REPORT OF THE CHRISTMAS BAZAAR.

HISTORY.

It is a natural impulse that turns the mind, upon the completion of a successful undertaking, to a retrospect of its progress. This impulse is especially strong where an enterprise has been undertaken in behalf of an object enlisting our deepest sympathies, and when the success achieved has been not only in the highest degree gratifying, but one exceeding our most sanguine expectations. Such an enterprise has been the Christmas Bazaar just held in our city, under the auspices of the Ladies' Hospital Relief Association, such a success its results; and we cannot forbear glancing backward from the finally prosperous tide, to the little rills that marked our "small beginnings," and tracing, with mingled pleasure and gratitude, their course, as one and another tributary came in, until they swelled to a broad, strong current, which has borne forward rich freight for the suffering soldiers in our army.

Other motives also influence us in reviewing our proceedings in a published report, such as the obligation we are under to express our acknowledgments to those who have so freely aided us, and to let them know the result to which they have contributed; the wish to give to others any benefit which may be derived from our experience; and the desirableness of furnishing those who were engaged in the Bazaar, or were present during its progress, an easy and expeditious mode of answering the various questions asked concerning it.

A year since, our association gave a Christmas Festival in Corinthian Hall, just previous to Christmas, continuing two evenings and one day, including refreshments and sale tables throughout the day and evenings, and tableaux in the evenings. This festival, which was the most successful thing of the kind that had been held in our city up to that time, both in respect to attractiveness and profit, yielded $760 to our treasury. From that time to the present the accessions to our funds have been in comparatively small sums, and the result principally of occasional donations from individuals and associations. The proceeds of the sale of a picture, and of an entertainment given by the Carpenters and Joiners, about $80 each, were among the largest of these sums, until the Thanksgiving Collections, which amounted, the portion paid into our treasury, to $270. The total receipts for the present official year, commencing the middle of January, have not averaged $100 per month.

Early in the summer the plan was proposed of securing a uniform income through monthly subscriptions, and the city was divided into districts, and the necessary papers were prepared for this purpose. The matter was, however, delayed until August, through the difficulty of finding ladies willing to undertake the tedious and thankless office of canvassing the city. At that time our waning exchequer called loudly for some energetic measures in its behalf, and the society voted to enter at once upon the work of raising monthly subscriptions. But our ranks had become thinned, not more than a dozen effective members "reporting for duty" at this time, and it was found impossible, with the small force subject to the draft for this work, to secure its efficient prosecution. But two wards, the Third and Seventh, have been canvassed at all, and in these, collections have been made but once, with the exception of one district in the Third Ward, from which a second has been received.

With these facts before us, a resort to some other means was imperative, and lectures, concerts, &c., passed successively in review, to be, for various reasons, successively dismissed or postponed. A Bazaar had been occasionally suggested by some who had confidence in its feasibility, as something that would enlist a more general interest, and secure a more extensive co-operation than any other plan; but the project had been overruled by the prevailing opinion, that however successful this means had been in St. Louis, Cleveland, Buffalo, &c., it would never do in Rochester.

At the close of September our accounts exhibited a balance in the treasury of one cent. A special meeting was called on the last day of September, and a Standing Committee on Finances appointed, whose duty it was made to devise means for raising funds, and to act as a Committee of Arrangements in carrying out any plan that should be adopted by the Society, upon their recommendation. This Committee included twelve members: the seven officers of the society and five other ladies appointed by the President. A quorum of the Committee being present, they agreed at once, under the urgency of the occasion, upon the proposal to hold a Bazaar, which proposal was immediately adopted by the Society. A general plan of action was then arranged, and a Committee of two ladies, members of the Committee of Arrangements, appointed to visit Buffalo, and obtain from the ladies who had been connected with a similar enterprise there, such information as would guide us in making further preparations.

The movement was thus fairly inaugurated upon paper, but it was still three weeks or more before, with two or three exceptions, the work was taken hold of as something to be actually accomplished. Notwithstanding the action of the Society, many, probably the majority, of those who thus assented to the project, under the conviction of a necessity for making a strong effort, and with a willingness and desire to work energetically for it, were yet apprehensive as to the result of the experiment. It seemed at first a mammoth undertaking, with no tangible points—a castle in the air, which could not be brought down from the clouds to an accessible position on terra firma. Adverse counsels, too, were urged upon the Society from without, by those whose opinions carried weight, by gentlemen who regarded the plan from a business point; and others who, from a familiarity with the details of similar operations in other places, spoke with reference to the immense labor which it would involve.

The Committee of Arrangements, however, impelled by the necessity of action, and feeling a confidence in the general principle, that "what man has done man can do," ventured to proceed, preparing more fully the details of action, designating the various Committees to be appointed, and assigning their specific duties. This done, the machinery, with its wheels set in working order, waited, an inert mass, for the moving spirit, the mainspring of confidence and enthusiasm that was necessary to make it a thing of life.

There were some auspicious symptoms, however, during this chrysalis period, some indications that the wings would in time develop. The first substantial encouragement was afforded by the visit of our delegation to the ladies prominently connected with the Bazaar in Buffalo, and it gives us here no ordinary pleasure to express our obligation to the latter for the courtesy and cordiality which marked our reception, the interest with which they entered into our plans, giving us all needed information, making suggestions derived from their own experience, and generously placing at our disposal any appliances remaining of their own Bazaar, which could be available for our use.

One booth was taken in charge just before the visit to Buffalo, and the preparations for it were entered upon with much spirit, and a week or two subsequently another was adopted with that decision and earnestness which always inspire confidence in others. Some other movements, previously in contemplation, began about the same time to assume shape; so that toward the last of October, or nearly a month from the inception of the enterprise, we began to feel assurance that it was at last embarked upon a tide that was setting in toward success.

Before passing to the brighter period of our work, we cannot refrain, in this connection, from testifying our appreciation of the aid received in its early stages from Mr. W. A. Reynolds, Mr. H. Searle and Mr. S. Wilder, whom we remember as the Lafayettes of the cause, coming to our aid when we were "few and feeble," and struggling against manifold discouragements. To Mr. Reynolds we are indebted not only for the general and unvarying interest which he manifested in all the arrangements of the Bazaar, from the time it was first brought before him, to its close; but also for some of its most attractive features. The Art Gallery was due exclusively to his suggestion, and its decided success, both in an artistic and pecuniary sense, are to be attributed almost entirely to his taste and indefatigable efforts. Our columns of published donations, too, show that our obligations did not terminate here; that the use of Corinthian Hall eleven days and evenings, including the time of preparation and removal, was most generously added to our long list of favors received.

Mr. Searle was the presiding genius whose wand transformed Corinthian Hall into a magical, cosmopolitan scene,—a work into which he entered with all the enthusiasm of the artist, and to which he devoted a large portion of his valuable time. We are indebted to him not only for the time and skill for which he would allow no compensation, but for the new life which he infused into our work by the heartiness and vigor with which he entered upon it himself.

In Mr. Wilder we recognize one of the early pillars of the Bazaar. A believer in its success from the outset, he was an enthusiastic co-worker for it and with it in every possible way, nearly every department experiencing the benefit of his zeal and munificence.

From about the last of October our Bazaar entered upon a new phase. The crust of discouragement had broken up; the seed which had been planted displayed signs of vitality, and was already shooting upward into what, from this time forward, was a constant and rapid growth. The pronoun we from this time began to assume a wider signification than the limits of any committee or association, extending to include the citizens of Rochester and vicinity. A vortex of interest was now perceptible, which any one could easily foresee must inevitably widen and deepen until the whole community was drawn into its whirling current.

And such was the case. The cause to be benefited was one which of all others enlisted the most universal and intense interest, calling out as it did the patriotic and benevolent sympathies of the whole loyal community, and without which such a work could not have been commenced; but, apart from this, there was an attractiveness, a fascination, in the work itself, that was almost irresistible. Many who at first, on account of ill health or pressing occupations, abstained from a participation in it, found themselves, almost before they were aware of it, moving along with the tide. Ere long the whole community was thoroughly aroused, and "The Bazaar" became the one absorbing topic. Wo, now, to any adverse plans and purposes that ventured near the outer verge of this fatal maelstrom, for they were sure to be wrecked.

