The Country Doctor.

In his big fur coat and with mittens big as hams,
With his string of bells a-jingling, through the country-side he slams.
There are lots of calls to make, and he's always on the tear,
A-loomin' in his cutter like an amiable bear.

And it's hi-i, there! Johnny don't ye care,
Though 'tis aching evening, awful and Is most too much to bear.

Just—be—gay!
As soon as it is day,
The pani will go a-dyin' for the doctor's on the way.

There are real, true saints; there are angels all around,
But there isn't one that's welcomer than he is, be bound.

When he bustles in the bedroom and he dunaps his bopp'ler coat,
And sticks a glass thermometer a-down the suf'riu' throat,

And it's chlrk, cheer up
McCher, bring a cup!
You're going to Ince this bully when you Calce
'a little sup.

There—there—why,
There's a twinkle in your eye
You'll be out again to-morrow, bub, giddap,
—Rolman P. Day, "Pine Tree Ballads."

put on his wife's grave. Here it is:

Warn summer sun,
Shine kindly here;
Warm summer wind,
Blow softly here;
Green sod above,
Lie light, lie light;
Good night, dear heart,
Good night, good night.

A Prayer for Strength

Lord, give me strength. My loved one now
Walks through a vale with darkened skies.
There is a pallor on his brow,
A farawayness in his eyes,
That fill my heart with such a fear—

Lord, give me strength to hold him here.

Oh, give me strength of heart and hand
To draw him from this dark abyss,
From that unknown, mysterious land
That lies between Thy land and this.

I watch his fluttering strength decline;
O Lord, I ask Thee, give him mine.

O Lord, we do not know Thy will,
Nor understand Thy purpose, Lord,
But if I cannot keep him still,
Oh, then another strength afford—

Yes, if I cannot hold him so,
Give he the strength to let him go.

Philip Garbutt, former state assemblyman and for ten years supervisor of the town of Wheatland, died yesterday morning at his home in Garbutt, named after his father. During his term as assemblyman, 1883 to 1885, Mr. Garbutt was a close friend of Theodore Roosevelt and during the latter's campaign for speaker of the Assembly, Mr. Roosevelt was a visitor at the Garbutt home.

Mr. Garbutt was born on April 23, 1844, in the house built by his father, William Garbutt, in 1828. His mother, Elizabeth Dow Garbutt, was a native of Scotland. Nearly his entire life was spent in Garbutt. He was for sixty years custodian of the Farms Library, the first volumes of which were brought to this country by his uncle, John Garbutt. He served as supervisor of Wheatland from 1875 to 1876, from 1879 to 1883, and 1899 to 1902.

Mr. Garbutt leaves a nephew, Roy C. Garbutt, of Caledonia, and a number of grandnephews and grandnieces. Funeral services will be conducted to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Garbutt home.
Mrs. Dow Pays Tribute to Memory of Mrs. Warner

To the Editor.

Sir: It was with extreme sadness that I noted the passing of Mrs. J. B. Y. Warner, my associate and friend for many years.

She was a charter member of the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union, becoming a director in 1894, serving until 1929 as treasurer, for several years as vice-president, and frequently chairman of committees, especially along the social lines.

A great pleasure and privilege was mine to sit at the table of the Union in those days of perhaps its greatest activities. Her poise, unfailing good nature, quiet sense of humor, perfect courtesy and friendly spirit made her a delightful co-worker.

As the years went by her activities lessened, but her interest never failed. Even as director emeritus she seldom failed a meeting of the Board to which she gave thirty years of beautiful service.

"It was a pregnant time in her life, for during it, her children grew to maturity and to marriages. Grandchildren came to her. Great changes marked her environment and death made heavy illness on domestic lines. But her courageous helpfulness never faltered. T were small wonder, however, that towards the end she asked release from active duties, which in competent hands of her eldest daughter are still going on. She needs no finer eulogy than the usefulness the children of her home are living to.

It was hard indeed, to find a finer embodiment of the social graces which add to the perfection of life than typified Mrs. Warner. Her perfect breeding, the delight of her spoken word, her charming personality, her cultivated mind, her social experience in the highest northern and southern circles, her fine character, made her an ideal type of an American gentlewoman. An aristocrat to her finger tips, yet her sympathies were broad, benevolent and fair.

She bravely met the vicissitudes of her life, quietly she met its trials; some weal or woe, she never lost the supreme beauty of her personal breeding, the grace of a nature rarely attuned to the deeper realities of life.

