Moore is confined to her bed by sickness.

Miss Bertha Arnold, who is teaching near New York City, is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Arnold.

John Garrett has been to Canada at-

RAILROADS.

Pennsylvania RAILROAD

The Standard Railroad of America
NORTHERN CENTRAL RAILWAY
AND
Buffalo & Allegheny Valley Division
On and after November 27, 1904.

Trains leave ROCHESTER, NEW YORK CENTRAL STATION, as follows:

6.50 A. M. daily, except Sunday. For all points South, arriving at Elmira 9:57 A. M., Philadelphia 6:23 P. M., New York 9:20 P. M., Baltimore, 6:00 P. M., Washington 7:15 P. M. Buffet parlor car Canandaigua to Philadelphia. Pullman sleeping car Harrisburg to Washington.

11.45 A. M. daily, except Sunday. For Philadelphia and New York, arriving at Elmira 3:40 P. M., Philadelphia 4:23 A. M., New York 7:13 A. M. Baltimore 2:30 A. M., Washington 3:30 A. M. Passenger coach Rochester to Harrisburg. Pullman sleeping car Harrisburg to New York.

5.12 P. M. daily, except Sunday. Accommodation for Elmira, arrives at 8:45 P. M.

7.20 P. M. daily. For all points South, arrives Elmira 10:40 P. M., Philadelphia 7:17 A. M., New York 9:33 A. M., Baltimore 7:35 A. M., Washington 8:30 A. M. On Sundays, arrives New York 10:28 A. M. Pullman buffet sleeping car Rochester to Washington daily. Pullman sleeping car Canandaigua to Philadelphia daily.

Buffalo and Allegheny Valley Division

Trains leave West Avenue Station as follows:

8.30 A. M. daily, except Sunday.—For Scottsville, Mt. Morris, Nunda, Dansville, Olean, and intermediate stations.

4.30 P. M. daily, except Sunday.—For Scottsville, Mt. Morris, Nunda, Hinsdale, Olean, and intermediate stations.

For information relative to rates, time, etc., apply to agents at New York Central and West Avenue Stations.

JAMES R. WOOD,
Pass'r Traffic Manager.
W. W. ATTERBURY,
Gen'l Manager.
GEO. W. BOYD,
General Passenger Agent.

LEHIGH VALLEY R. R.

STATION, SOUTH AVENUE.
In effect Dec. 4, 1904.

*Daily. ‖Except Sunday. ‡Sunday only.

Lv. Roch.		No	Ar. Roch'r
*5:15 a.m.	N. Y. & Phila. Exp.	3	*8:05 a.m.
*9:15 a.m.	Buffalo & Toronto Exp.	5	*8:35 a.m.
*2:25 a.m.	Geneva & Ithaca Loc'l	129	10:30 a.m.
*5:45 a.m.	Geneva & Auburn Loc'l	146	10:30 a.m.
9:23 a.m.	N. Y. & Phila. Exp. Ve	7	*10:30 a.m.
12:40 a.m.	N. Y. & Phila. Exp. Ve		*10:30 a.m.
11:35 a.m.	Black Diamond Ex.	10	12:50 p.m.
*2:15 p.m.	Buff. & Toronto Ex.	187	*4:50 p.m.
12:25 p.m.	Ithaca & Sayre Local.	130	*6:35 p.m.
5:10 p.m.	" " "	136	*6:25 p.m.
5:20 p.m.	Buff. & Niagara Falls Ex.	9	*7:40 p.m.
5:41 p.m.	" " "	11	*6:45 p.m.
*7:50 p.m.	Black Diamond Ex.	1	*9:50 p.m.
*7:00 p.m.	N.Y. special, New train	21	*9:50 p.m.
10:30 p.m.	N. Y. & Phila. Special	9	*11:30 p.m.

‖9:35 A. M. and ‖5:25 P. M. for points on Hemlock Lake branch. ‡8:55 A. M. and *3:15 P. M. 5:10 P. M. for Honeoye Falls only.

City ticket office, 13 East Main Street. 'Phone 1191.

CHAS. S. LEE, Gen'l Pass. Agt., New York.
GEO. H. HARRIS, Dist. Pass. Agt., Rochester, N. Y.

Rochester & Eastern Rapid Ry

Through Service to Geneva
Also Pittsford, Victor, Canandaigua and intermediate points. Trains leave ticket

RAILROADS.

ERIE RAILROAD — PICTURESQUE TRUNK LINE OF AMERICA

7:00 A. M., except Sunday, for Corning, Elmira, Binghamton and New York, connecting at Painted Post for points West; also connects at Avon for Hornellsville and Buffalo.

8:00 A. M., Sunday only, accommodation to Elmira, connecting for Binghamton and New York.

9:00 A. M., except Sunday, accommodation to Elmira, Dansville and Buffalo, connecting for Chicago, Cincinnati and West.

4:30 P. M., except Sunday, for Avon, Mt. Morris, connecting for Dansville, Buffalo and Hornellsville.

5:00 P. M., daily, accommodation for Elmira, connecting for Binghamton, New York, Baltimore, Washington and points South.

6:00 P. M., Sunday only, for Avon, Geneseo and Mt. Morris.

Trains Arrive—8:25 A. M., except Sunday; 9 A. M., Sunday only; 11 A. M., daily except Sunday; 11:15 A. M., Sunday only; 6 P. M., except Sunday; 9:45 P. M., daily.

Station, Court Street; City Ticket Office, 11 Exchange Street. Rochester 'phone, 1058. Bell 'phone, 1412 Main.

C. J. Gilbert, Passenger and Ticket Agt. D. W. COOKE, Gen'l Pass'r Agt., Buffalo, N. Y.

WEST-SHORE RAILROAD

ALL TRAINS ARRIVE AND DEPART from N. Y. C. & H. R. R. R. Station for Syracuse, Utica, Albany, Boston, New York, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and all points East, West, North and South, as follows:

LEAVE GOING EAST.

*2:05 A. M.—Continental Limited.
7:00 A. M.—Local Express.
*10:57 A. M.—New York Express.
*2:17 P. M.—Newark Local.
*7:02 P. M.—New York Express.
*10:05 P. M.—Atlantic Express.

LEAVE GOING WEST.

*2:05 A. M.—Continental Limited.
*2:45 A. M.—Chicago Limited.
M2:05 A. M.—National Express.
*C7:13—A. M.—Buffalo Local.
*10:15 A. M.—Pacific Express.
*C5:07 P. M.—Buffalo Local.

TRAINS ARRIVE.

From the East—A. M.—*2:02, *2:37, M2:00, *7:30, *10:10. P. M.—3:02.

From the West—A. M.—*2:05, C8:25, *10:02. P. M.—*3:15, *10:05.

* Denotes Daily. M Denotes Daily except Monday. All other trains daily except Sunday. C Denotes trains stop at Center Park Station. z Denotes train runs via N. Y. C. main line between Buffalo and Central Junction.

Ticket sold, sleeping berths secured and baggage checked to destination at city office, 39 State Street (Telephone, Rochester 85, Bell 963), and at the Central Avenue Station (Telephone, Rochester, 1394, Bell 964).

Agents of Westcott Express Company are on all through trains to check baggage and engage cab and carriage, etc.

C. E. LAMBERT, Gen'l Pass'r Agt. J. C. KALBFLEISCH, Dist. Pass'r Agt., New York. Rochester.

BUFFALO, ROCHESTER & PITTSBURGH RY

Ticket Offices—11 Exchange Street and West Avenue Station.

TRAINS LEAVE.

7:30 A. M.—Week days, Pittsburg Day Express, for Salamanca, Bradford and Pittsburg. Connects for Perry, Hornellsville, Jamestown, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis. (Cafe car.)

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES

BATAVIA, Dec. 29.—Levant Chase, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Chase, who live on the Byron-Bergen town line road, east of this village, by accident fatally shot himself on the H. W. Merriman farm near his home, yesterday morning.

Frank Dibble, who works the Merriman farm, started for the woods on the place with a team for a load of wood, about 11 a. m., accompanied by Levant Chase and Mr. Merriman's son, Clark, who is about 13 years old. The two boys went to the woods to hunt.

They discovered a coon in the top of a tree and called Dibble to their assistance. The tree was chopped down, but lodged in the branches of another tree when about halfway over.

Young Chase seized his shotgun and started to climb over the severed tree trunk, apparently thinking the coon might jump from the limbs. He was on the trunk when the trigger struck one of the limbs, discharging the weapon.

The entire charge entered the boy's head, killing him instantly. Dibble and Clark Merriman placed the body in the wood wagon and took it to his home.

Coroner Snow of Batavia was summoned. Besides his parents, the boy leaves two brothers, Harry and Ray Chase.

TO TRY BREACH OF PROMISE CASE

Judge Lynn Will Preside at Pittsford Mock Trial Tomorrow Night. The Witnesses.

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

PITTSFORD, Dec. 29.—Frank Dehmler, plaintiff, vs. Miss Allie Louise Kenyon, defendant, both of this place, is the title of an action in a mock trial to be held tomorrow evening at the Town Hall. Hiram M. Rogers, a young attorney of Rochester and a recent graduate of the Pittsford High School, is attorney for the plaintiff, and Frank Coneybear, of Rochester, for the defendant. Hon. John D. Lynn will be the presiding judge.

The witnesses are: Orla Welch, Miss Beatrice Ginn, Miss Lillie Wiley, Lou Miller, Eugene Bailey, William Cleveland. Miss Ollie Evans is court stenographer, and Charles Emmons court crier. A small admission will be charged, the proceeds to be given for the benefit of the King's Daughters.

WADSWORTH FARM VISITED BY FIRE OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.

GENESEO, Dec. 29.—J. W. Wadsworth yesterday morning lost 25 tons of baled hay and a time barn on the Maple lot, west of the village, by fire. The barn was on part of the home farm of Major W. A. Wadsworth and was rented to J. W. Wadsworth. It is suspected that boys who skated on a pond near may have left a cigarette stub around the barn and that it smouldered over night, finally setting the barn afire. The loss is about $1,000.

Red Men in Annual Meeting

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.

FAIRPORT, Dec. 29.—The seventh annual ball of Ka-Na-Hoot Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men, was held last evening. Music was furnished by a ladies' orchestra from Rochester.

The tribe has elected the following officers: Sachem, John Bahler; Senior Sagamore, John Dickinson; Junior Sagamore, Henry Schmidt; Prophet, Richard Dillon; Chief of Records, Frank Hyde; Keeper of Wampum, Lawrence Welch; Collector of Wampum, George Carroll; Trustees, Fred Richburg and John McCarthy; Keeper of Faith, John Finnegan.

Off for Sunny Florida

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.

LYNDONVILLE, Dec. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. James Lake, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Mitchell, Mrs. Dr. Fraser and Mrs. E. C. Barrett started Tuesday night for St. Petersburg, Florida, where they will spend the winter.

THEIR PAST RECORD

No Stronger Evidence Can Be Had in Rochester.

Look well to their record. What they have done many times in years gone by is the best guarantee of future results. Anyone with a bad back; any reader suffering from urinary troubles, from any kidney ills, will find in the following evidence proof that relief and cure is near at hand:

Mrs. E. A. Babcock, of 19 Alexander St., says: "Some twenty years ago I had a bad spell of sickness. One of the arteries in my limbs burst and I lost almost a pail of blood. I was left very weak and kidney trouble set in in a severe form. Backache laid me up on more than one occasion. The action of the kidneys was irregular, the secretions being too frequent. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a box and used them carefully as directed. I never found anything that acted so quickly and brought such positive relief. The aching and pains disappeared and the kidneys were restored to a healthy condition. It is eight years now since I used them and I have had no occasion to take any kidney remedy since. When Doan's Kidney Pills cure they cure permanently."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no oth

Receipts Accepted by Local Merchants.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.)

MOUNT MORRIS, Dec. 29.—This village is scandalized over the behavior yesterday of Dr. S. R. Dunlop, the well known physician and surgeon who practiced in the village for the last two years. After borrowing $15 from Archibald Wasson, recently a candidate for Assembly on the Prohibition ticket, Dr. Dunlop boarded the Pennsylvania train at 8:45 a. m. for Rochester. It was but a short time later when numerous merchants were flying around town trying to find him.

Dr. Dunlop left not without reason, for a warrant was even then awaiting him, charging him with forgery, second degree, by passing a forged check for $15 on Justice Edward R. Creveling, a shoemaker of this village. He secured a warrant through Justice Charles Harding and placed it in the hands of Chief of Police Patrick O'Leary. Mr. Creveling had accepted a check from Dr. Dunlop, for $15, signed with the name of G. C. Branch, the well known capitalist of Mount Morris. Mr. Branch repudiated the check.

Mr. Branch learned yesterday that checks were out, bearing his name, unknown to him, and held by the following persons: William H. De Camp, druggist, check for $15; F. D. Harris, general store, $15; Nathan N. Nast, $15; John McMahon, proprietor American Hotel, $15; Mrs. Emma Dale, restaurant, $50.

Mrs. Dale has boarded the veteran doctor for a long time and within the last few days accepted two checks in payment for back board. One was for $20 and the other for $30. She turned the $20 check over to Grocer Alfred D. Donovan. Landlord McMahon says the doctor owes him $32 for board.

Chief of Police O'Leary telegraphed to Scottsville a description of the doctor, and the message was given the conductor. The latter went through his train and found a man he thought was Dunlop. Upon being asked if that was his name the man denied it. However, the same man left the train at the Genesee Junction.

Dunlop Arrested

Superintendent Hayden of Rochester was notified and sent a detective to meet the doctor. Detective McDonald drove out Genesee Street and was just in time to see a man leave a sleigh and board a car. McDonald gave chase and arrested Dunlop. He will be brought back to Mt. Morris this morning.

Dr. Dunlop came here two years ago from Tuscarora and worked up a good practice. He is 44 years old and has a wife and three children at Scranton, Pa. Dr. Dunlop served in the regular army and has medals for bravery on the field. He receives a pension of $1,100 per annum. He is said to have several wounds. He has diplomas from leading medical colleges. At one time he had a large practice in New York City.

MISSING ITALIAN IS BLAMED FOR SHOOTING

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.)

CANANDAIGUA, Dec. 29.—After an all-day session of the investigation by Coroner Warner, to get at the bottom of the Italian shooting affray which resulted in death for Guiseppe Sennecroppi, Dec. 22, but little was learned that will aid in prosecution of the guilty one, even if he ever be found.

Arthur Wilson, bartender for Boswell & Egan, told on the witness stand of six Italians and two Americans visiting the saloon and having loud words in a back room.

Frank Sennecroppi swore to being in the saloon with two American foremen employed at Mrs. Thompson's place, the two Suraci brothers, Mariafali, Dominick Gallimi, Sennecroppi and one named Luigi. These are the principal characters in the case. Luigi is charged with firing the first shots in the quarrel which followed the departure from the saloon.

It was brought out that Luigi, who is missing, is little known in Canandaigua. His last name is not positively known, but the officials learn that one Luigi Nunatti has been in the village. Henry Griffin, another Boswell & Egan bartender, testified. The investigation will be resumed by Coroner Warner at 2 o'clock today.

BATH CITIZEN CELEBRATES SEVENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

BATH, Dec. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Abram Beekman last evening gave a dinner in honor of Mr. Beekman's 75th birthday. Mr. Beekman, who is one of the prominent residents of the village, is in excellent health. He has resided the greater part of his life in Bath and for over 50 continuous years has been in business here. He is owner of the Beekman sash and blind factory, affording employment to many men. A few relatives and friends were Mr. Beekman's guests last evening, and the event was a most pleasant one.

TELEPHONE ROMANCE ENDS IN A WEDDING

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

SODUS, Dec. 29.—The telephone figures prominently in the romance of Miss Edna M. Stockand and Ross E. Beach, who were united in marriage yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Stockand, of this place. Miss Stockand has been manager of the Empire State Telephone exchange at Sodus for the last year and Mr. Beach was the day operator at Wallington. Mr. and Mrs. Beach left for a wedding trip which will include New York, Philadelphia and Washington. They will live at Sodus upon returning.

LYONS

LYONS, Dec. 29.—Mrs. George Mitem and daughter are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jennings in South Lyons.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Young of Syracuse and Mr. Otto Webler of Schenectady are being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. William Webler.

Mr. Frank Wells of Holland Patent has been engaged to conduct the Alloway creamery next season.

Mrs. Gertrude Rook of Rochester is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Bockoven.

The Wayne County Mail Carriers' Association will meet in Newark, Jan. 4.

Mrs. Julia Rogers has returned from Detroit.

Charles Deuchler of Chicago is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Deuchler.

Rev. E. M. Mills, D. D., will speak at the Methodist Church, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Frind are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Luck of Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Streeter of Iowa are the guests of Mr. Streeter's parents on Broad Street.

Liberty Lodge Officers

COHOCTON, Dec. 29.—Liberty Lodge No 510, F. and A. M., has elected the following officers for 1905: Master, E. S. Brown; Senior Warden, L. R. Partridge; Junior Warden, F. J. House; Treasurer, C. Oliver; Secretary, J. L. Waugh; trustee, three years, W. E. Waite. The following officers have been appointed by the Master-elect: Senior Deacon, W. D. Stanton; Junior Deacon, M. A. McDowell; Senior Master of Ceremonies, A. H. Wilcox; Junior Master of Ceremonies, D. Marsh; Marshal, E. A. Draper; Chaplain, C. Gray; Tyler, John Snyder. Officers will be installed Monday evening, January 9. The third degree will also be conferred.

FAIRPORT.

FAIRPORT, Dec. 29.—Charles Hammond of this village has purchased the Spring Brook Hotel at Empe and will take possession next week.

William Collins, who lives on West Avenue, was arrested Tuesday morning by Officer P. A. Welch on the charge of non-support. He was taken before Justice of the Peace Henry A. Walker and the case was adjourned until Thursday at 1 o'clock.

The K. of T. M. will hold its annual banquet and installation of officers in Bown's Hall Tuesday evening. W. D. Williams, Past Commander, will install the officers.

Karl P. Hall and Homer J. Pellett of Webster have purchased the G. E. Davison grocery business and are now in possession. Duane Taylor remains with the new firm, who are young men of ability and push.

Chauncey Gardner and wife of Boston are spending some time with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Day spent Christmas with Mrs. Day's parents, Charles Claffin and wife, of Ionia.

DELLINGER OPERA HOUSE TO BE REOPENED SOON

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

BATAVIA, Dec. 29.—Edwin Houghton, proprietor of the Dellinger Opera House, has agreed with the village trustees to reopen the theater as soon as the necessary changes can be made to meet their requirements. The theater was closed soon after the Iroquois Theater disaster in Chicago and has been closed since. Mr. Houghton discussed the matter with the trustees at the regular meeting last evening.

RUSH

RUSH, Dec. 29.—Town Clerk William S. Wilson of East Rush has returned from a holiday visit with his mother, Mrs. John Wilson, and sister, Miss Martha C. Wilson, and brothers, Frank E. and Harry C. Wilson, of Brockport.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Glosser, from Rochester, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Rodenbush and little daughter, Martha, also from Rochester, spent Christmas with relatives in and around East Rush.

WHAT'S THE USE OF FOOD

unless it is turned into good red blood that rushes through the arteries and carries life and strength to every part of you? Many hearty eaters are thin, pale, languid and weak because they are in the clutches of nervous dyspepsia. With the friendly help of Vernal Iron Nerve Food Tablets you get rid of this and all other forms of nervewakness. You tackle your days work with snap and energy, and when bed-time comes you sink into the sweet, dreamless sleep of a tired schoolboy. Urinary troubles, sluggish circulation and restlessness are put to flight by this glorious tonic. This is joyful news for all who are thin-blooded, melancholy and unequal to the duties of life. Surely they will not neglect this means of obtaining full and lasting strength of mind and body. All druggists sell the Tablets at 50 cents a box, or by mail. Sample Free. Address, Vernal Remedy Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

HENRIETTA

HENRIETTA, Dec. 29.—Rev. S. Banks Nelson, pastor of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church of Rochester, officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Mary Landers at her late home, Tuesday afternoon. A quartette from Rochester sang.

Floyd S. Winslow of Cornell University is spending a week with his mother, Mrs. R. S. Winslow.

Mr. and Mrs. Galloway and daughter, Miss Ruth Galloway, and son, Clarence, of Harvard Street, Rochester, spent Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Stoner's.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester F. Holcombe entertained on Monday about a dozen relatives at their home on College Avenue.

The following are home for the holidays: Miss Bessie B. Mason, from Hilton; Howard Harding, from Rochester Mechanics Institute; B. Frank Clark, of the University of Buffalo; Miss Harriet Jones, of Toledo, O., and Miss C. Lois Jones, of Syracuse.

Rev. H. A. Hanaford of Lafayette, N. Y., is visiting his daughter, Mrs. F. F. Fesale, and family.

WEST WEBSTER

WEST WEBSTER, Dec. 29.—The Ideal Two-Step Club, composed of the following persons, held their first ball last evening: Frank Dewitt, Roy Dewitt, J. Barth, F. Barth, R. Murphy, William Pitt, Charles Prime, Ed Shoemaker, J. Shoemaker, A. J. Smith, George Herman, John Herman, Arthur Herman.

Fred Scencer of Rochester spent Sunday with his brother, Tony Spencer, of this place.

F. J. Aldridge is home from Syracuse University.

William Mohr of Honeoye Falls is the guest of his uncle, William R. Bancroft.

Henry Copeland, who is attending Syracuse University, is home visiting his parents, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Copeland.

Jacob Drake is spending the holidays with friends at Canandaigua.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sanford and family of Charlotte and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodworth of Rochester were entertained here Monday by friends and relatives.

Funeral of Alfred Wadsworth

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

WARSAW, Dec. 29.—The funeral of the late Alfred Wadsworth was largely attended yesterday afternoon. Rev. George D. Miller of Rochester, assisted by John B. Smallwood, officiated. The Masonic fraternity attended in a body and conducted the services at the grave. Among the out-of-town relatives in attendance were Dr. and Mrs. Robert Wadsworth and Mr. and Mrs. William Kitchell of Rochester, and Mr. and Mrs. John Wadsworth of Brockport.

SODUS

SODUS, Dec. 29.—Josiah S. Buckley has sold his farm of 36 acres, between Sodus and Sodus Center, to Isaac Vandermillen; consideration, $3,600, and possession to be given on the 1st of April.

Last Friday night a lodge of the National Protective Legion was organized at Sodus Center, with the following officers: President, John T. Pearsall; Vice President, Homer West; Secretary and Treasurer, Sheldon Sours; Conductor, Miss Bertha L. Kanzler; Chaplain, Dyton P. Barclay; Sentinel, Mrs. Millie Klumpp; Picket, Oscar W. Sober; Trustees, John T. Pearsall, Miss Bertha L. Kanzler and Eugene Sober.

Robinson-Brown

CHURCHVILLE, Dec. 29.—Edna M. Brown and Alfred Robinson were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Omas. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. E. Williams, of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The young people of the Methodist Church gave the bride a kitchen shower last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson left on an Eastern trip, and after January 15th will be at home on the Kendall farm at Churchville.

Book-Miller

WATERLOO, Dec. 29.—Spencer G. Book and Miss Maud T. Miller were quietly united in marriage Tuesday at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emma Miller, in South Waterloo, Rev. J. Q. Adams performing the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families only.

Mr. and Mrs. Book will spend a week with relatives in the western part of this state, and will be at home after January 1, at the home of the bride's mother.

ST. MARY'S FAIR A BIG SUCCESS

Bemis Hall, Canandaigua, the Destination of Crowds to See Big Church Fair.

(Special to THE EVENING TIMES.)

CANANDAIGUA, Dec. 29.—The following is a list of some of the principal committees, through whose enterprise and good management the big holiday fair of St. Mary's Church, now being held in Bemis Hall, has been made such a big success:

Entertainment—W. F. Predmore, Rev. J. J. Clark, Julia Widman, Miss Hyde, Ethel Stewart, Ray O'Brien, Bessie Dugan, Bessie Doyle, John Enright, M. W. Tuohey, Elizabeth Burke, John E. Doyle, Dr. P. M. Donovan, C. E. Stewart, Frank Burke, John Mary, Will O'Brien, Richard Rochford, J. C. Costello, Gertrude Tuohey, James Hughes, Mary Keefe, John Scanlin, Lula Meng, Frank Welch.

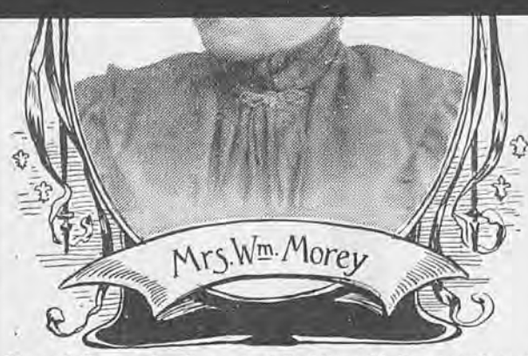
Newspaper—Frank Caplise, Agnes Farrell, Mary O'Neil, Margie Quinn, Anna McKenna, Mollie Carroll, Nellie Martin, Mary Ryan, Grace O'Connor, Christina Hirsch, W. J. Donovan, Patrick Turner, J. H. S. Kennedy, W. Martin, Andrew Brady, Jr., Rev. J. J. Clark, Fred Haubner, William Howley, William Haubner, Joseph Monto, John Law, Thomas McCarthy, Ed. Devereaux, Milton O'Neil, Irving O'Neil, John Gleason.

Reception—Thomas E. Murphy, Edward McNamara, A. J. McIntyre, C. J. Brady, James Scanlan, J. A. Taylor, W. D. Powers, J. H. McCormack, J. E. Devereaux, J. S. Flannigan, M. F. Kerwin, P. J. Doyle, D. W. Berrigan, Mrs. J. R. McLaughlin, Mrs. John Flynn, Mrs. H. H. Pohl, Mrs. Thomas Nix, Mrs. T. F. Murray, Mrs. Floyd Hutchens, Mrs. Thomas H. O'Brien, Mrs. Patrick Gleason, Mrs. P. Quigley, Mrs. T. P. Coyle, Mrs. Charles Lemma, Mrs. Frank Flynn, Mrs. H. Van Vooren, Miss Emma Caplise, Miss Elizabeth Murray, Miss Agnes Harrigan, Miss Katherine Dugan.

PALMYRA

PALMYRA, Dec. 29.—The following will spend the holiday week as stated: Louis M. Chase, with his family in town; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bott, M. D., of Buffalo, at Major McIntyre's; entertained by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Bush; Harry Williams of Buffalo and sister of Seneca Falls, with relatives; Miss Lulu Wilson, teacher at Monticello, N. Y., with Mr. and Mrs. Williamson; A. J. Hornsby of Schenectady and Miss Hornsby of Geneva, N. Y., at the homes of friends; Charles Parker, George Elton, Carl Weber and Mr. Sessions, from New York City, with their parents; Miss Grace Durning, teaching in Greater New York, at home in Palmyra town; Miss Nellie Congdon, teaching at Sodus, is spending the week with her mother; Burt and Carl Bohelm, from Syracuse, at home; Cornelius O'Brien of Port Gibson, with acquaintances; Charlie Drake of New York, Rob Van Duzer, wife and daughter of Newark, N. Y., at the home of Mrs. J. K. Williamson; Louis Ziegler of Rochester, with his parents.

B. B. Davis and wife are spending a few days with their daughter at the home of William T. Webster in Montclair, N. J.



One of Nature's Secrets.

A PROBLEM HITHERTO UNSOLVED.

SOME time ago the country was horrified at the report of a most brutal murder. A prominent western manufacturer was accused of killing his wife and destroying her body with strong chemicals which dissolved every trace of her frame. A great question arose during the trial as to whether any chemicals could be found strong enough to completely obliterate a human body, and many experts were called in to testify. Our minds stand appalled at the idea of so powerful an agent, but we forget that within our own bodies there occurs naturally a fluid which is capable of breaking down and reducing to a solution almost every organic substance. The power of the juice of the stomach to digest our food is most wonderful, when we consider the great variety of materials which we daily put into it. A healthy stomach will digest easily enough food to keep the body strong and vigorous. It seems remarkable that so powerful an agent as the gastric juice could be contained in an animal tissue without destroying it, and the problem of what prevents the stomach from being dissolved in its own secretions has never been satisfactorily solved. If a portion of another stomach (as when tripe is eaten) is taken into a stomach it is promptly attacked, and we sometimes find that the organ itself does yield in spots, causing the distressing and dangerous disease known as "gastric ulcer." This can never happen, however, unless the vitality of the organ is weakened at that one spot. One of the first signs of stomach trouble is a loss of appetite, or possibly the appetite becomes ravenous, and soon the patient begins to lose flesh which shows that the stomach should be toned up with a harmless tonic which will increase the secretions of the digestive tract. A tonic made up of medicinal herbs which will stimulate the stomach into greater activity and increase the secretions of the phosphates from the food—a remedy which will do this is one which has stood the test of public approval for nearly forty years, containing no alcohol or narcotic. We refer to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It can be given to Golden Medical Discovery. This vegetable medicine coaxes the digestive functions and helps in the assimilation of food, or rather takes from the food just the nutriment the blood requires.

While using it one should get all one can of God's sunlight and air, and practice a mild breathing exercise each day. This "Medical Discovery" gives no false stimulation, because it does not contain alcohol or a narcotic. It helps digestion and the assimilation of such elements in the food as are required for the blood. Instead of a cod liver oil, against which the already sensitive stomach will declare open rebellion, this tonic has a pacifying action upon the sensitive stomach and gives to the blood the food elements the tissues require. It maintains one's nutrition by enabling him to eat, retain, digest and assimilate nutritious food. It overcomes gastric irritability and symptoms of indigestion, and, in this way, fever, night-sweats, headaches, etc., are done away with.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood and entirely eradicates the poisons that breed and feed disease. It thus cures scrofula, eczema, erysipelas, boils, pimples, and other eruptions that mar and scar the skin. Pure blood is essential to good health. The weak, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people experience is commonly the effect of impure blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery increases the activity of the blood-making glands, and enriches the body with an abundant supply of pure, rich blood.

THE EXPLANATION OF THE MYSTERY

of healthful living is not difficult. Dr. R. V. Pierce has prepared a wonderful book, which he calls the "Common Sense Medical Adviser," and this he sends free to any one who sends him, at Buffalo, N. Y., 31 one-cent stamps, to pay cost of mailing only. No one can afford to be without this great Doctor-book of over a thousand pages, in which you will find a full description of the human frame, the cause and prevention of disease and many wonderful facts concerning our bodies.

We guarantee that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery does not contain alcohol, opium, or any harmful drug. It is a pure compound of medicinal plants scientifically combined. Persons making false statements concerning its ingredients will be prosecuted.

World's Dispensary Medical Association,
R. V. Pierce
PRESIDENT.

HOTEL EMPIRE

Broadway and Sixty-third St
Empire Park

New York City

OVER $250,000 in Improvements

JUST COMPLETED

ELECTRIC CLOCKS, TELEPHONES AND AUTOMATIC LIGHTING DEVICES IN EVERY ROOM

Completely Remodeled, Redecorated and Refurnished throughout.
One minute to Elevated and Subway Stations.

Take nearest car at any Railroad or Steamboat Terminal, they all pass or transfer to the Empire.
Within easy walking distance of all Theaters and Department Stores.

Restaurant noted for Excellent Cooking, Efficient Service and Moderate Charges

Rooms (with use of bath), $1.50 per day up
Rooms (with private bath), $2.00 per day up
Suites (with private bath), $3.50 per day up

W. JOHNSON QUINN

WARSAW

WARSAW, Dec. 29.—Miss Helen Tearse of Winona, Minn., and Miss Lillian Stebbins of Rome, N. Y., are guests of Professor H. Smith and family.

Miss Hedges of Haverstraw is the guest of C. T. Bartlett and family.

Mr. Jameson of Buffalo is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Onias Humphrey.

Philip Greff of Scranton, Pa., was home to spend Christmas.

Mrs. Louisa Howe of Victor has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. L. L. Thayer.

Miss Marian Walker went to New York Tuesday night to spend a week with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Gill.

Grange Officer Honored

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.

SPENCERPORT, Dec. 29.—Ogden Grange, 311, held a box social Tuesday evening. It was well attended. Entertainment was furnished by the Social Committee, after which Brother William Clark congratulated the master, in his eloquent manner, on having been elected the fourth term by an entire vote of the Grange, which had never occurred in the history of the organization.

He then presented the master with a solid gold watch chain and charm and a beautiful clock. The master was so overcome by the surprise that he was unable to make a response of any note but will do so in the future.

CLARKSON

CLARKSON, Dec. 29.—Mrs. Nancy Moore is confined to her bed by sickness.

Miss Bertha Arnold, who is teaching near New York City, is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Arnold.

John Garrett has been to Canada attending the funeral of his brother.

S. W. Woodhams won a bronze medal on a display of peaches at the St. Louis Expoaition.

SOZODONT
TEETH AND BREATH

RAILROADS.

Pennsylvania RAILROAD

The Standard Railroad of America
NORTHERN CENTRAL RAILWAY
AND
Buffalo & Allegheny Valley Division
On and after November 27, 1904.

Trains leave ROCHESTER, NEW YORK CENTRAL STATION, as follows:

6.50 A. M. daily, except Sunday. For all points South, arriving at Elmira 9:55 A. M., Philadelphia 6:25 P. M., New York 9:30 P. M., Baltimore, 6:00 P. M., Washington 7:15 P. M. Buffet parlor car Canandaigua to Philadelphia. Pullman sleeping car Harrisburg to Washington.

11.45 A. M. daily, except Sunday. For Philadelphia and New York, arriving at Elmira 3:40 P. M., Philadelphia 4:23 A. M., New York 7:13 A. M., Baltimore 2:20 A. M., Washington 3:50 A. M. Passenger coach Rochester to Harrisburg. Pullman sleeping car Harrisburg to New York.

5.12 P. M. daily, except Sunday. Accommodation for Elmira, arrives at 8:45 P. M.

7.20 P. M. daily. For all points South, arrives Elmira 10:40 P. M., Philadelphia 7:17 A. M., New York 9:33 A. M., Baltimore 7:15 A. M., Washington 8:30 A. M. On Sundays, arrives New York 10:35 A. M. Pullman buffet sleeping car Rochester to Washington daily. Pullman sleeping car Canandaigua to Philadelphia daily.

Buffalo and Allegheny Valley Division

Trains leave West Avenue Station as follows:

8.30 A. M. daily, except Sunday.—For Scottsville, Mt. Morris, Nunda, Dansville, Olean, and intermediate stations.

4.30 P. M. daily, except Sunday.—For Scottsville, Mt. Morris, Nunda, Hinsdale, Olean, and intermediate stations.

For information relative to rates, time, etc., apply to agents at New York Central and West Avenue Stations.

JAMES R. WOOD,
Pass'r Traffic Manager.
W. W. ATTERBURY,
Gen'l Manager.
GEO. W. BOYD,
General Passenger Agent.

LEHIGH VALLEY R R.

STATION, SOUTH AVENUE.
In effect Dec. 4, 1904.

*Daily. ‖Except Sunday. †Sunday only.

Lv. Roch.		No	Ar. Roch
*7:15 a.m.	N. Y. and Phila. Exp.	8	*2:05 a.m.
*8:15 a.m.	Buffalo & Toronto Exp	4	*6:35 a.m.
*2:25 a.m.	Geneva & Ithaca Loc'l	139	‖10:30 a.m.
10:35 a.m.	Geneva & Buffalo Loc'l	146	‖10:30 a.m.
*2:30 p.m.	N. Y. & Phila. exp Ve	6	*10:30 a.m.
11:55 a.m.	N. Y. & Phila. Exp Ve	10	*10:30a.m.
*5:15 p.m.	Black Diamond Ex.....	10	‖12:35p.m.
4:25 p.m.	Buff. & Toronto Exp...	135	*4:30 p.m.
5:10 p.m.	Ithaca & Sayre Local.	130	*8:35 p.m.
10:10 p.m.	" "	130	*6:35 p.m.
6:25 p.m.	Buff. & Niagara Falls Ex	7	*6:35 p.m.
8:15 p.m.	" "	7	*6:35 p.m.
*7:40 p.m.	Black Diamond Ex.....	9	*9:50 p.m.
*7:50 p.m.	N.Y. Special, New train	31	7:50 p.m.
10:30 p.m.	N. Y. & Phila. Special	1	*1:30 p.m.

‖9:35 A. M. and ‖5:25 P. M. for points on Hemlock Lake branch. ‖8:55 A. M., ‖11:55 A. M. and *2:15 P. M., 5:10 P. M. for Honeoye Falls only.

City ticket office, 13 East Main Street. 'Phone 1191.

CHAS. S. LEE, Gen'l Pass. Agt., New York.
GEO. H. HARRIS, Dist. Pass. Agt., Rochester, N. Y.

Rochester & Eastern Rapid Ry

Through Service to Geneva

Also Pittsford, Victor, Canandaigua and intermediate points. Trains leave ticket office, 74 Exchange Street.

A. M.—*6:30, 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, 10:30, 11:30.
P. M.—12:30, 1:30, 2:30, 3:30, *4:04 (holiday limited), 4:30, 5:30, 6:30, 7:30, 8:30, cb9:30, *L11:30, b11:30, a12:30.

(*) Daily except Sunday. (a) To Pittsford only. (b) To Canandaigua only. (c) Runs through on Sunday. (L) Limited. Baggage checked from residence to destination. Home 'phone 5400.

Through tickets to Waterloo and Seneca Falls.

RAILROADS.

ERIE RAILROAD
PICTURESQUE TRUNK LINE OF AMERICA

7:00 A. M., except Sunday, for Corning, Elmira, Binghamton and New York, connecting at Painted Post for points West; also connects at Avon for Hornellsville and Buffalo.

8:00 A. M., Sunday only, accommodation to Elmira, connecting for Binghamton and New York.

9:40 A. M., except Sunday, accommodation to Elmira, Dansville and Buffalo, connecting for Chicago, Cincinnati and West.

4:30 P. M., except Sunday, for Avon, Mt. Morris, connecting for Dansville, Buffalo and Hornellsville.

5:00 P. M., daily, accommodation for Elmira, connecting for Binghamton, New York, Baltimore, Washington and points South.

6:00 P. M., Sunday only, for Avon, Geneseo and Mt. Morris.

Trains Arrive—8:55 A. M., except Sunday; 9 A. M., Sunday only; 11 A. M., daily except Sunday; 11:15 A. M., Sunday only; 6 P. M. except Sunday; 9:15 P. M., daily.

Station, Court Street; City Ticket Office, 11 Exchange Street. Rochester 'phone, 1058. Bell 'phone, 1462 Main.

C. J. Gilbert, Passenger and Ticket Agt.
H. T. JAEGER, Gen'l Agt., Buffalo, N. Y.
D. W. COOKE, Gen'l Pass'r Agt., New York.

WEST SHORE RAILROAD

ALL TRAINS ARRIVE AND DEPART from N. Y. C. & H. R. R. R. Station for Syracuse, Utica, Albany, Boston, New York, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and all points East, West, North and South, as follows:

LEAVE GOING EAST.

*2:05 A. M.—Continental Limited.
7:55 A. M.—Local Express.
*10:37 A. M.—New York Express.
*2:17 P. M.—Newark Local.
*7:02 P. M.—New York Express.
*10:05 P. M.—Atlantic Express.

LEAVE GOING WEST.

*12:35 A. M.—Continental Limited.
*2:42 A. M.—Chicago Limited.
M2:09 A. M.—National Express.
*7:13—A. M.—Buffalo Local.
*10:15 A. M.—Pacific Express.
*C5:07 P. M.—Buffalo Local.

TRAINS ARRIVE.

From the East—A. M.—*12:02, *2:37, M2:09, *7:10, *10:10. P. M.—5:02.

From the West—A. M.—*5:05, C8:35, *10:52. P. M.—*C8:12, *10:02.

* Denotes Daily.
M Denotes Daily except Monday. All other trains daily except Sunday.
C Denotes trains stop at Center Park Station.

g Legacies train runs via N. Y. C. main line between Buffalo and Central Junction.

Ticket sold, sleeping berths secured and baggage checked to destination at city office, 20 State Street (Telephone, Rochester 858, Bell 963), and at the Central Avenue Station (Telephone, Rochester, 1896, Bell 964).

Agents of Westcott Express Company are on all through trains to check baggage and engage cab and carriage, etc.

C. E. LAMBERT, J. C. KAUFFLEISCH, Gen'l Pass'r Agt., New York. Dist. Pass'r Agt., Rochester.

BUFFALO, ROCHESTER & PITTSBURGH RY

Ticket Offices—11 Exchange Street and West Avenue Station.

TRAINS LEAVE.

7:30 A. M.—Week days, Pittsburg Day Express, for Salamanca, Bradford and Pittsburg. Connects for Perry, Hornellsville, Jamestown, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis. (Cafe car.)

4:00 P. M.—Week days, accommodation for Le Roy, Warsaw, Silver Springs and Perry. Connects for Castile, Swains, Camaseraga and Hornellsville.

9:15 P. M.—Daily, Pittsburg Night Express, for Salamanca, Bradford and Pittsburg. Connects for Jamestown, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis. (Pullman sleeper.)

TRAINS ARRIVE.

8:40 A. M.—Daily, from Pittsburg.
11:35 A. M.—Week days, from Perry.
7:20 P. M.—Week days, from Pittsburg.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

THE EVENING TIMES

TIMES BUILDING, 39 & 33 STATE ST.—ESTABLISHED 1897

OFFICIAL PAPER OF CITY AND COUNTY

PUBLISHED BY

THE EVENING TIMES COMPANY

JOHN E. MOREY, S. POWELL PUFFER, GUY W. ELLIS, Directors

SUBSCRIPTION RATES		TELEPHONE CALLS
One Year (by Mail or Carrier)	$3.00	Editorial Rooms	Both Phones 698
Six Months	1.50
Three Months	.75	Advertising Department	Rochester 2462
One Month	.25	Subscription Department	Bell 272

THE EVENING TIMES is the only afternoon paper in Rochester that submits its circulation records to examination and guarantees to advertisers a verified average greater by one-third than either of its afternoon competitors.

An Unwilling Press Puts Its Ear to the Ground and Ceases to Support the Mingle Water Company

Now that Mayor Cutler has spoken so decisively for the protection of the city's waterworks system from the encroachments of a private system—being the second Mayor who has sounded a warning against the menacing project of the Rochester & Lake Ontario Water Company—it is to be expected that at least a majority of the Rochester newspapers will fall in and support the efforts necessary to protect the city.

For a long time the EVENING TIMES has fought singly to prevent the private water company establishing a foothold in Rochester, which it has fought to secure in defiance of law and order. Other newspapers entered into the pay of the private company, opening their columns to the most deceptive promises and assurances to the public on the part of the company in paid advertising matter given the guise of ordinary news matter and calculated to lull public vigilance into a false sense of security. In furtherance of its ulterior purpose of stifling public opinion the company even sought to win the favor and support of prominent citizens and public men by offering them stock at a merely nominal figure.

IT MADE A DESPERATE EFFORT TO DISARM ALL GUARDIANSHIP OF THE PUBLIC INTEREST AND FAILED IN ITS FIRST EFFORTS THROUGH THE ENERGY OF MAYOR RODENBECK IN FIGHTING IT IN THE COURTS AND THE PERSISTENCE OF THE EVENING TIMES IN EXPOSING ALL OF ITS UNDERHAND METHODS IN STRIVING TO BREAK INTO THE CITY.

It is gratifying to find that one of the morning papers has vigorously taken up Mayor Cutler's warning against the encroachments of the Mingle water company, belated though its declarations in the matter in the public interest have been. It now seems likely that it may be followed—though no doubt in a perfunctory way—by some of the other journals that entered into friendly and profitable negotiations with the company when it first entered the field. The indications are that they will no longer dare to fly in the face of a formidable public sentiment by persisting in standing for the betrayal of the interest of the city to a few foreign capitalists having no interest in Rochester other than that of taking away the profits of its water system. These profits now go to pay the indebtedness of that system, which amounts to many millions of dollars, and which would be a tremendous burden upon the taxpayers, if the waterworks system ceased to be self-sustaining.

It is well to reproduce what the Herald said yesterday about keeping the Mingle water company out of Rochester, using arguments which the EVENING TIMES presented two years ago in blocking the efforts of the company when it was of vital consequence to the city that a determined opposition should be manifested. The Herald says:

> When the Court of Appeals of this state, by the closest possible division, decided that the Lake Ontario Water Company had derived from the statute known as the Transportation act the right to lay its waterpipes through the city of Rochester upon the property of a railway corporation, everyone foresaw that the next important move of this company would be an attempt to sell its water to persons and corporations residing within the city limits. * * * THAT IS WHAT IT CAME HERE FOR. IF IT CAN NOT SUCCEED IN THAT, THE MOST IMPORTANT ELEMENT OF ITS VENTURE, PROBABLY IT WILL WASTE LITTLE FURTHER TIME IN PUSHING ITS MINOR ENTERPRISES IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD.
>
> We are glad to see the Mayor and the Corporation Counsel preparing to resist with all possible vigor the water company's invasion of the city's exclusive province. Rochester has expended upon the purchase of its source of water supply, its conduits, its pumping plants, its reservoir sites and the numerous other expensive features of its excellent water system, great sums of money. So large an investment has been made in this necessity of urban life, that the burden of paying for it has been wisely, if not necessarily, distributed so as to fall equitably upon successive generations of taxpayers. The chief resource of the revenues out of which the payment of the cost and the running expenses of this water system is being annually made, is in the sale of the water furnished by the system.
>
> This means plainly that the safety of the city's investment in a water plant requires that it retain the monopoly of its water market. If it surrenders any portion of its income from this source, it must find another source of revenue to replace it. * * * The entrance of the Lake Ontario Water Company into Rochester, therefore, with full privilege to sell to the citizens of Rochester, without compensation for this privilege, MEANS INCREASED TAXES UPON EVERY PROPERTY OWNER IN THE CITY. More than that, IT MEANS, IN THE END, DEARER, INSTEAD OF CHEAPER, WATER FOR DOMESTIC CONSUMPTION.
>
> Unless the charter of a city in New York State is nearly worthless, this city ought to be able by legal proceedings to prevent the piracy of its rights and property by a water company, as well as by a street car company.

The public of Rochester holds the press to the obligation of guarding against the betrayal of its interests.

The securing of Horace McGuire of this city as a member of the staff of the Attorney General of the State is the gain of the department primarily, as it is certain that he will lend notable service in the conduct of the important work of that department. Mr. McGuire has never been a candidate for office, although always active in Republican politics. He has occupied an enviable position at the Monroe County bar, and the State administration is most fortunate in being able to induce him to accept a position on the Attorney General's staff. The office has sought the man and it will find that the service it receives will reflect high credit upon the general administration of the State's legal department.

A Strong Argument For Rapid Road Improvement

Good roads advocates insist that farm values in New York State have decreased because while rapid transit and cheap transportation have been furnished by the steamships and the steam roads to many shippers, nothing has been done to cheapen the cost of the haul of a ton of farm product over the roads of the State. The improvement of one mile of highway in every ten of all the miles of highway in the State would create a system of 7,500 miles of road, which, following the main highways of the State, would leave no farm within the State further away than a five-mile haul, and most of the farms would be within three miles of an improved highway. When once on an improved highway, a ton of farm produce would be moved for 12 1-2 cents a ton per mile, a saving of 100 per cent. over the present cost.

SEEN AND HEARD

"A chiel's among you taking notes, and, faith, he'll prent it."
—Robert Burns.

The boy of the family, who is by the way the only child, has become imbued with an idea that the household exists solely for his benefit. His mother has had to make up her mind that he must be disabused of this idea, and lately he has been subjected to stronger discipline than usual. The other day he retaliated by saying something to his mother which bordered on the saucy. The mother, feeling that the limit had been reached, took a ruler and whipped his hand with it. The boy was very much hurt in mind, if not in body, and it seemed like insult on injury when his mother said emphatically: "I am ashamed of you. You are a very naughty boy, indeed."

Struggling to keep back undignified tears, the youngster faced her. The naughtiness had not all been crushed out of him for he replied fiercely:

"I don't care what I am. I don't care if I'm a—a—a—gas jet!"

* * *

"Strange how the snow produces a change in the feelings of people," said an observant man on West Avenue the other day.

"I have noticed people frown and complain at an approaching snow storm and then become positively joyous in their anticipations of a sleigh ride.

"Speaking of sleigh riding," he continued, when he saw his companion had no comment to make, "recalls to my mind things I have noticed as a further proof of the inconsistency of the human being.

"The drivers of vehicles on wheels seem almost frozen when there is any depth of snow on the ground, while those in sleighs seem rosy cheeked and happy. Furthermore, you will notice that those who can afford it often drive behind a pair of speeding horses attached to a sleigh, and enjoy good solid comfort, whereas if there was no snow on the ground and the weather was much milder, they would travel in a closed vehicle and then show signs of dissatisfaction with winter."

"Their glow of pleasure must keep them warm," laconicaly replied his companion.

* * *

Williamson is a man who belongs to several lodges, and who though ordinarily a temperate man, is occasionally led into convivality through his associations. On such occasions his wife is apt to grumble and, as Williamson dreads above all things a curtain lecture, he tries various little conciliatory devices with more or less success.

One evening, not long ago, Williamson went out for an hour or two. He stayed longer than he intended. When he finally got out in the cold air, he found that the few social glasses he had taken had mounted to his head.

"Mrs. Williamson will be angry," was his first thought, and he immediately began to think out some way of diverting the edge of feminine wrath. Just then he passed a butcher's. There was some fine steak displayed in the window, and Williamson remembered how much his wife enjoyed the succulent meat, well broiled. He went in, bought a couple of pounds, and stole home, entering the basement door as quietly as a thief in the night, and fondly believing that his wife did not hear him.

He made up a bright fire, the heat from which still further fuddled his ideas, and then he prepared to fix the steak just the way Mrs. W. liked it.

Pretty soon from the lower region of the upper floor, where Mrs. Williamson sat, there arose an odor which made that person quickly clap her hands to her nose and rush down the stairs to see if the house was on fire.

And there in the kitchen she found Mr. Williamson. The broiler was on the fire. On the broiler was the holder which she used to remove hot dishes from the fire. And carefully holding the broiler with the two-pound steak was the head of the house trying to look dignified, and saying not a word.

* * *

"The mut's leadin' th' bunch a mile at th' three-quarter post," says Andy Lewis in the "Tout" this week at the Corinthian, "an' I ain't got a sou in me jeans. A bookie hollers: 'A tousand dollars t' a pin that he can't win.'

"I sees somethin' bright on th' ground picks it up and trows it at the bookie as the horses come under the wire.

"'Jimmie,' he says to th' guy wot's handlin' th' dough: 'Give th' gent a tousand dollars.' I just was closin' me mit over th' dough when he says again: 'Hol' on a minnete. Dis ain't a pin, it's a needle.' Ain't that hard luck. Kin ye beat it?"

* * *

A well known salesman, whose territory takes in the South, tells the following:

"It was my misfortune, several years ago, to learn somewhat of the question that is giving the South so much concern even unto the present day.

"I stood talking with the night clerk of a hotel in Atlanta, while waiting for the midnight train going to Savannah. The conversation interested me so much that I lost all thought of time, until the bell somewhere in the vicinity began striking 12.

"'There, Tom!' the clerk suddenly called to a big, strong negro porter, 'carry this satchel to the Savannah train. Run or you'll miss it.'

"Tom snatched up my large satchel and hurried across the street to the train shed, reaching there just in time to throw the satchel upon the rear platform of the train, which had already started.

"As I ran behind him I dug into my trousers pocket for a silver quarter to give to him; and as he flung the satchel on the platform I clapped the coin into his hand and leaped aboard.

"When the conductor came for my fare I said to myself, 'Here's where I get rid of that $10 gold piece before I spend it for a quarter.' But I was mistaken. I had already spent it for a quarter, and I now remembered that the coin I had given to Tom did feel strangely heavy.

"Two weeks later I was in Atlanta again.

"'Good God!' she heard him mutter.

"'Oh, dear!' exclaimed Verna. 'He's going to open it before my eyes.'

Regardless of the rain, the man read the letter, and then stood staring miserably at it. Held like a criminal in the pillory, Verna gazed across at him. She felt a certain satisfaction in his misery.

"Anyone could tell at a glance he had been refused. It sticks out all over him. I never saw anyone look so deliciously wretched. Heavens! He's going away. Mr. Drayton! Mr. Drayton!"

But the man, with his hat pulled over his eyes and his hands thrust deep in his pockets, had forgotten everything but the letter and its message of despair.

Verna, with sudden determination, opened her umbrella and flung it to the wind. An accommodating gust carried it straight to Earl's feet. He blundered into it, stopped mechanically, picked it up and looked, as she knew he would, up and down the street for the owner.

She waved her hand to him. He saw, and splattered through the mud to her. When he realized the situation a smile struggled through his misery. Verna's face was hot with blushes.

"Earl," she said, "give me my letter. How dare you take it!"

"Your letter?" gasped Drayton. "Pardon me: it's addressed to me, and that, in the eyes of the law, makes it mine."

"It wasn't posted," protested Verna, looking down at the rain-dimpled puddles, "so, legally, it still belongs to me. Besides, I don't think I will post it——"

"I think," said Verna a moment later, "you might, at least, have held up the umbrella. And now please set me free."

"Never again," laughed Earl. And the day grew brighter for both of them than the weather bureau had declared at all possible.—Boston Post.

DAILY SHORT STORY

On the Wings of the Wind

By Miss Sadie N. Wiggin.

Tracy Castleton was in no way suggestive of Cupid, yet the practical banker and the rosy god organized a curious partnership when the former built the Castleton Bank on Main Street.

The main entrance to the building was provided with a door so excessively ponderous that only a person of brawn and muscle could open it. The lightest breeze, however, was more than sufficient to close it. It had a reprehensible habit of snapping shut upon a fold of a feminine garment and holding the hapless wearer prisoner until her release should be effected by some chivalrous passer-by.

It was a blustering, unpleasant day when the massive door closed viciously upon the hem of Verna's rainy-day skirt. She was sheltered from the driving rain, but the door resisted all her efforts to open it.

The only visible man was Earl Drayton—the very last man she wanted to see. She held in her hand an unposted letter addressed to him. The letter was brief, but it had taken her half the night to write it, and three-quarters of the morning to make up her mind to mail it. It was her refusal of him—well considered and determined.

Dryton's eyes were glued to a fly-bitten wedding cake in the caterer's window opposite.

"Conceited goose!" murmured the prisoner. "I'm glad I said 'no.' He's altogether too sure of me. But what shall I do? I can't call a man I've refused—I mean I'm going to refuse—to get me out of this. Besides, if he sees this letter, he'll think I've been hesitating. I wish I had a pocket. Oh! Oh——"

A sudden gust of wind twitched the Irish linen envelope out of her hand, carried it across the street and hurled it against the wet glass of the caterer's window.

It fell at his feet, the address staring the astonished suitor in the face.

Magazine and Literary Notes

In "The Voice of Nature," by Charles Wagner, we have a fitting companion to "The Simple Life." It is refreshing in these days to find such a book. It is like the spicy breath from a pine-covered mountain, set to the music of murmuring waters and perfumed by the opening flowers.

The "Voice of Nature" is a noble book from every point of view. We have had no writer whose absolute simplicity of diction and deep love of nature in all its phases has had such happy expression.

The author takes as subjects for discussion the most commonplace and everyday occurrences, and describes them with such clearness and minuteness that no one who reads can help saying: "I have seen just those things and thought just as he does."

In this book Mr. Wagner has come even closer to the people than he did in "Simple Life." He never preaches nor tacks a moral to what he says, but presents it in such a way that the deeper meanings seem to lie bared before the reader's eyes.

Whoever misses reading this book will miss genuine pleasure and profit.

* * *

"Six years before Paster Wagner's 'Simple Life' came from the press, President Eliot of Harvard published a little book entitled 'The Happy Life' (Crowell). In each of these books is expounded the philosophy of the life worth living, and to one who has read them both they present a most interesting comparative study. It is very possible that if eight years ago the President of the United States had chanced in one of his speeches to call attention to Charles W. Eliot's book, we might at that early date have recognized in our own land and tongue—in a form fully as masterful and even more concrete—as powerful and practical a plea for simplicity of living as that which we exploit today in the volume by Charles Wagner."

The above opening sentences are quoted from a three-column article which lately appeared in the New York Evening Post. Several interesting parallel passages from the two books are shown.

"The Women of America," by Miss Elizabeth McCracken, is the fruit of a long journey, the purpose of which was to investigate the ideals and achievements of American women, in the professions, in municipal affairs, in the arts, and above all in the home and in things pertaining to home-making. The journey extended over nearly the entire United States. Collecting statistics concerning the women of a given city and their occupations was performed with care, but it was always subordinated to the more vivid advantage of personal meetings with these women and personal visits to the actual scenes of their occupations. Her aim was not only to observe and record the life of American women as influenced by locality, education, and occupation, but also to show what is really typical and significant, what women are feeling and thinking as well as what they are doing, and to illustrate this by anecdote, bits of talk, and actual experience. The titles of some of the chapters are: "The Pioneer Woman of the West," "The Woman in the Small Town," "The Southern Woman and Reconstruction," "Woman Suffrage in Colorado," "The Woman in Her Club," "The Woman in the Play," "The Woman from the College," "The American Woman of Letters," and "The Woman on the Farm."

The book is published by the Macmillan Company.

* * *

"Cabbages and Kings" is the title of a novel of Central American politics by O. Henry which McClure-Phillips brought out about the middle of November. O. Henry's cleverly-told tales dealing with life in Central America, which have been appearing in the magazines, have been woven by him into a connected narrative. His characters range from an absconding bank president to a swarthy son of the soil, and the plot is cleverly developed through a series of ludicrous and amusing situations.

* * *

Miss Frances Davidge, the author of D. Appleton & Company's fall novel, "The Maid it Crown," has traveled in many lands, and has rather a fancy for out-of-the-way places. She tells a story of an old nook of the world where feather beds were an unknown quantity. Some one of the party complained of the lack, and a serious-minded farmer overheard the complaint. Nothing further was thought of the matter until the farmer limped lamely in to breakfast.

"Feather beds may be all right if you like them," he grumbled, "but I don't. If just a few feathers like that make my bones ache so, what would a lot do?"

"But where did you get a feather bed?"

"Got bing it, I slept in the chicken coop."

* * *

George P. Upton is known to lovers of music everywhere as the author of small but authoritative works on the "Standard Operas," "Standard Oratorios," "Standard Cantatas," "Standard Symphonies" and "Standard Light Operas." Mr. Upton's are translated from the German of Ferdinand Schmidt, Franz Hoffman or Frederick Henning, but many of the future volumes will be original work. Like these, however, they will be stories interesting to read and not mere groups of facts and dates, and all will be illustrated.

* * *

Madame Adam, the author of "My Literary Life," one of the recent acquisitions of D. Appleton & Company, is one of the few living writers who can tell a good story after the manner of the old school. Here is such a story which she modestly quotes from Madame de Pierreclos:

"Would you believe that I had inspired Monsieur de Rambuteau with a passion for me?"

"But Monsieur de Rambuteau died quite old, some years ago."

"Well, it was just about that time that he entertained quite a mad love for me."

"Tell us about it."

"Oh! his avowal of love! How do men generally tell their love?"

"In sweet and loving words."

"And in what position?"

"On their knees."

"Exactly so. Well, Monsieur de Rambuteau, with much trouble, got down on his knees to tell me of his love; he used the most charming language, such as:

"'Fair lady, my heart is torn asunder, and can only be sewed together by your hands.' Isn't that pretty?"

"Oh, charming!"

"My admirer was leaning with clasped hands against my knees. He talked and talked and became more and more excited. Guess what my answer was?"

"I too love you?"

"No!"

"My flame reciprocates your own?"

"That would have been too weak."

"Mercy! What then?"

"I am yours."

"I threw myself back in my chair, thus taking away from him the support of my knees. Monsieur de Rambuteau fell forward, and groaned; I rang for my maid to pick him up, which was not an easy matter."

"That was one of the most dangerous adventures of my life," added Madame de Pierreclos, gravely.

* * *

Myra Kelly, whose stories which appeared in McClure's Magazine during the last year, have been made into a book bearing the title "Little Citizens," drew upon her own actual experiences for the material of her amusing tales. She was for over two years a teacher in an school on East Broadway, right in the heart of the most foreign section of New York. She is an Irish woman, born in Dublin, of pure Irish stock; and the natural Irish turn of mind towards fun made her express the humorous side of her experience. There has been a serious turn to some of the reviews of her book. They have gone so far as to say that it should be on the desk of every one interested in education today." Miss Kelly declares that she aimed to be amusing, rather than instructive, and it both flatters and surprises her to find that her book has so serious an import.

* * *

McClure-Phillips have just published a book by E. P. Powell, one of New York State's prize fruit-farmers, entitled "The Country Home." More than 30 years ago the author was forced by ill health to leave the pulpit. With a limited capital and nine acres he found it necessary to make a living. Out of his property he has made a beautiful home, an abundant income, and become an authority throughout the country on rural matters. The book is written to supply the needs of that large body of people who are deserting the crowded metropolitan districts, and establishing themselves in the country. It is a practical book on making the first essential of the country home, the homestead, and gives detailed information about choosing the land, growing the house, the water supply, the lawns, the orchards, how to save money and where not to save it, merits and demerits of ornamental trees, truck gardening, etc. It is not a book of theory, but a common sense volume founded on the experience of the author.

* * *

McClure-Phillips promise Miss Ida M. Tarbell's "The History of the Standard Oil Company" for early in December. Among the serious works of the year this one will probably take first place. The book is made from the articles which have been appearing in McClure's Magazine, but has been enlarged and rewritten to include additional information and facts that were disclosed during the serial run of the article. Miss Tarbell, whose "Life of Lincoln" and "Life of Napoleon" give her standing at the head of the leading women historians of America, in telling the history of this first and greatest American trust, has also told the history of the rise of the trust problem. She has made a dramatic story of the war now over 30 years old between the Standard Oil trust and the people. Her facts are all supported by documentary evidence, and are reinforced and given life by the

Business Men Prefer the California Limited

Santa Fe — All the Way

Why? — the train "wears well"

The service is faultlessly good every mile and every minute

Santa Fe standard All the Way — That's the reason

Chicago and Kansas City to Los Angeles and 'Frisco.