It is not easy to trace the further rapid development of our enterprise, but it will always be a joy to remember it—the earnestness, liberality, efficiency and good feeling with which all came up to the work—the harmony of feeling and action, the decidedly Union character of the whole. Here were representatives of all the nationalities and religious creeds in our city, Catholic, Protestant and Hebrew, working heartily together with equal interest in one common cause, proud to be ranged together under one banner, and gladly bringing their offerings to one common altar—our Country's.

Nothing was more interesting than the manner in which members of other distinct Aid organizations in our city, those doing a noble work of their own, and acting through different channels from our Association, came forward. Asking no questions, imposing no conditions, they threw their whole heart and energy into the work, their efficiency telling largely in its good results. It was enough for them that it was for our soldiers.

The delegations and bountiful donations, too, constantly arriving from the country, attested the interest which the occasion had inspired throughout a wide circle beyond our city limits.

Great assistance was rendered us by several gentlemen, in conducting the business of the occasion, among whom we would especially mention Mr. A. S. Mann, who, beside generous contributions to our funds, devoted his whole time to it during its continuance, and much before and afterward, rendering us invaluable aid in many ways, but especially in the capacity of General Treasurer. Mr. J. H. Brewster and Mr. C. F. Smith have our hearty thanks for the faithfulness and perseverance with which they discharged the arduous duties of the Ticket Committee; also Mr. S. W. Updike, Mr. H. D. Scrantom, and other gentlemen, for their assistance in various ways before and during the Bazaar.

The "Bazaar Bulletin."

Five numbers of a little paper, entitled the "Bazaar Bulletin," were issued during Bazaar week, extracts from which and from the daily papers will give an idea of the progress from day to day after the opening:

The Bazaar was opened last evening a few minutes after the hour (7 o'clock) that had been announced in the programme, and now a successful opening is no longer a matter of hope or faith, but a solid fact. Long before the time for ingress to the Hall, a dense crowd had assembled outside, which, upon opening the doors, soon occupied every foot of space that could be reserved for them in the Hall.

The display presented might well be called bewilderingly beautiful. Everybody was there, and everybody was delighted—charmed. Even those who had been behind the scenes sufficiently to know something of the magnitude of the preparations making, the liberality of the contributions offered, and the skill and taste enlisted in the work, were not among the least surprised when they saw the embodiment of all this in a scene which, it could be easily imagined, had been evoked by Aladdin's lamp.

It is of course impossible, in our short space, to enter at all into the minutiae of the scene. Suffice it to say it was a brilliant success, under whatever aspect we view it, whether of pride, pleasure or pay. We were all proud of the skill, taste, energy and patriotism of the ladies of our city who have entered into this work, of the gentlemen who have so generously aided them, and of the artistic skill displayed in the architectural, scenic and landscape decorations. We were all pleased, too, with the beautiful result, with the audience, and with everybody generally. But the climax of good is, that it paid. The receipts were gratifyingly large for the first evening, when, it is to be expected, a good deal of time is occupied in sight-seeing, that will afterward be given to business.

We may now confidently look forward to the result of our Bazaar, as one that will not leave Rochester behind her sister cities in similar enterprises in the soldiers' behalf.—Bazaar Bulletin, Dec. 15.

THIRD DAY.—The receipts for the day and evening, deposited with the General Treasurer, amounted to $2,906, making the sum total of receipts to the present time, over $6,000. Eleven hundred single tickets were sold at the door in the evening, which, added to the large number of course tickets issued, will give some idea of the immense crowd that pressed for admission upon the opening of the doors. When the hall was packed to overflowing, as many remained outside, a large part of whom patiently waited an opportunity to fill up vacancies, when a slow current commenced setting outwards. The density of the crowd was thus but little diminished up to a late hour in the evening.

We understand several foreign delegations were in attendance during the day and evening, from towns near and remote, including representatives from Albany and Buffalo. In extending a hearty welcome to all, we cannot forbear expressing our obligation to ladies from the latter city, for the encouragement they gave us in the outset of our enterprise, through the cordial interest they manifested in it, and the valuable assistance they rendered. If our success has approximated their own, it has been partly due to their own generous co-operation in the commencement of our undertaking.—Bazaar Bulletin, Dec. 17.

OUR YOUNG WAITERS.—The chief attractions, undoubtedly, in our arrangements for refreshments, are the young ladies who wait upon the tables, in their pretty costumes—red skirt, white apron and garibaldi, and blue peasant waist, which they have fitted up so tastefully, and which, with the coquettish little head-dress, that caps the climax, has a charming effect. These young ladies, however, are not merely ornamental, as the testimony of the ladies in charge can prove. They have entered into the work of the occasion with a heartiness and aptness that has given them a decided position among the useful members of the Bazaar, and elicited warm commendations from the ladies, who have found in them valuable aids.—Bazaar Bulletin, Dec. 17.

FOURTH AND FIFTH DAYS.—During the past two days, the rush to the Hall has been fully maintained, 1300 tickets having been sold at the door last evening, beside nearly 200 elsewhere. The slow currents into and from the Hall through the evening give access to a number two or three times as great as could occupy it at any one time. There seem, up to the present time, no indications of the slightest diminution, but, on the contrary, an increase, of public interest. Those who have been present from the first are just as desirous to come again, and new ones are constantly being brought into the widening circle of curiosity to witness it, and interest themselves in its progress.

The receipts during Thursday and Friday averaged a little over two thousand dollars a day, the precise amount being $5,238. This gives a total of receipts for the five days, ending Friday night, of over $10,000. The intensity and continuance of interest, the amount of receipts, and the entire and brilliant success of the Bazaar generally, are unprecedented in this community, and have astonished every one—none more than those who first engaged in the enterprise, and ventured to put out to sea, trusting to the same favoring currents in human nature that had borne others so prosperously along.—Bazaar Bulletin, Dec. 19.

Notices of the Press.

If any doubt had been felt concerning the success of the Christmas Bazaar, now being held under the auspices of the Ladies' Hospital Relief Association, they were completely dispelled by the popular demonstration at Corinthian Hall last evening. For a full hour before the opening of the doors, an immense crowd besieged the entrance, and placed a living, surging embargo on Exchange Place. There were at least two good acres of people who had severally striven to have the very first glimpse at the Grand Bazaar, and had accordingly presented themselves an hour before the time announced for the opening. How well they all succeeded, their disheveled and tumultuous individual experiences can painfully attest.

But once inside, everybody was delighted. We have not now either the space or time to present a description which would afford any proper conception of this marvelous spectacle. It is unrivaled by anything that has preceded it here, and for bewildering magnificence, is probably unsurpassed by any similar exhibition elsewhere. We dare say that an inventory of its effects would do no discredit to a world's fair, for all the nations of the world seem to have contributed their quota of pleasing novelties to the Bazaar. * * * *

There is but one thing to be regretted, viz: the insufficiency of the Hall for the public accommodation; but as the entertainment will continue at least a week, perhaps all our citizens will be afforded an opportunity of visiting the Bazaar, and contributing in some measure to the noble object for which it was designed. * * * *

We learn that the receipts for sales at the Bazaar, last evening, exceeded $400.—Democrat, Dec. 15.

Corinthian Hall, now converted into a grand Bazaar, is the scene of all attraction. It is thronged day and night. The receipts up to last night, had exceeded $3,000.

Excellent dinners are furnished by the ladies, and hundreds partake of them. There are many things to be seen and admired, and purchased too, at reasonable prices. Those who want to see something very attractive, as well as those who want to purchase holiday gifts, should go to the Bazaar. All the cash expended there goes to the relief of sick and wounded soldiers.

Nothing has ever been gotten up here, in the way of a fair, which would bear comparison with this; and there was never an enterprise of a similar character, which commanded so generally the efforts of all classes in community. The success of the Bazaar is the hope of all. Then let all do their best to make the effort a success. It is hardly necessary to urge any one to attend the Bazaar. At the rate the thing is running now, we may be called upon to ask people who have been once, to stay away and let others in. Yet, so far, all have been pretty well accommodated, we believe, though the attendance is large.

The statement as to the terms of admission, made in this paper yesterday, though sent in by those concerned in the management, was not correct. It is now stated that the single tickets are available at any time when the Bazaar is open, viz: from 12 M. to 4 P. M., and from 7 P. M. till 10 1-2 P. M., when it closes.

The street cars run till 11 P. M. on the several routes, to accommodate people attending the Bazaar in the evening.—Union, 16th.

