Little Tommy Goes; Big Bob Comes

3 9077 04462227 5

Capt. Tom Carey, Red Wing shortstop, traded to St. Louis Browns For Bob Weiland, southpaw pitcher, and some cash. Carey played his final game last night, starting today for New York. Weiland joins tomorrow. Surprising trade shocks the fans as Carey was a favorite. Deserves promotion, however.

Tom Carey

Comes Back to Bolster Wing Infield

Charley Wilson, former Red Wing infielder, yesterday returned to the club by the Cardinals, is expected to arrive in time to play against the Albany Senators tomorrow night.

Red Wing Manager Welcomes Pitts

Burt Shotton, Red Wing manager, right, welcomed Alabama Pitts, Albany's much publicized player before yesterday's double bill at Red Wing Stadium. Pitts went in as a pinch hitter in the seventh inning of the first game but flied out to Tommy Carey. He got a double next time at bat.

Weiland Joins Wings Today; Wilson to Play Shortstop

Fans Agree Carey Entitled To Chance to Make Good in Majors

The Red Wings lost a good ball player yesterday but for once fandom was not bitter toward the club.

Everybody agreed that Tommy Carey had rightfully earned his chance to advance to the majors.

Carey left last night to join the Browns in New York while Bob Weiland, who comes to the Wings in the deal that sent the Hoboken Harp to Rogers Hornsby's club, was enroute from Albany to Buffalo to join the Wings in Bison-town today.

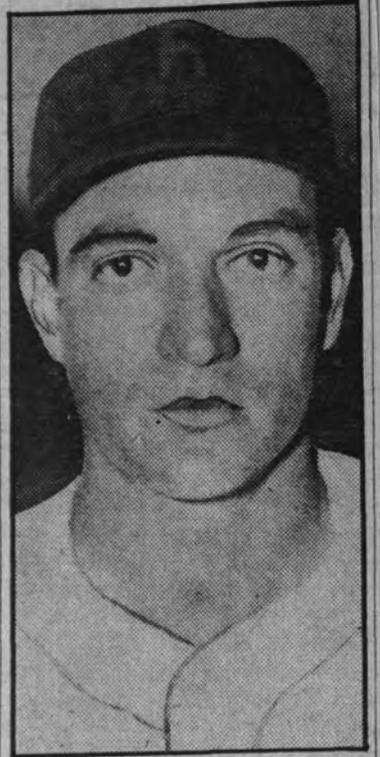

Carey, who came to the Wings from Houston in 1933, has been an outstanding International League shortstop for three years. Tommy had trials with the Cards in both 1934 and '35 but Frankie Frisch didn't give the chunky little fellow much opportunity to show what he could do.

Charley Wilson, obtained from the Cards this week, will join the club in Buffalo tonight and will take Carey's place at short. The club is seeking a third baseman and may have an announcement to make today or tomorrow.

Weiland, the big southpaw who pitched against the Wings at the Stadium Wednesday night, was the most effective twirler on the Albany staff. He should help round the crippled Wing pitching staff into condition as he will be able to take his regular turn in the box.

Weiland will probably make his first start as a Red Wing on Sunday when the Wings meet Toronto in a double header at the Stadium. Two of the three victories Bob scored for Albany were registered over the Leafs.

The Wings will play night games at Buffalo tonight and tomorrow.