Chas. A. Marsh, Pass. Agt., 220 Ellicott Sq. Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

SUITS

MADE BY KOHN BROS., CHICAGO.

$10 TO $15

No better Suits in the world for the money.

SOLD IN ROCHESTER BY

GARDINER

92 STATE STREET.

FINANCIAL.

SPADER & PERKINS

Members NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE, CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE, ROCHESTER STOCK EXCHANGE

Home, 1184. 4460, 2509. Bell, 1134.

Representing MARSHALL, SPADER & CO., New York

AMUSEMENTS

COOK OPERA HOUSE

DELLA FOX

CHARLIE CASE

Waterbury Bros. and Tenney, Nichols Sisters, Charles Hera, Watson, Hutchings and Edwards, Besnah and Miller, Kinetograph.

NEXT WEEK Rose Wentworth Trio

CORINTHIAN THEATRE

Temple of Laughter

HENRY C. JACOBS, Proprietor

WEEK, MONDAY, Dec. 26 AL REEVES

Mat. daily. Ladies' Mat. Friday, 10c.

PRICES { Matinee—10c, 20c, 30c. { 'Phone
{ Night—15c, 20c, 30c, 50c. { 1301

Next Week—HIGH ROLLERS.

THE LYCEUM

Tonight—One Night Only.

BERTHA GALLAND

(Direction of Fred Zimmerman, Jr.) in Paul Kester's dramatization of

Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall

by Charles Major, supported by a notable company of prominent players.

Friday and Saturday—William Faversham in "Letty."

NATIONAL Thursday, Friday and Saturday

Matinees Thursday and Saturday.

The Liberty Belles

40 Singers, Dancers, Comedians. Special Feature—The Radium Ballet. Jan. 2, 3, 4, "The Sign of the Four."

Prices: Mats. 15c and 25c. Nights 15c to 75c.

BAKER Thursday, Friday and Saturday

Matinees Friday and Saturday. Magnificent Scenic Production of

Deserted at the Altar

Jan. 2, 3, 4, "Escaped from the Harem"

Popular Novelty Concert Every Sunday Night.

Prices: Mats. 10c, 20c. Nights: 15c, 20c, 30c, 50c.

UNDERTAKERS.

RESPECTABLE

FUNERAL $50

I will furnish for the above amount casket trimmed complete, rough box, hearse, two coaches and services.

Higher price funerals in proportion. Get prices of others, then come to me and save money. NO FRAUD.

Public funeral parlors.

Carriages furnished with UNION drivers.

I make my own caskets.

C. E. STRAUCHEN, Undertaker
253 North Street. Both 'Phones.

JEFFREYS

UNDERTAKERS

REMOVED TO 33 CHESTNUT ST.

ROCHESTER, N Y

ANGMURE & THOMPSON

ROCHESTER SAVINGS BANK

Corner Main St. W. and Fitzhugh St. Organized 1831.

Resources July 1, 1904, $21,292,147.31
Surplus, 1,793,088.32

MONEY TO LOAN

4 1-2 PER CENT.

on sums of $10,000 and over. All sums less than $10,000, 5 per cent.

Deposits made on or before the first three business days of any month will draw interest from the first day of that month.

T. A. McINTYRE & CO.

Members of New York Stock Exchange.

George B. Dresser

MANAGER.

107-8 Ellwanger & Barry Building.

Fast Grain Quotations Over Private Wire

Monroe County Savings Bank

32 and 35 State St., Rochester, N. Y.

INCORPORATED 1850.

Interest allowed on accounts of $500 and under, 4 per cent. On accounts exceeding $500 3½ per cent on the whole amount. Money to loan at

4 1-2 Per Cent

In sums of $10,000 and over. All sums less than $10,000, 5 per cent.

Resources, Jan. 1, 1903, - 15,758,906.76
Surplus, - - 1,708,019.33

JAMES E. BOOTH, President.
DAVID HOYT, Secretary and Treasurer.

Mechanics Savings Bank

18 Exchange Street.

Interest allowed on accounts of $1,000 and under at the rate of 4 per cent per annum.

On accounts exceeding $1,000 3½ per cent on whole account.

Money loaned on bond and mortgage in sums of $10,000 and under at 5 per cent. Over $10,000 at 4½ per cent.

CHARLES M. EVEREST, Pres.
ARTHUR LUETCHFORD, Secretary and Treasurer.

HAND SAPOLIO

It ensures an enjoyable, invigorating bath; makes every pore respond, removes dead skin,

ENERGIZES THE WHOLE BODY

starts the circulation, and leaves a glow equal to a Turkish bath.

ALL GROCERS AND DRUGGISTS.

GET YOUR CUT FLOWERS

PHONE 4088

H. E. WILSON, FLORIST

20 MAIN STREET, E.

ROCHESTER, N.Y.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

An Unwilling Press Puts Its Ear to the Ground and Ceases to Support the Mingle Water Company

Now that Mayor Cutler has spoken so decisively for the protection of the city's waterworks system from the encroachments of a private system—being the second Mayor who has sounded a warning against the menacing project of the Rochester & Lake Ontario Water Company—it is to be expected that at least a majority of the Rochester newspapers will fall in and support the efforts necessary to protect the city.

For a long time the EVENING TIMES has fought singly to prevent the private water company establishing a foothold in Rochester, which it has fought to secure in defiance of law and order. Other newspapers entered into the pay of the private company, opening their columns to the most deceptive promises and assurances to the public on the part of the company in paid advertising matter given the guise of ordinary news matter and calculated to lull public vigilance into a false sense of security. In furtherance of its ulterior purpose of stifling public opinion the company even sought to win the favor and support of prominent citizens and public men by offering them stock at a merely nominal figure.

IT MADE A DESPERATE EFFORT TO DISARM ALL GUARDIANSHIP OF THE PUBLIC INTEREST AND FAILED IN ITS FIRST EFFORTS THROUGH THE ENERGY OF MAYOR RODENBECK IN FIGHTING IT IN THE COURTS AND THE PERSISTENCE OF THE EVENING TIMES IN EXPOSING ALL OF ITS UNDERHAND METHODS IN STRIVING TO BREAK INTO THE CITY.

It is gratifying to find that one of the morning papers has vigorously taken up Mayor Cutler's warning against the encroachments of the Mingle water company, belated though its declarations in the matter in the public interest have been. It now seems likely that it may be followed—though no doubt in a perfunctory way—by some of the other journals that entered into friendly and profitable negotiations with the company when it first entered the field. The indications are that they will no longer dare to fly in the face of a formidable public sentiment by persisting in standing for the betrayal of the interest of the city to a few foreign capitalists having no interest in Rochester other than that of taking away the profits of its water system. These profits now go to pay the indebtedness of that system, which amounts to many millions of dollars, and which would be a tremendous burden upon the taxpayers, if the waterworks system ceased to be self-sustaining.

It is well to reproduce what the Herald said yesterday about keeping the Mingle water company out of Rochester, using arguments which the EVENING TIMES presented two years ago in blocking the efforts of the company when it was of vital consequence to the city that a determined opposition should be manifested. The Herald says:

> When the Court of Appeals of this state, by the closest possible division, decided that the Lake Ontario Water Company had derived from the statute known as the Transportation act the right to lay its waterpipes through the city of Rochester upon the property of a railway corporation, everyone foresaw that the next important move of this company would be an attempt to sell its water to persons and corporations residing within the city limits. * * * THAT IS WHAT IT CAME HERE FOR. IF IT CAN NOT SUCCEED IN THAT, THE MOST IMPORTANT ELEMENT OF ITS VENTURE, PROBABLY IT WILL WASTE LITTLE FURTHER TIME IN PUSHING ITS MINOR ENTERPRISES IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD.
>
> We are glad to see the Mayor and the Corporation Counsel preparing to resist with all possible vigor the water company's invasion of the city's exclusive province. Rochester has expended upon the purchase of its source of water supply, its conduits, its pumping plants, its reservoir sites and the numerous other expensive features of its excellent water system, great sums of money. So large an investment has been made in this necessity of urban life, that the burden of paying for it has been wisely, if not necessarily, distributed so as to fall equitably upon successive generations of taxpayers. The chief resource of the revenues out of which the payment of the cost and the running expenses of this water system is being annually made, is in the sale of the water furnished by the system.
>
> This means plainly that the safety of the city's investment in a water plant requires that it retain the monopoly of its water market. If it surrenders any portion of its income from this source, it must find another source of revenue to replace it. * * * The entrance of the Lake Ontario Water Company into Rochester, therefore, with full privilege to sell to the citizens of Rochester, without compensation for this privilege, MEANS INCREASED TAXES UPON EVERY PROPERTY OWNER IN THE CITY. More than that, IT MEANS, IN THE END, DEARER, INSTEAD OF CHEAPER, WATER FOR DOMESTIC CONSUMPTION.
>
> Unless the charter of a city in New York State is nearly worthless, this city ought to be able by legal proceedings to prevent the piracy of its rights and property by a water company, as well as by a street car company.

The public of Rochester holds the press to the obligation of guarding against the betrayal of its interests.

The securing of Horace McGuire of this city as a member of the staff of the Attorney General of the State is the gain of the department primarily, as it is certain that he will lend notable service in the conduct of the important work of that department. Mr. McGuire has never been a candidate for office, although always active in Republican politics. He has occupied an enviable position at the Monroe County bar, and the State administration is most fortunate in being able to induce him to accept a position on the Attorney General's staff. The office has sought the man and it will find that the service it receives will reflect high credit upon the general administration of the State's legal department.

A Strong Argument For Rapid Road Improvement

Good roads advocates insist that farm values in New York State have decreased because while rapid transit and cheap transportation have been furnished by the steamships and the steam roads to many shippers, nothing has been done to cheapen the cost of the haul of a ton of farm product over the roads of the State. The improvement of one mile of highway in every ten of all the miles of highway in the State would create a system of 7,500 miles of road, which, following the main highways of the State, would leave no farm within the State further away than a five-mile haul, and most of the farms would be within three miles of an improved highway. When once on an improved highway, a ton of farm produce would be moved for 12 1-2 cents a ton per mile, a saving of 100 per cent. over the present cost.

The good roads advocates therefore insist that the State expend $50,000,000 upon a system of 7,500 miles of highway and construct the same within ten years, expending $5,000,000 a year so as to intelligently open up the entire State to cheap transportation for the farmer just the same as the people of New York and Buffalo have voted $100,000,000 to be expended on the canal to cheapen transportation of the farm products of Indiana, Ohio and Illi[illegible] to the markets of New York City, which belong first to our own farm[illegible]

"Strange how the snow produces a change in the feelings of people," said an observant man on West Avenue the other day.

"I have noticed people frown and complain at an approaching snow storm and then become positively joyous in their anticipations of a sleigh ride.

"Speaking of sleigh riding," he continued, when he saw his companion had no comment to make, "recalls to my mind things I have noticed as a further proof of the inconsistency of the human being.

"The drivers of vehicles on wheels seem almost frozen when there is any depth of snow on the ground, while those in sleighs seem rosy cheeked and happy. Furthermore, you will notice that those who can afford it often drive behind a pair of speeding horses attached to a sleigh, and enjoy good solid comfort, whereas if there was no snow on the ground and the weather was much milder, they would travel in a closed vehicle and then show signs of dissatisfaction with winter."

"Their glow of pleasure must keep them warm," laconicaly replied his companion.

* * *

Williamson is a man who belongs to several lodges, and who though ordinarily a temperate man, is occasionally led into conviviality through his associations. On such occasions his wife is apt to grumble and, as Williamson dreads above all things a curtain lecture, he tries various little conciliatory devices with more or less success.

One evening, not long ago, Williamson went out for an hour or two. He stayed longer than he intended. When he finally got out in the cold air, he found that the few social glasses he had taken had mounted to his head.

"Mrs. Williamson will be angry," was his first thought, and he immediately began to think out some way of diverting the side of feminine wrath. Just then he passed a butcher's. There was some fine steak displayed in the window, and Williamson remembered how much his wife enjoyed the succulent meat, well broiled. He went in, bought a couple of pounds, and stole home, entering the basement door as quietly as a thief in the night, and fondly believing that his wife did not hear him.

He made up a bright fire, the heat from which still further fuddled his ideas, and then he prepared to fix the steak just the way Mrs. W. liked it.

Pretty soon from the lower region of the upper floor, where Mrs. Williamson sat, there arose an odor which made that person quickly clap her hands to her nose and rush down the stairs to see if the house was on fire.

And there in the kitchen she found Mr. Williamson. The broiler was on the fire. On the broiler was the holder which she used to remove hot dishes from the fire. And carefully holding the broiler with the two-pound steak was the head of the house trying to look dignified, and saying not a word.

* * *

"The mut's leadin' th' bunch a mile at th' three-quarter post," says Andy Lewis in the "Tout" this week at the Corinthian, "an' I ain't got a sou in me jeans. A bookie hollers: 'A tousand dollars t' a pin that he can't win.'

"I sees somethin' bright on th' ground picks it up and trows it at the bookie as the horses come under the wire.

"'Jimmie,' he says to th' guy wot's handlin' th' dough: 'Give th' gent a tousand dollars.' I just was closin' me mit over th' dough when he says again: 'Hol' on a minnete. Dis ain't a pin, it's a needle.' Ain't that hard luck. Kin ye beat it?"

* * *

A well known salesman, whose territory takes in the South, tells the following:

"It was my misfortune, several years ago, to learn somewhat of the question that is giving the South so much concern even unto the present day.

"I stood talking with the night clerk of a hotel in Atlanta, while waiting for the midnight train going to Savannah. The conversation interested me so much that I lost all thought of time, until the bell somewhere in the vicinity began striking 12.

"'Here, Tom!' the clerk suddenly called to a big, strong negro porter, 'carry this satchel to the Savannah train. Run or you'll miss it.'

"Tom snatched up my large satchel and hurried across the street to the train shed, reaching there just in time to throw the satchel upon the rear platform of the train, which had already started.

"As I ran behind him I dug into my trousers pocket for a silver quarter to give to him; and as he flung the satchel on the platform I clapped the coin into his hand and leaped aboard.

"When the conductor came for my fare I said to myself, 'Here's where I get rid of that $10 gold piece before I spend it for a quarter.' But I was mistaken. I had already spent it for a quarter, and I now remembered that the coin I had given to Tom did feel strangely heavy.

"Two weeks later I was in Atlanta again.

"'Where's that porter, Tom?' was the first question I put to the night clerk at the hotel.

"'Yes, that's the question,' said he. 'Did you take him away with you?'

"'No,' I answered, 'but I gave him a $10 gold piece.'

"'That accounts for it, then,' said the clerk. 'He hasn't been seen here since, and he probably won't be until the last cent of it is gone.'"

Chicago and Kansas City to Los Angeles and 'Frisco.

Chas. A. Marsh, Pass. Agt., 220 Ellicott Sq. Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

Magazine and Literary Notes

In "The Voice of Nature," by Charles Wagner, we have a fitting companion to "The Simple Life." It is refreshing in these days to find such a book. It is like the spicy breath from a pine-covered mountain, set to the music of murmuring waters and perfumed by the opening flowers.

The "Voice of Nature" is a noble book from every point of view. We have had no writer whose absolute simplicity of diction and deep love of nature in all its phases has had such happy expression.

The author takes as subjects for discussion the most commonplace and everyday occurrences, and describes them with such clearness and minuteness that no one who reads can help saying: "I have seen just those things and thought just as he does."

In this book Mr. Wagner has come even closer to the people than he did in "Simple Life." He never preaches nor lacks a moral to what he says, but presents it in such a way that the deeper meanings seem to lie bared before the reader's eyes.

Whoever misses reading this book will miss genuine pleasure and profit.

* * *

"Six years before Pastor Wagner's 'Simple Life' came from the press, President Eliot of Harvard published a little book entitled 'The Happy Life' (Crowell). In each of these books is expounded the philosophy of the life worth living, and to one who has read them both they present a most interesting comparative study. It is very possible that if eight years ago the President of the United States had chanced in one of his speeches to call attention to Charles W. Eliot's book, we might at that early date have recognized in our own land and tongue—in a form fully as masterful and even more concrete—as powerful and practical a plea for simplicity of living as that which we exploit today in the volume by Charles Wagner."

The above opening sentences are quoted from a three-column article which lately appeared in the New York Evening Post. Several interesting parallel passages from the two books are shown.

"The Women of America," by Miss Elizabeth McCracken, is the fruit of a long journey, the purpose of which was to investigate the ideals and achievements of American women, in the professions, in municipal affairs, in the arts, and above all in the home and in things pertaining to home-making. The journey extended over nearly the entire United States. Collecting statistics concerning the women of a given city and their occupations was performed with care, but it was always subordinated to the more vivid advantage of personal meetings with these women and personal visits to the actual scenes of their occupations. Her aim was not only to observe and record the life of American women as influenced by locality, education, and occupation, but also to show what is really typical and significant, what women are feeling and thinking as well as what they are doing, and to illustrate this by anecdote, bits of talk, and actual experiences. The titles of some of the chapters are: "The Pioneer Woman of the West," "The Woman in the Small Town," "The Southern Woman and Reconstruction," "Woman Suffrage in Colorado," "The Woman in Her Club," "The Woman in the Play," "The Woman from the College," "The American Woman of Letters," and "The Woman on the Farm."

The book is published by the Macmillan Company.

* * *

"Cabbages and Kings" is the title of a novel of Central American politics by O. Henry which McClure-Phillips brought out about the middle of November. O. Henry's cleverly-told tales dealing with life in Central America, which have been appearing in the magazines, have been woven by him into a connected narrative. His characters range from an absconding bank president to a swarthy son of the soil, and the plot is cleverly developed through a series of ludicrous and amusing situations.

* * *

Miss Frances Davidge, the author of D. Appleton & Company's fall novel, "The Misfit Crown," has traveled in many lands, and has rather a fancy for out-of-the-way places. She tells a story of an odd nook of the world where feather beds were an unknown quantity. Some one of the party complained of the lack, and a serious-minded farmer overheard the complaint. Nothing further was thought of the matter until the farmer limped lamely in to breakfast.

"Feather beds may be all right if you like them," he grumbled, "but I don't. If just a few feathers like that make my bones ache so, what would a lot do?"

"But where did you get a feather bed?" "Got bing it, I slept in the chicken coop."

* * *

George P. Upton is known to lovers of music everywhere as the author of small but authoritative works on the "Standard Operas," "Standard Oratorios," "Standard Cantatas," "Standard Symphonies" and "Standard Light Operas," and as the translator of the lives of Beethoven, Hayden and Lisat from the German of Dr. Nohl, as well as for his rendering into English of Max Mueller's "Memories." Four more little books from his pen are announced by A. C. Clurg & Company and they are intended for children rather than grown folk. They comprise brief, simple and thorough biographies of Mozart, Beethoven, the Maid of Orleans and William Tell. These form the introductory volumes of a projected series of "Life Stories for Young People," a department of literature in which American children have been greatly neglected in the past. These books of Mr. Upton's are translated from the German of Ferdinand Schmidt, Franz Hoffman or Frederic Henning, but many of the future volumes will be original work. Like these, however, they will be stories interesting to read and not mere groups of facts and dates, and all will be illustrated.

* * *

Madame Adam, the author of "My Literary Life," one of the recent acquisitions of D. Appleton & Company, is one of the few living writers who can tell a good story after the manner of the old school. Here is such a story which she modestly quotes from Madame de Pierrefeus:

"Would you believe that I had inspired Monsieur de Rambuteau with a passion for me?"

"But Monsieur de Rambuteau died quite old, some years ago."

"Well, it was just about that time that he entertained quite a mad love for me."

"Tell us about it."

"Oh! his avowal of love! How do men generally tell their love?"

"In sweet and loving words."

"And in what position?"

"On their knees."

"Exactly so. Well, Monsieur de Rambuteau, with much trouble, got down on his knees to tell me of his love; he used the most charming language, such as:

"'Fair lady, my heart is torn asunder, and can only be sewed together by your hands.' Isn't that pretty?"

"Oh, charming!"

"My admirer was leaning with clasped hands against my knees. He talked and talked and became more and more excited. Guess what my answer was?"

"I too love you?"

"No!"

"My flame reciprocates your own?"

"That would have been too weak."

"Mercy! What then?"

"I am yours."

"I threw myself back in my c hair, thus taking away from him the support of my knees. Monsieur de Rambuteau fell forward, and groaned; I rang for my maid to pick him up, which was not an easy matter."

"That was one of the most dangerous adventures of my life," added Madame de Pierrefeus, gravely.

* * *

Myra Kelly, whose stories which appeared in McClure's Magazine during the last year, have been made into a book bearing the title "Little Citizens," drew upon her own actual experiences for the material of her amusing tales. She was for over two years a teacher in a school on East Broadway, right in the heart of the most foreign section of New York. She is an Irish woman, born in Dublin, of pure Irish stock; and the natural Irish turn of mind towards fun made her express the humorous side of her experience. Then, for a serious turn to some of the reviews of her book. They have gone so far as to say that "it should be on the desk of every one interested in education today." Miss Kelly declares that she aimed to be amusing, rather than instructive, and it both flatters and surprises her to find that her book has so serious an import.

* * *

McClure-Phillips have just published a book by E. P. Powell, one of New York State's prize fruit-farmers, entitled "The Country Home." More than 20 years ago the author was forced by ill health to leave the pulpit. With a limited capital and nine acres he found it necessary to make a living. Out of his property he has made a beautiful home, an abundant income, and become an authority throughout the country on rural matters. The book is written to supply the needs of that large body of people who are deserting the crowded metropolitan districts, and establishing themselves in the country. It is a practical book on making the first essential of the country home, the homestead, and gives detailed information about choosing the land, growing the house, the water supply, the lawns, the orchards, how to save money and where not to save it, merits and demerits of ornamental trees, truck gardens, etc. It is not a book of theory, but a common sense volume founded on the experience of the author.

* * *

McClure-Phillips promise Miss Ida M. Tarbell's "The History of the Standard Oil Company" for early in December. Among the serious works of the year this one will probably take first place. The book is made from the articles which have been appearing in McClure's Magazine, but has been enlarged and rewritten to include additional information and facts that were disclosed during the serial run of the articles. Miss Tarbell, whose "Life of Lincoln" and "Life of Napoleon" give her standing at the head of the leading women historians of America, in telling the history of this first and greatest American trust, has also told the history of the rise of the trust problem. She has made a dramatic story of the war now over 30 years old between the Standard Oil trust and the people. Her facts are all supported by documentary evidence, and are reinforced and given life by the personal interviews that the author has had with leading men in all the incidents she describes. The book gives an unprejudiced statement of the facts. Miss Tarbell herself, lived many years in the oil districts, and she writes of things and people with which she was intimately familiar.

She Was Well Known

For her white and beautiful hands. La Chappa Cream cures chapped hands, freckles and redness of the skin, at Dukes, 25c.

SUITS
MADE BY KOHN BROS., CHICAGO.
$10 TO $15
No better Suits in the world for the money.
SOLD IN ROCHESTER BY
GARDINER
92 STATE STREET.

FINANCIAL.
SPADER & PERKINS
Members NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE, CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE, ROCHESTER STOCK EXCHANGE
Home, 1134. 4460, 2509. Bell, 1134.
Representing MARSHALL, SPADER & CO., New York

AMUSEMENTS
COOK OPERA HOUSE
DELLA FOX
CHARLIE CASE
Waterbury Bros. and Tenney, Nichols Sisters, Charles Hera, Watson, Hutchings and Edwards, Bennah and Miller, Kinetograph.
NEXT WEEK Rose Wentworth Trio

CORINTHIAN THEATRE
Temple of Laughter
HENRY C. JACOBS, PROP'R
WEEK, MONDAY, Dec. 26 AL REEVES
Mat. daily. Ladies' Mat. Friday, 10c.
PRICES { Matinee—10c. 20c. 30c. { 'Phone
{ Night—15c 20c. 30c. 50c { 1301
Next Week—HIGH ROLLERS.

THE LYCEUM
Tonight—One Night Only.
BERTHA GALLAND
(Direction of Fred Zimmerman, Jr.) in Paul Kester's dramatization of Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall
by Charles Major, supported by a notable company of prominent players.
Friday and Saturday—William Faversham in "Letty."

NATIONAL Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Matinees Thursday and Saturday.
The Liberty Belles
40 Singers, Dancers, Comedians. Special Feature—The Radium Ballet. Jan. 2, 3, 4, "The Sign of the Four."
Prices: Mats. 15c and 25c. Nights 15c to 75c.

BAKER Thursday, Friday and Saturday
Matinees Friday and Saturday.
Magnificent Scenic Production of Deserted at the Altar
Jan. 2, 3, 4, "Escaped from the Harem"
Popular Novelty Concert Every Sunday Night.
Prices: Mats. 10c, 20c. Nights: 15c, 20c, 30c, 50c.

UNDERTAKERS.
RESPECTABLE
FUNERAL $50
I will furnish for the above amount casket trimmed complete, rough box, hearse, two coaches and services.
Higher price funerals in proportion. Get prices of others, then come to me and save money. NO FRAUD.
Public funeral parlors.
Carriages furnished with UNION drivers.
I make my own caskets.
C. E. STRAUCHEN, Undertaker
253 North Street. Both 'Phones.

JEFFREYS
UNDERTAKERS
REMOVED TO 33 CHESTNUT ST.
ROCHESTER, N Y

LANGMIRE & THOMPSON
FUNERAL DIRECTORS
'PHONES 64 CLINTON AVE. SOUTH

INSURANCE
Fire, Boiler, Plate Glass, Fidelity, Excise and Court Bonds.
JOHN H. McANARNEY
Successor to O'Grady and McAnarney,
101 and 102 Ellwanger & Barry Building.
Entrance, 20 STATE STREET

ROCHESTER SAVINGS BANK
Corner Main St. W. and Fitzhugh St. Organized 1831.
Resources July 1, 1903, $21,282,147.31
Surplus. 1,763,065.32
MONEY TO LOAN.
4 1-2 PER CENT.
on sums of $10,000 and over. All sums less than $10,000, 5 per cent.
Deposits made on or before the first three business days of any month will draw interest from the first day of that month.

T. A. McINTYRE & CO.
Members of New York Stock Exchange.
George B. Dresser
MANAGER.
107-8 Ellwanger & Barry Building.
Fast Grain Quotations Over Private Wire

Monroe County Savings Bank
23 and 25 State St., Rochester, N. Y.
INCORPORATED 1850.
Interest allowed on accounts of $800 and under, 4 per cent. On accounts exceeding $800 3½ per cent on the whole amount. Money to loan at
4 1-2 Per Cent
in sums of $10,000 and over. All sums less than $10,000, 5 per cent.
Resources, Jan. 1, 1903, - 15,758,906.76
Surplus, - - - 1,708,019.33
JAMES E. BOOTH, President.
DAVID HOYT, Secretary and Treasurer.

Mechanics Savings Bank
18 Exchange Street.
Interest allowed on accounts of $1,000 and under at the rate of 4 per cent per annum.
On accounts exceeding $1,000 3½ per cent on whole account.
Money loaned on bond and mortgage in sums of $10,000 and under at 5 per cent. Over $10,000 at 4½ per cent.
CHARLES M. EVERETT, Pres.
ARTHUR LUETCHFORD, Secretary and Treasurer.

HAND SAPOLIO
It ensures an enjoyable, invigorating bath; makes every pore respond, removes dead skin, ENERGIZES THE WHOLE BODY starts the circulation, and leaves a glow equal to a Turkish bath.
ALL GROCERS AND DRUGGISTS.

GET YOUR CUT FLOWERS
PHONE 1099
A. E. WILSON
FLORIST
90 MAIN STREET, E.
ROCHESTER, N.Y.

Bicycle Storage
Your wheel stored, re-enameled, renickeled, with new spokes, grips and rims ready for spring riding, $1.50.
Geo. W. Johnson
STATE AND ALLEN

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

FASHION :-: SOCIETY :-: WEDDINGS :-: THEATERS :-: MUSIC

WITH RIBBON BANDING.

BATH ROBE 4906—SIZES 32 TO 44.

Simple bath robes make general favorites and for many reasons are to be preferred to any other sort. This one takes graceful lines and includes generous sleeves that render it easy to slip on and off. As illustrated, the material is pink wrapper flannel banded with ribbon showing an edge of velvet, while at the waist is a heavy cord with tassels. All materials suited to garments of the sort are appropriate, and the banding can be of any contrasting material that may be preferred. The quantity of material required for a woman of medium size is 7 3-4 yards 27, 6 1-4 yards 44, or 4 1-2 yards 52 inches wide, with 6 yards of ribbon to trim as illustrated.

A perfect May Manton Pattern of the garment illustrated above can be had in Rochester from Brownell & Patterson, 207 Lyell Avenue, or from F. Rapp, 370 Joseph Avenue, for 10c each over the counter; by mail, 12c.

THE THEATERS

Miss Bertha Galland brings her highly successful play, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," to the Lyceum tonight for a second visit. Last season it was presented at that theater and both the star and the play scored a popular success. The play has been mounted in a magnificent manner. The engagement is for one night only.

Seats are now on sale for the engagement at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday of William Faversham in the new Pinero play in which he achieved a great success in New York this season, "Letty." Mr. Charles Frohman, under whose management Mr. Faversham appears, believes that "Letty" not only gives the star and his supporting company opportunity for the best work of their careers, but is far and away the best play Pinero has ever written. Charlotta Nilsson, Julie Opp, Frita Williams, Arthur Playfair, Tom Terries and others have scored individual hits in this play.

The advance sale of seats for the engagement of Raymond Hitchcock in Henry W. Savage's production of the comic opera, "The Yankee Consul," at the Lyceum Monday afternoon and night, and Tuesday night of next week, will open tomorrow morning. Mr. Hitchcock is one of the most pleasing comedians on the stage today, and his starring vehicle one of the best of modern comic operas.

John Drew is credited with an artistic triumph in his portrayal of the eccentric, courteous "Duke of Killicrankie."

"The Two Orphans" will appear at the Lyceum Thursday, Jan. 5, with such a cast as it or any other play never had, and probably never will have again. Twelve of the principal roles will be played by stars. James O'Neil, Louis James, Jameson Lee Finney, J. E. Dodson, William Beach, Grace George, Chas Morris, Mrs. LeMoyne, Elita Proctor Otis, Sarah Truax and Bijou Fernandez. The old cast in the play has come down to this generation as a remarkable aggregation of talent. Charles Thorne, McKee Rankin, Stuart Robson, Kitty Blanchard and Rose Eytinge were all famous players, but their reputations were only in the making when "The Two Orphans" came out.

The National Theater has as its attraction for the last three days of this week, opening with two performances today, Harry B. Smith's big musical Year's matinee on Monday, the National Theater will offer "The Sign of the Four."

George Monroe in "Mrs. Mac, the Mayor," is scheduled for a three days' engagement at the National Theater, commencing next week Thursday.

"Escaped From the Harem" is announced for appearance at the Baker Theater the first three days of next week.

"Deserted at the Altar" is said to be a purely American play, with every character strictly American, and dealing with purely American sentiment and sensation. This play will be seen at the Baker Theater for the balance of this week, opening with tonight's performance, and including the usual matinees tomorrow and Saturday.

"Over Niagara Falls" will be seen at the Baker Theater the last half of next week.

The usual popular novelty concert will be given at the Baker Theater next Sunday night, a feature of the programme being a humorous offering, entitled "Off for the Holidays."

Charlie Case's stories and songs are amusing the crowds at Cook Opera House this week, and another successful comedy act is that of Watson, Hutchings and Edwards. A matinee will be given today.

There will be a novel act in the vaudeville bill to be presented at the Cook Opera House next week, it is said. This will be the exhibition of banjo playing given by the Howard Brothers. They will juggle eight banjos at once, it is promised, besides playing on them.

Al. Reeves' Company is at the Corinthian Theater this week, giving two performances daily.

THE DEATH ROLL

Adolph F. Schlick.....109 South Union Street
Joseph T. Masse.....476 Webster Avenue
Charles B. Hill.....La Grange, Ill.
Katharina Sellinger.....778 Clinton Avenue North
Eliza McDonald.....54 Woodward Street

Adolph F. Schlick, of this city, died yesterday at 109 South Union Street. Mr. Schlick was born in Dansville, May 11, 1853, and came to Rochester in 1875. He entered in the coal business with George Engert. He leaves his wife, Caroline A. Schlick, of Rochester; one sister, Mrs. George Engert, of this city, and four brothers, Colonel H. N. Schlick of Rochester; John B. Schlick

(From Yesterday's Last Edition.)

MISSION FIELDS

Two letters from Rev. S. D. Bawden, former chaplain of the State Industrial School and now missionary pastor of Lake Avenue Baptist Church, were read yesterday afternoon at the December meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the church.

REV. S. W. BAWDEN.

Dr. Bawden gave an idea of his work and the difficulties ahead of him in Ongole, India, where he went to found an industrial mission. He said it takes considerable time to master the Telegu language, which consists of 35 consonants and 13 vowels. Notwithstanding the obstacles, the writer said, great progress has already been made. It was voted to send him $100.

"The Religions of Japan" was the special topic discussed at yesterday's meeting. Those in charge of the programme were Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, Mrs. W. H. Duffett, Miss Grace Wetmore, Miss Daisy Fry and Mrs. W. L. Howard. Mr. George Findlay, a graduate of the Rochester Theological Seminary, made a few remarks on missionary work in the Philippines and Japan.

FOR THE CHURCH

The Executive Committee of the Confraternity of Mary of St. Mary's Church held a special meeting last evening in the hall on South Street. It was decided to hold a pedro party in the church hall Friday evening, Jan. 13.

The Sunday School of the First Baptist Church held its Christmas entertainment last evening in the church parlors. Miss Helen M. Rumsey, a well known elocutionist, gave several interesting readings. The violin solos by Miss Helen Fay Bascom were much enjoyed. Mrs. Grace Boddy Schrader of the church choir rendered several vocal selections.

At the close of the programme a sociable was held in the Hubbell Class room and the Ladies' Social and Benevolent Society served ice cream and cake. The chairman of the committee having this in charge was Mrs. C. E. Young. The tables were under the direction of the following: Mrs. R. H. Lord, Mrs. Fred McGuire, Mrs. F. W. Cook, Mrs. C. W. Kaiser, Mrs. E. A. Howard, Mrs. W. Gregory, Mrs. A. D. Faucher and the Misses Anna and Minnie Hubbell.

The Sunday School of St. Luke's Episcopal Church held its Christmas entertainment yesterday afternoon and evening in the parish house. The afternoon was devoted to the children of the primary department. A handsomely decorated tree was provided on which was a present for every one in the class. The older members of the school occupied the evening. In order to escape formality, no regular programme was prepared, but Christmas games were played and various amusements furnished.

Several vocal selections were given by a quartette from the school. The committees in charge were: Entertainment, Mrs. Howard Osgood, Miss Lena Jennings, Miss Bessie Matthews, Mrs. Thomas Brown, Messrs. Thomas Shannon and John Williams; Refreshment, Mrs. Charles B. Rebasz, Miss Allen, Mrs. Rob Roy Converse, Miss Kate Rogers, Miss E. F. Burleigh, Miss M. Montgomery, Miss Alice Little, Messrs. Charles Rebasz and Charles Salter.

The Sunday School of St. James' Episcopal Church will observe Holy Innocents Day with its Christmas tree exercises in the parish hall on Almira Street this evening. The tree exercises in the hall will be preceded by the singing of Christmas carols in the church.

Y. W. C. A.

Monday afternoon next, from 3 till 10 o'clock, will be visitors' day at the Young Women's Christian Association on Clinton Avenue North. The Kinnaird Chapter, Mrs. Robert Brown, chairman, will serve refreshments.

Miss Helen Marie Rumsey has been engaged to give readings from the works of James Whitcomb Riley, Isabel Fish and others. Miss Elizabeth Line will give a flute solo.

A series of special Sunday afternoon services is planned for January. Next Sunday Mrs. William A. Montgomery will give the New Year's address. Mr. Edward Pfahl will play the violin and Mr. Fred D. Weisbar will be the vocal soloist. Programmes of the services are being prepared by the Clover Club. A week from Sunday Mrs. John S. Briggs will be the speaker. Miss Dorothea Lewis, State Secretary of the Y. W. C. A., will be heard the next week, and on the Sunday following Mrs. Caroline Atwater Mason will give the address. All young women are invited.

PERSONAL

Miss Mabel Lord, a teacher in the Drake Commercial College at Jersey City, N. J., is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lord, of 53 Manhattan Street.

Mrs. Margaret Oberst, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. J. Colbert, has returned to Toledo.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Weeks of Utica, formerly of this city, are visiting C. Weeks of 31 Savannah Street.

Messrs. J. J. Froehler and R. Benedict of Paterson, N. J., spent Christmas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Froehler, 259 Campbell Street.

Mrs. A. J. Brown of Clinton Avenue South and her two sons, William and Douglas Grieve, are spending a week with friends in New York.

Mr. E. H. Jordan and family of Buffalo, formerly of Rochester, spent several days of the Christmas season with Mr. Jordan's mother at her home on Edmunds Street.

Miss G. Louise Scowder of Syracuse University is spending the Christmas week with her mother, Mrs. Louise Hodge of Jefferson Avenue.

Mr. Harry Franklin Wunder is home from New York for the holidays.

Mr. Henry Fellman is home from the Clarkson School of Technology for the holidays.

Miss Caroline M. Diemer of New York is spending the holidays with her parents at 2 Avenue E.

Miss Mabel Stevens of Albany is spending the holidays with her parents at 299 Parsells Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ketchum of Buffalo are spending the holidays with relatives at 98 Hickory Street.

Miss Ethel Fonda of Caledonia Avenue will be the guest of Miss Frances Rowe of Atlanta for the holidays.

MATRIMONIAL

EGELSTON-GOLDSTEIN.

Mr. Moses Goldstein of this city and Miss Ida A. Egelston of Utica were united in marriage last night at Odd Fellows Hall, Rev. David Ginsburg, rabbi of the Congregation Beth Israel, performing the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The decorations were pink and white.

The maid of honor was Miss Mamie Egelston, a sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Dora Eisenberg of Amsterdam and Miss Sarah Levy of this city.

The best man was Mr. Henry Hurvitz, the ushers Messrs. Max Copeland and Harry Grossman. The groomsmen were Messrs. Jacob Goldstein, brother of the groom, and Louis I. Egelston of New York, brother of the bride.

Among those present from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Levy and family, Miss Anna Holstein and Miss Gertrude Goldman, Utica; Miss Dora Eisenberg, Amsterdam; Miss Bessie Lightstein, New York; Mrs. G. Locks, Olean; Messrs. Harry Levy and Max Sinai, Buffalo; Messrs. Charles Bernstein and Nathan Weisel, New York.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served at which covers were laid for 200. Mr. Jacob Goldstein, brother of the groom, delivered an address of congratulation.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldstein will leave Saturday for a trip to the East. Until then they will be at home at 123 Woodward Street.

LENZ-SCANLON.

Mr. J. Mayo Lenz of Chicago and Mrs. M. Elizabeth Scanlon were married yesterday at the Episcopal residence on Frank Street by Rev. Father Craig. After the ceremony dinner was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. O'Brien, 73 Ambrose Street. Mr. and Mrs. Lenz left last evening for Chicago, where they will reside at 796 Michigan Boulevard.

SHEPHERD-HITCHCOCK.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hitchcock of 83 Jefferson Avenue was handsomely decorated last night in honor of the marriage of the daughter of the house, Miss Violet C. Hitchcock, to Mr. Edward S. Shepherd. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles R. Chapin, D. D., of Westminster Presbyterian Church. Miss Margaret Hitchcock, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and Mr. Raymond Bettys was best man.

About 50 friends and relatives of the bride and groom were present. Among those from out of town were: Mr. Frank T. Wood of Utica, Mr. W. D. Hawley of Syracuse, Mr. F. E. Stone of Skaneateles; Mr. and Mrs. Bixby and Mr. and Mrs. Thayer of Lakeside; Miss Harriet Thayer of New York; Benjamin Randolph Newhall, of Syracuse; Mrs. Warford, of New York; Mrs. J. Henry Stotterd, of Salt Lake City; Miss Annette Miller of Fruitland; Mrs. Coleman Hitchcock and Miss Callie E. Hitchcock of Homer.

The newly married couple left for a brief wedding tour. They will be at home after Jan. 15, at 236 West Avenue. Mr. Shepherd is in the auditing department of the B., R. & P. Railroad. The bride is the daughter of Registrar W. F. Hitchcock of the Health Bureau.

BANQUETS

The Spanish Club of Rochester will hold its sixth annual banquet at the Powers Hotel Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Among those who will respond to toasts in Spanish are: D. E. Delgado of this city; Senor Emilio Henriquez y Gil of Porto Rico, and Senor Carlos Mertens of Madrid. An invitation has been extended to a well-known speaker of this city to address the company in English. He has not as yet accepted. As in former years, the members of the club are privileged to invite one or two friends, and a large attendance is expected.

W. C. T. U.

The December meeting of the city W. C. T. U. yesterday at their headquarters was attended by representatives from ten local unions. The report of the Treasurer showed receipts for last month of $49.50 and expenditures amounting to $37.88, leaving a balance on hand of $21.62. The total amount in the treasury is $85.64. It was stated that a legacy of $1,000 from the estate of Mrs. Susan Gage would be available by the society soon. The date of the quarterly rally of the city unions was determined upon as Friday, Jan. 20, 1905, at the headquarters, 73 Main Street East. Miss Susan B. Anthony will address a public meeting of the society, Jan. 12.

TONIGHT'S EVENTS

Bertha Galland in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," Lyceum Theater, 8:15 p. m.
"Liberty Belles," National Theater, 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.
"Deserted at the Altar," Baker Theater, 8:15 p. m.
Vaudeville, Cook Opera House, 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.
Al Reeves' Burlesquers, Corinthian Theater, 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.

Subscribe For

The Evening Times...

and have it delivered at your home every afternoon.

The Noon Edition of The Times gives you the news up to 11:30 a. m. but the later editions give you all the new news.

The Circulation of The Evening Times is guaranteed to be greater than that of any other Rochester afternoon paper. Join the majority and have delivered at your home.

THE TIMES

LEGAL NOTICES

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, By the Grace of God Free and Independent.
To T. F. Moersaert, F. S. Moersaert, C. F. Moersaert, Stephenia Moersaert, Louise M. VanMaldegem, Prudentia Standaert, and to Aldona Moersaert, Anna Moersaert, Mario Moersaert, infants, and to their mother guardian, Rosali deBuychare, and to all other heirs of Bernard Moersaert, deceased, if any, if living, and the heirs, devisees, widows, executors, administrators and creditors, if any, of such of them as are deceased, all of whom are unknown to the petitioner, and to all persons interested in the estate of Bernard Moersaert, late of the City of Rochester, in the County of Monroe, deceased, greeting:

You are hereby cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of our County of Monroe, in the Surrogate's Court, on the 31st day of January, 1905, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the Surrogate's office in the City of Rochester, then and there to attend the judicial settlement of the accounts of Andrew J. Mattle, as the administrator of the estate of said deceased. And if any of the aforesaid persons are under the age of twenty-one years, or insane, or otherwise incompetent, they will please take notice that they are required to appear by their general guardian, if they have one, and if they have none, that they appear and apply for the appointment of a special guardian; or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for them in the proceedings for the settlement of said estate.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Monroe to be hereto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Rochester, this 16th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four.

ANDREW LUDOLPH,
Clerk Surrogate's Court.

August V. Pappert, Attorney for Administrator, 52 German Insurance Building, Rochester, N. Y. 1219-law-6w

SUPREME COURT, MONROE COUNTY —Frederick H. Elwood, Plaintiff, vs. Ludwig Paul Carl Klipfel, Jr., Elizabeth Klipfel, Ludwig Paul Carl Klipfel, Dorothy Elwood, Agnes E. Devens; George P. Sanger, and Arthur L. Devens, as Trustees under a trust deed executed by Elizabeth Handy Elwood, dated October 6, 1899; The City of Rochester, Weaver, Palmer & Richmond, Blauw & Brickner Company, Patrick Fox, George Borst, John J. Burkhalter, Abraham Ellerstein and Christina Ratthel, Defendants.

To the Above-Named Defendants:

You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action, and to serve a copy of your answer on the plaintiff's attorneys within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service; and, in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Trial to be held in the County of Monroe.

Dated this 14th day of December, 1904.

LEWIS & M'KAY,
Plaintiff's Attorneys.
Office and Postoffice Address, 19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y.

To Ludwig Paul Carl Klipfel, Jr., Ludwig Paul Carl Klipfel, Elizabeth Klipfel, Agnes E. Devens, Arthur L. Devens and George P. Sanger:

The foregoing summons is served upon you without the State, pursuant to an order of Honorable E. A. Nash, Justice of the Supreme Court, dated the 21st day of December, 1904, and filed with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of the County of Monroe, at Rochester, N. Y.

LEWIS & M'KAY,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y.
12-27-1aw-6w-7t

COUNTY COURT, MONROE COUNTY —The Rochester Saving & Loan Association against Zachary P. Taylor, et al.

Pursuant and by virtue of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, entered in the above entitled action at a term of said court held at the Court House in the City of Rochester, N. Y., on the 22nd day of December, 1904, Hon. Arthur E. Sutherland, presiding, I, the undersigned referee, appointed in and by said judgment for that purpose, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front entrance to the Court House, in the City of Rochester, N. Y., on the 16th day of January, 1905, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the following described property:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Rochester, County of Monroe and State of New York, known and described as lot number eleven of the P. V. Hawley subdivision of the premises conveyed to said P. V. Hawley by Louisa S. Anderson and others, by deed recorded in Monroe County Clerk's office July 18, 1887, as laid down on a map of a subdivision of the west part of lot forty-six, Town of Irondequoit, now City of Rochester, made by Horace Jones, Surveyor, for P. V. Hawley.

Said lot eleven fronts forty feet on the south side of Stewart Street, now Durman Street, and extends back of equal width eighty-nine (89) feet deep, as laid down on said map.

Dated at Rochester, N. Y., December 22, 1904.

JOHN DESMOND, Referee.
George W. Thomas, Attorney for Plaintiff, 305 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y. 12-23-2aw-3w-7t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Henry A. Hays, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Sara W. Hays, Julius H. Lempert and Abram J. Katz, Executors, at their place for the transaction of business as such Executors, at 108 Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 10th day of May, 1905.

Dated, Rochester, N. Y., Nov 4, 1904.
11-4-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Prudia V. Stilwell, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executors at their place for the transaction of business as such executors at 617 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 11th day of May, 1905.

Dated, Nov. 10, 1904.

DANA C. NEEL,
MARY A. STILWELL,
Executors.
Richard L. Saunders, Attorney for Executors. 11-11-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of the Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Seymour H. Root, late of the Village of Brockport, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Lucy A. Root, Administratrix of the estate of the said Seymour H. Root, deceased, at her place for the transaction of business as such administratrix, on State Street, in said Village of Brockport, New York, on or before the 1st day of April, 1905.

Dated, September 23d, 1904.

LUCY A. ROOT,
Administratrix of the estate of Seymour H. Root, deceased.
H. Edson Webster, Attorney for Administratrix. 9-23-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Ellen M. Arink, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor of the will of said decedent, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at No. 4 Durand Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 15th day of June, 1905.

Dated December 14, 1904.

JOHN E. DURAND,
Executor.
12-15-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of George A. Benton, Surrogate of the county of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

BATH ROBE 4906—SIZES 32 TO 44.

Simple bath robes make general favorites and for many reasons are to be preferred to any other sort. This one takes graceful lines and includes generous sleeves that render it easy to slip on and off. As illustrated, the material is pink wrapper flannel banded with ribbon showing an edge of velvet, while at the waist is a heavy cord with tassels. All materials suited to garments of the sort are appropriate, and the banding can be of any contrasting material that may be preferred. The quantity of material required for a woman of medium size is 7 3-4 yards 27, 6 1-4 yards 44, or 4 1-2 yards 55 inches wide, with 6 yards of ribbon to trim as illustrated.

A perfect May Manton Pattern of the garment illustrated above can be had in Rochester from Brownell & Patterson, 207 Lyell Avenue, or from P. Rapp, 370 Joseph Avenue, for 10c each over the counter; by mail, 12c.

THE THEATERS

Miss Bertha Galland brings her highly successful play, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," to the Lyceum tonight for a second visit. Last season it was presented at that theater and both the star and the play scored a popular success. The play has been mounted in a magnificent manner. The engagement is for one night only.

Seats are now on sale for the engagement at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday of William Faversham in the new Pinero play in which he achieved a great success in New York this season, "Letty." Mr. Charles Frohman, under whose management Mr. Faversham appears, believes that "Letty" not only gives the star and his supporting company opportunity for the best work of their careers, but is far and away the best play Pinero has ever written. Charlotta Nilleon, Julie Opp, Fritz Williams, Arthur Playfair, Tom Terriss and others have scored individual hits in this play.

The advance sale of seats for the engagement of Raymond Hitchcock in Henry W. Savage's production of the comic opera, "The Yankee Consul," at the Lyceum Monday afternoon and night, and Tuesday night of next week, will open tomorrow morning. Mr. Hitchcock is one of the most pleasing comedians on the stage today, and his starring vehicle one of the best of modern comic operas.

John Drew is credited with an artistic triumph in his portrayal of the eccentric, courteous "Duke of Killiecrankie."

"The Two Orphans" will appear at the Lyceum Thursday, Jan. 5, with such a cast as it or any other play never had, and probably never will have again. Twelve of the principal roles will be played by stars. James O'Neil, Louis James, Jameson Lee Finney, J. E. Dodson, William Beach, Grace George, Chara Morris, Mrs. LeMoyne, Elita Proctor Otis, Sarah Truax and Bijou Fernandez. The old cast in the play has come down to this generation as a remarkable aggregation of talent. Charles Thorne, McKee Rankin, Stuart Robson, Kitty Blanchard and Rose Eytinge were all famous players, but their reputations were only in the making when "The Two Orphans" came out.

The National Theater has as its attraction for the last three days of this week, opening with two performances today, Harry B. Smith's big musical comedy, "The Liberty Belles." Its engagement here includes the original production and, in addition, a lot of new and original songs and specialties, a feature being made of the famous Rajium Ballet.

For next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, opening with a special New Year's matinee on Monday, the National Theater will offer "The Sign of the Four."

George Monroe in "Mrs. Mac, the Mayor," is scheduled for a three days' engagement at the National Theater, commencing next week Thursday.

"Escaped From the Harem" is announced for appearance at the Baker Theater the first three days of next week.

"Deserted at the Altar" is said to be a purely American play, with every character strictly American, and dealing with purely American sentiment and sensation. This play will be seen at the Baker Theater for the balance of this week, opening with tonight's performance, and including the usual matinees tomorrow and Saturday.

"Over Niagara Falls" will be seen at the Baker Theater the last half of next week.

The usual popular novelty concert will be given at the Baker Theater next Sunday night, a feature of the programme being a humorous offering, entitled "Off for the Holidays."

Charlie Case's stories and songs are amusing the crowds at Cook Opera House this week, and another successful comedy act is that of Watson, Hutchings and Edwards. A matinee will be given today.

There will be a novel act in the vaudeville bill to be presented at the Cook Opera House next week, it is said. This will be the exhibition of banjo playing given by the Howard Brothers. They will juggle eight banjos at once, it is promised, besides playing on them.

Al. Reeves' Company is at the Corinthian Theater this week, giving two performances daily.

THE DEATH ROLL

Adolph F. Schlick...109 South Union Street
Joseph T. Masse.....676 Webster Avenue
Charles B. Hill.....La Grange, Ill.
Katharina Sellinger.....778 Clinton Avenue North
Eliza McDonald.....54 Woodward Street

Adolph F. Schlick, of this city, died yesterday at 109 South Union Street. Mr. Schlick was born in Dansville, May 11, 1853, and came to Rochester in 1875. He entered in the coal business with George Engert. He leaves his wife, Caroline A. Schlick, of Rochester; one sister, Mrs. George Engert, of this city, and four brothers, Colonel H. N. Schlick, of Rochester; John R. Schlick, of Brooklyn, and Frank M. and Charles P. Schlick, of Dansville. He was a member of Branch 81, C. M. B. A., and Knights of Columbus, and was a trustee of the East Side Savings Bank.

Joseph T. Masse died yesterday morning at the home of his son, Charles D. Masse, of 476 Webster Avenue, aged 59 years. He leaves his wife, Frances Masse; one son, Charles D., and a brother, Solomon Masse.

Charles B. Hill, formerly of this city, died last Thursday in La Grange, Ill. Mr. Hill was the son of Charles J. Hill, a prominent miller in this city twenty years ago. He was captain of the Union Blues during the Civil War.

Katharina Sellinger, daughter of Peter J. and Katherine Sellinger, died yesterday afternoon at the home, 778 Clinton Avenue North, aged 8 years.

Eliza, widow of the late Jesse McDonald, formerly of Churchville, died last evening at the home, 54 Woodward Street, aged 75 years. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Joseph Ashley and Mrs. William Martin, of Rochester, and Mrs. Fred Aspenleiter, of Buffalo. Two sons also survive, Edward R. and Jesse B. McDonald.

REV. S. W. BAWDEN.

Dr. Bawden gave an idea of his work and the difficulties ahead of him in Ongole, India, where he went to found an industrial mission. He said it takes considerable time to master the Telegu language, which consists of 35 consonants and 13 vowels. Notwithstanding the obstacles, the writer said, great progress has already been made. It was voted to send him $100.

"The Religions of Japan" was the special topic discussed at yesterday's meeting. Those in charge of the programme were Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, Mrs. W. H. Duffett, Miss Grace Westmore, Miss Daisy Fry and Mrs. W. L. Howard. Mr. George Findlay, a graduate of the Rochester Theological Seminary, made a few remarks on missionary work in the Philippines and Japan.

FOR THE CHURCH

The Executive Committee of the Confraternity of Mary of St. Mary's Church held a special meeting last evening in the hall on South Street. It was decided to hold a pedro party in the church hall Friday evening, Jan. 13.

The Sunday School of the First Baptist Church held its Christmas entertainment last evening in the church parlors. Miss Helen M. Rumsey, a well known elocutionist, gave several interesting readings. The violin solos by Miss Helen Fay Bascom were much enjoyed. Mrs. Grace Boddy Schroder of the church choir rendered several vocal selections.

At the close of the programme a sociable was held in the Hubbell Class room and the Ladies' Social and Benevolent Society served ice cream and cake. The chairman of the committee having this in charge was Mrs. C. E. Young. The tables were under the direction of the following: Mrs. R. H. Lord, Mrs. Fred McGuire, Mrs. F. W. Cook, Mrs. C. W. Kaiser, Mrs. E. A. Howard, Mrs. W. Gregory, Mrs. A. D. Pancher and the Misses Anna and Minnie Hubbell.

The Sunday School of St. Luke's Episcopal Church held its Christmas entertainment yesterday afternoon and evening in the parish house. The afternoon was devoted to the children of the primary department. A handsomely decorated tree was provided on which was a present for every one in the class. The older members of the school occupied the evening. In order to escape formality, no regular programme was prepared, but Christmas games were played and various amusements furnished.

Several vocal selections were given by a quartette from the school. The committees in charge were: Entertainment, Mrs. Howard Osgood, Miss Lena Jennings, Miss Bessie Matthews, Mrs. Thomas Brown, Messrs. Thomas Shannon and John Williams; Refreshment, Mrs. Charles B. Rebasz, Miss Allen, Mrs. Rob Roy Converse, Miss Kate Rogers, Miss E. F. Burleigh, Miss M. Montgomery, Miss Alice Little, Messrs. Charles Rebasz and Charles Salter.

The Sunday School of St. James' Episcopal Church will observe Holy Innocents Day with its Christmas tree exercises in the parish hall on Almira Street this evening. The tree exercises in the hall will be preceded by the singing of Christmas carols in the church.

Y. W. C. A.

Monday afternoon next, from 3 till 10 o'clock, will be visitors' day at the Young Women's Christian Association on Clinton Avenue North. The Kinnaird Chapter, Mrs. Robert Brown, chairman, will serve refreshments.

Miss Helen Marie Rumsey has been engaged to give readings from the works of James Whitcomb Riley. Isabel Fish and others. Miss Elizabeth Line will give a flute solo.

A series of special Sunday afternoon services is planned for January. Next Sunday Mrs. William A. Montgomery will give the New Year's address. Mr. Edward Pfahl will play the violin and Mr. Fred D. Weishar will be the vocal soloist. Programmes of the services are being prepared by the Clover Club. A week from Sunday Mrs. John S. Briggs will be the speaker. Miss Dorothea Lewis, State Secreary of the Y. W. C. A., will be heard the next week, and on the Sunday following Mrs. Caroline Atwater Mason will give the address. All young women are invited.

TONIGHT'S EVENTS

Bertha Galland in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," Lyceum Theater, 8:15 p. m.
"Liberty Belles," National Theater, 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.
"Deserted at the Altar," Baker Theater, 8:15 p. m.
Vaudeville, Cook Opera House, 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.
Al Reeves' Burlesquers, Corinthian Theater, 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.
Vaudeville, Colonial Hall, 3:15 and 8:15 p. m.
Junior "prom," Alumni Gymnasium, 8:30 p. m.

No Venom In 'Em

No poisonous purgatives enter into Dr. King's New Life Pills. Easy, but prompt, they cure or no pay. Only 25c, Dake Drug Co.

Messrs. J. J. Froehler and R. Benedict of Paterson, N. J., spent Christmas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Froehler, 230 Campbell Street.

Mrs. A. J. Brown of Clinton Avenue South and her two sons, William and Douglas Grieve, are spending a week with friends in New York.

Mr. E. H. Jordan and family of Buffalo, formerly of Rochester, spent several days of the Christmas season with Mr. Jordan's mother at her home on Edmunds Street.

Miss G. Louise Scowder of Syracuse University is spending the Christmas week with her mother, Mrs. Louise Hodge of Jefferzon Avenue.

Mr. Harry Franklin Wunder is home from New York for the holidays.

Mr. Henry Fellman is home from the Clarkson School of Technology for the holidays.

Miss Caroline M. Diemer of New York is spending the holidays with her parents at 2 Avenue E.

Miss Mabel Stevens of Albany is spending the holidays with her parents at 299 Parsells Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ketchum of Buffalo are spending the holidays with relatives at 98 Hickory Street.

Miss Ethel Fonda of Caledonia Avenue will be the guest of Miss Frances Rowe of Atlanta for the holidays.

MATRIMONIAL

EGELSTON-GOLDSTEIN.

Mr. Moses Goldstein of this city and Miss Ida A. Egelston of Utica were united in marriage last night at Odd Fellows Hall, Rev. David Ginsburg, rabbi of the Congregation Beth Israel, performing the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The decorations were pink and white.

The maid of honor was Miss Mamie Egelston, a sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Dora Eisenberg of Amsterdam and Miss Sarah Levy of this city.

The best man was Mr. Henry Hurvitz, the ushers Messrs. Max Copeland and Harry Grossman. The groomsmen were Messrs. Jacob Goldstein, brother of the groom, and Louis I. Egelston of New York, brother of the bride.

Among those present from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Levy and family, Miss Anna Holstein and Miss Gertrude Goldman, Utica; Miss Dora Eisenberg, Amsterdam; Miss Bessie Lightstein, New York; Mrs. G. Locke, Olean; Messrs. Harry Levy and Max Sinai, Buffalo; Messrs. Charles Bernstein and Nathan Weisel, New York.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served at which covers were laid for 200. Mr. Jacob Goldstein, brother of the groom, delivered an address of congratulation.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldstein will leave Saturday for a trip to the East. Until then they will be at home at 123 Woodward Street.

LENZ-SCANLON.

Mr. J. Mayo Lenz of Chicago and Mrs. M. Elizabeth Scanlon were married yesterday at the Episcopal residence on Frank Street by Rev. Father Craig. After the ceremony dinner was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. O'Brien, 73 Ambrose Street. Mr. and Mrs. Lenz left last evening for Chicago, where they will reside at 796 Michigan Boulevard.

SHEPHERD-HITCHCOCK.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hitchcock of 83 Jefferson Avenue was handsomely decorated last night in honor of the marriage of the daughter of the house, Miss Violet C. Hitchcock, to Mr. Edward S. Shepherd. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles R. Chapin, D. D., of Westminster Presbyterian Church. Miss Margaret Hitchcock, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and Mr. Raymond Bettys was best man.

About 60 friends and relatives of the bride and groom were present. Among those from out of town were: Mr. Frank T. Wood of Utica, Mr. W. D. Hawley of Syracuse, Mr. F. E. Stone of Skaneateles; Mr. and Mrs. Bixby and Mr. and Mrs. Thayer of Lakeside; Miss Harriet Thayer of New York; Benjamin Randolph Newhall, of Syracuse; Mrs. Warford, of New York; Mrs. J. Henry Stuttterd, of Salt Lake City; Miss Annette Miller of Fruitland; Mrs. Coleman Hitchcock and Miss Callie E. Hitchcock of Homer.

The newly married couple left for a brief wedding tour. They will be at home after Jan. 15, at 356 West Avenue. Mr. Shepherd is in the auditing department of the B., R. & P. Railroad. The bride is the daughter of Registrar W. F. Hitchcock of the Health Bureau.

BANQUETS

The Spanish Club of Rochester will hold its sixth annual banquet at the Powers Hotel Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Among those who will respond to toasts in Spanish are: D. E. Delgado of this city; Senor Emilio Henriquez y Gil of Porto Rico, and Senor Carlos Mertens of Madrid. An invitation has been extended to a well-known speaker of this city to address the company in English. He has not as yet accepted. As in former years, the members of the club are privileged to invite one or two friends, and a large attendance is expected.