The Bazaar is the absorbing topic of discussion in every quarter. In the home circle, on the street, in the stores, by day and night, among old and young, high and low, rich and poor, grave and gay, it is the transcendent theme. Everybody goes. Everybody admires. Everybody carries away some pretty or substantial token of sympathy for "the sick and wounded soldiers," or in acknowledgment at least, of the irresistible manner in which the poor fellows' claims are presented by the Ladies' Hospital Aid Association of Rochester.

All yesterday and last evening, during the hours of exhibition, Corinthian Hall was filled to its greatest capacity by a happy and enthusiastic multitude, crazy to see and eager to spend; and hundreds of the same class went away during the evening, unable to obtain admission. * * * *

The best time to visit the Hall during the day is precisely at 12 M., when the sonorous wail of the Highland bagpipe announces that lunch is ready. The centre of the Hall is appropriated to square little tables invitingly spread for the accommodation of all who choose to partake. The bill of fare is unexceptionable, and the young ladies who have the supervision of this important feature impart a decided relish to the banquet by the surprising alacrity with which they respond to the call for "extras!" Let our poor hungry soldiers think of the comfortable dollar lunches which their friends are putting away for their benefit under these pleasant circumstances, and be content with their deprivation.—Democrat, 16th.

There was another great rush to the Bazaar yesterday and last night. The receipts were about $3,000. The attraction at the outset continues, and is nightly increased by the addition of new things. There is a world of amusement in going to the Bazaar. With its variety of shows and entertainments, it is a complete museum and gallery of fine arts combined, and we may add, first class hotel with "polite and attentive" hostesses.

The Bazaar is where you get the worth of your money, and contribute all you pay to a very desirable object—the relief of the sick and wounded soldiers.—Union, Dec. 17.

Have you seen the Bazaar? Have you seen the Fairy Land—the gorgeous booths—the rich and innumerable variety of holiday gifts—the "grate show"—the truly splendid art gallery, the Stereoscopic Gallery, and in fact the Bazaar and its Bazaarian connections, including the polite and attentive waiter girls? If you have ha-v-e-n't, it is time you had h-a-d. Last night the pressure was quite up to 200 pounds to the square inch, and fully sufficient to prevent the mixing up of the assembly—to allow different purchasers to peep into different booths.—Express, 18th.

THE BAZAAR.—The attraction at Corinthian Hall where the ladies are holding their grand Bazaar, continues unabated. There was a large attendance yesterday, and a jam last night. The receipts were upwards of $2,000, and will average that amount per day. These are of course the gross receipts, and there is a considerable bill of expenses to be deducted.

To-morrow night will close the week for which the Bazaar is advertised. We need not urge upon people of the city to attend, for it seems that everybody is going. And many come in from abroad, and they go home to tell their friends what a beautiful affair the ladies have here.

Donations continue to be received, and are very acceptable. Send in anything you have that will sell, or that can be applied for the benefit of the soldiers. The ladies are much in want of cream as an ingredient for making ice cream. Donations of this article will be regarded with special favor, now that so much ice cream can be sold at the Bazaar.—Express, Dec. 19th.

The original plan of the Bazaar contemplated only six days' exhibition, which it was thought would fully satisfy the demands of sight-seers, and afford ample time for disposing of all articles offered for sale. But the week has almost expired, without any perceptible decrease in the number of spectators, and but little diminution of the enthusiasm which characterized the opening night. If it were a penal offence for anybody to dine outside of the Bazaar, it is possible there might be a severer pressure in that direction, but we doubt whether any more could find accommodation at the tables: and if rich pecuniary avails, instead of deficits, were the reward of all who succeeded in getting within the same enchanting domain between 6 and 9 P. M., there could be no livelier competition than we have witnessed at such intervals during the entire week. The sales at the Bazaar have been correspondingly large, not that the mercantile trade has been suspended, but seemingly because all the oddities and niceties in creation, everything that can gratify the taste or indulge the fancy, have by some mysterious dispensation been converted into articles of prime necessity, and command fabulous estimates. The total cash sales for the week will probably exceed $13,000. The Managers have decided to continue the Bazaar on Monday and Tuesday of next week, and it is unnecessary to add that the public will cordially approve the decision.

And during the two succeeding days our citizens should not overlook the splendid attractions of the Art Gallery, which presents the finest collection of paintings ever exhibited in this city, and not easily surpassed elsewhere. They are nearly all from the drawing-rooms of our wealthier citizens, and embrace some of the best originals of Rossiter, Beard, Sontag, Lily Spencer, and other American artists of high repute. Under no other circumstances could these unpurchaseable productions have been obtained for public exhibition, and the lovers of art will scarcely fail to improve so rare an opportunity for æsthetic enjoyment. Some of our most gifted home artists have contributed to the gallery works of their own production, which challenge the admiration of spectators, and invests with a pleasanter charm this excellent feature of the Grand Bazaar.

The Exchange street branch of the Bazaar has been operated very successfully by Mr. Barton, who has disposed of nearly all the contributions consigned to that department, realizing a handsome sum for the Association. Most of the perishable commodities have been equitably divided between the Protestant and Catholic Orphan Asylums, the City Hospital, Home for the Friendless and Industrial School. What remains, is to-day to be distributed among the indigent families of volunteers. Those who would avail themselves of such donations need only to obtain the Mayor's certificate of identity, and their claims will be duly honored upon personal application at Nos. 7 and 9 Exchange street.—Democrat, Dec. 19th.

The work accomplished by the ladies managing the Bazaar is almost incredible. The result of this labor is shown in the aggregate receipts up to last evening, which amounted to $8,000. The attractions still increase, and continue to draw the same crowded houses. Owing to the excessive fatigue superinduced by their great exertions, the ladies did not open the Bazaar until 12 M. to-day.—Express, 19th.

The Ladies' Bazaar has proved to be so successful that it is "to be continued," like a Ledger story. The five days it has been in operation, Corinthian Hall has been constantly filled with people, and in every department the exhibition and sale has been a decided success. This is the last day of the Fair under the first announcement, and the original intention of the managers. At the suggestion of hundreds, and in accordance with what appears to be the unanimous opinion of all who have taken an interest in the affair—the Bazaar will be continued two days of next week, Monday and Tuesday.

The indications are that to-day will be one of the best of the week. If so, the receipts will be between twelve and thirteen thousand dollars.

The attraction of the exhibition is in no wise diminished, nor will it be next week. The beautiful articles exhibited and sold already will not be removed till the close of the exhibition. The stocks of small articles, fancy goods, &c., are kept up, and will be to the end. The visitor of Monday and Tuesday will see just as much as those who have already been there.

The Art Gallery will also continue open Monday and Tuesday. It is not the least attractive part of the exhibition. There are rare and beautiful paintings, many of which could not be purchased at any price. And the show of art productions is very large. Everybody of taste who attends the Bazaar, goes through the Art Gallery of course.

We are requested to state that season tickets to the Bazaar will be good to the close of the exhibition.—Union, Dec. 19.

This is the eighth and last day of the Grand Bazaar, and the affair will close to-night, with a rush of course. There has been a rush all the time since it opened, and if the receipts have not been large enough, it is because the Hall was too small to accommodate those who would have attended and patronized the exhibition.

The receipts will foot up over $15,000, and the net profits about $10,000. This beats the great Buffalo Bazaar, and we think exceeds the amount taken at any similar establishment in any other city, in proportion to population.

The sale of goods by auction is taking place to-day, and will be continued to-night at reduced prices, till all are sold.

The Bazaar has not lost its attractions, which are numerous. Mr. Dawson, of the Albany Journal, was here on Saturday, with other Albanians, who are taking lessons to run the Albany Bazaar in February. He writes to his paper at length on the exhibition, speaking in high praise of the show, complaining of nothing but the crowd and want of room.—Union, Dec. 22.

ROCHESTER, December 19.

I have been greatly pleased with the opportunity I have had of visiting the Bazaar while in "the full tide of successful operation." The ladies of Rochester have always been distinguished for their hearty zeal "in every good word and work." But their kindly sympathies never shone out more resplendently than in this Bazaar, nor were their angelic ministrations ever more abundantly rewarded. They will to-night have deposited $12,000 as the result of their week's labor; and twelve thousand suffering heroes will "call them blessed," as they partake of the needed comforts which these dollars will secure to them.

These Bazaars involve immense labor; and the ladies of course needed the co-operation of the other sex. And they have had it. Young and old have vied with each other in assuming and performing whatever duties were assigned them. Everybody seemed at work, and the result is a success as unexpected as it is gratifying. Indeed, but for this unanimity, there could not have been this success; and like unanimity will secure (but it is indispensable to) like success elsewhere.

