PREFACE.

The following is a list of the reference works in the reading room of the Reynolds Library. All these books are accessible to the public; that is, they can be used by any person without the formality of "drawing"—the only condition of such use being that the books shall not be defaced or otherwise injured and that they shall not under any circumstances be taken from the Library Rooms.

This list indicates the general classification in accordance with which the books are arranged. The order of the books in each class in the list is intended to correspond to the order of the books on the shelves. This order, as will be seen, is not alphabetical; but proceeds as far as possible from the more general to the more special books on the subjects indicated. The only exception to this order is in the case of the small folios, marked [F.] which are placed on the lowest shelf, under the general class to which they belong; and the large folios, marked [A. C.] which will be found in the atlas-case.

On account of the limited space in the reading room, a few works, indicated thus [†], have been crowded from the shelves, but may be freely consulted by applying to the librarian.

In addition to the reference works and current periodicals herein enumerated, which are accessible to the public without "drawing," the library also contains nearly complete sets of the most important American and English magazines and a number of society transactions—indices and a catalogue of which, are placed in the reading room. These magazines and transactions can be drawn for hall-use upon application to the librarian.

The department of public documents is also accessible to any one who may wish to consult it.

The remaining part of the library has been for the most part catalogued. The author catalogue can be consulted in the reading room. This part of the library is not at present in a condition to warrant its general circulation; but the books which it contains may be drawn for hall-use by any persons who may desire to consult them.

Although the library must still be regarded as merely in the initial stage of its growth, the library committee are desirous that the public will take advantage of its privileges as far as they are made available; and they are also desirous of meeting, as far as possible, the wants of students and general readers who are pursuing special lines of investigation. So far as their means will permit, the committee will strive to make the expansion of the library harmonize with the legitimate needs of the majority of intelligent readers.
