RURAL, LITERARY AND FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

Intelligence, taste and discrimination. It embraces more any other Journal,—rendering it far the most complete that It can be safely taken to the Homes of people of Practical, Scientific and other Subjects Intimately

Proboscis or sucker by which it may live on the name of several species of Cicada. In the fixed or drum placed just below the root of the wings, comes up out of the earth the latter part of locality, an object of wonder, and the cause of stone, or fence, and, as its back cracks open, THB BALI NBW-YOBKX IS designed to be unsur-usual time. Only in these years at a given place the earth. c. D.

Which thus carries the young insects to the operation in the air, and then dies leaving its earth. c. D.

CICADA SEPTENDECEM.

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County · Historic Newspapers Collection

As the RURAL often finds its way into sections which thus carries the young insects to the operation in the air, and then dies leaving its earth. c. D.

PROGRESS AND IMPROVEMENT.

SINGLE NO. TEN CENTS.

Woolen Industry.

Dried, ground, in a year, and if it should in any way be injured, he may in time raise another, and be thereby incapacitated for the future. When the individuals of this same year, he may in time raise another, and be thereby incapacitated for the future.

A considerable number of the insects do not pass the winter in the egg state, but pass the winter in the nymph or cicada state, and are known as thegeneration of the winter. It is well known that the number of cicadas in any given area is greatly influenced by the climate and weather conditions of the previous summer. In fact, the number of cicadas can vary greatly from year to year, and this variability is due to a number of factors, including temperature, humidity, and soil moisture. The number of cicadas in any given area can also be affected by the presence of predators, such as birds and various types of insects, and by the availability of food resources.
We have returned to this topic, and found it still a subject of much interest, though the question of the origin of the disease is unknown. In England the disease is known as "Dew-Drop." Col. E. W. Stowell's Ham. "DEW-DROP."...P.O.S. 806 printed after names on address labels, and other particulars see last page. Communications.

E. Farmer says no season for many years has been so favorable as this, and states that this year has produced more of everything. The crop will be abundant. Winter rye, barley, oats, and corn are all well advanced, and the corn is in excellent condition. This will afford the farmers and breeders of Western States,—though of course the rebellion, and the measures taken to prevent it, have been in full force for many years, and have been the subject of much variation. We find No. 806 printed after names on address labels, and other particulars see last page.

The crop will be abundant. Winter rye, barley, oats, and corn are all well advanced, and the corn is in excellent condition. This will afford the farmers and breeders of Western States,—though of course the rebellion, and the measures taken to prevent it, have been in full force for many years, and have been the subject of much variation. We find No. 806 printed after names on address labels, and other particulars see last page.

The crop will be abundant. Winter rye, barley, oats, and corn are all well advanced, and the corn is in excellent condition. This will afford the farmers and breeders of Western States,—though of course the rebellion, and the measures taken to prevent it, have been in full force for many years, and have been the subject of much variation. We find No. 806 printed after names on address labels, and other particulars see last page.

The crop will be abundant. Winter rye, barley, oats, and corn are all well advanced, and the corn is in excellent condition. This will afford the farmers and breeders of Western States,—though of course the rebellion, and the measures taken to prevent it, have been in full force for many years, and have been the subject of much variation. We find No. 806 printed after names on address labels, and other particulars see last page.

The crop will be abundant. Winter rye, barley, oats, and corn are all well advanced, and the corn is in excellent condition. This will afford the farmers and breeders of Western States,—though of course the rebellion, and the measures taken to prevent it, have been in full force for many years, and have been the subject of much variation. We find No. 806 printed after names on address labels, and other particulars see last page.

The crop will be abundant. Winter rye, barley, oats, and corn are all well advanced, and the corn is in excellent condition. This will afford the farmers and breeders of Western States,—though of course the rebellion, and the measures taken to prevent it, have been in full force for many years, and have been the subject of much variation. We find No. 806 printed after names on address labels, and other particulars see last page.
The vote of thanks was adopted.

The discussion was interesting and profitable.

The plants were single, of the most brilliant colors, and were brought together in the hands of skillful florists, which is shown in the engraving. Double varieties sprang up a new family, called Japan Pinks.

The position of a tree is struck with this blight, which is shown in the engraving. Double varieties sprang up a new family, called Japan Pinks.

In our blood-baptized country we look to gain our independence, we have never obtruded our views to others; and we have with some interest watched the course of events in connexion with the South was very extensive; but we are surprised to learn that the returned wounded men of our own nation have so nobly vanquished and destroyed the latent forces of the enemy. We have not heard of an instance of one of any rank, but all in turn have been rejected; and no one to-day opposes the return of the country to its former state.

WHAT BLIGHTS THE PEAR TREES?—A young and thrifty pear tree standing in my garden commenced bearing fruit last year, producing about a dozen well-developed pears. This year, however, the tree has been affected by a blight which has destroyed the vast majority of the pears, and the fruit is small and mealy. The disease appears to be spreading, and unless some means are taken to control it, the tree may be doomed. What is the cause of this disease, and how can it be prevented?—S. W. I.

DOROTHY CAMPBELL.

JAPAN PINK.

The prominent features of the ceremonies to be observed will be the usual morning, noon and evening services, and all such efforts will be spared by the several Committees having the care of the line of battle, intended to be an exhibition of superior to the best of the States out of the Union; and we have with some interest watched the course of events in connexion with the South was very extensive; but we are surprised to learn that the returned wounded men of our own nation have so nobly vanquished and destroyed the latent forces of the enemy. We have not heard of an instance of one of any rank, but all in turn have been rejected; and no one to-day opposes the return of the country to its former state.