There are several features of this Bazaar deserving special notice. The booths are got up in excellent taste. The characteristic features of the several nationalities represented, are admirably preserved. "Italy" has just what one would look for in Italy; and so of "Russia," "China" "Germany," and the "United States," while the "Yankee" booth, with its "notions," sweet cider, dough-nuts, jackknives, and such like, and the booth of "Young America," with its jaunty "fixings" and "fast" commodities, are conclusive of the discrimination with which everything has been arranged by the managing minds of the grand affair.

The Albanians who have visited the Bazaar (and a number have) have found the "Yankee" booth quite attractive, from the fact that "Mrs. Sophronia Slick," who is inimitable in the personation of her assumed part, is an Albany lady, whose well known Dutch lineage would not have been presumed to have so fully qualified her to so perfectly represent the character of a "down-east" Yankee matron. If "Sophronia" had been freshly imported from the banks of the Penobscot, she could not have been more "genuine."

The "side-show," made up of various stuffed birds and animals, with a preserved mummy, a live monkey and a black cat, puts sixty or eighty dollars a day into the treasury, simply because Geo. Darling's lecture on the "Anamile Creation" is inimitably humorous. The Polar bear is "Greeley standing on the Chicago platform;" the hyena is "Vallandigham nosing around for votes in Canada;" the mummy is "a fine living specimen of a Silver Gray Whig," and so on through the whole catalogue of fish, flesh and fowl. Every thing has its counterpart, and the semblance is enforced with a serious drollery, which insures abundant success to the humorous appeals of the vociferous door-keeper. The Albany Bazaar will be imperfect without something like this magazine of fun for the million. But who will deliver the lectures?

During the day, from 12 to 4, the Hall is made a great dining room, and many hundreds daily avail themselves of it to get a good dinner, and in that way contribute to the general fund. As nearly everything eaten is furnished gratuitously by the farmers and citizens, the profits are large. The young ladies who wait upon the tables, are uniformly attired in red, white and blue—the red skirts being composed of the flannel purchased, and to be hereafter used, for shirts for soldiers. Each skirt is made up of two shirt bodies tacked together, to be hereafter separated for their destined use. No soldier will object to a garment having such a history.

I find among the most active in doing what has to be done, many gray-haired matrons, whose sons and brothers are in the field, and whose hearts are full of patriotic ardor for the old flag. And, associated with them, are the "youth and beauty" of the city—every one of whom deserves special mention, but who are content, in the prosecution of their work of love, with the consciousness that their labors will contribute to the comfort of the brave men who are suffering for their country's weal.

As appendages of the Bazaar, there is a Picture Gallery, composed of the best paintings of all the households in the city, and a Stereoscope room—both of which draw largely. The managers of our Bazaar will not overlook these attractive adjuncts.

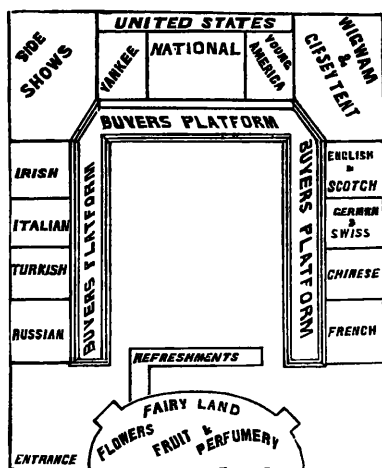

But the room! Ah me, what discomfort! Neither Corinthian Hall here, nor Tweddle Hall in Albany, are at all adequate in space. Is there no substitute? Is a new building impracticable? If not, I hope it may be erected; for there can be neither comfort nor liberality in such a dense jam as will be inevitable in any hall available in Albany or elsewhere.—Editorial Correspondence of the Albany Evening Journal. G. D.

DESCRIPTION.

The Bazaar included four departments, viz:

The Bazaar Proper, in Corinthian Hall; the Art Gallery, in the Rooms of the Athenæum; the Stereopticon Exhibition, in No. 5, Corinthian Hall Building; and the Exchange Street Depot, at Nos. 7 and 9, Masonic Hall Block, Exchange Street.

The following diagram of the arrangement in Corinthian Hall, taken from the "Bulletin," exhibits the plan of the Bazaar Proper:

Each booth occupies a space of about nine feet in front, and from ten to twelve deep, the National Booth being twice the breadth and three or four feet deeper than any other.

An article from the last number of the Bulletin, with some additional particulars introduced, will give a good general idea of the various booths. It was the design to open the Bazaar every evening in tableau, the booths being arranged in easy tableau to continue about fifteen or twenty minutes; a Fairy tableau likewise, being arranged upon the platform. But, owing to the difficulty of having these all ready in season, and of keeping the crowd waiting outside, the attempt was relinquished after the third evening.

Panorama of the Bazaar.

From the "Bulletin," Dec. 19th.

In taking leave, editorially, of the Bazaar, we are prompted to make a rapid circuit of its arrangements from the entrance around the amphitheatre, with a view, more particularly, to bringing out the significance of the various costumes and characters. For this purpose we will take the Bazaar in Tableau.

The first booth encountered on entering, is the Russian, surmounted by a lofty, snow capped dome, and partially surrounded by the northern pines in their wintry dress of snow and icicles. Within, amply protected from the frosts of a northern winter, by thick hangings of costly furs, are a group of five: a Russian General, who has added more than a cubit to his stature by the tower of fur surmounting his figure; a tradeswoman in a strikingly picturesque dress; a young peasant girl and two Russian ladies. They offer for sale a large assortment of goods appropriate to a Siberian climate, as furs, worsted articles, skates, sleds, &c., besides a variety of ornamental articles in Russian leather.

A peep at the next, transports us in a twinkling from furs to fans, as our Fahrenheit suddenly rises from 40 ° below zero to 100 ° above. Rich hangings and brilliant costumes evince the luxury of the South, and the magnificence of Oriental life. Within sits the grand Turk, enjoying the acme of Turkish bliss, the pipe; at a little distance reclines the Sultana, attended by the Circassian and Greek.

We next look in upon beautiful Italy, where pictures, statues and vases abound, and which is represented by an Italian peasant and three or four peasant girls in holiday attire. We glance next at the Emerald Isle, amply stored with attractions for the crowd of buyers, and presided over by Irish gentlemen and ladies, the latter in a beautiful and becoming costume of green and white.

And now we are landed at the home of the inevitable Yankee, where we are encountered by the enterprising firm of Jonathan Slick & Co., consisting of old Mrs. Slick and her three children, Jonathan, Sophronia and Jerusha. Of the daughters, "Sophrony" is evidently the business character, while Jerusha sports the airs and graces of a country belle, having just returned from "boardin' school." It would be difficult to imagine a Yankee Notion not found in this booth, while the adjoining "side show," a branch of the firm, where the "animiles" are exhibited, winding up with the "live mummy" and "cherry colored cat," is one of the richest things in the comic way to be found. It is constantly filled, and the shouts of laughter every now and then from the audience within, attest that they are enjoying their 15 cents worth of fun.

The Stars and Stripes floating above us now tell of a transfer to National soil, "The Land of the Free, and the Home of the Brave." The National booth, double the size of any other, is stored, of course, with the greatest variety of articles. Its emblematic representation, in the opening tableau, is particularly fine. The National group includes five emblematical figures, besides the representations of Washington, Lady Washington and Contraband.

The Goddess of Liberty, beautifully arrayed in the Star and Stripe Costume, with a starry crown, and supporting the Flag, forms the central figure. Immediately around her are three figures representing the national colors, red, white and blue; while at her left, is an emblematic representation of New York; and at her right, Washington, Lady Washington and Contraband. New York is draped in white, wearing upon her head, as the Empire State, a crown, upon which glistens a single brilliant star. She wears a scarf of red, white and blue, significant of her loyalty to the Union; one arm leans upon her Coat-of-Arms, and over the other, resting in her lap, falls a cable attached to the anchor, the emblem of her commercial preëminence. The Costumes of the "Red, White and Blue," are among the most admired in the Hall, for their novelty and beauty. They were devised by the young ladies who wear them, and are in the military style, the white costume having trimmings of blue, the blue of red, and the red of white. Little military caps corresponding in style with the dress, are worn with a very becoming effect. Washington and Lady appear in their bridal costume, as represented in portraits. We are glad to hear that Powelson has perpetuated this group in one of his beautiful photographs.

