Major Goler as Camp Sanitary Offi-cer rendered invaluable services day and night during October and November, 1918, and prevented the epidemic of influenza sweeping the camp. His great knowledge and experience, coupled with his vigilance and untiring efforts checked the malady in its early stages at Camp Wadsworth, During the entire year he aroused exceptional enthusiasm among medical officers and line officers as to sanitary measures and thereby kept the camp in exceptionally good sanitary conditions. Under General Order No. 24, War Department, 1918, all troops in this camp not a part of an organized division, were under the supervision, of the Depot for Corps and Army Troops and the extra admin-istrative responsibility fell upon the staff of this depot, which was very much under the strength of a Division Staff, in addition to caring for all the interests of over 70,000 Corps and Army Troops, the paper work bequeathed to the Corps and Army Troop Headquarters upon the departure for overseas duty of the 27th and 6th Divisions, caused by the hundreds of casuals they left in camp, also added to the already heavy burden of work put upon this staff officer, who at all times rendered efficient and meritorious service, working day and night for months handling duties of responsibility."
