In issuing a new Catalogue of the Library of the Rochester Atheneum and Mechanics' Association, the Board of Directors would avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded of setting forth the objects of the Association, and the benefits which it is calculated to confer.

The Atheneum and Mechanics' Association is in every way a popular Institution. It was not organized, nor is it conducted, to benefit any class, but all who may wish to avail themselves of its advantages.

The payment of one dollar will entitle any person to the privileges of membership for one year, which term will always commence and end on the first day of January.

The terms of admission were made thus unusually low that the advantages of the Association might be extended to every man, woman and child in Rochester.

The Atheneum on this foundation becomes, in every sense, a public Institution, and should be considered and treated as belonging to the city.

During the past year important changes and improvements have been made in the Library Rooms, and they may now be considered as among the most perfect in the State.

The privileges to which every member is entitled are:

Voting at Elections of Officers; and at all extraordinary meetings of the Association;

The use of the Library; and

The use of the Reading Room.

The Library, since the organization of the Association, has steadily increased, and at present contains between 7,000 and 8,000 volumes.

These books are for the most part standard works in various departments of knowledge and literature, well selected and well arranged.

Continual additions are made to the Library of the better class of Current Literature, of Travels, Histories, Biographies; Works on Art, Mechanics, etc.

During the past year a large number of valuable and costly Mechanical works have been procured, and the Library now contains such a collection of standard works on Science and Mechanic Arts, on Engineering and Architecture, that great inducements are offered to Mechanics and Artizans to become members of the Institution.

The Library is open daily, except on Sundays and Mondays.

The distribution of Books is governed by the following

RULES:

1.—The Library shall be open for the receipt and delivery of Books, every day, Sunday and Monday excepted, from 8 A. M. to 12½ P. M.; from 2 to 5 P. M., and in the evening from 6½ to 9½ o'clock.

2.—Every member may draw from the Library two volumes, and no more, at the same time, which shall be returned in two weeks.

3.—Books may be renewed in the same name once.

4.—New publications which have not been in the Library three months, may be detained—duodecimos, only three days; and octavos, or larger volumes, one week; but one such book shall be drawn at a time, and it shall not be renewed.

5.—The Librarian shall assess a fine at the rate of six cents a week on every Book kept from the Library longer than herein allowed; and also fines, under the direction of the Library Committee, for damages to books.

6.—No member shall be allowed to take any book from the Library while any book due it remains in his possession, or while any fine assessed against him remains unpaid.

7.—No book shall be reserved for any member.

8.—Books will be gratuitously loaned to such apprentices, between the ages of 14 and 21 years, as shall produce a certificate that they are worthy of confidence, and guaranteeing the safe return of all books so loaned, signed by some responsible member of the Association.

The Reading Room is supplied with all the most important Daily and Weekly Newspapers from the principal cities of the Union.

Two or three British Commercial papers are also taken.

All Members, and strangers in the city introduced by them, and none others, are entitled to the use of the Reading Rooms.

The Rooms are open from 8 in the morning until 9 in the evening.

Connected with the Association is an annual course of public Lectures.

The experience of the past winter has demonstrated the possibility of having popular Scientific lectures of the highest character; and it may be considered as part of the settled policy of the Association to unite a course of Lectures on Science, with the usual Literary Course.

These Lectures are open to all at a moderate charge for admission.

The proceeds of the Lectures, after defraying their expenses, are sacredly devoted by the Board of Directors to making additions to, and improvements in the Library.

The present Catalogue is arranged in Divisions according to subjects, and with the exception of "History," most of the Divisions are disposed alphabetically.

The Division "History" is subdivided, and the subdivisions arranged according to topics, e. g., in Class "Modern History," and Section "European;" all the histories pertaining to France, or Great Britain or Germany, will be found together.

In most of the other Divisions the Classes or Sections are arranged Alphabetically, following the letter of the principal word in the title, e. g., in the Division "Biography" will be found a Class "American Biography," in which the works are arranged according to the initial letter of the subject of the life, etc., etc.

Some of the other shorter Divisions are not arranged in an alphabetical order.
