LUB MEN OF ROCHESTER IN CARICATURE

NINETEEN HUNDRED FOURTEEN

Drawings by Jack Sears and Associate Artists

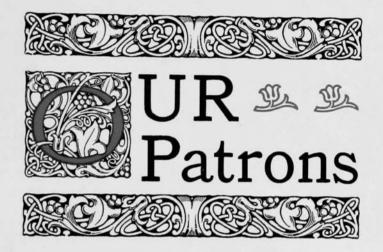

JACK SEARS, Director for Associated Cartoonists

PRINTED BY THE ROYCROFTERS AT THEIR SHOP, WHICH IS IN EAST AURORA, NEW YORK STATE, DURING THE MONTH OF JUNE, MCMXIV.

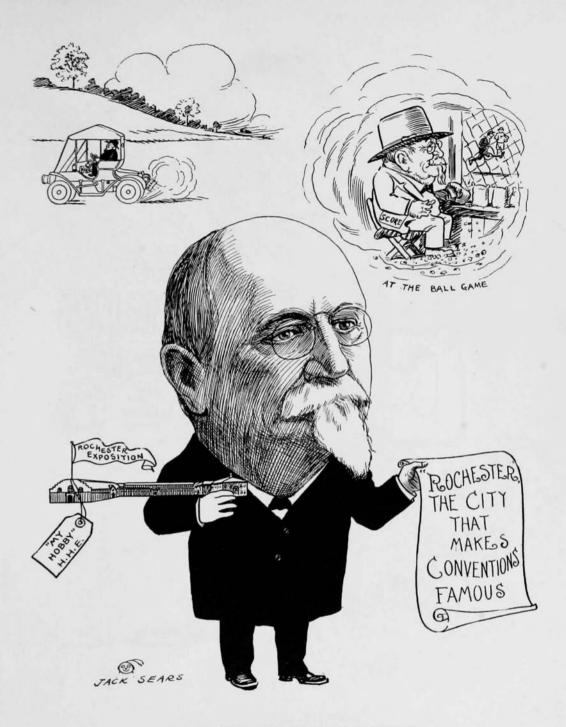

FOREWORD

OW it so happens in this old world that all things—and men—are exactly what they seem. They may not be what they seem to themselves; they may not be what they seem to certain others of their kind, but they are what they seem to the cartoonist. It, There are those who believe, apparently, that a caricature is a reckless, exaggerated presentation of one's follies or foibles. As a matter of fact, a caricature is a true likeness of the object caricatured—a likeness that is true to the caricaturist, at least. I. The cartoonist looks into a man's face and sees lines that are not there, but they exist in the wisdom of the cartoonist just the same. He sees into and through his subject, and is able to translate that which he sees into light or heavy lines, into curves or angles, into love or life. I. So we have here, within these pages, images of men of affairs as the cartoonist sees them, personalities that may be unknown to you, but which live and breathe and have their being in the imagination of the caricaturist. We have pictured here with pen and ink not the shadow cast upon the pulseless plate of the photographer, but the image left upon the brain, and oozing out through the finger-tips of the cartoonist—as goodly a lot of caricatures as ever graced the printed pages of a volume. I, A characteristic of the cartoonist is that he is kindly. There is no hate in his crooked lines or straight ones. Venom is not mixed with his ink, nor a dagger shaped from his pen. His is a labor of love, a friendly toil, his wrinkles running up, not down. In this volume he has taken a number of noted characters, men of action, men of intelligence, and whipped into their faces and their forms the touches that mark their personalities - peculiarities they are called, and rightfully, for a peculiarity is one's own. C, So this book of caricatures is meaningful, intended to enlighten. It gives to the men here pictured an idea of themselves, not as they seem, but as they are - to the cartoonist. It gives to others an insight into the play and pleasure of those who have earned their play and pleasure. Deal with it as you will, you can not change it. That which is writ is writ - it could not be worthier.
