AGRICULTURAL

FAEMER GARRULOUS TALKS.

The Home Farmer—rendering it the most complete AGRIcultural, discrimination. It embraces more Agricultural, Horticultaken to the Homes of people of intelligence, taste and ments, and earnestly labors to render the RURAL an EUEAI, LETEBAEY AKD FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

WESTERN EDITORIAL NOTES.

IN THE FIELD.

In making the first curious discovery of a lady who can be of service, especially if he be of some acquaintance at the locality. I go where Nature is teaching the principles of her art, and find that the soil is carefully prepared, and that the diet is carefully administered. The roads are frequently visited, and the results of the past are carefully considered.

The last of the snow is melting; the earth which has been covered with a thin layer of snow, appears to be the ground; and the feeling of the soil is carelessly observed. The trees are emerging from their leaves, and the flowers are blossoming. The soil is being prepared for the following year, and the vegetables are being carefully considered.

PRACTICAL TIPS ON THE FARM.

What a charming nose are those brown fingers of garden plants! Nasturtium is expected in June, and golden broth would add to its comfort, odd this time the shape of the bread is a probe to the tongue. The vegetables are not yet grown to their full, and the fruits are not yet ripe.

The field of corn has been tilled, and the whole farm has been grown. A few hundred feet from the farm is the garden, and the garden is full of the fruits of the season.

The milk is prepared for the family, and the eggs are growing. The field is being worked, and the crops are being harvested. The soil is being prepared for the following season, and the vegetables are being carefully considered.

TWO DOLLARS A YEAR.

VOl. XIV No. 19.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—FOR THE WEEK ENDING SUNDAY, MAY 9, 1863.

WHOLE No. 465.

MASON'S PATENT CORN HARVESTER.

Now that people are planting corn, they will have more to consult than which is the best, especially in the West, which is a New York country. The inventor of the Corn-Harvester, of Polo, Illinois, has invented the Corn Harvester apparatus for the preparation of the field, and is now ready for sowing, and is soon to be advertised.

PROMISES AND IMPROVEMENTS.

WHEN TO SOW CORN.

-ágina- and what it is good for making. I have a remark and what makes this magazine so valuable
-atinum to illustrate what I have written.

ABOUT THAT TURBO.

I've often thought, and I still think, that if I believe a good old tree killed, I don't be speak to the tree, and I think that the tree needs and wants to hear from the people who care about it. The tree is the only one who can give the right answer.

THE KEEPER OF THE STORE.

The keeper of the store is the one who can make the correct choice, and if he doesn't, it's the people who care about it who should be blamed. The keeper of the store is the one who knows best, and the people who care about it are the ones who are responsible.

FARMING TALKS.

I've always had my head to a lower, a lower, a lower place, and that's why I go to the store. I'm not interested in making a profit, I'm interested in serving the people.

DISEASES OF THE HOME.

It is a well known fact that more women die during the months of March and April than the men. The reason of this difference from the one which is caused by improper treatment, an outdoor on the ground, and the animals with the right symptoms, are not treated properly.

THE HOME.

The home should be a place where people
are happy, and where they feel comfortable.

FAEMER GARRULOUS TALKS.

THE HOME.

The home should be a place where people
are happy, and where they feel comfortable.

THE HOME.

The home should be a place where people
are happy, and where they feel comfortable.

THE HOME.

The home should be a place where people
are happy, and where they feel comfortable.

THE HOME.

The home should be a place where people
are happy, and where they feel comfortable.

THE HOME.

The home should be a place where people
are happy, and where they feel comfortable.

THE HOME.

The home should be a place where people
are happy, and where they feel comfortable.
THE CHINESE CANE IN OHIO.

Eds. Rural New-Yorker:— As the manure man in the vicinity of my residence is in the habit of planting small patches of the cane, to test its practicability and purchase in this country, I allow myself the liberty of forwarding you a brief note on the subject of this most important crop.

THE CHINESE CANE in Ohio is already of some importance in the他自己 cultivation, and it is my belief that this will increase to a great extent in the near future. Certain sections have already experimented with this crop, and I have reason to believe that the next season will see an extension of its cultivation. This is based upon the fact that the Chinese cane is a hardy and vigorous plant, capable of growing in a variety of soils and climates, and it has been found to be a good crop in both the northern and southern states. The Chinese cane is also a good substitute for the sugar cane, which is sometimes difficult to grow and maintain in certain situations.

In Ohio, the cultivation of Chinese cane is already in its infancy, but it is expected to become more widespread as the demand for sugar increases. The Chinese cane is not only valuable as a source of sugar, but it is also a good source of fiber for making paper, cordage, and other products. It is a valuable crop forImpro

Rural Notes and Items.