One recalls Horatio's "I saw your father once; he was a kindly king, and Hamlet's magnificent reproof, "He was a man." So in kindred words of the same high import and fine old-time meaning, Mrs. Warner was a lady, sir, as—as much as one should say—a lady.

HARRIET BROWN DOW. Rochester, November 24, 1929.

Funeral services for Mrs. Cornelia Meldrum Warren, widow of James S. Warren, who died Saturday, will be held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry W. Eldgedge, North Rush, where the couple lived until the death of Mr. Warren in 1897, the daughter gave thirty years of beautiful service.

His Epitaph

Someday some stranger's eye shall trace
My name upon my resting place,
If any care to lift a stone
Above the little bed I own,
And, having read, will go his way,
With neither good nor bad to say.

But, if no monument shall rise
To greet the gaze of idle eyes,
I need not fear I sleep forgot
If level be that little plot,
Nor hope to sleep unnoted when
I shall be judged by other men.

For man lives on, when he departs,
Not in cold stones but in warm hearts,
Not in the words in granite saved
But in the words himself engraved
Upon the memories of those
That now he meets and now he knows.

A monument is much too small
To ever quite record them all,
But nothing, whether good or ill,
Two small or great for record still
Upon the tablets of the mind,
The epitaph he leaves behind.

WILLIAM RAFFERTY, PROMINENT CITIZEN, DIES

The death of William Rafferty, one of Scottsville's life-long and most prominent residents, occurred at his home in Main street, this village, early Wednesday morning, August 13, 1930, Alexander P. Campbell. Mr. Rafferty suffered a stroke of paralysis on Saturday, from which he never regained consciousness. The passing of Alex Rafferty brings deep sorrow to his family, as well as to this community where he was born, grew up and lived for years, also to Mumford, where his home has been for several years past.

He was next to the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hankey, of Scottsville, and had been a reader of its columns, never losing his interest until a few weeks before his death. A man of quick intellect, of sterling character, ever displaying in his business dealings the greatest integrity, he has given in his long life an example which few can emulate, and, in his death, Scottsville loses one of its most prominent pioneer type of citizens.

The general expression of his acquaintances is that no better citizen knew him but to love him. None named ever lived in Scottsville for "None knew him but to love him. None named him but to praise."

Mr. Rafferty never married. He leaves his sister-in-law, Mrs. Ann Cassidy Rafferty, widow of the late Thomas Rafferty; a niece, Miss Katherine Rafferty; a grandniece, William Rafferty, a grandnephew, William Thomas Rafferty, all of Scottsville, and several cousins.

Funeral services were held Saturday morning from the home at 8:30 o'clock and at St. Mary's Church, at 9:00 o'clock, where Solemn High Mass was celebrated by the rector, Rev. P. J. McArdle, with Rev. Andrew B. Mechan, D.D., Deacon, and Rev. Michael Hynes, sub-deacon, both of St. Bernard's Seminary, Rochester, assisting.

The bearers were Walter Farrell of West Henrietta, William E. Kelly of Rochester and Edward Farrell, Eugene T. Swain, William T. and John H. Keyes of Scottsville.

Interment was made in the family lot in Holy Angels Cemetery, Scottsville, the service being read by Dr. Mechan.

Enter into rest at his home in Mumford, Wednesday, May 7th, 1930, Alexander P. Campbell. Mr. Campbell was associated with Judge Selden S. Brown and the late Dr. William J. Howe as a member of the Board of Education of the Scottsville Union School. He was also an original stockholder of the Winsted Hall Association and had been a long time member of the Scottsville Literary Society.

Scottsville, April 11. — Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Thursday afternoon at Mount Bethel Church. John Alexander and Millie Thompson were married on April 13, 1872, at Culpepper, Va. On April 11, 1872, they moved to Scottsville where they have since resided. Soon locating here Mr. Alexander bought William Curver's dairy business and peddled milk here for seven years when he sold out to Isaac Bud long. In 1882 Mr. Alexander was elected constable and has held that office ever since, except one term. In 1904 he purchased from Elion Galusha his farm of fifty-five acres and shortly afterwards he sold the property to the Scottsville Sand & Gravel Company for a much larger sum, with a lease giving him life use of the farm.

At the time "Bill" Twyman, a colored giant, murdered Deputy Sheriff Silas Birmingham, here about eleven years ago, it was Mr. Alexander who induced Twyman to come out of his house to avoid having it blown up by the National Guardsmen from Rochester, who had laid siege to the house. Twyman was later executed.