W. C. T. U.

The December meeting of the city W. C. T. U. yesterday at their headquarters was attended by representatives from ten local unions. The report of the Treasurer showed receipts for last month of $46.50 and expenditures amounting to $27.88, leaving a balance on hand of $21.61. The total amount in the treasury is $83.64. It was stated that a legacy of $1,000 from the estate of Mrs. Susan Gage would be available by the society soon. The date of the quarterly rally of the city unions was determined upon as Friday, Jan. 20, 1905, at the headquarters, 73 Main Street East. Miss Susan B. Anthony will address a public meeting of the society, Jan. 12.

for

The Evening Times...

and have it delivered at your home every afternoon.

The Noon Edition of The Times gives you the news up to 11:30 a. m. but the later editions give you all the new news.

The Circulation of The Evening Times is guaranteed to be greater than that of any other Rochester afternoon paper. Join the majority and have delivered at your home.

THE TIMES

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Rochester, this 16th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four.

ANDREW LUDOLPH,
Clerk Surrogate's Court.

August V. Pappert, Attorney for Administrator, 52 German Insurance Building, Rochester, N. Y. 1219-law-6w

SUPREME COURT, MONROE COUNTY —Frederick H. Elwood, Plaintiff, vs. Ludwig Paul Carl Klipfel, Jr., Elizabeth Klipfel, Ludwig Paul Carl Klipfel, Dorothy Elwood, Agnes E. Devens; George P. Sunger, and Arthur L. Devens, as Trustees under a trust deed executed by Elizabeth Handy Elwood, dated October 6, 1890; The City of Rochester, Weaver, Palmer & Richmond, Blauw & Brickner Company, Patrick Fox, George Borst, John J. Burkhalter, Abraham Ellerstein and Christina Raithel, Defendants.

To the Above-Named Defendants:

You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action, and to serve a copy of your answer on the plaintiff's attorneys within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service; and, in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Trial to be held in the County of Monroe.

Dated this 18th day of December, 1904.

LEWIS & McKAY,
Plaintiff's Attorneys.

Office and Postoffice Address, 19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y.

To Ludwig Paul Carl Klipfel, Jr., Ludwig Paul Carl Klipfel, Elizabeth Klipfel, Agnes E. Devens, Arthur L. Devens and George P. Sunger:

The foregoing summons is served upon you without the State, pursuant to an order of Honorable E. A. Nash, Justice of the Supreme Court, dated the 21st day of December, 1904, and filed with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of the County of Monroe, at Rochester, N. Y.

LEWIS & McKAY,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y.
12-27-1aw-6w-7t

COUNTY COURT, MONROE COUNTY —The Rochester Saving & Loan Association against Zachary P. Taylor, et al.

Pursuant and by virtue of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, entered in the above entitled action in the term of said court held at the Court House in the City of Rochester, N. Y., on the 22nd day of December, 1904, Hon. Arthur E. Sutherland, presiding, I, the undersigned referee, appointed in and by said judgment for that purpose, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front entrance to the Court House, in the City of Rochester, N. Y., on the 14th day of January, 1905, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the following described property:

All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Rochester, County of Monroe and State of New York, known and described as lot number eleven of the P. V. Hawley subdivision of the premises conveyed to said P. V. Hawley by Louisa S. Anderson and others, by deed recorded in Monroe County Clerk's office July 18, 1887, as laid down on a map of a subdivision of the west part of lot forty-six, Town of Irondequoit, now City of Rochester, made by Horace Jones, Surveyor, for P. V. Hawley.

Said lot eleven fronts forty feet on the south side of Stewart Street, now Durnan Street, and extends back of equal width eighty-nine (89) feet deep, as laid down on said map.

Dated at Rochester, N. Y., December 22, 1904.

JOHN DESMOND, Referee.

George W. Thomas, Attorney for Plaintiff, 506 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y. 12-23-2aw-3w-7t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Henry A. Hays, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Sara W. Hays, Julius H. Lempert and Abram J. Katz, Executors, at their place for the transaction of business as such Executors, at 1068 Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 10th day of May, 1905.

Dated, Rochester, N. Y., Nov 4, 1904.
11-4-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frida V. Stilwell, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executors at their place for the transaction of business as such executors at 617 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 11th day of May, 1905.

Dated, Nov. 10, 1904.

DANA C. NEEL,
MARY A. STILWELL,
Executors.

Richard L. Saunders, Attorney for Executors. 11-11-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of the Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Seymour H. Root, late of the Village of Brockport, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Lucy A. Root, Administratrix of the estate of the said Seymour H. Root, deceased, at her place for the transaction of business as such administratrix, on State Street, in said Village of Brockport, New York, on or before the 1st day of April, 1905.

Dated, September 23d, 1904.

LUCY A. ROOT,
Administratrix of the estate of Seymour H. Root, deceased.

H. Edson Webster, Attorney for Administratrix. 9-23-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Ellen M. Arink, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor of the will of said decedent, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at No. 4 Durand Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 19th day of June, 1905.

Dated December 14, 1904.

JOHN E. DURAND,
Executor.
12-15-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of George A. Benton, Surrogate of the county of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Mary A. Kress late of the city of Rochester, county of Monroe, state of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned John Kleinhenz, at his place for the transaction of business as such administrator, at 824 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 20th day of April, 1905.

Dated, October 12th, 1904.

JOHN KLEINHENZ,
Administrator.

SHEPARD & MORSE, Attorneys for Administrator. 10-14-1aw-6m

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION of Buffalo & Rochester Railway Company.

We, the undersigned, all being persons of full age, and at least two-thirds being citizens of the United States, and one of us a resident of the State of New York, desiring to become a corporation under and by virtue of the provisions of the Railroad Law, for the purpose of building, maintaining and operating a railroad, do hereby certify as follows:

1. The name of the corporation shall be BUFFALO & ROCHESTER RAILWAY COMPANY.

2. The number of years it is to continue shall be nine hundred and ninety-nine (999).

3. The kind of road to be built and operated shall be a street surface railroad to be operated by electricity.

4. Such railroad is to be built, maintained and operated from the easterly line of the Village of Depew, in the Town of Lancaster, in the County of Erie and State of New York at the point of intersection of the Ellicott or Batavia Road and Burlington Avenue so-called, to the southerly line of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe and State of New York, at the point of intersection of said line with Genesee Street, or the River Road so-called, which places will be its termini, and its length will be sixty and sixty-one hundredths (60.61) miles.

5. The counties in which any part of it is to be located are as follows: Erie, Genesee, Livingston and Monroe Counties.

6. The amount of the capital stock shall be three million ($3,000,000) dollars.

7. The number of shares into which the capital stock is to be divided is to be thirty thousand (30,000) shares.

8. The names and postoffice addresses of the Directors of the corporation who shall manage its affairs for the first year are as follows, namely:

Henry H. Kingston, North American Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

J. Andrews Harris, Jr., North American Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

John J. Collier, North American Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

Horatio A. Foster, 650 Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

T. Henry Dixon, Drexel Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

Samuel Welsh, Drexel Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

William B. Cutter, Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

George A. Ricker, Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

Herbert P. Bissell, Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

9. The place where its principal office is to be located is the Village of Depew, County of Erie, State of New York.

10. The names and description of the streets, avenues and highways in which such railroad is to be constructed are as follows:

Beginning in the Ellicott or Batavia Road, in the easterly line of the Village of Depew, in the Town of Lancaster, in the County of Erie, New York, at the point of intersection of the said Ellicott or Batavia Road and a so-called street named Burlington Avenue, to which point the tracks of the Buffalo & Depew Railway Company are now constructed; running thence easterly in, along and upon the said Ellicott or Batavia Road through the unincorporated villages called Looneyville and Crittenden; and through the towns of Lancaster and Alden in the County of Erie; and through the town of Darien in the County of Genesee, and the incorporated Village of Corfu; and the Town of Pembroke and the unincorporated Village of West Batavia, and the Town of Batavia, to the southwesterly line of the incorporated Village of Batavia, where the said line is intersected by said Ellicott or Batavia Road, sometimes also called the new Buffalo Road, on Pearl Street in said Village of Batavia; thence easterly in, along and upon said Pearl Street to South Main Street, thence in South Main Street to Walnut Street; in Walnut Street and crossing the Tonawanda Creek northerly into West Main Street; thence easterly in West Main Street to East Main Street; thence easterly in East Main Street to the easterly line of the said Village of Batavia; thence continuing in, along and upon the State Road so-called, through the Town of Batavia, and through the unincorporated Village of Stafford and the Town of Stafford, and through the incorporated Village of Le Roy, wherein said State Road is called Main Street; and through the Town of Le Roy, continuing upon said State Road in the said County of Genesee, and continuing upon said State Road through the Town of Caledonia in the County of Livingston, and the incorporated Village of Caledonia; along, through and upon said State Road, which is also called Main Street in said Village of Caledonia, to the street or highway which leads northerly to Mumford called North Street; thence continuing in said North Street, or highway, to and through the unincorporated Village of Mumford, Town of Wheatland, in the County of Monroe, to the intersection of said Main Street in the Village of Mumford) to State Street so-called in said Village of Mumford, (State Street being the highway leading easterly through the Village of Mumford); continuing thence in said highway, or State Street to Oatka Avenue and in said Oatka Avenue, to the lands of Henry Boehm; thence turning northeasterly and running over private right of way and crossing the following highways, to wit:

Oatka Creek Road, opposite the lands of George S. Campbell; the Beloeda Road, opposite said Campbell's lands; the North Road, opposite the lands of the Cameron-McVean estate, to and into the Town of Chili in said County of Monroe, crossing through the Town of Riga to and into the Town of Chili in said County of Monroe; crossing in the Town of Chili the following highways, to wit:

The Harmon or Clifton Road, opposite the lands of Elmer Harmon; the Saw-mill Road, opposite the lands of Hannah Burdett; the Braddock Bay Road, opposite the lands of Herbert Wadsworth; the Stryker Road, opposite the lands of Benjamin Bowen; the Stottle Road, opposite the lands of Isaac Smith; the Beaver Road, opposite the lands of Thomas White; the Kattle Road, opposite the lands of Esther Cronise; and continuing on a private right of way across the lands of Esther Cronise, and crossing the lands of the West Shore Railroad northerly to the Chili Road, at a point about fifteen hundred (1500) feet westerly from its intersection with the Paul Road; and continuing in, along and upon said Chili Road easterly to the Paul Road; thence easterly in, along and upon the said Paul Road to the River, or Scottsville, Road, so-called; thence northeasterly in, along and upon said River, or Scottsville, Road, to the south line of the City of Rochester, at its intersection with Genesee Street.

11. The names and postoffice addresses of each subscriber to the certificate, and the number of shares he agrees to take in such corporation are as follows:

1. Henry H. Kingston, Philadelphia, Pa., 596 shares.

2. J. Andrew Harris, Jr., Philadelphia, Pa., 1 share.

3. John J. Collier, Philadelphia, Pa., 1 share.

4. Horatio A. Foster, Philadelphia, Pa., 1 shares.

5. T. Henry Dixon, Philadelphia, Pa., 1 share.

6. Samuel Welsh, Philadelphia, Pa., 1 share.

7. William B. Cutter, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

8. George A. Ricker, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

9. Herbert P. Bissell, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

10. John T. Mooney, Depew, N. Y., 1 share.

11. George C. Riley, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

12. George S. Minniss, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

13. William G. Dargan, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

14. William G. Bissell, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

15. Allyn F. McNair, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

In witness whereof, we have executed and acknowledged this certificate in duplicate, and have subscribed our respective names hereto.

Dated, 23rd day of November, 1904.

Henry H. Kingston,
J. Andrews Harris, Jr.
John J. Collier.
H. A. Foster.
T. H. Dixon.
Samuel Welsh.
William B. Cutter.
George A. Ricker.
Herbert P. Bissell.
John T. Mooney.
George C. Riley.
George S. Minniss.
Wm. G. Dargan.
William G. Bissell.
Allyn F. McNair.

State of New York, County of Erie, City of Buffalo, ss.

On this fifth day of December, 1904, before me personally came William B. Cutter, George A. Ricker, Herbert P. Bissell, John T. Mooney, George C. Riley, George S. Minniss, William G. Dargan, William G. Bissell and Allyn F. McNair, persons known to be the persons described in and who executed the foregoing certificate, and severally acknowledged to me that they executed the same for the purposes therein mentioned.

SUSAN E. PATTERSON,
Notary Public.

Commission expires January 19, 1907.

State of Pennsylvania, County of Philadelphia, ss.

I, M. Russell Thayer, Prothonotary of the County of Philadelphia and Clerk of the Courts of Common Pleas of said County, which are Courts of Record, having a common seal, being the officer authorized by the laws of the State of Pennsylvania to make the following Certificate, do by my Deputy, Charles D. Roberts, authorized by Act of Assembly of May 26, 1891, Certify, That Susan E. Patterson, Esquire, whose name is subscribed to the certificate of the acknowledgment of the annexed Instrument and thereon endorsed, was at the time of such acknowledgment a Notary Public for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, residing in the county aforesaid, duly commissioned and qualified to administer oaths and affirmations and to take acknowledgments and proofs of Deeds or Conveyances for lands, tenements and hereditaments to be recorded in said State of Pennsylvania and to all whose acts, as such, full faith and credit are and ought to be given, as well in Courts of Judicature as elsewhere; and that I am well acquainted with the handwriting of the said NOTARY PUBLIC and verily believe his signature thereto is genuine, and I further certify that the said Instrument is executed and acknowledged in conformity with the Laws of the State of Pennsylvania.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said Court, this 6th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four (1904).

M. RUSSELL THAYER,
Prothonotary.

By CHAS. B. ROBERTS,
Dep. Prothonotary.

Durante Absentia, Secundum Legem.
12-12-1aw-3w-4t.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank Geisenhof, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Frederick R. Rauber, Executor, at his place for the transaction of business as such Executor, at No. 22 German Insurance Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 17th day of April, 1905.

Dated, October 15th, 1904.

FREDERICK R. RAUBER,
Executor.

August V. Pappert, Attorney, 52 German Insurance Building, Rochester, N. Y.
10-17-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of George H. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Mary E. Otis, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned administrator, with the will annexed, of said deceased, at his place for the transaction of business as such administrator, at 843 Powers Block, Rochester, on or before the 26th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 29, 1904.

EDWIN J. RICH,
Administrator.

Frank M. Goff, Attorney, 838 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.
10-29-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Caroline Sullestad, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned administrator or his attorneys at his place for the transaction of business as such administrator, at Nos. 19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 15th day of June, 1904.

Dated December 7, 1904.

CHARLES A. LIND,
Administrator.

Lewis & McKay, Attorneys for Administrator, 19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y.
12-08-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Isaac Willis, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, Executor of the will of said decedent, at its place for the transaction of business as such Executor at No. 25 Exchange Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of May, 1905.

Dated, October 25th, 1904.

ROCHESTER TRUST AND SAFE DEPOSIT CO.,
Executor.
10-27-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank Treichel, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned as administrator of said Frank Treichel at her place for the transaction of business as such administrator at 617 Ellwanger & Barry Bldg., Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 4th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 1, 1904.

AUGUSTA TREICHEL,
Executor.

W. C. Kohlmetz, Attorney for Administrator.
10-1-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Elizabeth Burkhardt, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Peter Burgett, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at his residence, West Rush, N. Y., on or before the 24th day of February, 1905.

Dated August 15, 1904.

PETER BURGETT,
Executor.
8-19-1aw-6m

DAILY MARKET REPORT

RULING PRICES IN LOCAL MARKETS

WHOLESALE MARKET

ROCHESTER, Dec. 29.

GRAIN—Following are the ruling wholesale prices paid by buyers from first hands: Wheat—White, $1.08@1.10. Longberry Red at $1.06@1.10. Short-berry Red at $1.04@1.06; mixed, $1.05@1.10—only choice grades commanding outside figures. Corn—shelled quoted at 45@46c per 56 lbs for old. Oats—White quoted at 38@40c per 32 lbs. Rye—Quoted at 70@75c per 56 lbs.

HAY AND STRAW—Hay—Quoted at $10.00@12.00 per ton according to variety. Straw—Loose quoted at $9.00@11.00 for rye and wheat and $11.00@13.00 for rye. Bundled straw quoted at $18.00@20.00 a ton.

SEEDS—Retail at the following prices: Timothy seed, per bushel.....$1.80@2.00
Medium Clover, per bushel.....7.25@7.50
Large Clover, per bushel.....7.25@7.50
Alsike, per bushel.....7.00@7.25
Alfalfa, per bushel.....6.00@.....
Millet, according to variety.....1.25@1.50

DRESSED HOGS—Quoted at $7.00@7.50, according to weight and condition.

DRESSED BEEF—By the carcass quoted at 7@8c, fore-quarter at 6@8c and hind-quarter at 7½@9c.

VEAL—Quoted at 10@10½c.

SPRING LAMB—Quoted at 9½@10½c per pound.

YEARLINGS—Quoted at 7½@8c.

MUTTON—Quoted at 6@7c.

RULING STREET AND WHOLESALE PRICES OF COUNTRY PRODUCE, ETC.

Cabbage (new), per doz. head.....25@40c
Cabbage, per 100.....$1.50@2.00
Cauliflower, per dozen.....50@75c
Celery, per dozen.....30@45c
Peas, strictly fresh laid.....35@40c
Lettuce, Boston seed, per doz.....75c
Lettice, common, per doz.....20c
Onions (green), per doz. bunches.....8@10c
Pumpkins, per dozen.....80c@$1.00
Potatoes (new), per bushel.....50@60c
Parsley, per doz. bunches.....15@20c
Watercress, per doz.....35@40c
Wax beans, per bushel.....25@30c
Green peppers, per basket.....50c
Vegetable eggs, per doz.....$1.50

FRUIT.

Apples, per bushel.....40@80c
Maple sugar, per lb.....8@10c
Pop corn, per lb.....3@4c
Celery, nuts, per bushel.....$1.75@2.00
Bananas, firsts, per bunch.....$2.50@2.75
Bananas, seconds, per bunch.....$1.50@2.00
Lemons, Messina, per box.....$4.00@4.25
Lemons, California, per box.....$4.00@4.50
Oranges, California Valencia.....$4.00@4.50
Oranges, seedlings, per box.....$3.50@4.00

NUTS.

Walnuts.....14@18c
Brazils.....14c
Filberts.....14c
Almonds.....14c
Pecans.....14c
Mixed nuts.....13c

DAIRY PRODUCTS

Quoted by Brewster, Crittenden & Riley, 288 Exchange Street.)

Extra Elgin, 1 lb prints.....32c
Extra Elgin, tubs.....30c
Fine creamery, tubs.....28c
Extra dairy, tubs.....26c
Fresh eggs.....30@32c
Dairy cheese.....12½c

RETAIL MARKET

(These quotations are specially furnished to The Times by W. E. Woodbury & Co., wholesale and retail grocers, and Youngs' Crystal Market.)

(In giving retail quotations a wide range is necessitated in the various commodities, and prices depend entirely upon the quality of the goods sold.)

VEGETABLES—GREEN.

Bermuda potatoes, per lb.....6c
Potatoes, per bushel.....60c
Potatoes, per peck.....15c
Onions, per peck.....30c
Watercress.....5c
Mint, per bunch.....3@5c
Cabbage, new, per head.....5c
Cucumbers.....15c
Horseradish root, per lb.....10c
Garlic, per lb.....15c
Peppers, per doz.....30c
Celery, per bundle.....15c
Celery, per bunch.....5c
Chives, bunch.....3c
Egg plant, per lb.....15c
Cauliflower.....5@20c

VEGETABLES—DRIED.

Lima beans, hand-picked, per lb.....8c
Marrow beans, hand-picked, qt.....10c
Pea beans, hand-picked, qt.....5c
Kidney beans, hand-picked, qt.....10c
Turtle soup beans, hand-picked, qt.....10c
Split peas, per lb.....5c
Pop corn, per lb package.....7c
Pop corn, per lb.....5c
Lentils, per lb.....7c
Scotch peas, per lb.....5c

VEGETABLES—CANNED.

Tomatoes, 2-lb can.....8@15c
Tomatoes, gallon can.....35c
Corn, 2-lb can.....10@12c
Peas, 2-lb can.....10@15c
Squash, 2-lb can.....12c
Pumpkin, 2-lb can.....10c
Beans, string, 2-lb can.....12c
Beans, wax, 2-lb can.....10c
Beans, Lima, 2-lb can.....10c
Beans, Lima, 2-lb can.....8@12c
Celery, 2-lb can.....10c
Succotash, 2-lb can.....10@12c
Beets, 2-lb can.....10c
Okra.....10@15c
Spinach, 3 cans.....12c

FRUIT—GREEN.

Apples, per peck.....10@25c
Oranges, per dozen.....20@25c
Lemons, per dozen.....25@35c
Pineapples, each.....10@20c
Bananas, per dozen.....20c
Limes, per dozen.....10@15c
Limes, peck.....$1.00

FRUIT—DRIED.

Apples, per lb.....8c
Prunes, per lb.....5@12c
Apricots, per lb.....10@12c
Elderberries, per lb.....18c
Raisins, layer, per lb.....25@30c
Figs, per lb.....10@15c
Dates, per lb.....8c
Citron peel, per lb.....15@20c
Lemon peel, per lb.....15@20c
Orange peel, per lb.....15@20c
Cherries, per lb.....12c
Raisins, loose, per lb.....8c
Peaches, per lb.....5@8c
Black raspberries, per lb.....

FRUIT—CANNED.

Peaches, 2-lb can.....15@20c
Apricots, 2-lb can.....15@18c
Plums, 2-lb can.....12@18c
Cherries, 2-lb can.....10c
Pears, 2-lb can.....10@12c
Pineapples, 2-lb can.....
Red raspberries, 2-lb can.....25c
Strawberries, 2-lb can.....25c

PROVISIONS.

Butter, per lb.....25@28c
Eggs, per dozen.....30c
Cheese, per lb.....15c
Lard, new, per lb.....8@10c
Cottolene, per lb.....11c
Smoked hams, per lb.....12½c
Smoked Cal. hams, per lb.....9c
Smoked shoulders, per lb.....8c
Smoked bacon, per lb.....10½@12c
Salt pork, per lb.....10@12c
Sugar—XXXX, per lb. 7c; powdered, per lb. 6½c; cut-loaf, per lb. 7c; granulated, per lb. 6c; confectioners' A, per lb. 6c; soft A, per lb. 6c.

FISH—FRESH.

Whitefish, per lb.....14c
Salmon trout, fresh caught, per lb.....14c
Steak, cod, per lb.....14c
Halibut steak, per lb.....20@25c
Lake trout, per lb.....12c
Perch, skinned, per lb.....15c
Salmon steak, per lb.....25@30c
Fresh mackerel, each.....35@40c
Striped bass, per lb.....20c
Porgies, per lb.....15c
Flounders, per lb.....11c
Haddock, per lb.....12c
Clams, per dozen.....12c
Bullheads, per lb.....15c
Bluefish.....25c
Oysters, per quart.....35c
Smelts, per lb.....15@20c
Black bass, per lb.....15c
Spanish mackerel, per lb.....20c
Boiled lobsters, per lb.....30c
Live lobsters, per lb.....30c
Sea trout.....10@12c
Sea bass, per lb.....25@30c
Kennebeck salmon.....25c
Lake herring.....15c
Fresh mackerel.....35@40c
Hot dripper.....15c
Porgies.....10c
Buck shad.....60c
Roe shad.....60c
Frost fish.....12½c

FISH—SALT.

Mackerel, per lb.....15c
Mackerel, No. 2, per lb.....20c
Mackerel, bloaters, per lb.....20c
No. 1 whitefish, per lb.....8c
Family whitefish, per lb.....8c
No. 1 trout, per lb.....8c
Sleeper, per lb.....7½@8c
Halland herring, keg.....75@85c
Herring, per lb.....5c
Shrimp, per qt.....20c
Scollops, per qt.....40c

FLOUR.

Best patent, per bbl.....$7.50
Best roller process, per bbl.....6.50
Graham, per lb.....2½c
Rye, per lb.....2½c
Entire wheat, per 14-lbl. sack.....25c
Rice flour, per package.....5c
Gluten, per lb.....20@25c
Buckwheat, per sack.....
Prepared buckwheat, per 2-lb pkg.....10c
Prepared pancake flour, per 2-lb pkg.....10c
Cornmeal, per lb.....2½c

COFFEE.

Roasted Imperial, per lb.....18c
Roasted Rio, per lb.....16@18c
Roasted Java, per lb.....29@34c
Roasted Mocha, per lb.....35c
Green Mocha, per lb.....26@30c
Green Rio, per lb.....9@16c

CLOSING PRICES IN FOREIGN MARKETS

GENERAL QUOTATIONS

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—COTTON—Spot closed lower; middling uplands 7.00 and gulf 7.25. Cotton futures closed barely steady: December, 6.45; January, 6.45; February, 6.45; March, 6.50; April, 6.55; May, 6.61; June, 6.70; July, 6.80; August, 6.95; October, 7.05.

FLOUR—Receipts 35,500 bbls. Exports 1,500 bbls. Sales 3,400 packages. Market held higher. RYE FLOUR—Market quiet; sales at $4.40@5.00, latter for fancy. CORN MEAL—Market steady; sales fine white and yellow at $1.30@1.35 and coarse at $1.24@1.25. BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Market dull; quoted at $2.10@2.20 per 100 lbs.

WHEAT—Receipts 99,000 bush. Exports 1,000 bbls. Sales 3,400 packages. Market held higher. RYE FLOUR—Market quiet; sales at $4.40@5.00, latter for fancy. CORN MEAL—Market steady; sales fine white and yellow at $1.30@1.35 and coarse at $1.24@1.25. BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—Market dull; quoted at $2.10@2.20 per 100 lbs.

WHEAT—Receipts 99,000 bush. exports 1,000 bush; sales 4,500,000 bush futures and 40,000 bush spot. Spot irregular. No. 2 red at 1.08 in elevator and 1.08¾c f. o. b. afloat. No. 1 Northern Duluth at 1.24¾c f. o. b. afloat. No. 1 hard Manitoba at 1.16c f. o. b. afloat. Options opened easier and closed easy at ½@¾c net decline. No. 2 red May sold at 1.03@1.03¼c and closed at 1.03¼c. December sold at 1.03@1.03¾c and closed at 1.03¾c. July sold at 1.03@1.03¾c and closed at 1.03¾c. December sold at 1.20¾@1.21¼c and closed at 1.20¾c.

CORN—Receipts 167,000 bush; exports 1,000 bush; sales 15,000 bush futures and 40,000 bush spot; easy. No. 2 at 52c in elevator and 53¾c f. o. b. afloat. No. 2 yellow at 53½c. No. 2 white at 54c. Options lower; May closed at 51¾c and December at 50½c.

OATS—Receipts 58,000 bush; exports ....000 bush; sales ....000 bush futures; spot market firm; sales mixed 25 to 32 pounds 25¼@25½c, natural white 30 to 32 pounds at 27@28c, clipped white 32 to 36 pounds at 28@29c. Options nominal; December closed at ....c.

PORK—Market quiet; sales family at $14.00@15.50, short-clear at $13.75@16.25 and mess at $13.00@13.50.

VEGETABLES

NEW YORK.—POTATOES—Receipts today 4,661 bbls. Market ruled quiet but steady. State and Western quoted at $1.37@1.62½ per 180 lbs and State and Western at $1.25@1.50 per 165-lb bag. CABBAGE—In good demand and market ruled firm; Danish seed (red) quoted at $30.00@35.00 per ton; Danish seed (white) at $20.00@24.00 and domestic at $9.00@12.00 per ton.

ST. LOUIS.—POTATOES—Market ruled dull and easy; supply in excess of demand. On track: Iowa growth quoted at prime, well culled stock; receipts light, values firm. Prime New York stock quoted at 65@66c per bushel. CABBAGE—Market ruled steady under a fair movement. New York Danish quoted at $11.00@12.00 per ton and New York domestic at $8.00@10.00.

PHILADELPHIA.—POTATOES — Market barely steady under a sluggish demand. New York quoted at 60@65c per bushel for choice to fancy. CABBAGE—Market barely steady under liberal offerings and sluggish demand. Fresh Danish quoted at $10.00@12.00 per ton and do domestic at $5.00@7.00.

CINCINNATI.—POTATOES — Market ruled dull and easy; choice well-matured stock quoted at 40@45c per bushel and off stock at 30@35c. CABBAGE—Market ruled steady, with sales at $9.00@7.00 per ton on track for domestic and $12.00 for Danish.

CLEVELAND.—POTATOES — Market ruled steady with a fair demand at quotations. Fancy stock quoted at 65@65c per bushel in car lots. CABBAGE—Domestic quoted at $5.00@8.00 per ton and Danish and Holland at $12.00@15.00.

BOSTON.—POTATOES—Market ruled steady. Houlton Rurals quoted at 60@65c per bushel and Green Mountains at 60@65c.

HOPS

Business was at a standstill. Dealers reported no trading locally, and there were no new developments reported from up the State or the Coast. There was no pressure to market supplies, and prices were quoted unchanged but steady.

N. Y. State, crop 1904, choice....25 @27 c
N. Y. State, do, med. to prime..32 @34 c
N. Y. State, do, ordinary.....29 @31 c
N. Y. State, crop 1903.....30 @33 c
N. Y. State, olds.....14 @.. c
Pacific Coast, crop 1904, choice..34 @38 c
Pacific Coast, do, med. to prime..31 @33 c
Pacific Coast, do, ordinary.....29 @30 c
Pacific Coast, crop 1903, choice..30 @33 c
Pacific Coast, olds.....14 @17 c
German, crop 1904.....60 @72 c

DAIRY PRODUCTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—BUTTER—Market firm; receipts today 6,607 packages. Creamery, common to extra, 17@25½c; imitation creamery, 17@23c; State dairy, common to extra, 17@24c; Western factory, common to extra, 16@22c; Elgins, 25½c; Imitation Elgins, 24c. CHEESE—Market firm; receipts today 1,000 packages. State, full cream, small colored, fancy, 13½c; do, large colored, fancy, 13½c; do, small white, fancy, 13½c; do, large white, fancy, 13½c; do, small colored, good to prime, 12½@13c; do, large colored, good to prime, 12½@13c; do, white, good to prime, 12½@13c; do, large white, good to prime, 12½@13c; do, common to fair, 10@12c; skims, full to light, 4@10c. EGGS—Market firm; receipts 8,154 cases. State, Pennsylvania and nearby, fancy, selected, white, 34@35c; do choice, 32@33c; do mixed fancy, 24@29c. Western fancy, selected, 26, do average best, 25. Southern, 19@25c.

DOMESTIC DRIED FRUITS

Evaporated apples are well sustained. Chops and waste in fair demand steady, but demand limited. Huckleberries weak, but other small fruits in light supply and firm.

Apples—
Evaporated, fancy, per lb.....6 @ 7
Evaporated, choice.....5 @ 5½
Evaporated, prime, per lb.....4½@ 4¾
Evaporated, common to good.....3½@ 4
Chops, per 100 lbs.....1 90@1 95
Cores and skins.....1 00@1 12
Raspberries—Evaporated, 1904.....22 @22
Huckleberries, 1904, per lb.....8½@9
Cherries, 1904, per lb.....13 @14

DOMESTIC GREEN FRUITS

Receipts today 7,313 bbls apples. Demand light, with most stock of ordinary quality, and market ruled weak with outside quotations exceptional.

Apples—
King per d-h bbl.....$2 00@3 50
Jonathan per d-h bbl.....2 00@3 00
Snow per d-h bbl.....1 50@2 50
Ben Davis per d-h bbl.....1 50@2 50
Spitzenberg per d-h bbl.....1 75@2 50
Spy per d-h bbl.....1 50@2 50
Baldwin per d-h bbl.....1 50@2 25
Greening per d-h bbl.....1 25@2 25

BEANS AND PEAS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Receipts yesterday 2,600 bags; beans and 36 bbls peas. Business was of small volume, most of the receivers reporting only a few jobbing sales of such goods as were wanted for immediate use. Prices show no quotable change.

Beans—Marrow, 1904, choice.....$2 65@2 70
Beans—Marrow, fair to good.....2 45@2 60
Beans—Medium, 1904, choice.....1 85@.....
Beans—Pea, 1904, choice.....1 70@.....
Beans—Red kidney, 1904, choice..2 60@.....
Beans—White kidney, 1904, choice..2 25@2 35
Beans—White kidney, 1903, choice..2 10@.....
Beans—Black turtle soup, choice..2 15@.....
Beans—Yellow eye, 1904, choice..2 15@.....
Beans—Lima, California.....3 00@.....

HAY AND STRAW

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Very little change in the condition of the market. Timothy and clover seed continued dull, clover dragging at 65c.

Hay—Prime, (large bales).....$15@17 ..c
Hay—No. 1, large bales.....70 @72½c
Hay—No. 2, large bales.....60 @65 c
Hay—No. 3, large bales.....60 @60 c
Hay—Clover (mixed).....65 @70 c
Hay—Shipping pure.....50 @55 c
Straw—Long rye per 100 lbs.....1100 1150
Straw—Short rye.....65 @75c
Straw—Oat and wheat.....45 @50 c

PETROLEUM

OIL CITY, Dec. 28.—Credit balances sold at 1.25c. Certificates closed with no cash bids. Shipments, Pennsylvania 60,000 bbls; average 75,000; runs, 83,500 bbls, average 68,000. Shipments, Lima 78,000 bbls; average 57,000; runs ....000, average ....000.

LIVE STOCK

EAST BUFFALO, Dec. 28.—CATTLE—Receipts light. Market steady. Sales prime steers at $5.60@5.75, shipping at $4.75@5.85, butchers' $3.50@5.00; heifers at $3.00@4.50, cows at $2.50@4.10, bulls and stockers and feeders at $2.50@4.00.

VEALS—Receipts 100 head. Market steady; sales at $4.50@6.50.

HOGS—Receipts 5,100 head. Market fairly active and steady to 5c higher. Sales heavy at $4.80@4.85, mixed at $4.75@4.80, yorkers at $4.75@4.80, pigs at $4.75@4.80, roughs at $4.00@4.25, stags at $3.00@3.50, dairies at $4.75@4.80.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—Receipts 2,000 head. Market steady; sales at $4.00@5.00 for lambs, $3.00@3.75 for sheep.

TIMES WANT ADS

LET'S GET TOGETHER

THE TIMES wants your wants and you want your wants gratified. . . . . .

For 1 cent a word you can have your want ad printed in 19,000 copies of THE EVENING TIMES. Some publishers figure that from three to five persons read every paper. Let's be conservative and say that one person reads each copy of THE TIMES—which is certainly true—and your ad is read by 19,000 people.

Do you realize what this means? The combined seating capacity of the five Rochester theaters is 9,716. Imagine the five large audiences, each person holding a copy of THE TIMES containing your ad, then multiply the picture by two and you have an idea of what you are getting for one cent a word.

TIMES' WANT ADS DO PAY!

HELP WANTED—MALE

Advertisements under this head, 1 cent a word; no ads. less than 10 cents.

WANTED—Men to work on racks at night. Twenty cents an hour. Apply this afternoon. Genesee Paper Company, Lower Falls. 1229

WANTED—Fifty boys to sell our New Year's Calendar Greetings. Record office, 127 Main, East. 1225-30

WANTED—Recruits for the United States Marine Corps; able-bodied unmarried men between 21 and 35, good character, must speak, read and write English. Marines serve at sea, on men of war in all parts of the world, on land in our island possessions and at naval stations in the United States. Apply, Room 218, Livingston Bldg., 32 Exchange. 10-3-d-t-12-31

SPLENDID WAGES paid men who learn barber trade with us. Can earn scholarship, board, tools and transportation if desired; two months required; 150 wanted to prepare for spring trade. Particulars mailed. Moler Barber College, 390 Canal Street, New York. 224tf

DO YOU WRITE ADS?—Send address today on your business stationery for invaluable information Free. Harper Syndicate, Columbus, Ohio.

CASH for acceptable ideas. State if patented. Address The Patent Record, Washington, D. C. 216tf

SITUATION—MALE

Advertisements under this head are published free.

WANTED—Steady young man would like position in grocery or delivering or any other kind of work. Address, D-20, this office. 1229

PENSIONS

Advertisements under this head, 1 cent a word; no ads. less than 10 cents.

ALL VETERANS drawing less than $12 under Act of 1890 can get benefit of the new age rating by applying to J. M. Deyo, Pension Attorney, 36 Arcade. 1223tf

MUSICAL

Advertisements under this head, 1 cent a word; no ads. less than 10 cents.

GEO. R. STEBBINS, Music Dealer, Mandolins, piano, guitar, banjo, and violin teacher, 458 East Main. Private lessons, 50c. Class lessons, 25c. Classes of 10 or more pupils, free. Instruments bought, sold, exchanged or repaired. 9tf

WANTED

Advertisements under this head, 1 cent a word; no ad. less than 10 cents.

WANTED—Second hand sugar and crockery barrels; highest price paid for the same. 32 White Street. 1104-tf

SITUATION FEMALE

Advertisements under this head published free of charge.

WANTED—Position as good plain cook in small private family by reliable woman in city. No laundry. Address, 258 State Street, Room 12. 1230

LADIES' PERSONAL

Advertisements under this head, 1 cent a word; no ads. less than 10 cents.

"CASH FOR TRASH." Harry Harte buys gold plated or solid broken jewelry, old silver and watches. Remittance for mail packages made same day received. Address 602 Powers Block.

ADIES! Use Chichester's Diamond Pennyroyal Pills. It Reach Patent; only Reliable! Take no other. Buy of your Druggist, or send 4c. stamps, for particulars and "Relief for Ladies," in letter by return mail. Chichester Chemical Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

PERSONAL

Advertisements under this head, 1 cent a word, no ads. less than 10 cents.

CARPETS cleaned, steamed, 2c yard, all grades; feather beds, $1. Elder. 454 East Main Street. 'Phone R. 956. 812tf

50-CENT MAINSPRINGS; crystals, hunting, 7c; open face, 15c. Jewelry and clocks repaired. Harte, 602 Powers Building. 218tf

FOR RENT

Advertisements under this head, 1 cent a word; no ads. less than 10 cents.

FOR RENT—Stable at 57 South Washington Street for auto. or storage. No horses. Apply at house. 9-22-tf

FOR SALE

Advertisements under this head, 1 cent a word; no ad. less than 10 cents.

FOR SALE—Royal stock coal, chestnut size, $5.5 per ton; egg size, $5 per ton; for domestic use, $4.25 per ton. William Perry, Monroe Avenue corner Howell Street. Home 'phone 4317. 1221-tf

FOR SALE—500 tons coal or any part; No. 1 and 2 Chestnut coal for sale at $5.05 per ton. George T. Foster & Son, Clinton Avenue South, corner Griffith Street. Both 'phones 761. 1213tf

PHOTOGRAPHY

Advertisements under this head, 1 cent a word; no ad. less than 10 cents.

FOR the best and latest in the photographic art, at very low prices, go to Lehnkering's Studio, 24 State Street, over the White Kitchen. 1111tf

BOND LIST

U. S. 2s, regular				104½
U. S. 2s, coupon				104½
U. S. 3s, regular				104½
U. S. 3s, coupon				104½
U. S. small bonds				.....
U. S. 4s, regular				135½
U. S. 4s, coupon				136½
U. S. new 4s, regular				139¾
U. S. new 4s, coupon				139¾
D. C.				120
Atchison adjustment				94¾
Erie gen. 4s				92½
L. & N. 4s				102¾
Reading 4s				102¾
Iron Mountain 4s				96½
Wisconsin Central 4s				92½
Toledo 4s				82
Iron Mountain 4s				96
Southern Pacific 4s				83½
Wabash B's				69¼
Rocking Valley				111
Wheeling & L. E. 4s				93
Oregon Short Line 4s				101
Rock Island new 4s				89½
K. T. 2d 4s				83¾
Philippine 4s				110

	Opening	Highest	Lowest	Closing
WHEAT
Dec	113	113½	112⅝	112⅞

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

5. The counties in which any part of it is to be located are as follows: Erie, Genesee, Livingston and Monroe Counties.

6. The amount of the capital stock shall be three million ($3,000,000) dollars.

7. The number of shares into which the capital stock is to be divided is to be thirty thousand (30,000) shares.

8. The name and postoffice addresses of the Directors of the corporation who shall manage its affairs for the first year are as follows, namely:

Henry H. Kingston, North American Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

J. Andrews Harris, Jr., North American Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

John J. Collier, North American Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

Horatio A. Foster, 650 Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

T. Henry Dixon, Drexel Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

Samuel Welsh, Drexel Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

William B. Cutter, Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

George A. Ricker, Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

Herbert P. Bissell, Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

9. The place where its principal office is to be located is the Village of Depew, County of Erie, State of New York.

10. The names and description of the streets, avenues and highways in which such railroad is to be constructed are as follows:

Beginning in the Ellicott or Batavia Road, in the easterly line of the Village of Depew, in the Town of Lancaster, in the County of Erie, New York, at the point of intersection of the said Ellicott or Batavia Road and a so-called street named Burlington Avenue, to which point the tracks of the Buffalo & Depew Railway Company are now constructed; running thence easterly in, along and upon the said Ellicott or Batavia Road through the unincorporated villages called Looneyville and Crittenden; and through the towns of Lancaster and Alden in the County of Erie and through the town of Darien in the County of Genesee, and the incorporated Village of Corfu; and the Town of Pembroke and the unincorporated Village of West Batavia, and the Town of Batavia, to the southwesterly line of the incorporated Village of Batavia, where the said line is intersected by said Ellicott or Batavia Road, sometimes also called the new Buffalo Road, on Pearl Street in said Village of Batavia, thence easterly in, along and upon said Pearl Street to South Main Street; thence in South Main Street to Walnut Street; in Walnut Street and crossing the Tonawanda Creek northerly to West Main Street; thence easterly in West Main Street to East Main Street; thence easterly in East Main Street to the easterly line of the said Village of Batavia; thence continuing in, along and upon the State Road so-called, through the Town of Batavia, and through the unincorporated Village of Stafford and the Town of Stafford, and through the incorporated Village of Le Roy, wherein said State Road is called Main Street; and through the Town of Le Roy, continuing upon said State Road in the said County of Genesee, and continuing upon said State Road through the Town of Caledonia in the County of Livingston, and the incorporated Village of Caledonia; along, through and upon said State Road, which is also called Main Street in said Village of Caledonia, to the street or highway which leads northerly to Mumford called North Street; thence continuing in said North Street, or highway, to and through the unincorporated Village of Mumford, Town of Wheatland, in the County of Monroe; thence continuing in said Main Street in the Village of Mumford) to State Street so-called in said Village of Mumford, (State Street being the highway leading easterly through the Village of Mumford); continuing thence in said highway, or State Street to Oatka Avenue and in said Oatka Avenue, to the lands of Henry Boehn; thence turning northeasterly and running over private right of way and crossing the following highways, to wit:

Oatka Creek Road, opposite the lands of George S. Campbell; the Belcoda Road, opposite said Campbell's lands; the North Road, opposite the lands of the Cameron-McVean estate, to and into the Town of Chili in said County of Monroe, crossing through the Town of Riga to and into the Town of Chili in said County of Monroe; crossing in the Town of Chili the following highways, to wit:

The Harmon or Clifton Road, opposite the lands of Elmer Harmon; the Saw-mill Road, opposite the lands of Hannah Burdett; the Braddock Bay Road, opposite the lands of Herbert Wadsworth; the Stryker Road, opposite the lands of Benjamin Bowen; the Stottle Road, opposite the lands of Isaac Smith; the Beaver Road, opposite the lands of Thomas White; the Kittle Road, opposite the lands of Esther Cronise; and continuing on a private right of way across the lands of the West Shore Railroad northerly to the Chili Road, at a point about fifteen hundred (1500) feet westerly from its intersection with the Paul Road; and continuing in, along and upon said Chili Road easterly to the Paul Road; thence easterly in, along and upon the said Paul Road to the River, or Scottsville, Road, so-called; thence northeasterly in, along and upon said River, or Scottsville, Road, to the south line of the City of Rochester, at its intersection with Genesee Street.

11. The names and postoffice addresses of each subscriber to the certificate and the number of shares he agrees to take in such corporation are as follows:

1. Henry H. Kingston, Philadelphia, Pa., 496 shares.

2. J. Andrew Harris, Jr., Philadelphia, Pa., 1 share.

3. John J. Collier, Philadelphia, Pa., 1 share.

4. Horatio A. Foster, Philadelphia, Pa., 1 shares.

5. T. Henry Dixon, Philadelphia, Pa., 1 share.

6. Samuel Welsh, Philadelphia, Pa., 1 share.

7. William B. Cutter, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

8. George A. Ricker, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

9. Herbert P. Bissell, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

10. John T. Mooney, Depew, N. Y., 1 share.

11. George C. Riley, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

12. George S. Minniss, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

13. William G. Dargan, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

14. William G. Bissell, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

15. Allyn F. McNair, Buffalo, N. Y., 1 share.

In witness whereof, we have executed and acknowledged this certificate in duplicate, and have subscribed our respective names hereto.

Dated, 23rd day of November, 1904.

Henry H. Kingston,
J. Andrews Harris, Jr.
John J. Collier.
H. A. Foster.
T. H. Dixon.
Samuel Welsh.
William B. Cutter.
George A. Ricker.
Herbert P. Bissell.
John T. Mooney.
George C. Riley.
George S. Minniss.
Wm. G. Dargan.
William G. Bissell.
Allyn F. McNair.

State of New York, County of Erie, City of Buffalo, ss.

On this fifth day of December, 1904, before me personally came William B. Cutter, George A. Ricker, Herbert P. Bissell, John T. Mooney, George C. Riley, George S. Minniss, William G. Dargan, William G. Bissell and Allyn F. McNair, to me known to be the persons described in and who executed the foregoing Certificate, and severally duly acknowledged to me that they executed the same, for the purpose therein mentioned.

JAMES W. MURPHY,
Notary Public.

State of Pennsylvania, County of Philadelphia, City of Philadelphia, ss.

Henry H. Kingston, J. Andrews Harris, Jr., and John J. Collier, being severally duly sworn, each for himself, deposes and says he is a Director named in the foregoing Certificate of Incorporation; that at least $1,000.00 of capital stock for every mile of road proposed to be built has been subscribed thereto and paid in good faith and in cash to the Directors named in the Certificate, and that it is intended in good faith to construct the railroad therein described, and that each deponent is the bona fide owner of the amount of stock set opposite his name in the foregoing list of subscribers, and is worth the amount subscribed by him over and above his debts and liabilities.

HENRY H. KINGSTON,
J. ANDREWS HARRIS, JR.
JOHN J. COLLIER.

Sworn to before me this 5th day of December, 1904.

JAMES W. MURPHY,
Notary Public.

My commission expires January 19, 1907.

State of Pennsylvania, County of Philadelphia, ss.

Acknowledgment, (Notary).

I, M. Russell Thayer, Prothonotary of the County of Philadelphia and Clerk of the Courts of Common Pleas of said County, which are Courts of Record, having a common seal, being the officer authorized by the laws of the State of Pennsylvania to make the following Certificate, do by my Deputy, Charles B. Roberts, authorized by Act of Assembly of May 28, 1887, Certify, That Susan E. Patterson, Esquire, whose name is subscribed to the certificate of the acknowledgment of the annexed Instrument and thereon written, was at the time of such acknowledgment a Notary Public for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, residing in the county aforesaid, duly commissioned and qualified to administer oaths and affirmations and to take acknowledgments and proofs of Deeds or Conveyances for lands, tenements and hereditaments to be recorded in said State of Pennsylvania and to all whose acts, as such, full faith and credit are and ought to be given, as well in Courts of Judicature as elsewhere; and that I am well acquainted with the handwriting of the said NOTARY PUBLIC and verily believe his signature thereto is genuine, and further certify that the said Instrument is executed and acknowledged in conformity with the Laws of the State of Pennsylvania.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said Court, this 6th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four (1904).

M. RUSSELL THAYER,
Prothonotary.

By CHAS. B. ROBERTS,
Dep. Prothonotary.

Durante Absentia, Secundum Legem.
12-12-1aw-3w-4t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank Geisenhof, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Frederick R. Rauber, Executor, at his place for the transaction of business as such Executor, at No. 52 German Insurance Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 15th day of April, 1905.

Dated, October 15th, 1904.

FREDERICK R. RAUBER,
Executor.

August V. Pappert, Attorney, 53 German Insurance Building, Rochester, N. Y.
10-17-1a-w-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Mary E. Otis, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned administrator, with the will annexed, of said deceased, at his place for the transaction of business as such administrator, at No. 83 Powers Block, Rochester, on or before the 20th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 29, 1904.

EDWIN J. RICH,
Administrator.

Frank M. Goff, Attorney, 838 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.
10-29-1a-w-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Isaac Willis, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned the Executor of the will of said decedent, at its place for the transaction of business as such Executor at No. 25 Exchange Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of May, 1905.

Dated, October 25th, 1904.

ROCHESTER TRUST AND SAFE DEPOSIT CO.,
Executor.
10-27-1a-w-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank Treichel, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned as administrator of said Frank Treichel at her place for the transaction of business as such administrator at 617 Ellwanger & Barry Bldg., Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 4th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 1, 1904.

AUGUSTA TREICHEL,
W. C. Kohlmetz, Attorney for Administrator.
10-1-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Elizabeth Burkhardt, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Peter Burgett, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at his residence, West Rush, N. Y., on or before the 24th day of February, 1905.

Dated August 18, 1904.

PETER BURGETT,
Executor.
8-19-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Helen P. Strong, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Henry A. Strong, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at 343 State Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 20th day of April, 1905.

Dated Oct. 15, 1904.

HENRY A. STRONG,
Executor.
10-15-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Eliza Ann Hall, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executrix, at her place for the transaction of business as such executrix, at 1 Gibbs Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 20th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 20, 1904.

ELIZA ANN HALL,
Executrix.

Frank M. Goff, Attorney, 838 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.
10-29-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Mary Ann Hall, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executrix, at her place for the transaction of business as such executrix, at 1 Gibbs Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 20th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 20, 1904.

MARY ANN HALL,
Executrix.

Frank M. Goff, Attorney, 838 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.
10-29-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Mary Ann Hall, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executrix, at her place for the transaction of business as such executrix, at 1 Gibbs Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 20th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 20, 1904.

MARY ANN HALL,
Executrix.

Frank M. Goff, Attorney, 838 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.
10-29-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Elizabeth Burkhardt, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Peter Burgett, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at his residence, West Rush, N. Y., on or before the 24th day of February, 1905.

Dated August 18, 1904.

PETER BURGETT,
Executor.
8-19-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Helen P. Strong, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Henry A. Strong, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at 343 State Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 20th day of April, 1905.

Dated Oct. 15, 1904.

HENRY A. STRONG,
Executor.
10-15-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Isaac Willis, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned the Executor of the will of said decedent, at its place for the transaction of business as such Executor at No. 25 Exchange Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of May, 1905.

Dated, October 25th, 1904.

ROCHESTER TRUST AND SAFE DEPOSIT CO.,
Executor.
10-27-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank Treichel, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned as administrator of said Frank Treichel at her place for the transaction of business as such administrator at 617 Ellwanger & Barry Bldg., Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 4th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 1, 1904.

AUGUSTA TREICHEL,
W. C. Kohlmetz, Attorney for Administrator.
10-1-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Elizabeth Burkhardt, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Peter Burgett, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at his residence, West Rush, N. Y., on or before the 24th day of February, 1905.

Dated August 18, 1904.

PETER BURGETT,
Executor.
8-19-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Caroline Sulstead, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned administrator or his attorneys at his place for the transaction of business as such administrator, at Nos. 19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 15th day of June, 1904.

Dated December 7, 1904.

CHARLES A. LIND,
Administrator.

Lewis & McKay, Attorneys for Administrator, 19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y.
12-08-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Isaac Willis, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned the Executor of the will of said decedent, at its place for the transaction of business as such Executor at No. 25 Exchange Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of May, 1905.

Dated, October 25th, 1904.

ROCHESTER TRUST AND SAFE DEPOSIT CO.,
Executor.
10-27-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank Treichel, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned as administrator of said Frank Treichel at her place for the transaction of business as such administrator at 617 Ellwanger & Barry Bldg., Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 4th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 1, 1904.

AUGUSTA TREICHEL,
W. C. Kohlmetz, Attorney for Administrator.
10-1-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Elizabeth Burkhardt, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Peter Burgett, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at his residence, West Rush, N. Y., on or before the 24th day of February, 1905.

Dated August 18, 1904.

PETER BURGETT,
Executor.
8-19-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Caroline Sulstead, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned administrator or his attorneys at his place for the transaction of business as such administrator, at Nos. 19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 15th day of June, 1904.

Dated December 7, 1904.

CHARLES A. LIND,
Administrator.

Lewis & McKay, Attorneys for Administrator, 19-24 Elwood Building, Rochester, N. Y.
12-08-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Isaac Willis, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned the Executor of the will of said decedent, at its place for the transaction of business as such Executor at No. 25 Exchange Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of May, 1905.

Dated, October 25th, 1904.

ROCHESTER TRUST AND SAFE DEPOSIT CO.,
Executor.
10-27-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank Treichel, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned as administrator of said Frank Treichel at her place for the transaction of business as such administrator at 617 Ellwanger & Barry Bldg., Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 4th day of April, 1905.

Dated October 1, 1904.

AUGUSTA TREICHEL,
W. C. Kohlmetz, Attorney for Administrator.
10-1-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Elizabeth Burkhardt, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Peter Burgett, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at his residence, West Rush, N. Y., on or before the 24th day of February, 1905.

Dated August 18, 1904.

PETER BURGETT,
Executor.
8-19-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Helen P. Strong, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor, Henry A. Strong, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at 343 State Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 20th day of April, 1905.

Dated Oct. 15, 1904.

HENRY A. STRONG,
Executor.
10-15

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

GENERAL SPORTING NEWS AND CRISP GOSSIP

CHICAGO WON GAME

Rochester Y. M. C. A. Basketball Team Defeated by Y. M. C. A. Champions 49 to 28.

RAGGED PLAYING BY LOCALS

They Played a Close Contest in the Second Half But Had Slumped Too Far.

The Chicago Central Y. M. C. A. basketball team had an easy time defeating the Rochester Y. M. C. A. five last night, the score being 49 to 28. The local boys played a wretched game the first half, the score being 31 to 12, but picked up strongly in the second half, making 16 points, while Chicago scored 18. The superior height of the Chicago five told heavily against Rochester in the team formations, the visitors keeping the ball away from the locals and themselves putting into effect the very style of team play the Rochesters have been accustomed to use. The visitors proved invariably sure in basket shooting, while the Rochester five were way off in this respect, missing easy shot after shot, but for their unsteadiness in this respect in the first half Rochester might have swung into their usual confident style of play and have made the score reasonably close. They should not have been beaten by more than ten points at most playing their average game.

The Chicago five proved to be a fast bunch, well trained in signal plays, which they were fortunate in carrying through regularly by the better jumping of their center, who was more than six feet tall. Smith, who is usually the center of Rochester's scoring and team plays, had his hands full in tagging after his man. The Chicago team won the Y. M. C. A. championship at St. Louis, but were beaten by the Germans 39 to 28 in the open championship. This score fairly shows the relative merits of those two teams.

Rochester basketball folks were treated to an exhibition of the strictest interpretation of the rules by Referee Reynolds of Chicago. Rochester had difficulty in guarding the tall Chicago men fairly and suffered considerably in the penalizing. However, Mr. Reynolds was fair and the game was played according to the rules which so many who witness a game always seem to want ignored when the home team does not have the best of it.

Jardine of Chicago proved the most accurate goal tosser from foul ever seen in Rochester. He did not miss a single try in the first half and he had almost a dozen.

The Chicago men complimented the Rochesters on their game, saying the locals were no doubt the fastest and fairest players they had met upon their Eastern trip.

The line-up of the teams and summary of the game follows:

Rochester.		Chicago.
Jack	Left forward.	Berggren
Valsey	Right forward.	Jardine
Smith	Center.	Schommer
Avery, McDonnell	Left guard.	Watson
Rowland	Right guard.	Collins

First half.

Goals from field—Berggren 5, Jardine 2, Schommer 2, Watson 2, Jack 2, Smith 2, Rowland one point; goals from fouls, Jardine 9, and Valsey 3.

Second half.

Goals from field—Berggren 3, Collins 2, Watson 2, Schommer 1, Valsey 2, Jack 1, Rowland 1, McDonnell 1; goals from fouls, Valsey 5, Jardine 2.

Referee, Reynolds; umpire, Brown. Time, two 20-minute periods.

Leave Rochester 5.25 P. M.

Via N. Y. C. & H. R. R. in connection with the Michigan Central, "The Niagara Falls Route," arrive Detroit 12:25 p. m., Chicago 8 a. m. Through sleeping cars and dining car serving breakfast Niles to Chicago.

For information inquire of New York Central agents or address W. H. Underwood, G. E. P. A., Buaffio, N. Y.

1213-dto-1-04-'05

THE EVENING TIMES will be sent to any address for $3 a year. Can you think of a better Christmas present?

WINTER SPORTS AT THE BIG UNIVERSITIES ARE BOOMING

Holiday Recess Has Been Given Over to Hard Practice by Most of the Athletic Teams, As Hard Struggles Are Yet to Come.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 29.—The completion of the University of Pennsylvania's magnificent new gymnasium has made it possible for the Quaker oarsmen to begin their winter training earlier than they ever did before. As a result, Coach Ward, Captain Taylor and the rowing committee have already begun preliminary work several weeks in advance over the last few years. A year ago the Quakers made an innovation in the training of the oarsmen by giving all the candidates two weeks of preliminary work in cross-country running under the direction of Dr. J. K. Shell, the coach of the track team. So successful was this preliminary training that it will be repeated this winter and in addition the oarsmen will take up a special course of work under the direction of Dr. McKenzie, the new gymnastic director.

When Coach Ward receives the candidates to give them their first work on the rowing machines they will be much farther advanced physically than ever before. The Quakers' veteran rowing instructor will also have the added advantage of 32 rowing machines, instead of eight, as in previous years. The machines have been so arranged that one man can act as stroke for the entire 32 oarsmen, permitting the coach to instruct four times as many men at once as in pervious years.

The rowing committee and Coach Ward decided not to put a rowing tank in the new gymnasium. This was advocated, but Coach Ward has always contended that he can teach the stroke better on machines than in a tank. That his view is being shared by other coaches is shown by the fact that Yale and Harvard have abandoned the rowing tanks for the machines.

The prospects for a strong crew this year are very bright. Of the 1904 eight all but one man have returned. The only one lost is Captain Zane, who was a member of four Pennsylvania eights. The other seven men—Hermann, Vaux, Taylor, Boers, Crowell, Drayton and Stevenson—are all back again and will row. In addition to them, the four-oared crew is back again and the freshman eight is expected to supply several candidates for the 'varsity eight.

The meeting of the Athletic Association on Tuesday and the dedication of the gymnasium on the following day, brought out two of the pleasantest surprises the university has had in many years. At the meeting of the Athletic Association the directors were instructed to proceed at once with the construction of a training-house for the athletes. The total cost is to be $80,000. Of this amount one-half has been subscribed and the rest will be raised by means of a mortgage. The new training-house will be put up on the northwest corner of Franklin Field to the height of four stories and when completed will be the finest in the country. It will be sufficient to house the members of the various teams, the football team, crew, baseball team and track team, will be quartered here during the training seasons and will be obliged to pay the same amount for board and rooms as at the dormitories.

The second announcement was the gift of $50,000 by William Weightman, the multi-millionaire chemist, for the endowment of the new gymnasium. This sum is not to be used for the payment of salaries or building operations, but for the enlargement of the student physical education. The large exercise room on the second floor, also used as an auditorium, has been named Weightman Hall in honor of the donor. The equipment of the gymnasium is being rapidly installed and Dr. McKenzie will begin regular work with the students on the opening of the new term in January.

Especially is putting in the hardest kind of work on its new rink within the inclosure of the stadium. Last year by the narrowest squeak the team succeeded in defeating Yale, but Trainer MacMaster is by no means optimistic of a repetition of such luck this winter.

"It looks rather bad," said Scotty, shaking his head dubiously. "Shorty Carr, big, long-legged Clothier and Captain Souther were three mighty good men and we're feeling their loss this year. Still, the men are all working hard and if this will do it, they will beat the Eils again this winter, when they line up against each other in New York."

Of the three men whom Scotty mentioned the two whose loss has, in a sense, demoralized the team, are Carr and Clothier. Carr, who stood an inch or so over five feet in height, played end and there was none better in the business anywhere. Clothier, who was also the 'varsity football end and tennis champion, stood an inch or so over six feet in height and played next to Shorty at cover point. The two were a great combination and Grant and Newhall, who are trying to hold down their respective places this winter, are at the best, mean substitutes. Newhall is stocky and strong and breaks up interference well. He is poor at lifting, however, and not good at passing either. Grant is neither so quick, aggressive nor determined as Carr, and is one of the weak points of the team.

Of the four forwards Townsend is playing the best game. As a freshman last year this youngster gave promise of developing into something unusual, but few expected he would improve as rapidly as he has. He is fast as lightning down the ice, a clever dodger, sure in shooting, and ready to size up a situation accurately. Captain Galloway is playing only fairly, while MacLeod and Wilder, both of them veterans, are doing a trifle better. Early in the week the team seemed to have struck its gait, but went to pieces a few days later as the result of a shift. From this change it is now recovering and, profiting by their experience, the coaches probably will succeed all the better from now on.

Captain Schick's call for pole-vaulters the last week brings into prominence Harvard's great weakness on the track this year. The high-jumping contests which have been going on recently show only too clearly how sorely it she lacks good men in this event, and now Schick comes out in the Harvard Crimson, almost imploring men to come out as candidates for the vault. Up to the present time only one man—from last year's team, has appeared in the field. Gring, who made such a brilliant showing last year, is not in college, having accepted a business offer in California, and of the other candidates not one is particularly promising. In the hammer-throw, also, Harvard promises to be very weak, and Captain Schick is endeavoring to get men to come out also for this event.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the swimming team by the fact that an effort is on foot to get a new natatorium at Harvard, which shall be open to all members of the university. Up to the present time the team has been forced to practice in the private tanks of the swell private dormitories such as Craigie, Wetmorly, Claverly and Dunster. The erection of a university tank such as Princeton and Pennsylvania have would greatly benefit the swimming team, which, even as it is, includes a large number of the most prominent men in college among its devotees. Another thing which has aroused interest in swimming is the match with Yale, which has been arranged this year. Walter Harrison, who was elected captain of the team the last week, is taking hold of things with a vigorous hand, determined that Harvard shall not succumb to the Eils in this, the first meet of its kind ever held between the two famous old rivals.