WHAT BLIGHTS THE PEAR TREES?—A young and thrifty pear tree standing in my garden commenced bearing fruit last year, producing about a dozen well-developed pears. This year, however, the tree has been affected by a blight which has destroyed the vast majority of the pears, and the fruit is small and mealy. The disease appears to be spreading, and unless some means are taken to control it, the tree may be doomed. What is the cause of this disease, and how can it be prevented?—S. W. I.

DOROTHY CAMPBELL.
Three comes a time when we grow old.

Young is a thing as we are, and the sight of it is altogether

And love is gray.

And eyes of wildest blue behold

And of palest bloom are green.

There comes a time when joy and sorrow both are gone.

And for the youth of his days.

There comes a time when we grow old.

Our old age is the best of all.

There comes a time when we grow old.

And in each other's eyes there are no more the arches of the stars.

And the stars are the eyes of the great beyond.

And golden Banister come to be

And to the last they stand.

Beyond the sea we behold—

While windows whisper "the night is coming."

MRS. LYDIA H. GODBARY.

On Saturday morning, June 10th, at her house in Hartford, Conn., the American poetess, Mrs. Lydia H. Godbary, died.

She was born in Newbury, N. H., Sept. 1, 1835. She was very carefully educated, and, at the age of twelve, she published a volume of poems, entitled "A Young Lady's native place." In 1848 she published a second volume of poetry, and in 1851 she entered Union College, Schenectady, a member of the class of 1856. As a teacher, Mrs. Godbary sought not only to educate, but to elevate. She aimed at the growth of her pupils' principles and characters. Many ladies surveyed her school and there through the doors of her young ladies' school, to which she had been for years firmly and essentially attached to her profession, and that her methods of teaching were of the highest order.

A very early age her ambition began to look to the future for a position in the arts of life - to the world of art and the world of science, as well. She was always seeking to improve herself, to obtain a greater and better knowledge of the world. She was an accomplished writer of verse, and her poems were widely read and admired.

To the last she was a devoted student of the science of literature. She died at the age of sixty-five, after having been a teacher for many years, and left behind her a large body of works, among which are some of the most beautiful and heart-warming poems ever written.

FEMININE TONGUE.

A LAW against obtaining husbands under false pretences was passed by the Legislature of New York in 1768, entitled "An Act to prevent marrying without due consideration of age, affection, and consent." The act specified the punishment for violation, stating that the party guilty of such an act would be liable to a fine of $500, imprisonment for six months, and a public whipping. It also required that the parties be of legal age and that the marriage be performed by a licensed minister. The law was an attempt to prevent the exploitation of young women by older men, and it was a step forward in the recognition of the rights of women.

THERE COMES A TIME.

There are some who believe that the coming of the new year brings with it a sense of change and renewal. Others may feel that the year is simply another chapter in the book of life. But whatever your perspective, the new year brings an opportunity to reflect on the past, set new goals, and make changes in your life. And as we approach the end of one year and the beginning of another, it's important to remember that the future is full of possibilities. So, whether you're looking forward to the challenges of the new year or embracing the opportunities it brings, remember that you have the power to shape your own destiny. Happy New Year!
I rector of Epiphany Church spoke the solemn moment came a lady in mourning, and paused almost involuntarily followed the example. The turn to their allegiance, it would be the duty of was his comrades reply. His handsome Colonel. He took the same seat he had on his lap. She started, turned deadly pale, and somehow it changed into a radiant damsel watched the statue and fountain on the hillside, breeze playing with his curls, and sometimes very little employment.

Phonography is the briefest mode of representation of our youth in charge, that phonography!! The necessary qualification. He was born in Philadelphia in 1770, and during his life, which terminated in every American heart responded. It is not, perhaps, generally known, how much of the language he reads instead of the Blang he is up; what would you advise me to do? "I advise all young people to acquire in one year. At the expiration of that time he pre-
THE SECOND HALF OF VOL. XVI RURAL NEW-YORKER.

July 7, 1863.

Frederick Douglass.

Rural New Yorker.

News Department.

From Europe.

The Herald.

The Times.

The Independent.

The Boston Globe.

The New Englander.

The Christian Union.

The American Statesman.

The American Statesman.

The New Y
DECLAREATION OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE

ADOPTED JULY 4TH, 1776.

WARM, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for us, the people of these United States, to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. It is our duty to determine whether the political bonds that have held us together shall continue to exist. We find ourselves in a state of tension between the political stability of the states and the political instability of the central government.

In the formation of our political system, we have relied on the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. These principles have guided us in the establishment of our government. We have established a system of representative government, in which the people have the right to elect their representatives. We have established a system of checks and balances, in which the powers of the government are divided among the legislative, executive, and judicial branches.

We have also established a system of individual rights, in which the people have the right to life, liberty, and property. These rights are protected by the government, and the government is responsible for their protection. We have established a system of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

These principles have guided us in the establishment of our government. We have established a system of representative government, in which the people have the right to elect their representatives. We have established a system of checks and balances, in which the powers of the government are divided among the legislative, executive, and judicial branches.

We have also established a system of individual rights, in which the people have the right to life, liberty, and property. These rights are protected by the government, and the government is responsible for their protection. We have established a system of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.

We, therefore, appeal to the people of these United States to consider the political situation in which we find ourselves. We appeal to the people to support the principles of liberty, equality, and justice. We appeal to the people to support the principles of due process, in which the government is required to follow the procedures of the law.