Mr. Alexander was born a slave at Culpepper, Va. He lived on a plantation with his parents until he was 12 years old, when he was put to work in a tobacco factory by his mistress. There were about 250 boys employed there. He worked there at the first battle of Bull Run, in July, 1861. After that he was freed, the government taking over the factory to use as a hospital for wounded soldiers. Death of Dr. Menzie a Loss to Caledonia.

A PHYSICIAN OF NOTE

Dr. Robert J. Menzie was born in Riga, Monroe county, May 21, 1838, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Menzie, being among the early Scotch settlers of this section of the state. His early years were spent on a farm in Riga. In 1860 he was married to Anna McPherson, of Le Roy, who died in 1863, leaving one son, Robert A. Menzie, now a resident of this village.

After the death of his wife, he determined to take up the study of medicine and accordingly entered the University of Buffalo, from which he was graduated in the spring of 1866. In the fall of that year he came to Caledonia and opened an office in West Main street. During his vacations from college he was in the office of Dr. Townsend, of Bergen, one of the celebrated old time physicians and received there quite an experience in medicine and surgery.

His career in this town and the surrounding county was an eminently successful one and for the long years he was allowed to follow his profession he was attended with a large degree of success. In surgery which he loved with all the intensity of his strong nature, he was especially successful and proficient often being called to the most difficult and many times he even incurred personal danger in attending to the needs of his patients. No weather was too inclement that he met it, and many times he even incurred personal danger in attending to the needs of his patients.

In 1867 he married Catharine Cameron, a member of a prominent family in this village. She died in 1883 and was left an orphan at 9 years of age. His early life was spent in teaching the schools in various neighborhoods around Monroe, Poweerville and Wyoming. To obtain the means to secure a medical education at Buffalo University, from which institution he graduated in 1870, he worked on the oil wells, going from place to place in the oil regions of Ohio and Pennsylvania with the nitroglycerin. It was while in this work that he met Miss Augusta Brady, of Elyria, O., to whom he was married in 1873, and who died five years ago.

After he obtained his medical diploma, he practiced his profession in Wyoming, Genesee and Dansville, this state, at that time becoming a member of the Livingstone County Medical Society, in which he always retained his membership. He came to Mumford in 1876, living in a house which he purchased for the “Smith house,” now occupied by Simon McDonald, then purchasing the house “under the hill,” where he lived for over ten years, then going “up on the hill” to the “Harvey house,” where he and his family lived for about twenty years, dispensing hospitality to the friends whom they made and ministering to the needs of the many for miles around.

REAR-ADMIRAL FRANKLIN HANFORD

Educated in the Union School in Scottsville and the Rochester High School, Rear Admiral Hanford left the last named institution to accept an appointment to the United States Naval Academy in the fall of 1862. Admiral Hanford remained in the academy for two weeks, when he was informed by the superintendent that he would have to resign, as he was over the age allowed for admission. The circular of application that had been sent to him at the time of his appointment stipulated that the age limit was 18, young Hanford's age. A new regulation had reduced the age limit to 17, but the circular stating this had never been received at the Hanford home.

Congressman Alfred Ely, who had sponsored his appointment, took young Hanford to the White House, where the case was presented to President Lincoln, who acted in the young man's favor. The memory of that meeting with the great war president was always cherished by Admiral Hanford.

In the summers of 1863 and 1864 the class of which Admiral Hanford was a member was inducted into Civil war service, as a tour of duty under the blockade. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1866, and from that time until his retirement he was constantly pursuing the duties of his service in all parts of the globe.

His first assignment was on the U.S.S. Seco. He joined the Kearny sailing in 1868, and was promoted to the rank of ensign while he was aboard this ship. In 1871 he was transferred to the European station on the flagship Washington.

He was promoted master and later lieutenant, and after three years of service in the European station, Lieutenant Hanford was successively on torpedo duty at Newport, R. I., on the receiving ship Vermont and on the U.S. S. Tennessee and Ashuelot in the Asiatic station. After his return from the East, he was three years on ordnance duty in the New York Navy Yard. His next assignment was on the Pensacola, as navigator, in which he circumnavigated the globe.