To the right of this, occupying rather a second compartment of the picture, is the Shaker group, consisting of Brother Broadbrim and three demure sisters. They have a full supply of exquisite Shaker products and plenty of "apple butter."

Now we hail Young America, personated by a younger Major General, carrying on an animated flirtation with an extremely fashionable little Miss of nine or ten summers. The booth is stocked with fancy articles, principally the handiwork of the little girls who arranged it.

There is the Gipseys tent occupied by three or four bewitching looking Gipseys, one of whom, it is said, predicts such doleful events, that her poor victim after paying for his fortune in advance, gladly pays a second price to induce her to stop.

The entrance to the Wigwam of the Grand Sachem is close by within which are four swarthy Aborigines, consisting of two squaws and a young Pocahontas beside the Sachem himself. The Wigwam abounds with the beautiful products of their work, and the representations of character are excellent; one in particular attracts much attention as a remarkably perfect impersonation of the Indian Squaw.

England and Scotland appear next, under the branching horns of the deer, attended by two "Highland Laddies" and three "Highland Lassies" and a bag piper, the latter of whom regales the audience at intervals with his inimitable music. This is the eldest member of the "Booth Family," having been the first one taken in charge, and it presents a complete and choice assortment of appropriate articles, among which the plaid styles bear sway.

Germany and Switzerland look like Christmas in full bloom, with the Christmas tree in the background, and toys enough elsewhere to set all the children wild with delight. A delegation of Swiss, German and Hungarian peasantry are in attendance and ready to supply their customers with Santa Claus' choicest gifts.

Tread softly now, off approaching the precincts of the Celestials, where sit the sublime Mandarin and three or four majestic ladies of rank, all descended from the sun, moon and stars. We are dazzled with the splendor of every thing here, and so overawed by names and things we never heard or dreamed of before, that we quicken the pace that brings us vis-a-vis with sunny, smiling, vine clad France, a land we always love, when we forget that it is the land of Louis Napoleon. A tradesman with two ladies and shop girl will display to you the thousand beautiful things in their brilliant stock, with all the French grace and affability.

Upon the platform blooms Fairy Land, the arrangements of which are due to the taste and skill of Mr. Otto, connected with the extensive nursery of Frost and Brothers. Large wreaths of evergreens and flowers depend from the ceiling, in a tent form, attached to arches at the opposite ends of the platform. A fountain plays in the centre against a background of rocks and trees; the foreground is ornamented with various flowering plants, and in the trees around are birds of beautiful plumage. It was the original design to present here a Fairy tableau every evening, at the opening of the hall, but, after the second, on Wednesday evening, the design was abandoned for the same reason that the booth tableaux were discontinued. The two given were "Young Columbia," on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and on Wednesday evening, "Undine's Dream," in both which all the figures introduced, with the exception of Undine, were tiny children from two and a half to five or six years old. The first tableau is an emblematic representation of the national wealth of our young country. Young Columbia, personated by a little child three years and a half old, in blue with silver stars, wearing a crown of stars, and holding the flag, is represented as receiving tribute from the various Genii of her realm. On her right are the Genius of the mine, in crimson and gold, offering jewels, and Flora laden with flowers; on her left, Pomona brings fruit; Nautila, arrayed in sea green and corals, steps from her little boat with her burden of shells and pearls, and the young Archer in green and gold, his bow and arrow in hand, lays the fruit of the chase at her feet. The second, is the vision Undine saw in her dream of the land above the sea, she had long wished to visit. She dreamed of standing by a fountain in Fairy land, in the midst of little Fairies, exhibiting to her the attractions of earth, its flowers, fruits, birds, gems, groves, &c., while one points her to the sky spangled with stars.

Near the door stands the cynosure of children's eyes, in the tasteful confectionery arbor, and opposite, under the arch at the side of the platform, is an array of all the perfumes of Araby.

In front of the platform is the refreshment table, loaded with the luxuries lavished upon it by ladies in the city and vicinity. During the day a dozen smaller tables, seating eight persons each, occupy the floor, each presided over by a lady in charge, assisted by her corps of young lady waiters. The latter, in their pretty, becoming costume; red skirt, white apron and waist, blue peasant waist, and jaunty little cap, add much to the picturesque effect of the whole.

Above the National booth is the gallery for the band, whence we are enlivened with music, vocal and instrumental. From this point a very striking view of the gay whirl below is afforded.

Not the least interesting feature in our panorama, is the dense crowd, penetrating to every inch of available space, and rendering any attempt to pass from one point to another almost an impossibility. A slow current sets inward and outward during the greater part of the evening, thus allowing patient waiters outside a late ingress, and maintaining undiminished to a late hour, the density of the throng, that never seems to tire of the fascination of the brilliant scene.

The following statements concerning the Art Gallery and Stereopticon Exhibition are kindly furnished us by ladies connected with those departments:

The Art Gallery.

THE Art Gallery in connection with the Bazaar, proved one of its most agreeable features, and a decided success.

When the idea was first suggested, it seemed almost impracticable, as the collecting of so large a number of valuable pictures from private residences incurred so great risks, that it was feared many would feel a hesitancy in allowing them to be removed. But wherever the plan was mentioned, it met with a ready response and hearty co-operation.

The Board of Directors of the Athenæum and Mechanics' Association very generously gave the Ladies the use of the Reading Room, and kindly and graciously consented, for the week, to consult their “ maps of busy life,

Its fluctuations and its vast concerns,” in a condensed form in the Library.

The desks were all removed, the light excluded, and arrangements made in the gas fittings, after the most approved plan of lighting an Art Gallery—and day was turned into night. The effect upon the pictures was very beautiful, all having the advantage of an equally good light.

The Ladies of Buffalo entered most enthusiastically into this new feature of our Bazaar, and with that hearty generosity which ever characterizes all such acts in our sister city, contributed fifteen or twenty very beautiful works from the pencils of some of the first American artists—Sontag, whose delightful little renderings of scenery among the White Hills make him a general favorite—Beard, who is almost inimitable in his little animal subjects—Geo. H. Hall, whose fruit is always so luscious and tempting—“The Steeple Chase,” from the French school, a warm, sunny picture, full of life and action, bright, happy faces of rollicking, fun-loving childhood, attracted general admiration, and all were very valuable acquisitions.

At the north end of the room, and the first to attract notice, was a fine allegorical picture, "The Stages of Life;" a very old painting, the date just distinguishable, 1514. Near this, on the west side, were two very old pictures, believed to be original Hogarths, from his celebrated series, "The Rake's Progress"—certainly bearing evidence of great age, and of interest to all art students. Another fine old original was a "Head of Judith," by Christofa Allori—"Innocence," by Romanelli;—a valuable picture, a head of "Cæsar Borgia." "The Banished Lord," a copy after Rembrandt, possessed great strength of color.

Many fine copies from the most celebrated works of the old masters, which have been selected in Europe with great care and taste, adorned the walls, among which were Guido's "Aurora" and "Beatrice Cenci."

Raphael's "La Fornarina"—several fine copies of "Madonnas," after Raphael—"Magdalens" after Correggio and Carlo Dolce—Titian's "Flora," and a "Portrait of Titian," from a painting by himself.

Among those from the German school was a candlelight effect. A young girl standing near an open door, through which she is about to pass, holding a lighted candle, which she shades with her hand, throwing the reflection full upon her face—one of those sweet faces, beaming with the love of home and friends, which seems almost to speak the words "Good night." "Reading the News," by Notterman, a beautiful little genre piece, full of life. "The Toilette," a little gem by Rustige, exquisite in detail.—Three beautiful little pictures, "Indians on a Rock," "The Russ Sleigh," and "Salmon Spearing by Torchlight," by Krieshoff. A fine architectural view, "Rosslyn Chapel," by Steinbruck—whose name only need be mentioned; and an "Interior of a French Cottage," were admirable in their detail.

From the pencil of Lilly Spencer, who stands unrivalled in her rendering of every-day life, was the well known picture, "The Power of Fashion," which told its own story. William Hart was admired in two beautifully rare bits of color, "Morning" and "Night."

Our Home Artists were all represented by some of their finest productions, among which "A Portrait of Dr. Brown," by G. Gilbert; "A Portrait of Squire Clarke," by C. Kimble; and a crayon head of the late Rev. Dr. Pease, by J. M. Mundy, attracted much notice. Among the landscapes, many of which were of the highest merit, were some by Hilger and Nehlig of the Dusseldorf school, and others, much admired, by our Home artists.