Cinthia, Wills, Illinois, April 12, 1863.

I have just seen a letter from Mr. Jones, who informs me that he has purchased a quantity of the Chinese cane for the manufacture of sugar. He states that he has had good results with this crop, and that he is satisfied with its prospects for future cultivation. He is of the opinion that this crop will become more important in the near future, and he anticipates a good market for the sugar produced from it.

I have also received a letter from Mr. Smith, who has been growing Chinese cane for several years. He states that he has had good results with this crop, and that it has been a profitable one for him. He is of the opinion that this crop will become more important in the near future, and he anticipates a good market for the sugar produced from it.

The Chinese cane is a hardy and vigorous plant, capable of growing in a variety of soils and climates, and it has been found to be a good crop in both the northern and southern states. The Chinese cane is also a good substitute for the sugar cane, which is sometimes difficult to grow and maintain in certain situations.

In Ohio, the cultivation of Chinese cane is already in its infancy, but it is expected to become more widespread as the demand for sugar increases. The Chinese cane is not only valuable as a source of sugar, but it is also a good source of fiber for making paper, cordage, and other products. It is a valuable crop for

Keep the country clean and healthy by growing a little Chinese cane.

Rural New Yorker, May 20, 1863.
SPRING NOTES.

Forsythia Viridissima is now ready to be planted. I have a large stock of the finest roots, which will live furnish an excellent planting for the front of a house, or as a hedge, or for streets or avenues. I shall have them in full bloom before the last of March, and you will have the hope of having a fine display for the decoration of your grounds.

The reason is not so apparent. The soil, we will suppose, is well prepared, fine as it can be made, and the weather may be settled and the ground can be got in order. Oh, that they could be undeceived—converted. Those who could be roused! How they would rise to the defense of the field of empire! How they would rally around the standard of our country! Would that ever be possible? Is it possible?—is it possible?

The frame should be placed upon the back and covering a small place at a time, as it soon hardens and becomes too dry to handle. When this is dried it may then be stained with vermillion or burnt umber, and a small brush. When the frame is closed up for a day or two before the seeds are planted, the frame should be opened for two hours on the second day, and the frame closed up again.

When the frame is closed up for a day or two before the seeds are planted, the frame should be opened for two hours on the second day, and the frame closed up again. This is simply a hot-bed frame, with sash, as the cold-frame does not give enough light. The earth is placed in boxes called "frames," which are made of the finest material, and can supply those who wish to test this root as a germination seed. The geographical and climatical conditions of the places in which the seeds are planted, and the care with which they are cultivated, are all of great importance.

If the almighty dollar is what they are after, they enhance the name of the inclosed flower. It has been out full of season, and the fruit is fine and delicious; but there can be no doubt that it is a valuable variety. It is early enough. Plants will then be large and showy, and the weather may be settled and the ground can be got in order.

If we could have a late strawberry, we would inquire about the Hornet Prince. We don't see the Red Antwerp on the market, but it does not bear so well as the Franconia or the Northern. The Purple Cane requires no protection. It is a valuable variety.
HAPPINESS OF CHILDHOOD.

Lizzy is perhaps disposed to believe that childhood is a blissful period of life, but she has not yet sufficient experience to form an opinion on the subject. It is true, she says, that children are generally happy, but as she grows older, they begin to think more about their own affairs, and then they are sure to be dissatisfied. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think.

Lizzy is perhaps disposed to believe that childhood is a blissful period of life, but she has not yet sufficient experience to form an opinion on the subject. It is true, she says, that children are generally happy, but as she grows older, they begin to think more about their own affairs, and then they are sure to be dissatisfied. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think.

Lizzy is perhaps disposed to believe that childhood is a blissful period of life, but she has not yet sufficient experience to form an opinion on the subject. It is true, she says, that children are generally happy, but as she grows older, they begin to think more about their own affairs, and then they are sure to be dissatisfied. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think.

Lizzy is perhaps disposed to believe that childhood is a blissful period of life, but she has not yet sufficient experience to form an opinion on the subject. It is true, she says, that children are generally happy, but as she grows older, they begin to think more about their own affairs, and then they are sure to be dissatisfied. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think.

Lizzy is perhaps disposed to believe that childhood is a blissful period of life, but she has not yet sufficient experience to form an opinion on the subject. It is true, she says, that children are generally happy, but as she grows older, they begin to think more about their own affairs, and then they are sure to be dissatisfied. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think.

Lizzy is perhaps disposed to believe that childhood is a blissful period of life, but she has not yet sufficient experience to form an opinion on the subject. It is true, she says, that children are generally happy, but as she grows older, they begin to think more about their own affairs, and then they are sure to be dissatisfied. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think.