And speaking of Harvard-Yale contests, the ratification of Hurley's reelection by the athletic committee last Wednesday makes it pretty certain that Harvard will give her Blue enemy a hard run for her money next fall. Hurley is a fighter from the ground up and if, as many hope, he succeeds in getting Bill Reid, coach of the championship 1901 team, to act in the same capacity next year, there is every chance that Harvard will break the long chain of New Haven victories.

Hurley's ratification shows that the authorities at Cambridge, as well as the undergraduates, believe in breaking away from supposedly cast-iron tradition, if by doing so they can bring Harvard to the front. It is needless to say that, after a period of considerable anxiety, their action greatly rejoiced Harvard men.

PLENTY DOING AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 29.—Seldom in Harvard's history has so much been doing in winter sports as there is at the present time. The hockey team

TRACK ATHLETES AT MICHIGAN

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 29.—Michigan track candidates are following the advice of Trainer Keene Fitzpatrick and have started light training. There are double reasons why the men are doing this. One is to get into good form, but the main object is to show Fitzpatrick the material he has in hand and the work he will have to do to turn out a championship team.

Fitzpatrick stated that never since he has come here has Michigan had such poor material and had lost so many M men through graduation.

"Why, we haven't a decent sprinter or high jumper," said Fitzpatrick. "When Hohn left, I thought I would have Stewart to fall back on, but he has not returned to college this year. Keeler is the only man I have for the sprints, and he is no match for Blair ana Rice of Chicago.

"All our high jumpers have left and they were all point winners at the inter-conference this summer. I have good men in the quarter-mile and the distance events. For the quarter-mile I have Captain Rebstock, Goodwin, Garrels and Lewis. For the half-mile I have Ramey and Stickney, but I am afraid that Captain Rebstock will have to run in this event. There are a lot of promising men for the half-mile, but I shall miss Morris Hall.

"There remains for the distances Stone, Coe, Stickney, Rowe, Conger, and many others. On the other hand, we are very strong in the weight events. Rose is still at college and he should have little difficulty in overcoming his opponents. He will have as team-mates Ackerman, Garrils and Captain Heston of the football team.

"If I turn out a championship team this year, I will be a surprised man, because everything is against Michigan. Chicago has an exceptionally strong team, losing but few men through graduation. On top of this all, the other Western universities will be pitted against Michigan because Michigan has won the championship of the West for five straight years."

All the Michigan undergraduates see that their outlook is not as rosy as it was heretofore and they will have to hustle to keep ahead. Michigan men are excellent fighters against adversity and one is safe in saying that when Michigan's first indoor meet is held some excellent material will have been developed by Fitzpatrick.

Coach Fitzpatrick is conceded by all to be one of the best athletic trainers in the world and his record merits this opinion. Not alone being trainer of four champion football teams, he has developed five champion track teams and sent two to Philadelphia that carried off all the honors there.

The men here have as much faith in his ability as in Yost's and they trust everything to him and few expect to be disappointed.

Fitzpatrick has with him Goodwin and Garrels, who represented Michigan in the quarter-mile at Chicago last summer, and they ran in the quarter-mile relay. They are both big fellows and exceptionally strong in sprinting the last 100 yards of the quarter.

Ramey, who will run the half-mile, defeated Hall here last year in the fast time of 2:01. This was done on a 14-lap track, and a good many expect to see him do better time this year. When it came to outdoor work, Ramey was not strong, due to the fact that, being ineligible to represent Michigan, he neglected training.

Rowe, who will be Stone's teammate, is without a doubt the best two-miler attending any university in the country today. He has former Captain Kelling's style of running, and he has already shown his caliber by defeating Stone and the rest of the university cracks in the annual cross-country run.

He also represented the First Regiment of Chicago and won many events for it.

Michigan's football players are in demand. No university in the country has as many men coaching different teams as has Michigan. McGugin had a successful season at Missisaippi; Herrnstein coached the Haskell Indians, a team that defeated the majority of Western teams and played Carlisle such an excellent game.

Besides these men, Maddock turned out a champion team at Utah; Graver did the same at Marietta, while Jones had a very successful season with Case.

All these men played on the 1902 and 1903 teams that held the Western championship. The men, under Yost's capable coaching, imbibed freely of the finer points of the game, and after leaving their services were in demand.

All three men coached their teams a la Yost style, with the result that champion is written on nearly all the footballs in their respective trophy cases.

All of these men purpose to r[illegible] Ann Arbor to attend the

PENNSY IS LEADING

First Round of Annual Tournament of Triangular College Chess League Is Ended.

SECOND ROUND ON TODAY

Cornell, Pennsylvania and Brown Are the Three Universities Entered in Contest.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—At the conclusion of the first round of the annual tournament of the triangular College Chess League yesterday, Pennsylvania led with 1½ points. Brown was second with one point, while Cornell, holder of the championship trophy, brought up the rear with half a point. Three games were contested between the six players in the competition, two being drawn, while the third was scored by Kirkpatrick of Pennsylvania at the expense of Darling of Cornell.

The three universities were represented as follows: Cornell, James R. Mitchell and J. F. Darling; Brown, W. W. Burton and P. V. Van Arsdale; University of Pennsylvania, M. B. Kirkpatrick and L. S. Johnston.

The play in detail:

First board—Kirkpatrick, Pennsylvania, won from Darling, Cornell, in a Ruy Lopez after 53 moves.

Second board—Van Arsdale, Brown, drew with Johnston, Pennsylvania, in a Sicilian defense after 66 moves.

Third board—Burton, Brown, drew with Mitchell of Cornell, in a Petroff defense after 30 moves.

The competition is the sixth of the series of which Cornell has to date won four and Pennsylvania one. The following are the scores of the contestants to date:

PENNSYLVANIA.	Won.	Lost.
Kirkpatrick	1	0
Johnston	½	½
Total	1½	½
BROWN.
Burton	½	½
Van Arsdale	½	½
Total	1	1
CORNELL.
Mitchell	½	½
Darling	0	1
Total	½	1½

In the second round scheduled for today the players will meet in the following order: Johnston, Pennsylvania, vs. Burton, Brown.

Darling, Cornell, vs. Van Arsdale, Brown.

Mitchell, Cornell, vs. Kirkpatrick, Pennsylvania.

ALL-AMERICAN TEAM CHOSEN BY WALTER CAMP

Position.	Player.	College.
End	Shevlin	Yale.
Tackle	Cozens	Princeton.
Guard	Piekarski	Pennsylvania.
Center	Tipton	West Point.
Guard	Kinney	Yale.
Tackle	Hogan	Yale.
End	Eckersall	Chicago.
Quarter	Stevenson	Pennsylvania.
Half	Hurley	Harvard.
Half	Heston	Michigan.
Full	Smith	Pennsylvania.

MEN  CURED

My Cured Patients Are My Best Advertisement

Contagious Blood Poison.

It may be in its primary stages. It may have been hereditary or contracted in early days. I stop its progress, eradicate every vestige of poison from the system, and this without the use of poisonous drugs.

I also cure VARICOCELE, STRICTURE, UNNATURAL DISCHARGES, LOSS OF MANLY VIGOR, NERVOUS DEBILITY, DRAINS, KIDNEY, BLADDER and Private Diseases. CERTAINTY OF A CURE IS WHAT YOU WANT. Remember, I guarantee to cure every case I accept for treatment or refund the money.

CONSULTATION AND ADVICE FREE
Office Hours: 9 A. M. to 8 P. M. Sunday 10-12

DR. WOOLSTON
8 Hayward Bldg. 19 Clinton Ave. S.

FOWL

	lb.
Fowl	12c
Yearling Chickens	14c
Cal. Hams	7c
Pork Loin	8c
3 lbs. Lard	25c
Cheese, Full Cream	13c
Butter, Table Use	23c
Coffee, Acme Brand	17c
Teas—Green, Black, Mixed	25c
Condensed Milk, Tricolor Brand, (Pure) 3 cans	20c

H. R. EAST
37-43 Front St. 2-8 Corinthian St.

LIVERIES.

Robes so cozy, soft and warm.

Higgins' heated sleighs, cheeks so rosy; safe from harm.

Christmas jolly days—"49."

MELLOWED BY 10 YEARS
REPOSE IN THE WOOD

O.F.C. RYE
Crop of 1892.
A Perfect Whiskey
It's Pure——That's Sure
Served and Sold Everywhere.
New York & Kentucky Co
Sole Proprietor.
232 5th Avenue, New York.

Notice to Contractors

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Clerk of the Board of Contract and Supply, No. 28 City Hall, until 10 o'clock a. m., January 4, 1905, for the following:

One photograph cabinet.
Three Gamewell 15-inch gongs.
One Remington typewriter and cabinet.
Arch Street sidewalk cleaning.
Atlantic Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Birr Street sidewalk cleaning.
Bowman Street sidewalk cleaning.
Congress Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Dewey Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Driving Park Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Fillmore Street sidewalk cleaning.
Gardiner Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Genesee Street sidewalk cleaning.
Glenwood Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Kingston Street sidewalk cleaning.

All bids must be indorsed with the title of the work to which they relate, the name of the bidder and his residence. Information relative to the work may be procured at the City Engineer's office, on the fifth floor of the City Hall, where specifications and bidding sheets may be obtained after December 30th.

All bids must be upon the bidding sheets which will be furnished by the City Engineer. F. X. PIFER, Clerk.

12-29-d-5t

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK: By the Grace of God Free and Independent.

To Frank Seeber, heir at law and next of kin of Jennie M. Brownell, send greeting:

Whereas, John W. Brownell, the Executor named in a certain instrument in writing, bearing date August 16, 1901, purporting to be the last Will and Testament of said Jennie M. Brownell, late of the Village of Fairport, in said County of Monroe, and State of New York, deceased, and relating to both real and personal estate, has lately made application to the Surrogate's Court of our County of Monroe, to have said instrument proved and recorded as a Will of personal and real estate, you, and each of you are cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of the County of Monroe, at his office in the City of Rochester, in said County of Monroe, New York, on the 30th day of February, 1905, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of said last Will and Testament. And if any of the aforesaid persons are under the age of twenty-one years, or insane or otherwise incompetent, they will please take notice that they are required to appear by their general guardian, if they have one, and if they have none, that they appear and apply for the appointment of a special guardian, or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for them in the proceedings for the probate of said Will.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Monroe, to be hereto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Rochester, this 28th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four.

ANDREW LUDOLPH,
Clerk Surrogate's Court.

Walter H. Hill, Attorney for Petitioner, 123 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y.

12-29-law-6w-7t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank Xavier Fuller, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at No. 241 Grand Avenue, on or before the first day of July, 1905.

Dated December 27, 1904.

THOMAS PIERCE,
Executor.

Henry S. McGonegal, Attorney for Executor. 12-28-law-6m

Horses for Sale

Department of Public Safety,
Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 27, 1904.

To Whom It May Concern:

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Commissioner of Public Safety, Room 32, City Hall, for the following Police Patrol horses, the property of the city of Rochester, now at the Veterinary Hospital, Irving Park Avenue:

No. 1. Black gelding "Jack."
No. 2. Bay gelding "Fred."
No. 3. Bay gelding "Jim."

Bids will be opened at 10 A. M., Wednesday, January 4, 1905. Terms cash.

GEORGE A. GILMAN,
Commissioner of Public Safety.

12-29-d-5t

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK—By the Grace of God Free and Independent:

To John Cunneen, Attorney General of the State of New York; John B. Hamilton, County Treasurer of Monroe County. To all creditors of and persons interested in the estate of Isaac B. Scranton, deceased, and to all heirs at law and next of kin whose names, residences, ages and relationship are unknown, of said Isaac B. Scranton, late of the Town of Ogden, in the County of Monroe, deceased, Greeting:

You are hereby cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of our County of Monroe, in the Surrogate's Court, on the 10th day of February, 1905, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of said last Will and Testament. And if any of the aforesaid persons are under the age of twenty-one years, or insane or otherwise incompetent, they will please take notice that they are required to appear by their general guardian, if they have one, and if they have none, that they appear and apply for the appointment of a special guardian, or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for them in the proceedings for the probate of said Will.

In Testimony Whereof, We have caused the seal of Office of our said Surrogate to be hereunto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. Geo. A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at Rochester, the 21st day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four.

GEO. A. BENTON,
Surrogate.

Berton W. Brown, attorney for petitioner, Spencerport, N. Y. 12-24-law-6w-7t

Department of Public Works

Sale of Property Under Tax Fore-

p. m., Wednesday, January 18, 1905, the following described parcels of real estate, situate in the City of Rochester, which have been acquired by the said city under tax foreclosure sale, as authorized by the Common Council:

Lots Nos. 5 and 6 of the Newcomb Homestead Association Tract—as the same is laid down on a map entitled "A map of the Newcomb Homestead Association," filed in Liber 8 of Maps, page 63, in Monroe County Clerk's office. Said lots are situated on the west side of Newcomb Avenue and are 40 feet wide and 120 feet deep, as shown on said map.

Lot No. 4 upon a map of the Loder Tract made by Horace Jones, surveyor, and filed in Monroe County Clerk's office. Said premises are located on the south side of Welcher Street, in the Fifteenth Ward in said city, and fronting 13½ feet on said street.

Lot No. 16, as laid down on a map of O'Brien's subdivision of a part of town lot No. 85, formerly in the town of Gates, now the City of Rochester, made by J. C. Ryan, surveyor, and filed in Monroe County Clerk's office. Said lot No. 16 is situated on the west side of Murray Street, formerly O'Brien Place, and is 40 feet front and rear and 82 feet deep.

Part of lot 66 in the Assessor's subdivision tract on Avon Place, in the Fourteenth Ward; being a part of the Bowen farm on the north side of said Avon Place, bounded north by lands of M. Flynn, east by lands of John Christ, and west by land now or formerly owned by John Nagle.

Lots Nos. 247, 249, 251, 253, 255, 257, 259, 261, 263 and 265, as laid down on a map of the "Flower City Building Lot Association" of Rochester, N. Y., on file in Monroe County Clerk's office, in Liber 4 of Maps, page 19; said lots being 50 feet front each, the same width in rear and about 161 feet deep, more or less, and fronting on the north side of Flower City Park.

Lot No. 1 Calhan and Wolff's re-subdivision of part of Avery L. Reed's subdivision of part of the Otis farm, situated on the south side of Lois Street, as shown on a map on file in Monroe County Clerk's office at Liber 6 of Maps, page 81.

Part of town lot No. 29, town of Greece, and of the subdivision thereof made by the Flour City Co-Operative Building Lot Association of Rochester, N. Y., Horace Jones, surveyor, in 1875, the map of which is on file in Monroe County Clerk's office, and being the lot designated in said map as No. 119, the said lots fronting on the north side of Flower City Park.

Lot two hundred and twenty (220) of the Flower City Building Lot Association Tract, on the south side of Flower City Park; said lot being 50 feet wide in front and rear and 132.83 feet deep.

Lot No. 279 of the Flower City Building Lot Association Tract, as shown on a map on file in Monroe County Clerk's office at Liber 4 of Maps, page 19, said lot fronting on the south side of Flower City Park, being 50 feet wide front and rear, and 202 and 3-12 feet deep.

The rear part of lots 47 and 61, inclusive, of Henry S. Brown's subdivision as shown on a map on file in Monroe County Clerk's office at Liber 9 of Maps, page 143, and also as shown on a map of Henry S. Brown's resubdivision, Liber 9 of Maps, page 142, as a strip of land lying in the rear of lots 49 to 64, inclusive.

Lot 71 of Henry S. Brown's subdivision, situate on the east side of North Street, in the Eighth Ward. Said lot being 50 feet wide in front and rear and 124 feet deep.

Lot 72 of Henry S. Brown's subdivision, situate on the east side of North Street in the Eighth Ward of said city. Said lot being 40 feet wide in front and rear and 125 feet deep.

Lot No. 8 of the Beechwood by Minges and Williams Tract. Said lot is situate on Hayward Avenue, corner of Baldwin Street, and is 56.34 feet wide in front, 129 feet wide in rear and 123 feet deep, in the Eighteenth Ward of said city.

Lot 77 of the William Otis Building Lot Association Tract, situate on the east side of Burrows Street, in the Tenth Ward. Said lot being a triangular parcel of land 26 feet wide in front on Burrows Street, 100 feet deep on the south line and converging to a point on the north line.

Lot 5 of the Houston Tract, which is a subdivision of part of town lot No. 65, Township 1, west of the Genesee River, according to a map of said tract recorded in Monroe County Clerk's office, said lot is 50 feet wide front and rear, 132 feet deep and situate on the east side of Santee Street, in the Tenth Ward.

Part of subdivision lot No. 3 of the Ebenezer Bowen farm, so called, according to a map of said farm on file in Monroe County Clerk's office, bounded as follows: Beginning in the center of Culver Road northerly 44 feet from the northeast corner of one acre of land contracted to be conveyed by John G. Klinck to George H. Taylor and 19 2-3 rods from the north line of lands owned by Laura B. Klinck; thence running northerly 44 feet to a point in the center of said Culver Road; thence westerly and parallel with said Laura B. Klinck's said north line 20 rods; thence southerly and parallel with said highway 44 feet to a point; thence easterly on a line parallel with said Laura B. Klinck's said north line 20 rods to place of beginning.

Part of subdivision lot No. 3 of the Dr. Ebenezer Bowen farm, so called, according to a map of said farm on file in Monroe County Clerk's office, bounded as follows: Beginning in the center of Culver Road 88 feet northerly from the northeast corner of one acre of land contracted to be conveyed by John G. Klinck to George H. Taylor and 19 1-3 rods from the north line of lands owned by Laura B. Klinck; thence running northerly 44 feet to a point in the center of said Culver Road; thence westerly and parallel with said Laura B. Klinck's said north line 20 rods; thence southerly and parallel with said highway 44 feet to a point; thence easterly on a line parallel with said Laura B. Klinck's said north line 20 rods to the place of beginning.

Lots H, I, J and K of the Whitney Tract, situate on the east side of Magnolia Street in the Fifteenth Ward.

Lot No. 17 of Moulson's subdivision of Kedle farm, situate at the corner of Remington and Ereth Street in the Seventeenth Ward. Said lot being 32 42-100 feet wide in front and rear and 112 feet deep.

That part of Moulson's subdivision of the Kedle farm, according to a map recorded in Monroe County Clerk's office, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point in the center of Remington Street 7 chains, 8 links south from the center of Norton Street; thence southerly along the center of Remington Street to the center of Lang Street; thence along the center of Lang Street east 7 chains, 72 links; thence northerly parallel with Remington Street to the south line of lot 67; thence along the south line of lot 67, 2 chains and 72 links to the place of beginning. The same being lot No. 68 of Moulson's resubdivision of the Kedle farm, situate at the northeast corner of Remington Street and Lang Street.

Lot 19 of Section B of St. Joseph Street Lot Association Subdivision. Said lot is 38 feet wide front and rear, 115 feet deep, and situate on the east side of Townsend Street, in the Seventeenth Ward.

Lot 50 of Jackson Homestead Association Tract, situate at the corner of Portland Avenue and Pomeroy Street, in the Seventeenth Ward. Said lot being 36 feet wide in front and rear and 114 feet deep.

Lot 74 of the Jackson Homestead Association Tract, situate on the north side of Pomeroy Street, in the Seventeenth Ward. Said lot being 40 feet wide in front and rear and 114 feet deep.

Lot 124 of the Jackson Homestead Association Tract, situate on the north side of Jackson Street, in the Seventeenth Ward.

Lot 303 of the East Rochester Building Lot Association Tract. Said lot is 72 feet wide in front, 66.5 feet in rear, 172 feet deep on the north line, 142.67 feet deep on the south line, and situate on the west side of Culver Road, in the Eighteenth Ward of said city.

Lot 306 of the East Rochester Building Lot Association Tract. Said lot is 80 feet wide in front, 75.5 feet wide in rear, 132.83 feet deep on the north line and 102.5 feet deep on the south line, and situate on the west side of Culver Road, in the Eighteenth Ward of said city.

Lot 322 of the Goodman Street Homestead Association Tract. Said lot is 24.83 feet wide front and rear and 125 feet deep and situate on Bay Street, in the Eighteenth Ward.

Lot 21 of Otis and Poole subdivision of part of Town Lot 42. Said lot is 25 feet wide, front and rear, 132 feet deep, and situate on the south side of Main Street East, in the Eighteenth Ward.

Lot 89 of the Rapids Tract. Said lot is 50 feet wide in front, 52.5 feet wide in rear, 84.5 feet deep to the railroad on its south line and 86.5 feet deep to the railroad on its north line, and situate on the west side of Plymouth Avenue, in the Nineteenth Ward.

Lot 273 of the Flower City Co-Operative Building Lot Association Tract, said lot being 36 feet wide front and rear and 161 feet deep, and situate on the north side of Flower City Park, in the Tenth Ward.

No. 11—Subdivision No. 3 of the Warner property, formerly in the town of Brighton, but now in the City of Rochester, bounded on the north by a line parallel with the old city line, and 1,395 feet distant southerly therefrom, east by South Avenue; south by Highland Avenue; west by Mt. Hope Avenue; containing 11.88 acres, more or less, excepting therefrom lots 2, 3, 4, 5, 26, 27 and 56, as shown on map in the Monroe County Clerk's office

Circulation Equal to That of The Times

THE DAILY SLEDGE

Published in the Interests of the Anvil Chorus

"If You Can't Knock Don't Boost."

VOL. II, No. 15. Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 29. Priceless.

EDITORIAL.

Have the bills commenced to come in?

"Are the American people growing shorter?" asks The Medical Record. As for us, we couldn't be any shorter than we are, just at this time.

How do you like your new slippers?

King Edward is said to have knighted the inventor of an artificial light. This gives the funny men a chance to say something about the inventor lighting the night.

The literary editor of the Bluff City (Kan.) News says "the world can never pay the debt it owes to such fictitious writers as Hawthorne, McKenzie, Landor, Hunt and Marion Harland." What is the matter with Laura Jean?

Don't forget the water wagon.

DAILY MOTTO FOR THE HOME.

"Mighty drunks from little drinks grow."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Editor Sledge: Why is the assistant "chemist" of an East Main Street "laboratory" called "Butt"?

B. V.

We give it up.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY.

GET ABOARD THE SLEDGE WATER WAGON.

If you contemplate getting on the water wagon next Sunday get on The Daily Sledge Water Wagon.

It is commodious, newly painted and has rubber tires. Send in your names in advance for seats. There is room enough for all, but the rush is liable to be big.

Performing a solo on a water wagon is lonesome work. An individual water wagon is a perverse affair, given to breaking down in front of saloons. The Sledge wagon is guaranteed.

THE BIRTHDAY CAKE SMILED.

Miss Ethel Bentley of the Macedon office left her desk for a few minutes this morning and on her return found it had been turned into a festive banquet board, a birthday cake smiling in the midst of numerous and some quite remarkable

PERSONAL MENTION.

Horace Moody installed the first local lodge of Tittle Diffs on Monday night.

Patrolman Reichenberger, 47th Precinct, had chicken for dinner Christmas.

Mr. William Torkington has just returned from an extended hunting trip. On Monday last in the wilds of Ontario he had a very exciting rabbit chase but his prey escaped him.

Mr. John Adams, a popular young man formerly of Newark, now of Rochester, has gone to the big CITY to spend his Christmas money. John should patronize local industries. Certainly there are places here where he could purchase Gold Bricks.

Dave Condon spent Christmas in Troy looking up tires for a new bicycle.

Bill Jones spent Christmas in Lyons.

INSTRUCTIONS TO SLEDGE CORRESPONDENTS.

Always begin wedding notices thus: A pretty home wedding occurred. (Weddings always occur as they are never anticipated even by the "contracting parties.")

Always write amounts thus: Four thousand, nine hundred and eighty-seven lbs. (Be sure and abbreviate pounds.)

When in doubt use large capitals.

Don't forget to say what color bodice the bride wore. (It is important.)

Even though you should fail to get the news of a fatal shooting, don't be guilty of calling down on a birthday party.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Champions 49 to 28.

RAGGED PLAYING BY LOCALS

They Played a Close Contest in the Second Half But Had Slumped Too Far.

The Chicago Central Y. M. C. A. basketball team had an easy time defeating the Rochester Y. M. C. A. five last night, the score being 49 to 28. The local boys played a wretched game the first half, the score being 31 to 12, but picked up strongly in the second half, making 16 points, while Chicago scored 18. The superior height of the Chicago five told heavily against Rochester in the team formations, the visitors keeping the ball away from the locals and themselves putting into effect the very style of team play the Rochesters have been accustomed to use. The visitors proved invariably sure in basket shooting, while the Rochester five were way off in this respect, missing easy shot after shot. But for their unsteadiness in this respect in the first half Rochester might have swung into their usual confident style of play and have made the score reasonably close. They should not have been beaten by more than ten points at most playing their average game.

The Chicago five proved to be a fast bunch, well trained in signal plays, which they were fortunate in carrying through regularly by the better jumping of their center, who was more than six feet tall. Smith, who is usually the center of Rochester's scoring and team plays, had his hands full in tagging after his man. The Chicago team won the Y. M. C. A. championship at St. Louis, but were beaten by the Germans 39 to 28 in the open championship. This score fairly shows the relative merits of those two teams.

Rochester basketball folks were treated to an exhibition of the strictest interpretation of the rules by Referee Reynolds of Chicago. Rochester had difficulty in guarding the tall Chicago men fairly and suffered considerably in the penalizing. However, Mr. Reynolds was fair and the game was played according to the rules which so many who witness a game always seem to want ignored when the home team does not have the best of it.

Jardine of Chicago proved the most accurate goal tosser from foul ever seen in Rochester. He did not miss a single try in the first half and he had almost a dozen.

The Chicago men complimented the Rochesters on their game, saying the locals were no doubt the fastest and fairest players they had met upon their Eastern trip.

The line-up of the teams and summary of the game follows:

Rochester.		Chicago.
Jack	Left forward.	Berggren
Vaisey	Right forward.	Jardine
Smith	Center.	Schomm'r
Avery, McDonnell	Left guard.	Watson
Rowland	Right guard.	Collins

First half.

Goals from field—Berggren 5, Jardine 2, Schommer 2, Watson 2, Jack 2, Smith 2, Rowland one point; goals from fouls, Jardine 9, and Vaisey 3.

Second half.

Goals from field—Berggren 2, Collins 2, Watson 2, Schommer 1, Vaisey 2, Jack 1, Rowland 1, McDonnell 1; goals from fouls, Vaisey 5, Jardine 2.

Referee, Reynolds; umpire, Brown. Time, two 20-minute periods.

Leave Rochester 5.25 P. M.

Via N. Y. C. & H. R. R. in connection with the Michigan Central, "The Niagara Falls Route," arrive Detroit 12:25 p. m., Chicago 8 a. m. Through sleeping cars and dining car serving breakfast Niles to Chicago.

For information inquire of New York Central agents or address W. H. Underwood, G. E. P. A., Buaffio, N. Y.

1213-dto-1-04-'05

THE EVENING TIMES will be sent to any address for $3 a year. Can you think of a better Christmas present?

Local Teams, As a Rule, Begin to Do Well Now.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 29.—The completion of the University of Pennsylvania's magnificent new gymnasium has made it possible for the Quaker oarsmen to begin their winter training earlier than they ever did before. As a result, Coach Ward, Captain Taylor and the rowing committee have already begun preliminary work several weeks in advance over the last few years. A year ago the Quakers made an innovation in the training of the oarsmen by giving all the candidates two weeks of preliminary work in cross-country running under the direction of Dr. J. K. Shell, the coach of the track team. So successful was this preliminary training that it will be repeated this winter and in addition the oarsmen will take up a special course of work under the direction of Dr. McKenzie, the new gymnastic director.

When Coach Ward receives the candidates to give them their first work on the rowing machines they will be much further advanced physically than ever before. The Quakers' veteran rowing instructor will also have the added advantage of 32 rowing machines, instead of eight, as in previous years. The machines have been so arranged that one man can act as stroke for the entire 32 oarsmen, permitting the coach to instruct four times as many men at once as in pervious years.

The rowing committee and Coach Ward decided not to put a rowing tank in the new gymnasium. This was advocated, but Coach Ward has always contended that he can teach the stroke better on machines than in a tank. That his view is being shared by other coaches is shown by the fact that Yale and Harvard have abandoned the rowing tanks for the machines.

The prospects for a strong crew this year are very bright. Of the 1904 eight all but one man have returned. The only one lost is Captain Zane, who was a member of four Pennsylvania eights. The other seven men—Hermann, Vaux, Taylor, Boers, Crowell, Drayton and Stevenson—are all back again and will row. In addition to them, the four-oared crew is back again and the freshman eight is expected to supply several candidates for the 'varsity eight.

The meeting of the Athletic Association on Tuesday and the dedication of the gymnasium on the following day, brought out two of the pleasantest surprises the university has had in many years. At the meeting of the Athletic Association the directors were instructed to proceed at once with the construction of a training-house for the athletes. The total cost is to be $80,000. Of this amount one-half has been subscribed and the rest will be raised by means of a mortgage. The new training-house will be put up on the northwest corner of Franklin Field to the height of four stories and when completed will be the finest in the country. It will be sufficient to house the members of the various teams, the football team, crew, baseball team and track team, will be quartered here during the training seasons and will be obliged to pay the same amount for board and rooms as at the dormitories.

The second announcement was the gift of $50,000 by William Weightman, the multi-millionaire chemist, for the endowment of the new gymnasium. This sum is not to be used for the payment of salaries or building operations, but for the enlargement of the student physical education. The large exercise room on the second floor, also used as an auditorium, has been named Weightman Hall in honor of the donor. The equipment of the gymnasium is being rapidly installed and Dr. McKenzie will begin regular work with the students on the opening of the new term in January.

PLENTY DOING AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 29.—Seldom in Harvard's history has so much been doing in winter sports as there is at the present time. The hockey team especially is putting in the hardest kind of work on its new rink within the inclosure of the stadium. Last year by the narrowest squeak the team succeeded in defeating Yale, but Trainer MacMaster is by no means optimistic of a repetition of such luck this winter.

"It looks rather bad," said Scotty, shaking his head dubiously. "Shorty Carr, big, long-legged Clothier and Captain Souther were three mighty good men and we're feeling their loss this year. Still, the men are all working hard and if this will do it, they will beat the Elis again this winter, when they line up against each other in New York."

Of the three men whom Scotty mentioned the two whose loss has, in a sense, demoralized the team, are Carr and Clothier. Carr, who stood an inch or so over five feet in height, played point and there was none better in the business anywhere. Clothier, who was also the 'varsity football end and tennis champion, stood an inch or so over six feet in height and played next to Shorty at cover point. The two were a great combination and Grant and Newhall, who are trying to hold down their respective places this winter, are at the best, mean substitutes. Newhall is stocky and strong and breaks up interference well. He is poor at lifting, however, and not good at passing either. Grant is neither so quick, aggressive nor determined as Carr, and is one of the weak points of the team.

Of the four forwards Townsend is playing the best game. As a freshman last year this youngster gave promise of developing into something unusual, but few expected he would improve as rapidly as he has. He is fast as lightning down the ice, a clever dodger, sure in shooting, and ready to size up a situation accurately. Captain Gallaway is playing only fairly, while MacLeod and Wilder, both of them veterans, are doing a trifle better. Early in the week the team seemed to have struck its gait, but went to pieces a few days later as the result of a shift. From this change it is now recovering and, profiting by their experience, the coaches probably will succeed all the better from now on.

Captain Schick's call for pole-vaulters the last week brings into prominence Harvard's great weakness on the track this year. The high-jumping contests which have been going on recently show only too clearly how sorely she lacks good men in this event, and now Schick comes out in the Harvard Crimson, almost imploring men to come out as candidates for the vault. Up to the present time only one man—from last year's team, has appeared in the field. Grieg, who made such a brilliant showing last year, is not in college, having accepted a business offer in California, and of the other candidates not one is particularly promising. In the hammer-throw, also, Harvard promises to be very weak, and Captain Schick is endeavoring to get men to come out also for this event.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the swimming team by the fact that an effort is on foot to get a new natatorium at Harvard, which shall be open to all members of the university. Up to the present time the team has been forced to practice in the private tanks of the swell private dormitories such as Craigie, Wetmorly, Claverly and Dunster. The erection of a university tank such as Princeton and Pennsylvania have would greatly benefit the swimming team, which, even as it is, includes a large number of the most prominent men in college among its devotees. Another thing which has aroused interest in swimming is the match with Yale, which has been arranged this year. Walter Harrison, who was elected captain of the team the last week, is taking hold of things with a vigorous hand, determined that Harvard shall not succumb to the Elis in this, the first meet of its kind ever held between the two famous old rivals.

And speaking of Harvard-Yale contests, the ratification of Hurley's reelection by the athletic committee last Wednesday makes it pretty certain that Harvard will give her Blue enemy a hard run for her money next fall. Hurley is a fighter from the ground up and if, as many hope, he succeeds in getting Bill Reid, coach of the championship 1901 team, to act in the same capacity next year, there is every chance that Harvard will break the long chain of New Haven victories.

Hurley's ratification shows that the authorities at Cambridge, as well as the undergraduates, believe in breaking away from supposedly cast-iron tradition, if by doing so they can bring Harvard to the front. It is needless to say that, after a period of considerable anxiety, their action greatly rejoiced Harvard men.

TRACK ATHLETES AT MICHIGAN

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 29.—Michigan track candidates are following the advice of Trainer Keene Fitzpatrick and have started light training. There are double reasons why the men are doing this. One is to get into good form, but the main object is to show Fitzpatrick the material he has in hand and the work he will have to do to turn out a championship team.

Fitzpatrick stated that never since he has come here has Michigan had such poor material and had lost so many M men through graduation.

"Why, we haven't a decent sprinter or high jumper," said Fitzpatrick. "When Hohn left, I thought I would have Stewart to fall back on, but he has not returned to college this year. Keeler is the only man I have for the sprints, and he is no match for Blair and Rice of Chicago.

"All our high jumpers have left and they were all point winners at the inter-conference this summer. I have good men in the quarter-mile and the distance events. For the quarter-mile I have Captain Rebstock, Goodwin, Garrels and Lewis. For the half-mile I have Ramey and Stickney, but I am afraid that Captain Rebstock will have to run in this event. There are a lot of promising men for the half-mile, but I shall miss Harris fall.

"There remains for the distances Stone, Coe, Stickney, Rowe, Conger, and many others. On the other hand, we are very strong in the weight events. Rose is still at college and he should have little difficulty in overcoming his opponents. He will have as team-mates Ackerman, Garrils and Captain Heston of the football team.

"If I turn out a championship team this year, I will be a surprised man, because everything is against Michigan. Chicago has an exceptionally strong team, losing but few men through graduation. On top of this all, the other Western universities will be pitted against Michigan because Michigan has won the championship of the West for five straight years."

All the Michigan undergraduates see that their outlook is not as rosy as it was heretofore and they will have to hustle to keep ahead. Michigan men are excellent fighters against adversity and one is safe in saying that when Michigan's first indoor meet is held some excellent material will have been developed by Fitzpatrick.

Coach Fitzpatrick is conceded by all to be one of the best athletic trainers in the world and his record merits this opinion. Not alone being trainer of four champion football teams, he has developed five champion track teams and sent two to Philadelphia that carried off all the honors there.

The men here have as much faith in his ability as in Yost's and they trust everything to him and few expect to be disappointed.

Fitzpatrick has with him Goodwin and Garrels, who represented Michigan in the quarter-mile at Chicago last summer, and they ran in the quarter-mile relay. They are both big fellows and exceptionally strong in sprinting the last 100 yards of the quarter.

Ramey, who will run the half-mile, defeated Hall here last year in the fast time of 2:01. This was done on a 4-lap track, and a good many expect to see him do better time this year. When it come to outdoor work, Ramey was not strong, due to the fact that, being ineligible to represent Michigan, he neglected training.

Rowe, who will be Stone's teammate, is without a doubt the best two-miler attending any university in the country today. He has former Captain Kellog's style of running, and he has already shown his caliber by defeating Stone and the rest of the university cracks in the annual cross-country run.

He also represented the First Regiment of Chicago and won many events for it.

Michigan's football players are in demand. No university in the country has as many men coaching different teams as has Michigan. McGugin had a successful season at Mississippi; Herrnstein coached the Haskell Indians, a team that defeated the majority of Western teams and played Carlisle such an excellent game.

Besides these men, Maddock turned out a champion team at Utah; Graver did the same at Marietta, while Jones had a very successful season with Case.

All these men played on the 1902 and 1905 teams that held the Western championship. The men, under Yost's capable coaching, imbibed freely of the finer points of the game, and after leaving their services were in demand.

All three men coached their teams a la Yost style, with the result that champion is written on nearly all the footballs in their respective [illegible]

All of these men purpose to r[illegible] Ann Arbor to attend the [illegible] which is to be tendered the [illegible] men by the business men of th[illegible]

At this banquet gold footb[illegible] be given to the 'varsity men a[illegible] cups to the scrubs.

Chess League Is Ended.

SECOND ROUND ON TODAY

Cornell, Pennsylvania and Brown Are the Three Universities Entered in Contest.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—At the conclusion of the first round of the annual tournament of the triangular College Chess League yesterday, Pennsylvania led with 1½ points. Brown was second with one point, while Cornell, holder of the championship trophy, brought up the rear with half a point. Three games were contested between the six players in the connection, two being drawn, while the third was scored by Kirkpatrick of Pennsylvania at the expense of Darling of Cornell.

The three universities were represented as follows: Cornell, James R. Mitchell and J. F. Darling; Brown, W. W. Burton and F. V. Van Arsdale; University of Pennsylvania, M. B. Kirkpatrick and L. S. Johnston.

The play in detail:

First board—Kirkpatrick, Pennsylvania, won from Darling, Cornell, in a Ruy Lopez after 53 moves.

Second board—Van Arsdale, Brown, drew with Johnston, Pennsylvania, in a Sicilian defense after 66 moves.

Third board—Burton, Brown, drew with Mitchell of Cornell, in a Petroff defense after 30 moves.

Fitzpatrick stated that never since the competition is the sixth of the series of which Cornell has to date won four and Pennsylvania one. The following are the scores of the contestants to date:

PENNSYLVANIA.	Won.	Lost.
Kirkpatrick	1	0
Johnston	½	½
Total	1½	½
BROWN.
Burton	½	½
Van Arsdale	½	½
Total	1	1
CORNELL.
Mitchell	½	½
Darling	0	1
Total	½	1½

In the second round scheduled for today the players meet in the following order: Johnston, Pennsylvania, vs. Burton, Brown.

Darling, Cornell, vs. Van Arsdale, Brown.

Mitchell, Cornell, vs. Kirkpatrick, Pennsylvania.

ALL-AMERICAN TEAM CHOSEN BY WALTER CAMP

Position.	Player.	College.
End	Shevlin	Yale.
Tackle	Cooney	Princeton.
Guard	Mekarski	Pennsylvania.
Center	Tipton	West Point.
Guard	Kinney	Yale.
Tackle	Hogan	Yale.
End	Eckersall	Chicago.
Quarter	Stevenson	Pennsylvania.
Half	Hurley	Harvard.
Half	Heston	Michigan.
Full	Smith	Pennsylvania.

MEN  CURED

My Cured Patients Are My Best Advertisement

Contagious Blood Poison.

It may be in its primary stages. It may have been hereditary or contracted in early days. I stop its progress, eradicate every vestige of poison from the system, and this without the use of poisonous drugs.

I also cure VARICOCELE, STRICTURE, UNNATURAL DISCHARGES, LOSS OF MANLY VIGOR, NERVOUS DEBILITY, DRAINS, KIDNEY, BLADDER and Private Diseases. CERTAINTY OF A CURE IS WHAT YOU WANT. Remember, I guarantee to cure every case I accept for treatment or refund the money.

CONSULTATION AND ADVICE FREE
Office Hours: 9 A. M. to 8 P. M. Sunday 10-12

DR. WOOLSTON
8 Hayward Bldg, 19 Clinton Ave. S.

FOWL

lb.
Fowl	12c
Yearling Chickens	14c
Cal. Hams	7c
Pork Loin	8c
3 lbs. Lard	25c
Cheese, Full Cream	13c
Butter, Table Use	23c
Coffee, Acme Brand	17c
Teas—Green, Black, Mixed	25c
Condensed Milk, Tricolor Brand, (Pure) 3 cans	20c

H. R. EAST
37-43 Front St. 2-8 Corinthian St.

LIVERIES.

Robes so cozy, soft and warm.

Higgins' heated sleighs, cheeks so rosy; safe from harm.

Christmas jolly days—"49."

HASSAN CORK TIP CIGARETTES
Fragrant and pure—try them
10 for 5 cents. Dealers

Crop of 1892.

A Perfect Whiskey
It's Pure——That's Sure
Served and Sold Everywhere.

New York & Kentucky Co
Sole Proprietor.
232 5th Avenue, New York.

Notice to Contractors

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Clerk of the Board of Contract and Supply, No. 28 City Hall, until 10 o'clock a. m., January 4, 1906, for the following:

One photograph cabinet.
Three Gamewell 15-inch gongs.
One Remington typewriter and cabinet.
Arch Street sidewalk cleaning.
Atlantic Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Birr Street sidewalk cleaning.
Bowman Street sidewalk cleaning.
Congress Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Dewey Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Driving Park Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Fillmore Street sidewalk cleaning.
Gardiner Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Genesee Street sidewalk cleaning.
Glenwood Avenue sidewalk cleaning.
Kingston Street sidewalk cleaning.

All bids must be indorsed with the title of the work to which they relate, the name of the bidder and his residence. Information relative to the work may be procured at the City Engineer's office, on the fifth floor of the City Hall, where specifications and bidding sheets may be obtained after December 30th.

All bids must be upon the bidding sheets which will be furnished by the City Engineer.

F. X. PIFER,
Clerk.

12-29-d-5t

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK: By the Grace of God Free and Independent.

To Frank Seeber, heir at law and next of kin of Jennie M. Brownell, send greeting:

Whereas, John W. Brownell, the Executor named in a certain instrument in writing, bearing date August 16, 1901, purporting to be the last Will and Testament of said Jennie M. Brownell, late of the Village of Fairport, in said County of Monroe, and State of New York, deceased, and relating to both real and personal estate, has lately made application to the Surrogate's Court of our County of Monroe, to have said instrument proved and recorded as a Will of personal and real estate, you, and each of you are cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of the County of Monroe, at his office in the City of Rochester, in said County of Monroe, New York, on the 30th day of February, 1906, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of said last Will and Testament. And if any of the aforesaid persons are under the age of twenty-one years, or insane or otherwise incompetent, they will please take notice that they are required to appear by their general guardian, if they have one, and if they have none, that they appear and apply for the appointment of a special guardian, or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for them in the proceedings for the probate of said Will.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Monroe, to be hereto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Rochester, this 28th day of December, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four.

ANDREW LUDOLPH,
Clerk Surrogate's Court.

Walter H. Hill, Attorney for Petitioner, 123 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y.
12-29-law-6w-7t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Frank Xavier Fuller, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at No. 201 Grand Avenue, on or before the first day of July, 1906.

Dated December 27, 1904.

THOMAS PIERCE,
Executor.

Henry S. McGonegal, Attorney for Executor.
12-29-law-6m

Horses for Sale

Department of Public Safety,
Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 27, 1904.

To Whom It May Concern:

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Commissioner of Public Safety, Room 32, City Hall, for the following Police Patrol horses, the property of the city of Rochester, now at the Veterinary Hospital, Driving Park Avenue:

No. 1. Black gelding "Jack."
No. 2. Bay gelding "Fred."
No. 3. Bay gelding "Jim."

Bids will be opened at 10 A. M., Wednesday, January 4, 1905. Terms cash.

GEORGE A. GILMAN,
Commissioner of Public Safety.

12-28-d-5t

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK—By the Grace of God Free and Independent:

To John Cunneen, Attorney General of the State of New York; John B. Hamilton, County Treasurer of Monroe County. To all creditors of and persons interested in the estate of Isaac B. Scranton, deceased, and to all heirs at law and next of kin whose names, residences, ages and relationship are unknown, of said Isaac B. Scranton, late of the Town of Ogden, in the County of Monroe, deceased. Greeting:

You are hereby cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of our County of Monroe, in the Surrogate's Court, on the 10th day of February, 1906, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the Surrogate's Office in the city of Rochester, then and there to show cause why a decree should not be made awarding letters of administration upon the estate of Isaac B. Scranton, late of the Town of Ogden, deceased, to William B. Moore, of Spencerport, N. Y., a creditor of said deceased, or to such person or persons having a prior right as may be entitled thereto.

In Testimony Whereof, We have caused the seal of Office of our said Surrogate to be hereunto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. Geo. A. Benton, Surrogate of the said County, at Rochester, the 21st day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four.

GEO. A. BENTON,
Surrogate.

Berton W. Brown, attorney for petitioner, Spencerport, N. Y.
12-24-law-6w-7t.

Department of Public Works

Sale of Property Under Tax Foreclosure.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 23rd, 1904.

The Commissioner of Public Works will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the Common Council Chamber, third floor of the City Hall, at [illegible] feet front and rear and 92 feet deep.

Part of lot 56 in the Assessor's subdivision tract on Avon Place, in the Fourteenth Ward; being a part of the Bowen farm on the north side of said Avon Place, bounded north by lands of M. Flynn, east by lands of John Christ, and west by land now or formerly owned by John Nagle.

Lots Nos. 347, 349, 351, 353, 355, 357, 359, 361, 363 and 365, as laid down on a map of the "Flower City Building Lot Association" of Rochester, N. Y., on file in Monroe County Clerk's office, in Liber 4 of Maps, page 13; said lots being 50 feet front each, the same width in rear and about 161 feet deep, more or less, and fronting on the north side of Flower City Park.

Lot No. 1 Calihan and Wolff's re-subdivision of part of Avery L. Reed's subdivision of part of the Otis farm, situated on the south side of Lake Street, as shown on a map on file in Monroe County Clerk's office at Liber 6 of Maps, page 81.

Part of town lot No. 28, town of Greece, and of the subdivision thereof made by the Flour City Co-Operative Building Lot Association of Rochester, N. Y., Horace Jones, surveyor, in 1875, the map of which is on file in Monroe County Clerk's office, and being the lot designated in said map as No. 119, the said lots fronting on the north side of Flower City Park.

Lot two hundred and twenty (220) of the Flower City Building Lot Association Tract, on the south side of Flower City Park; said lot being 50 feet wide in front and rear and 192.53 feet deep.

Lot No. 279 of the Flower City Building Lot Association Tract, as shown on a map on file in Monroe County Clerk's office at Liber 4 of Maps, page 19, said lot fronting on the south side of Flower City Park, being 50 feet wide front and rear, and 202 and 3-12 feet deep.

The rear part of lots 47 and 61, inclusive, of Henry S. Brown's subdivision as shown on a map on file in Monroe County Clerk's office at Liber 9 of Maps, page 143, and also as shown on a map of Henry S. Brown's resubdivision, Liber 9 of Maps, page 12, as a strip of land lying in the rear of lots 49 to 64, inclusive.

Lot 71 of Henry S. Brown's subdivision, situate on the east side of North Street, in the Eighth Ward. Said lot being 99 feet wide in front and rear and 124 feet deep.

Lot 72 of Henry S. Brown's subdivision, situate on the east side of North Street in the Eighth Ward of said city. Said lot being 99 feet wide in front and rear and 125 feet deep.

Lot No. 48 of the Beechwood by Minges and Williams Tract. Said lot is situate on Hayward Avenue, corner of Baldwin Street, and is 56.24 feet wide in front, 59 feet wide in rear and 123 feet deep, in the Eighteenth Ward of said city.

Lot 77 of the William Otis Building Lot Association Tract, situate on the east side of Burrows Street, in the Tenth Ward. Said lot being a triangular parcel of land 262 feet wide in front on Burrows Street, 199 feet deep on the south line and converging to a point on the north line.

Lot 7 of the Houston Tract, which is a subdivision of part of town lot No. 6, Township 1, west of the Genesee River, according to a map of said tract recorded in Monroe County Clerk's office, said lot is 50 feet wide front and rear, 132 feet deep and situate on the east side of Santee Street, in the Tenth Ward.

Part of subdivision lot No. 1 of the Ebenezer Bowen farm, so called, according to a map of said farm on file in Monroe County Clerk's office, bounded as follows: Beginning in the center of Culver Road northerly 6 feet from the northeast corner of one acre of land conveyed by John G. Klinck to George H. Taylor and 13 1-3 rods from the north line of lands owned by Laura B. Klinck; thence running northerly 44 feet to a point in the center of said Culver Road; thence westerly and parallel with said Laura B. Klinck's said north line 20 rods; thence southerly and parallel with said highway 44 feet to a point; thence easterly on a line parallel with said Laura B. Klinck's said north line 20 rods to place of beginning.

Part of subdivision lot No. 2 of the Dr. Ebenezer Bowen farm, so called, according to a map of said farm on file in Monroe County Clerk's office, bounded as follows: Beginning in the center of Culver Road 8 feet northerly from the northeast corner of one acre of land contracted to be conveyed by John G. Klinck to George H. Taylor and 13 1-3 rods from the north line of lands owned by Laura B. Klinck; thence running northerly 44 feet to a point in the center of said Culver Road; thence westerly and parallel with said Laura B. Klinck's said north line 20 rods; thence southerly and parallel with said highway 44 feet to a point; thence easterly on a line parallel with said Laura B. Klinck's said north line 20 rods to place of beginning.

Lots H, I, J and K of the Whitney Tract, situate on the east side of Magnolia Street, in the Fifteenth Ward.

Lot No. 17 of Moulson's subdivision of Kedie farm, situate at the corner of Remington and Ereth Street, in the Seventeenth Ward. Said lot being 32 42-100 feet wide in front and rear and 112 feet deep.

That part of Moulson's subdivision of the Kedie farm, according to a map recorded in Monroe County Clerk's office, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point in the center of Remington Street 7 chains, 8 links south from the center of Norton Street; thence southerly along the center of Remington Street to the center of Lang Street; thence along the center of Lang Street east 2 chains, 72 links; thence northerly parallel with Remington Street to the south line of lot 87; thence along the south line of lot 87, 2 chains and 72 links to the place of beginning. The same being lot No. 88 of Moulson's resubdivision of the Kedie farm, situate at the northeast corner of Remington Street and Lang Street.

Lot 19 of Section B of St. Joseph Street Lot Association Subdivision. Said lot is 38 feet wide front and rear, 115 feet deep, and situate on the east side of Townsend Street, in the Seventeenth Ward.

Lot 50 of Jackson Homestead Association Tract, situate at the corner of Portland Avenue and Pomeroy Street, in the Seventeenth Ward. Said lot being 38 feet wide in front and rear and 114 feet deep.

Lot 74 of the Jackson Homestead Association Tract, situate on the north side of Pomeroy Street, in the Seventeenth Ward. Said lot being 40 feet wide in front and rear and 114 feet deep.

Lot 134 of the Jackson Homestead Association Tract, situate on the north side of Jackson Street, in the Seventeenth Ward.

Lot 306 of the East Rochester Building Lot Association Tract. Said lot is 72 feet wide in front, 86.5 feet in rear, 172 feet deep on the north line, 142.87 feet deep on the south line, and situate on the west side of Culver Road, in the Eighteenth Ward of said city.

Lot 306 of the East Rochester Building Lot Association Tract. Said lot is 80 feet wide in front, 75.5 feet wide in rear, 133.88 feet deep on the north line and 102.5 feet deep on the south line, and situate on the west side of Culver Road, in the Eighteenth Ward of said city.

Lot 292 of the Goodman Street Homestead Association Tract. Said lot is 24.82 feet wide front and rear and 125 feet deep and situate on Bay Street, in the Eighteenth Ward.

Lot 21 of Otis and Poole subdivision of part of Town Lot 42. Said lot is 25 feet wide, front and rear, 132 feet deep, and situate on the south side of Main Street East, in the Eighteenth Ward.

Lot 89 of the Rapids Tract. Said lot is 20 feet wide in front, 23½ feet wide in rear, 84.5 feet deep to the railroad on its south line and 98.5 feet deep to the railroad on its north line, and situate on the west side of Plymouth Avenue, in the Nineteenth Ward.

Lot 273 of the Flower City Co-Operative Building Lot Association Tract, said lot being 50 feet wide front and rear and 161 feet deep, and situate on the north side of Flower City Park, in the Tenth Ward.

No. II—Subdivision No. 3 of the Warner property, formerly in the town of Brighton, but now in the City of Rochester, bounded on the north by a line parallel with the old city line, and 1,205 feet distant southerly therefrom, east by South Avenue; south by Highland Avenue; west by Mt. Hope Avenue; containing 11.87 acres, more or less, excepting therefrom lots 2, 3, 4, 5, 26, 27 and 56, as shown on map in the Monroe County Clerk's office; also Virginia Terrace, a street 60 feet in width, extending from Reservoir Avenue to Highland Avenue.

THOMAS J. NE[illegible]
Commissioner of P[illegible]

Circulation Equal to That of The Times

THE DAILY SLEDGE

Published in the Interests of the Anvil Chorus

"If You Can't Knock Don't Boost."

VOL. II, No. 15. Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 29. Priceless.

EDITORIAL.

Have the bills commenced to come in?

"Are the American people growing shorter?" asks The Medical Record. As for us, we couldn't be any shorter than we are, just at this time.

How do you like your new slippers?

King Edward is said to have knighted the inventor of an artificial light. This gives the funny men a chance to say something about the inventor lighting the night.

The literary editor of the Bluff City (Kan.) News says "the world can never pay the debt it owes to such fictitious writers as Hawthorne, McKenzie, Landor, Hunt and Marion Harland." What is the matter with Laura Jean?

Don't forget the water wagon.

DAILY MOTTO FOR THE HOME.

"Mighty drunks from little drinks grow."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Editor Sledge: Why is the assistant "phenet" of an East Main Street "laboratory" called "Butt"?
B. V.
We give it up.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY.

LOST—Two checks calling for large amounts. Please return to Merry Mac, the troubador, care Tobacco Leaf.

WANTED—To know if J. B. Duke [illegible] clothes are controlled by the [illegible] Henry Murphy.

GET ABOARD THE SLEDGE WATER WAGON.

If you contemplate getting on the water wagon next Sunday get on The Daily Sledge Water Wagon.

It is commodious, newly painted and has rubber tires. Send in your names in advance for seats. There is room enough for all, but the rush is liable to be big.

Performing a solo on a water wagon is lonesome work. An individual water wagon is a perverse affair, given to breaking down in front of saloons. The Sledge wagon is guaranteed.

THE BIRTHDAY CAKE SMILED.

Miss Ethel Bentley of the Maccabee office left her desk for a few minutes this morning and on her return found it had been turned into a festive banquet board, a birthday cake smiling in the midst of numerous and some quite remarkable gifts.—Ann Arbor Argus.

DAILY POEM.

There was a man from Timbuctoux,
Who said, "I feel so awful bloaux
I really don't know what to doaux,
For in the world there's nothing neaux."

PERSONAL MENTION.

Horace Moody installed the first local lodge of Tiffle Diffs on Monday night.

Patrolman Reichenberger, Fifth Precinct, had chicken for dinner Christmas.

Mr. William Torkington has just returned from an extended hunting trip. On Monday last in the wilds of Ontario he had a very exciting rabbit chase but his prey escaped him.

Mr. John Adams, a popular young man formerly of Newark, now of Rochester, has gone to the big CITY to spend his Christmas money. John should patronize local industries. Certainly there are places here where he could purchase Gold Bricks.

Dave Condon spent Christmas in Troy looking up tires for a new bicycle.

Bill Jones spent Christmas in Lyons.

INSTRUCTIONS TO SLEDGE CORRESPONDENTS.

Always begin wedding notices thus: A pretty home wedding occurred. (Weddings always occur as they are never anticipated even by the "contracting parties.")

Always write amounts thus: Four thousand, nine hundred and eighty-seven lbs. (Be sure and abbreviate pounds.)

When in doubt use large capitals.

Don't forget to say what color bodice the bride wore. (It is important.)

Even though you should fail to get the news of a fatal shooting, don't be guilty of falling down on a birthday party.

Don't fail to mention the "sumptuous repast" following a "quiet home wedding."

No rule is given concerning the wedding trip because no Sledge writer ever forgot. "The happy couple left on the 1930 p. m. train for the East."

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

PREMIUM SYSTEM

Rochester Lodge of Machinists Issues a Statement to the Public.

WORSE THAN PIECE WORK

Union Men Think It Is High Time That Trouble in the Trade Be Settled.

The following statement to the public has been issued by William C. Mount, business agent of Rochester Lodge, International Association of Machinists:

The public generally are aware of a conflict existing, for the better part of two years past, between the I. A. of Machinists and the Manufacturers' Association, occasioned by an attempt on the part of the latter body to establish the obnoxious imposition known as the premium system as a permanent factor in our line of business.

Industrial war can not be long continued between parties so great in numbers and resources without detriment to the welfare of the community; and public interest is directly concerned with the objects and purposes of these opposing bodies.

Beside their mutually hostile and destructive efforts, the acts of individuals seem insignificant and may be in this connection properly ignored.

Such contests, held to be hurtful to the general welfare of the community in a material or business sense, are believed to be equally disastrous in a moral sense. Measures are taken, which, however technically lawful, would not under other circumstances be tolerated or even thought of—and resultant demoralization infects the general public.

Not Averse to Settlement

These reflections, deemed weighty and pertinent on all similar occasions, are here presented for candid consideration to the public mind. It is not because they were forgotten or ignored that we are found enlisted in this fight, but, because we are constrained thereto in defense of our just rights and legitimate interests. Nor are we averse to a just and fair settlement at any time, of all questions at issue between ourselves and our opponents. But no settlement can be considered final if justice be denied to any interest, public or private. Public opinion being an important factor and final arbiter in any such settlement it imports the public to be well informed as to facts and principles involved. Let there be no mistake. It is not from any sense of weakness or discouragement on our part that the idea of settlement is here advanced.

It may be the opinion of some, impressed by apparently great adverse odds, that we must be, financially or otherwise, in a bad way. The reverse is the fact. Both our Local Lodge and the I. A. of M. were never stronger than we are today. Since January 1, 1903, our local lodge has initiated and enrolled 104 new members. Our membership was never larger, and our dues and assessments were never more promptly paid. True, we have expended a large sum of money, but we have good value to show for it. We believe the proposed installation of the premium system in our midst to be practically beaten. It must necessarily be frowned down by public opinion wherever the facts concerning it are fully known. It is fairly certain, reflecting minds, whether in the Manufacturers' Association or out of it, with a full understanding of the facts, will not countenance practices formerly held to be grossly unjust, but contemptible and despicable.

Practice Once Condemned

Let us consider how, formerly, employers universally looked upon men who, even covertly and surreptitiously, ventured to put in practice the essential principles of the premium system. No man of mature years, accustomed to read newspapers, and to hear comments on current affairs, can fail to remember how, some few years ago, mention was occasionally made of some superintendent or foreman being caught extorting from workmen or workwomen, to whom he gave out work, a portion of their earnings as a consideration of securing their jobs. Nor can he fail to remember that when found out, no one denounced these acts as disgraceful and dishonorable more emphatically than the employers themselves. The offenders were either promptly called down and sternly rebuked or summarily discharged for thus levying blackmail upon their employes.

Now, these practices, once held to be infamous when operated by subordinates for their private profit, are practices in which some of the employers, in collusion with their subordinates, are desirous of putting in operation under the name of the premium system. Under this system, superintendent or foreman may do the dirty and despicable work of levying the blackmail; but, with the full knowledge and direction of the employer, who rakes in the proceeds. It strikes us that beside this system that of the ordinary grafter looks respectable. Can any procedure be more contemptible than for an employer to blackmail his employes?

Piece Work Bad Enough

Piece work is bad enough—too bad to be tolerated under ordinary circumstances; but the piece worker receives pay for all he does over an average day's work, while under the premium system he must surrender one-half to the employer. And this is the system which you gentlemen of the Manufacturers' Association lend your countenance and support. To this end you blacklist and persecute honest men whose only offense is that they resist the imposition by the only means at their command. Men for offering jobs which these men are hunted from shop to shop and from city to city by your association in order to deprive them of all chance to earn an honest living. Gentlemen, you ought to be glad that you are beaten as the facts show you to be.

Unquestionably the tide of public opinion is turning in our favor, and must so turn more and more as the merits of the controversy become more fully known.

We believe that there is for the animosity manifested towards us no just cause or occasion, and our position needs only to be fairly discussed and properly understood to be rather approved than opposed. That we stand and have always stood for equal and exact justice for employers and employes alike, and that our principles and policies are entirely conclusive. We hold that the true interests of employes and employers, rightly considered, are identical; and that there is no necessity in the nature of things for any antagonism.

Should not the true policy for both organizations be rather to get together, closing some means for preventing all antagonism and hostility in the future?

If there can be found anything in our principles and policy, which, when fairly considered and understood, is seen to be prejudicial on the whole to the just rights or interests of others, we have but to be convinced of the fact to make changes, and even sacrifices, if necessary, to conform to right and justice. We hope the time may soon come when we can be met on terms proving that this spirit animates all concerned.

Offered to Arbitrate

Early in the controversy we offered to submit every question under consideration, except the premium system, to arbitration. And while our members would not now consent to this, it may be possible if a committee of the Manufacturers' Association and a committee of the lodge could be got together, that some arrangement more friendly relations in future might be devised to our mutual benefit and satisfaction.

While we are frittering away means and efforts over a contest wholly regrettable and avoidable, we are losing many times more than the amount of possible gain to any one, or to all the employers together, by adoption of the premium system, besides we do not see how, as a result of combinations of certain overgrown monopolists, each one of whom already possesses more than a million dollars, any more than without prejudice to the rights and interests of the many, they can continue increasing their hoards by open and bare-faced extortion from the public of articles we are part.