Last Served in Philippines

He was promoted to the rank of captain in 1889, and from that time to the day of his retirement, his duty was divided between land and sea. He was senior aid to the commanding officer of the U.S. Navy Yard between 1882 and 1895, commander of the U.S. S. Alert on the Pacific station, light house inspector on the Great Lakes, and he closed his naval career as commander of the U.S. S. Naval Station at Cavite, Philippine Islands, from 1900 to 1902.

Admiral Hanford was a member of the University Club of this city; an honorary member of the Rochester Historical Society, and a member of the Lewis H. Morgan Chapter of the Archaeological Society.

Collector of Rare Books

He loved books with the passion of a real scholar, and the collection that he had begun, when a young man stationed in the Big navy yards, grew with the years until it attained the magnitude of 8,000 volumes. He was particularly interested in American, and his imprints of Rochester life are highly valued by collectors. He collected during the years that he lived in Scottsville many first editions, beginning this pursuit long before such collections had become the vogue.

Admiral Hanford leaves two children, Miss Ruth Crosby Hanford, of Scottsville, and Dr. John Munn Hanford, of New York city; a brother, Charles Lewis Hanford, of Indianapolis; and four sisters, Mrs. William O. Curtiss, of Olean; Miss Fannie and Miss Nannie Hanford, of Scottsville, and Mrs. Hugh M. Smith, of Washington, D. C., and four grandchildren.

Admiral Hanford was an honorary member of the University Club of this city; an honorary member of the Rochester Historical Society, and a member of the Lewis H. Morgan Chapter of the Archaeological Society.

Rear Admiral Hanford

A long life of honor and usefulness ended with the passing of Rear-Admiral Franklin Hanford at his home in Scottsville. His family was among the earliest to come to what is now our county and gave the name to Hanford's Landing on the lower Genesee. Born in Chili township, appointed to Annapolis from this Congressional district, and coming back here after distinguished services in wars and many years, to pass his closing years in peace, he was thus a notable product of our county which always regarded him with esteem and pride.

Since his retirement, cultural interests, the oversight of his pleasant farm and his books, of which he had a choice collection, have engaged his thought; and he has been an honorary member of learned societies in our city—historical, archaeological, and others. Forty years of service throughout the globe and twenty years of quietude in which to ripen his collections fulfilled a life as ideally, perhaps, as he could have wished, or as any of us, however favored, can expect.

OLIVER MARTIN DIES AT SCOTTsville HOME

Mrs. Thompson was born near Culpeper, Virginia, a slave on a large plantation. There she remained until freedom came through the Civil War. Her twelve brothers and sisters were slaves on the same plantation, but their master was kind and Mrs. Thompson in recent years is said never to have tired in singing his praises. She recalled no severe floggings on his plantation, and her own family had few hardships, although other families suffered one of the most bitter features of the slave system, separation of loved ones. Of her brothers and sisters who were also slaves, two are still alive, a sister, Mrs. Charles Wallace, of Virginia, and a brother, Bruce Perry, who a few years ago moved to Rochester. Both are said to be about 90 years old.

Mrs. Thompson married Benjamin Franklin Thompson, a fellow slave, when both were very young. After the Civil War, they moved north and settled in Scottsville, where they made their home for more than a half century. For many years they were members of the Presbyterian Church in Scottsville. About eleven years ago Mrs. Thompson moved to Rochester, making the fourth generation of the family living here.

Mrs. Thompson leaves one daughter, Mrs. George Mines; one son, Benjamin Thompson; eight grandchildren and six great grandchildren of Rochester, and a large number of other relatives in Scottsville and Le Roy.

In 1908 Mr. Scofield located in the city of LaCrosse, Wis., where six years later, in January, 1904, the company opened a branch office with Mr. Scofield in charge. He became Agency Director of the Capitol branch of the company at Madison, Wis., though he retained his residence at LaCrosse. His work, together with organization of Samuel O. Buckner, agency director, in 1926 reached a volume of $20,000,000 of annual paid for insurance, exceeding every branch office of the company in volume of paid for insurance.

He retired December 31, 1930. For the past three or four years Mr. Scofield has spent the winters at St. Petersburg, Fla. He was of a social nature and had a pleasing personality, which made him for many friends. Upright and honest, he found fine loyal service for his company.

SEVENTY YEARS YOUNG

Twenty years ago or thereabout men of more than forty years were disquieted by the statement of Dr. William Osler that at forty years a man begins to fail and that he ought to be chloroformed at sixty.

When he made this assertion, which was doubtless a chance remark and widely misinterpreted, Dr. Osler was on his way to be made Regius professor of medicine at Oxford University. He has recently died at seventy, having been made Sir William Osler by his grateful government.