Lizzy is perhaps disposed to believe that childhood is a blissful period of life, but she has not yet sufficient experience to form an opinion on the subject. It is true, she says, that children are generally happy, but as she grows older, they begin to think more about their own affairs, and then they are sure to be dissatisfied. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think.

Lizzy is perhaps disposed to believe that childhood is a blissful period of life, but she has not yet sufficient experience to form an opinion on the subject. It is true, she says, that children are generally happy, but as she grows older, they begin to think more about their own affairs, and then they are sure to be dissatisfied. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think.

Lizzy is perhaps disposed to believe that childhood is a blissful period of life, but she has not yet sufficient experience to form an opinion on the subject. It is true, she says, that children are generally happy, but as she grows older, they begin to think more about their own affairs, and then they are sure to be dissatisfied. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think. She says, that children's minds are not always clear, and that they often think what they ought not to think.
LUTE.

A SENSATIONAL LIFE-HISTORY.

(Concluded from page 156, this number.)

Arreray May.—The 'dies of LUTE, as a great and kind-hearted old lady, were over. It was by the side of her bed in her lonely room, which she occupied at the second story of 223 Jay street, that LUTE's sad history at last closed. She had been a victim to the common diseases of her age, and her death was of long duration.

LUTE had been a woman of many sorrows. She was born in 1789, and had lived a long and useful life. She had been a faithful member of the Methodist church, and had always been a devoted friend to all good causes. She was a kind and gentle woman, and her goodness was known to all who knew her. She had many friends, and was beloved by all who were fortunate enough to be her acquaintances.

LUTE had been a woman of many sorrows. She was born in 1789, and had lived a long and useful life. She had been a faithful member of the Methodist church, and had always been a devoted friend to all good causes. She was a kind and gentle woman, and her goodness was known to all who knew her. She had many friends, and was beloved by all who were fortunate enough to be her acquaintances.

LUTE's last hours were spent in a state of deep unconsciousness. She was surrounded by her friends, who were all deeply moved by her death. She was laid to rest in the cemetery of the church to which she belonged, and was buried with all due ceremony.

The death of LUTE was a great shock to her family and friends. They were all deeply grieved, and their sorrows were great. They had lost a dear friend, and they knew that they would never see her again. They were all deeply moved by LUTE's death, and they knew that they would never see her again.
The Army in Virginia.

An expedition under command of Maj.-Gen. Grant, which left Fort Monroe on the 12th, arrived on the 29th. The object of the expedition was to push the enemy to the west of the Monocacy, which was successfully accomplished. A considerable number of the enemy's force remained at Fairfax and Movee's country, which resulted in skirmishes between the two forces. Another force of the enemy, under Gen. Marmaduke, has penetrated northward, but women, and probably Monday's, news of Wicklow, appears to be a house on the enemy's side, upon whom was found a large amount of money, and papers of importance.

The Army in Tennessee.

The N. Y. Herald learns that Col. Scott, with Portage, made his way in safety to the town of Memphis, and after fighting the rebel troops, took the town without opposition. It is reported that the enemy will make a stand at Belmont, and attempt to recover their lost ground.

The capture of Belmont is considered a great victory, and the army is now marching towards the enemy's rear. Gen. Grant is in command of the forces, and is expected to make a stand at Corinth.

The Army in the West.

The Department of the Gulf.

A dispatch to this office, dated May 31st, says that Gen. Banks, having taken New Orleans, has returned to New York. The news is received with great joy, and the people are looking forward to the capture of Mobile and Pensacola.

The capture of New Orleans is considered a great victory, and the army is now marching towards the enemy's rear. Gen. Grant is in command of the forces, and is expected to make a stand at Corinth.

The Department of the Mississippi.

A dispatch to this office, dated May 31st, says that Gen. Banks, having taken New Orleans, has returned to New York. The news is received with great joy, and the people are looking forward to the capture of Mobile and Pensacola.

The capture of New Orleans is considered a great victory, and the army is now marching towards the enemy's rear. Gen. Grant is in command of the forces, and is expected to make a stand at Corinth.

The Department of the Interior.

A dispatch to this office, dated May 31st, says that Gen. Banks, having taken New Orleans, has returned to New York. The news is received with great joy, and the people are looking forward to the capture of Mobile and Pensacola.

The capture of New Orleans is considered a great victory, and the army is now marching towards the enemy's rear. Gen. Grant is in command of the forces, and is expected to make a stand at Corinth.

The Department of the Treasury.

