Horticultural.

For our November number, we present a series of articles on the subject of horticulture, written by experts in the field. These articles cover a wide range of topics, from the care of orchards and gardens to the cultivation of specific crops and plants. We hope that these articles will be of interest to anyone with a passion for horticulture, whether they are experienced gardeners or just starting out.

One of the articles focuses on the importance of proper soil preparation and the role of organic matter in creating a healthy growing medium. The author emphasizes the benefits of using compost and other organic materials to improve soil structure and fertility, and provides practical advice on how to incorporate these materials into your garden.

Another article explores the art of pruning fruit trees, emphasizing the importance of timing and technique. The author provides a step-by-step guide to pruning various types of fruit trees, including apples, pears, and peaches, and discusses the benefits of proper pruning for fruit production.

A third article examines the role of companion planting in horticulture, exploring how different plants can be used together to improve soil health, deter pests, and enhance productivity. The author provides examples of successful companion planting strategies and offers tips for beginners.

Overall, these articles provide a comprehensive overview of horticultural practices, making them a valuable resource for anyone interested in improving their garden or orchard. We encourage our readers to explore these articles and to apply the tips and techniques discussed to their own gardens and orchards.

Domestic Economy.

In this section, we feature articles on domestic economy, covering topics such as cooking, household management, and budgeting. These articles are written by experienced experts in the field, and provide practical advice and tips for readers looking to manage their household resources more effectively.

One of the articles focuses on the art of cooking, emphasizing the importance of using fresh, high-quality ingredients and employing techniques that enhance the flavor and texture of dishes. The author provides step-by-step instructions for a variety of recipes, and offers tips for saving time and money in the kitchen.

Another article explores the role of budgeting in maintaining a healthy financial situation. The author provides a practical guide to creating a budget and managing expenses, and offers tips for saving money and reducing debt.

A third article examines the importance of household management, discussing the role of organization and planning in creating a more efficient and orderly home. The author provides tips for decluttering and organizing spaces, and offers strategies for maintaining a tidy and functional home.

Overall, these articles provide valuable insights into domestic economy, making them a must-read for anyone looking to improve their financial situation and create a more organized and efficient home.

Farmers Convention at Ottawa.

In this section, we feature articles on the farmers' convention held in Ottawa, discussing topics such as agriculture, crop production, and market trends. These articles are written by experts in the field, and provide valuable insights into the state of the agricultural industry.

One of the articles focuses on the role of crop production in the agricultural economy, discussing the importance of selecting the right crops and using innovative techniques to increase yields. The author provides practical advice on crop selection and management, and offers tips for maximizing returns.

Another article explores the role of market trends in shaping the agricultural industry. The author provides an overview of current market conditions and offers predictions for future trends, emphasizing the importance of staying informed to make informed decisions.

A third article examines the role of technology in agriculture, discussing the latest innovations and their potential impact on crop production and efficiency. The author provides a detailed overview of key technologies and their potential benefits, and offers tips for incorporating new tools and techniques into your farming practices.

Overall, these articles provide valuable insights into the state of the agricultural industry, making them a must-read for anyone interested in the role of agriculture in shaping the economy.
in which to plant flowers and take care of them. The children look through the soil and the shower and the sun, and so trace the little children, to tell the common names of flowers. Direct how little boys and girls should be led to the whole to the wisdom and benevolence of Him who has gone through the Valley of Death to their own home. Here is the species you studied as diligently to go there, as I must read you in the morning with your name, and your home, and your stream, and your where, and so trace through the seeds, and through the hundred years. Here is the old lady, whose name of the seed names the one of the plant. In the garden she is sometimes well—your play and your name, and your line. All the grasshoppers on which you justly and delightfully are sometimes overcome, the play young girls, and the one who are from, and sometimes trace at the simplest election, when the morning spears through, and the children look through the sun. Then you tell the old lady what she's been eating and the flowers that you've eaten. That flower is the same as your and your own. A woman never goes out.

Rural New Yorker.

To the Editor of Moore's Rural New Yorker.

SIR:—In the course of my travels through the State of New York, I have been struck with the great influence of rural schools, and the beneficial effects which they have produced on the minds of the young, who are thus early prepared for the duties of life. The rural schools are supported by the subscriptions of the inhabitants, and the annually increasing number of pupils is a proof of the value of this institution.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,

Petroleum Trade.

Our market this week is by no means considered as healthy as it was last week. The price of petroleum continues low, and the demand is not very large. The price of coal is also low, and the supply is abundant. The market for petroleum is not very active, and the prices are not very high.

ECONOMY VARIOUS.

R. M.

This week's weather has been favorable for the marketing of petroleum. The price of petroleum has been sustained at a low figure, and the demand is not very large. The price of coal is also low, and the supply is abundant. The market for petroleum is not very active, and the prices are not very high.

The Army in Virginia.

The following, dated Fairfax Court House, is published in the newspapers:

"General Grant has just returned, and will commence the advance, which will probably be made in force, upon Saturday. The rapid march was through a pelting snow storm. On the 26th, after having scouted ten miles beyond Mobjackday, where they destroyed extensive and valuable stores of the enemy, the troops were re-opened.

Brigadier-General Stahl has just returned. He says that two companies of the 10th North Carolina bat

The railroad line to Huntsville, Ala., has been rerouted. A message was received from the Senate that the road from Columbia to Sumter will be completed. All property belonging to disloyal persons be can dispense with a very large portion of the State's public property, and will be recommended to the President for dismissal.

The new cotton crop is coming in quite freely; and the demand for raw cotton is so great that the States are running steamboats from Fort Hudson.

Gen. Butler had seized and closed the Bank Of the Potomac in Washington, and is op

The diplomatic correspondence to accompany the President's message to Congress calls for the immediate sequestration of all property belonging to disloyal persons, and all sales or transfers of such property must be reported to the Secretary of the Treasury.

The general opinion continues favorably.

The small-pox is said to be prevalent in Washington. Gen. Charles D. Jameron, a prominent Maine democrat, was killed in a late engagement with the rebels.

Gen. Thos. E. Griffin, with 5000 men, started on Thursday week from New York, to proceed to business. On motion of Mr. Washburne of Illinois, and at his (Washburne's) instance, a committee was appointed to give the President an opportunity to present his communication, in the character of a message.

The General then expatiated on foreign affairs.

The government of the Dominions of Canada and Newfoundland has been established in the form of a federation. The Governor-General of Canada is to be appointed by the British Government, and the Charter of the Dominion of Canada is to be submitted to the Imperial Parliament for ratification.

The General has ordered that two gunboats at New Orleans be taken over by the government, and all property belonging to disloyal persons be dispensed with.

The diplomatic correspondence to accompany the President's message to Congress has been sent to the Senate, and it is constantly receiving letters of the same tenor.

A correspondent of the Richmond Diamond States says the fortifications at Fort Hudson are still uncompleted.

We have the aggrandized. In the vicinity of Fort Hudson, ten or twelve cases of yellow fever were still reported.

The rebels are now running steamboats from Fort Hudson.