Dr. Osler was a distinguished man at forty. He was a far more distinguished man at fifty. In fact, for thirty years after the time at which he declared a man's powers should be at their zenith he continued to become greater and more useful to mankind.

The interpretations of Dr. Osler's remarks did considerable mischief in their time. They brought discouragement to many men and probably actually put others on the down grade. But he did his best to refute them in his lifetime. He was still a great and useful man at seventy.

Emerson truly said, "We do not count a man's years until he has nothing else to count." Oliver Wendell Holmes, on the occasion of the seventieth birthday of Julia Ward Howe, said, "To be seventy years young is sometimes far more cheerful and hopeful than to be forty years old."
Dr. John P. Munn, chairman of the University of Rochester's board of trustees and president of the United States Life Insurance Company, died yesterday at his home, 18 West 58th Street, New York City.

Born in Gates Dec. 11, 1847, Dr. Munn was the son of the late Edwin G. Munn and Aristine Pixley Munn. He received his early education in the Rochester public schools, entering the University of Rochester in 1865.

After his graduation in 1870, he was for two years United States pension clerk at Canandaigua. In 1872, he matriculated at the medical college of Bellevue Hospital, New York City, from which he received his degree in 1878.

The year following his graduation from Bellevue, Dr. Munn became assistant medical director of the United States Life Insurance Company, serving until 1883. In 1902, he was elected president of that concern.

Curator of St. Luke's

From 1879, Dr. Munn served as visiting surgeon at Randall's Island Hospital, New York. From 1879 to 1882, he was curator of St. Luke's Hospital.

He was a director of the Lincoln Trust Company, the New Netherlands Bank, the United States Life Insurance Company, the Telautograph Company and on the council of New York University. During and after the World War, he was chairman of the transportation bureau of the War Work Council.

Dr. Munn was the author of a book, "Albuminuria in Persons Apparently Healthy," published in 1878, '79 and '80.

At the University of Rochester, he was a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity and of Phi Beta Kappa. He was a charter member and a member of the board of governors of the Society of the Genesee. He also was a member of the American Medical Association, the New York Academy of Medicine and the New York County Medical Society.

He was a first cousin of the late Rear-Admiral Franklin Hanford of Scottsville, their mothers being sisters, daughters of the late William Pixley of Chili.

Dr. Munn married Martha Buell, who is deceased. He leaves two sons, Dr. Aristine Pixley Munn and James B. Munn.

Funeral services were held from his late home in Manhattan, Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Following this obituary, it may be of interest to many persons in this community to know that Dr. Munn's father, Dr. Edwin G. Munn, was for some time a physician in Scottsville, 100 years ago. Other practitioners here then were Augustus Bristol and Freeman Edson. In 1828, Dr. Munn, though not a member of that church, gave liberally to the building of the Methodist Episcopal Church on Church street and acted as a trustee in that year.

At one time he conducted an eye infirmary in the brick house later used as the rectory of St. Mary's Catholic Church and which was torn down a few years ago.

Dr. Munn sold out his practice here some time in the fifties to the late Dr. Peter McNaughton and removed from the village.

Mother Also Recalled

Aside from his own achievements, Dr. Munn is remembered for the character of his mother, who in 1912 deeded to the University of Rochester the site at University Avenue and Prince Street upon which Catharine Strong Hall and Anthony Memorial Hall were built. These, until dedication of the River Campus, formed the nucleus of the woman's college.

Dr. Munn is survived by two sons, Dr. Aristine Pixley Munn and James B. Munn. The funeral will take place at 4 p.m. tomorrow at his home in Manhattan.

BRIEF ILLNESS PROVES FATAL TO DR. CHAFFE

Was County Bacteriologist Twenty Years; Private Funeral Tomorrow

Dr. Christopher F. Chaffe died yesterday morning at his home, 326 Park Avenue, after a brief illness. Private funeral services will be conducted tomorrow.

He was born in New Orleans, La., Nov. 23, 1881. After attending the University of Virginia for two years he entered the University of Louisiana, from which he was graduated. He was graduated in medicine from Tulane University, La.

Dr. Chaffe came to Rochester in 1907, the year of his marriage to Miss Mollie Beker of Gloversville. For twenty years he was Monroe County bacteriologist. He was a member of the Monroe County Medical Society and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, a medical college fraternity.

