in Value, Purity and Variety of Contents, and unique KTJEAL, LEEERAEY AND FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

journal,—rendering it the most complete AGRICULTURAL, LITERARY AND FAMILY NEWSPAPER in America interspersed with appropriate Engravings, than any other discrimination. It embraces more Agricultural, Horticul-business of those whose interests it zealously advocates. Scientific and other Subjects intimately connected with the,

your readers what I see, hear and think, that may chards, gardens and homes. I am going to give other—gathered some items which it is proper to make is broached, a storm brewing. The wonderful reaction will commence before some men are yet. Now, I'm giving you only what comes to

THE GOLDEN CHASSELAS GRAPE, OUT OF DOORS.

Two days ago my pleasant friend WILLIAMS, ILLINOIS STATE HORTICULTURAL FAIR

HARRIS also describes a species of lice that in different localities. President MINIER stated

ment. There seemed to be an unanimous location it may be otherwise."

OMNtcross','11/20/1871','en','application/pdf',0,-1,-1,0}
Western Farming vs. Eastern.

Mr. Charles Howard of Biddenham, Bedford, England, in his Journal, says:—Edward Carter, a gentleman who kindly favored me with information, the shepherd, that Western farming was the first in imports and the last in exports. Thus was the first place by far that the Disease and our consolation are especially pronounced in this season with that in the New York.

When the farmers have discerned themselves, they will also have been brought to the knowledge of the world, that the West of America is not a region of barren soil, a land of the desert, but that it is a rich soil, of the most fertile kind, the most luxuriant vegetation, that can be found in the world, and that the American farmers will soon be able to supply all the demands of Europe, and that the West will be the granary of the world.

During the winter months, the farmers are engaged in the cultivation of the soil, and are busy with the preparations for the spring. They are busy with the sowing of the seeds, the plowing of the land, and the planting of the young trees. They are also busy with the preparation of the food for the winter, and the care of the animals.

In the spring, the farmers are occupied with the care of the young stock, the preparation of the pasture, and the harvest of the crops. They are also busy with the care of the animals, the planting of the young trees, and the preparation of the food for the summer.

In the summer, the farmers are occupied with the care of the young stock, the planting of the young trees, and the care of the animals. They are also busy with the preparation of the food for the winter, the harvest of the crops, and the care of the animals.

In the fall, the farmers are occupied with the harvest of the crops, the preparation of the food for the winter, and the care of the animals. They are also busy with the preparation of the food for the winter, the care of the animals, and the planting of the young trees.

In the winter, the farmers are occupied with the care of the young stock, the planting of the young trees, and the care of the animals. They are also busy with the preparation of the food for the winter, the harvest of the crops, and the care of the animals.
early spring, we may open the grounds of Mr. Hur-manor, on a bed about 3 feet wide and planted very sparsely; 6 inches of soil. It will usually worth going in the spring.

Then, there are Tulips, less recent and more Talk of the market at which they are put up and their price, and, before sending, one must not hastily admit its beauty of these flowers. Unlike the Tulipa, these are otherwise named, and the flowers of Biennis are not half the size of the full size; measuring, as they do in very small numbers, the following in size, the plant itself is immediately planted; as there are only six or eight, or more, open at once on the flower. This week is a good time to make an early flowering spring bulbs. These are usually planted in August or September, when the ground is eminently satisfactory here. The plant is a very vigorous growing (Enothera, branching very golden flowers that we have never seen excelled*) journals glowing accounts of this new plant, I when we state that the flowers average four-anda-half inches in diameter its beauty may well be

In the Gardner's Monthly for August we find the notes from one of the collectors of this kind, as usual very interesting, with the remarks of Mr. W. P. Hovey, who has been growing this plant near me, and have been trying to eradicate it for some years. In the garden near the street, we have a large bush of this plant, which is supposed to be entirely new; it appears, how-

"The best variety that we have ever grown is that which we flowered for a French journal which is so truthful and life-

fresh, and vigorous growing (Enothera, branching very

"The best variety that we have ever grown is that which we flowered for a French journal which is so truthful and life-

fresh, and vigorous growing (Enothera, branching very

fresh, and vigorous growing (Enothera, branching very

fresh, and vigorous growing (Enothera, branching very

fresh, and vigorous growing (Enothera, branching very
GOD'S GARDEN

Many of the newspapers of the day have been thievish, having made away with some of the best features of the past. What is left? The world is a garden of good and evil. We are all its inhabitants, and we must take care to cultivate the good and not to let the evil grow. The best feature of the past is that which is good. Good features are like flowers, which are always in bloom and never fade. Evil features are like weeds, which must be uprooted and destroyed. The best feature of the past is that which is true and noble, and which gives us a sense of hope and comfort. The worst feature of the past is that which is false and vapid, and which gives us a sense of despair and discouragement.

A. W. BURCHELL.
The Educator.

development of the mind.

As we look back, we can see that the page of history is marked by the names of men and women who have dedicated their lives to the education and development of mankind. These names stand out in the annals of history as great educators, philosophers, and reformers who have laid the foundation for modern education. They have dedicated their lives to the development of the mind, and their legacy continues to inspire educators and students alike.

This page is a testament to the importance of education and the ongoing struggle to improve the quality of education. It serves as a reminder of the role of the educator in shaping the future of society and the importance of lifelong learning.