There is a long list of the necessaries of life which all have to buy; another long list of manufacturers' supplies; another of transportation charges; still others too numerous to mention formed and forming, all of which foot up double the amount we would have to pay if only just prices were charged.

Far better for both organizations to array our strength against the promoters of these abuses and extortions, and in defense of our rights and comforts, the interests of the public, than to waste it in mutual conflict among ourselves. In all such contests, and conflicts, the interests of the general public must ultimately govern, and all who stand in the way, whether individuals, organizations, or courts, must go down before the might of public opinion.

Per Order of Local 93, I. A. of Machinists.
W. C. MOUNT,
Business Agent.

Drives All Before It

Aches and pains fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. So do Sores, Pimples, Boils, Burns and Piles, or no pay. 25c. Dake Drug Co.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of [illegible]
This Kind You Have Always Bought

Locust Club Election

The Locust Club, the policemen's organization, held its annual election yesterday afternoon and last night. These officers were elected: President, D. T. Courtney; First Vice President, Edward T. Burke; Second Vice President, Joseph G. Schmucker; Third Vice President, Willis R. Lee; Fourth Vice President, George A. Fox; Fifth Vice President, Frederick Scholl; Secretary, James Mc D. Ellis; Treasurer, John S. Pearson; Finance Committee, Fred J. Decker, Philip Amlinger, James E. Bennett; Executive Committee, John J. Lynch, John M. Sellinger, John C. McClease.

"ROCK CUT" GANG HAS WOMAN LEADER

Police Obtain Evidence of Another Car Burglary on the Central. Love and Jealousy May Cause Robber Band's Undoing.

Evidences of a car burglary at East Rochester early in the present month came to light yesterday with the finding of six pairs of women's shoes that had been taken from a car of merchandise and stored in an abandoned factory building in Leighton Avenue. The footwear is now at Police Headquarters.

The shoes were part of a shipment made by Utz & Dunn early in the present month to a dealer named Hirschberg at Findlay, Ohio. The car in which they were shipped was attached to a through westbound freight in the East Rochester yards of the New York Central Railroad. Whether any other local manufacturing concerns made shipments at the same time is not positively known.

Officers familiar with the workings of the old "Rock Cut" gang of car burglars are of the opinion that the gang has transferred their stamping ground to a point nearer the city, or rather, nearer their homes in the northeastern section.

It is said that a woman takes a leading part in the councils of the gang.

The woman mentioned is the wife of one of the gang who is now serving a term in prison. The husband during his first term was paroled, after he had served a certain length of time, pending good behavior. Another member of the same gang, who was in love with the woman, took the husband out one night shortly after his release from prison and got him drunk. This was carried to the ears of the police and the husband was arrested a second time for violating his parole. He was sent back to prison to finish his unexpired term for the first offense.

After the husband had been disposed of the other member of the gang devoted all his attention to winning the affections of the wife, the police say, and was finally successful. These facts were uncovered during the investigation preceding the recent arrest of the Peters boys and "Casey" De Roo on charges of committing a car burglary at "Rock Cut."

PIN BOYS AND THE CHILD LABOR LAW

Mercantile Inspector Will Try to Prevent Employment of the Lads in Bowling Alleys.

After Jan. 1, Mercantile Inspector McAuliffe of the Health Board, will endeavor to prevent the employment of boys in the bowling alleys of the city. By the provisions of the labor law no child under 16 years of age can be employed longer than nine hours a day, and the hours of employment must be between 7 a. m. and 10 o'clock p. m.

Inspector McAuliffe states that he has received information that a number of boys under 14 years of age are employed in setting up pins in the bowling alleys of the city and that many of them are required to work long after the hour of 10 o'clock. He has sent to Albany to ascertain whether a permit can be legally issued to the boys for such work.

ABSOLUTE DIVORCE HAS BEEN GRANTED

Justice Nash Has Confirmed the Report of the Referee in the Heberger Case.

Justice Nash has granted a final decree of divorce in the case of John N. Heberger against Gertrude Heberger. The order of the Court was made on the findings of Referee Charles M. Williams.

George R. Van Alstyne appeared for the plaintiff and Gambee & Gambee for the defendant. The peculiar part of the affair is that the co-respondent and the principal witness for the defense were the bosom friends of the plaintiff. Frank J. Stoppler is named as co-respondent and Emil J. Vogel is the principal witness for the defendant.

Mrs. Heberger and Stoppler both reside in New York at present.

A Wonderful Change

Weak, sickly invalids are soon changed by Electric Bitters into healthy men and women. They cure or no pay. 50c. Dake Drug Co.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Ionic Chapter, R. A. M.—High Priest, W. E. Miller; King, George R. Van Alstyne; Scribe, F. Clark Brown; Treasurer, Frank Taylor; Secretary, C. H. Haskin. Installation, second Tuesday in January.

Pocahontas Council, 58, D. of P.—Pocahontas, May Rowe; Wenonah, A. Feeret; Prophetess, Carrie Ulrich; Powhatan, M. D. O'Laughlin; K. of R. Ella M. Byron; C. of W., Kathryn Weisenbonn; K. of W., Mary Brundage; Physician, Kathleen Buck, M. D.; representative to Great Council, Kathryn Weisenbonn; alternate representative, Minnie E. Perkins; Trustee, Agnes Flynn.

Court City of Rochester, F. of A.—Chief Ranger, Henry Leinen; Sub-Chief Ranger, Edward J. Ward; Financial Secretary, George R. Streeving; Secretary, Eugene Hatch; Treasurer, Albert Wood; Senior Woodward, Charles R. Hull; Junior Woodward, Edward Graffath; Senior Beadle, Henry Tallinger; Junior Beadle, George Hunt; Trustee, Frank Gosselin; Lecturer, John J. Moynihan; Physician for Rochester, Dr. E. M. Hague; Physician for Irondequoit, Dr. Bellamy.

John G. Klinck Lodge, I. O. O. F.—Noble Grand, Albert E. Lamey; Vice Grand, Benjamin F. Dillinger; Recording Secretary, George R. Streeving; Financial Secretary, J. M. Deyo; Treasurer, John Claus; Lodge Directors, J. M. Deyo, John Claus, John Gilweiler, Henry Baker, Eldon Hicks; Memorial Committee, John Claus. The officers will be installed next Monday evening.

For Police and Firemen

The fire and police pension funds were enriched to the extent of $350 yesterday by burglary insurance checks. Commissioner Gilman received two checks for $250 each from the Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Company, in recognition of the services of the Police and Fire Departments at the big fire in the dry goods district last February and also at the recent Bickford-Schantz fire, when the property of the Sibley firm in an adjoining building was saved from destruction. A check for $50 was received by Chief Little from Patrick Fahy for the prompt and efficient work of the Fire Department at the fire in the residence of Mr. Fahy on Prince Street.

BANQUET OF SOLONS

Annual Bowling Game in Afternoon and the Dinner in the Evening.

AN ABUNDANCE OF ORATORY

Addresses by Hon. Eugene J. Dwyer, Supervisor Beebe and Ansel Wright.

The fifth annual banquet of the Supervisors' Association of Monroe County was held last evening in the National Hotel. The dinner was more than usually elaborate and during its progress an orchestra under the direction of Fred A. Zeltler, leader of the Fifty-fourth Regiment Band, played. Several songs, the words of which were written by D. L. Ainsworth, were sung.

Following the dinner, Clerk Willis K. Gillette, acting as toastmaster, introduced Chairman Albert P. Beebe, who spoke in pleasant vein. Supervisor Alphonso Collins of Gates recited from James Whitcomb Riley and County Attorney Warren spoke on the successes of the past year.

SUPERVISOR ISAAC PALMER.
The Youngest Married Man in the Board.

More Speakers Than Votes

Hon. Eugene J. Dwyer was the first of the outside speakers. He said that he was surprised at the absence of the three Democrats who were down for speeches. They missed the opportunity of a lifetime, said Mr. Dwyer, to tell "how it happened."

"It occurs to me, however," said Mr. Dwyer, "that the great trouble with the Democratic party is that it has too many public speakers. While they are talking we are getting the votes. The last campaign was a very peculiar one indeed. We spent millions of dollars and sacrificed the lives of brave men and, as a part of the result, the Philippine Islands. Then a war of words had to be fought to decide whether we should give back to Spain what we had won and had a chance to look at them to see what we had got. The school boards here were also involved in the controversy."

Ansel E. Wright of Webster gave one of his characteristic addresses. Dr. J. L. Hazen of Brockport spoke.

During the course of the dinner Supervisor Isaac Palmer of Hamlin received many sly digs on his recent nuptials. All were of the good-natured variety and the genial young man from Hamlin had ready answer for all the quips and jokes.

During the session of the Board yesterday the seat of Supervisor Palmer was gorgeously decorated with flowers and green vines.

Annual Bowling Game

The annual bowling contest yesterday was a thing long to remember. There were two teams, captained by William S. Beard and H. M. McFarlin, the score standing as follows at the end of the fourth game. McFarlin team, 229, 240, 235, 220; Beard team, 190, 200, 235, 258.

The Beard team was made up as follows: Supervisor William S. Beard, Eighth Ward; ex-Supervisor Jacob Haltz, formerly of Gates, now of the Twentieth Ward; Supervisor Herbert B. Cash, Eighteenth Ward; ex-Supervisor H. C. Kennedy, Penfield; Supervisor A. P. Beebe, Parma; Supervisor C. C. Tozer, Ninth Ward; Supervisor Jared Hopkins, Pittsford, Supervisor H. E. Hamil, Clarkson; Thomas Barrett, Deputy Internal Revenue Collector; Ed Flen, Charles Cohen, Adam Finucane, Pittsford.

The McFarlin team was: Supervisor Henry McFarlin, Sixteenth Ward; Supervisor J. H. Ashton, Tenth Ward; Supervisor F. A. Defendorf, Perinton; Supervisor Griff D. Palmer, Twelfth Ward; Supervisor Charles E. Shafer, Sweden; Supervisor Thaddeus Dunn, Ogden; John J. Hyeron, Sherman Williams J. Quinlan, James Breeze, Parma; ex-Supervisor Ansel C. Wright, Webster; James B. Cullen, Chairman Democratic County Committee; C. F. Warrant, ex-Supervisor from Brighton.

Five Associations Represented

Five state associations of principals and teachers are represented at the convention. The Associated Principals, the Science Teachers and the Grammar School Principals discussed a proposed course of studies for academic and grammar schools. It is proposed to increase the number of hours of attendance and make the four years' course apply to the whole state. The plan when finally arranged will be recommended to the state authorities and adopted. Training Teachers and the Drawing Teachers discussed technical subjects.

After a thorough discussion, the five bodies, in joint session, unanimously passed the resolution adopted by the grammar school principals, urging the framing of a bill to be submitted at the next session of the Legislature, looking to the pensioning of superannuated teachers in the schools of the State. As a committee to draft such a bill President Conant appointed Principals Kennedy of Saratoga Springs, Pease of Oswego and Watson of Syracuse.

Principal W. S. Steel of Olean discussed the relations between the high and grammar school teachers.

So far as salaries are concerned, he thought that in cases of underpaid teachers they should at least receive as much for building up manood in the boys as do the barrooms for destroying it.

Principal W. T. Palmer of Bath read a paper on "Tenure of Office."

At the joint session of the Science Teachers' Association and Academic Principals yesterday afternoon Darwin L. Bardwell of the borough of Richmond, New York, made a report as Chairman of the Sub-Committee on Science.

George M. Turner of the Masten Park High School of Buffalo read a paper dealing with interesting phases of scientific work.

Assembly Hall in the City Hall was crowded last night on the occasion of a joint meeting of the educational bodies addressed by Hon. Andrew S. Draper, Commissioner of Education. His subject was "The New York Secondary School System."

Three applicants were accepted yesterday at the Marine Service Recruiting Station. They are Walter L. Mooney, Joseph T. Cronk and Herbert A. Norris, all of this city. They will leave Saturday for the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Eight candidates appeared at the Army Recruiting Station yesterday, but none was accepted. The following recruits were accepted Tuesday afternoon: Stanley H. Newell, Edward A. Hammond and Leonard Wake.

A CIVIL WAR CAPTAIN

Talks to the Point

"Until about two years ago I had had piles for about thirty years, at times bleeding and very painful. I got a fifty-cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure at the drug store, and used it and was entirely cured; got another box in case I needed it, and as the piles did not return in six months I gave the remedy to a friend of mine who wanted the doctor to operate to cure him. My friend said he would use the "pyramids" but he knew they would do him no good, but they cured him of piles of twenty-five years' standing. I am free from piles today, and have been since using Pyramid Pile Cure. I was Captain in the Civil War." James Adams, Soldiers' Home, Cal.

The majority of people labor under the impression that an operation is necessary in severe cases of piles, or hemorrhoids, and are very skeptical regarding the remedial virtues of any medicinal compound. Testimony like the above should certainly have a tendency to dispel this impression, although it is odd that such a fallacy should prevail, and still more odd that so many people should think an operation effects a permanent cure, whereas the contrary is more often the case.

We advise all sufferers from this painful complaint to buy a fifty-cent package of Pyramid Pile Cure at any drug store and try it tonight.

Those interested can not be too strongly urged to write Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book describing the causes and cure of piles.

First Day
Second Day
Third Day
Every Day

of the New Year, on which you desire an exquisite dessert confection to make your family and guests confection-happy, serve them with

NABISCO SUGAR WAFERS

Begin aright by wishing your New Year's callers "Happy New Year" with these delicious creations.

FESTINO —another confection, like an almond in appearance and flavor, with a shell that dissolves on your tongue and surprises you with a delightful kernel of cream.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

HONOR TO ROCHESTER

Miss Helen E. Lucas of This City Chosen President of Drawing Teachers' Association.

MISS ADAMS ALSO ELECTED

SYRACUSE, Dec. 29.—Miss Helen E. Lucas, supervisor of art work in the Rochester public schools, made the principal address yesterday at the principals' convention now being held in this city. Miss Lucas' subject was, "Use of Water Color in the Primary Grade." So much interest was aroused that Miss Lucas was asked to continue the discussion in the afternoon.

At the close of the discussion Miss Lucas was unanimously chosen President of the State Drawing Teachers' Association, an honor which goes to Rochester for the first time. Miss O. L. Adams, also of Rochester, was elected Vice President.

The State Training Teachers' Association finished its business, electing these officers: President, S. J. Shawson, Wellsville; Vice President, Miss Laura D. Haggerty, Buffalo; Secretary and Treasurer, L. D. Bigelow, Moravia; Executive Committee, J. M. Thompson, Penn Yan; Miss Ida Ellis, Canandaigua; Miss Mary Dugan, Fulton.

Simply Cut Out This Coupon

And mail to The Cal-Cura Company, Kennedy Row, Rondout, N. Y.

Dear Sirs: I think I am suffering from ..... Please provide me with Week's treatment with Cal-cura Solvent, FREE OF ALL COST.

Name .....

Address .....

Any sufferer from Kidney trouble, Liver complaint, Diseases of the Bladder, Constipation, or Blood impurity, who really desires to find a Permanent Cure, may obtain a FREE TREATMENT with Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. David Kennedy's new medicine. Simply cut out the coupon above, and mail to the Cal-cura Company, Kennedy Row, Rondout, N. Y.

Cal-cura Solvent is unequaled by any preparation, and is Dr. Kennedy's greatest medicine. It acts on an entirely new principle.

Mr. William H. Miller of Matteawan, N. Y., says, "I was seriously troubled with my kidneys and bladder for over three years. Many doctors and various kidney remedies, gave me no relief.

One Week's Treatment Free

INDIAN BRAND CANNED GOODS

JUST LIKE THE FRESH VEGETABLE

Corn, Succotash, Peas Stringless Beans

Packed Only in SEALED OCTAGON CARTONS

FOR SALE BY THESE LEADING GROCERS IN ROCHESTER

J. W. ELLIS, 27 West Ave.
ROY CROMWELL, 98 Monroe Ave.
DE WOLF & FRANK, 217 Park Ave.
H. J. SCOTT, Bennett and Main Sts. E.
J. A. CUBITT Est., 140 Alexander St.
MRS. M. ROESSER, 326 Webster Ave.
L. J. JOHNSON, Webster and Grand Avenues.
E. C. KRATZ, 382 South Ave.
REMMEL BROS., 546 South Ave.
GEORGE GERMAN, 420 Monroe Ave.
P. A. DePUYT, 313 Monroe Ave.
SILLER BROS., 155 North Union St.
R. A. HAMILTON, 44-46 Main St. E.
C. B. KENNING, William and Court Streets.
GOODBERLET BROS., 194 Campbell Avenue.
LUSINK BROS., 550 North Ave.
J. LEHLE, 114 Bay St.
A. ROGGELIN, 201 Central Park.
MRS. M. MITCHELL, William and Court Streets.
G. M. KUHN, 301 Monroe Ave.
F. J. HAWKINS, 6 Reynolds St.
D. J. HUGHES, 424 West Ave.
H. FRIESNER, 420 West Ave.
W. G. CALLAHAN, 43 Champlain St.
C. F. OSBORNE, 326 Genesee St.
MAY BROS., 257 Reynolds St.
J. A. BYERS, 311 Jefferson Ave.
J. O'NEIL, 340 Hyde Park Ave.
JAMES KEELER, 164 East Avenue.

ALSO BY

WURTH & FLAHERTY, PRATTSBURG, N. Y.
W. H. McCARTY, BLOSSBURG, PA.
O. BRUNDAGE, HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y.
WM. HOWELL, ANTRIM, PA.
H. L. BURR, WARSAW, N. Y.

PACKED BY MERRELL-SOULE CO. DISTRIBUTED BY SMITH, PERKINS & CO.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, By the Grace of God Free and Independent.

To Gertrude Zimmer and Bertha Shorer, both of Rochester, New York, Henry C. Zimmer of Cleveland, Ohio, and George F. Zimmer of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, widow, heirs at law and next of kin of George Zimmer, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas, William C. Zimmer, Margaretha Ursprung and Louise M. Berns, the Executors named in certain instruments in writing, bearing date respectively February 11th, 1903, and June 21st, 1904, purporting to be the last Will and Testament and Codicil thereto of said George Zimmer, late of the City of Rochester, in said County of Monroe and State of New York, deceased, and relating to both real and personal estate, have lately made application to the Surrogate's Court of our County of Monroe, to have said instruments proved and recorded as a Will and Codicil thereto of personal and real estate, you, and each of you are cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of the County of Monroe, at his office in the City of Rochester, in said County of Monroe, New York, on the 3d day of January, 1905, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of said last Will and Testament and Codicil. And if any of the aforesaid persons are under the age of twenty-one years, or insane or otherwise incompetent, they will please take notice that they are required to appear by their general guardian, if they have one, and if they have none, that they appear and apply for the appointment of a special guardian, or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for them in the proceedings for the settlement of said estate.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Monroe, to be hereto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Rochester, this 27th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four.

ANDREW LUDOLPH,
Clerk Surrogate's Court.

12-28-1aw-6w-7t

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK—By the Grace of God Free and Independent.

To the creditors, legatees, devisees, heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested whose respective names, ages and places of residence are unknown, the Attorney-General of the State of New York and the Comptroller of the State of New York, the legatees, next of kin, heirs at law, creditors and persons interested in the estate of Ludwig Brockman, late of the City of Rochester, in the County of Monroe, deceased, greeting:

You are hereby cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of our County of Monroe, in the Surrogate's Court, on the 9th day of February, 1905, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the Surrogate's office in the City of Rochester, then and there to attend the judicial settlement of the accounts of John B. Hamilton as the administrator of the estate of said deceased. And if any of the aforesaid persons are under the age of twenty-one years, or insane or otherwise incompetent, they will please take notice that they are required to appear by their general guardian, if they have one, and if they have none, that they appear and apply for the appointment of a special guardian, or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent them and act for them in the proceedings for the settlement of said estate.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Monroe, to be hereto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. Geo. A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Rochester, this sixteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four.

ANDREW LUDOLPH,
Clerk Surrogate's Court.

Emil Ludekens, Attorney for Petitioners, 825 Chamber of Commerce Building, Rochester, N. Y. 11-17-1aw-6w-7t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Elijah M. Wray, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned The Rochester Trust and Safe Deposit Company, the Executor, at the place for the transaction of business as such Executor at 25 Exchange Street, City of Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 24th day of January, 1905.

Dated, July 26th, 1904.

ROCHESTER TRUST AND SAFE DEPOSIT COMPANY,
Executor.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against the estate of Hannah T. Colvin, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Executors at their place for the transaction of business as such Executors at No. 10 Mill Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 25th day of February, 1905.

Dated, August 23d, 1904.

WILLIAM S. CASTLEMAN,
J. B. M. STEPHENS,
8-23-1aw-6mo Executors.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Rosanna Cunninghan, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, her executor, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor at No. 136 State Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 11th day of March, 1905.

Dated Sept. 10th, 1904.

MILES T. O'REILLY,
Executor.

Joseph M. Feely, Attorney, 304 Powers Building. 9-10-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against George Peter Weber, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Administrator with the will annexed at his place for the transaction of business as such at No. 617 Wilder Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of February, 1905.

Dated, Rochester, N. Y., July 30th, 1904.

HENRY W. HALL,
Administrator with will annexed, of George Peter Weber, deceased.

7-30-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Geo. A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Mary J. Barber, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, Albert J. Haines, executor, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at No. 16 Asbury Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of January, 1905.

Dated June 15, 1904.

ADELBERT D. HAINES,
Executor.

George A. Gillette, Attorney for Executor, 29 Arcade, Rochester, N. Y. 1-27-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Anna Elliza Wolcott, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, James E. Wolcott, Executor, at his place for the transaction of business as such Executor, at 713 Wilder Bldg., Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 31st day of December, 1904.

Dated, June 22d, 1904.

JAMES E. WOLCOTT,

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK—By the Grace of God Free and Independent.

To the creditors, legatees, devisees, heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested whose respective names, ages and places of residence are unknown, the Attorney-General of the State of New York and the Comptroller of the State of New York, the legatees, next of kin, heirs at law, creditors and persons interested in the estate of Hannah T. Colvin, late of the City of Rochester, in the County of Monroe, deceased, greeting:

You are hereby cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of our County of Monroe, in the Surrogate's Court, on the 3d day of January, 1905, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of said last Will and Testament and Codicil. And if any of the aforesaid persons are under the age of twenty-one years, or insane or otherwise incompetent, they will please take notice that they are required to appear by their general guardian, if they have one, and if they have none, that they appear and apply for the appointment of a special guardian, or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent them and act for them in the proceedings for the probate of said Will and Codicil.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Monroe, to be hereto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. Geo. A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Rochester, this sixteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and four.

ANDREW LUDOLPH,
Clerk Surrogate's Court.

Emil Ludekens, Attorney for Petitioners, 825 Chamber of Commerce Building, Rochester, N. Y. 11-17-1aw-6w-7t

At a Special Term of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, held at the Court House in the City of Rochester, N. Y., in and for the county of Monroe, on the 7th day of December, 1904. Present—Hon. James W. Dunwell, Justice Supreme Court.

SUPREME COURT, MONROE COUNTY

In the matter of the petition of Hannah T. Colvin to have a mortgage discharged of record.

On reading and filing the petition of Hannah T. Colvin, praying that a mortgage executed by petitioner, Hannah T. Colvin to John Manley, dated the 15th day of May, 1871, and recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Monroe, on the 30th day of August, 1871, upon premises situate in the City of Rochester, Monroe County, New York, may be discharged of record, and on motion of Murphy, Keenan & Keenan, attorneys for said petitioner, it is Ordered, That all persons interested show cause at a Special Term of this court, to be held at the Court House in the City of Rochester, N. Y., on the 30th day of December, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day why the said mortgage should not be discharged of record. It is further ordered, that this order be published in the Evening Times, a newspaper published in the City of Rochester, Monroe County, once in each week for two weeks successively, and it appearing that petitioner has been unable to locate any heirs at law or next of kin of said deceased and that there is no administrator of the estate of said deceased, personal service of a copy of this order is hereby dispensed with.

12-7-1aw-2w

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Alice C. Russell, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned William R. Van Zandt and Ella C. Van Zandt at their place for the transaction of business as such at No. 24 East Main Street, City of Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of January, 1905.

Dated, Rochester, N. Y., July 16th, 1904.

WILLIAM R. VAN ZANDT,
ELLA C. VAN ZANDT,
Executors.

F. P. Kimball, Attorney for Executors, 211-216 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y. 7-16-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Jacob Schaeckenberger, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, Carl A. T. Jung, Executor of Estate of said Jacob Schneckenberger, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at 621 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of January, 1905.

Dated, June 27, 1904.

CARL A. T. JUNG,
Executor.

George R. Draper, Attorney for Executor, 621 Powers Building. 6-28-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against David Leahy, late of the Town of Greece, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, Administratrix, Nellie Leahy, at her place for the transaction of business as such Administratrix at Barnards Crossing, or before the 24 day of January, 1905.

Dated, June 24th, 1904.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

The following statement to the public has been issued by William C. Mount, business agent of Rochester Lodge, International Association of Machinists:

The public generally are aware of a conflict existing, for the better part of two years past, between the I. A. of Machinists and the Manufacturers' Association, occasioned by an attempt on the part of the latter body to establish the obnoxious imposition known as the premium system as a permanent factor in our line of business.

Industrial war can not be long continued between parties so great in numbers and resources without detriment to the welfare of the community, and public interest is directly concerned with the objects and purposes of these opposing bodies.

Beside their mutually hostile and destructive efforts, the acts of individuals seem insignificant and may be in this connection properly ignored.

Such contests, held to be hurtful to the general welfare of the community in a material or business sense, are believed to be equally disastrous in a moral sense. Measures are taken, which, however technically lawful, would not under other circumstances be tolerated or even thought of—and resultant demoralization infects the general public.

Not Averse to Settlement

These reflections, deemed weighty and pertinent on all similar occasions, are here presented for candid consideration to the public mind. It is not because they were forgotten or ignored that we are found enlisted in this fight, but, because we are constrained thereto in defense of our just rights and legitimate interests. Nor are we averse to a just and fair settlement at any time, of all questions at issue between ourselves and our opponents. But no settlement can be considered final if justice be denied to any interest, public or private. Public opinion being an important factor and final arbiter in any such settlement it imports the public to be well informed as to facts and principles involved. Let there be no mistake. It is not from any sense of weakness or discouragement on our part that the idea of settlement is here advanced.

It may be the opinion of some, impressed by apparently great adverse odds, that we must be, financially or otherwise, in a bad way. The reverse is the fact. Both our Local Lodge and the I. A. of M. were never stronger than we are today. Since January 1, 1903, our local lodge has initiated and enrolled 104 new members. Our membership was never larger, and our per capita assessments were never more promptly paid. True, we have expended a large sum of money, but we have good value to show for it. We believe the proposed installation of the premium system by our model to be practically beaten. It must necessarily be frowned down by public opinion wherever the facts concerning it are fully known. It is hardly credible that reflecting men, whether in the Manufacturers' Association or out of it, with a full understanding of the facts, can in any manner countenance practices formerly held to be not only unjust, but contemptible and despicable.

Practice Once Condemned

Let us consider how, formerly, employers universally looked upon men who, even covertly and surreptitiously, ventured to put in practice the essential principles of the premium system. No man of mature years, accustomed to read newspapers, and to hear comments on current affairs, can fail to remember how, some few years ago, mention was occasionally made of some superintendent or foreman being caught extorting from workmen or workwomen, to whom he gave out work, a portion of their earnings as a consideration of securing their jobs. Nor can he fail to remember that when found out, no one denounced these acts as disgraceful and dishonorable more emphatically than the employers themselves. The offenders were either promptly called down and sternly rebuked or summarily discharged for thus levying blackmail upon their employes.

Now, these practices, once held to be infamous when operated by subordinates for their private profit, are practices in which some of the employers, in collusion with their subordinates, are desirous of putting in operation under the name of the premium system. Under this system, superintendent or foreman may do the dirty and despicable work of levying the blackmail; but, with the full knowledge and direction of the employer, who pockets the proceeds. It strikes us that beside this system that of the ordinary grafter looks respectable. Can any procedure be more contemptible than for an employer to blackmail his employes?

Piece Work Bad Enough

Piece work is bad enough—too bad to be tolerated under ordinary circumstances; but the piece worker receives pay for all he does over an average day's work, while under the premium system he must surrender one-half to the employer. And this is the system to which you gentlemen of the Manufacturers' Association lend your countenance and support. To this we have objected and persecute no honest men whose only offense is that they resist the imposition by the only means at their command. This is the offense for which these men are blacklisted from shop to shop and from city to city by your association in order to deprive them of all chance to earn an honest living. Gentlemen, you ought to be glad that you are beaten as the facts show you to be.

Unquestionably the tide of public opinion is turning in our favor, and must so turn more and more as the merits of the controversy become more fully known.

We believe that there is for the animosity manifested towards us no just cause or occasion, and our position needs only to be fairly discussed and properly understood to be rather approved than opposed. That we stand and have always stood for equal and exact justice for employers and employes alike, and that our principles and policies are entirely conclusive. We hold that the true interests of employes and employers, rightly considered, are identical; and that there is no necessity in the nature of things for any antagonism.

Should not the true policy for both organizations be rather to get together devising some means for preventing all antagonism and hostility in the future?

If there can be found anything in our principles and policy, which, when fairly considered and understood, is seen to be prejudicial on the whole to the just rights or interests of others, we have but to be convinced of the fact to make changes, and even sacrifices, if necessary, to conform to right and justice. We hope the time may soon come when we can be met on terms proving that this spirit animates all concerned.

Offered to Arbitrate

Early in the controversy we offered to submit every question under consideration, except the premium system, to arbitration. And while our members would not now consent to this, it may be possible if a committee of the Manufacturers' Association and a committee of the lodge could be got together, that some arrangement to secure more friendly relations in future might be devised to our mutual benefit and satisfaction.

While we are frittering away means and efforts over a contest wholly regrettable and unavoidable, we are losing much more than the amount of possible gain to any one, or to all the employers together, by adoption of the premium system, because we do not immediately concentrate the executions of certain overgrown monopolists, each one of whom already possesses more wealth than any one man can hold with out prejudice to the rights and interests of the people, and are continually increasing their hoards by open and bare-faced extortion from the public of which we are part.

There is a long list of the necessaries of life which all have to buy; another long list of manufacturers' supplies; another of transportation charges; still others too numerous to mention formed and formerly all of which fell on us, but the amount we would have to pay if only just prices were charged.

Far better for both organizations to array our strength against the promoters of these abuses and extortions, and in defense of our mutual interests and those of the public, than to waste it in mutual conflict among ourselves. In such contests traversties and conflicts, the interests of the general public must ultimately govern, and all who stand in the way, whether individuals, organizations, or courts, must go down before the might of public opinion.

Per Order of Local 93, I. A. of Machinists.
W. C. MOUNT,
Business Agent.

Drives All Before It

Aches and pains fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. So do Sores, Pimples, Boils, Burns and Piles, or no pay. 25c. Dake Drug Co.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of
The Kind You Have Always Bought

Locust Club Election

The Locust Club, the policemen's organization, held its annual election yesterday afternoon and last night. These officers were elected: President, R. D. Courneen; First Vice President, Edward T. Burke; Second Vice President, Joseph G. Schmucker; Third Vice President, Willis R. Lee; Fourth Vice President, George A. Fox; Fifth Vice President, Frederick Scholl; Secretary, James Mc D. Ellis; Treasurer, John S. Pearson; Finance Committee, Fred J. Decker, Philip Amlinger, James E. Bennett; Executive Committee, John J. Lynch, John M. Sellinger, John C. McClease.

INDIAN BRAND CANNED GOODS

JUST LIKE THE FRESH VEGETABLE
Corn, Succotash, Peas
Stringless Beans
Packed Only in SEALED OCTAGON CARTONS
FOR SALE BY THESE LEADING GROCERS IN ROCHESTER

J. W. ELLIS, 27 West Ave.
ROY CROMWELL, 501 Monroe Ave.
DE WOLF & FRANK, 217 Park Ave.
H. J. GOFF, Barnum and Main St. E.
J. A. CUBITT Est., 140 Alexander St.
MRS. M. ROESSER, 259 Webster Ave.
L. J. JOHNSON, Webster and Grand Avenues
E. C. KRATZ, 382 South Ave.
REMMEL, BROS., 546 South Ave.
GEORGE GERMAN, 420 Monroe Ave.
P. A. DEPUYT, 318 Monroe Ave.
SILLER BROS., 155 North Union St.
R. A. HAMILTON, 44-46 Main St. E.
C. B. KENNING, William and Court Streets.
GOODBERLET BROS., 194 Campbell Avenue.
LUSINK BROS., 550 North Ave.
J. LEHLE, 114 Bay St.
A. ROGGELIN, 201 Central Park.
MRS. M. MITCHELL, William and Court Streets.
G. M. KUHN, 201 Monroe Ave.
F. J. HAWKINS, 49 Reynolds St.
D. J. HUGHES, 634 West Ave.
H. FRIESNER, 430 West Ave.
W. G. CALLAHAN, 49 Champlain St.
C. F. OSBORNE, 316 Genesee St.
MAY BROS., 257 Reynolds St.
J. A. IVERS, 311 Jefferson Ave.
J. O'NEIL, 340 Plymouth Ave.
JAMES KEELER, 164 East Avenue.

ALSO BY
WURTH & FLAHERTY, PRATTSBURG, N. Y.
W. H. McCARTY, BLOSSBURG, PA.
O. BRUNDAGE, HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y.
WM. HOWELL, ANTRIM, PA.
H. L. BURR, WARSAW, N. Y.
W. G. WILLARD, LAKESIDE, N. Y.
E. A. HALL, DANSVILLE, N. Y.
A. B. & E. E. FRASER, HILTON, N. Y.
FRANK M. DAVIS, WESTFIELD, PA.

PACKED BY MERRELL-SOULE CO.
SYRACUSE
DISTRIBUTED BY
SMITH, PERKINS & CO.
ROCHESTER

PIN BOYS AND THE CHILD LABOR LAW

Mercantile Inspector Will Try to Prevent Employment of the Lads in Bowling Alleys.

After Jan. 1, Mercantile Inspector McAuliffe of the Health Board, will endeavor to prevent the employment of boys in the bowling alleys of the city. By the provisions of the labor law no child under 16 years of age can be employed longer than nine hours a day, and the hours of employment must be between 7 a. m. and 10 o'clock p. m.

Inspector McAuliffe states that he has received information that a number of boys under 14 years of age are employed in setting up pins in the bowling alleys of the city and that many of them are required to work long after the hour of 10 o'clock. He has sent to Albany to ascertain whether a permit can be legally issued to the boys for such work.

ABSOLUTE DIVORCE HAS BEEN GRANTED

Justice Nash Has Confirmed the Report of the Referee in the Heberger Case.

Justice Nash has granted a final decree of divorce in the case of John N. Heberger against Gertrude Heberger. The order of the Court was made on the findings of Referee Charles M. Williams.

George R. Van Alstyne appeared for the plaintiff and Gambee & Gambee for the defendant. The peculiar part of the affair is that the co-respondent and the principal witness for the defense were the bosom friends of the plaintiff. Frank J. Steppler is named as co-respondent and Emil J. Vogel is the principal witness for the defendant.

Mrs. Heberger and Steppler both reside in New York at present.

A Wonderful Change

Weak, sickly invalids are soon changed by Electric Bitters into healthy men and women. They cure or no pay. 50c. Dake Drug Co.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Ionic Chapter, R. A. M.—High Priest, W. E. Miller; King, George R. Van Alstyne; Scribe, F. Clark Brown; Treasurer, Frank Taylor; Secretary, C. H. Haskin. Installation, second Tuesday in January.

Pocahontas Council, 58, D. of P.—Pocahontas, May Rowe; Wenonah, A. Hoeret; Prophetess, Carrie Ulrick; Powhatan, M. D. O'Loughlin; K. of R., Ella M. Byron; C. of W., Kathryn Weisenbom; K. of W., Mary Brundage; Physician, Kathleen Buck, M. D.; representative to Great Council, Kathryn Weisenbom; alternate representative, Minnie E. Perkins; Trustee, Agnes Flynn.

Court City of Rochester, F. of A.—Chief Ranger, Henry Leinen; Sub-Chief Ranger, Edward J. Ward; Financial Secretary, George R. Brown; Recording Secretary, Eugene Hatch; Treasurer, Albert Wood; Senior Woodward, Charles R. Hull; Junior Woodward, Edward Graffarin; Senior Beadle, Henry Tallinger; Junior Beadle, George Hunt; Trustee, Frank Gosselin; Lecturer, John J. Moynihan; Physician for Rochester, Dr. E. M. Hague; Physician for Irondequoit, Dr. Bellamy.

John G. Klinck Lodge, I. O. O. F.—Noble Grand, Albert E. Lamey; Vice Grand, Benjamin F. Ellinger; Recording Secretary, George E. Streeving; Financial Secretary, J. M. Deyo; Treasurer, John Claus; Lodge Directors, J. M. Deyo, John Claus, John Gilweiler, Henry Baker, Eldon Hicks; Memorial Committee, John Claus. The officers will be installed next Monday evening.

For Police and Firemen

The fire and police pension funds were enriched to the extent of $550 yesterday by business concerns of the city. Commissioner Gilman received two checks for $250 each from the Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Company, in recognition of the services of the Police and Fire Departments at the big fire in the dry goods district last February, and also at the recent Bickford-Schantz fire, when the property of the Sibley firm in an adjoining building was saved from destruction. A check for $50 was received by Chief Little from Patrick Fahy for the prompt and efficient work of the Fire Department at the recent fi... in Mr. Fahy's home, 8 Lake Aven... The check will be handed over to t... firemen's pension fund.

SUPERVISOR ISAAC PALMER.

The Youngest Married Man in the Board.

duced Chairman Albert P. Beebe, who spoke in pleasant vein. Supervisor Alphonso Collins of Gates recited from James Whitcomb Riley and County Attorney Warren spoke on the successes of the past year.

More Speakers Than Votes

Hon. Eugene J. Dwyer was the first of the outside speakers. He said that he was surprised at the absence of the three Democrats who were down for speeches. "I only missed the opportunity of a lifetime, said Mr. Dwyer, to tell 'how it happened.'"

"It occurs to me, however," said Mr. Dwyer, "that the great trouble with the Democratic party is that it has too many public speakers. While they are talking we are getting the votes. The last campaign cost us $25,000 a very expensive thing. We spent millions of dollars and sacrificed the lives of brave men and, as a part of the result, got the Philippine Islands. Then a war of words had to be fought to decide whether we should give back these same islands before we even had a chance to look at them to see what we had got."

John R. Mullan, former Secretary of the School Board, spoke, and ex-Supervisor Ansel E. Wright of Webster gave one of his characteristic addresses. Dr. J. L. Hazen of Brockport spoke.

During the course of the dinner Supervisor Isaac Palmer of Hamlin received many sly digs on his recent nuptials. All were of the good-natured variety and the genial young man from Hamlin had ready answer for all the quips and jokes. As at the session of the Board yesterday, the seat of Supervisor Palmer was gorgeously decorated with flowers and green vines.

Annual Bowling Game

The annual bowling contest yesterday was a thing to remember. There were two teams, captained by William S. Beard and D. M. McFarlin, the score standing as follows at the end of the fourth game. McFarlin team, 220, 240, 235, 220; Beard team, 190, 200, 235, 258.

The Beard team was made up as follows: Supervisor William S. Beard, Eighth Ward; ex-Supervisor Jacob Baltz, formerly of Gates, now of the Twentieth Ward; Supervisor Herbert R. Cash, Eighteenth Ward; ex-Supervisor H. C. Kennedy, Penfield; Supervisor A. P. Beebe, Parma; Supervisor J. C. Toxer, Ninth Ward; Supervisor Jared Hopkins, Pittsford; Supervisor H. E. Hamil, Clarkson; Thomas Barrett, Deputy Internal Revenue Collector; Ed Flen, Charles Cohen, Adam Finucane, Pittsford.

The McFarlin team was: Supervisor Henry W. Fairfax, Seventh Ward; Supervisor J. H. Ashton, Tenth Ward; Supervisor F. A. Defendorf, Perinton; Supervisor Griff D. Palmer, Twelfth Ward; Supervisor Charles E. Shafer, Sweden; Supervisor Thaddeus Dunn, Ogden; John J. Heveron, Alderman William J. Quinlan, James Breeze, Parma, ex-Supervisor Ansel C. Wright, Webster; James B. Cullen, Chairman Democratic County Committee; C. F. Warrant, ex-Supervisor from Brighton.

Three applicants were accepted yesterday at the Marine Service Recruiting Station. They are Walter L. Mooney, Joseph T. Cronin and Herbert Nathan Merrill of this city. They will leave Saturday for the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Eight candidates appeared at the Army Recruiting Station yesterday, but none was accepted. The following recruits were accepted Tuesday afternoon: Stanley H. Newell, Edward A. Hammond and Leonard Wake.

A CIVIL WAR CAPTAIN

Talks to the Point

"Until about two years ago I had bad piles for about thirty years, at times bleeding and very painful. I got a fifty-cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure at the drug store, and used it and was entirely cured; got another box in case I needed it, and as the piles did not return in six months I gave the remedy to a friend of mine who wanted the doctor to operate to cure him. My friend said he would use the "pyramids" but he knew they would do him no good, but they cured him of piles of twenty-five years' standing. I am free from piles today, and have been since using Pyramid Pile Cure. I was Captain in the Civil War." James Adams, Soldiers' Home, Cal.

The majority of people labor under the impression that an operation is necessary in severe cases of piles, or hemorrhoids, and are very skeptical regarding the remedial virtues of any medicinal compound. Testimony like the above should certainly have a tendency to dispel this impression, although it is odd that such a fallacy should prevail, and still more odd that so many people should think an operation effects a permanent cure, whereas the contrary is more often the case.

We advise all sufferers from this painful complaint to buy a fifty-cent package of Pyramid Pile Cure at any drug store and try it tonight.

Any one interested can not be too strongly urged to write Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book describing the causes and cure of piles, as it contains valuable information, and is sent free for the asking.

happy, serve them with

NABISCO SUGAR WAFERS

Begin aright by wishing your New Year's callers "Happy New Year" with these delicious creations.

FESTINO —another confection, like an almond in appearance and flavor, with a shell that dissolves on your tongue and surprises you with a delightful kernel of cream.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

HONOR TO ROCHESTER

Miss Helen E. Lucas of This City Chosen President of Drawing Teachers' Association.

MISS ADAMS ALSO ELECTED

SYRACUSE, Dec. 29.—Miss Helen E. Lucas, supervisor of art work in the Rochester public schools, made the principal address yesterday at the principals' convention now being held in this city. Miss Lucas' subject was, "Use of Water Color in the Primary Grade." So much interest was aroused that Miss Lucas was asked to continue the discussion in the afternoon.

At the close of the discussion Miss Lucas was unanimously chosen President of the State Drawing Teachers' Association, an honor which goes to Rochester for the first time. Miss O. L. Adams, also of Rochester, was elected Vice President.

The State Training Teachers' Association finished its business, electing these officers: President, S. J. Slawson, Wellsville; Vice President, Miss Laura D. Haggerty, Buffalo; Secretary and Treasurer, J. D. Bigelow, Moravia; Executive Committee, J. M. Thompson, Penn Yan; Miss Ida Ellis, Canandaigua; Miss Mary Dugan, Fulton.

Five Associations Represented

Five state associations of principals and teachers are represented at the convention. Associated Principals, the Science Teachers and the Grammar School Principals discussed a proposed course of studies for academic and grammar schools. It is proposed to increase the number of hours of attendance and make the four years' course apply to the whole state. The plan when finally arranged will be recommended to the state authorities and adopted. Training Teachers and the Drawing Teachers discussed technical subjects.

After a thorough discussion, the five bodies, in joint session, unanimously passed the resolution adopted by the grammar school principals, urging the framing of a bill to be submitted at the next session of the Legislature, looking to the pensioning of superannuated teachers in the schools of the State. As a committee to draft such a bill President Conant appointed Principals Kennedy of Saratoga Springs, Pease of Oswego and Watson of Syracuse.

Principal W. S. Steel of Olean discussed the relations between the high and grammar school teachers.

So far as salaries are concerned, he thought that in cases of underpaid teachers they should not receive as much for building up manhood in the boys as do the bartenders for destroying it.

Principal W. T. Palmer of Bath read a paper on "Tenure of Office."

At the joint session of the Science Teachers' Association and Academic Principals yesterday afternoon Darwin L. Bardwell of the borough of Richmond, New York, made a report as Chairman of the Sub-Committee on Science.

George M. Turner of the Masten Park High School of Buffalo read a paper dealing with interesting phases of scientific work.

Assembly Hall in the City Hall was crowded last night on the occasion of a joint meeting of the educational bodies addressed by Hon. Andrew S. Draper, Commissioner of Education. His subject was "The New York Secondary School System."

One Week's Treatment Free

Simply Cut Out This Coupon

And mail to The Cal-Cura Company, Kennedy Row, Rondout, N. Y.
Dear Sirs: I think I am suffering from a ..... Please provide me with week's treatment with Cal-cura Solvent, FREE OF ALL COST.
Name .....
Address .....

Any sufferer from Kidney trouble, Liver complaint, Diseases of the Bladder, Constipation, or Blood impurity, who really desires to find a Permanent Cure, may obtain a FREE TREATMENT with Cal-cura Solvent, Dr. David Kennedy's new medicine. Simply cut out the coupon above, and mail to the Cal-cura Company, Kennedy Row, Rondout, N. Y.

Cal-cura Solvent is unequaled by any preparation, and is Dr. Kennedy's greatest medicine. It acts on an entirely new principle.

Mr. William H. Miller of Matteawan, N. Y., says. "I was seriously troubled with my kidneys and bladder for over three years. Many doctors and various kidney remedies, gave me no relief. But I finally bought a bottle of Cal-cura Solvent of my druggist, used a few bottles and I am cured."

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK—By the Grace of God Free and Independent.

To the creditors, legatees, devisees, heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested whose respective names, ages and places of residence are unknown, the Attorney-General of the State of New York and the Comptroller of the State of New York, the legatees, next of kin, heirs at law, creditors and persons interested in the estate of Ludwig Brockman, late of the City of Rochester, in the County of Monroe, deceased, greeting:

You are hereby cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of our County of Monroe, in the Surrogate's Court, on the 9th day of February, 1905, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the Surrogate's office in the City of Rochester, then and there to attend the judicial settlement of the accounts of John B. Hamilton as the administrator of the estate of said deceased. And if any of the aforesaid persons are under the age of twenty-one years, or insane or otherwise incompetent, they will please take notice that they are required to appear by their general guardian, if they have one, and if they have none, that they appear and apply for the appointment of a special guardian, or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for them in the proceedings for the settlement of said estate.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Monroe to be hereto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Rochester, this 27th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four.

ANDREW LUDOLPH,
Clerk Surrogate's Court.

12-28-1aw-6w-7t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Elijah D. Wray, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Executors at their place for the transaction of business as such Executors at No. 140 Mill Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 25th day of February, 1905.

Dated, August 23d, 1904.
WILLIAM S. CASTLEMAN,
J. R. M. STEPHENS,
8-23-1aw-6mo Executors.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Rosanna Cunningham, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, her executor, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor at No. 136 State Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 11th day of March, 1905.

Dated Sept. 10th, 1904.
MILES T. O'REILLY,
Executor.
Joseph M. Feely, Attorney, 301 Powers Building. 9-10-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against George Peter Weber, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Administrator with the will annexed at his place for the transaction of business as such at No. 617 Wilder Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of February, 1905.

Dated, Rochester, N. Y., July 30th, 1904.
HENRY W. HALL,
Administrator with will annexed, of George Peter Weber, deceased.
7-30-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Geo. A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Mary C. Barber, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same, with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, Albert D. Haines, executor, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at No. 16 Asbury Street, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of January, 1905.

Dated June 15, 1904.
ADELBERT D. HAINES,
Executor.
George A. Gillette, Attorney for Executor, — Arcade, Rochester, N. Y.
1-27-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Anna Eliza Wolcott, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, James E. Wolcott, Executor, at his place for the transaction of business as such Executor, at 712 Wilder Bldg., Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 31st day of December, 1904.

Dated, June 22d, 1904.
JAMES E. WOLCOTT,
Executor.
McGuire & Wood, Attorneys for Executor, 711-717 Wilder Bldg. 6-22-1aw-4mo

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK—By the Grace of God Free and Independent.

To Gertrude Zimmer and Bertha Shorer, both of Rochester, New York, Henry C. Zimmer of Cleveland, Ohio, and George F. Zimmer of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, widow, heirs at law and next of kin of George Zimmer, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas, William C. Zimmer, Margaretha Ursprung and Louise M. Berns, the Executors named in certain instruments in writing, bearing date respectively February 11th, 1902, and June 21st, 1904, purporting to be the last Will and Testament and Codicil thereto of said George Zimmer, late of the City of Rochester, in said County of Monroe and State of New York, deceased, and relating to both real and personal estate, have lately made application to the Surrogate's Court of our County of Monroe, to have said instruments proved and recorded as a Will and Codicil thereto of personal and real estate, you, and each of you are cited and required to appear before the Surrogate of the County of Monroe, at his office in the City of Rochester, in said County of Monroe, New York, on the 3d day of January, 1905, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of said last Will and Testament and Codicil. And if any of the aforesaid persons are under the age of twenty-one years, or insane or otherwise incompetent, they will please take notice that they are required to appear by their general guardian, if they have one, and if they have none, that they appear and apply for the appointment of a special guardian, or in the event of their neglect or failure to do so, a special guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent them and act for them in the proceedings for the probate of said Will and Codicil. In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Monroe, to be hereto affixed.

(L. S.) Witness, Hon. Geo. A. Benton, Surrogate of said County, at the City of Rochester, this sixteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four.

ANDREW LUDOLPH,
Clerk Surrogate's Court.
Emil Ludekens, Attorney for Petitioners, 825 Chamber of Commerce Building, Rochester, N. Y. 11-17-1aw-6w-7t

At a Special Term of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, held at the Court House in the City of Rochester, N. Y., in and for the County of Monroe, on the 7th day of December, 1904. Present—Hon. James W. Dunwell, Justice Supreme Court.

SUPREME COURT, MONROE COUNTY.

In the matter of the petition of Hannah T. Colvin to have a mortgage discharged of record.

On reading and filing the petition of Hannah T. Colvin, praying that a mortgage executed by petitioner Hannah T. Colvin to John Manley, dated the 15th day of May, 1871, and recorded in the office of the Clerk of the County of Monroe, on the 30th day of August, 1871, upon premises situate in the City of Rochester, Monroe County, New York, may be discharged of record, and on motion of Murphy, Keenan & Keenan, attorneys for said petitioner, it is Ordered, That all persons interested show cause at a Special Term of this court, to be held at the Court House in the City of Rochester, N. Y., on the 21st day of December, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the said mortgage should not be discharged of record.

It is further ordered, that this order be published in the Evening Times, the newspaper published in the City of Rochester, Monroe County, once in each week for two weeks successively, and it appearing that petitioner has been unable to locate any heirs at law or next of kin of said deceased, and that there is no administrator of the estate of said deceased, personal service of a copy of this order is hereby dispensed with.

12-7-1aw-2w

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Alice C. Russell, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned William R. Van Zandt and Ella C. Van Zandt at their place for the transaction of business as such at No. 24 East Main Street, City of Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of January, 1905.

Dated, Rochester, N. Y., July 16th, 1904.
WILLIAM R. VAN ZANDT,
ELLA C. VAN ZANDT,
Executors.
F. P. Kimball, Attorney for Executors, 211-215 Ellwanger & Barry Building, Rochester, N. Y. 7-16-1aw-6mo

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against Jacob Schaeckenberger, late of the City of Rochester, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned, Carl A. T. Jung, Executor of Estate of said Jacob Schneckenberger, at his place for the transaction of business as such executor, at 621 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of January, 1905.

Dated, June 27, 1904.
CARL A. T. JUNG,
Executor.
George B. Draper, Attorney for Executor, 621 Powers Building. 6-28-1aw-6m

NOTICE TO CREDITORS—Pursuant to an order of Hon. George A. Benton, Surrogate of the County of Monroe, notice is hereby given, according to law, to all persons having claims or demands against David Leahy, late of the Town of Greece, County of Monroe, State of New York, deceased, to present the same with the vouchers thereof, to the undersigned Administratrix, Nellie Leahy, at her place for the transaction of business as such Administratrix at Barnards Crossing, or before the 2d day of January, 1905.

Dated, July 1st, 1904.
NELLIE LEAHY,
Administratrix.
Barnards Crossing, N. Y.
7-1-1aw-6mo

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

DR. GEO. W. GOLER,

Health Officer for City of Rochester.

Will give an Illustrated Lecture in Assembly Hall, Monday Evening, January 20, 1902, at 8 o'clock, to which yourself and family are invited to attend.

The subject of the lecture will be: "How the Other Half Lives," and will prove intensely interesting.

Please be in your seat before the hall is darkened.

John M. Ives
Secretary.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 17, 1902.

WOULD BENEFIT ALL CITIZENS

Alderman Baker Says an Army Post on the Greenleaf Tract Would Bring a Desirable Class of Men and More Money to Rochester.

The Times Jan 16 1902

Alderman William A. Baker of the Tenth Ward at Tuesday night's meeting of the Council, introduced a resolution requesting the Secretary of War to establish the proposed new army post for Western New York in or near Rochester. The resolution was passed without a dissenting vote and a certified copy will be sent to the Secretary of War at Washington.

To the question "In what way would the army post benefit Rochester?" Mr. Baker this morning replied:

"There will probably be from 1,000 to 1,500 men connected with the post. Of the enlisted men the privates draw $13 per month and the non-commissioned officers from $15 to $36 per month. The soldiers are paid every month and as they are free spenders it is quite probable that from $12,000 to $15,000 would be spent in Rochester in the intervals between pay days.

"There would be about 50 commissioned officers at the post and their pay would range from $116 per month to $300 per month, according to their rank. They would, in all probability, also spend considerable money in Rochester. Besides this, the officers with the regiment at the post would be well educated and broad-minded men, and would be a decided acquisition to the society of the city.

"Many of the officers who are married would bring their wives and families with them and that in itself would be a benefit to the social conditions of Rochester.

"The presence of uniformed men on our streets would give an air of activity and life to the city and the fact that Rochester possessed a post would give the city a greater prestige than any institution within its limits. It would greatly advertise the city.

"All the surplus labor of Rochester would be employed in the erection of the post. Many carpenters, masons, plasterers and other tradesmen would be given work for some time and the working classes of the city would be greatly benefited."

In regard to a site for the post, Mr. Baker said: "I am in favor of the Greenleaf tract at Charlotte for a site for the post. The plot is beautifully situated and should make a very healthy place for soldiers' quarters."

PRINCE HENRY MAY VISIT ROCHESTER

Chamber of Commerce Will Make an Effort To Have the Distinguished Visitor Make a Stop in Rochester--Prospect of Success Is Considered To Be Very Bright.

Herald Jan 16 1902

Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of Emperor William of Germany, may visit Rochester during his stay in America.

Prince Henry is coming to America as the special representative of Emperor William at the launching of the new imperial yacht at Shooter's Island next month and the government is now making the most elaborate preparations for his entertainment.

At the direction of the President, the Secretary of State is now arranging the programme for receiving and entertaining the Prince. It is expected that Dr. David Jayne Hill, the Assistant Secretary of State, will be designated as the special representative of this country to meet the royal visitor. Dr. Hill is a former president of the University of Rochester and it is expected that he will be of great assistance in arranging a visit of Prince Henry to Rochester.

It is expected that Prince Henry will visit Niagara Falls while in the country, and it was an announcement of this fact in the news dispatches that led Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce to conceive the idea that the Emperor's brother might be induced to stop in this city either on his way to the falls or on his way back.

Rochester is distinctively a German-American city and numbers among its citizens some very prominent Germans. This is an additional reason why Prince Henry might come to Rochester. Congressman Perkins has been communicated with and he will see what can be done in Washington toward bringing about the desired result. It is believed that if Prince Henry visits any inland cities at all, Rochester will be among the number.

Prince Henry will be accompanied by a long retinue of distinguished German officials.

PRINCE HENRY'S VISIT.

Secretary Ives Is Looking for a Site a Little Further Out — Present Sites Offered Too Expensive.

Herald Jan 16 1902

Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce believes that the prospects of securing the new army post for Rochester are very good and he is working hard to secure it. Most of the sites which have been offered are altogether too expensive, and if these were the only ones that could be offered in the Government there would be very little possibility of bringing the army post here; but Mr. Ives has been looking at land a little further from the city and has several good locations in view.

It is argued that Rochester is one of the most desirable places in the country for an army post. The invigorating breezes from the lake and many other advantages for an army post are pointed out.

TICKETS FOR THE DINNER.

Mr. Stahlbrodt Returns With Tickets for Society of Genesee Banquet.

Herald Jan 16 1902

Edward H. Stahlbrodt returned from New York City yesterday with a number of tickets for the annual banquet of the Society of the Genesee, which is to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria on February 8.

The committee in charge of the dinner has secured a rate of one fare and a third for the return trip for those intending to go to New York. Tickets for the dinner can be obtained from Mr. Stahlbrodt or from Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce. They will also be glad to give information regarding the railroad arrangements.

PRINCE HENRY'S VISIT.

Efforts Being Made to Get Him to Come to Rochester.

Rochester is making energetic efforts to get Prince Henry to visit in Rochester. The Chamber of Commerce is working on the matter and believes that, through the two wires already out, success may crown their efforts.

Prince Henry, as is well known, is coming to this country to attend the launching of Emperor William's yacht, the Alice. This is to take place on February 24th. The itinerary of the prince is in the hands of Secretary Hay and Dr. Von Holleben, the German ambassador at Washington. It is said that the prince is to visit Niagara Falls, St. Louis and Cincinnati. If he visits the falls, Rochester will be on his route.

Hon. David J. Hill, assistant secretary of state, has been appointed special representative of the president and also chairman of the reception committee. Dr. Hill is a former president of the Rochester University. He has been requested to try to influence the prince to pay this city a visit. Congressman Perkins has also been written to and has promised to do all he can. Said Secretary Ives yesterday:

"Rochester is a typical German-American city, and if Prince Henry will pay us a visit we will give him such a day as has never been seen here. Through the efforts of Dr. Hill and Congressman Perkins we believe we have a very good chance of entertaining the prince."

Society of the Genesee.

Edward A. Stahlbrodt, chairman of the Rochester committee in charge of arrangements for the annual banquet of the Society of the Genesee, returned yesterday morning from New York, bringing with him tickets for the annual event. These are now on sale with Mr. Stahlbrodt and Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce. The banquet is to be given at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York city on the night of February 8th. A special rate of a fare and a third has been secured on all railroads, provided 100 persons go from Rochester. The rate will prevail from the 6th to the 11th.

"HOW THE OTHER HALF LIVES."

Herald Jan 20 02

Interesting Lecture by Dr. Goler at the Chamber of Commerce To-night.

Dr. George W. Goler, Health Officer of Rochester, will deliver his lecture, "How the Other Half Lives," before the members of the Chamber of Commerce this evening. The members are permitted to bring their families.

Dr. Goler recently delivered this lecture before the Men's Guild of Plymouth Church for the first time. It is profusely illustrated, the stereopticon pictures being from photographs taken by Dr. Goler of scenes in Rochester in the poorer quarters.

The lecture is one of intense interest and the scenes portrayed will prove a distinct surprise to men who have been lifelong residents of the city, but who have never known how the other half lives.

DR. GODELL'S PLAN.

Chamber of Commerce Trustees to Meet to Consider It.

A special meeting of the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce will be held this afternoon at 4.30 o'clock, to consider Governor Odell's recommendation to abolish the boards of managers of state charitable institutions and hospitals for the insane and vesting their present powers in a state official appointed for the purpose.

The suggestion of the change is made in the governor's annual message. It has met with the opposition of the boards of managers of the Rochester State Hospital, the State Asylum for Feeble-Minded Women at Newark and the Soldiers' colony for epileptics. It is expected that the meeting this afternoon will be largely attended, as the matter to come before the trustees is considered important.

SLUMS OF ROCHESTER.

Dr. Goler Lectured Last Night Before Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. George W. Goler delivered his illustrated lecture, "How the Other Half Lives," last night before the Chamber of Commerce. The lecture hall was nearly filled with the members of the chamber and their families. Dr. Goler again advocated cheaper fare and better trolley service, that the poor might live in the suburbs instead of in tenement houses with dark bedrooms and no play grounds for the children. He said that to better conditions it would be necessary to enact new city ordinances, live up to those already on the books, vote a little more money for the cleaning of the streets and awaken a general interest among the people.

The large audience was very attentive, taking note of the explanations of the charts showing the death rates and a clearer view of the lives of the poor was gained by many through the lecture. A vote of thanks was given to Dr. Goler by the members of the chamber.

THE MURDER REWARD.

Chamber of Commerce Wants It Increased and is Willing to Look After Subscriptions for Its Enlargement.

William F. Balkam, H.B. Hathaway and H. F. Atwood, a committee appointed at an informal meeting of the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon for the purpose of urging Mayor Rodenbeck to increase the reward already offered for the arrest of the murderer of Jeweler Brown, called at the Mayor's office this afternoon and were closeted with the Mayor for some time.

The Mayor, in offering the reward that he has, $500, has made himself personally liable for that amount should the murderers be captured.

The committee urged that if necessary a special meeting of the Common Council be called to authorize the offering of a reward. The mayor said he did not think the council had any more authority than he did in the matter. He said he would consult the corporation counsel on the subject. The committee said that if it was found that the council did not have the power the Chamber of Commerce would take up the matter of raising subscriptions for a reward. Democrat & Chron 1/20/02.

JANUARY. 22, 1902. Dem & C.

OPPOSITION TO ODELL'S PLAN

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ON RECORD IN MATTER.

BOARDS OF MANAGERS

PROPOSITION TO ABOLISH THEM DECLARED UNWISE.

BUSINESS FIRMS SPEAK

Several Large Rochester Companies, Acting Independently, Notify the Governor That They Are Opposed to His Plan to Change the Form of Management of State Institutions.