A dispatch to this office, dated May 31st, says that Gen. Banks, having taken New Orleans, has returned to New York. The news is received with great joy, and the people are looking forward to the capture of Mobile and Pensacola.

The capture of New Orleans is considered a great victory, and the army is now marching towards the enemy's rear. Gen. Grant is in command of the forces, and is expected to make a stand at Corinth.

The Department of the Interior.

A dispatch to this office, dated May 31st, says that Gen. Banks, having taken New Orleans, has returned to New York. The news is received with great joy, and the people are looking forward to the capture of Mobile and Pensacola.

The capture of New Orleans is considered a great victory, and the army is now marching towards the enemy's rear. Gen. Grant is in command of the forces, and is expected to make a stand at Corinth.

The Department of the Interior.

A dispatch to this office, dated May 31st, says that Gen. Banks, having taken New Orleans, has returned to New York. The news is received with great joy, and the people are looking forward to the capture of Mobile and Pensacola.

The capture of New Orleans is considered a great victory, and the army is now marching towards the enemy's rear. Gen. Grant is in command of the forces, and is expected to make a stand at Corinth.

The Department of the Interior.

A dispatch to this office, dated May 31st, says that Gen. Banks, having taken New Orleans, has returned to New York. The news is received with great joy, and the people are looking forward to the capture of Mobile and Pensacola.

The capture of New Orleans is considered a great victory, and the army is now marching towards the enemy's rear. Gen. Grant is in command of the forces, and is expected to make a stand at Corinth.
Special Notices

Atlantic Monthly

New Advertisements.

THE PURSUIT OF DECENCY.

Ralph's Patent Improved "SUREIDA CHEESE VAT,"

EASTMAN'S MODEL MERCANTILE COLLEGE,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.,

The System of Practical Instruction in

To Returned Disabled Soldiers

To Returned Disabled Soldiers

Penmanship.

Young Men of Canada.

New Mode of Instruction.

Thousands of Young Men

Educational Advertisement.

EASTMAN'S MODEL MERCANTILE COLLEGE,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.,

Established in 1849,

For the Experienced Engineer of Young Men,

Offering a

New and Original Mode of Instruction,

Combining Theory and Practice,

By means of various Designing Rooms and Working arrangements, practical in every way, besides, of course, a liberal and scientific education.

BY ITS FOUNDER,

Author of "Eisen & Eastman's Book-Keeping.

This is THE FIRST AND ONLY SCHOOL

That has been endowed and established with the Theory of Book-Keeping.

The School, treated not merely as a place for simply reading out the Theory of Book-Keeping, but actually introduced and set on the right System of Theory and Practice Combined.

We have it in honor of the founder of this Institution to announce that the premium of $750, offered by Eastman's Model Mercantile College, of Rochester, N. Y., in 1850, for the best model of a Book-Keeping System, was awarded to the Editor of the Rural New Yorker, having the merit of simplicity and expediency.

A Model College in Fact.

YOUNG MEN.

This College... is the first and only one of its kind, and the first to offer a complete course of practical education, embracing in its curriculum all the branches of business, including those of book-keeping, banking, mercantile and mechanical arts, agriculture, and the liberal sciences.

To Returned Disabled Soldiers

To Returned Disabled Soldiers

A Department

For Young Ladies,

Penmanship.

Penmanship.

Most attention is paid to this important branch of Education.

Young Men of Canada.

Young Men of Canada.

The High temperature and the climate of this country make it not only a matter of importance, but a necessity, to train men for the service of their country.

New Mode of Instruction.

The good success attended our New Mode of Instruction, as has been well known to all our friends, and to the public, by the numbers who have attended our College, and the number of our graduates who have been successful in their professions.

Thousands of Young Men

Thousands of Young Men

We have not only trained young men for the service of the country, but we have also prepared them for the profession of law, medicine, and other branches of learning.

A. E. EASTMAN,

Principal of Eastman's New College of Charleston, N. Y.
A courageous life.

For More's Real New Yorker.

A SCENTED LIFE HISTORY.

(Continued from last issue, but notice.

After the infant had been buried, Meserve and I had been playing cricket this evening. Father had been by and had played a few words, and then he and I had had a very pleasant talk on the subject of my health, which he was not yet entirely satisfied with. I believe I told him that I had felt quite well for the last two hours or so, but at the same time that I was in a very state of excitement and anxiety for the future. I had no idea how much I loved her, until I thought I was going to lose her. I won't ever know how much I loved her, until I think I am about to lose her again.

I have been very much surprised at the way my father has been treating Nettie. He must not feel the want of Nettie's thoughtfulness. I must take her comfort into consideration. I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister! I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!

I have been saying that I would try to be as happy as possible, but I must not forget that she is my only sister!