AGRICULTURAL

UNPROFITABLE EARNING

In several states, and in the city of Rochester, there are a number of cases in which the farmers, and others engaged in agricultural pursuits, are in a state of distress and suffering. The cause of this distress is the result of the present low prices of agricultural produce, and the increased costs of labor. The farmers are finding it impossible to earn a living, and many are in the condition of necessity to sell their property and move to other pursuits. This is a matter of great concern to the community, as the farmers are the backbone of our country, and their welfare is directly related to the welfare of the nation. The government and the public should take steps to alleviate this situation, by providing loans to farmers, and by purchasing agricultural produce at fair prices. The farmers should also be encouraged to adopt new methods of cultivation, and to use modern machinery, in order to increase their efficiency and productivity. With these measures, we can hope to restore the farmers to their rightful place in society, and to ensure their prosperity and well-being.
to different climates like the Merinos. They are of a hardy stock, and are adapted for different kinds of hedges. They are nothing like as bulky, hardy, and manly in frame as the Long Wools, unless they are put to severe conditions. Under exposure to wind and cold, they are inferior to the Long Wools. They are yielding as fine wool as any breed, and are as good in that respect. The wool is naturally fine, and is not highly fed. In the warmer climate, they are not very satisfactory. In the colder climate, they are very good. They are suited to the climate of the State Agricultural Society, and as a whole are a breed that can be successfully raised in this State. They are warm to the touch, and are much more comfortable, and the wool is much more durable than that of the English Long Wools. The first day was devoted principally to the wool. There were 145 entries in the competition. The wool is generally very fine. The wool of Callicote was very good, says the spectator being experts. The wool was nearly all of excellent quality. The wool was fine and clean. The wool of the Long Wools is generally very fine, and is not highly fed. In the warmer climate, they are not very satisfactory. THE STAYLENT.

The Staylent is one of the most beautiful and useful of the winter vegetables. It is a kind of parsnip, and is therefore exceedingly popular. They are generally grown in pots, or in the open ground, in beds about six inches apart, and four deep. Before winter sets in, cover the beds with straw from the manure heap, to help keep out the frost. This should be removed as soon as hard frost is over—this is the middle of March.

The Government Ministers occupy seats near the front, and notice is taken of their presence by the crowd. The French in Canada is very disposed to make money, and one is inclined to transactions in which they are engaged. According to the Speaker of the House of Commons, this is a most important instrument of politics, and it is always kept in readiness to be used. The French is a black rod, and when it is raised, it is usually accompanied by a speech. The Speaker is a man of the people, and his speeches are listened to with a great deal of respect. He is dressed in a black coat, and is the one who presides over the House of Commons.

The Spinning Wheel, or as it is known in England, "Spinning Jenny," was invented about 1764 (in the lifetime of the late Dr. Samuel Johnson). The Spinning-Jenny was a ingenious apparatus for spinning cotton and wool into yarn. It was designed to increase the productivity of women who were previously engaged in hand-spinning. The Spinning-Jenny consisted of a series of spindles attached to a horizontal beam. The yarn was wound around the spindles, which were driven by a water-powered wheel. The speed of the wheel determined the rate at which the yarn was produced. The Spinning-Jenny revolutionized the textile industry, as it allowed for the mass production of yarn and the resulting布料, which was used in the manufacture of textiles such as clothing, upholstery, and paper. The Spinning-Jenny played a significant role in the Industrial Revolution and the development of the modern textile industry.

The Spinning-Jenny was first introduced in England, and its adoption spread quickly to other countries. It became a symbol of the industrial revolution and the transition from a hand-based economy to one driven by machinery. The Spinning-Jenny paved the way for the development of other textile machinery, such as the Power Loom and the Power-Spinning Frame, which further increased the efficiency of textile production. The impact of the Spinning-Jenny on the textile industry was profound, and its legacy continues to be felt in the modern textile sector.