BOB WEILAND

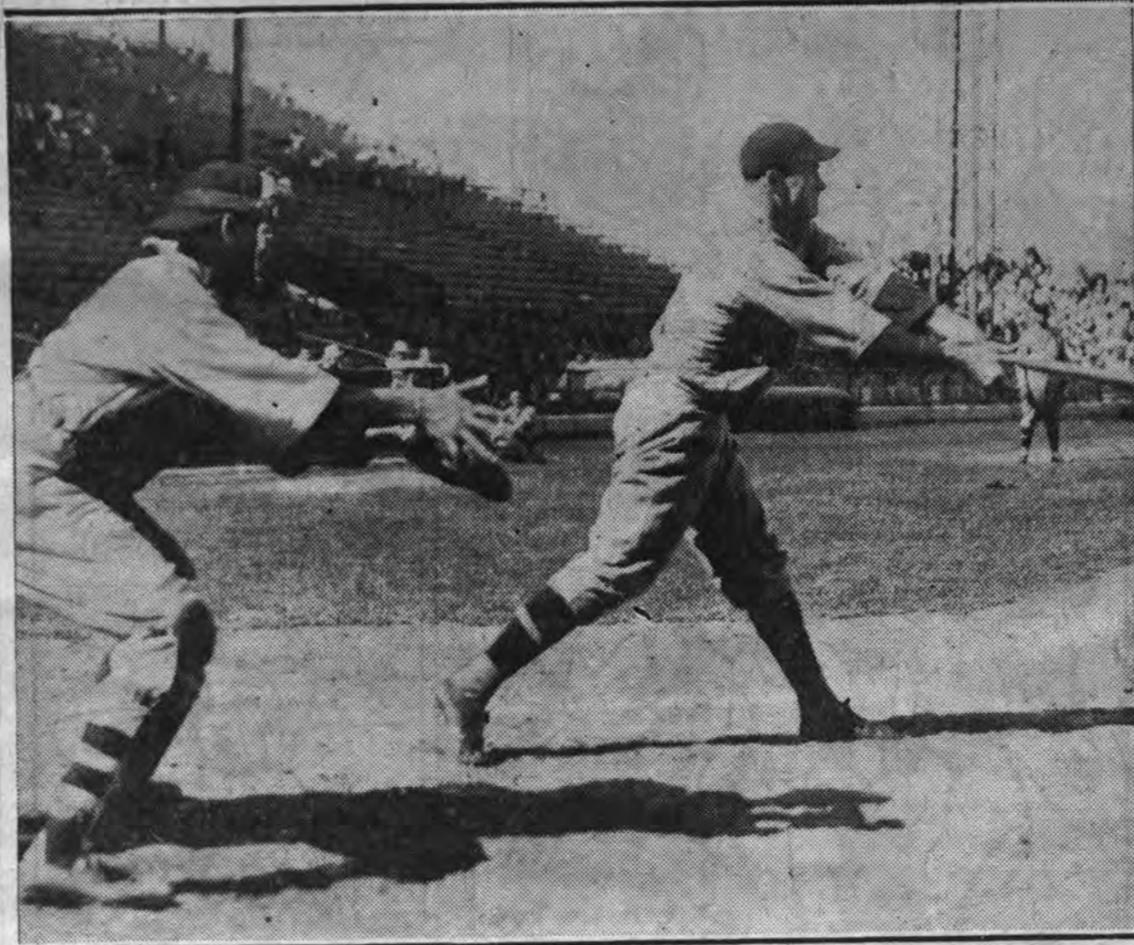

The 'Buster Mills Express' Steams into Third Base

Buster Mills, the Red Wing express, pulls up safe at third in the fourth inning of the first game. The Buster arrived ahead of the throw to Third Baseman Lee Handley and the play wasn't even close. Gene Moore singled to advance his teammate.

Wing Fans Get a Look at 'Alabama' Pitts

"Alabama" Pitts, much publicized outfielder of the Albany Senators obtained the first extra base hit of his International League career before Rochester fans in the first Albany-Red Wing

Central Library of Rochester and Monroe County - Historic Newspaper Collection

Wings' New First Sacker Gets Two Hits in Debut

Jim Irving, Red Wings' new first sacker is seen above stretching for a low one. He was obtained from the Lincoln club of the Nebraska State League and broke into the game yesterday against the Syracuse Chiefs. Jim collected two bingles. He will be given a chance to see if he can hit International League pitching while Mize is laid up.

It Looks Like 'Sharley Vas Dere' in Cleanup Role

Charley Wilson, the original Swamp Baby, is back in the Red Wing fold again. He signed his contract yesterday and will play tonight against the Montreal Royals. He is pictured here helping Mrs. Wilson with after dinner chores. "Swampy" Jr. gets assist.

Two New Feathers in Wings of Red

One shows Charley Swamp Baby Wilson, shortstop, in action in last night's game, mascotting the team to a victory. The other is Bob Weiland, big pitcher obtained from Albany, through St. Louis Browns.