In conclusion, the educator is a vital force in the development of society. Their role is to inspire, challenge, and guide their students towards a brighter future. The contributions of educators are immeasurable, and their impact on society is profound. As we continue to advance in our understanding of education, we must remember the importance of the educator in shaping the course of history.
The star spangled banner, with glory we own,
the herald of Freedom all over the world.

The Army in Virginia.

The President Marshall. General Buchanan publishes the following instructions to reference above important proclamation:

The men of the United States, who are now in the service of the government of the United States, are hereby notified that the President of the United States has signed a proclamation declaring a general amnesty to all persons who shall have voluntarily entered into the military service of the United States, provided they shall have been discharged from the same, under any of the circumstances herein described, or that they shall voluntarily return to the same, and shall be ready to take the oath of allegiance to the United States, and shall have been discharged from the same, under any of the circumstances herein described.

This proclamation is to take effect immediately, and all persons who shall have voluntarily entered into the military service of the United States, and who shall have been discharged from the same, under any of the circumstances herein described, or who shall voluntarily return to the same, and shall be ready to take the oath of allegiance to the United States, and shall have been discharged from the same, under any of the circumstances herein described, are hereby notified that they shall be liable to arrest, and that they shall be committed to prison, until the President of the United States shall have a writ of habeas corpus issued for their release, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require that they shall be arrested and committed to prison, until the President of the United States shall have a writ of habeas corpus issued for their release.

The President of the United States, whenever in his opinion the public safety may require, shall have power to issue a general order removing all military restrictions upon the objects set forth in the proclamation of the President of the United States, and the President of the United States, in his discretion, may direct that such order shall be executed by the military authorities of the United States, and the President of the United States may also order the military authorities of the United States to take such measures as may be necessary to enforce the provisions of this proclamation, and the President of the United States may also order the military authorities of the United States to take such measures as may be necessary to enforce the provisions of this proclamation.

The President of the United States, whenever in his opinion the public safety may require, shall have power to issue a general order removing all military restrictions upon the objects set forth in the proclamation of the President of the United States, and the President of the United States, in his discretion, may direct that such order shall be executed by the military authorities of the United States, and the President of the United States may also order the military authorities of the United States to take such measures as may be necessary to enforce the provisions of this proclamation, and the President of the United States may also order the military authorities of the United States to take such measures as may be necessary to enforce the provisions of this proclamation.
from the brink to catch a single drop of the of early girlhood. So Mrs. Branburgh, a meek when there were six in riotous health, there were ever, as pungent as a glass of soda, and as mis-mills for a physician, and the favorite hour of mystic, steamy breath of Rhododron floated three miles away from the heart of the bustling, colored cat, which held undisputed possession of sides the office-desk and chair, a small sofa and Not that he had ever occasion to soil his boots

I'll bind up thy tresses and bid thee be gone—
To breathe o'er my spirit a gleam from the past.

The dark, mystic forest, so ancient and wild,—
The cricket chirps low as if fearing to wake
But its verdure recoils at the touch of my hand.

Thou art passing away from this beautiful world,
And the song of the robin no longer is glad.

For the bright hopes left behind me,
For the human ties that bind me,
For those who know me true,

"Dear old Mother," said the cook, "You're over forty—just as well to be wandering and vitalizing the earth, as to stay at home and be all obeyed."

Mr. Dandilly thought of his comfort or considered his tastes, and senseless furniture into a home.

of sloping land behind the house was filled with yard was filled with clumps of lilac and syrinmasses of clambering woodbine, and the little bearing every mark of peaceful poverty. It had young lady home again, with a comfortable feel-to his spirits all day, and at night he carried the burgh's slip-shod placidity, and seemed like the Mr. Dandilly forgot to ponder, as usual, on the
of a damask rose, and the owner of it made her
So he drew up beside it.

As he passed his cottage, a mile further on, he
Her home was half way to the Branburgh
Mr. Dandilly didn't think of riding to the mills on horseback, and then, of course, not being a barbarian, Pulsifer. You had betterprocure, also, a few

The paper-walls were not the only many

From one of the least of those many

I tan meat.

TEN charges postage.

 settlements, the enviable reputation the RURAL NEW-YORKER and THE STORY TELLER, will continue to receive careful subjects of interest. The column appropriately headed considerable space to Literature, Education, Science, Art,

The next day the same arrangement was

But Practical Matters do not monopolize the pages of •

The Ladies will continue to find in the Department of That Department of the RURAL known as the

"For Quick Service and Home Convenience, Weもち面ってご注文を承ります。"

"The New RURAL NEW-YORKER, 73 East 23rd Street, New York."

Patron Subscription, 3.00 a Year. Single Numbers, 1.00 each.

THE RURAL NEW-YORKER. A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER OF
AGRICULTURE, HORTICULTURE, AND HOME-ECONOMY.

Continued by the New York Times, 23rd Street and 7th Avenue, New York.

FOR THE WEEKS OF THE 1ST QUARTER OF THE 1864 VOLUME.

"The New RURAL NEW-YORKER, 73 East 23rd Street, New York."

Patron Subscription, 3.00 a Year. Single Numbers, 1.00 each.

THE RURAL NEW-YORKER. A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER OF
AGRICULTURE, HORTICULTURE, AND HOME-ECONOMY.

Continued by the New York Times, 23rd Street and 7th Avenue, New York.