He leaves his wife, a daughter, Julie Chaffe, and a brother, Fred Chaffe.
Mrs. John W. Garbutt. Mrs. John W. Garbutt who recently died in Garbutt was connected by birth and marriage to the oldest pioneer families of Wheatland. She was a daughter of Oliver Perry Blackmer and Lydia Harmon Blackmer. His grandfather was John Blackmer of Yankee stock, trading their ancestry among other lines back to Peregrine White, the first child born to the Mayflower Pilgrims in America.

Joseph Blackmer, Esq., grandfather of Mrs. Garbutt, and the founder of the family in Monroe county was born in Kent, Connecticut. He migrated to New Marlboro, Berkshire County, Mass., thence to New York State, stopping for some few years in Westmoreland, Oneida County. He left Massachusetts in 1787—in 1808 he pursued a large tract of land in what is now Belcoa and on it he resided until his death forty years later. That was three years before Deacon Ransom Harmon, whose daughter married Mr. Blackmer, moved to Wheatland, also from New Marlboro.

“Squire Blackmer,” as he was always known, gave the land for the school house, for the Baptist church, and for the cemetery in Belcoa. The first grave to be dug in this sacred God’s acre, was for his baby girl, Sarah Ann, who yielded up her short six weeks of life in July 1811; he was a man of probity, of sterling character, and public spirit, yet strange to say, even in that intensely religious age, and living almost under the eyes of the sanctuary, he never made a personal profession of religion still by reason of strength he was nearly eighty years of age. Many years ago, perhaps as early as 1847 there was a great Georgias excitement in Wheatland, though it was in the summer season, the busiest season in a rural community, largely attended rural meetings were held afternoon and evening for several weeks. One evening the old “Squire” was sitting down in front of the close of the meeting he rose in request for prayers—then a moment of tense suspense, when one of the ministers, a young man, bearing a name later to be one of the most honored in the Baptist denomination stepped quickly down from the pulpit and falling on his knees at the old man’s feet, he poured forth such a prayer as no one present had ever before listened to, it was so full of paths, love, eloquence—it went home to the heart which for well nigh four score years had resided in the bosom of the old man. It presents that memorable night ever forgot that scene and that wonderful prayer—it was the most dramatic incident ever associated with the historic old church, now alas, only a memory among the good people of Garbutt. Mrs. Garbutt was a member and the member of the church. At his funeral, the Rev. H. C. Butler, was a director of Deacon Ransom Harmon, and a woman of rarely lovable character. Through all the vicissitudes of a life which held much of trial and sorrow, one never heard her utter a caprice or unkind word, nor did she ever enter into the spirit of any criticism. Her youngest son Elion joined his cousin, Judge Luke Blackmer, in Salisbury, North Carolina, where he became later an officer in the Confederate army. Mrs. Garbutt enjoyed the loving devotion of all her children, from home more than from Mrs. Garbutt.

Nearly all of Mrs. Garbutt’s more than half a century of married life was passed in the fine old mansion erected many years ago by Phillip Garbutt, Esq., her husband’s father, when he was in the heyday of a business career which marked him as one of the wealthiest and most progressive men in the Genesee Valley. She was a bright woman with a ready wit and keen sense of humor, a devoted wife and mother, she gave her life to her home, her family, with the most unselfish, and self-sacrificing devotion. She never lost her interest and love for kindred and friends but she passed her days quietly in the home, giving most unselfish love and service to the inner circle, to the husband and children so dear to her heart. Her passing is an irreparable loss to those she held so dear, who looked to her for effective cheer, and all manner of kind, loving service which never failed them. In the home was the alabaster box broken—the odor of the ointment filling the house.

CARROLL C. McVEAN

Death of Caledonia Man Occurs in Washington Hospital.

Caledonia, Sept. 4.—A message was received here to-day from the Army and Navy Hospital, Washington, D. C., announcing the death of Carroll C. McVeah, a resident of that city. Mr. McVeah, who had been in a Rochester hospital for several months, was removed to Washington only last week.

He was the late Cameron McVeah, of Wheatland, where he was born about fifty-three years ago. His early years were spent on a farm. Later on he entered the manufacturing line and even before that time had a small business of his own. Since that time he was employed as a bookkeeper for a Rochester firm and also in the Hamilton Banking House, in this village. About two years ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis from which he gradually failed.

He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Malcolm McNaughton, of Jersey City, N. J., and Mrs. Mary McVeah, of California; one brother, Russell McVeah, of Barnards, N. Y.