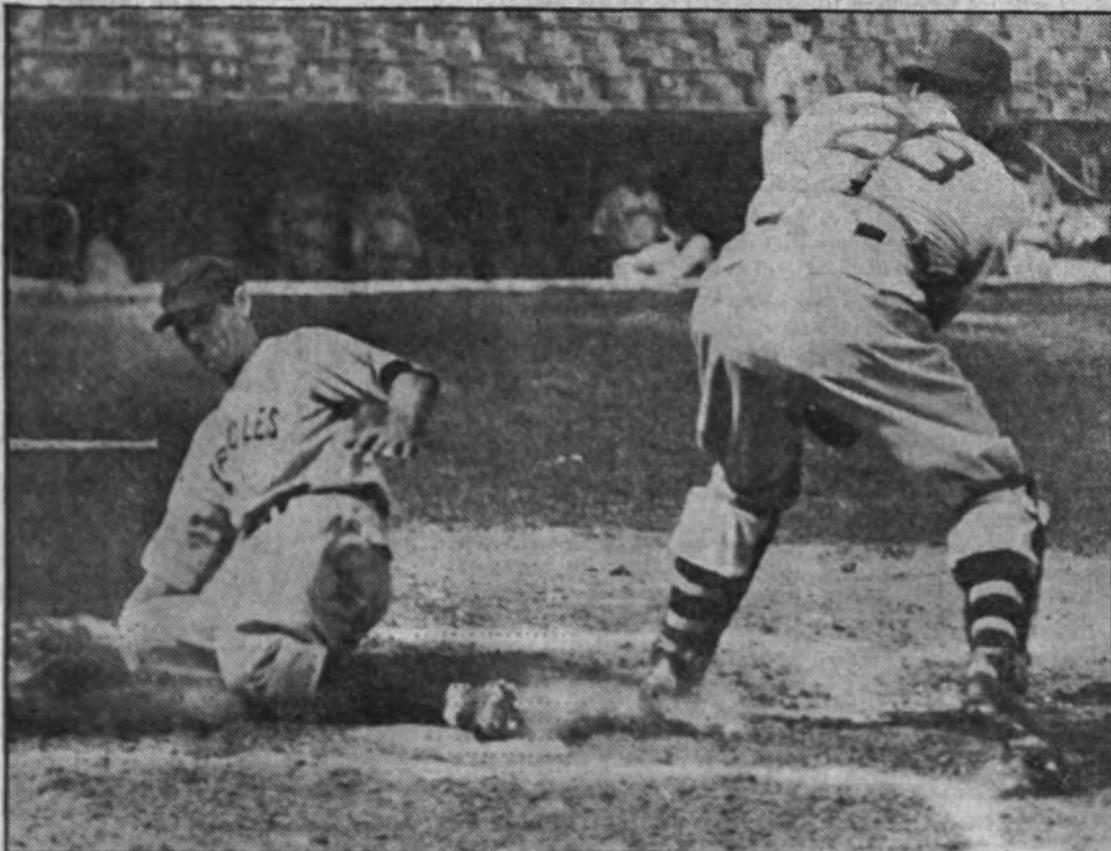

Betty, 10-year-old daughter of the famous split bats he has collected from National 'Rip' Collins, with part of the nearly 200 Leaguers to build a fence around his yard.

