Cited in General Orders No. 11, May 10, 1919, with the following Citation: "Major Thomas H. Remington, (then Cap-tain), 309th Infantry. On the night of October 17, 1918, this officer was second in command of a very much depleted battalion which was ordered to take the Bois de Loges. No previous reconnaissance had been made. During the time the battalion was moving into position, Captain Remington made some very necessary and intrepid pa-troling of the enemy positions. He accurately located their line of outpost and support lines. Knowing the position of the resistance they would encounter the battalion was thereby enabled to get into a favorable position for attack. During his patrol-ling Captain Remington drew fire at such close range that his return uninjured is worthy of remark." Discharged, Aug. 6. 1919.