Governor Odell's recommendation to abolish the boards of managers of state hospitals and state charitable institutions is meeting with a good deal of opposition. A few days ago the board of managers of the Rochester State Hospital declared itself against the proposed move, and now the Chamber of Commerce comes out in favor of the present method of managing the affairs of the institutions. Yesterday several prominent business houses, acting independently, protested against the passage of any such measure as was advocated in the governor's message. The State Charities Aid Association has prepared a statement of its view of the situation and has sent copies of the statement to persons interested in the matter.

A special meeting of the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday afternoon. It was announced at the end of the closed session that there had been a large attendance and that great enthusiasm had been manifested. In the absence of President Spencer, Daniel B. Murphy presided. The members of the board were averse to such a change as the governor recommends and the preamble and resolutions adopted by the board, as voicing the sentiment of the chamber, were unanimously adopted.

The resolutions adopted by the board of trustees follow:

The Chamber of Commerce of the city of Rochester desires to express its disapproval of the policy recommended by Governor Odell in his annual message to the legislature (1) of the abolishment of boards of managers of state hospitals of the insane and the increase of the powers of the state commission in lunacy; (2) of the abolishment of the boards of managers of charitable institutions generally, and the appointment in place of them of the central superintendent located at Albany.

For years there has grown up in this state a splendid system of public charities which has commanded the respect and admiration of all the states of the Union, and which has been spoken of recently by the highest judicial authority in this state as a source of honest pride on the part of its citizens.

This high state of excellence is largely the result of the counsel, advice and watchful care of the high type of men and women who have served on the boards of managers of the different institutions, and who have given their time and their experience in correcting and perfecting the details of management and developing the natural growth and tendency of these institutions. To abolish boards of managers and to attempt to concentrate their duties and powers in the hands of one man is, in our opinion, a distinct step backward and would have a tendency to degrade the great state of New York from the proud position which it has held so many years as the leader in all humane and charitable movements for the uplifting of mankind.

While we agree that the decreasing of the per capita cost of the maintenance of inmates of these institutions is a commendable and proper end to seek, we feel that this can be better accomplished by the co-operation of the intelligence, ability and willingness of the boards of managers of the several institutions rather than by centralizing the power and control of these institutions at Albany. The boards of managers themselves are of no expense to the state as they serve without compensation in exactly the same manner that the boards of managers of local private and semi-public charitable institutions serve, and their services, in our opinion, are just as efficient and just as necessary.

We believe, moreover, that the boards of managers of the state charitable institutions and state hospitals for the insane bring into these institutions, with their influence, the necessary knowledge of general affairs that prevent them from becoming provincial and backward in their development. The contrast to-day between the states prisons of the state of New York, with their central management by a single individual, and the reformatories of the state, under the management of boards of managers, leaves no doubt of the truth that the latter develop the humanitarian growth of the institutions, while the former stunts and neuralizes it; therefore,

Resolved, That the trustees of the Chamber of Commerce of the city of Rochester hereby register their disapproval of the proposed legislation recommended in the governor's message and now comprehended in certain bills introduced in the senate and assembly of the state, and that we co-operate with the State Charities Aid Society, the State Board of Charities and other organizations looking toward united opposition to the passage of this legislation; and that we call upon the representatives of the county of Monroe in the senate and assembly of the state to oppose this legislation by their votes and voices.

Resolved, further, That copies of these resolutions be sent to the senators and members of assembly of Monroe county, to the governor and to the secretary of the State Board of Charities.

Copies of the foregoing will be sent to Governor Odell and to the Monroe county representatives in the senate and the assembly. Below is a copy of the telegram sent out by Rochester business firms:

January 21, 1902.

Hon. Benjamin B. Odell, Jr., Executive Mansion, Albany, N. Y.:

We respectfully but earnestly protest against the passage of any measure by our legislature that contemplates the abolition of boards of managers of our state hospitals and state charitable institutions.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Company.
E. A. Brownell.
Ellwanger & Barry.
Stein-Bloch Company.
Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Company.
Burke, Fitzsimons, Hone & Company.

Similar telegrams will be sent to Monroe county representatives and to the leaders in the assembly and senate.

The State Charities Aid Association numbers among its list of officers and managers, Professor George F. Canfield, president; Hon. Charles S. Fairchild, Hon. Joseph H. Choate, Hon. Carl Schurz, Mrs. William B. Rice, Mrs. Henry Oothout and many others equally well known.

The statement published by the association says, among other things:

"The governor's plan to substitute for the board of managers a visiting committee for each district, to be appointed by the governor annually and report to him, does not seem to us a wise provision. The work of such visiting committees appointed annually, each visiting several large institutions, and vested with no authority, could not possibly replace the separate boards of managers for each institution, gaining knowledge and experience by a long service. It is the opinion of the association that the present system is the right one; that board of managers for all state hospitals and for all state institutions are of great value in fact are indispensable We think that better results are to be obtained from the present system of a separate board of managers for each institution, and from the consequent diversity of methods and experiments, than from too much centralization.

"The board of managers of the state institutions composed of prominent men and women, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate, and serving without compensation, represents an intelligent, faithful and disinterested devotion to the needs of the inmates. No doubt there are differences in the efficiency of the different boards, and of different members of the same board, but these differences can only be diminished by continuously better appointments. There is no class of institutions in which the boards of managers are more free from the influences of partisan politics, and in which a higher class of men and women are freely giving their service for the benefit of the state.

"Such a board can accumulate a special fund of experience and wisdom which is greater than that of any average man. It becomes the experience and wisdom of the board. With a slowly changing body no one state administration can appoint a majority of its members, and it ought not to be difficult to maintain the practice which has often been followed of reappointing the more capable and experienced mem-

Books of Rochester.

Thanks for the books recently issued by the Chamber of Commerce have been received by Secretary Ives from General Elwell S. Otis, of Chicago, commanding the department of the lakes, and from Colonel C. B. Dougherty, of the Ninth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania. It will be remembered that the Ninth Regiment was in Rochester on Otis day, June 15, 1900. Dem & C. Jan 23/02

Sargent May Come.

Frank P. Sargent, Grand Master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, has replied to Secretary Ives's invitation to address the Chamber of Commerce on "Arbitration," that he will speak here on the night of February 10th if his other engagements will permit of his coming. He is to attend the twenty-first anniversary exercises of the Rochester branch of the order on February 11th.

More Army Post Sites.

Several more offers of sites for the army post have been received by Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, and have been placed on file. Mr. Ives says that any persons having suitable land for sale will receive consideration if they inform him of the particulars. Congressman Perkins has been written to again and asked to give an estimate of the number of acres required. An answer to this has not as yet been received. The last two sites are on Irondequoit bay and Windsor Beach.

Dem & C. Jan 23, 1902.

AGITATION FOR CHEAPER WATER

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO CALL PUBLIC MEETING.

PROTEST BY CONSUMERS

BUFFALO PAYS 3 CENTS TO ROCHESTER'S 14 PER 1,000 GALLONS.

BREWERIES INTERESTED

Chamber of Commerce to Make a Determined Effort to Secure Lower Rate for Manufacturers Who Use Large Quantities of Water—Subject Discussed at Committee Meeting.

The question of water rates that the city charges manufacturers is again to be agitated by the Chamber of Commerce, with the hope that there may be a reduction. The manufacturers, through the chamber, claim that they are paying too high a rate for Hemlock water—a higher rate than is charged in other cities and more than is necessary. With renewed activity the chamber is to make a fight on the question.

A public meeting will soon be held by the chamber and there will be addresses on the question. Municipal officials in the persons of Commissioner of Public Works McClintock and City Engineer Fisher will speak in answer to several manufacturers and business men. A. T. Hagen will speak for the laundrymen and H. B. Hathaway in behalf of the brewers. Others will also appeal for cheaper water.

This decision was reached yesterday afternoon at a joint meeting of the railroad and transportation and the manufacturers and promotion of trade committees of the Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was largely attended and great interest was manifested by the members of the two committees. The session was a long one, lasting from 4 o'clock until nearly 6.

This is not a new question. It has been taken up at various times by the manufacturers during the past several years. Hemlock water is quite extensively used in certain lines, such as breweries and the laundry business, in both of which Rochester has large interests. The water is not used for power purposes. The local manufacturers pay at the rate of 14 cents a 1,000 gallons for water. This is said to be much higher than the charges in most cities, the average, one of the manufacturers said yesterday, being, he believed, about 10 cents a thousand. But there are several cities, notably Buffalo, that charge the manufacturers much less. The rate in Buffalo is only 3 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Because of the high price of water in this city, one large consumer, the New York Central railroad, has installed a plant outside the city, at Coldwater, and the brewers are using filtered river water to a great extent, taking as little of the Hemlock as they can get along with. The payment of a high rate of interest on waterworks bonds is given as a reason for the high rate for Hemlock water.

Chairman Charles P. Ford, of the chamber's committee on manufacturers and promotion of trade, is to appoint a sub-committee of three to take special charge of the agitation. This committee will also take up the matter of obtaining lists of available sites and the general advancement of business in the city. The committee as a whole is considered too large an unwieldy to accomplish the best results, but the sub-committee will meet often and confer with the whole committee

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Said a local manufacturer who is a large user of Hemlock water:

"The rates for Hemlock water are altogether too high, we believe. Some time ago we investigated the matter and got rates from other cities. I believe that the average rate per 1,000 gallons was found to be about 10 cents. Some cities charge as low as 3 cents. Buffalo and a Western city, I believe, were the lowest.

"At one time the local rate for large users who took over a certain amount, was 8 cents per 1,000 gallons; 6 or 7 cents was the next rate in the scale, while those who used but a small quantity were charged 14 cents. Seven or eight years ago the rate that had been given the large users was cut off and now we all have to pay 14 cents a 1,000 gallons.

"The situation is this: The brewers are using river water and filters to as great an extent as is possible and are using just as little Hemlock as they can. The New York Central formerly paid into the city treasury several thousands of dollars a year for water, but has now installed a plant at Coldwater for supplying its locomotives."

Among the matters considered by the railroad and transportation committee was that of stop-over privileges, especially from the West. It is believed that the present conditions can be bettered. It is the desire of the committee that those having freight grievances correspond with Secretary Ives. The committee wants facts and the local railroad men have said that they will gladly consider any just claims against the roads. Chairman John N. Beckley will appoint a sub-committee of three to investigate the stop-over privilege.

The railroads state that often people write that they have shipped so and so and do not immediately send the bill of lading. They ask that the bill be sent as early as the information that the goods have been shipped.

ADDRESS

—OF—

HON. HENRY C. BREWSTER,

ON ACCEPTING (FOR THE SECOND TIME) THE OFFICE OF PRESIDENT OF THE ROCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

DELIVERED AT THE INAUGURAL MEETING OF THE CORPORATION FOR THE YEAR, MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 6, 1902.

"We are commencing a new year, and I trust, with united effort, we may be able to assist in the further growth and happiness of our beautiful city. Your secretary, in a previous meeting, told you what progress had been made during the past year; now, what should and can be done in the year to come? For one thing, we can watch public affairs and assist our new city government in its laudable determination to reduce public expenditures and get value received for every dollar of the taxpayers' money. We can look over the state of New York at this time and rejoice at this growing effort to bring about economy and an adequate return for money put into public improvements.

"This is a day of great corporations, and such corporations are a public benefit when confined to their proper duties and not permitted to overrun the rights of the people. We have such corporations in our city; let us assist and encourage them to give the public improved service. The best to be had in any city is none too good for us, and we should be willing to pay a reasonable price for such service—the best service can not be had at a stingy price.

2

"But, also, we must see that they do not attempt to deprive us of our just rights and privileges. They must not destroy our highways, nor render them unsafe, and if healthy competition is offered, which promises to give us better service at a reduced rate, we must see that our public servants procure for us such advantages.

"The men who first settled in this region wisely chose for the site of this city, not the shore of Lake Ontario, as one would at first think most advantageous, but the region above the upper falls—in other words, the water power of the Genesee river made Rochester what it is, and can continue to promote its growth, if wisely improved and distributed where it will give the greatest good to the greatest number. Let us then insist that this great privilege shall be used to promote our further growth in population and prosperity, that this city may be in fact what it is sometimes called, the Power City of America. If this is ever to be an actual reality, we must secure lower rates for the use of such power, and more of it.

"This subject of additional water power for Rochester is one that has been prominent in the thoughts and efforts of this Chamber from its first start; do not permit your interest in the subject to die down. The project has taken a somewhat different aspect, and for that reason, if for no other, it requires your earnest thought and watchful care.

3

"One thing which this Chamber has done for Rochester is now so much a matter of course that the Chamber gets little credit for it; that is the habit of getting together. Rochester is far ahead of other cities in this respect. I trust that during this year the members of this body will set aside the time for our monthly meetings and be on hand at each and every one prepared to take an active part in the proceedings; suggestions from members as to subjects to be considered and discussed will be appreciated by the officers.

"I believe our bountiful supply of Hemlock water—the best in the world—might be utilized to give greater benefit to the business interest of our city, and I suggest the subject for your early attention and investigation.

"A proper building should be provided, either by a private corporation or by the city, for the use of those persons engaged in supplying our people with farm products that the business might be carried on at all seasons of the year and in all kinds of weather, under cover, properly protected from the elements. As it is at present, the wagons obstruct certain streets of our city nearly all night and a part of the day, to the great annoyance of those residing in that vicinity or having occasion to go through those streets during those hours and it is detrimental to the health and comfort of citizens.

4

"I believe if an opportunity were given by the city officials, a corporation could be organized to provide facilities for this business, and, as a result, an increased business would be built up, providing better shipping advantages for such produce and fruits as could not be consumed at home.

"Rochester, from its location and beautiful situation is a very desirable place for holding conventions, but no proper building has as yet been provided. The village of Saratoga, N. Y., is far ahead of us in this respect. We have a special committee in charge of this subject, and I trust before the year is out we shall have from it a report promising a remedy in the near future.

"Time does not permit me now to refer to many things coming before your board of trustees and standing committees, but from long service on those committees I know that this Chamber has, and is, contributing in a very large degree to the business prosperity and happiness of our members and fellow citizens, and if each one of you would contribute a small portion of your time and thoughts you could largely assist in increasing these efforts and benefits."

PRINCE HENRY WILL COME

Emperor William's Brother Will Stop in Rochester Upon the Occasion of His Visit to the United States---Reception to Be Arranged.

Herald Jany 24 1902

Prince Henry of Prussia will visit Rochester during his stay in America. This fact was definitely announced yesterday by the commission appointed by President Roosevelt to receive and entertain the Prince when he visits the United States for the purpose of witnessing the launching of the new imperial yacht that has been built for his brother, Emperor William, of Germany.

As soon as it became known that the Prince would go to Niagara Falls, Secretary Ives of the Chamber of Commerce at once set on foot a plan to have the Prince stop in Rochester, either on the way to the Falls or on the return journey. There was a strong probability from the first that the plan would succeed, as one of the members of the commission appointed by the President was Assistant Secretary of State David Jayne Hill, formerly president of the University of Rochester. Secretary Ives at once communicated with Secretary Hill, pointing out that Rochester was essentially a German-American city and that no doubt Prince Henry would be very willing to visit a town where there were so many of his countrymen.

The Chamber of Commerce will at once take steps for the proper reception of the royal visitor to the city. It is expected that the chamber will work in conjunction with the city authorities and the German-American societies to make the Prince's visit a memorable event.

The following special dispatch was received last night from Washington:

"Washington, Jan. 22.—Assistant Secretary of State Hill, General Corbin and Rear Admiral Evans, composing the commission appointed by President Roosevelt to arrange for the reception and entertainment of Prince Henry of Prussia, held a conference to-day with Mr. Holleben, the German ambassador, and Count Quadt of the German embassy, to arrange further details of the Prince's visit. The commission was assured by the ambassador that Prince Henry would approve its plans.

"It was arranged at the conference that the Prince should not travel on any of the three Sundays he will spend in the United States. On Sunday, February 23, and Sunday, March 9, he will be in New York, visiting Grant's tomb and giving a dinner in honor of the New York German societies on the last named date. The second Sunday of his visit, March 2, will be spent at Chattanooga, Tenn., and this will give the Prince an opportunity of viewing the Chickamauga National Park, over which he will be taken in a carriage.

"The Prince will leave New York at about midnight on Sunday, February 23, for Washington, where he will spend Monday in receiving and exchanging official courtesies, and on Monday night will return to New York for the launching of the Kaiser's yacht. Then he will return to Washington and will probably leave here on Friday, February 28, for Cincinnati and Chattanooga. From Chattanooga he will go to St. Louis, probably by way of Indianapolis, where he is to spend an hour; from St. Louis to Milwaukee and Chicago, thence to Buffalo and Niagara Falls and Rochester. Whether he will go from Rochester to New York before visiting Boston and Harvard University has not been announced."

"While in the United States Prince Henry will not follow the American custom of shaking hands with the people who come to see him. He will be on public view in all the cities which he will visit, but it has been decided by the commission in charge of the arrangements that the people who attend the demonstrations in the Prince's honor shall merely pass in review, as it were, and not expect a handclasp from the royal visitor. Ample arrangements have been made for protecting the Prince from annoyance, and the committee will endeavor to make his stay in this country as restful as is possible with the great amount of traveling he will do."

CHEAPER WATER RATES.

Chamber of Commerce Has Begun an Agitation for Lower Rates.

The Chamber of Commerce is agitating in favor of a reduction in water rates for manufacturers. Large consumers complain they are paying too much for water, compared with the cost in other cities. It is planned to hold a public meeting soon at the Chamber of Commerce when the question can be thoroughly discussed. Commissioner McClintock and City Engineer Fisher will present the city's side of the case, while A. T. Hagen will speak for the laundrymen, H. R. Hathaway for the brewers and others for various branches of business.

It is claimed that one large consumer, the New York Central, has established a plant at Coldwater outside the city, on account of the high water rates here, and that the brewers are using as little Hemlock water as possible. The charges now are 14 cents per thousand gallons here, while the average of the cities throughout the country is only ten cents.

It is said that Buffalo only charges three cents. At one time there was a large reduction made to the big users of Hemlock water, but this discrimination has been done away with.

One reason for the high rate is the fact that the waterworks bonds, aggregating $6,000,000 are paying 7 per cent. interest. Half these bonds will be refunded next year and then it may be possible to reduce the cost of supplying water to consumers. Herald Jany 24 1902

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Post Express
Jan 24/02

PLENTY OF OFFERS

SECRETARY IVES IS DELUGED WITH ARMY POST SITES.

Irondequoit Market Gardeners Are Anxious to Help Out Uncle Sam, for a Consideration — Four Advantageous Sites Thus Far Presented.

He cautiously opened the door of the Chamber of Commerce office this morning and walked hesitatingly a few feet into Secretary Ives's private room where he stood for a moment nervously fumbling his hat and looking anxiously at the several occupants of the room. His clothes were of clumsy make but of good material and the face above the upturned coat collar was weather beaten, shrewd and determined.

"I'm lookin' fer Mister Ives," he said at length, edging doubtfully towards the beniganat-looking gentleman with sparse hair who sat at the big desk.

"I'm Mr. Ives," reassuringly responded the H. L. G., "What can I do for you?"

The rustic caller heaved a breath of relief and planked himself down in a chair by Mr. Ives's desk, after carefully depositing his hat on the floor. All traces of irresolution had vanished from his face as he crossed his legs cumbrously and with affected unconcern replied:

"I see by th' papers, that the gyvmint is thinkin' of puttin' an armory here and that th' Chamber of Commerce is lookin' fer a good site."

"Yes," quoth Mr. Ives. "The war department is considering the establishment of a new regular army post somewhere in New York state, and Rochester wants to get it. I presume that's what you have reference to?"

"Exactly," responded the old man. "Wall," he continued impressively, as he shifted legs and crossed his knotted hands over his knee. "I've got one of th' finest pieces of land in th' city er I do say so myself. Ustter lay in Irondequoit, but after I bought it, wuz taken inside th' city. It's jes' the place fer an armery, I calk'late; good high groun', plenty of water an' a lettle timber—not too much, mighty handy place, too, fer to—

"What's the size of it?" interrupted Mr. Ives.

"Oh, that's all right; its plenty big enough, I guess. 'Bout twenty-five er thirty acres," and the old man squinted up his left eye meditatively towards the ceiling.

"I hardly think that such a piece of land is large enough," said Mr. Ives, "and besides, you know, the war department prefers to locate its army posts on water front wherever possible."

The old man's face dropped a little, but he stuck doggedly to his own and apparently quite over looked the remark about water frontage.

"Wal, I admit my property 'ain't quite as large as it might be," he persisted, "but I daresay when the guv'munt got around to it 'twuds be found plenty big 'nuff 'nd besides, ez I wuz sayin', they ain't a better piece uv lan' in—

"What do you ask for it?" again interrupted Mr. Ives.

The shrewd expression on the old man's features deepened and his eyes glanced warily at his questioner, but his voice and manner were delightfully nonchalant.

"Oh, I don't know," he replied. "'Tsround be very steep. I'll do th' square thing by th' guv'mint an' my duty by th' city. Can't say now jis' how much I would ask."

"Well, you leave your name and address with me," said Mr. Ives, "and I'll keep your offer in mind."

"You'll do what ye can fer me, will ye?" anxiously inquired the old man as he began buttoning up his coat and started for the door.

"Yes, I'll remember you," was the ambiguous assurance.

"Jes' remember it's one of th' finest pieces uv lan' in"—

"Going down?" impatiently shouted the elevator conductor in the hall.

The door slammed and the old man was gone.

"Lots of those chaps coming up here nowadays," commented Mr. Ives. Most of them well-to-do market gardeners out Irondequoit way who are anxious to sell out their farms at a big profit can't get 'em to tell you what they want for their places, though, for fear the 'guvmint' will bet the best of them, but when it comes down to brass tacks you'll find that they consider their land worth all the way from $300 to $500 an acre."

Secretary Ives, for the chamber, has received fuor good offers, however, for sites for the army post. All of them are on the lake front and all are quite reasonable as to price. The Manitou beach property is perhaps the most agreeable location. It is offered to the chamber with its buildings, for $50,000.

Democrat and Chronicle.
Jan 28 1902

NO ARMY POST TO BE ESTABLISHED AT ONCE

Nothing Tangible in Regard to Matter, Says Mr. Perkins.

ROCHESTER'S CHANCES

Assistant Secretary of War Tells Congressman to Send on Descriptions of Sites—No Certainty as to Establishment of More Posts.

Congressman James B. Perkins, who returned home yesterday morning from Washington, says that the establishment of an army post in or near the city or at any other place is a long way off. While the project is a subject of considerable talk it has only been discussed by army authorities and there is nothing tangible regarding it at present. Said Congressman Perkins yesterday afternoon:

"I called upon William C. Sanger, assistant secretary of war, and asked him what was the prospect of Rochester's getting a post. He told me that so far as he knew there was no decision as to whether such posts as have been mentioned would be established at all. The matter had merely been spoken of, not advanced so far as to be settled. The whole matter is yet in the air.

"Colonel Sanger introduced me to several officers and on every hand it was said that there was nothing definite in the matter. Secretary Sanger said that if we had a good site for a post we might send down the particulars, so that in case a decision to establish additional posts was reached, Rochester's offer would be on file for consideration. He spoke in such a manner that I believe he told me all he knew about the matter.

"All there is to the matter at present is that an army board is considering the question of establishing more posts. Nothing was said regarding location. No, nothing was to be inferred as to the amount of land that would be required for a site. I do not believe they know that. They are merely considering the advisability of establishing more posts. Whether that move is to be made is not decided. In the description of a site, Secretary Sanger desires facts regarding the surroundings, the advantages, conveniences, the healthfulness of the place, price, etc.

"No, I guess the government would not expect anything from the city. When it gets ready to establish the posts it will not go around with a subscription paper. Of course, the question of price will have its influence and if the price asked is believed to be too high that will probably shut off a deal so far as the particular spot is concerned. There are so many sites to pick from that all conditions must be favorable.

"At present there is no one to appear before with a request that a post be established here. The matter has not yet reached that point. I met General Gillespie, chairman of the board of engineers, and am to have another interview with him to ask more fully about the matter. I believe that within a few months the city will have reached such a stage that we can lay our claims before the proper persons and hope to make a favorable impression with the admirable sites we have to offer. But there will be no army post established in Rochester or anywhere else in these months, nor in all

---

Democrat and Chronicle.
Jan 28 1902

MUST GET PERMIT

Special Legislative Act Required To Refund Bonds.

A $3,000,000 BOND ISSUE

Big Batch of 7 Per Cent. Water Bonds Falls Due January 1, 1903, and the Comptroller Will Call Attention of Council To-night to Necessity of Enabling Act This Year.

Comptroller Johnston will call the attention of the council to-night to one point, connected with the refunding of the water bonds next year that had been overlooked. According to an opinion given by Corporation Counsel Sutherland yesterday in request for information by Comptroller Johnston, the city cannot issue the new bonds to take up the old water bonds, without securing a legislative permit.

These bonds, aggregating $3,182,000, will fall due January 1, 1902, and the city must have the cash on hand on that day to pay every dollar of the bonds. These bonds are now bearing 7 per cent. and the expectation is they can be refunded at 3 1-2 per cent. interest. The Comptroller's idea is to start in from the general sinking fund the sum of $182,000 at the end of the year, thus refunding the bond issue at the even amount of three millions.

The next Legislature will not convene, of course, until after January 1, 1903, and whatever permission is required to authorize a three million dollar bond issue next December must be secured from the present Legislature.

In the communication which the Comptroller will send to the council to-night he will call attention to the fact that he has secured an opinion from the Corporation Counsel to the effect that legislative action is needed to authorize the refunding of the water bonds and asking that the council take immediate steps to secure the necessary legislation at Albany.

If the necessity for legislative permission had been overlooked until later in the year, the city would have been left in an awkward predicament, as there could be no delay in the payment of the bonds when they fell due on the first day of next year. The only alternative would have been to raise the money on city notes until the new bond issue could have been authorized. While the selling of city notes to the extent of $3,000,000 might not be specially difficult, it would be a very unusual proceeding to let a large bond issue mature without provision being made for its payment in any other way than to make a temporary loan for the amount. There might have been trouble about negotiating such a large note sale in December next without paying a high interest rate.

The refunding of these water bonds will make an appreciable difference in the tax levy of next year, as the saving in interest will be nearly $20,000 annually. These water bonds at 7 per cent. interest have been a heavy drain for many years on the city, and the saving in interest charges will be appreciable.

The Genesee Railroad bonds will also fall due on the first day of next year, bearing 7 per cent. interest. There will then remain only one bond issue bearing 7 per cent.; a water bond issue for $410,000 due three years hence. All the other bonds of the city bear interest not in

---

Union and Advertiser
Jan 28 1902

GOV. ODELL'S BAD BILL.

Daniel B. Murphy on the Proposed Abolition of Local Boards of Managers for State Institutions.

Daniel B. Murphy of this city, who, with a number of other prominent gentlemen from various parts of the state, recently visited Albany to confer with senators concerning the bill favored by Gov. Odell, which will do away with local boards of managers for state institutions and place their management in the hands of a few state officers with headquarters at Albany, thus creating a new and powerful political machine for the furtherance of the ambition of Mr. Odell, in the course of an interview on the measure said today:

"I do not think it is necessary to offer any apology for the part I have taken in opposing the radical and dangerous changes contemplated in the Governor's message, relative to the abolishment of boards of managers in state institutions. Whatever I have endeavored to accomplish has been prompted solely in the cause of afflicted humanity.

"The present system of management of our state institution is the outgrowth of at least one hundred years' experience; it is true that it is not perfect—no human organization can well be—but it is the ambition of every board of managers to bring the administration of its institution to the highest state of human perfection. The Governor's proposed plan, in my judgment, is not only not feasible, but indefensible. Take, for instance, the appointment of any new method on any board as at present constituted, and it will take him at least one year to become fairly familiar with the details of that particular institution. How is it possible, then, for a one-headed commission, located at Albany, to acquire a familiarity worthy of the name with the widely scattered eleven state hospitals, or its fourteen charitable institutions? The proposed visits by paid servants will necessarily be perfunctory and valueless.

"The deplorable condition of our state charitable institutions under the proposed system would be still more marked, for the reason that they are so diversified in character, for example, the Asylum for the Blind at Batavia, the House of Refuge at Albion for erring women, the State Industrial School at Rochester for wayward boys and girls, Craig Co ony at Sonyea, where are to be found the unfortunate epileptics of every grade, from the university graduate to the unteachable child; the Custodial Asylum at Newark for feeble-minded women, another at Syracuse for feeble-minded children, at Rome another state institution for unteachable idiots, and so on along down the list of charitable institutions. How is it possible for a single commissioner, seated in authority at Albany, to come in touch with the wants and sympathies of these wards of the state? It is impossible. Such efficiency was never vouchsafed to human kin."

"If you desire to see the pernicious results of the one-man power at Albany, look at our state prisons that are under such a commission. These state prisons are a disgrace to the state, and are nearly a century behind the times. In comparison, take the correctional and industrial schools of the state, that are now controlled by local boards, and what is the result? In order to learn what wonderful improvements have been made in the management of these institutions during the past twenty years, it is only necessary to point to the State Industrial School in this city. The one-man power can now stand favorable comparison with a strong board of managers. There is no head, political or otherwise, that can contain more knowledge or information than a majority of such heads.

"There is no large organization in this country, whether it be industrial, commercial or financial, but has its board of managers; they serve, as it were, as so many balance wheels for these institutions. Take for example our banking industry. There is not a bank in this country, regardless of its financial strength, that could retain the confidence of the public were it to legislate out of office its board of managers, and impose by that act all authority in the hands of its president. Such a bank would be discredited from the start, and it does not require the gift of prophecy to foretell the outcome of such a suicidal experiment.

"This is substantially true of our state institutions. There are confined therein 20,000 unfortunate wards of the state, who are unable to plead their own cause, but depend on those who have more interest in humanity than in politics to safeguard their rights and privileges. Any politician who would be so venal as to attempt to play upon the infirmities of the inmates in order to secure, gaining and

---

Union and Advertiser
Jan 28 1902

GOV. ODELL'S BAD BILL.

Daniel B. Murphy on the Proposed Abolition of Local Boards of Managers for State Institutions.

Daniel B. Murphy of this city, who, with a number of other prominent gentlemen from various parts of the state, recently visited Albany to confer with senators concerning the bill favored by Gov. Odell, which will do away with local boards of managers for state institutions and place their management in the hands of a few state officers with headquarters at Albany, thus creating a new and powerful political machine for the furtherance of the ambition of Mr. Odell, in the course of an interview on the measure said today:

"I do not think it is necessary to offer any apology for the part I have taken, in opposing the radical and dangerous changes contemplated in the Governor's message, relative to the abolishment of boards of managers in state institutions. Whatever I have endeavored to accomplish has been prompted solely in the cause of afflicted humanity.

"The present system of management of our state institution is the outgrowth of at least one hundred years' experience; it is true that it is not perfect—no human organization can well be—but it is the ambition of every board of managers to bring the administration of its institution to the highest state of human perfection. The Governor's proposed plan, in my judgment, is not only not feasible, but indefensible. Take, for instance, the appointment of any new method on any board as at present constituted, and it will take him at least one year to become fairly familiar with the details of that particular institution. How is it possible, then, for a one-headed commission, located at Albany, to acquire a familiarity worthy of the name with the widely scattered eleven state hospitals, or its fourteen charitable institutions? The proposed visits by paid servants will necessarily be perfunctory and valueless.

"The deplorable condition of our state charitable institutions under the proposed system would be still more marked, for the reason that they are so diversified in character, for example, the Asylum for the Blind at Batavia, the House of Refuge at Albion for erring women, the State Industrial School at Rochester for wayward boys and girls, Craig Co ony at Sonyea, where are to be found the unfortunate epileptics of every grade, from the university graduate to the unteachable child; the Custodial Asylum at Newark for feeble-minded women, another at Syracuse for feeble-minded children, at Rome another state institution for unteachable idiots, and so on along down the list of charitable institutions. How is it possible for a single commissioner, seated in authority at Albany, to come in touch with the wants and sympathies of these wards of the state? It is impossible. Such efficiency was never vouchsafed to human kin."

"If you desire to see the pernicious results of the one-man power at Albany, look at our state prisons that are under such a commission. These state prisons are a disgrace to the state, and are nearly a century behind the times. In comparison, take the correctional and industrial schools of the state, that are now controlled by local boards, and what is the result? In order to learn what wonderful improvements have been made in the management of these institutions during the past twenty years, it is only necessary to point to the State Industrial School in this city. The one-man power can now stand favorable comparison with a strong board of managers. There is no head, political or otherwise, that can contain more knowledge or information than a majority of such heads.

"There is no large organization in this country, whether it be industrial, commercial or financial, but has its board of managers; they serve, as it were, as so many balance wheels for these institutions. Take for example our banking industry. There is not a bank in this country, regardless of its financial strength, that could retain the confidence of the public were it to legislate out of office its board of managers, and impose by that act all authority in the hands of its president. Such a bank would be discredited from the start, and it does not require the gift of prophecy to foretell the outcome of such a suicidal experiment.

"This is substantially true of our state institutions. There are confined therein 20,000 unfortunate wards of the state, who are unable to plead their own cause, but depend on those who have more interest in humanity than in politics to safeguard their rights and privileges. Any politician who would be so venal as to attempt to play upon the infirmities of the inmates in order to secure, gaining and

---

Herald, Tuesday.
Jan 28 1902

SOCIETY OF THE GENESEE.

Local Committee Arranging for the Annual Dinner Next Month.

The Rochester committee of arrangements for the annual dinner of the Society of the Genesee met yesterday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. It was announced that about fifty tickets had been sold here. In order to get the one and one-third railroad rate 100 tickets must be taken here, or at least this many railroad tickets must be disposed of. The committee believes that people have the impression that it is necessary to be a member of the society to procure a ticket to the banquet. Outsiders are welcome.

Those desiring to attend are invited to call on or correspond with Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, and receive the necessary information. The committee will meet within a few days of all who are going. The dinner will be given on the evening of February 8th in New York.

Post Express
Jan 29/02

The monthly meeting of the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Several matters of importance are to come before the board. The chamber has started out to make this a record breaking year and anything looking toward the interests and the growth of the city is receiving attention.

SOMETHING OF LUNACY COMMISSION REPORTS

Rev. J. W. Hendrick Notes Past and Present Trend of Thought.

QUESTIONS OF ECONOMY

Statements in Twelfth Annual Report Signed by William L. Parkhurst Touch Problems Brought Before Public by Bill Now Pending.

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

Sir: Apropos of the statement given out by the lunacy commission through the Hon. William L. Parkhurst, at Albany, on the evening of January 23d, which interview was copied in the newspapers pretty generally throughout the state, including New York city papers and others, it probably will be interesting for you to contrast with the statements relative to the economics brought about apparently by the lunacy commission, the remarks concerning alleged friction with the superintendents and boards of managers, and other matters of this kind, with the statements of the lunacy commission as a whole in its twelfth annual report, which statements as contained in this said report were signed by Mr. Parkhurst as well as by his two colleagues, Dr. F. M. Wise and the Hon. William Church Osborn, then a commissioner in lunacy. The reports of the lunacy commission can undoubtedly be found in the large-sized libraries, and probably in the newspaper offices of the large newspapers in the state, and probably it will therefore be easy for you to corroborate the facts as given in this letter.

Certain other statements have been made during the time of the discussion concerning the lunacy bill now before the legislature, relating to various features of this bill, and more particularly to the economics brought about by the commission. It would take a treatise on this subject to show and explain how matters of this kind first came to be systematically studied in the handling of large public institutions, but to allege that all of this work is the result of the effort of any one body of men, or of any one man in particular, is to go further than the facts will in any way warrant. It seems as if no one could question, with the well-known comparatively harmonious relations existing between the lunacy commission, the boards of managers and the superintendents, but that acting together it has been possible gradually to bring about the state of affairs which prevail to-day.

Without undertaking to go into the merits or demerits of the case, or to show how far one way or the other matters have progressed further than would be considered desirable, etc., I would merely add a further statement, [illegible] from the annual reports, the case [illegible]

SOCIETY OF THE GENESEE.

Local Committee Arranging for the Annual Dinner Next Month.

The Rochester committee of arrangements for the annual dinner of the Society of the Genesee met yesterday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. It was announced that about fifty tickets had been sold here. In order to get the one and one-third railroad rate 100 tickets must be taken here, or at least this many railroad tickets must be disposed of. The committee believes that people have the impression that it is necessary to be a member of the society to procure a ticket to the banquet. Outsiders are welcome.

Those desiring to attend are invited to call on or correspond with Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, and receive the necessary information. The committee will meet within a few days of all who are going. The dinner will be given on the evening of February 8th in New York.

Post Express
Jan 29/02

The monthly meeting of the board of trustees of the Chamber of Commerce will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Several matters of importance are to come before the board. The chamber has started out to make this a record breaking year and anything looking toward the interests and the growth of the city is receiving attention.

SOMETHING OF LUNACY COMMISSION REPORTS

Rev. J. W. Hendrick Notes Past and Present Trend of Thought.

QUESTIONS OF ECONOMY

Statements in Twelfth Annual Report Signed by William L. Parkhurst Touch Problems Brought Before Public by Bill Now Pending.

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

Sir: Apropos of the statement given out by the lunacy commission through the Hon. William L. Parkhurst, at Albany, on the evening of January 23d, which interview was copied in the newspapers pretty generally throughout the state, including New York city papers and others, it probably will be interesting for you to contrast with the statements relative to the economics brought about apparently by the lunacy commission, the remarks concerning alleged friction with the superintendents and boards of managers, and other matters of this kind, with the statements of the lunacy commission as a whole in its twelfth annual report, which statements as contained in this said report were signed by Mr. Parkhurst as well as by his two colleagues, Dr. F. M. Wise and the Hon. William Church Osborn, then a commissioner in lunacy. The reports of the lunacy commission can undoubtedly be found in the large-sized libraries, and probably in the newspaper offices of the large newspapers in the state, and probably it will therefore be easy for you to corroborate the facts as given in this letter.

Certain other statements have been made during the time of the discussion concerning the lunacy bill now before the legislature, relating to various features of this bill, and more particularly to the economics brought about by the commission. It would take a treatise on this subject to show and explain how matters of this kind first came to be systematically studied in the handling of large public institutions, but to allege that all of this work is the result of the effort of any one body of men, or of any one man in particular, is to go further than the facts will in any way warrant. It seems as if no one could question, with the well-known comparatively harmonious relations existing between the lunacy commission, the boards of managers and the superintendents, but that acting together it has been possible gradually to bring about the state of affairs which prevail to-day.

Without undertaking to go into the merits or demerits of the case, or to show how far one way or the other matters have progressed further than would be considered desirable, etc., I would merely add a further statement, [illegible] from the annual reports, the case [illegible] crush of thought at the present time than the present. No matter as weighty as the present one can be argued offhand in a few set words, and the bulk of the reports of the commission in lunacy go far toward showing how much careful thought has been given to the care and management of the insane by all concerned in it.

---

The comments of the press of the country seem to show that the people as a whole are better satisfied with what they call the citizen management of the insane, than the centralized control which under certain conditions would permit any very grave abuses to exist and to continue for long time before public attention could be drawn to them, and a public sentiment aroused to crush them out.

The paragraphs referred to are as follows:

TWELFTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The report of the state commission in lunacy to the legislature, 1901. Signed by all the commissioners, Mr. Parkhurst being one.

After making the statement substantially as given above, Page 5 goes on to say:

"Before examining the details of this report the general statement should be made that it has been effected by a co-operation in which each superintendent has joined heartily with the auditing staff of the commission, however rigorously he might protest on minor points. It should in fairness be stated that the supplies on hand at the close of the year do not equal the supplies with which the year started."

In the same report the commission further says:

(Page 7.) "While the commission believes that the standard has been well maintained, it must admit that economy has gone too far in some instances, notably in those supplies which are essential to the maintenance of a high sanitary condition of the hospitals. It cannot, therefore, promise further reductions, and even a slight increase may be expected. It is possible that reductions, if any, can only be effected by a classification which would more effectually separate the dietaries and similar cases requiring only a light diet and custodial care."

(Page 23.) "Salaries and Wages.—The hospital economies have gradually led to an increase of employees, either to avoid waste or to produce at a profit to the institutions. In stances might be multiplied where intelligence has been substituted for expenditure and more might be done in this direction. As an instance, the employment of a skilled man to supervise the fires of a large battery of boilers, where careless or unskilled firing would result in a great loss, saves in fuel several times more than his salary. In like manner, a skilled chef reduces food waste far in excess of his wages; and a trained gardener gains a product which is worth many times his cost. The need for a skilled medical service adds to the wage account; an item not required in the same degree by those charitable institutions except hospitals, although the per capita cost of medical service is but $11.75 per year. The large cost is as is but $11.75 per year. The large cost is as first, stated for attendants, and this cannot safely be reduced, if the present humane care of the insane is continued. It was formerly the custom to confine the insane in their rooms at night without attendance, and the result can well be imagined. This has been replaced by night attendance and supervision, with provision for meeting all the personal wants of patients at night, this insuring cleanliness and sanitation, as well as avoiding to a very large degree the distressing casualties formerly so frequent."

Excerpts from the annual reports of the state commission in lunacy.

Commissioners: Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald, Goodwin Brown, and Henry A. Reeves.

From first annual report, 1890, page 15:

"The superintendent or chief medical officer of every asylum should be clothed with the absolute power of appointment, and removal of all officers subordinate to himself. It is doubtful if the best results can be obtained under any other system. As the law now stands, boards of managers or trustees of the state asylums have the power of appointment of the superintendent. The power is also given them to appoint, on the nomination of the superintendent, all of the resident officers, so-called; that is, the assistant physicians, steward and matron; and while the superintendent may, for cause, temporarily suspend a resident officer, the right is reserved to the managers to confirm or disapprove such suspension. Instances are not wanting of discord between the superintendent and resident officer. This is not as it should be. The superintendent should be held to a strict accountability for the acts of his subordinates, but he cannot be so held unless he is possessed of the power of appointment and removal.

"The existing method tends to weaken discipline, to produce a want of harmony and to create constant friction. The superintendent is appointed on the theory that he is competent for the position. If he is competent, he should be allowed to select and remove his subordinates. If he is not competent, he should not hold the position."

(Page 25.) "More custodial care cannot be justified except upon the theory which is undoubtedly untenable, that certain classes of the insane need no medical supervision, but simply ordinary care and comfortable surroundings."

Note.—Following this is a strong argument to show that, even aside from medical care, suitable care for the chronic insane cannot be obtained in institutions organized on a basis of custodial care alone. It has the following sentence on this subject: "Certainly no one would seriously propose to establish and maintain a hospital for the treatment of any other disease than insanity, without providing for it competent medical supervision. Outside and beyond the mere question of the application by a physician of appropriate medicines for ordinary physical ills, resident medical supervision is required to insure the patients the proper regulation of a variety of other matters which closely affect their physical well-being."

For those who wish to scrutinize what is now being said about greater economies it is well to remind them that there is no true economy if at the expense of efficiency. The first annual report of the lunacy commission is full of information on this subject, and relates particularly to what has been done, and in a way to which they object, on low per capita expenditures in the almshouses, etc. The present tendency is not based on a sufficiently broad and comprehensive plan concerning the insane and those other mental defectives such as the dotards, the idiots and the imbeciles, but is rather retrograding towards the old county-house idea, even for the insane, which such a short time ago gave rise to such tremendous efforts on the part of all philanthropists in behalf of those who are both irresponsible and undefended.

THIRD ANNUAL REPORT.

Commissioners: Dr. MacDonald, Mr. Brown and Mr. Reeves.

Page 258, under the caption of "Maintenance:"

"The maintenance or support of the insane in the state hospitals—in fact, anywhere, or in any institution—is the point around which hereafore at least all other questions and interest relating to the care of the insane have revolved. Up to within a recent period, the question has been largely one of cost, and the light of humanity and of true economy has shown over the subject only in dim perspective."

"Economy of cost was the watchword, with little or no regard to the humane aspects of the subject."

EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT.

(Page 71.) "The granting of superintendents of this power of appointment and removal of subordinate officers and employes recognizes a principle for which the commission has long contended."

"Under the new law the superintendent is the chief executive officer of the hospital, and, subject to the rules and regulations established by the managers, has the general superintendence of the entire hospital and its equipment, and the direction and control of all persons therein."

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

ELEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

(Page 15.) Under the heading "Standard of Care and Maintenance," the requirements for different classes of patients is considered. The section closes as follows: "The results as shown by the recovery rate and the number discharged improved sufficiently to live at home, have been achieved through a proper expenditure for treatment and care. There is sufficient precedent to show that any material reduction of these expenditures would modify these most desirable results."

Your attention is particularly attracted to the quotations from the eleventh and twelfth reports, both of which reports were signed by Commissioner Parkhurst.

(Rev.) JOSEPH W. HENDRICK.

Rochester, N. Y., January 28, 1902.

LEGALIZING OSTEOPATHY.

SHIPPERS CRUSHED BY BIG REBATES

The Times Jany 23 1902

Startling Statements In the Report of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The annual report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, transmitted to Congress today, urgently repeats former requests for such additional legislation as will give the commission power to correct evils not touched by the present laws.

EVILS OF REBATE SYSTEM

On the subject of recent investigations into the movement of packing house products, the commission says: "That the leading traffic officials of many of the principal railway lines, men occupying high positions and charged with the most important duties, should deliberately violate the statute law of the land, and in some cases agree with each other to do so; that it should be thought necessary to destroy vouchers and to so manipulate bookkeeping as to obliterate evidence of the transactions; that hundreds of thousands of dollars should be paid in unlawful rebates to a few great packing houses; that the business of railroad transportation, the most important but one in the country today, paying the highest salaries, and holding out to young men the greatest inducements, should to such an extent be conducted in open disregard of law, must be surprising and offensive to all right minded persons.

"Equally startling at least is the fact that the owners of these packing houses, men whose names are known throughout the commercial world, should seemingly be eager to augment their gains with the enormous amounts of these rebates which they receive in plain defiance of a federal statute.

"We certainly believe that existing laws should be so amended that railway managers who desire to observe them can do so without risk of sacrificing their property."

CORPORATIONS NOT LIABLE

The commission comments vigorously on the fact that it has been judicially determined that a corporation is not liable for violation of these laws, and that the agent alone can be punished.

Attention is called to the fact that only a nominal fine can be assessed when common carriers depart from published tariffs, unless there is actual discrimination between different shippers, which fact is most difficult to prove. In addition to other reforms, the commission asks Congress for enlarged powers for the enforcement of the law.

SECRET GRAIN RATES

In regard to the movement of grain, the commission observes:

"At the present time grain and grain products move from points of origin to the seaboard generally upon secret rates. The effect of these secret rates is to discriminate in favor of the foreigner, to give preferences to particular shippers, to exclude from business the small operator. These discriminations militate against a great American industry."

The commission states that the secret rates from Chicago to the seaboard are maintained by the railroad associations and observes: "It is not the business of this commission to enforce the Anti-Trust Act, and we express no opinion as to the legality of the means adopted by these associations. We simply call attention to the fact that the decisions of the United States Supreme Court in the trans-Missouri and Joint Traffic Association cases have produced no practical effect on the railway operations of the country. In justice to all parties we ought probably to add that it is difficult to see how our interstate railways could be operated with due regard to the interest of the shipper and the railway without concerted action of the kind afforded through these associations."

The total number of proceedings brought before the Commission during the year was 330. Of these, 149 informal complaints were settled through preliminary investigation by the Commission. The report reviews the various decisions rendered by the Commission and also the railway statistics for the fiscal year published some months ago.

USE OF SAFETY APPLIANCES

The safety appliance law became effective Aug. 1, 1900, and the records show that for the year ending June 30, 1901, the number of employes killed in coupling accidents was less than in the preceding year by about 35 per cent, and the number injured was less by about 52 per cent.

The Commission recognizes that as a rule the railroad companies now need no compulsion to induce them to use automatic couplers, and it is stated that only in details of a minor character has any road assumed a critical or reluctant attitude. Both the automatic coupler and continuous power brake are now absolute necessities in the operation of roads which move long trains, or use the powerful locomotives and heavy cars which are now common. Thus, observes the Commission, the policy of Congress in enacting the safety appliance law is amply vindicated on what may be called business considerations, without regard to the question of safety of life and limb.

Other improvements in railway appliances are favorably commented upon.

RAILROAD TO BE IMPROVED

Line From Dansville to Mt. Morris to Be Overhauled.

TRACKS TO BE RAISED ABOVE HIGH WATER LEVEL.

Plan to Have Through Trains Run from Dansville to Rochester—Concrete to Take the Place of the Trestle Near Craig Colony—New Station.

Evening Herald Jany 14, 1902

Dansville, Jan. 13.—The management of the Dansville and Mount Morris Railroad company is making preparations to establish a greatly improved passenger service. The road is to be overhauled from one end to the other and the improvements will include new bridges, filling up of trestles, concrete work, raising the track two feet higher on the flat lands in the valley for a distance of four miles, through train service between this village and Buffalo and Rochester, and possibly a new passenger station.

The grassy roadbed from here to Mount Morris, sixteen miles long, will be cleared of the grass and weeds and the bed ballasted with gravel. The trestles and bridges will all be overhauled and some will be filled up and others will be replaced with concrete, the long trestle near the Craig Colony at Sonyea being taken out and concrete substituted. New rails for the entire distance have already been put down and new ties will be laid wherever needed. A portion of the track on the flat lands down the valley, four miles in length, which is sometimes flooded by the spring freshets, will be raised two or three feet higher than it now is. A new station for the accommodation of passengers is also anticipated, in which case the old station will be given up entirely to freight.

Plans to have the Erie trains from Buffalo and Rochester run direct to Dansville is already under consideration. This would be a great accommodation to the patrons of the road and a change that seems very easy to be made, as the Erie engine and crew, which now lay over at Mount Morris, would run sixteen miles farther up the valley to Dansville. When the Erie railroad was a lessee of the Dansville and Mount Morris branch, this plan was carried out and was found to be successful and satisfactory. The Erie for some reason abandoned this branch ten years ago and since that time the Erie crews stop at Mount Morris and another crew takes the train the other fourteen miles up the valley to Dansville.

When the road was given up by the Erie railroad arrangements were made with the Western New York and Pennsylvania Railroad company to run the trains to the W. N. Y. and P. depot at Mount Morris and the American Express company was substituted for the Wells, Fargo & Company's express. A loop was built at Sonyea and the two roads, the Western New York and the Dansville and Mount Morris, connected. Trains were then run to the Western New York and Pennsylvania station at Mount Morris, using the W. N. Y. and P. tracks from Sonyea to Mount Morris. This worked well for two or three years, but finally the Erie and the Dansville and Mt. Morris Railroad companies came to an understanding whereby the D. and M. trains were to be run again in connection with the Erie trains. This change was made six years ago and the Wells Fargo & Co.'s express again installed on the D. and M. R. R.

Three years ago through cars were operated successfully between Dansville, Rochester and Buffalo upon direction of General Manager P. H. England of the D. and M. R. R. If the proposed changes are made the only remaining want of the Dansville patrons of the road would be supplied by the running of through trains to Rochester and Buffalo.

FARMERS WANT A TROLLEY LINE

Confident That the Ridge Road Project Will be a Success.

WHAT THOSE LIVING NEAT MEDINA SAY OF THE PROSPECTS.

Growers of Small Fruits Will Find a Ready Market in Rochester as a Result of Transportation—No Long Hauls to Central Shipping Point.

Evening Herald, January 9, 1902

Medina, Jan. 13.—The people of Medina and vicinity are united in favor of the proposed trolley line along the Ridge road. The farmers hereabouts are enthusiastic over the prospects that the road will go through in the spring. They are quick to concede that their land will appreciate in [illegible] and a stimulus furnished to [illegible] improve their farms. And [illegible] that they [illegible] of the trolley is that [illegible] will be placed on a par at the markets of Buffalo and Rochester with distant producers who have had heretofore quicker means of transportation.

They say that when the new line is in operation local growers of small fruits, such as strawberries, will be able to ship their goods in the morning and have them in the city markets by noon so as to compete with the New Jersey houses who have such direct facilities for placing their goods.

Another argument advanced is that the farmers driving along the Ridge road will be saved the expense and labor of hauling their produce to Medina to ship to Buffalo or Rochester, and other points along the Central road, while a spur road into Medina will provide means of carrying all the freight bound to this place.

No doubt is expressed as to the question as to whether the new road will pay or not. The friends of the Ridge road trolley line point to the experience of the trolley line from Lockport to Olcott, stating that the Lockport line cost $1,000,000 and that last year it paid the interest on bonds to that amount and all operating expenses, and left besides $7,500 surplus in the treasury. It is said the Ridge road can do fully as well as this.

HOSPITAL MANAGERS BILL.

Animated Hearing on the Governor's Message.

Albany, Jan. 23.—The senate judiciary committee has decided to postpone action on the so-called lunacy bill until next Monday night at 8 o'clock. The commission considered the bill for a few minutes this morning, and discussed some proposed amendments. It was finally decided to postpone serious consideration until prior to the session of next Monday night.

Among the amendments proposed is one which provides that each of the institutions on Long Island shall have a separate superintendent. The bill as at present drawn provides that one man shall have charge of all three.

Albany, Jan. 23.—(Special.)—The hearing yesterday on the governor's bill abolishing the boards of managers of the state hospitals for the insane has convinced the republican leaders in the legislature that the sentiment in opposition to the bill is so united that no good can come from passing the bill in its present form. Accordingly, the assembly judiciary committee is meeting this afternoon and the bill will be amended in many particulars to overcome the objections to some extent.

It is proposed to change the bill by retaining the local boards of managers, the number of members of each board to be reduced to three. This will do away with the board of twenty visitors as provided for in the bill, who were to be appointed by the governor, and to make at least four visits during a year. But the local board under the changed bill will be shorn of all power except as to visitation and inspection, as all patronage is to be vested in the State Lunacy commission which is to appoint the superintendent and steward, who, in turn, is to appoint the subordinates.

By making these changes it is hoped to allay some of the criticism and reduce the sentiment in opposition.

ATE HOSPITAL MANAGERS

Friends of the Boards at Work with Members of Legislature.

The Post Express Jan 24 1902

Albany, Jan. 29.—Governor Odell's friends have been apprised that the friends of the boards of managers of the state hospitals have started the sort of campaign against the governor's state hospital bill that The Post Express predicted several days ago; centering their fire on the senators and assemblymen.

It has reached the governor's ears that several influential Syracusans called on Senator White when he was home on Saturday last and bluntly informed him that they would hold him personally responsible if the state hospital bill passes.

Friends of the boards of managers are making a great ado over an alleged order of the State Lunacy commission to the managers of Willard hospital that they must not purchase oysters at 90 cents a gallon from local dealers but must transfer their trade to John Flannigan, the democratic boss of Ontario county, at 51 per gallon. This is denied by the lunacy commission but the managers claim to have the order.

Governor Odell's friends say even if the story is true, it does not weaken his position but that it may be necessary to "discipline" the lunacy commission.

GOV. ODELL'S PLAN FOR A GREAT CANAL

Will Provide for a Waterway Suitable for Barges of at Least 500 Tonnage.

ESTIMATED COST WILL BE NEARLY $30,000,000

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING TIMES.)

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—The question of the week in legislative circles is "when will the Governor's canal bill be ready?" It is now understood that the bill is practically perfected and will be introduced next Monday night.

The cost of the improved canal, $28,700,000, which must be provided for by a bond issue, makes an amount greater than has ever been suggested for any public work in any other State in the Union. This necessitates the utmost care in deciding upon the provisions of this bill. Constitutional provisions of every nature must be most carefully considered in order to prevent any question being raised as to the validity of the bonds which will be issued to carry out this work. For these reasons the bill has been delayed.

The term "Governor's Canal bill," is correct, the bill carrying out all of the recommendations of the State's Chief Executive. Briefly, the Governor's proposition is this:

THE PROPOSED CHANGES.

To first build through the State of New York a trunk line canal conforming, practically, on the route of the present canal, except that, beginning at Rexford Flats, a few miles below Schenectady, the route is changed so as to avoid what is known as the "Sixteen Locks" at Cohoes. This change decreases the time several hours; it also decreases the cost of annual maintenance as, in place of 16 locks, four locks will be used. In addition the danger from breakages of the 16 old locks is reduced to the chance of injury to the small number of new ones.

The size of the locks will be 328 feet between the quoins; the width will be 28 feet. This permits the locking of two boats 150 feet long by 25 feet beam. The deepening of the canal will be nine feet throughout its entire length except it will be eight feet over mitre-sills and permanent structure. This will permit a style of boat carrying 500 tons.

The Governor's plan is to make no improvements on the feeders, such as Oswego, Seneca, Cayuga, Black River and Champlain, at this time. The expense of lock widening and deepening aggregates ABOUT $28,700,000. This canal would serve all the most thickly populated section of the State.

HOW IT AFFECTS ROCHESTER.

UNDER THE GOVERNOR'S RECOMMENDATIONS THE ROUTE THROUGH ROCHESTER WILL REMAIN AS AT PRESENT AND THE AQUEDUCT WILL NOT BE DISTURBED.

The champions of this bill claim among other things that the completion of this canal would render it possible to make at the southeastern end of Lake Erie, which, of course, includes Buffalo, a ton of iron or steel at a less price than it can be made anywhere in this country. There is today building in expectation of the completion of the proposed canal improvement, a single iron and steel plant which will be in operation in May of this year, at a cost of $20,000,000. This is but the beginning of the iron and steel traffic along the Niagara frontier which will, it is predicted, in ten years grow to enormous proportions. The ability of cities like Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Schenectady, Troy, Albany and the long line of cities and villages between Buffalo and New York to purchase the products of the iron and steel plants on the Niagara frontier at exceptionally low rates and to move it at a low cost for freight to their respective localities, will aid all existing manufacturers and open the way for a great increase in manufacturing propositions throughout the State.

PAYMENT FOR IMPROVEMENTS.

It has been asked, "Will this proposed bill place the enormous indebtedness of $30,000,000 upon the taxpayers?" Happily a way has been found out of this situation and is another of the recommendations of Governor Odell, and this is it:

At the time that the Canal bill is introduced an amendment to the constitution will also be introduced which will provide for the payment of the bonds issued to carry on the canal improvement out of the special revenues of the State. This removes the oldtime objection of the interests which have sought to prevent canal improvement. Under this amendment it will be unnecessary to raise any direct tax for the canal improvements.

The special revenues of the State are those accruing from the excise, inheritance, corporation and bank tax, and the tax on mortgages, should the Stranahan bill become a law.

OPPOSITION EXPECTED.

Of course, the representatives from the anti-canal counties and many of the farming districts will fight the bill tooth and nail, and the canal men may get to fighting among themselves. For instance, Assemblyman T. D. Lewis of Oswego, a redhot advocate of canals last year, and still a firm believer under other conditions, is not in favor of the new bill. His district does not want the improvement unless the Oswego Canal is included.

The Monroe delegation, when questioned by The Evening Times representative, declined to give their attitude until the bill had been introduced and carefully studied.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

STATE HOSPITAL BILL.

Democratic Opposition to Passage of Measure in Assembly.

Special to The Post Express.

Albany, Jan. 30.—Assemblyman Rogers's bill abolishing the local boards of managers of the state hospitals and centralizing their powers in the State Commission in Lunacy, came up on the order of final passage in the assembly this morning. The bill was bitterly attacked by the minority and a lengthy debate followed.

Mr. Rogers defended the bill and explained its purpose stating that the main object was to give the State Commission in Lunacy power of appointing and removing the superintendents and stewards of the hospitals.

J. E. Smith (Tammany, N. Y.), called the bill a revolutionary change in caring for the state hospitals. He spoke of the great work done by the humanitarians of the state without compensation and which this bill would abolish. He called attention to the fact that the commission would have $5,000,000 to handle annually without giving an accounting, and where unscrupulous men, if they chose to use this money for political purposes, might work untold harm to the insane of the state.

Mr. Durose (Tammany, N. Y.), followed, stating that the bill was a deadly blow to the state hospitals and charitable institutions of the state. He could not regard the bill as otherwise than a measure to permit the governor to grasp the patronage arising from these institutions, so that he can have absolute control of the institutions and increase its powers.

Letter From Sargent.

Frank P. Sargent, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, in a letter received yesterday by Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, says that he will be in Rochester on the night of February 10th, if possible. He has been asked to address the chamber on "Reciprocity." A convention of locomotive firemen is to be held here February 11th and as Mr. Sargent expected to attend he was asked to come one day earlier and address the chamber.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Several Additions to the Membership Roll— Treasurer Elected.

Benjamin R. Chase was re-elected treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon by the board of trustees of the chamber. With but few breaks, Mr. Chase has held this office since the organization of the chamber. The trustees and the executive committee held a joint meeting at 4:30 o'clock. The following members were elected trustees for one year to fill vacancies: James S. Graham, John N. Beckley, Max Brickner, J. Y. McClintock, Charles T. Chapin and H. F. Atwood.

Reference was made to the monthly meeting of the chamber to be held next Monday night. The meeting will be open to the public and importance is attached to it from the fact that the question, "Can Rochester Manufacturers Secure Water at a Cheaper Rate Than 14 cents per Thousand Gallons?" will be debated by Commissioner of Public Works McClintock, City Engineer Fisher, ex-President H. B. Hathaway, Arthur T. Hagen and Hon. Henry C. Brewster, president of the chamber. Others will also take up the issue, and business men in general are invited to attend the meeting.

Treasurer Chase read his report for the year 1901, which showed the chamber to be in good financial condition. The report was accepted and indorsed. In a letter from ex-Governor Shaw, of Iowa, that was read, the writer acknowledged a letter of congratulation sent to him by the chamber soon after he had been appointed secretary of the treasury by President Roosevelt.