Mr. McVeah was a member of the Masonic Lodge, F. and A. M., and the Masonic Club of this village. The funeral will be held to-morrow at 11 o'clock in the Presbyterian church, with services in the Masonic Hall. The interment will be in the Garbrett cemetery.

CAT’S SCRATCHES RESULT FATALLY

Edgar Miller, of Le Roy, Dead of Blood Poisoning.

Le Roy, May 4.—Edgar Lewis Miller, one of the oldest residents of this village, died early this morning in his home, No. 7 Craigie street, as the result of blood poisoning. One week ago Monday, Mr. Miller went to his chicken house and discovered a cat, which has been a nuisance about the place. In catching it he was badly scratched on the hands. When his hands showed some improvement, he continued to fail and since Saturday he had been in an unconscionable condition.

Mr. Miller was born in the Miller homestead, one south of the village, on the Pavilion road on May 18, 1828, and continued to live there until six years ago when he sold the farm and came to the village.

On February 9, 1890, he married Miss Elizabeth McCull, besides whom he leaves three daughters, Mrs. W. E. Stull, of Brockport; Miss Mary Miller, of Le Roy, and Mrs. Grace Miller, a teacher in the Jamestown School. Mr. Miller had been a member of the Presbyterian church, serving as trustee, elder and deacon many years. He also served the town of Le Roy many years, and was deeply interested in local affairs.

On Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock from his late home the interment will be in the Myrtle street cemetery.

Pioneer Scottsville Physician Disproves Popular Conception Of Country Medical Practise

Dr. William Howe Has Stayed in Spite of General Exodus of Small-Town Physicians to City—Says Reason Most of Them Leave Is Because They Do Not Want Hard Work.

Dr. Howe was graduated from the University of Buffalo Medical College on his twenty-first birthday. Before his graduation he was resident physician at the Buffalo Dispensary, and he retained that position after leaving school. But "brick walls were too much for him." He failed in health, and spent several months in idleness. In July he came to Scottsville, not knowing what he did, but certainly not intending to spend his life in that community. But he did stay on, and there is abundant testimony that all Scottsville rejoices that the outcome was what it was. Probably few men have had so profound an influence upon a community.

When Dr. Howe came, Scottsville had three other physicians, and other communities had resident physicians. Now, Scottsville has only one other doctor, and most of the neighboring communities have none. Dr. Howe's daily routine involves trips of many miles throughout a wide territory. Many communities are several miles from a doctor, and there seems a real basis for the query often heard, "What should we do without him?"

The general custom of country doctors began about 10 years ago, according to Dr. Howe, and "since that time young men will not go into the country.

"The reasons? Well, they don't want the hard work; they prefer to live in the city,—and they all want to be specialists. But, when it comes to that, the country doctor has to be a 'specialist in all specialties.'"

He smiled. A few years ago, discussing a case with some city medical men, I was asked what help I had. The reply, of course, was, 'None.' For we were 10 miles out in the country and it was in the middle of the night. And it is that sort of thing that makes a self-sacrificing physician. He must meet all sorts of emergencies, and he has to depend upon himself. And most of the leading city practitioners were country physicians at one time.

There are the facts about the meager equipment and lack of scientific knowledge of the early days. The whole university, for instance, boasted only two laboratories, and those were for the use of the staff. And, "there were no germs at that time." The germ theory was evolved five years after Dr. Howe began to practise, and it explained many things that he hadn't understood before. But the doctor prefers to talk about the latest equipment for, say, nose-and-throat cases, and the use of psychology.

"Which we have only just begun to get into." Many times, he declares, the illness is psychical, rather than physical, and must be treated accordingly.

There are also stories of the times when going to Rochester meant a drive of an hour and a half, or at least, a long drive to Lot's. Now, however, he tells of an emergency drive, "making" the General Hospital in 14 minutes. His average time from Scottsville is 20 minutes, under the "auspices" of "Jack." Kah厚厚, his driver for 14 years, who has left him only for two years of whom he says, "he looks after me as if I were a baby." And Jack, who has left him only for two years of the army, says, "He treats me like one of his own!

That, after all, is typical of the whole situation. Dr. Howe, all these years, has dealt with the community as if the individual members were "his own." And the community, in turn, exhibits toward him a sense of pride and possession that is as rare as it is beautiful.

-- Remarks.

