SPRING WHEAT IN NEW YORK.

W. D. Newell, Esq., New Hartford, N. Y., writes:—"The family in spring wheat, as a crop, is played out. If it should be planted again, it must be as a pasture crop, to be cut for hay, and the straw returned to the land. We do not know how prevalent, or widespread? If so, is it grounded in probability or experience? Farmers who arrive at such conclusions, why is this the case?

In conclusion we have only to tender grateful acknowledgments to all who have rendered the journal during the past and preceding years—of its success, and we wish to express our hope that it may continue to be worthy the continued support of its readers.

SHEEP BUSINESS.

ANNUAL PRODUCE OF A FLOCK.—M. M. of Charlotte, N. C., says:—"The sheep confined to dry feed soon learn to eat hemlock. The sheep is a very nervous and very hardy animal. The fleece is composed of wool, which is very durable and tends to be very high under the hand. The wool is a very good quality, and is used by the best manufacturers. The sheep is a very hardy animal, and will thrive in the coldest climates.

An important advantage of planting the sheep in the land, is that it obtains the common objection that liquid manure from the farm, is the most objectionable of all the manures. A sheep manure is placed in the barn, and is used for supplying the food of the animals. A sheep manure is an excellent fertilizer, and is used by the best manufacturers.

CHOICE MISCELLANY.

BY THE YOUTH.

How softly they have vanished, the beauty on the earth,
And how quickly the fellowship of duskyFrenchmen.
The true friends have been robbed, and we bid them welcome, the noble forces of France, and a memory.

Visitors, in their touch of the sun, to be identified,
Of old men were the truest, now will be the last.
They knew the truth, and with them the world was known, they were the last to know our world.

How shall we come to know the last of them?
It will not be easy, for they have passed away.

The golden frame of Frenchmen, and a memory.

YOUTH.

MARRIAGE is to a woman at once the happiest festival, and the most tried. In her marriage vows, she promises to love, honor, and obey her husband for better or worse, for richer or poorer, for short or tall, for life. What does she mean by these words? Can she break them?

From foul to fair, from better hap to worse.
No joy so great but runneth to an end,
A chance may win what by mischance was lost;
Who least, hath some; who most, hath never all.
The roughest storm a calm may soon allay.
That net that holds no great takes little fish;
with a sifter, invite her to male one of the partf.

THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

"Now listen, father, listen, and I'll tell you a story,
I will if you promise not to scold me this time.
I know you are reading, and that you will hear it with joy,
But I beg of you, let me hear you say so before you go.
Now listen, father, listen, and I'll tell you a story,
I know you are reading, and that you will hear it with joy,
But I beg of you, let me hear you say so before you go.

"Once upon a time, in a dark and stormy night,
When all was quiet and still, and no sound was to be heard,
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse,
The world was at rest, and all nature was drear.

"But there was a little girl, asleep in her bed,
Whose only companion was the moon and the star,
And the wind that was howling outside her window,
And the rain that was pouring down on the car.

"She was dreaming of the good things that were to come,
And the presents that Santa Claus would bring to her home,
For she knew that he was on his way,
And that he would bring all the joys she could carry.

"But then, all at once, she heard a noise,
And she sat up in her bed, and looked out the door.
And she saw Santa Claus, riding his sleigh,
With his reindeer galloping and his bag full of cheer.

"She sprang out of bed, and ran to the window,
And she called out to Santa Claus, "Merry Christmas, dear!
And she asked him to hurry and bring her presents,
And to make her Christmas the best of the year.

"And Santa Claus, he said, "Merry Christmas, little girl,
And he brought you all the presents that you can see,
And he brought you all the love and the joy,
And he brought you all the fun that you can be.

"And then he was gone, and the world was still,
And the little girl went back to sleep,
And she dreamed of all the presents she had received,
And she dreamed of all the love that she had received.

"And when morning came, she woke up with a smile,
And she ran down the stairs, and opened her presents,
And she found all that Santa Claus had brought,
And she found all the love that he could bring.

"And she knew that she was the happiest girl in the world,
And she thought of all the joy that she had received,
And she thought of all the love that she had received,
And she thought of all the presents that Santa Claus had brought.

"And then she thought of all the joy that she had received,
And she thought of all the love that she had received,
And she thought of all the presents that Santa Claus had brought.
And she thought of all the joy that she had received,
And she thought of all the love that she had received,
And she thought of all the presents that Santa Claus had brought.

"And so, little girl, you see,
The night before Christmas is always the best,
For the world is full of love and joy,
And Santa Claus is always the best.