The following individuals and firms were elected members of the chamber: John F. Kinney, No. 208 Ellwanger & Barry building, attorney; William H. Campbell, McCurdy, Norwell & Company, advertising manager; Henry M. Furlong, Nos. 116 and 118 Powers building, commission broker; Power City Realty Company, Nos. 315 and 316 Wilder arcade, real estate; Thomas A. Smythe, No. 411 Berkley building; Genesee Valley Trust Company, Exchange street; S. W. Burley, No. 66 Arcade, publisher; E. H. Stanley, Nos. 15 and 17 Main street west and No. 123 State street, caterer; Henry B. Hart, No. 21 East avenue, real estate; Robert H. Archbold, No. 323 Granite building, manufacturers' representative; J. Y. McClintock, commissioner of public works; Charles S. Gibbs, No. 153 State street, harness, and A. S. Hockwell, No. 46 Elizabeth street, physician.

BUSINESS MEN INVITED.

Chamber of Commerce to Discuss Question of Water Rates.

At the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to-night the subject of water rates will be discussed. It has been argued that the rate of 14 cents per 1,000 gallons, in this city, is too high.

In view of the importance of the subject and general interest in it, Secretary Ives announced to-day that the meeting will be open to all business men regardless of membership in the Chamber of Commerce. A large attendance is desired and a full discussion is expected.

Lunch will be served by Teall.

Rochester
Chamber of Commerce

The regular monthly meeting of the Corporation will take place in ASSEMBLY HALL,

Monday Evening, Feb. 3, 1902,

at eight o'clock.

On which occasion the question "Can Rochester Manufacturers Secure Water at a Cheaper Rate than 14 cents Per Thousand Gallons?" will be debated by:

J. Y. McCLINTOCK, Com. of Public Works,
EDWIN A. FISHER, City Engineer,
H. B. HATHAWAY, Ex-President,
ARTHUR T. HAGEN, Esq.,
HENRY C. BREWSTER, President,
and others.

The question is a most important one, and it is hoped that every member of the Chamber will be present. Will you not make an effort to come?

After the debate luncheon will be served by Teall.

JOHN M. IVES, Secretary.

Rochester, N. Y., February 1, 1902.

ROCHESTER DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE.
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1902.

QUESTION OF WATER RATES

SUBJECT DISCUSSED BY THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

MR. FISHER'S FIGURES

DESCRIPTION OF ROCHESTER'S WATERWORKS SYSTEM.

MR. McCLINTOCK'S VIEWS

Ex-President Hathaway Contended That it Would be Good Policy to Utilize the Waste at Hemlock Lake by Selling It at a Reasonable Price to Manufacturers—Figures Quoted.

There was a large attendance of Rochester's representative business men and manufacturers at the monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last night. The president, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, presided. The general subject of discussion was the advisability of reducing water rates to manufacturers, with a view to increasing the industrial prosperity of the city.

In opening the meeting President Brewster said that the subject of water rates seemed to be just now a matter of importance, hence it had been made the topic for the regular meeting. He said he understood that water was running over the dam at Hemlock lake, as it was going to waste. Under these circumstances the inquiry whether the manufacturers of Rochester are not paying too much for water was pertinent. Said Mr. Brewster:

"What we want to do is to build up the city of Rochester, and the matter of water rates seems just now to be an important factor in the problem."

The first speaker was Commissioner of Public Works J.Y. McClintock. Mr. McClintock said, in part:

"The cost of water used by manufacturers is one of the important items, and in some cases very important. We know that while the cost of water for the average 200 horse power rooms is low in this city, the price of Hemlock water used in large quantities is higher than in most of the cities. While an average house in Rochester pays $8 per year, the same kind of house in Albany pays $12; in Boston, $18; in Philadelphia, $14; in Syracuse it is $16, and in Providence, $21. Rushed to have to higher in Detroit and Chicago. Among the cities of compar[illegible]

"The price charged for metered water is 14 cents per 1,000 gallons, without relation to the amount used. This is higher than the lowest price charged in each of the thirty largest cities of the country, excepting only Providence and New Orleans. You see, I am willing to make admissions, and want simply to make it understood what we have to contend with. To go further, I will say that our waterworks earned enough in 1901 to pay for maintenance and interest upon the bonds excepting about $15,000; and this year will about pay all of the interest. After next year, when it will be possible to refund $3,182,000 of the bonds bearing 4 per cent. interest with bonds at 3 or 3 1-2 per cent, the property may show a net income of $120,000 or more. This is certainly encouraging, and shows that the burden of taxation is to be lessened.

"When the new system was planned a necessary part of it was an additional distributing reservoir. All who studied the subject were of the same opinion in regard to the necessity of such reservoir. There was some division of opinion as to the necessity of the Holly system, and immediately, when the Mt. Hope reservoir was sufficient to contain four days' supply; but now, on account of the increase of consumption, and when that reservoir is only capable of holding a day and a half's supply, and when it is evident that before the new reservoir can be built the increase will be such that scarcely a day's supply can be retained there, it must be evident to the least observing person that the new reservoir should be commenced at once. That reservoir will cost $250,000 at least.

"This city has now within its power the option as to whether, as it grows into one of the greater cities, it will continue to hold precedent as to the character and abundance of its water supply. Hemlock lake will furnish the purest water in abundance for domestic use for a city four times its present size, and the question of the Genesee river, by means of an enlargement of the existing Holly system, and the building of filter beds, can supply an unlimited quantity of water for manufacture that supplied to almost any of the great cities of the world. When we shall have reached the limit of the yield of Hemlock lake it will be impossible to duplicate that supply, so beautifully suited to the requirements of domestic use.

"It is time for this community to take action. They should take control of all the public utilities and also of the Genesee river. The power of the river should be developed to its maximum capacity, and this should be used for heating, for perhaps heating, and also for pumping a liberal supply for manufacturing and fire purposes, and for operating street cars. The water could be taken from the river at a point above the city, and at a comparatively small cost filtered so as to compare in quality with the supply of most cities, and the Hemlock water be reserved for domestic uses. The balance of the power should be sold at the lowest price to manufacturers, [illegible]

H. B. Hathaway was the next speaker. Mr. Hathaway said he was somewhat familiar with the subject of water rates in Rochester. Said he:

"It seems to me that the question is whether some portion of the expense of the water supply should not be met by taxation, rather than that the effort should be to make the revenues of the system meet all of its expenses. When I came to this city, about thirty years ago, we had wells, and cisterns and had no public water. A company came here and made a show of bringing water from Hemlock lake. The first effort was to float bonds, and some were floated. There was a pretence of building waterworks. Great wooden pipes bound with hoop iron, were carted through the streets and some of them were laid. The reservoir about as large as this room was dug south of the city, and the bonds were floated. They never brought a drop of water to this city, and I doubt if they ever intended to do so. For years business men were called upon to answer questions from Massachusetts and other Eastern states as to when the bonds would be paid.

"For many years I have been identified with the Chamber of Commerce. Our greatest effort has been to increase the city by inducing manufacturers and residents to come to Rochester. When manufacturers talked of coming here they asked after the matter of taxation and above all in regard to the price of water for manufacturing purposes. When we told them that the rate for water to manufacturers was 14 cents per 1,000 gallons, we were told that Buffalo offered them sites, proposed to take stock in the concerns, and furnish water for manufacturing purposes at 3 cents per 1,000 gallons.

"When I was president of the Chamber of Commerce I asked the secretary to obtain the prices charged to manufacturers for water in several cities. Here are some of the figures obtained as the result of that inquiry: In Rochester, from 1876 to 1881, 10 cents; from 1881 to 1890, 3 to 5 cents. In 1890 the rate jumped to 14 cents per 1,000 to manufacturers. The prices to manufacturers in other cities per 1,000 gallons were: Syracuse, lowest, 3 1-2 cents; Columbus, 6 cents; Providence, 20 cents; Pittsburg, lowest, 3 cents; Cincinnati, 3-4 cent; St. Paul, 7 cents; Omaha, 15 cents; Indianapolis, 9 1-2 cents; Detroit, including small users, 1 3-4 cents; Buffalo, 2 cents; Denver, 10 cents; Louisville, 4 1-8 cents; Kansas City, 10 cents; Newark, N. J., 15 cents. These prices against 14 cents in Rochester.

"It seems to me that, for years to come, we have an abundance of water at Hemlock lake. Why not utilize this surplus by selling it at 5 cents per 1,000 gallons? Not to have a manufacturer reduce the amount he is taking, but have him take, say, 25 per cent, more at 5 cents. It may be time to make a change this year, but I hope not. It seems to me that the city could deliver an additional 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 gallons at 5 cents and materially increase the revenue.

"Let us make use of three or four times more water than we are using. If we could give manufacturers cheap water, it would bring about the era of prosperity for which we are wishing. The water is there, the pipes are there and the reservoirs are there. If all that is necessary is to open the gates and let the water come through, why not do so?"

Messrs. Bradley, Loebs and Hagen spoke in the same strain as Mr. Hathaway.

The last speaker was City Engineer Fisher. Mr. Fisher's paper follows in full. It was illustrated with several maps.

I am much pleased with your invitation to participate in this discussion. It must be of interest, however, before entering upon the question of water rates, to give a general description of the waterworks as they now exist. It should be said at the outset that conditions existing here with reference to a water supply are so dissimilar from the conditions existing in the lake cities, for example, that it will always be impossible except by a full development of the water power of the Genesee river for this city to compete in furnishing water for manufacturing purposes with cities that have an unlimited supply at their doors and require simply the addition of more pumping capacity to bring it into use.

General Description of the Works.—Two systems of waterworks are in use. The main system is known as the Hemlock lake, or domestic, system, and the distributing mains cover the entire city. The other system is known as the Holly system, and furnishes water chiefly for fire protection, and incidentally for manufacturing and commercial purposes, where the quality of river water is not an objection.

The Holly system was built in 1873 at an original cost of about $350,000. The pumping plant is located on Brown's race, near Platt street, and has belonging to it five water rights on Brown's race. The machinery consists of four Holly pumps, with an aggregate capacity of about nine million gallons per day. All of these pumps are arranged to be operated by steam power, and two pumps of two-million gallons capacity each, either by steam or water power. The boiler capacity, however, is insufficient to furnish steam for properly operating the plant at a maximum delivery of more than seven million gallons; this amount therefore should be taken as the maximum capacity of the plant. As the primary use of this plant is for fire protection, it is manifestly prudent to keep at least one-half of this whole available power in reserve for this purpose. The use of this plant for other than fire purposes should be so restricted that the maximum rate of three and one-half million gallons per day will not be exceeded. In order to do this it has been found by past experience that the average use of the Holly water should not exceed one and one-half million gallons per day. This is about the present use. For the reasons stated it has been the policy of the water department to refuse to grant or to allow further connections with the Holly system.

There are about nineteen miles of distributing mains, and about 300 fire hydrants connected with this system. The map of the city herein exhibited gives an idea of the portion of the city covered. It will be seen that the system extends almost through the entire business section of the city. The average size of the mains is greater than those of the Hemlock system.

The pressure on the Holly hydrants under ordinary conditions is from 50 to 100 pounds; the pressure at the pump when supplying maximum quantities is about 110 pounds. The advisability of continuing to operate the Holly system has been raised and discussed from time to time since the construction of the domestic system. The arguments advanced for retaining the system may be briefly stated as follows:

The total cost of the original works was about $500,000. For this sum a plant was constructed capable of supplying seven to nine million gallons of water per day, which, at present rates, would yield 10,000 pounds of water for [illegible] of a steam plant, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Our Water Supply.

The brewing interests of Rochester and some of the large manufacturing establishments are very anxious for a reduction in the rates charged them for water. A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held last night and some interesting facts regarding the water supply and the cost of maintenance were brought out. The paper read by Engineer Fisher was especially valuable.

It appears that the quality of water in Rochester is as good as that of any other city in the world; that the rate charged to small consumers is below the average rate in the leading cities of this country, but that the rate charged to large consumers is above the average. It does not follow, however, that there should be a reduction at this time in the rate charged to large consumers. A reduction may be made wisely at some time in the future, but sound municipal financiering would seem to dictate a postponement for a few years.

The cost of the waterworks of Rochester was about $7,400,000 and the city now owes about $6,000,000 of this amount. Though the price charged to large consumers is above the average in other cities, our waterworks do not pay expenses. In 1900 the cost of maintenance was $114,639 and the receipts were $397,442, leaving a deficit of $17,197 to be made up by a levy on the taxable property of the citizens. For twenty-six years previous to 1900, the average amount of the deficit was $123,368.

On January 1, 1903, water bonds to the amount of $3,250,000 will become due. These bonds draw interest at 7 per cent. If they can be refunded at 3 1-2 per cent. and that seems sure enough, the annual saving in interest will be $113,000. At the present rates, therefore, the waterworks will be earning money on and after January 1, 1903, and turning a surplus into the treasury of the city. And so it is argued that even if rates cannot be reduced now, the reduction should be made a year from now. But is this true?

When the new conduit was constructed, a necessary part of the system was an additional distributing reservoir. Mr. McClintock, commissioner of public works, said last night:

All who studied the subject were of the same opinion in regard to the necessity of such reservoir. There was some division of opinion as to the necessity of making the expenditure immediately, when the Mt. Hope reservoir was sufficient to contain four days' supply; but now, on account of the increase of consumption, and when that reservoir is only capable of holding a day and a half's supply, and when it is evident that before the new reservoir can be built the increase will be such that scarcely a day's supply can be retained there, it must be evident to the least observing person that the new reservoir should be commenced at once. That reservoir will cost $350,000 at least.

The people of Rochester use on the average 12,000,000 gallons of water a day, or about two-thirds of the yield of Hemlock lake. Since 1895 the increase in the use of water has averaged 500,000 gallons a year. It is concluded, therefore, that continuing this rate of increase with relation to the increase of population, the total yield of Hemlock lake will be required for domestic purposes by the year 1910, or in about eight years. The average consumption of water in leading cities of the country is 127 gallons per capita per day. Here in Rochester the average is 85 gallons, so it is clear that we are not wasteful in the use of water, and undoubtedly the introduction of meters has largely stopped waste. But if the use of water here had been at the rate of consumption elsewhere, the total yield of Hemlock lake would have been exhausted by this time. We have splendid water, but the supply is not such as justifies us in being reckless in the use of it. During the week ending June 14, 1900, a measurement of the use of water was made by the city authorities at ten-minute intervals. The records show that for considerable periods of time the use equalled an average rate of at least 120 gallons per capita per day, and was at the rate of 20,000,000 gallons a day. The minimum use was about 53 gallons per capita per day, or at the rate of about 8,500,000 gallons a day. From these figures, Engineer Fisher draws the same conclusion that Mr. McClintock drew. He says:

The lesson taught by these records is that a distributing reservoir of sufficient capacity to equalize the draught should be provided. It has already been stated that the total capacity of Mt. Hope reservoir was 23,500,000 gallons. The available capacity for use does not much exceed 15,000,000 gallons, or one day's supply. The capacity of Rush reservoir, as a storage, does not exceed for practical use four days' supply. It will be seen, therefore, that in order to provide for the immediate future of the system additional storage capacity is required.

On January 1, 1903, the water works will be more than self-supporting. Shall we then reduce the rates to large consumers, or shall we use the surplus earnings in the construction of an additional reservoir? We think the wisest course would be to construct the necessary reservoir first and reduce the rate afterwards.

NO ARMY POSTS NEAR CITIES

Washington, Feb. 5.—The army post board, which has been in session in Washington intermittently since Nov 25 last, has concluded its labors and adjourned sine die.

The board was charged with the preparation of a scheme for the location and distribution of military posts, including the abandonment of existing posts which are now useless from a modern military point of view, and the planting of new posts on strategic points. It also was to locate the four great camps for the training of soldiers of the regular army and their co-operative drill with the militia. These things have been done and the board's report is now before Secretary Root, who will send it to congress.

The report has not yet been made public. It is understood that there has been a considerable divergence of views among members of the board as to the location of new posts. Lieutenant-General Miles, the president of the board, has taken a strong position against the location of new posts in the vicinity of great cities, on the ground that it can only be construed as intended to menace organized labor, and he has gone so far as to enter a formal protest with Secretary Root against such locations.

PRINCE HENRY'S VISIT

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS AWAITING MAYOR'S ACTION.

Grand Master Sargent, B. L. F., Will Address Chamber Monday Night on "Arbitration" — Legislative Committee Meeting To-morrow.

The legislative committee of the Chamber of Commerce will meet at 4:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Secretary Ives said to-day that he has received a telegram from Grand Master Sargent of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, definitely accepting the invitation of the chamber to speak before it next Monday night on the subject of "Arbitration."

Mr. Sargent holds his present position since 1885. He was offered a place on the Industrial commission appointed by President McKinley, but at the earnest request of the brotherhood he declined it. Report now says that President Roosevelt has offered Mr. Sargent the position of superintendent of Ellis Island.

No action has yet been taken by the chamber relative to the forthcoming visit of Prince Henry of Prussia. As the matter is a civic affair the chamber will take no steps until a conference is had with the mayor, when it is expected that a committee will be appointed from its body to act in conjunction with a committee appointed from the Common Council. Secretary Ives has written to several cities on Prince Henry's itinerary in order to learn how they propose to greet their royal visitor, so that Rochester may not follow the same methods.

BANQUET PROGRAMME.

Order of Exercises at Society of the Genesee Banquet.

The order of exercises preceding the speeches at the dinner of the Society of the Genesee at the Waldorf-Astoria on Saturday evening is as follows: Prayer, Father William C. Ifelily, formerly of Rochester; report of nominating committee by Dr. Munn, chairman; election of officers; song by Theodore Arnheiter; reading letters of regret by Chairman Whitney of the dinner committee; song by Messrs. Dudley and Barrow, of the "Message from Mars" company; song by Theodore Arnheiter; song by Messrs. Dudley and Barrow.

Following is a list of the speakers in their order:

President Job B. Hedges; William E. Werner, Associate Judge, Court of Appeals; John G. Milburn, Buffalo, president New York State Bar Association; William B. Homblower, New York, president New York State Bar Association, 1901; David J. Hill, First Assistant Secretary of State and former president of the University of Rochester; Adolph J. Rodenbeck, Mayor of Rochester; W. F. Balkham, Rochester; J. H. Canfield, Columbia University; George Raines, Rochester.

NAMES OF LOCAL GUESTS.

Sixty Persons Who Will Attend Judge Werner's Banquet in New York.

Preparations have been practically completed for the banquet to be tendered by the Society of the Genesee to Judge William E. Werner, of the Court of Appeals, in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York, Saturday night.

After the prandial exercise, this programme of events will take place, preceding the speeches: Prayer, Father William C. Reilly, formerly of Rochester; report of nominating committee by Dr. Munn, chairman; election of officers; song by Theodore Arnheiter; reading letters of regret by Chairman Whitney of the dinner committee; song by Messrs. Dudley and Barrow, of the "Message from Mars" company; song by Theodore Arnheiter; song by Messrs. Dudley and Barrow.

A delegation of at least sixty people from this city will leave to-morrow morning for the metropolis. They will go in a parlor car over the Central railroad. Quite a number left on trains today. The list of those going to-morrow is as follows:

Mayor Adolph J. Rodenbeck, George Raines, William F. Balkam, J. Miller Kelly, Marcus H. Van Bergh, F. A. Stecher, C. C. Werner, Thomas F. Gilroy, jr., John A. Davis, Joseph A. Crane, Charles Goetzmann. James L. Hotchkiss, John B. Hamilton, John F. Kinney, A. G. Wright, John W. Hannan, Jacob Gerling, C. E. Stinson, H. F. Atwood, George W. Aldridge, Charles R. Barnes, C. A. Watkyns, Frederick Wurtz, Frederick W. Bickford, F. J. Woodworth, F. C. Cutting, George F. Roth, Colonel Henry S. Redman, Colonel N. P. Pond, Charles L. Hunt, Henry Barnard, Sol Wile, Horace McGuire, H. B. Hathaway, Colonel James S. Graham, Edward A. Stahlbrodt, F. C. Cole, Dr. H. R. Nerleton, Dr. J. M. Buchanan, Ralph T. Olcott, Adolph C. Stahlbrodt, Max Holtz, Philip Present, Simeon Wile, A. L. Holtz, William Rauch, M. Kondolf, J. Harvey Coxon, Cox, George Rau, R. A. Badger, T. B. Dunn, William H. Smith, John S. Rauber, Andrew Bown, Houston Barnard, Charles H. Babcock, Charles H. Rowe.

Valuable Trade Lists.

A valuable acquisition to the library of the Chamber of Commerce has just been received in the form of "Continuous Trade Lists," sent to the chamber by the Philadelphia Commercial Museum. The lists contain reports of the trade of the entire world and are issued in sections, one country at a time. Subsequent sections will be sent as issued. Valuable information is contained in the lists, as well as maps. The members of the Chamber of Commerce are invited to make use of them.

Sargent Will Come.

Grand Master Sargent, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, has definitely accepted Secretary Ives's invitation to address the Chamber of Commerce next Monday night on "Arbitration."

NEW ARMY POSTS.

Gen. Miles Strongly Opposed To Locating Them Near Cities — The Military Board Adjourned.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The Army Post Board, which has been in session in Washington intermittently since November 25 last, concluded its labors and adjourned sine die, yesterday. The board was charged with the preparation of a scheme for the location and distribution of military posts, including the abandonment of existing posts which are now useless from a modern military point of view, and the planting of new posts on strategic points. It was also to locate the four great camps for the training of the soldiers of the regular army and their co-operative drill with the militia.

These things have been done and the board's report is now before Secretary Root, who will send it to Congress. The report has not yet been made public. It is understood that there has been a considerable divergence of views among members of the board as to the location of new posts.

Lieutenant-General Miles, the president of the board, has taken a strong position against the location of new posts in the vicinity of great cities on the ground that it can only be construed as intended to menace organized labor, and he has gone so far as to enter a formal protest with Secretary Root against such locations.

Chamber of Commerce

On the evening of

Monday, February 10, 1902, at 8 O'Clock,

HON. FRANK P. SARGENT,

Grand Master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen of the United States, will, on invitation, address the members of the Corporation and their families on the subject of

ARBITRATION

Mr. Sargent has for seventeen years been Grand Master of the B. L. of L. F., with honor to himself and his constituents.

He was requested by President McKinley to be a Commissioner when Congress established the Industrial Commission and has recently been tendered the position of Superintendent of Ellis Island, New York, by President Roosevelt. Mr. Sargent has prevented many strikes and is a fair and able man.

It is seldom the opportunity is presented to listen to an address on a great and living question from a man with the experience and ability of Mr. Sargent, and it is hoped that Assembly Hall will be filled on the evening of Monday, February 10th.

John M. Ives
Secretary.

Rochester, N. Y., February 8th, 1902.

PRINCE HENRY'S TOUR.

Complete Itinerary of His Travels in This Country.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The corrected itinerary of Prince Henry's American tour was arranged to-day by the German embassy and the Reception Committee. In addition to visits to Washington and New York the Prince will go to Annapolis, Md.; Pittsburg, Columbus, Cincinnati, Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, Nashville, Louisville, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Rochester, Syracuse, Boston, Albany, West Point and Philadelphia.

Prince Henry's New York programme for his first visit there has been announced. His second visit to the city will extend from the evening of Friday, March 7, until Monday morning, March 10, when he will go to Philadelphia for the day. Returning to New York that evening, he will spend the night there and sail for Germany on March 11.

This is the complete itinerary:

Sunday, Feb. 23 (via Pennsylvania Railroad)—Leave New York, special ferry from Twenty-third street (Eastern time), 12 midnight. Train to be in position for occupancy at Jersey City at 10 P. M. Saturday.

Monday, Feb. 24—Leave Jersey City 1 A. M., arrive Baltimore 9 A. M., stop twenty minutes. Leave Baltimore 9:20 A. M.; arrive Washington 10:20 A. M. Day and evening in Washington. Train to be in position for occupancy at 10 P. M. (via Pennsylvania Railroad.) Leave Washington 12 midnight.

Tuesday, Feb. 25—Arrive at Jersey City 7 A. M. Breakfast on train. By special steamer leave Jersey City; 8 A. M. Arrive Shooter's Island, 10 A. M. Launch at 10:30 A. M. Leave Shooter's Island by special steamer after launching ceremonies. Tuesday evening and Wednesday in New York.

Wednesday, Feb. 26—Via Pennsylvania Railroad: Leave New York, special ferry from Twenty-third street, 12 midnight. Train to be in position for occupancy at Jersey City at 10 P. M. Tuesday.

Thursday, Feb. 27—Arrive Jersey City 1:30 A. M. Arrive Washington 9 A. M. Thursday in Washington.

Friday, Feb. 28—Leave Washington 9:10 A. M. Arrive Annapolis 10:30 A. M. Visit to Naval Academy and luncheon. Leave Annapolis 2 P. M. Arrive Washington 4 P. M.

Saturday, March 1.—Via Pennsylvania Railroad: Leave Washington, 12:30 P. M. Train to be in position for occupancy at 10 P. M. Friday. Across the Alleghany Mountains and through Johnstown by daylight. Arrive Pittsburg (Eastern time), 11:30 A. M.; Central time, 10:30 A. M. Stop ten minutes. Via Pennsylvania lines: Leave Pittsburg (Central time), 10:40 A. M. Arrive Columbus, 1:40 P. M. Leave Columbus, 4:50 P. M. Arrive Cincinnati, 8 P. M. Stop twenty minutes. Via Queen and Crescent route. Leave Cincinnati, 8:20 P. M.

Sunday, March 2 — Arrive Chattanooga 7 A. M., three hours and thirty minutes for trip to Lookout Mountain. Via Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railways: Leave Chattanooga, 1:30 A. M. Arrive Nashville 2:30 P. M. Stop fifteen minutes. Via Louisville and Nashville Railroad: Leave Nashville, 2:45 P. M. Arrive Louisville 7:45 P. M. Stop ten minutes. Via Pennsylvania lines: Leave Louisville, 7:55 P. M. Arrive Indianapolis 10:35 P. M. Stop twenty minutes. Leave Indianapolis 11:15 P. M.

Monday, March 3—Arrive St. Louis 7 A. M. Four hours in St. Louis. Train to remain conveniently located during stay. Via Chicago and Alton Railway. Leave St. Louis 11 A. M. Arrive Chicago 6:30 P. M. Monday evening and Tuesday morning in Chicago. Train to be conveniently located during stay.

Tuesday, March 4—Via Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, leave Chicago 2 P. M., arrive Milwaukee 4 P. M.; train to be conveniently located during stay; leave Milwaukee 10 P. M.

Wednesday, March 5—Arrive Chicago 12:01 A. M., via Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad; leave Chicago 12:30 A. M.; arrive Buffalo (Central time) 1:45 P. M., (Eastern time) 2:45 P. M.; stop fifteen minutes; via New York Central Railroad; leave Buffalo (Eastern time) 3 P. M., arrive Niagara Falls 3:45 P. M.; two hours and fifteen minutes at Niagara Falls; train to be conveniently located during stay. New York Central (via Lockport); leave Niagara Falls 6 P. M.; arrive Rochester 8:30 P. M.; stop twenty minutes; leave Rochester 8:35 P. M.; arrive Syracuse 10:25 P. M.; stop ten minutes; leave Syracuse 10:35 P. M.

Thursday, March 6—Via Boston and Albany Railroad, arrive Boston 10 A. M.; day and evening in Boston. Train to be conveniently located during stay.

Friday, March 7—Via Boston and Albany Railroad, leave Boston 2 A. M., arrive Albany 8:30 A. M.; stop two hours. Via West Shore Railroad, leave Albany 10:30 A. M.; arrive West Point 2 P. M., stop two hours; leave West Point 4 P. M., arrive New York 5:45 P. M., special ferry from Weehawken.

Saturday and Sunday in New York.

Monday, March 10—Via Pennsylvania Railroad, leave New York, special ferry from Twenty-third street, 8 A. M., arrive Philadelphia, Broad street station, 10:20 A. M.; five hours and ten minutes in Philadelphia; leave Philadelphia 3:30 P. M., arrive New York, special ferry to Twenty-third street, 5:20 P. M.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

ANNUAL DINNER OF SOCIETY OF GENESEE A BRILLIANT EVENT

DESERVED HONOR TO HON. WILLIAM E. WERNER

Toasts Responded to by the Justice, Mayor Rodenbeck and Others--Waldorf-Astoria the Scene of a Feast of Wit and Reason.

The Times Feb. 9, 1902

The fourth annual election and banquet of the Society of the Genesee was held at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York City, Saturday evening last, and was an enjoyable feast. The banquet was made the occasion of a special tribute to Justice William E. Werner of this city, who was recently elevated to the Court of Appeals. The ladies were present in the galleries, 42 boxes being filled with the fair sex. The diners numbered 325. This number is the largest on record of a purely home assemblage gathered outside of Rochester. Before the banquet the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Seth S. Terry; First Vice President, Dr. A. H. Doty; Second Vice President, Dr. W. W. Walker; Secretary, Joseph Wormsley; Treasurer, E. S. Marvin; Historian, Dr. J. B. Culver; Chaplain, Dr. W. C. Reilly; Board of Governors, Rossiter Johnson, Marvin W. Winne, Louis Wiley, Hon. William Rumsey, Job Hedges, J. B. VanEvery, Dr. S. M. Brickner.

The programme was as follows:

Prayer by Father William C. Reilly, formerly of Rochester; call for report of nominating committee by Dr. Munn, Chairman; election; song, by Theodore Arnheiter; reading of letters of regret by Chairman Whitney of Dinner Committee; songs by Messrs. Dudley and Barrow of the 'Message From Mars' Company; reading of George Moss' poem by Richard T. Greene; song, by Theodore Arnheiter; song, by Messrs. Dudley and Palmer; songs, by Genesee Society Quartette.

At the Table of Honor.

At the guest table were seated the following prominent personages: Rev. William C. Reilly, chaplain; James Fitzgerald, Justice Supreme Court; William N. Cohen, ex-Justice Supreme Court; George W. Aldridge, Rochester; H. B. Hathaway, Rochester Chamber of Commerce; Dr. A. H. Doty, First Vice President-elect; George H. Daniels, President Sphinx Club; W. C. Bryant, President New York Press Club; John W. Vrooman, Holland Society; Henry L. Stoddard; Dr. W. W. Walker, Second Vice President-elect; John Rossiter, ex-President; William P. Hornblower, President State Bar Association for 1901; Seth Sprague Terry, President-elect; William E. Werner, Associate Judge Court of Appeals; Job E. Hedges, President; John G. Milburn, President State Bar Association, 1902; Louis Wiley, ex-President; Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, Appellate Division, First Department; J. Edward Simmons; John F. Parsons, President Bar Association of New York; W. W. Goodrich, Presiding Justice, Appellate Division, Second Department; Justice E. W. Hatch, Appellate Division, First Department; Dr. John B. Calvert, Historian-elect; J. H. Canfield Columbia University; Hon. Ashbel P. Fitch, President Franklin County Society; Adolph J. Rodenbeck, Mayor of Rochester; Bird S. Coler, ex-Comptroller; Louis Stern, President Albany Society; Thomas H. Bartindale, President Canadian Society; William F. Balkam, Rochester; Alfred Steckler, Justice Supreme Court; Frank H. Platt; William J. Morgan, Secretary to Mayor Low; Leonard A. Giegerich, Justice Supreme Court.

Judge Werner's Speech.

Judge Werner was the first speaker. He said:

"Mr. Toastmaster, ladies and gentlemen: Our vegetarian friends tell us that a man may live for a hundred years on vegetables and cold water. That may be true, but such an occasion as this naturally suggests the question: Is it worth while?

"I am ready to answer the question. At this moment I have decided convictions upon the subject. Truth compels me to admit that I had rather revel at the banquet and be choked for a single evening than to preside in the court of the last resort and live a thousand years.

"An observant genius recently remarked that Richard Harding Davis would have to attend the coronation, for without him the occasion would not be properly described for posterity. We may miss Mr. Davis tonight, but he is not indispensable, for we have Hedges, and when posterity regains consciousness she will know exactly what we have done for her.

"Then there is Wiley, the founder, official romancer and all around everything of this society, who, before the evening is over, will modestly tell us what he expects posterity to do for him and, quite incidentally, we will learn that the circulation of the New York Times will again double to-morrow.

"As for me I shall be strongly inclined to let posterity shift for itself, if some kind wave of good fortune will only carry me safely through the next few minutes. I am nearly as indifferent about the future as the young man in Chicago who stood on a street corner contentedly smoking a cigar. He was approached by a benevolent looking old man who asked him how many cigars he smoked a day. 'Three,' said the young man. 'And how much do you pay for them?' continued the inquisitor. 'Ten cents each,' was the answer. 'And you know, sir,' said the old man, 'that if you would stop smoking and save up that money until you are as old as I am, you might own that big building on the opposite corner?' 'Do you own it?' asked the smoker. 'No I don't,' replied the old man, 'Well, sir,' said the young fellow, 'I do.' When a man is credibly informed that he owns the earth and the fulness thereof, why should he worry about the future?

"The fly in the ointment is the immediate present. I must talk. I cannot talk about myself and I see by the toast list that I am barred from talking about anything else. My predicament is like that of the young minister who was visiting a Sunday-school and was unexpectedly called upon to make a few remarks. As he arose he said: 'Now children, what shall I talk about?' A chubby little fellow in the front row, who had just successfully delivered himself of the golden text, yelled out 'What do you know, Mister.'

"I don't want this story to give you the impression that my presence here to-night is wholly unexpected. On the contrary I am willing to admit that it is the outcome of a long and diplomatic correspondence, which finally resulted in my receiving a definite, and as I am informed and believe, a bona fide invitation. The matter was first referred to by Wiley in a letter about two years ago, in which he stated that it was his turn to be president and Hedges's trick on the grievance committee. He added that he wanted to make his administration a success, but it has not been fully decided whether his annual dinner would be military, judicial or non-partisan, and would kindly be considered in vagueness for anything that might happen. Well, I did kindly hold myself in readiness, but nothing happened except a military dinner at which I was ineligible for first place on account of a lack of qualifications.

"Later on I received the welcome news that Wiley and Hedges had swapped places and that the latter would be the nominal president for the ensuing year. I hastened to wire Wiley my congratulations upon the recognition accorded to a noble and peace-loving profession. The message was evidently shown to Hedges for he at once came forward with an invitation that was unconditionally and promptly accepted, for fear that the clergy, or some other enterprising profession, should again supplant the meek and long suffering judiciary.

"My existence was somewhat similar to that of the Buffalo girl who had been courted three years without the sign of a proposal. Finally, while the bashful suitor was visiting New York, he decided to propose by mail. That evening he sent the fateful letter and, for a few hours, he was the happiest man in the city. Then he began to doubt the wisdom of his course and wondered how his letter would be received. That night he slept but little. He thought all sorts of things and vainly wished he could intercept the letter before it reached the girl. A breakfast the next morning he had an inspiration. Rushing to a telegraph office he seized a blank and penned the following message: 'Mailed you wrong letter yesterday. Please do not open and deliver to me on my arrival.' After that he breathed more freely and he was not quite sure that he had acted wisely. Upon returning to his office in the afternoon he found a telegram from the girl which read as follows: 'No mistake, you mailed right letter. It was about time.'

Predominance of Lawyers.

"Those of you who believe in an untrammeled judiciary and the constitutionally restricted freedom of speech will undoubtedly regret with me the overwhelming predominance of lawyers on the toast list. Unfortunately for the rest of us they are all men who have acquired reputation for ability to befog courts and hypnotize juries and our only hope is to combine against them. They will talk about the greatness of the bar, of the bar of Western New York and of the bar of Rochester until some of the lawyers present will feel like the fellow who had been tried for horse stealing and acquitted. An old acquaintance stepped up and after congratulating him said, 'Now, that the danger is passed. Tell me, honor bright, didn't you steal that horse?' 'Well,' said Jim, 'I thought all along I took that horse, but since I've heard George Raines's speech I don't believe I did.'

"To this small and brave but misguided minority of speakers who do not belong to any bar and who have been lured hither by promises of perfect equality and fair treatment, we—that is all of us except the lawyers—extend our profound sympathy. They must feel as crowded as the man in the tenement house which was being inspected under the direction of the board of health. The inspector entered the eight by ten room and found it divided by chalk lines into squares so as to mark out a quarter section for each of the four families then occupying the room. 'How do you get anything here?' inquired the inspector. 'Very well, sir,' was the reply. 'Only the man in the furthest corner keeps boarders.'

"And now, Mr. Toastmaster and gentlemen, permit me to turn from the passing jest to the earnest and predominating thoughts of my mind.

"I bring you, you, men of New York and members of the Society of the Genesee, for this magnificent welcome and the genuine hospitality which underlies it. I thank you, my friends and brothers of Rochester and Western New York, for the generous good fellowship which has brought you from the comfort of your distant firesides, to this cosmopolitan hearthstone, to join with our brethren of New York in extending to me this princely greeting. As I look about me into these kindly responsive faces I feel that I am among my friends. Not alone the friends of to-day and yesterday, but the friends who started with me in the morning of life and to whom I was indebted for first place on account of a lack of qualifications.

"Later on I received the welcome news that Wiley and Hedges had swapped places and that the latter would be the nominal president for the ensuing year. I hastened to wire Wiley my congratulations upon the recognition accorded to a noble and peace-loving profession. The message was evidently shown to Hedges for he at once came forward with an invitation that was unconditionally and promptly accepted, for fear that the clergy, or some other enterprising profession, should again supplant the meek and long suffering judiciary.

"My existence was somewhat similar to that of the Buffalo girl who had been courted three years without the sign of a proposal. Finally, while the bashful suitor was visiting New York, he decided to propose by mail. That evening he sent the fateful letter and, for a few hours, he was the happiest man in the city. Then he began to doubt the wisdom of his course and wondered how his letter would be received. That night he slept but little. He thought all sorts of things and vainly wished he could intercept the letter before it reached the girl. A breakfast the next morning he had an inspiration. Rushing to a telegraph office he seized a blank and penned the following message: 'Mailed you wrong letter yesterday. Please do not open and deliver to me on my arrival.' After that he breathed more freely and he was not quite sure that he had acted wisely. Upon returning to his office in the afternoon he found a telegram from the girl which read as follows: 'No mistake, you mailed right letter. It was about time.'

Predominance of Lawyers.

"Those of you who believe in an untrammeled judiciary and the constitutionally restricted freedom of speech will undoubtedly regret with me the overwhelming predominance of lawyers on the toast list. Unfortunately for the rest of us they are all men who have acquired reputation for ability to befog courts and hypnotize juries and our only hope is to combine against them. They will talk about the greatness of the bar, of the bar of Western New York and of the bar of Rochester until some of the lawyers present will feel like the fellow who had been tried for horse stealing and acquitted. An old acquaintance stepped up and after congratulating him said, 'Now, that the danger is passed. Tell me, honor bright, didn't you steal that horse?' 'Well,' said Jim, 'I thought all along I took that horse, but since I've heard George Raines's speech I don't believe I did.'

"To this small and brave but misguided minority of speakers who do not belong to any bar and who have been lured hither by promises of perfect equality and fair treatment, we—that is all of us except the lawyers—extend our profound sympathy. They must feel as crowded as the man in the tenement house which was being inspected under the direction of the board of health. The inspector entered the eight by ten room and found it divided by chalk lines into squares so as to mark out a quarter section for each of the four families then occupying the room. 'How do you get anything here?' inquired the inspector. 'Very well, sir,' was the reply. 'Only the man in the furthest corner keeps boarders.'

"And now, Mr. Toastmaster and gentlemen, permit me to turn from the passing jest to the earnest and predominating thoughts of my mind.

"I bring you, you, men of New York and members of the Society of the Genesee, for this magnificent welcome and the genuine hospitality which underlies it. I thank you, my friends and brothers of Rochester and Western New York, for the generous good fellowship which has brought you from the comfort of your distant firesides, to this cosmopolitan hearthstone, to join with our brethren of New York in extending to me this princely greeting. As I look about me into these kindly responsive faces I feel that I am among my friends. Not alone the friends of to-day and yesterday, but the friends who started with me in the morning of life and to whom I was indebted for first place on account of a lack of qualifications. But may be more imposing; the art galleries more extensive, but nowhere in the wide world can you find more loving mothers, more affectionate sisters, more devoted daughters, more faithful wives and sweethearts than on the banks of the Genesee.

"But there must be something more than men and women brought together within the confines of municipal boundaries, no matter how intelligent they may be, no matter how sturdy and upright, to constitute a city in its true sense. The population may be ever so great, the area may be ever so large and yet there may be no city in its full meaning. Its parks may be filled with flowers that load the air with perfume; its buildings may stretch themselves skyward until they touch the clouds; Raphael and Michael Angelo may speak from the walls of its galleries; Shakespeare and Milton, Schiller and Goethe may whisper from the shelves in its libraries; Wagner and Beethoven may fill the air with their immortal symphonies, and yet there may be no teal city.

"The true city is not made up of these things alone, nor of clean streets and every adequate provision of gas and ashes and [illegible] highways and [illegible] fragmentation. The [illegible] is one where all these things are present, but where there is also present a community desire to advance the interests of all the people; the poorest as well as the richest; the weakest as well as the strongest. These things do not constitute a city, but the people themselves constitute the city, and the best city is the one where the people are happy and contented, and independent, where charity is rare because unnecessary, and where crimes are scarce because of want of temptation.

"Every municipality as a unit has a body to be developed, a mind to be cultivated, a moral nature to be improved, and an artistic sense to be satisfied. A city, in the exercise of its fullest functions must take notice of this composite man, made up of individuals great and small, educated and uneducated, good and bad, rich and poor, within its borders. A city as a city has to do with all the people within its borders; not with any particular individual or class of men. A city as a city has to do with all the interests of the city; not with any particular interest or combination of interests. It is the function of the city to see that the rights of all are subserved. It is the duty of the city to see that privileges are equally enjoyed. It is the purpose of the city to see that obligations are equally enforced.

"This is the ideal city. But there must be an ideal toward which the municipality is striving, or there can be no genuine progress any more than there can be progress in the case of the individual without an ideal, and to attain lasting results, that ideal must be one which will benefit the entire community and not merely a few. With a concentrated purpose and a high ideal, the city becomes an agent for good in the community as powerful as the church. Ideals cannot be realized at once. Most often they are never fully realized. Civilization has been laboring for the betterment of mankind for centuries, and still its work has but begun. The church has been working ages upon ages, and yet its full task has not been accomplished. It has not been accomplished.

"Enough. If we have lofty ideals toward which we are striving, and which, if stubbornly and impartially persisted in will mean permanent good for all the people. When we have developed in the minds of the people a conscious ideal looking toward the elevation and betterment of all the people; when we shall have riveted public attention upon this ideal, then we may expect the correction of many of the ills now so prominent in the government of our cities, and the attainment of a form of government more generally in the interests of all the people.

"My toast? The City of Rochester! May she be the first to realize this ideal! We love the valley of the Genesee! Why should we not! It is our home! Our hearts will ever turn to thee—thou fairest of the Genesee!"

"Such is the patriot's boast, where'er we roam,
His first, best country, ever is at home."

Poem For the Occasion.

The following poem, written by George Moss, former secretary of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, was read by Richard T. Greene, in the absence of Mr. Moss:

"There is not in the wide world a valley so sweet
As that vale in whose bosom the bright waters meet;
Of Avoca sang Moore; yet how fonder could he
Have recounted the charms of our own Genesee.

From her source in the hills to Ontario's side—
Now leisurely winding, now leaping in pride—
Her music is soft like the tune of a shower;
She hails not—and, failing, but rises in power.

You, her sons, have gone forth to find fortune and fame
Where the city and sea are in happy acclaim,
Where the gateway of commerce swings wide as its wave—
The New World's metropolis, the Old World's amaze.

If contented your lot, then twice happy are we
Who remain in the realm of the fair Genesee,
Since to pleasures of home-life are added the
Which prevail in our hearts at success of the "boys."

As the shepherd's concern for the lamb straying
Is still deeper than that for the flock at his side
So we at the old home account that day cold
Which from you brings no tidings of cheer to the fold.

I conclude with a toast to Judge Werner, your guest—
(All our judges are good, but we send you the best);
He decketh the ermine, that regalia of awe,
Who is prince of good fellows while master of law.

Mr. Wiley's Address.

Louis F. Wiley, in the absence of Hon. David J. Hill, spoke concerning the society and its gratification in being able to honor Judge Werner. Mr. Wiley said in part:

"Ladies and Gentlemen of Rochester and New York and Mr. President: I hope Mr. Terry, the newly-elected president of the society, in taking up his duties will hold before him as a model the excellent administration and the high ideals of Mr. Hedges's immediate predecessor. That a nominating committee appointed by President Hedges has had the independence and the courage to retire him to private life deserves more than passing notice.

"I am really sorry that Mr. Hedges has proven unsatisfactory as your president. Personally, I am very fond of him, and I would have preferred his retention in office for at least another term. I am forced, however, to express my hearty approval of the wise report of the nominating committee and of your own unanimous action. Drastic steps were necessary, and we who have the real interest of the society at heart have not flinched from the performance of a plain and painful duty.

I am not presumptuous enough to undertake the place of Dr. Hill on the toast list. Author, educator, diplomat, David J. Hill has won a commanding place in the regard of his countrymen and has reflected great credit upon the Society of the Genesee. During the illness of Secretary of State Hay he was in charge of the foreign affairs of the country, and he has acquitted himself to the honor of the administration of Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt. He is a source of real respect to all of us that

H. Hill, because of the pressure of official duties, cannot be here to-night, as he had fully expected to be.

"I came here to dine, not to speak. I am somewhat in the position of the angler who fell into the water. His rescuer inquired: 'How did you come to fall overboard?' 'I didn't come to fall overboard,' he answered, 'I came to fish.' Especially was it my resolve not to speak, when I beheld at this table, and at other tables, some of the leading men of the country.

"There is a fittingly large representation of the bench and bar here to-night. Lawyers are always ready to speak, and they generally speak well. My feelings on coming into the room were similar to those of Daniel, who when he entered the den of lions remarked: 'I won't have to do the after-dinner speaking here.'

"To-night we sit at the feet of the judiciary—a department of the government, the purity and stability of which are far more important to the success of our institutions than is the army. We celebrate the elevation to the highest court of the state of another fellow member. In the character and scholarship of the men who have sat on its bench and in its important contributions to jurisprudence, the court of appeals of the state of New York has taken rank with the courts of all the world. We rejoice that one of our own number has taken a place in this exalted tribunal. I hope I may be pardoned for expressing here my appreciation of the friendship of William E. Werner—a friendship which began when I was a boy, and which has grown with the years. I dread to think of the future.

"I have had the satisfaction of watching Judge Werner's progress from clerk of the municipal courts to special county judge; to county judge to justice of the supreme court, to associate judge of the court of appeals. I am in favor of enlarging the membership of the supreme court of the United States.

"I recall that when Judge Werner was a candidate for the county judgeship large placards were displayed on the billboards of the city of Rochester, exhorting the people to vote for him. It was in the theatrical season, and the bill posters placed on one board the name William E. Werner and under it the title of the well-known play, 'A Legal Wreck.' Another sign curiously enough read, 'Drink Werner's Half Pints.'

"The delightful poem which George Moss has contributed to the pleasure of this evening includes in a single short sentence the secret of Judge Werner's gratifying success: 'Prince of good fellows while master of law.' A thorough student of the law and a just and fearless judge, he has always been courteous, obliging and accessible to all men. Austerity has never been a part of his demeanor on or off the bench. Gratifying, indeed, are the tributes to his worth of the president of the United States and the governor of the state, and of other notable men. I know they are indorsed by all his friends here assembled, and by the members of the bar and citizens generally. The Society of the Genesee is proud of him."

Hon. George Raines spoke briefly. He referred to the affection of the bar of Western New York for Judge Werner, extolled his character, justice, ability and legal attainments.

Letters of Regret.

These letters of regret were read:

"I am extremely sorry not to be able to attend the dinner to be given by the Society of the Genesee on Saturday evening, February 8, 1902, in honor of Judge William B. Werner, whom I warmly esteem.

"Judge Werner hardly needs any assurance of my cordial personal regard or of my high opinion of his ability, but I wish you would on this occasion present to him my heartiest congratulations.

"I thank you and the members of your society for your kind invitation.

"Faithfully yours,
(Signed) THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"As I advised you recently, it was my earnest wish that I might be able to attend the dinner of the Society of the Genesee. That I now find it impossible to do so, is a source of very great regret.

"I desire, however, to take this opportunity to say to the members of the Society of the Genesee, that none of them can accord to Judge William B. Werner greater honor, and greater respect than I. When a man has accomplished as much in a lifetime as Judge Werner has already during his career; when he has by the force of pure merit and native ability, worked his way up the rounds of the ladder of his profession until he has reached the very top, then that man should command the admiration of all who know him. You gentlemen are his personal friends, his fellow townsmen. Your acquaintance with him has probably been longer than mine, but I know you cannot esteem his personal friendship higher than I do; and it can give none of you more pleasure to testify to his worth, than I take in writing this letter. Very truly yours,
(Signed) B. B. ODELL, JR.

"I wrote the other day to the dinner committee saying I did not think it would be possible for me to attend the dinner on the 8th of February. I expect to be called to Rochester the week before, and if so, I cannot get away from Washington on the week of February 8th. I should like very much to be at the dinner and show my regard for Judge Werner, but I fear I can only be present in spirit.

"Very truly yours,
(Signed) JAMES BRECK PERKINS.

"It is with regret that I find myself compelled to decline the invitation of the Society of the Genesee to attend its fourth annual banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria on the evening of February 8th, next.

"The honored guest of the occasion is a friend of mine for whom, personally, I entertain a high regard and whose success in public life has excited my warmest admiration.

"In according to Judge Werner the distinguished honor which your society proposes, you simply display a proper appreciation of one who, by diligence, industry and character has won for himself a position of great dignity and usefulness, the [illegible] which [illegible] discharged

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

restory to his constituents. Trusting ... even greater honors await him, I ... cordial good wishes for the success ... banquet.

Yours most truly,
(Signed) WILLIAM N. ADAMS.

Letters of regret were also received from the following:

Melville W. Fuller, chief justice United States supreme court; Justice Rufus W. Peckham, United States supreme court; Chief Judge Alton B. Parker, court of appeals; Mayor Seth Low; Morris K. Jesup, president of the Chamber of Commerce of New York; Joseph C. Hendrix, president of the National Bank of Commerce; Robert A. Granniss, vice-president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company; St. Clair McKelway, editor of the Brooklyn Eagle; Carl Schurz; John A. Sleicher, editor of Frank Leslie's Weekly; Mrs. Sampson, for Admiral Sampson; James B. Reynolds; C. E. Dawson; ex-Posimaster-General Smith; Judge C. R. Van Brunt; C. L. Rives; Thomas B. Read; George B. Cortelyou; Henry E. Newland; Bishop Potter; James M. Beck; Whitelaw Reid; Edward M. Shepard.

Some Who Were Present.

The dinner was more notable and attractive than any before and the attendance was the largest in the history of the society. Among those from Rochester who were present were: Mayor Adolph Rodenbeck, George Eastman, George W. Aldridge, Henry B. Hathaway and Charles J. Brown, both ex-presidents of the Chamber of Commerce, Emil Kuichling, H. W. Chuck, Judge John F. Kinney, George F. Roth, Charles W. Weis, C. E. Worthman, John B. Hamilton, Charles A. Brown, Henry S. Cohn, Ludwig Stein, Edward A. Stahlbrodt, Hon. Merton E. Lewis, Adolph C. Stahlbrodt, Thomas J. Murphy, County Clerk Charles L. Hunt, Henry Barnard, John A. Davis, Christopher C. Werner, William P. Balkam, George Raines, Alderman J. Miller Kelly, Frank A. Stecher, Marcus H. Van Bergh, George Moss, Charles R. Barnes, Horace McGuire, C. E. Stinson, Ralph T. Olcott, Thomas F. Gilroy, Jr., Joseph A. Crane, Charles Goetzmann, James L. Hotchkiss, A. G. Wright, John W. Hannan, Jacob Gerling, H. F. Atwood, Charles R. Barnes, C. A. Watkyns, Frederick Wuetz, Frederick W. Bickford, F. J. Woodworth, P. C. Cutting, George F. Roth, Colonel Henry S. Redman, Colonel N. P. Pond, Sol Wile, Colonel James S. Graham, F. C. Cole, Dr. H. R. Nettleton, Dr. J. M. Buchanan, Max Holtz, Philip Present, Simeon Wile, A. L. Holtz, William Bausch, M. Kondolf, J. M. Ives, G. Clayton Cox, R. A. Badger, T. B. Dunn, William H. Smith, John S. Rayober, Andrew Bown, Houston Barnard, Charles H. Babcock, Charles H. Rowe.

GRAND MASTER WILL SPEAK

Democrat & Chronicle Feb 10/02

Frank P. Sargent Will Address Chamber of Commerce on "Arbitration" To-Night.

Frank P. Sargent, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, will speak before the Chamber of Commerce this evening. His subject will be "Arbitration." Members of the chamber are invited to bring their families.

Mr. Sargent has held his present office in the brotherhood for seventeen years and is one of the most noted labor leaders of the United States. He was offered a place as industrial commissioner by the late President McKinley when the industrial comission was established and was recently tendered the position of superintendent of Ellis Island by President Roosevelt.

AN EARLY RESORT TO ARBITRATION ADVISED

Grand-Master Sargent's Plea for Amicable Settlements.

Democrat & Chronicle Feb 11/02

BROTHERHOOD'S OBJECT

Arguments of Leader of Locomotive Firemen for Organization of Both Labor and Capital and Better Understanding Between the Two.

An audience that included several ladies assembled at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce last evening to listen to an address on "Arbitration" by Frank P. Sargent, grand master of the National Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. Mr. Sargent was introduced by Hon. Henry C. Brewster, president of the chamber, and spoke in part as follows:

"Before taking up the subject upon which you have asked me to speak, I want to correct some statements made in announcing my coming here. I never want to stand in a false position. It has been said that President Roosevelt has tendered me some sort of position. I want to correct that statement. There is not a word of truth in it. I don't think President Roosevelt has considered me in any way in connection with an appointment of any kind."

After this explanation Mr. Sargent continued:

"As I understand it, I am expected to speak on arbitration as confined to disputes between capital and labor, and without reference to international disputes. A short time ago there was a conference in New York known as the industrial conference. At that conference were present men who represented capital and men who represented the interests of labor. The conference has aroused a feeling favorable to the arbitration of disputes between employers and their employees.

"I am a firm believer in the organization of both labor and capital. This Chamber of Commerce represents organizations; organization for the benefit of all the citizens [illegible]

[illegible] ... Feb 11, 1902

ARBITRATION

Grand Master Sargent Before Chamber of Commerce.

THE PREVENTION OF STRIKES

Mr. Sargent Would Have All Labor Troubles Submitted to Local Boards of Arbitration — With Public Sentiment in His Favor, He Has No Fear of the Result, He Declares.

"Give me public sentiment and I will have no fear of the result," said Frank P. Sargent, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, as he stood before the Chamber of Commerce last evening, making an address on "Arbitration."

Mr. Sargent has probably done more than any other man in the interests of bettering conditions between capital and labor, and is known all through North America as a real leader of labor—not an agitator, but the brains behind a vast force that is rapidly making itself understood.

Mr. Sargent spoke at some length, justifying labor organization, before entering upon the subject of arbitration. He said he never cared to stand in a false position and he wanted to deny the statement that he had been offered a position by President Roosevelt. He had never seen the President, when that gentleman had the time or inclination to take heed to his merits. He was called to the Chamber of Commerce to talk on arbitration, and he presumed that by it was meant that his ideas on the adjustment of differences between capital and labor were requested.

"The recent Industrial Conference in New York," said Mr. Sargent, "has stirred up the question of arbitration and before going further with the subject I would like to say that I am a firm believer in labor, or any other kind of organization, provided it is conducted along right lines. And in saying this I believe I am talking to men who are in sympathy with me, because they know the value of organization as applied to their own Chamber of Commerce. Organization teaches concert of action, resigning in a body, striking, to use that word that sounds so harsh. It has come to be believed that when employers and employees cannot agree, before there is an interruption of business, and business interests should be endangered, efforts should be made to try to bring the parties together and dispose of the matter amicably.

"Organized labor stands on record as asking for arbitration, but we have found some difficulty in getting employers to consent to arbitration. The great American people has much interest in these questions in dispute. Both cannot be right. Cannot we call in a third man and let him decide, and agree to abide by his decision? We want, in every considerable city in the country, an established board of arbitration, to which all disputes can be referred before ill-feeling has been aroused."

Mr. Sargent devoted most of the remainder of his very interesting address to a plea for arbitration of all labor disputes before the misunderstanding became acute. He gave a very interesting account of two cases of arbitration between the Grand Trunk railway, of Canada, and its employees. In one case the general manager of the road selected one man and Mr. Sargent another, and the two selected a prominent Toronto judge as the third arbitrator. The case was presented to these arbitrators and was settled satisfactorily, the men having remained at work without ill-feeling during the progress of the arbitration. In the other case, that of the railway telegraphers, Mr. Sargent was one of the arbitrators, and in this instance also the result was satisfactory. He said that in nine cases of ten where there was trouble the appeal for arbitration came too late; after the men had struck and the employers were in a position to claim, with truth, that there was nothing to arbitrate. He pleaded for arbitration before the trouble became acute and before men had struck.

In response to a question, Mr. Sargent said that he did not believe in any form of compulsory arbitration. It never had succeeded and he did not believe it ever would. He had, however, the utmost faith in voluntary arbitration, as the remedy for all disputes.

Mr. Sargent closed with a prediction that the time would come when all difficulties between capital and labor would be adjusted by arbitration, and an era of permanent prosperity would set in.

At the close of Mr. Sargent's address President Brewster made a few remarks strongly indorsing the sentiments uttered by Mr. Sargent. Said Mr. Brewster:

"I wish those doctrines could be preached from every pulpit in this city."

Officers
1902

HENRY C. BREWSTER	President
DANIEL B. MURPHY	First Vice-President
THOMAS B. DUNN	Second Vice-President
LOUIS N. STEIN	Third Vice-President
BENJAMIN E. CHASE	Treasurer
JOHN M. IVES	Secretary

Executive Committee

HENRY C. BREWSTER — DANIEL B. MURPHY
LOUIS N. STEIN — THOMAS B. DUNN — BENJAMIN E. CHASE
CHARLES P. FORD — CHARLES H. BABCOCK — JAMES S. GRAHAM
MAX BRICKNER — JOHN N. BECKLEY — CHARLES J. BROWN
J. V. McCLINTOCK

Board of Trustees

ONE YEAR	TWO YEARS	THREE YEARS
John F. Alden	Charles E. Baylies	George W. Aldridge
H. F. Atwood	Fred H. Beach	Charles H. Babcock
John N. Beckley	F. A. Brownell	William F. Balkam
Max Brickner	R. E. Chase	Herman Behn
Charles J. Brown	G. Clay Cox	E. Frank Brewster
Charles T. Chapin	T. B. Dunn	Harold P. Brewster
Joseph Farley	Albert O. Fenn	Milton Clark
Charles P. Ford	Henry B. Hathaway	Wesley Crouch
James S. Graham	Henry J. Moore	C. C. Doxy
Wm. A. Hubbard, Jr.	L. W. Moore	Michael Doyle
J. V. McClintock	George J. Oaks	A. E. Lamberton
Daniel R. Murphy	Griff D. Palmer	Henry Lomb
Edward W. Peck	Edward Prizer	Henry S. Mackie
Fernando E. Rogers	L. P. Ross	George E. Merchant
W. H. H. Rogers	R. B. Sherburne	George L. Primrose
Clinton Rogers	Rufus A Sibley	H. H. Rich
Morley A. Stern	W. H. Smith	Irving Rouse
V. F. Whitmore	F. A. Stecher

Standing Committees

Legislation

CHARLES H. BABCOCK, Chairman — WILLIAM PITKIN, Vice-Chairman

George W. Aldridge — Frank H. Hamlin — Irving Rouse
Charles E. Angle — H. H. Hathaway — Rufus A. Sibley
Benjamin E. Chase — A. R. Lamberton — F. A. Stecher
John M. Davy — Daniel R. Murphy — Julius M. Wile
Walter D. Duffy — Edward W. Peck
T. B. Dunn — Lewis P. Ross

Manufactures and Promotion of Trade

CHARLES P. FORD, Chairman — MARK D. KNOWLTON, Vice-Chairman

W. B. Armstrong — John Fahy — Stratton C. Langslow
E. A. Brownell — C. F. Gatland — Henry J. Moore
Willard Cattle — Thomas A. Smyth — George J. Oaks
Charles T. Chapin — C. B. Gilbert — R. F. Sherburne
G. Clay Cox — James L. Hotchkiss
E. N. Curtiss — C. S. Lant

Public Improvements

JAMES S. GRAHAM, Chairman — HAROLD C. KIMBALL, Vice-Chairman

John F. Alden — Abram J. Katz — George F. Roth
H. F. Atwood — Fred C. Lincke — W. H. Smith
Edward Bausch — Willard E. Moore — Lansing G. Wetmore
George C. Buell — Griff D. Palmer — John C. Woodbury
E. J. Burke — Edward Prizer
Charles C. Clark — A. J. Rodenbeck

Railroads and Transportation

JOHN N. BECKLEY, Chairman — E. M. UPTON, Vice-Chairman

William C. Barry — George W. Ham — S. R. Mott, Jr.
George A. Bowman — C. B. Jarvis — E. P. Reed
E. Frank Brewster — J. C. Kahlenbeck — Daniel Smith
Charles B. Bennie — F. W. Keck — George C. Guggenheim
H. E. Graves — C. S. Kellogg — George B. Watkins
A. T. Hagen — E. C. Lapey

Postal Facilities, Telegraphy and Insurance

MAX BRICKNER, Chairman — MICHAEL DOYLE, Vice-Chairman

F. J. Amsden — Milton Clark — Joseph Michaels
E. F. Ashley — A. W. Curtis — L. W. Moore
H. G. Bennett — Edwin A. Fisher — W. C. McDonnell
Horace C. Brewster — R. A. Hamilton — R. J. Strasenburg
Seth J. T. Bush — G. W. Ingmire
James D. Casey — James Johnston

Statistics and Publications

CHARLES J. BROWN, Chairman — WILLIAM D. HALF, Vice-Chairman

W. P. Andrus — W. H. Cooley — J. W. Moore
George F. Argetsinger — C. M. Fisk — Charles K. Newberry
Max Binswanger — E. P. Hamil — P. Ralph Place
Charles Blaess — J. P. Henry — John A. P. Walter
H. W. Calkins — Ulysses Holtz
Frederick F. Church — C. E. Kohlmetz

Convention Hall and Public Market

J. V. McCLINTOCK, Chairman — H. H. RICH, Vice-Chairman

William Aikenhead — James Fee — H. D. Nevin
Henry Barnard — F. W. Ford — James Palmer, Jr.
J. H. Bourke — George J. French — Walter A. Parce
James Brady — M. M. Garson — Philip Present
William H. Briggs — Charles Goetzmann — Henry A. Schaefer
H. J. Butterfield — Sam Gottry — Charles A. Stine
William Carson — C. B. Griffith — L. L. Stone
J. P. Cleary — John B. Hamilton — John W. Taylor
J. G. Davis — David Herr — George A. Trax
F. C. J. Deisinger — C. L. Hunt — C. W. Trotter
B. F. Dunn — L. A. Jeffries — R. S. Underhill
H. E. East — J. Emory Jones — F. P. Van Hoesen
H. K. Elston — William Likly — Charles Vogel
Louis L. Ernst — Max Lowenthal — John A. P. Walter
Raleigh Farrar — Henry S. Mackie — M. J. Warner
J. J. Mandery — C. H. Yoet

Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

The objects for which this corporation is formed are: to foster the trade and commerce of the City of Rochester; to protect such trade and commerce from unjust and unlawful exactions; to reform abuses in trade, and to promote a more enlarged and friendly intercourse between merchants and manufacturers.