RICHARD M. ROBERTS

This community was again shocked last Thursday by the news of the death, at his home in Fairport, of Richard M. Roberts, which came suddenly from heart failure. Mr. Roberts had been here quite frequently since the death of his sister, Miss Mary Roberts, a few weeks ago, and was on our streets only the day before his death.

Mr. Roberts was the eldest of a large family of children of William and Lydia Wells Roberts. He was born in Garbutt January 13, 1848. His early life was spent in this vicinity but many years ago he went to Fairport where he carried on his profession as a teacher and builder. He was a widower, having been twice married. His first wife was Miss Belle Stewart of Mumford. His second marriage was to Mrs. Earl Clapp of Washington, D. C. He also leaves seven brothers, Frank, Allan and Charles of Caledonia; Chester of Allegan, Mich.; William and Lyman of Sheridan, Wyoming, and Moses of Fairport.

Mr. Roberts was a deacon and trustee in the Congregational Church and was active in the Sunday school. His long life was that of a Christian gentleman and his sudden passing has brought sorrow to many.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at Fairport with interment at the Mumford Rural Cemetery.

Housing Plan Looks Futile To a Farmer

A Farmer Looks at Housing

Editor, Democrat and Chronicle:

Many interesting articles have appeared in your paper to the Editor, coming from small villages and towns, Sodus, Williamson Webster, Rushville and Cold Water.

One is on government housing, another on education, automobiles, and welfare. The government housing plan to build houses to rent for $16 per month, it seems will be new houses to take the place of our old rebuilt houses having six and seven rooms, with from one half to an acre of land renting to people on welfare for $13 and $14 per month.

Many of us in these small villages rebuilt these houses expecting to have some income in our old age. What is the result? Higher taxes and very little income.

The same situation exists among the farmers who have toiled a lifetime to pay for their farm. Today they cannot work and must rent it for about enough to pay the taxes. These conditions exist while the roads are full Sundays with new automobiles, nearly everyone on welfare has one and is burning up gas going elsewhere than to their work.

The truth of the matter is, us oldtimers who have houses and farms to rent must be satisfied and not grumble it will do no good. The government is taking care of everyone who never saved to have a home and never will try, this seems to be the attitude of too many in this generation.

TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF DR. WILLIAM J. HOWE

The village doctor! What nobler or more useful call can one desire? On call all hours of the day and night, he is ready to go to the home of the needy with the same spirit of love and devotion as to the luxurious abode of the rich.

Is it an acute attack, which will yield only to the knife, the doctor becomes the surgeon and operates quickly and skillfully.

After a hard day's work, driving many miles in blinding snow and cold, he spends the evening in attending to office calls, retires late, only perhaps to be called up in the wee hours of the morning to accomplish a similar duty several miles into the country. Does he hesitate? —No, dressing quickly, he goes out and harnesses his horse — this long before the days of automobile and chauffeurs — and drives into the inky blackness of the night, guided only by his dim rays of a lantern and the instincts of his trusty horse.

What cheer and comfort does he bring to the bedside of the sick — has he a patient who is nervous and depressed? With no thought of time — the chief factor in the perfunctory visit of the modern physician, he sits and smokes, chatting with the patient, and with a fund of wit and humor, man is blinding away all his troubles.

Is there a child expected in the home — with interest second only to that of the parents he left there to await its advent, inspiring courage and confidence.

Is the angel of death hovering over the household, and despite the skill of the doctor and the careful nursing the loved one is slipping away into the Great Beyond, what comfort in the personal sympathy of the friend, as well as physician, who with cheery smile and heartening voice helps to lighten the burden.

A mother is ill with appendicitis and there is grave danger of an operation. With untiring efforts he avoids it. The crisis is approaching — he makes an evening call and, leaving directions for the night, he goes home. With an anxiety almost to that of the family, he feels he must see that everything is all right before retiring, shortly after midnight, walks down the street, silently enters the sickroom to find the patient resting restfully, with lowered temperature and every indication of improvement. With a reassuring word to those watching by the bedside, he goes back to his own bed satisfied. But what a comfort was that midnight visit to the family praying for a life that hung in the balance.

Thus, day in and day out, with scarcely a break, and after fifty-three years in the service of his fellow man, yet finding time to take a keen interest, lend a helping hand and wise counsel, in the civic and social affairs of the community, he passes on loved and mourned by countless hundreds of people in all walks of life to whom he had ministered, many of whom are no longer in the home town but who recall with grateful hearts his many acts of kindness.

May his reward be exceedingly great!
Beckwith.