Among the gifts to the Association was the fine piece of statuary, "Sabrina," suggested to the artist by a beautiful passage in Milton's Comus :

"Sabrina fair,
Listen where thou art sitting
Under the glassy, cool, translucent wave,
In twisted braids of lilies knitting
The loose train of thine amber-dropping hair ;
Listen for dear honor's sake,
Goddess of the silver lake,
Listen and save.

This was placed in the centre of the room, and added greatly to the general effect and beauty of the Gallery.

A fine Landscape, "The Vale of Chamouni," was a generous donation from Thos. Mack, Esq., of Boston.

There was an universal expression of satisfaction and delight from all who visited the Gallery, and the many pleasant hours enjoyed in the quiet study of so much beauty, after spending a time amid the Babel of the Grand Bazaar, will long be remembered. And as the time drew near for its close, there was a general expression of regret. "Would that it might be permanent!" was on the lip and in the heart of almost every one; but with the "Christmas Bazaar" the "Art Gallery" lived its short life, and is among the things that were.

Many homes in our city, whose walls for the time were robbed of their picture windows, many of which were rare gems, must have seemed very desolate. But as our highest happiness consists in making others happy, the hearts of all the contributors must have been doubly blest, not only in the feeling that so much enjoyment was given to the immediate visitors to the Gallery; but also in the fact that, far away in desolate camps, and through the crowded hospitals, the light and cheer from the impromptu Art Gallery would shine, and illumine and encourage many a weary, fainting heart.

Appended will be found a full Catalogue of the Paintings and Contributors.

The Stereopticon Exhibition.

THE Stereoscopic Department of the Bazaar should not be overlooked in our report, as it was one of the most interesting and attractive features of the Exhibition.

It occupied two rooms nearly opposite the Art Gallery, one of which was used as a salesroom for Ambrotypes in unique carved wood and rustic frames, which attracted many admirers; also rose-wood, and passepartout. The collection of card Photographs was very fine, and a large number were sold, at prices which satisfied every one. Beside these we had a splendid assortment of Photograph Albums, which were furnished us, by one of our most prominent dealers, at a discount that enabled us to make a very handsome profit. The second room was the centre of all attraction, in which were placed ten large stereoscopes, containing nearly a thousand very fine views, of almost endless variety. One could easily imagine himself in some fairy land, surrounded by scenes too beautiful for earth—and then suddenly you would find yourself transported to some battle-field strewn with dead and dying, or 'to a grand waterfall, or, perchance, to some gay and festive drawing-room scene. The statuary in these was exceedingly good. The gas lights were arranged in such a manner as to give a much finer effect to the views than the best sun-light. From this room were sold the tickets upon the Chickering Piano, which elicited the admiration of every one who heard its rich tones. "This is the place where you get the worth of your money," was the expression made by many of those who visited this department.

ORGANIZATION

At the special meeting previously alluded to, held Sept. 30th, a committee was appointed, subsequently termed the Financial Committee, embracing twelve members; the seven officers of the Society, viz: President, two Vice Presidents, Recording and Corresponding Secretaries, Treasurer and Superintendent of Rooms, and five others named by the President, whose duty it was made to devise plans for raising funds, and to conduct any such plan after its adoption by the Society. To those duties was afterward added the general care of the funds thus raised.

This Committee became, in virtue of this action, the Committee of Arrangements of the Bazaar, and accordingly prepared a plan of organization, which contemplated, however, only the arrangements in Corinthian Hall, or the Bazaar proper, the other departments being added at different times afterward. The general plan embraced, in separate articles, the main points to which were appended various special plans designed as guides to special committees. The following is an abstract of these articles, briefly expressing the several points.

General Plan of Organization.

1. The place and time for holding the Bazaar, viz.: Corinthian Hall, and Dec. 14th to 22d, inclusive, from 12 M. to 5 P. M., and 7 to 11 P. M.

2. The features of the Bazaar: Booths, Refreshment tables and Platform Exhibitions. [The latter subsequently dropped.]

3. Special Committees: a Committee for each Booth, a Committee on Refreshments, a Committee on Platform Arrangements, and Committees on Constructing the Bazaar, on Lighting it, on Receiving and Marking such donated articles as were sent to no particular department, on Music, Tickets, Printing, Police, and a General Treasurer.

4. General duty of each Committee: to take the entire responsibility of the business pertaining to it, excepting where this business conflicts with the business of another Committee, in which case it is regulated by the General Committee.

5. Duties of Chairman of each Committee : 1st. To appoint her own Committee, where this is not done by the General Committee ; 2nd. To fill vacancies and make any additional desired appointments. 3d. To organize her Committee where this is not done by the General Committee, assigning specific duties to individual members ; 4th. To act as Treasurer of her Committee, or appoint a substitute, whose duty it shall be to take charge of and keep a record of all receipts and expenses pertaining to her Committee, appointing a Cashier during the sales, settling all bills and depositing receipts with the General Treasurer ; 5th. To report to the General Committee, on a day to be appointed for that purpose, all expenses incurred, and all receipts, whether by sale or donation.

6. Modifications ; The foregoing plan can be modified at any time by the General Committee. Any member of a Committee, to whom a specific duty is assigned, can serve by deputy, provide a substitute, or alternate, or appoint associates, at her own discretion.

Organization of the Committee on Refreshments.

1st. General Duty : The whole charge of everything pertaining to refreshments.

2nd. Sub-Divisions : Into three Sub-Committees, viz.: 1st. On Soliciting Edibles ; 2d. On Furnishing Tables ; 3d. On Supplying Tables.

3d. Duties of the Sub-Committees : 1st. Of the Committee on Soliciting Edibles ; to solicit edibles from city and country, each in the district assigned her, and to receive and credit each, what she has solicited, at some appointed time and place. 2nd. Of the Committee on Furnishing Tables ; to borrow, hire or buy all articles necessary for furnishing the tables, taking charge of the same until returned, each member of the Committee taking some specific articles in charge. 3d. Of the Committee on Supplying the Tables ; To take charge of edibles from the hands of the first Committee, to make all arrangements for their preparation for sale, supplying deficiencies by purchase or otherwise, and to conduct the sales ; a part of the Committee taking each some specific articles in charge, and others assisting generally.

4th. Appointment of Sub-Committees ; To be appointed by the Charman of the Whole Committee on Refreshments.

No plans of organization were proposed by the General Committee, beyond the conditions named in the general plan, for any other Special Committee. The Booths were taken in charge each by a lady or ladies, solicited, or volunteering for that purpose, the lady in charge thus becoming Chairman, and arranging her own Committee. In every other Committee the duties were so limited and specific as to require no special organization.

A change was made in the duties of the Committee on Platform Arrangements, which were first designed to include a series of tableaux. But it was deemed inexpedient to have exhibitions during the evening upon the platform, and, as the latter was unavailable for sales, from the necessity of limiting access to a single point, and that an inconvenient one, it was assigned mainly to ornament, and arranged as Fairy Land, the end of the platform adjoining the entrance being appropriated to the sale of flowers and perfumery.

The above arrangements do not include the departments afterward added, viz : The Art Gallery, Stereopticon Exhibition, and Depot for Agricultural and Manufactured Products on Exchange Street. These were organized and conducted entirely by the ladies and gentlemen in charge.

The Exchange Street Depot.

This was opened at Nos. 7 and 9 Masonic Hall Block, a day or two previous to the opening of the Bazaar, under the superintendence of Mr. W. H. H. Barton, for the reception of donations that were not appropriate to the hall, such as agricultural products and manufactures of all kinds. Some valuable contributions were made here, but owing to the late period of commencing this branch of operations, there was not time for enlisting the general interest which would doubtless, otherwise have yielded large accessions to our stores from these sources.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT BY JONATHAN SLICK & CO. OF DONATIONS TO THE YANKEE BOOTH.—We have requested the privilege of publishing the following acknowledgment, just as it was sportively sent in to the Committee, in keeping with the character of "Sophrony," in the booth:

Amount received in the "Yankee Booth"	$547 35
Amount received in "Side Show"	317 80
	$865 15
Amount expended	61 10
Nett profits	$804 05

DONATIONS.

