ROCHESTER, September 2, 1885.

In accepting the position of marshal for the field day, the undersigned relies upon the hearty co-operation of every uniformed organization in our city, and the earnest efforts of every member thereof.

The object commends itself to all, and with a united effort we shall be able to make, not only a creditable demonstration, but what is far more satisfactory, largely increase the memorial fund.

Colonel J. A. Adlington is heroby announced as adjutant-general and chief of staff; other appointments will be announced hereafter.

General H. S. Greenleaf is assigned to the command of the troops representing the union forces.

Colonel James S. Graham is assigned to the command of the forces designated as the confederates.

General W. H. Benjamin will organize a cavalry command and report to General Greenleaf.

Major Maurice Leyden will organize a cavalry command and report to Colonel Graham.

The assignment of other commands will be announced in future orders. All organizations are requested to unite with us, and to report at once to the adjutant-general, with the number of their command, and if armed, in what manner.

JOHN A. REYNOLDS.
