DAVID

Ages ago a Florentine sculptor named Michelangelo was commissioned to do a figure in commemoration of that city's deliverance from the reign of tyrants.

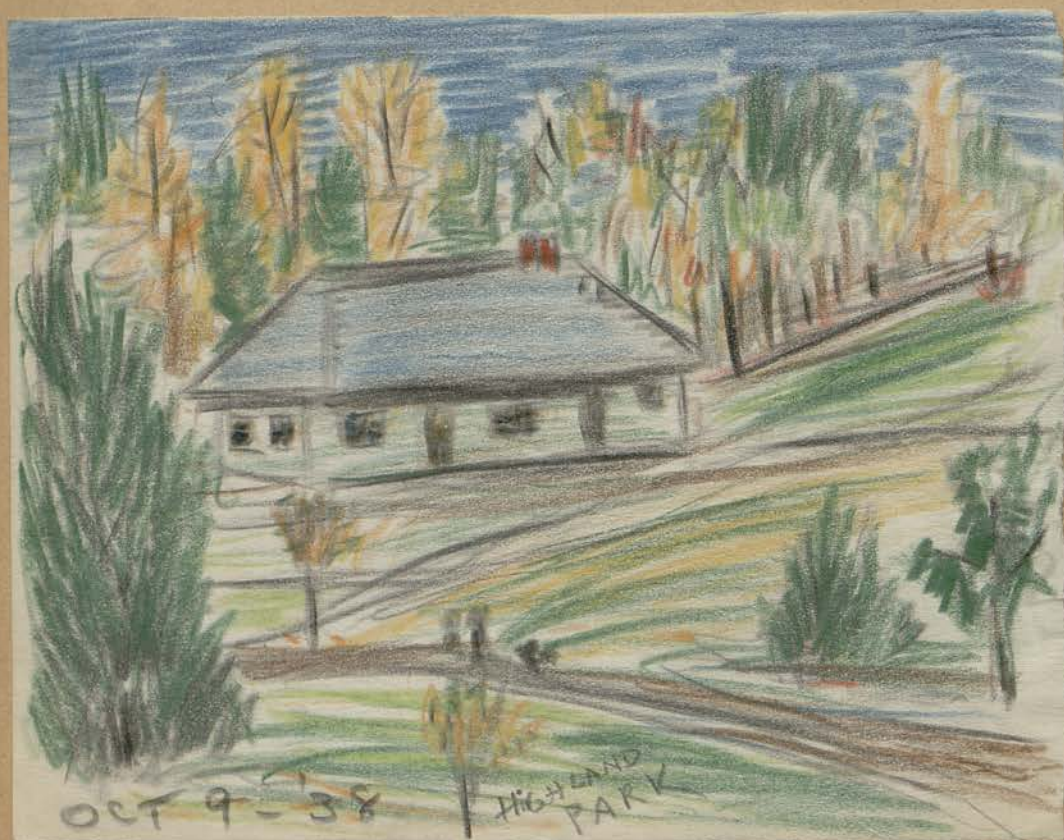

The block of white marble from the Carrara quarries which was at his disposal was not of ideal proportions. It was too narrow for its length. But time was short, and this young artist went to work on what turned out to be one of the world's masterpieces—"David."

Visitors who gaze upon this gem in marble see an eager shepherd lad at the moment of unslinging his weapon to take up the battle against Goliath.

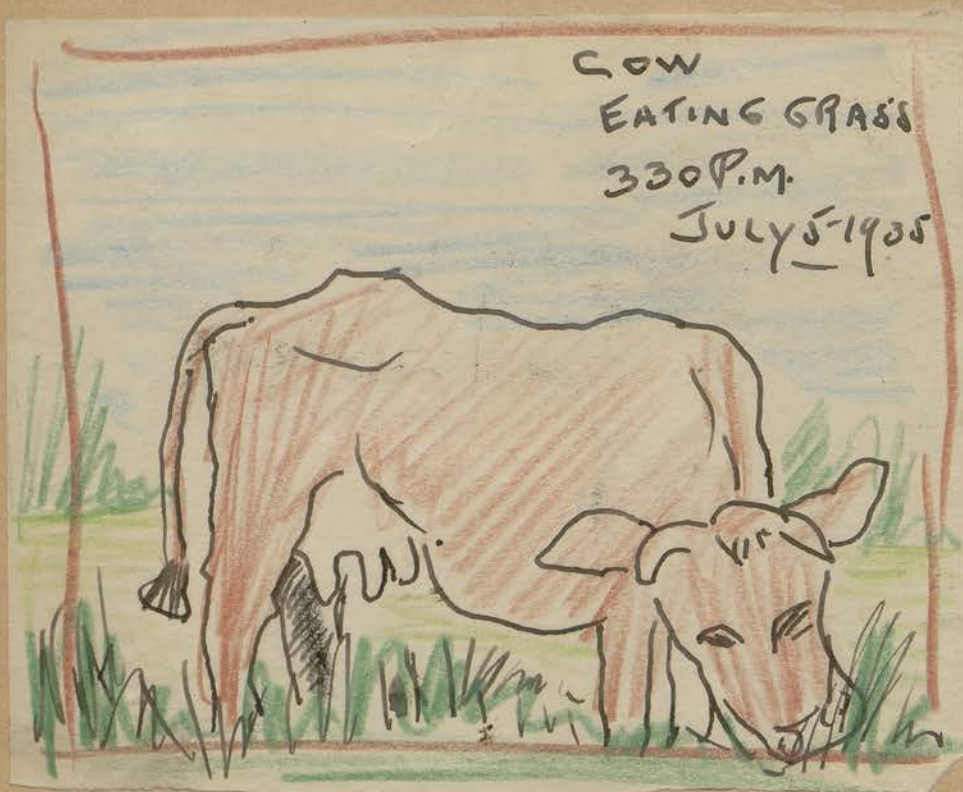

But those who know the circumstances of its carving will realize why the right arm of the youth clings to his side as his hand reaches for the sling, and why the left arm hugs his left side as that hand reaches back for a stone. The bend of the boy's knees also tell the story.