The capital of $30 with which "our firm" started in business, was furnished by friends "in need," and who proved themselves during the Bazaar Week "friends indeed." Jonathan Slick & Co. heartily thank the good folks of Lima for their valuable donation to the "Yankee Booth;" also, Mrs. Backus, of Geneseo, for two dozen mops; likewise, a Buffalo lady, for manifold holders; also, Rochester ladies, for more holders; and still more holders from two small boys; to Burke, Fitzsimons, Hone & Co., our thanks are justly due; to Mr. Hone, for services rendered at the Bazaar; to Mr. Fitzsimons, for a box of Yankee notions; to Mr. Burke, for calico for a bed quilt, and "wooden nutmegs" that wooden come; to Robert Fenn, our blind poet, for two small cups cut by him from the Charter Oak, which sold for $24; to Judge Selden, for speeches in behalf of said cups; for an anonymous present of two pieces of worsted work, labelled "the widow's mite;" to Messrs. Oothout & Burtis, for a barrel of ale; to George J. Whitney, for a barrel of cider, from which we realized the small sum of $75; to Brig. Gen. Williams, for another barrel of cider, which disappointed us in the same way; to Mrs. Danforth, for a "little more cider too;" to our friends, fellow-citizens and the rest of the human race, who were so considerate as to furnish us with doughnuts; to Mrs. Vervalin, for nuts without the dough; to Mrs. Wilbur Griffin, for one doll, showing the wonderful effects of her hair restorative; to a lady, for pumpkin pies and cheese; to Brig. Gen. Williams, for one pumpkin which brought $5.50 at auction; to a friend, for swindling the public by auctioneering said pumpkin; to a lady, for silver-cleaning powder; for one patch-work bag filled with hops; for several loaves of New-England rye bread; to a lady, for a bust of John Brown, made of Yankee marble; to Mr. John Thompson, for a newspaper, dated July 19th, 1776, from which we realized $15; to "Grand Mother Slick," for numerous spectacle wipers; to the "juvenile Slicks," for lamp lighters; to Mr. Thorn, for kindly donating the frame of a doll's kitchen; to a Buffalo friend, for wax tapers; to Albany friends, for a Shaker meeting and breakfast shawl; to Smith and Perkins, for "Aromatic Chewing Gum"—the proof of the gum was in the chewing; to Major Lancey, for "the Bone of Contention," and appropriate books; to Mr. Robey, for hospitable wears; to our friends of the French booth, for their watchful care, in furnishing us with belles and other saleable articles; to a Buffalo friend, for a $3 sausage. We thank, individually and collectively, the friends who furnished us with aprons, knit washcloths, night-caps, kerosene burners, lamplighters, needle books, a shawl, powder flasks, planes, and anything else we may have forgotten; to Mr. Wilder, for being on hand wherever he was wanted, for assisting us in every emergency, and encouraging us in our efforts; to Whitney Williams, for untold services, and drawing cider as we drew the crowd; to Prof. Henry Ward, for kindly furnishing "material" for our "show;" also, to the Mummy, for consenting to appear after her long retirement from the world; to Mr. Brennan, for loaning his "cherry colored cat;" to Van Amburgh, for holding the cat; to Mr. Roswell Hart, for loaning "the native of the town;" to Mr. Darling, for his eloquence, his untiring efforts, his consummate skill, and his true statements, in describing the animales, thereby enlightening the minds, and improving the understandings of the multitudes that crowded to see our "side show;" to the said multitudes, for their generous patronage; and to all those who helped to swell the receipts of the "Yankee booth" to $800.

INSURANCE.

Buell & Brewster, O. L. Sheldon, S. B. Raymond, A. Karnes, Insurance Agents, donated insurance on Corinthian Hall, $30.

SPECIAL ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

In cases where ordinary charges for value received have been remitted to us, we have requested a bill of the same for entry upon our list of donations. This, however, in many instances, does but meagre justice to the generous donations, or to our appreciation of it, and we are impelled to express our acknowledgements in a less statistical manner. This has already been done in three or four instances, but there are others, and more than our space will allow us to mention, of which we would gladly speak, among which are some possessing especial claims upon our regard. First among these stands the all the gas burned during the Bazaar having been, by the action of the Company, one telling largely for their liberality and patriotism on this occasion, made free to us. They have furnished us no estimate of the amount consumed, but we know that it must have been enormous.

As a sequel to this comes in the prompt and who, upon being requested to take charge of the business of lighting the hall, at once proffered their services and the use of all necessary fixtures without charge. Those who know the extensive nature of the arrangements required to light all the booths, will understand the amount of labor and material involved, and the obligations we are under to these gentlemen for the brilliant scenes of our Bazaar. We owe to them also the patriotic device in which the word and number "Union" and "76," our sacred national watchwords, were made to glitter in burning letters over the National booth, adding much to its national effect.

Nor shall we forget, while we remember the beautiful Fairy Land, that it was mainly a Generous Tribute from the Nursery of Frost & Brothers, the gentlemen connected with which, having freely furnished not only trees, plants, and other materials for adorning it, but likewise the artistic taste and skill which combined these in that charming little landscape, so much admired for its novelty and beauty. In connection with this, we cannot suppress a passing testimonial to the skill and faithfulness of the young ladies assisting, who devoted so many days and evenings to preparing the long wreaths used in the decorations.

To another source,

The Rochester Athenæum,

our special thanks are due for the free use of their rooms, so favorable to this purpose, for our Art Gallery. May they have crowded audiences throughout their lecture season!

The gentlemen who donated the insurance on Corinthian Hall have also our grateful acknowledgements.

One word, a hearty "thank you," to the ladies of Lima and Albion, who have been especially zealous in behalf of our Bazaar; and a general "God bless you" to so many others, beyond our city, who have been effective co-workers with us; and we must close our special acknowledgements with the following very interesting correspondence, which requires no additional comments from us.

ROCHESTER, DEC. 14, 1863.

MRS. W. BARRON WILLIAMS, President Ladies' Hospital Relief Association :

The Hebrew ladies of this city, having been requested to represent the Jewish nationality in the Bazaar, concluded that from a national point of view they should consider themselves above all as Americans, and the only national character in which they wished to appear would be under the Star Spangled Banner, the glorious flag of the Union—the banner of civil and religious liberty. They therefore offered their services individually, and several of them are now busily engaged in the Bazaar.

But at the same time, our ladies concluded to open a subscription, the result of which is the enclosed check for $400, which we present in the name of the Jewish ladies of Rochester, with their wishes that it may help to relieve the sufferings of our wounded patriotic soldiers, and soon return them to their brave comrades in the field, to give the final blow to that criminal attempt to destroy this Union, in the maintenance of which none are more interested than our Jewish fellow-citizens. Very respectfully.

President Hebrew Congregation.

A. STERN, Vice-President.

SPECIAL ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

47

ROCHESTER, DEC. 15.

MESSRS. STETTHEIMER AND STERN:

Gentlemen :—Permit me, in the name of our Association, to acknowledge through you the receipt of your generous donation of Four Hundred Dollars, from the Hebrew ladies of this city. While we regret that the Jewish ladies of Rochester do not take a conspicuous part in the Bazaar, we appreciate the individual services which they have rendered, and are still rendering, and sympathize with their love for the Starry Banner of our common country, which makes them unwilling to represent the Jewish nationality under any other flag. Very respectfully,

W. B. WILLIAMS,
President H. R. Association.

An interesting incident was a donation from England, in the shape of a £5 note, from two ladies, Mrs. A. B. Rowlandson and Mrs. S. Osborne, St. Ives, Huntingdonshire, through a friend in the Shaker booth. We are permitted to publish the following extract from the letter enclosing it :

We feel GREAT interest in the Bazaar you are going to have on the 14th inst., and my sister and I hope you will accept a small donation from us (£5), to add to its funds; and we only wish it was in our power to give a larger sum. We most sincerely wish this noble undertaking every success.

It is pleasant thus to hear from the "Mother Land," the one, of all others, whose hearty sympathy we had hoped to have wholly with us in our great struggle. Such tokens as these tell us that, despite the howls of the malignant "Times" and others of that ilk, there is a chord of friendliness in the great heart of the nation, vibrating in unison with our own.

We must be allowed to speak here of the splendid Afghan, crocheted (knit?) by the Misses Northrup, for the National booth. It surpasses in beauty anything of the kind hitherto produced in the city, and realized to the booth a clear profit of $179.00. About $10.00 of this is due to the liberal arrangements made with the young ladies by Mrs. Kimball, of whom the worsteds were procured, by which she allowed broken parcels to be returned.

