The times in which we live have been referred to as "the age of literature and the age of revolution." These phrases express the spirit of the times, for it is a period of great change and transformation, and the written word is a powerful tool for shaping ideas and influencing public opinion.

In this issue, we present an essay on education, emphasizing the importance of agriculture and horticulture. The essay argues that education, particularly in these fields, is essential for the development of a well-informed and capable society.

We also include articles on economics, politics, and social issues, reflecting the diversity of topics that were of concern to our readers.

Moreover, we provide a variety of practical advice and guidance, such as tips for improving one's health, managing finances, and raising livestock.

Our aim is to offer our readers a comprehensive view of the world around them, and to equip them with the knowledge and skills they need to navigate the challenges of their的时代.

We hope you enjoy this issue of Moore's Rural New Yorker.

Choice Miscellany.

A KINGDOM BY THE FIRESIDE.

At the close of the long Christmas vacation, all the village children were already thinking about the places where they would go to enjoy the Christmas cheer, with their playmates and friends.

The first thing they would want to do is to choose a place where they could have a good time, and the second thing they would want to do is to invite their playmates to join them. They would want to make sure that their parents would approve of the place they had chosen.

The third thing they would want to do is to make sure that they had enough money to pay for the entertainment they would have at the place they had chosen. They would want to make sure that they had enough money to pay for the food and drinks they would have at the place they had chosen.

LITTLE CLELLIE LINE.

The Book of Nature is full of most beautiful lines, and if we only look carefully, we can see that every page of the Bible is full of such lines.

The first thing we would see is the line that says, "Here's a syrup that'll soothe your lungs," taking him in, when there's a tavern within a mile."

The second thing we would see is the line that says, "Do you remember ARTHUR COFELAND, once a peddler?"

The third thing we would see is the line that says, "Where are you going to have him sleep?"

The fourth thing we would see is the line that says, "Take him in."

The fifth thing we would see is the line that says, "The lines of my face suddenly lost their tension."

The sixth thing we would see is the line that says, "Well, you see, I wanted to practice that precept."

The seventh thing we would see is the line that says, "The footpath was carpeted over by the mallows, which grew happy in the present, and was just finishing growing near the Antietam, had a daughter born on the day of the battle of Shiloh."

The eighth thing we would see is the line that says, "It was five o'clock in the afternoon, and raining heavily."

The ninth thing we would see is the line that says, "It was ten o'clock in the evening, and raining heavily."

MARIA'S DOVER.

One day in the year of grace 1845, a disturbance occurred in front of the door of Mr. Mark, a decent business man, and stood at the door of his factory, over which the emblematic figure of a lion was erected. At the door stood a man with a beard, and a long hair curled at the top. He was a tall and power-ful figure, and his face was adorned with a pair of spectacles. He had a small bag slung over his shoulder, and a long, black stick in his hand. He looked at the man, and said, "What is your business here?"

The man replied, "I am a peddler, and I have come to sell my wares."

"What are your wares?"

"I have clothing, shoes, and other articles of every description."

"What is the price of your clothing?"

"I will sell it for $5."

"$5 for clothing? Are you sure that you are notione your wares?"

"I am sure of my wares, and they are of the best quality."

"Do you have a certificate of authenticity for your wares?"

"I do not have a certificate, but I will guarantee the quality of my wares."

"I will take your word, and I will buy one suit of clothing for you."

"Thank you, sir."

"Now, what do you want me to do with the money?"

"I want you to use it to buy me a suit of clothing."
