DRAINING BARN YARDS.

One way to keep barn yards dry is to put through the manure of the horses and regularly removing them. Usually, all the manure which boils on a day to every six months. This is the case, unless a yard is properly drained. A drain through the bottom of the eaves of the barns and sheds should be laid in a drain under the yard. If the yard is level and no convenient outlet can be made a paved surface drain letting the liquid ground, unless a tank is fixed to receive it, and draining a yard is to prevent water getting into the yard is level and no convenient outlet can be made a paved surface drain letting the liquid ground, unless a tank is fixed to receive it, and draining a yard is to prevent water getting into the yard.

PROTECTING FRUIT TREES.

One advice is sought by a Westmore corre- spondent in a letter, and another in a query, which we cannot give a brief receipt with, as we are not in a position to do so. The former reads in part:—

We have been so successful with our fruit trees this season that we wish to know how we can protect them from the winds until spring. We have already thrown the earth around their roots, and have the trunks wrapped and tied with straw. We have also tried a number of other methods, but they have not been successful. What can you advise us to do?

M. J.

New-York.

Reply.

The best way to protect your fruit trees from the winds is to enclose them in a shelter of some kind, such as a frame or a tent. This will prevent the wind from blowing against the trees and causing damage. You can also use tarps or plastic sheeting to cover the trees. It is important to keep the trees moist during the winter months to prevent drought damage.

HINTS FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

We have received many interesting letters from our correspondents, who have been busy with household tasks and projects. One of our readers has written to tell us about a new recipe for mince pies that she has tried out with great success. Another reader has shared a tip for preserving dried fruits that has saved her a lot of money. We encourage all of our readers to share their own tips and tricks with us.

Fruits and Vegetables.

PRICES OF FRUIT AND VEGETABLES.

APPLES—Arrivals have been quite free, but prices are still high. We quote:

- Ruta Bagas: f (bbl) $1.25@1.60

QUINCES—There is no change. We quote:

- Dried Quinces: $2.50 per lb

PROM WORMS.—

We have received several reports of worm infestations in various parts of the country. It is important to take steps to control these pests, as they can cause significant damage to crops and gardens. We recommend using natural methods, such as hand-picking and introducing beneficial insects, to control worm populations.

Insecticides.

RECOMMENDED INSECTICIDES FOR HORTICULTURAL USES.

We have received several recommendations for insecticides that are effective for controlling pests in the garden. One reader has suggested using neem oil, which is derived from the neem tree and is a natural insecticide. Another reader has recommended using pyrethrum, which is derived from the chrysanthemum flower and is also a natural insecticide. We encourage all readers to experiment with different insecticides to find the one that works best for their particular situation.

LAW OF THE LAND.

STATE LAWS ON MINCE PIES.

It is important to be aware of any state laws that may affect the preparation and sale of mince pies. In some states, there are restrictions on the use of certain ingredients, such as artificial colors or flavors. We encourage all readers to check with their local health department for information on any state regulations.

Vining Crops.

GARDEN VIOLAS.

We have received several reports of problems with vining crops, such as tomatoes and cucumbers. One reader has suggested using a support structure, such as a trellis or a cage, to help the plants climb and keep them off the ground. Another reader has recommended using a row cover, which can help to protect the plants from pests and diseases.

Horticultural Notes.

GERMINATION OF SEED.—

Germination is the first stage of a plant's life cycle. It occurs when seeds are planted in soil and water is added. The seedling grows and develops roots and leaves, and eventually the plant will bloom and produce fruit. It is important to provide the right conditions for germination, such as the proper soil temperature, moisture, and light.

Domestic Economy.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

We have received many recipes from our readers, who have been busy with cooking tasks. One recipe that has been popular is a recipe for a simple, yet delicious, mince pie. The recipe involves mixing together flour, sugar, butter, and spices, then adding in the fruit and baking the pie in the oven. We encourage all readers to experiment with different recipes to find the one that works best for their taste.

Vegetables.

VEGETABLES.

We have received several reports of problems with vegetables, such as potatoes and carrots. One reader has suggested using a文化节 soil, which is a rich, loose soil that is ideal for growing vegetables. Another reader has recommended using a compost, which is a mixture of organic materials that is a good source of nutrients for the plants.

The Good Night.

There is not a little child but what is soon enchanted at the sight of snow. As the snowflakes fall upon the world, so do the children of the earth feel the touch of the King, and are soon glowing with a heavenly light. In the words of the psalmist, "The Lord gives light to the humble, and to those who seek it he makes the heart bright." There is no such thing as a "childish" heart; only those who are childless are to be pitied. When the snowflakes fall upon the earth, it is as if the world were378

Mississippi is a land of beauty, and its people are as good as its land. I have seen many places, and I can say that there is no better place to live than in Mississippi. The people are friendly, and they are always willing to help one another. The climate is mild, and the soil is fertile. Mississippi is a land of opportunity, and I am sure that it will always be a land of beauty and prosperity.

LOVE

The love of home is a precious commodity, and I believe that it is one of the greatest blessings that can be had in this world. I have seen many homes, and I have seen many people, and I have seen many things, but nothing has ever left a lasting impression on my heart like the memory of the home that I loved. The home is the place where one finds the most comfort and the most security. It is the place where one feels the most secure and the most happy. It is the place where one finds the most peace and the most rest. It is the place where one finds the most comfort and the most love.
