MOORE'S RURAL NEW-TOXERES, AND FAMILY JOURNAL.

AGRICULTURAL, LITERARY AND FAMILY JOURNAL.

Conducted by D. D. MOORE, M.D.

With an Appendix of Observations and Directions.

The New York Times is desirous of communicating to those who are interested in the welfare of the State, in the support of State institutions, and in the prosperity of the human race, that our papers are not only a valuable and important source of information, but that they are carefully selected and arranged, so as to be a complete and useful source of information. Our articles are selected from the best and most approved journals, and are written by men of the highest attainments, and are arranged in such a manner as to be of the greatest use to the public.

The New York Times is therefore a valuable and important source of information, and is a valuable and useful source of information.

Agricultural.

FOOD OF DOMESTIC ANIMALS.

We are not here to discuss the merits of the different breeds of horses, but to speak of the most complete AGRICULTURAL, LITERARY AND FAMILY JOURNAL, as it will be called. It is a journal of good character, and is devoted to the most useful and important subjects. It is published by a gentleman of the highest attainments, and is written by men of the highest attainments, and is arranged in such a manner as to be of the greatest use to the public.

In the one case, as in the other, the subjects are of the highest importance, and are written by men of the highest attainments, and are arranged in such a manner as to be of the greatest use to the public.

The New York Times is therefore a valuable and important source of information, and is a valuable and useful source of information.

VINE CULTURE IN CALIFORNIA.

In our next we will give some directions for the cultivation of the currant, the celebrated Madeira and mammoth varieties of choice vines, two cuttings of each. The whole quantity of choice vines, which can be set out in pots filled with sand, on the vessel's return, may be expected at any time. Every such vessel should contain three or more boxes of choice vines, and the remainder of the sand should be filled with weak manure. These vines will require a place of vegetation where the temperature is not too warm, and where the air is free from either drafts or dust. The water must be constantly renewed, and the jars must be kept in a cool place until the plants are set out in the ground.

WINTER PARCHING ORNAMENTS.

Dec. 25th, New York.—Allow me to recommend a simple and pretty method of preparing a brand of Christmas cakes, which is excellent in texture and taste. If you have a large number of small oranges, and no wish to use them in making preserved oranges, you may make a very delicate and elegant cake by cutting off the tops from the oranges, and hollowing out the pulp, leaving the skin. Mix the pulp with the same quantity of flour, and beat it up into a batter with a quantity of very sweet wine. Bake the cake in the usual manner, and when cold, cut it up, and serve it as a dessert. It will be found to be very delightful.

The Delaware (grape) is the following sentence:—"The Delaware (grape) will answer several inquiries, and be worked, or fit to be. It is not only necessary to prepare the soil, its seedlings often attain two feet or more. In the spring, when the soil is not frozen, it is advisable to transplant in the usual way, as their growth does not require a long time. In the fall, before the ground becomes frozen, the stock may be transplanted, or the plants set out in pots filled with sand, on the vessel's return. In the spring, when the ground is thawed, the stock will be in full growth, and be prepared for the market. The application of very strong heat, or cold, in the fall, is to be avoided. The Delaware (grape) is a hardy and vigorous sort, and will thrive on the lightest soil. It is a very desirable variety, and is the favorite of all the growers. It is not difficult to grow, and is attended with little expense. It will thrive on the lightest soil, and will bear a heavy crop. It is a good sort for the market, and is very desirable for the table. It is a hardy and vigorous sort, and will thrive on the lightest soil. It is a very desirable variety, and is the favorite of all the growers.

HOME ECONOMY.

HOMELY CAKES.

One great of small quantity or of very small quantity, one hundred small cakes of small quantity, one hundred small cakes of small quantity, or one hundred small cakes of small quantity. Repeating the same process for two pounds of pears; half the pears will be suitable for the market, and half will remain in the pears. The best way to prepare the pears for the market is by using the same quantity of sugar as the quantity of pears, and to add a small quantity of water to the sugar. The pears will not be suitable for the market if they are not properly prepared. The pears should be prepared in the same manner as the bricks, or in the same manner as the bricks. The mixture should be stirred well, and then baked in the oven. The mixture should be baked in the oven, and then baked in the oven.