Persons having money to invest in local manufacturing enterprises should communicate with the Secretary.

A book for the free entry of real estate, suitable for building sites, can be found at the office of the Secretary.

Members are requested to correspond with the Secretary or, in special cases, with the President, concerning any matters of public interest, which they believe may properly come before the officers or committees of the Chamber.

TELEPHONES 379

Organized 1887 — Incorporated 1888

Rochester
Chamber of Commerce

Officers and Standing Committees for 1902

ployes cannot agree, don't strike, but solicit aid from your Board of Arbitration, and nine out of ten times you will reach an amicable settlement.

"Gentlemen of the Chamber of Commerce, your best duty to the industrial peace and prosperity of your city will be to urge and foster and encourage organization of the labor within your gates."

"Compulsory arbitration," said Mr. Sargent, in answer to a question, "is something the American people will not stand for and do not want. You can sometimes force a man to do something, but he is not cheerful about it and it generally makes him discontented. My advice, then, is to foster organization and a closer relationship between Capital and Labor."

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

Chamber of Commerce.

On the evening of MONDAY, FEB. 17, 1902, at 8 o'clock, in Assembly Hall, Mr. Frank H. Latimore, of the Household Art Rooms, will give a talk, illustrated by stereopticon views colored by himself, on "Color as Applied to Decorating and Furnishing Homes." Many examples of interior decoration and furnishing will be given.

Mr. Latimore's ability as an artist in his profession is well known, not only in Rochester, but in New York, Philadelphia and other large centers of wealth and population.

The present opportunity is therefore an exceptional one of obtaining correct information on a subject of deep interest to all, viz: the adornment of the home.

The ladies are especially invited. It is requested that those intending to be present be in their seats promptly at 8 o'clock, before the hall is darkened.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1902.

John M. Rock
Secretary.

An Equitable Measure.

Senator Slater's Employers' Liability Bill, recently introduced in the Legislature, seems to more adequately meet the situation than any other proposed legislation along the same lines. Mr. Slater's bill is at least more equitable, both for the employer and employe, than the law now in force. The feature of the bill, in which there should be decided interest manifested because it seems to be proposed in a spirit of perfect fairness to all concerned, is the section defining the so-called "necessary risks" of certain employments. This section reads:

Section 3. An employe by entering upon or continuing in the service of the employer shall be presumed to have assented to the necessary risks of the occupation or employment and no others. The necessary risks of the occupation or employment shall in all cases arising under this act be considered as including those risks and those only inherent in the nature of the business which remain after the employer has exercised due care in providing for the safety of his employes and has complied with the laws affecting or regulating such business or occupation for the greater safety of such employe. In an action maintained for the recovery of damages for personal injuries to an employe received after this act takes effect, owing to any cause for which the employer would otherwise be liable, the fact that the employe continued in the service of the employer in the same place and course of employment after the discovery by such or after he had been informed of the danger of personal injury therefrom, shall not as a matter of law be considered as an assent by such employe to the existence or continuance of such risk of personal injury therefrom or as negligence contributing to such injury. The question whether the employe understood and assumed the risk of such injury or was guilty of contributory negligence by his continuance in the same place and course of employment with knowledge of the risk of injury, shall be one of fact subject to the usual powers of the court in a proper case to set aside a verdict rendered contrary to the evidence. An employe or his legal representative shall not be entitled under this act to any right of compensation or remedy against the employer in any case where such employe knew of the defect or negligence which caused the injury and failed within a reasonable time to give or cause to be given information thereof to the employer or to some person superior to himself in the service of the employer who had intrusted to him some general superintendence (unless it shall appear on the trial that such defect or negligence was known to such employer or superior person prior to such injuries to the employe).

Attention should be more particularly directed to the provision of the above section which exempts the employer from liability if the injured employe "knew of the defect or negligence which caused the injury and failed within a reasonable time to give or cause to be given information thereof to the employer or to some person superior to himself in the service of the employer who had intrusted to him some general superintendence (unless it shall appear on the trial that such defect or negligence was known to such employer or superior person prior to such injuries to the employe)." This provision rightfully imposes an obligation on the employe as well as the employer and will, if it becomes a law, assure the latter of more conscientious service on the part of employes. The bill ought to become a law for this reason if for no other.

Frank H. Latimore will give a talk Monday night before the Chamber of Commerce on "Color as Applied to Decorating and Furnishing Homes." The lecture will be illustrated. Ladies are especially invited to attend. An entertaining and instructive talk is expected. Mr. Latimore's ability as an artist is well known in Rochester and abroad. The hall will be darkened promptly at 8 o'clock.

Roch. Dem. Feb. 12, 1902

NESDAY, FEBRUARY

TEN ADDITIONAL WATER RIGHTS

PURCHASE OF COTTON MILL BY GAS AND ELECTRIC.

PLANS OF MR. JUDSON

NEGOTIATIONS BEGUN BY LATE PRESIDENT OF COMPANY.

A STRATEGIC POSITION

Hon. Frederick Cook, President of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, Yesterday Consummated a Deal for the Important Cotton Mill Property for $110,000 Consideration.

Hon. President Cook, president of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, yesterday consumated a deal by which the Rochester cotton mill property, at the foot of Commercial street, with its 10,000 spindles, its historical building, its ten full water rights on Brown's race and its valuable site, becomes the property of the gas and electric company. The consideration was $110,000.

Negotiations for the purchase of this important property have been in progress for some time, having been begun by the late J. Lee Judson, as part of his plan for the more complete utilization of the energy of the Genesee river, and in accordance with Mr. Judson's plan of utilizing the energy involved in the flow of the river, by a system of storage and regulation. With the death of Mr. Judson, Mr. Cook, who succeeded him in the presidency of the gas and electric company, took up the negotiations, which terminated yesterday in the company securing the property. It was purchased of the Garner heirs, through William E. Thorn, of New York, who had charge of the property.

The Rochester cotton mill occupies a very advantageous site to the westward of the Gorsline building. It was built by Seth C. Jones in 1845-1846. The business was carried on by him for a time by Mr. Jones on his own account. Later a stock company was finally formed, and for a time the property was known as the Jones cotton mill. In 1863 John Vickery leased the property, and afterwards purchased it, and conducted the business until 1863, when the mill property was purchased by Thomas Garner. For several years it has been owned by the heirs of Mr. Garner, from whom it was yesterday purchased by Mr. Cook for the Rochester Gas and Electric Company.

The site upon which the cotton mill stands is about 240 by 160 feet. It is bounded on the east by the Gorsline building, on the south by Commercial street, on the west by Brown's race and the Gleason tool factory, and on the north partially by the property of the Rochester Gas and Electric Company, known as station No. 2, and partially by the high bank of the river as it bends to the westward from the upper falls of the Genesee.

With the cotton mill property, the Gas and Electric Company acquires the largest number of water rights on Brown's race owned by any single owner except itself. The cotton mill has ten full first rights at the very head of Brown's race. In addition to these ten rights, the property possesses many valuable strategic advantages for its new owners. Possession of this property gives the company free access to its station No. 12, from Commercial street, and will enable it, by reason of the additional land, to carry out the projected improvement of building a large brick station to supplement the present station No. 2.

It is understood that the cotton mill will be rented for manufacturing purposes, the required power being furnished by electricity, thus admitting of the more advantageous use of the large amount of water power in the generation of electricity. Possession is to be given at once.

The acquisition of the ten full water rights which go with the cotton mill property is an important addition to the already large preponderance of water rights in the city, and in the valley of the Genesee above the city, already owned by the Rochester Gas and Electric Company. Before making this purchase the Gas and Electric Company already owned all of the rights involved in the upper falls on the East side of the river, or one-half of the total power rights of the upper falls. On Brown's race, besides its original nine rights, the Gas and Electric Company had at the time of J. Lee Judson's death, acquired these additional first rights:

Glen state, 2; Hinds company, 3 3-4; Shawmut mill, 2 1-2; Frankfort mills, 2; Ferguson & Lewis mill, 3. It had also leased twelve full rights. By means of the purchase of the ten rights of the cotton mill, the Gas and Electric company now owns absolutely thirty-two and one-fourth full water rights, and leases twelve rights, forty-four and one-fourth of the

In the Johnson & Seymour race the Gas and Electric Company owns rights as follows: Ely mills, 3 first and 3 second rights; Harris property, 2 first and 2 second rights; the Holl property, 2 first and 3½ second rights. In all there are nineteen first and thirty-two and one-half second rights on the Johnson & Seymour race.

Of the seventy-eight first rights on the Carroll and Pitkugh race, with a fall of eleven feet, the Gas and Electric Company owns eight.

The middle falls, with a head of thirty feet, has thirty-two rights, and of these the Gas and Electric Company owns twenty-seven.

The entire lower falls, with its head of over ninety feet, is owned absolutely by the Gas and Electric Company. No other owner has any rights in the water power involved in these falls.

It was stated yesterday that the purchase of the important cotton mill property, with its ten first water rights on Brown's race, was in pursuance of the policy, so often reiterated, of carrying out in their integrity the plans of the late J. Lee Judson, in conserving the water power of the Genesee river for the benefit of Rochester's industries.

HERALD, WEDNESDAY

ARMY POSTS.

Herald Feb. 12/02

Report of the War Department Board on Military Camps—No Post Designated for Rochester.

By Special Wire to The Herald.

Washington, Feb. 11—Secretary Root made public this morning the report of the army post board which was charged with a reorganization of the army posts system and the selection of military camps. The board was composed of the following officers: Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, Major Generals John R. Brooke, Elwell S. Otis, Samuel B. M. Young, Arthur MacArthur; Brigadier Generals John C. Bates, George M. Randall and William A. Kobbe. The board recommends the following locations for camp sites:

One in the vicinity of Chickamauga Park, Ga.; one at Fort Riley, Kan.; one in the Conewago Valley, in Lebanon, Dauphin and Lancaster Counties, Pa.; one on the Nacimiento ranch, in Monterey and San Luis Obispo Counties, Cal. It also recommends that the necessary steps be made of the Nacimiento ranch and the Conewago valley.

The board recommends that the following new posts be established:

One for a regiment of infantry in the vicinity of Los Angeles, Cal.

One for a regiment of cavalry in the camp site on the Nacimiento ranch.

One for a regiment of infantry in the vicinity of Albuquerque, N. M.

One for a regiment of infantry at Governors Island, New York harbor.

One for a regiment of infantry in the vicinity of Washington, D. C., north of the Potomac River.

One for a battalion of infantry in the Red River valley, in the vicinity of Crookston.

One for a regiment of infantry on the camp site in the Conewago valley, Pennsylvania, when practicable.

The report says that its action is based upon a force in the United States of 50,000 men. In its specific recommendations concerning the permanent posts the board suggests that the garrison at Columbus, Ohio, consist of four companies of infantry; at Niagara, N. Y., headquarters and eight companies of infantry, and two battalions of field artillery; Fort Ontario, N. Y., four companies of infantry; Plattsburg barracks, N. Y., headquarters and twelve companies of infantry, and at Fort Porter, N. Y., four companies of infantry.

AGAINST BARNES BILL

LOCAL COUNCIL PRESIDENT WILL GO TO ALBANY TO PROTEST.

Proposed Legislation Denounced by Women of Rochester—Work of Local Council Chiefly With School Questions—Chamber of Commerce.

Herald Feb. 13

Mrs. James W. Rosenthal, the newly-elected president of the Local Council of Women, representing forty of the women's clubs of Rochester, presided at the meeting held yesterday afternoon at Reynolds library. A large number of the city's representative women were present and it was evident that whatever may have been said of the council in the past, it is now prepared to work.

Since its organization the council has seemed to stand for the influence of women in the management of the public schools and it seems to have been decided by common consent that its work for the present shall lie in that same path.

the new secretary, Mrs. Hilton Brown, had read the minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report had been given, the president, Mrs. Rosenthal, made a clear and concise statement of the work that lay before the council and spoke earnestly of what could be done for Rochester, declaring emphatically that it was no better than other cities and there was much to be done and many evils to be corrected.

She urged the members present to remember that the council stood for high aims and wide interests and that results could be be accomplished through harmony of action and unity of purpose. Unless the great body of women for which the council stands was with her, no matter how much work and time and thought she gave to the organization, nothing could be done.

Mrs. Rosenthal then gave the views of the committee called recently for the purpose of discussing the work of the council. The question of school suffrage for women was first suggested, the committee deciding to inform the clubs and ask for an expression of opinion. Since then, the Barnes bill, now pending in the legislature, suggested itself as matter demanding instant attention as it not only threatens the school system of Rochester, but legislates women off the school boards in the cities of the second class. This she considered a serious question and asked for an expression of opinion.

Mrs. W. C. Gannett immediately rose and made a vigorous speech condemning the Barnes bill as particularly vicious, tending not only to take away the privileges won by Rochester, but to disturb and harass the teachers and patrons of the schools. Mrs. Gannett was in favor of opposing the bill in its broadest significance, as constituting a menace to other cities of the state as well as Rochester. Mrs. Horace B. Hooker made remarks of a similar nature. Mrs. Horace Pierce thought the bill undemocratic. Mrs. Joseph O'Connor said that she did not know that the bill was vicious in its applications to school matters in other cities and thought that the people here might not be informed as to conditions in other cities. She thought it might be better to confine the council's protest to the bill as affecting Rochester and that the women of this city should fight against the passage of the bill.

Mrs. F. F. Dow made an able speech, declaring that the Barnes bill was "loaded" and that there is a great deal more in it than appears on the surface.

"To begin with," said the speaker, "it rests with the Common Council to hold back or give money to the school board just as it sees fit. The board will be absolutely at the mercy of the Common Council, whereas now the council is obliged to make an appropriation to the board, according to the number of school children. The old board was constantly hampered by this very provision. It had to continue those horrible annexes and couldn't erect new and suitable buildings because it simply could not get the Common Council to make appropriations for improvements. Consequently, it had to do the best it could. Under the present law, the Common Council is obliged to give a certain amount of money, but if the Barnes law is passed, all of those old conditions and limitations will again obtain. I believe the city of Rochester knows what is best for itself, and that it should govern its own school matters."

After some discussion as to methods of showing how the women of Rochester feel in this matter, it was unanimously decided to send the president, Mrs. Rosenthal, to Albany to use all her powers of argument before the committee that is to meet for the hearing on the bill.

Mrs. Danforth suggested that it might be well to have some of Rochester's influential men speak in this matter, and as it was said that R. A. Sibley and James G. Cutler were instrumental in forming the board as it stands at present, it was decided to ask those gentlemen to aid the council. Mrs. Louis Bigelow, Mrs. Horace B. Hooker and Mrs. F. F. Dow were appointed a committee to urge the Chamber of Commerce to take action on the Barnes bill as it relates to Rochester.

It was further suggested that every woman present should write a personal letter to the members of the Monroe county delegation in the legislature asking it to work against the passage of the bill.

The question of abolishing boards of managers of charitable organizations was next considered and the proposed legislation was condemned. Mrs. Rosenthal outlined a plan of work for the council and suggested a reciprocity exchange for the various clubs—a measure which met the unqualified approval of all. Miss Susan B. Anthony and Mrs. Mary Thayer Sanford were named as delegates to the fourth triennial of the National Council of Women to be held in Washington, February 19th to 26th inclusive. The council adjourned to meet at the call of the president.

The Times Feb. 13 1902

THURSDAY EVENING. THI

CITY IN DANGER OF WATER FAMINE

Commissioner McClintock Calls Attention to Possibility of Conduit Pipes Bursting and the Urgent Need of a Second Reservoir on Cobb's Hill.

(From Yesterday's Last Editions.)

According to Commissioner McClintock, Rochester is in danger of a water famine.

When the city, a few years ago, spent millions of dollars for the construction of a second conduit to Hemlock Lake, the people thought that a liberal and sufficient supply had been secured for many years to come. The supply was secured, but because of the desire to economize, the plan for the new conduit with the second reservoir was only partially carried out and the second reservoir was omitted.

Now a break in the large conduit pipes is one of the accidents which may be reasonably expected at any time and more than ever in times of severe cold and deep snows when the pipes contract and are under strain. If the pipes of the conduits should break at the present time, several miles from the city, on the way to Hemlock Lake, there would certainly be a very serious water famine, said Mr. McClintock today.

The reservoir at Mt. Hope will hold a supply of water sufficient for only a day and a half and before repairs could be made to the breaks by men and teams struggling through the mountainous drifts in the Genesee Valley the reservoir would be exhausted many times over and the city left to suffer from thirst and at the mercy of the fire fiend. The danger is a real one and the city has been warned against it by many expert engineers, among whom is Emil Kuechling.

The city officials are trying to secure the completion of the plans for the new conduit so far as the construction of the new reservoir is concerned. Plans have been prepared for a reservoir on Cobb's Hill, which is the most available spot within many miles.

The site embraces 50 acres of land which is at an altitude of 600 feet above sea level and which is admirably fitted for the purpose. The plan calls for the construction of a new modern double reservoir which will cost $800,000. The reservoir is planned to be built in two parts, that is, so that one part may be built and put in use while the other is being finished as occasion requires.

A greater portion of the land on Cobb's Hill is owned by persons represented by Judge John D. Lynn as attorney. These owners have not named a price for their land, but their attorney has declared that they will abide by the decision of a committee of three persons as to the value of the property.

The city must secure this land at once, as it is the site of a fine gravel bed from which many thousands of yards of material are being drawn yearly. The hill is being rapidly destroyed for reservoir purposes by the excavations for gravel, which are a hundred feet in depth. There is no other available site nearer than ten miles. The new reservoir is planned to hold ten days' supply for the city. The average consumption of water in the city is 12,000,000 gallons daily.

The great necessity of building this reservoir at once has forced itself on the city officials and all others who have studied the situation. It is stated that the cost of building the first half of the new double reservoir would be at least $400,000 with the pipe line included. While this expenditure is inevitable and is necessary at once, the city is financially crippled by the debt limit and it is to get around this that some plan must be devised.

It has been suggested that as there is $12,000,000 worth of property in Rochester which is now legally exempt from taxation, that a very small tax be levied on this property through an act of the Legislature so that the city could use the valuation of the property now exempted as a basis for the total valuation, on which the legal limit of 10 per cent is figured. Such a plan would give the city sufficient revenue or really sufficient valuation to bring the debt limit up high enough to make the necessary expenditure for the new reservoir possible.

In the report of the State Tax Commissioners it is stated that the total amount of property in the state legally immune from tax is more than $723,000,000, or one-fifth of all the property in the state.

The new reservoir would take at least three years to construct at the lowest calculation, but the city should in the opinion of Commissioner McClintock, secure the land at Cobb's Hill without delay.

Color in Decorating.

Frank H. Lattimore will give a talk on "Color as Applied to Decorating and Furnishing Homes" before the Chamber of Commerce at 8 o'clock next Monday night. It will be illustrated with stereopticon views. Many examples of interior decoration and furnishing will be shown. The ladies are especially invited.

Herald Feb. 14/02

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

WOMEN WORKING FOR BARNES BILL'S DEFE[illegible]

Post & Chron. Dec. [illegible]

Influence Will be Brought to Bear From Every Quarter—Meeting at Chamber of Commerce.

"The fact of the matter is," said a prominent woman yesterday, who has been working for the defeat of the Barnes bill ever since its text was made public, "I don't believe the men are half awake to the import of this bill. In fact, many of them have not even read it through, and have no idea of the danger in it. Apparently it is a harmless sort of measure, but I believe that concerted action is behind it. Many of our prominent men believe it will not pass, and have treated it as a joke more than anything else, but after it slides through at Albany, as things have a way of sliding through when you least expect them to, these men will wake up to the seriousness of the joke."

It certainly will not be the fault of the women of Rochester if the voters are not aroused to action in the matter. Since the meeting of the Local Council of Women Wednesday, the active and prominent club women of the city have hardly slept or eaten. They are leaving undone nothing that will tend to arouse public sentiment against the passage of the bill.

All day long yesterday the telephone bells of prominent members of the Chamber of Commerce were kept ringing, and every woman interested entered her protest and asked the gentlemen to use their influence for the defeat of the bill. They promised. In fact, Secretary Ives and President Brewster have declared themselves as strongly opposed to the bill and say the Chamber of Commerce will do everything in its power to defeat it.

It was stated on good authority by a prominent member of the chamber that a meeting is called for this afternoon, when the legislative committee expects to confer with the Monroe legislators in regard to the bill and urge the senators and assemblymen to use all their influence to defeat the measure. The committee appointed by the Local Council of Women may improve this opportunity to also add its voice to the general protest.

The Woman's Union, of which School Commissioner Mrs. W. A. Montgomery is president, will hold a meeting of its board of managers this morning at 10:30 o'clock for the purpose of taking action on the pending bill. It was stated yesterday that it is likely that the union will send two of its strongest speakers to Albany to attend, with the president of the local council, Mrs. Rosenthal, the hearing on the bill. Though the names cannot be authoritatively announced until after action by the board, it was stated last evening that the women whose names were prominently mentioned are Mrs. W. C. Gannett, acting president of the union during the absence in Europe of Mrs. Montgomery, and Mrs. F. F. Dow.

It was the general opinion among the women that these are as strong delegates as could be named. They are both able speakers, and it was stated that no woman in Rochester is better informed on school matters than Mrs. Dow. She knows the workings of the old board and is thoroughly familiar with existing conditions and laws.

How thoroughly the women are in earnest and how grave they consider the situation is shown by the manner in which they have gone about the work of arousing all the forces to action to oppose the bill. Mrs. Moses, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Nineteenth Ward Republican Club, has been communicated with and she has set the wheels of her organization in motion.

There are likely to be some interesting developments after the numerous conferences that are to be held to-day.

The proposition providing for the [illegible] of the present board of [illegible] the [illegible] Commissioner, consign the children of the public schools to the not tender mercies of partisan politicians. It is to avert this result, if possible, that the great army of mothers of the school children has been summoned. And in response to the summons, the army is gathering in force.

Several bodies of representative women have already taken action, and will send representatives to Albany for the purpose of making the situation so clear that the men who are responsible for the making of laws will not have the excuse that they are ignorant of the wishes of the people of Rochester in the matter of the public schools. Other organizations are preparing to take immediate action on the same lines.

The subject of the proposed radical change in the status of the public schools of this city came up at the meeting of the executive committee of the Women's Union held at No. 38 South Washington street yesterday morning. The Barnes bill was discussed in all of its phases. It was explained that there was no hope that the sponsors of the bill would consent to an amendment that would except Rochester from its provisions, but that the effort would be to make the bill a political measure, applying to the four second-class cities of the state, including Rochester, and it would be pushed through, if possible. It was further explained that if the present status of the public schools of Rochester is to be maintained, the bill as it stands must be defeated.

A committee, consisting of Mrs. Frank F. Dow and Mrs. Louise Bigelow, was appointed to communicate at once with the legislative committee of the Chamber of Commerce and ask that the influence of the chamber be used to further all honorable efforts to defeat the Barnes school bill. It was further understood that the committee would confer with Rochester's representatives in the senate and assembly, and strengthen their hands in their opposition to the measure.

In the letter from the executive committee of the Women's Union to the legislative committee of the Chamber of Commerce, it was set forth that the Barnes bill places absolute power over the schools of Rochester in the hands of the mayor, that its provisions destroy the high qualifications now required of teachers and that it in terms excludes women from membership of the board of education.

In accordance with the request of the Women's Union, the legislative committee of the Chamber of Commerce met at the rooms of the chamber at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The subject of the Barnes bill and its effect on the public schools of Rochester was fully considered. As the result, the legislative committee unanimously adopted the resolution which follows, which undoubtedly represents the sentiments of 9 per cent. of those who are interested in Rochester's present admirable school system:

Resolved, That we commend the action of our local legislators at Albany, in opposing senate bill No. 381, known as the Barnes school bill, so far as Rochester is concerned, and that the secretary of this chamber write our senators and assemblyman, requesting them to give their voices and votes against the bill.

In the meantime, other bodies of women are not inactive. Mrs. W. C. Gannett has been appointed to represent the Women's Union at the hearing on the bill at Albany, and other organizations of women will also send delegates. Already the machinery of the powerful and influential body of mothers' clubs had been set in motion, and during the next few days the influence which was so strongly exerted in the last election will be used, if possible, to see that the results of that campaign, so far as the public schools are concerned, are not nullified.

Democrat & Chronicle. Feb 15 1902.

ROCHESTER WOMEN ARE FULLY AROUSED

Determined to Protect Interest of the Public Schools.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Resolution in Opposition to the Barnes School Bill Adopted by Legislative Committee at Request of Women's Union—Mothers' Clubs to Act.

During the canvass which preceded last fall's election, in which the completion of the board of education was involved, the women who are interested in the cause of education in Rochester were much in evidence. They showed a peculiar talent for organization, and developed a degree of energy in a cause which they considered right which was an object lesson to veteran politicians of the sterner sex. In the sense of being successful politics, it was good politics, and it is more than hinted that the gentle politicians rather liked the game.

Now the danger signal is again at the fore, and an Amazonian host is gathering, prepared to fight the proposed legislation involved in the so-called Barnes bill, which, they claim, would, if enacted into law, nullify the victory won at the ballot things last fall and turn the hands on the educational dial backward. There is no mistaking the attitude of the women of [illegible] when the [illegible]

[illegible] Color in Homes. Post Feb 15/02

Francis Latimore, of the Household Art rooms, will give a talk on "Color in Decorating and Furnishing Homes," before the members and friends of the Chamber of Commerce next Monday night. Mr. Latimore is the artist who had charge of the color scheme and interior decorations of the First M. E. church. His lecture will be of especial interest to ladies who are cordially invited to attend the Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday night.

The Barnes School Bill.

We have no means of knowing the purpose of Senator Barnes, the author of Senate bill No. 441, in introducing that measure, but a careful examination of the bill is not conducive to the belief that it is intended to be approved by any body of men of even mediocre intelligence.

The bill proposes to destroy the local organizations of the educational departments of cities of the second class, and to erect upon their ruins systems of educational supervision which shall be controlled by influences which are purely political, and which have no proper relation to educational management. It takes from the people of each city the power directly to choose the officers who shall manage their public schools, and confers the power of appointment to membership in the board upon the Mayor. The supervision of the finances of the educational department is taken from the Board of Education and distributed in a vague and uncertain manner among other departments of the city government. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment is endowed with the power to fix the salaries of the Superintendent of Schools, the teachers and other employes. Other functions that are purely financial, are conferred upon the Board of Contract and Supply, while the location of some powers is entirely omitted from the measure. Were the bill to become a law, almost all business sought to be transacted under its provisions would incur the risks of delay by legal controversies and of possible annulment by the courts.

Should the Board of Estimate and Apportionment be invested with the authority to fix the salaries for the members of the city's educational force, it might as well be given all of the functions of the Board of Education and assume the entire charge of the appointment of teachers, the selection of text books and the adoption of educational courses. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment is as well fitted to perform one of these duties as another. No board that is uninformed of the nature, purpose and comparative difficulty of a teacher's, a principal's or a superintendent's work, is competent to make an estimate of its value and to fix its compensation, any more than that board is fit to prescribe the system or course of instruction to be adopted by the teacher, principal or superintendent. To confer upon the Board of Estimate the power to fix salaries is to give that body practical control of the whole force of teachers, for the body that pays for any work, always controls the man or woman that performs it and is responsible for the manner in which the work is performed.

The section which deals with the repairs of school buildings and the provision of funds for the erection of new buildings is equally [illegible]

THE BARNES BILL

Likely to be Defeated by Syracuse and Troy—Rochester Opposition.

The following special to The Post Express from a staff correspondent was received to-day:

"Albany, Feb. 15.—Rochesterians who have reached the conclusion that the Barnes school bill is to be defeated or retarded by the help of the legislators representing Syracuse and Troy, are cherishing a vain illusion. Now that the senate cities' committee has amended the Barnes bill so as to exempt Lansingburgh, the Troy legislators do not care a fig about the measure and will cheerfully vote to pass it, no matter if public sentiment in Rochester is opposed or if the Rochester legislators fight and vote against it.

"So far as the Syracuse assemblymen are concerned they are vastly more interested in passing the Hammond bill, which they hope will break down the monopoly in city lighting that is now enjoyed by the Syracuse lighting company, than they are in defeating the Barnes bill and if the Albany and Troy legislators will vote to progress the Hammond bill the Syracuse representatives are only too willing in return to vote for the Barnes bill. Inversely, if the Rochester legislators wish to enlist the aid of the Syracuse assemblymen against the Barnes bill they must promise to vote for the Hammond bill. The Rochester legislators think one bill is as obnoxious as the other and will give no such promises.

"However, if Senator Lewis cannot control the senate cities' committee against Senator McEwan, of Albany, a different condition prevails in the assembly cities' committee. Assemblymen Gardiner, of Rochester, is a member of that committee, and it is acknowledged that he has developed strength second only to Chairman Kelsey. Mr. Gardiner has been fighting the Barnes bill ever since it was introduced and he has told on the [illegible] bill [illegible] Comm[illegible]

[illegible] Post Feb 15/02

Francis Latimore, of the Household Art rooms, will give a talk on "Color in Decorating and Furnishing Homes," before the members and friends of the Chamber of Commerce next Monday night. Mr. Latimore is the artist who had charge of the color scheme and interior decorations of the First M. E. church. His lecture will be of especial interest to ladies who are cordially invited to attend the Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday night.

The Barnes School Bill.

We have no means of knowing the purpose of Senator Barnes, the author of Senate bill No. 441, in introducing that measure, but a careful examination of the bill is not conducive to the belief that it is intended to be approved by any body of men of even mediocre intelligence.

The bill proposes to destroy the local organizations of the educational departments of cities of the second class, and to erect upon their ruins systems of educational supervision which shall be controlled by influences which are purely political, and which have no proper relation to educational management. It takes from the people of each city the power directly to choose the officers who shall manage their public schools, and confers the power of appointment to membership in the board upon the Mayor. The supervision of the finances of the educational department is taken from the Board of Education and distributed in a vague and uncertain manner among other departments of the city government. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment is endowed with the power to fix the salaries of the Superintendent of Schools, the teachers and other employes. Other functions that are purely financial, are conferred upon the Board of Contract and Supply, while the location of some powers is entirely omitted from the measure. Were the bill to become a law, almost all business sought to be transacted under its provisions would incur the risks of delay by legal controversies and of possible annulment by the courts.

Should the Board of Estimate and Apportionment be invested with the authority to fix the salaries for the members of the city's educational force, it might as well be given all of the functions of the Board of Education and assume the entire charge of the appointment of teachers, the selection of text books and the adoption of educational courses. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment is as well fitted to perform one of these duties as another. No board that is uninformed of the nature, purpose and comparative difficulty of a teacher's, a principal's or a superintendent's work, is competent to make an estimate of its value and to fix its compensation, any more than that board is fit to prescribe the system or course of instruction to be adopted by the teacher, principal or superintendent. To confer upon the Board of Estimate the power to fix salaries is to give that body practical control of the whole force of teachers, for the body that pays for any work, always controls the man or woman that performs it and is responsible for the manner in which the work is performed.

The section which deals with the repairs of school buildings and the provision of funds for the erection of new buildings is equally [illegible]

[illegible] Post & Chron. Dec. 19/02.

THE BARNES BILL

Expressions on the Measure by Monroe County Legislators at Albany.

Regarding the Barnes school bill, Monroe county legislators at Albany are quoted as follows:

Assemblyman Gardiner—"I believe that, so far as the assembly bill is concerned, I have the situation well in hand, having made a very careful canvass of the committee, being a member of it and in a position to ascertain the exact views of the members. If, later, it appears best to have a public hearing, an opportunity will be given and all those interested notified. I shall prepare an amendment to the Barnes bill, and offer it next Tuesday, exempting the city of Rochester. I feel confident that my amendment will be adopted, thereby practically defeating the Coon bill in the assembly."

Senator Armstrong—"I am unalterably opposed to the bill, unless it is so amended that there can be no question that Rochester is exempted from its provisions. The people of this city are satisfied with the present school board, and certainly they are the ones interested."

Senator Lewis—"The Barnes school bill, so-called, does apply to Rochester, notwithstanding statements to the contrary. I am opposed to its passage, and shall do all I can to defeat it. I introduced and passed a bill under which the five school commissioners now in office were elected. I have consistently supported the school board throughout all the discussion of school matters for the past four years. On one occasion I introduced a bill which the school board immediately informed me that they did not want passed, and I immediately abandoned the bill. I supported this school board for nomination, and also supported them for renomination last year."

WILL EXEMPT

Herald Dec 18, 02.

Rochester To Be Cut Out of Barnes Bill

WILL ACT TO-DAY

Gardiner Has Responsibility of Saving School System.

PROMISES TO AMEND BILL

Railroad Men's Sound Money Association Takes Emphatic Action Against Barnes Bill, Denouncing It as "Vicious"—Public Sentiment Is United Against This Measure.

Despite assurances that the Monroe County legislators were solidly opposed to the Barnes bill, the effect of passing such a bill would be so disastrous on the school system that all who are interested in the welfare of the public schools of this city will not rest easy until the question is definitely and finally disposed of.

Each of the local delegation, both in the Senate and Assembly has gone on record as opposed to the bill. Senator Armstrong said on the subject: "I am unalterably opposed to the bill, unless it be so amended that there can be no question that Rochester is exempted from its provisions." Senator Lewis said: "The Barnes School bill does apply to Rochester, notwithstanding statements to the contrary. I am opposed to its passage, and shall do all I can to defeat it."

Senator Lewis is Rochester's representative on the Senate Cities Committee and it is possible he may not be able to control a majority of the committee against Senator McEwan of Albany, who is Albany's representative on the committee. The latter is very insistent that the bill shall pass, as a general bill, applying to all four cities, so it need not be sent back to the cities for the approval of the local authorities.

The real work of killing the bill or amending it in specific terms, so as to exempt Rochester will fall on Assemblyman Gardiner, who is one of the most influential members of the Cities Committee and who is in a position to prevent absolutely a report on the bill in the lower House, unless Rochester is exempted. Assemblyman Coons has introduced exactly the same bill in the Assembly and Assemblyman Gardiner has to date kept the Coons bill tied up. The proposition was made to Mr. Gardiner last week that he consent to report the Coons bill with the proviso that it be at once recommitted to the committee for further hearing, but he declined to make the slightest concessions and prevented any report whatever.

Assemblyman Gardiner said yesterday before he left for Albany that he intended to offer an amendment to the bill to-day, exempting the city of Rochester from the operation of the Barnes bill. He said he felt confident that the amendment would be adopted, thereby practically killing the Barnes-Coons bill in the Assembly.

"I have made a careful canvass of the Cities Committee of which I am a member," said Assemblyman Gardiner "and am in a position to know the views of each member. I believe that so far as the Assembly bill is concerned I have the situation well in hand. If later, it [illegible] Herald Decorating the Home.

The illustrated lecture will be given to-night by Frank H. Latimore on "Color as Applied to Decorating and Furnishing Homes," before the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Latimore has some very handsome views, colored by himself, and the talk is expected to be instructive along its line, as well as entertaining.

[illegible] appears best to have a public hearing, an opportunity will be given to all interested to be heard."

The result of Assemblyman Gardiner's attempt to amend the bill to-day exempting Rochester will be awaited with considerable interest; if he is successful, there will be a general relief throughout Rochester. If the effort should fail, so much public sentiment has been aroused that a large number of citizens, representing various organizations and interests are ready to go to Albany to protest against the passage of the bill, applied to Rochester.

Even while the expectation is prevalent that the local legislators have the matter well in hand without asking outside influence to aid them to defeat the bill, a number of organizations have gone on record against the measure.

A special meeting of the Railway Men's Sound Money Association was held at headquarters, 38 Main Street East, last night for the purpose of discussing the Barnes bill. The following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, This association is not a political organization, composed as it is of Democrats as well as Republicans, and according to its principle forbears to interfere in any matter pertaining to politics, but the common school of the city of Rochester is an institution in which every good citizen has a deep personal interest, and

"Whereas, Said bill is malevolent in its character, tending as it does to destroy the organization of the educational department of our beautiful city, now so efficient; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Railway Men's Sound Money Association protests against the enactment of this vicious law and requests our Monroe County representatives in the Legislature to oppose the passage of said bill by all proper means within their power;

"Resolved, That the president and secretary of this association provide a copy of these minutes and cause the same to be served upon the Senators and Assemblymen of this county."

The Local Council of Women appointed a committee last week to go to Albany to protest against the bill. One of the provisions of the measure is that no one shall be a member of the school board who shall not be an elector of five years' standing. This would prevent the continuance of Mrs. Montgomery or any other women on the school board. This provision, in addition to the general objection to the entire plan, is in itself sufficient to enlist the aid of the women of the city against the bill that destroys all they have accomplished in securing the election of a woman representative on the school board.

The legislative committee of the Chamber of Commerce is ready, it is understood, to go to Albany this week to register a vigorous protest against the bill, if there is any doubt as to its fate.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Nineteenth Ward Republican Club has placed itself formally on record against the bill, and if the word is given out, similar action will be taken by all the numerous clubs of women in the city who are interested in the schools. An appeal may also be taken to the executive committee of the State Assembly of Mothers' Clubs, bringing the influence of that powerful organization to bear against the measure throughout the state.

Unless Assemblyman Gardiner succeeds to-day in forcing through the exemption amendment, the local legislators may prepare themselves for a bombardment this week against the bill from all sources, accompanied by demands for hearing from dozens of Rochester organizations. The feeling is general that the interests at stake are too vital to permit any chances to be taken in preserving the present school system and saving it from the mire of politics.

IN DECORATING FIGHT SHY OF HIGH COLORS

Dem. & Chron. Feb 18/02

Subdued Tints, Says F. H. Latimore, Are Most Effective.

SIMPLICITY IS BEST

Don't Forget, Says the Lecturer, That Walls, Etc., Are Nothing More Than Background—Large Audience Hears Interesting Practical Talk.

Assembly hall of the Chamber of Commerce was filled last night by an audience that was greatly interested in the lecture given by Frank H. Latimore, of this city. The subject, "Color as Applied to Decorating and Furnishing Homes," appealed especially to the ladies, who made up fully half of the audience. The views shown had been colored by the lecturer.

After a brief introduction by President Brewster, Mr. Latimore opened his talk by saying that there was a right and a wrong in all art and that the inability of the ordinary person to get at the bottom of the right method was truly astonishing. About the last thing one does is to make one's home meet every requirement.

"Temperance in color was said to be very important. Nature, his audience was reminded, was never intemperate in this matter, and although some of the brilliant hues that nature displayed might be thought bordering on the intemperate, they were only a small part of the mass as measured against the greens, grays and other quiet colors. The gorgeous displays only lasted for a short time, too, as the autumn leaves and the brilliant sunset. Nature when she displays high colors does so with good taste.

Color, the lecturer said, chiefly gave character to the home. Rooms were made to look high, large, low or small, cheerful or mournful by the color of the decorations. Mr. Latimore then had the lights turned down and displayed several colors on the sheet. He told the audience to would blue in decorating, as it was a cold color. He favored the warm reds, not the brilliant red, but that true to nature. It was the warm colors that gave to the room the cheering effect of sunshine. Color, he said, must retain its character, and not be black nor yet too light. Deep, rich colors gave the rooms the right tone and produced the proper background for the pictures and the people.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

He warned his audience to be careful about the leading colors. Successful combinations of all the rooms leads to beauty. Walls should be made flat like floors. In carpets and papers shaded scrolls are bad, he said. The shaded parts look raised and the scrolls look as if in motion.

"If you have figured paper select plain carpets and hangings, as the eye must have repose," said Mr. Latimore. "Never allow the wall paper to become so prominent that it ceases to be a background for the people and the furniture. What shall we say of the modern stained-glass windows? The easiest way to dispose of them, as a rule, is to soften the crude coloring by stippling the outside of the windows with neutral tints of oil paint or by hanging curtains of soft silk before it. Better plain, white glass a thousand times, toned with a curtain of colored silk made to harmonize with the color scheme of the room.

"White wood and pine take soft green and deep golden bronze stains well. Our halls, or, more properly speaking, passageways, in city houses should be bright and as deep in color as the lighting will admit. The best test of the artistic merits or demerits of the living room as a whole is the impression it makes on one entering for the first time. And what should be our feeling on entering the living room? Simply this, 'How exquisitely comfortable.' For the first essential in the form and design of any decorative object (and everything in a room should be a decorative object) is reposefulness. But you see this principle so often violated. If the test of reposefulness is the test, the average farmhouse kitchen has an artistic value far beyond that of ninety-nine out of every hundred parlors in the city. The first fault in our rooms is over-decoration.

"This is an almost universal failing. Everything has a pattern on it and almost every pattern is mechanically produced. No pattern bears any relation to any other pattern and the whole effect is fidgety, fussy and painful to a degree. The second fault is that all the ornaments are made to shout—everything is clamoring for notice. Now, any ornament that you notice when you are not looking for it, or, perhaps I might better say, when you do not wish to think of it, is necessarily in bad taste. A room is a place in which to think of other things besides those relating exclusively to the room itself. The true method to make a room beautiful is to make all the necessary and useful things in it beautiful. So much is this true that it becomes almost impossible to design a really beautiful room that is to have no useful work done in it or natural life lived in it. An artist called upon to design a room in which nothing more earnest is to be done than to gossip over afternoon tea has indeed a sad job. In a workroom all things have a place by reason of their usefulness, which gives a sense of fitness and repose entirely wanting in a room where a place has obviously had to be found for everything, as in a drawing-room.

"How pleasant it is to think that owing to the great increase of education and employment of young women, there will be less and less call for the old-fashioned drawing room; women will want a room to work in, not to dawdle in. None of us knows, and certainly none of us overestimate, the good influence of a beautiful building upon all those who pass and repass it daily. To put the right thing in the right place, to give it the most appropriate form and, above all, the form which will best enable it to fulfill its functions and uses, and withal, the simplest, most direct and the most perfect in construction—this is the first duty of every designer. Simplicity is restful contempt for the non-essentials of life and it is constant striving to outshine others that kills simplicity and happiness."

The lecture was closed by pictures and descriptions of interiors of homes in America and abroad, the lecturer pointing out the bad as well as the good features.

FOR PRINCE HENRY'S VISIT.

Committee Named to Make Arrangements for His Reception.

Mayor Rodenbeck this morning talked over with Secretary John M. Ives of the Chamber of Commerce plans for the approaching visit of Prince Henry of Germany and a committee was named to make the preliminary arrangements. This committee will meet to-morrow afternoon to discuss plans.

The committee is composed of Mayor Rodenbeck, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, Henry Hebing, T. R. Dunn, Captain Henry Lomb and John M. Ives.

WHEN PRINCE HENRY ... ROCHESTER

[illegible] Feb. 19/02

There'll be a Lively 20 Minutes at the Central Station.

MAENNERCHOR TO SING

That Will be One of the Features of the Reception—There Are to be Brief Addresses by Mayor Rodenbeck and Others—Committee Plans.

When Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of the emperor of Germany, arrives in Rochester two weeks from to-night, at 8:15 o'clock, he will be accorded a reception that promises to be as elaborate as it is possible to make a 20-minute reception. Brief as the prince's stay here will be, there will be crowded into it doings that undoubtedly will linger long in the memories of all those who are so fortunate as to participate in or witness them.

President Henry C. Brewster and Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce, called upon Mayor Rodenbeck yesterday and the reception was talked over. A committee was named to take the first steps in making arrangements for the reception. This committee consists of Mayor Rodenbeck, Hon. Henry C. Brewster, Hon. Frederick Cook, B. Dunn, Henry Hebing, Captain Henry Lomb, Frank Fritzsche and John M. Ives.

This is a representative committee. In the person of the mayor, the city is represented; in President Brewster, Second Vice-President Thomas B. Dunn and Secretary Ives, the Chamber of Commerce has a delegation. Mr. Cook is a representative business man and the president of the Rochester Maennerchor, while the other gentlemen named, with Mr. Cook, are representative German-Americans.

This committee will meet this afternoon to appoint the different sub-committees necessary to carry out the programme that will be formullated later. The reception committee will belarge and will include many leading citizens. The German element in the population will be well represented.

While no programme has been decided upon, there are several features that are pretty sure to be incorporated in it. The gentlemen of the committee are unanimous in saying that the reception will be as elaborate as the limited time and circumstances will permit. There will be music by the Rochester Maennerchor and possibly by a band. Mayor Rodenbeck will speak and will be followed by other Rochester men, including some of the Germans.

The prince will not leave his train, it is understood, but will be welcomed as he stands on the rear platform of his coach. Owing to the limited space in the train shed, admission will probably be by ticket. The committee has a surprise in store for the prince and the crowd, but what this is the gentlemen refuse to make public at so early a date. Several ideas have suggested themselves to members of the committee and these will all be brought before the meeting to-day. Action may not be taken on some of them, however, until later.

The prince will arrive from Buffalo and Niagara Falls at 8:15 o'clock at the New York Central station. The train that will carry the royal party and the members of the general committee of Americans over that part of the country to be visited will be a handsome one of seven coaches.

The prince will stop but fifteen minutes in Buffalo and ten minutes in Syracuse. Rochester, therefore, is given rank over both of those cities. This may be due to the fact that this city planned to give Prince Henry an elaborate reception when it first became known that he would pass through Rochester. Hon. David J. Hill, first assistant secretary of state, is chairman of the president's delegation sent out with Prince Henry. Because of this fact, Rochesterians are making greater effort to do homage to the royal visitor. Secretary Hill, as is known, is a former president of the University of Rochester.

The full itinerary of the prince and his party was published yesterday morning in the Democrat and Chronicle.

FOR PRINCE HENRY

Elaborate Preparations To Receive Him.

COMMITTEE ON ARRANGEMENTS

Herald Feby. 20/02

Met at the Chamber of Commerce Yesterday Afternoon, and Considered Ways and Means To Fittingly Receive the Distinguished German Guest.

Rochester will give Prince Henry a royal greeting when he arrives here; one that will be in every way appropriate and in keeping with the station of the distinguished guest. The Prince has given to Rochester more time than he gives to Buffalo, Syracuse or any of the other cities at which he proposes to stop. Buffalo gets only fifteen minutes, Syracuse ten minutes and the others only the few minutes that it takes to run through the town with the necessary stops for train dispatchers' orders. And for this evidence of his interest, Rochester is to show the royal German that American hospitality is not an idle boast, nor is it confined to a few people.

The committee of eight that has charge of the reception to the Prince, consisting of Mayor Rodenbeck, Hon. Henry C.

of Labor Disputes.

The plan for the settlement of strikes reported in New York yesterday at the first meeting of the executive committee of thirty-six appointed by the Natee of thirty-six appointed by the National civic federation, seems to be conceived in the spirit of wisdom.

It provides that whenever any strike or lockout of more than local magnitude is threatened the chairman of the executive committee shall appoint a conciliation committee of nine members, three from each of the groups of the executive committee, representing labor, capital and the public. To this committee is entrusted the duty of inquiring into the threatened disturbance and to try to effect an amicable settlement. Should the efforts of the committee be ineffective, the parties to the controversy may, if they desire, select from the executive committee a board of four, two representing labor and two capital, to attempt a settlement. In case an umpire is required, the four members of the board may select a fifth from the division of the executive committee representing the public. Should the controversy be of a magnitude to warrant such action, the officers of the executive committee shall call a meeting of the entire committee to consider the situation and to take what action may be thought desirable. In the case of local disturbances, the executive committee may appoint auxiliary committees to deal with them in accordance with the general purpose of the industrial department of the Civic federation.

The feature of this plan to be commended is its voluntary character. All parties interested in the settlement of labor controversies agree that they will settle them in a certain way. This is an indication of good feeling that promises to be much more fruitful than the coercive feature of the New Zealand and Australian plans of mediation and arbitration. Coercion in itself is an instrument of discord, and when used in the interest of peace involves something like a contradiction.

Herald 2/20/02

CITY NOT AFFECTED.

Barnes School Bill Amendment Favored by Two Legislative Committees.

A special despatch to The Post Express from its staff correspondent in Albany, says:

Albany, Feb. 19.—Rochester will not be affected by the Barnes-Coons school bill, unless the legislature overrides the reports of the senate and assembly committees.

"Both bodies met this morning and voted to report the bill so amended that Rochester is exempted. This action is a victory for Assemblyman Richard Gardiner, in the lower house, and for Senator Lewis, in the upper one. They have been at work since their return to Albany on Monday to accomplish this result and they have been successful.

"Chairman Kelsey, of the assembly cities committee and Senator White, of the senate committee, stood by the Rochester representatives in this matter and their influence contributed much to the results. Syracuse is also exempted in the report of the assembly committee. It looks now as if the Barnes's bill, if it ever passes, will apply only to the city of Albany."

The following communications were received to-day by Secretary Ives, of the Chamber of Commerce:

Albany, Feb. 18, 1902.

John M. Ives, Esq., Rochester, N. Y.:

My Dear Mr. Ives—I have your favor of the 14th instant, and beg to confirm by letter what I said to you over the 'phone yesterday, that the people in Rochester may safely rely upon it that their local representatives in the legislature will be able to prevent the passage of the Barnes bill, unless it shall contain a specific clause preventing its application to our city.

The public expression of disapproval which has been made was natural, but unnecessary so far as I am concerned, for I do not intend, as a member of the legislature, to be a party to any legislation designed either to destroy or curtail the powers of our Board of Education in the performance of its duties.

While the contest last fall over the reelection of several members of the board developed a wide difference of opinion among our citizens as to some of the methods adopted by the Board of Education, it was entirely separate from any suggestion that either the method of choosing the members of the board or the organic law under which they are chosen, should be substantially changed, and I assure you that no one will be more zealous than I in now protecting them from legislative attack of the kind embraced in the bill in question.

Yours truly,

W. W. Armstrong.

Albany, Feb. 18, 1902.

John M. Ives, Esq., Rochester, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—Your favor of the 14th is at hand and I thank you for the same.

I would state that Assemblyman Gardiner has prepared an amendment to the Coon bill which is the designation of the contempt in the assembly of the Barnes bill as introduced in the senate, which amendment exempts the city of Rochester from the action proposed to be taken in the bill.

Yours very truly,

G. H. Smith.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

Democrat & Chronicle Feb. 20/02

THE COMING OF THE PRINCE.

Prince Henry will be with us in a very little while.
Our committee's been appointed to receive his nibs in style;
We shall trim the Douglass statue and bedeck it's form or two.
And fly the German emblem with the red and white and blue;
When it comes to meeting princes, why, we're willing to go broke—
The freedom of the town is his—Gesundheit, Heinrich, hoch!

Our mayor will greet his highness in the good old German tongue,
He used to sling it glibly in the years when he was young,—
Though now that he's in politics and under George's sway,
He uses simple English—for he hasn't much to say;
We have a band all ready that can play "Die Wacht am Rhein"
In syncopated passages, the same which is rag time.

Our aldermen will turn out, and our supervisors, too;
The firemen and policemen will be drawn up for review;
As it isn't very often that a real prince comes to town,
This time we are determined that the thing shall be done brown;
So here's to you, Prince Henry, and the Hohenzollern folk,
The freedom of the town is yours—Gesundheit, Heinrich, hoch!

FEBRUARY 20, 1902.

Democrat

PLAN TO SETTLE LABOR DISPUTES

PRESENTED BY COMMITTEE OF CIVIC FEDERATION.

METHOD OF CONCILIATION

REPRESENTATIVE COMMITTEE OF NINE PROVIDED FOR.

HARMONIOUS MEETING

A Step Toward Industrial Peace Taken by the Executive Committee of Thirty-six, Thirty of Whom Were Present at the Meeting — Their Arbitration Plan Outlined.

New York, Feb. 19.—The first meeting of the executive committee of thirty-six, appointed through the National Civic Federation to arbitrate labor troubles, was held here to-day with Senator Hanna in the chair. The object of the gathering was to receive a report on a working plan by means of which strikes, lockouts and other forms of disputes between capitalists and the laboring class may be settled.

This plan was presented by a sub-committee in the form of a set of by-laws which provide that the chairman of the executive committee of the federation shall appoint a committee on conciliation, to consist of nine members, three of whom shall be selected from each group of the executive committee, representing capital, labor and the general public, whose duty it shall be, at the request of the chairman, upon information of threatened strike or lockout of more than local magnitude, to use its good offices in restoring harmonious relations, reporting its action to the executive committee.

Should the efforts of the conciliation committee prove ineffective and should both parties to the dispute desire the service of the executive committee, it is directed that they may be invited to select two employers and two wage earners from the executive committee to serve as an arbitration board. Should the four find it necessary to appoint an umpire to finally decide the dispute they may select a fifth member from the division representing the public.

Should a controversy seem of such magnitude as to justify such action, the officers of the executive committee shall be authorized to call a meeting of the entire executive committee to consider the situation and take such action as may, in its judgment, be required. The executive committee may appoint auxiliary committees to deal with local disturbances, the rules governing the same to be in harmony with the general purpose of the industrial department.

At the close of the meeting Senator Hanna said: "The meeting was very satisfactory. Thirty out of the thirty-six members were present and the spirit displayed was splendid. We feel delighted with the results of our efforts towards utter harmony between capital and labor."

Among those who attended the meeting were Senator Hanna, Cornelius N. Bliss, Oscar S. Straus, Charles Francis Adams, of Boston; Archbishop Ireland, Bishop Potter, Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard University; John G. Milburn, of Buffalo; Charles J. Bonaparte, of Baltimore; Charles A. Moore, H. H. Vreeland, Marcus M. Marks, James A. Chambers, William H. Pfahler, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America; Frank P. Sargent, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, and Theodore J. Shaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association.

Democrat & Chronicle Feb. 25th 1902

GIFTS FOR THE GERMAN PRINCE

HE'LL GET AN ALBUM AND A CAMERA IN ROCHESTER.

PLANS FOR RECEPTION

ANOTHER MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENTS.

FLAT CAR FOR MAYOR

His Honor and the Others Who Are to Welcome the Royal Visitor to Rochester Wednesday Night of Next Week to Have a Little Special Car of Their Own at the Station.

Prince Henry, of Prussia, is to be in Rochester one week from to-morrow night. The arrangements committee of eight, appointed last week, met yesterday afternoon and practically completed the programme for the welcome to the royal visitor. The programme, subject to possible change, is as follows:

Entrance of the special train at 8:30 o'clock, through an aisle of red light.

Playing by the Fifty-fourth regiment band of "Die Wacht am Rhein," as the train pulls into the New York Central station.

Introduction of the prince by Ambassador Von Holleben, of Germany, to Mayor Rodenbeck and the committees.

Address of welcome by Mayor Rodenbeck.

Presentation address by Hon. Henry C. Brewster, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Presentation of an album, given by the Chamber of Commerce.

Presentation of a handsome kodak and a large quantity of American Beauty roses.

Singing by sixty male voices of the Rochester German singing societies as the train pulls out of the station.

The album will contain twenty-four views of Rochester. It is now being made from special material and entirely by Rochester workmen. The album will be about 14x17 inches when closed and will open the long way. The cover and the title pages will be rich, but plain. The title page is of heavy tinted yellow paper, bearing the inscription, "Presented to His Royal Highness, Prince Henry, of Prussia, by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, March 5, 1902."

The first picture will show the Chamber of Commerce building and the last an American beauty rose, symbolical of the Flower city. The views inside are those of the principal buildings and places of interest, including the city parks. Rochester leads in the manufacture of photographic materials, and it is fitting that the prince should take away with him the handsomest kodak ever made here. It is being put together under the personal supervision of George Eastman and will be given by Mr. Eastman.

The trainshed will be brilliantly lighted, many electric lights being added to the usual number, and red lights will be placed along the track. These will be burned as the special train enters and when it departs. The engineer and trainmen will receive instructions regarding them, so that there will be no mistake in taking them for danger signals. This point was brought out by officials of the New York Central.

Owing to the time limit of 20 minutes, the prince will not leave his train, but will appear on the rear platform. Efforts will be made to have him stand there as the train pulls out, so that such persons as have not been able to get into the trainshed will be able to get a glimpse of the royal visitor. Regret is felt that the thousands expected at the station cannot all be admitted to the trainshed. But the public will be accommodated as far as possible and all that the shed will hold comfortably will be permitted to enter.

The National Guard companies will be stationed at either end of the station and will allow no one to pass the ropes. There would be danger of people getting hurt were these ends opened. Admission to the shed will be gained at the opening on the south side, where officers will be placed, with instructions as to how to pass the people in.

A part of the shed will be roped off and no one allowed inside this section unless he has the badge entitling him to admission. The badges will be given to the members of the committee of arrangements, the reception committee, the German singing societies, the German army veterans, the band and a few guests.

On a flat car that will be backed up against Prince Henry's private car, will be Mayor Rodenbeck, the committee of arrangements and members of the reception committee. A platform cannot be erected because it would interfere with the passage of trains.

Superintendent J. P. Bradfield, of Buffalo, of the western division of the New York Central, called on Secretary Ives last week and announced that his road would do all in its power to make the welcome here a success. He gave permission for the use of the flat car and said he believed the arrangements could be made so that no trains would enter or depart from the station during the 20 minutes that Prince Henry is being entertained here. The government mail trains cannot be interfered with, Superintendent Bradfield said, but unless the trains were off schedule there would be none in between 8:30 and 8:50 o'clock Wednesday night. No. 50, the Atlantic express, is [illegible]

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County
Historic Scrapbooks Collection

within the 20 minutes, but it will be an easy matter to hold this train at some way station.

The special will come in on track No. 3 from the west. There is some uncertainty as to the time of its arrival in Rochester. Mayor Rodenbeck and Secretary Ives have been informed by Assistant Secretary of State Hill, who mapped out the itinerary, that Rochester would be reached at 8:15 o'clock. The New York Central officials have the time 8:20, and Secretary Ives believes that possibly the time has been changed to 8:30. He thinks the train will probably leave Niagara Falls at 6:15 and arrive here at 8:30, giving 2 hours and 15 minutes running time.

Owing to a press of business, Mayor Rodenbeck was unable to attend the meeting of the committee of eight yesterday, and therefore the additional committees have not been announced. Colonel James S. Graham has been added to the committee of arrangements and appointed marshal of the day. It is believed that there will be from 30,000 to 35,000 people about the station applying for admission and the militia will be needed.

The prince stops but 15 minutes in Buffalo and only 10 minutes in Syracuse. So far as is known here, neither of those cities has made any arrangement for a demonstration. Rochester is especially favored, and it is due to the efforts of Assistant Secretary of State David J. Hill, former president of the University of Rochester, that such is the case.

The album to be presented to the prince calls for a brief description. The views were enlarged especially for the book and the inscription in black letters underlaid with gold was done by hand by S. C. Williams. Henry C. Moore is doing the binding. The mechanical part of the pictures was done by Henry Flun, of the Eastman company.

The next meeting of the committee of eight will be held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at which time it is hoped to announce the various committees.

GREAT CANALS OF THE WORLD

THEIR COMMERCE, COST AND DIMENSIONS.

NINE BIG WATERWAYS

INTERESTING STATISTICS CONCERNING EACH OF THEM.

SUEZ THE LARGEST

Constructed at a Cost of $100,000,000 in Ten Years' Work—Operations of the Welland and Sault Ste. Marie Canals—Some of the Waterways of Europe.

Washington, Jan. 12.—"Great Canals of the World" is the title of a study prepared by the treasury bureau of statistics for publication in the forthcoming volume of the Monthly Summary of Commerce and Finance. It shows the commerce, cost and dimensions of the great canals of the world, especially those connecting great bodies of water and which may be properly termed ship canals.

Ship canals connecting great bodies of water and of sufficient dimensions to accommodate the great modern vessels plying upon such waters are of comparatively recent production and few in number. The one great example of works of this character which has been a sufficient length of time in existence and operation to supply satisfactory data as to cost of maintenance and operation and practical value to the commerce of the world is the Suez canal, and for this the available statistics begin with the year 1870, while its new and enlarged dimensions only date from the year 1896. For the Sault Ste. Marie canal, connecting Lake Superior with Lake Huron, statistics date from 1855, though for the canal in its present form they cover but about four years. Statistics of the Welland canal date from 1887, but for the canal in its present enlarged form cover only two years of operation. The other great ship canals of the world are of much more recent construction and data regarding their operation therefore cover a comparatively brief term, and in some cases are scarcely at present available in detail.

The artificial waterways which may properly be termed ship canals are nine in number, viz.:

1. The Suez canal, begun in 1859 and completed in 1869.
2. The Cronstadt and St. Petersburg canal, begun in 1877 and completed in 1890.
3. The Corinth canal, begun in 1884 and completed in 1893.
