NOTES:
- The text is from the Rochester City Directories and includes references to court cases and trials. The dates and references are from various years, indicating activity in the county courts during that time.
- The text shows a list of court cases and the status of cases, such as whether they were acted upon, listed, or if there were trials or decisions made in specific cases.

FURTHER INFORMATION:
- The court system in Rochester during the late 19th century was active, with regular cases being acted upon and trials being held.
- The directories provide a snapshot of the legal landscape at the time, including the names of individuals and the specific cases they were involved in.
- The references to specific dates and case numbers suggest a detailed record-keeping system, which was crucial for ensuring that cases were properly managed and recorded.