The following letter was received from Major General Grant, in reply to the solicitation of Brigadier General Quinby, (on behalf of the association,) for a lock of his hair :

CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE, DEC. 13th, 1863.

MRS. I. F. QUINBY:

My Dear Madam :—The letter of my old friend and classmate, your husband, requesting a lock of my hair, if the article is not growing scarce, from age—I presume he means, to be put in an ornament (by the most delicate of hands no doubt,) and sold at the Bazaar for the benefit of disabled soldiers and their families—is just received.

I am glad to say that the stock is yet abundant as ever, though time or other cause is beginning to intersperse here and there a reminder that winters have passed.

SPECIAL ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

The object for which this little request is made is so praiseworthy that I cannot refuse it, even though I do, by granting it, expose the fact to the ladies of Rochester, that I am no longer a boy.

Hoping that the citizens of your city may spend a happy week commencing to-morrow, and that this fair may remunerate most abundantly, I remain

Very truly your friend,

U. S. GRANT,

Major General U. S. A.

Some inquiries have been made concerning the precise mode of disbursing our funds, inasmuch as we are not exclusively auxiliary to any one agency. We convert them as rapidly as possible into clothing, bedding and edibles for invalid soldiers, and forward them mainly through the channels of the U. S. Sanitary and Christian Commissions, reserving the privilege of sending occasionally through other agencies, as circumstances may seem to require. The Financial Committee have invested $8,000 of our Bazaar fund temporarily in Government Five-twenties, drawing interest, reserving the balance for immediate use.

In conclusion, we congratulate our city upon having taken a position in the front rank of those of equal size, in the great Soldiers' Aid work of the country. It has been a work, thus far, throughout our land, that has no parallel for earnestness and munificence in any other age or country.

It is a work that is writing history equally with the more brilliant exploits of the field; one that must be served with the latter, and even survive them, until the last soldier who has fought at the front to secure to us, in our peaceful homes, national rights as dear to us as to himself, shall cease to require our further aid.

MISS R. B. LONG,

Committee on Bazaar Report.

SHERWOOD'S MAGNETIC REMEDIES, IN A NEGATIVE STATE, OR Compound Chloride of Gold, for CHRONIC DISEASES,

Of the Class Hypertrophy, including all the forms of TUBERCULA or SCHOFULA.

These magnetized remedies are a specific for those chronic diseases of the organs and limbs; which are INvariably DISTINGUISHED by PAIN, (more or less severe, in proportion to the intensity of the disease,) produced by pressure on the ganglions of the spinal nerves, in the inter-vertebral spaces along each side of the spine—no matter what name may have been given to the malady by physicians, acupuncturists, or other medical writers.

These established remedies are of my own manufacture and always accompanied by my new medical treatise, entitled "The Motive Power of the Ramus System, with the Symptoms and Treatment of Chronic Diseases;" and the boxes are labeled with the devices in pages 20, fig. 9, and 26, fig. 14, representing the magnetized disc of iron or steel, and of the middle section of a tubercle, to protect myself and the public against the frauds of impostors.

"Volkmann and Bidder have found by the aid of the microscope that the sympathetic nerves in reality originate in the ganglia; but not only the ganglia of the sympathetic cord, but those also on the POSTERIOR BRANCHES OF THE SPINAL NERVES."—London Lancet, June 24, 1843. A fact discovered many years since, by the Magnetic Symptoms in tubercular disease. H. H. S. P. S. These remedies are forwarded by express, or by Mail, to any Post Office in the Union, free of postage.

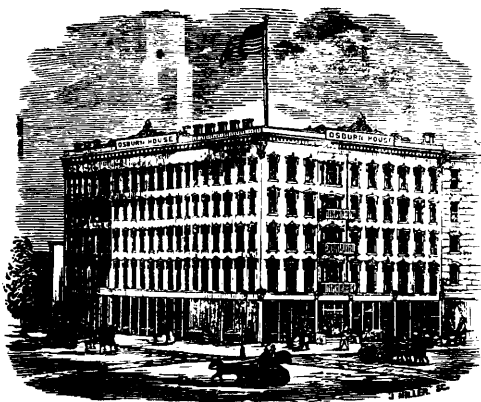

180 Pills in the Box.
 PRICE 8 Dollars.

After a trial of over forty years, these Remedies have proved themselves superior to all other known means of cure, for Tuberculous Consumption, Liver Complaints, and indeed the whole range of Tuberculous Diseases, for which they stand Alone and Unrivalled. They have long been used with great success by many eminent Physicians in a private way. The above is a fac-simile of a package which will last a patient about 6 months for treatment. PIANO FORTES.

IN regard to Piano Fortes, we take much pleasure in speaking of those sold by

of this city, as we have become fully satisfied that the Pianos that he sells are the best that are now manufactured.

Mr. Ellis has been a long time in the trade, which gives him many advantages, and being acquainted with all Manufacturers, he knows where he can purchase the best, and when we take in consideration the flattering testimonials which he is receiving from the most competent Judges from New York City, and elsewhere, in regard to the superiority of his Pianos, we must say that we speak understandingly when we say that they are the best.

Mr. Ellis is constantly traveling and furnishing Pianos in all of our neighboring towns and villages, and is well known over almost the entire State, as well as the Canadas, where he has done a large trade, and the Canadian Press have given him the most liberal and flattering notices. Mr. E. intends soon to open a sales room in the most central part of the city, and will keep the largest and most extensive assortment of Pianos that can be found this side of New York City. The first prize Diploma was awarded to Mr. Ellis for the best Pianos exhibited over all others at the New York State Fair held at Rochester, 1862, of which Mr. Ellis has the sole agency. Many dealers, when they have found the popularity of these instruments, have tried to secure an agency, but have been repulsed, as the Manufacturers, will not sell to any other dealers, except Mr. Ellis, who has the exclusive agency.

MANUFACTURED BY

Mr. Ellis is the only dealer in Western New York, that keeps Grand Pianos; he has them constantly on hand, varying in price from $600 to $1200.

In conclusion we would say to all that wish to purchase a first class Piano, call on

OPINIONS OF PRESS AND PEOPLE.

From the hasty examination we have been able to give, we should consider it as embodying all that is necessary to be known on the subject, and the name of the author, Hon. H. S. RANDALL, of New York, who is known as a well informed writer on stock-growing, is a guarantee of its completeness and reliability.—Maine Farmer.

As a whole, this book is unquestionably in advance of anything of the kind now before the public.—Country Gentleman and Cultivator.

The reputation of the author—who ranks as the authority in this country upon all that pertains to the breeding and management of sheep—will induce a large and continued demand for "The Practical Shepherd."—Ohio Farmer.

The author has brought together in this volume a rich fund of information on the round of topics connected with the subject.—New York Observer.

Mr. RANDALL'S book gives full directions for the treatment of the animal in health and disease, and has a very interesting chapter upon dogs, both as enemies and friends.—Springfield Republican.

The book is got up in a very creditable style, finely illustrated and clearly printed on good paper and handsomely bound and ornamented.—Wool-Grower and Manufacturer.

In looking it over we find evidence on every page of the great service he has rendered to the wool-growing population and the country.—Utica Morning Herald.

We learn that the Practical Shepherd, published less than two weeks ago, by Mr. MOORE, of the Rural New-Yorker, has already reached a third edition! We are not surprised at the great success of this capital and timely volume, as we predicted an immense sale in our notice of it a week ago.—Rochester Daily Democrat & American.

In this volume the author has exhausted the subject, and given all that it is necessary for any farmer to know about selecting, breeding, and general management of sheep, in health or sickness. We heartily commend this work to all who wish for a sound and thorough treatise on sheep husbandry.—New York Tribune.

The illustrations of sheep are by the best artists of New York, and well done. The letter press and paper are all that could be desired in a work of this description. It will undoubtedly meet with the large sale its merits demand.—Prairie Farmer.

It strikes me as much the best work yet published for the American breeder; and it is unquestionably thorough, honest and impartial.—A. B. ALLEN, former Editor American Agriculturist.

It is the best practical sheep book, I think, ever published, and does great credit to Dr. RANDALL.—B. F. JOHNSON, Sec'y N. Y. State Ag. Society.

The book is all that ask on it cou any one the subject. It is the best of its kind, and superior to the heretofore standard.—Youatt.—T. C. PETERS, former Editor Wool-Grower.