Professor Dyer Shows 'em How It's Done

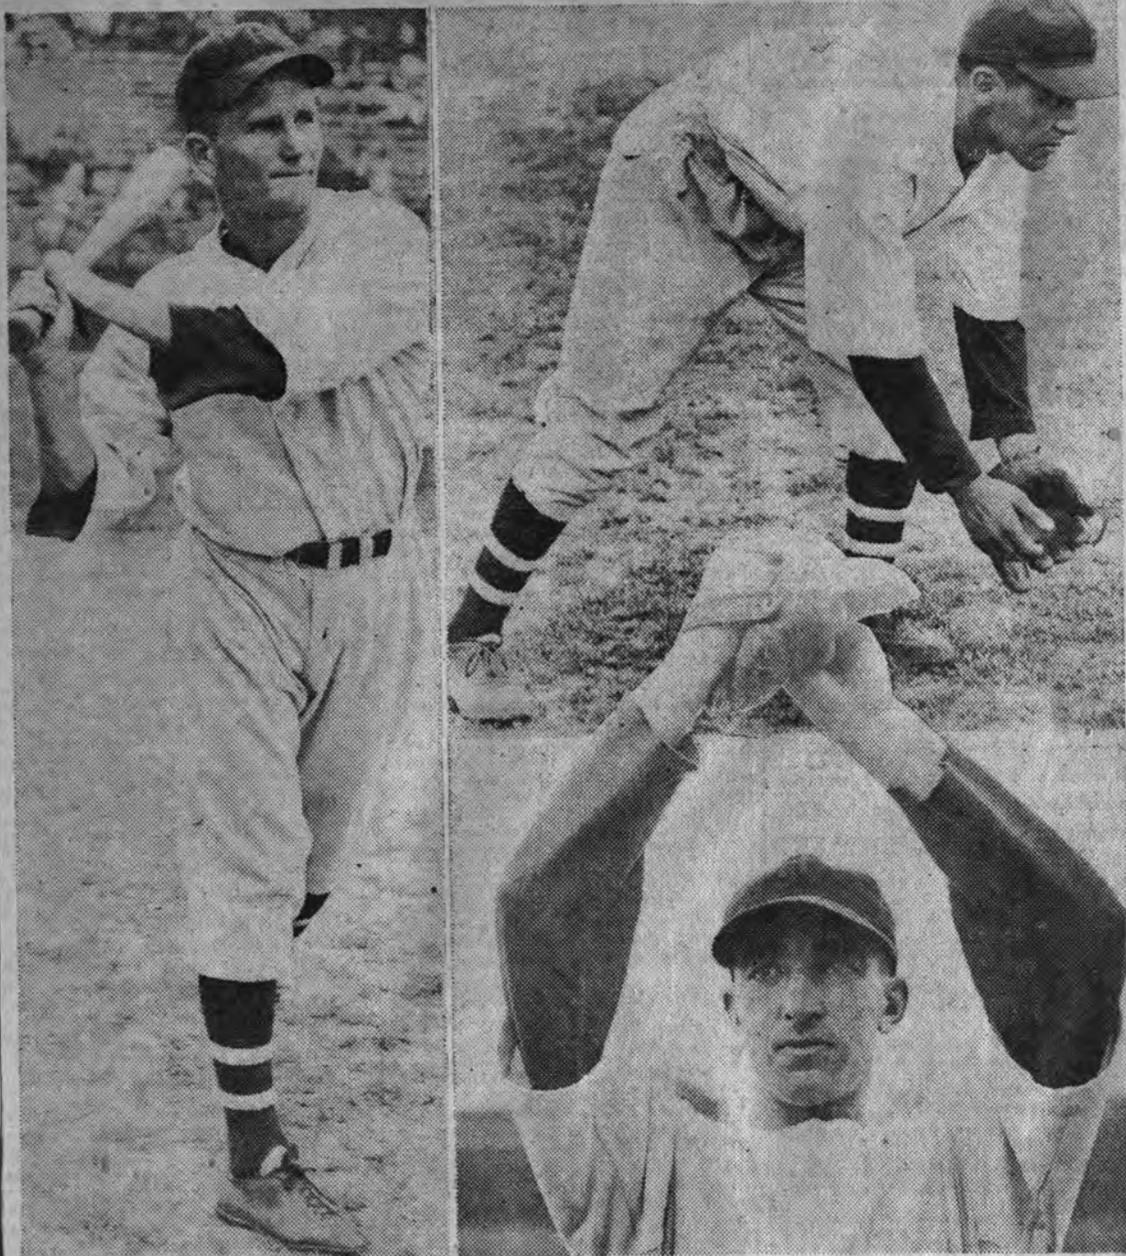

Joe Boardman, right, of Manchester, gets a few pointers from Eddie Dyer, former Wing pilot, at baseball clinic which opened at Stadium yesterday with some 450 on hand.

Puccinelli Comes Home with First Baltimore Run

George (Pooch) Puccinelli is seen above sliding home with the first Oriole run in the Rochester-Baltimore game yesterday afternoon at Red Wing Stadium. Pooch came in on a fly to the outfield. Catcher Paul Florence got the ball too late to do any good.

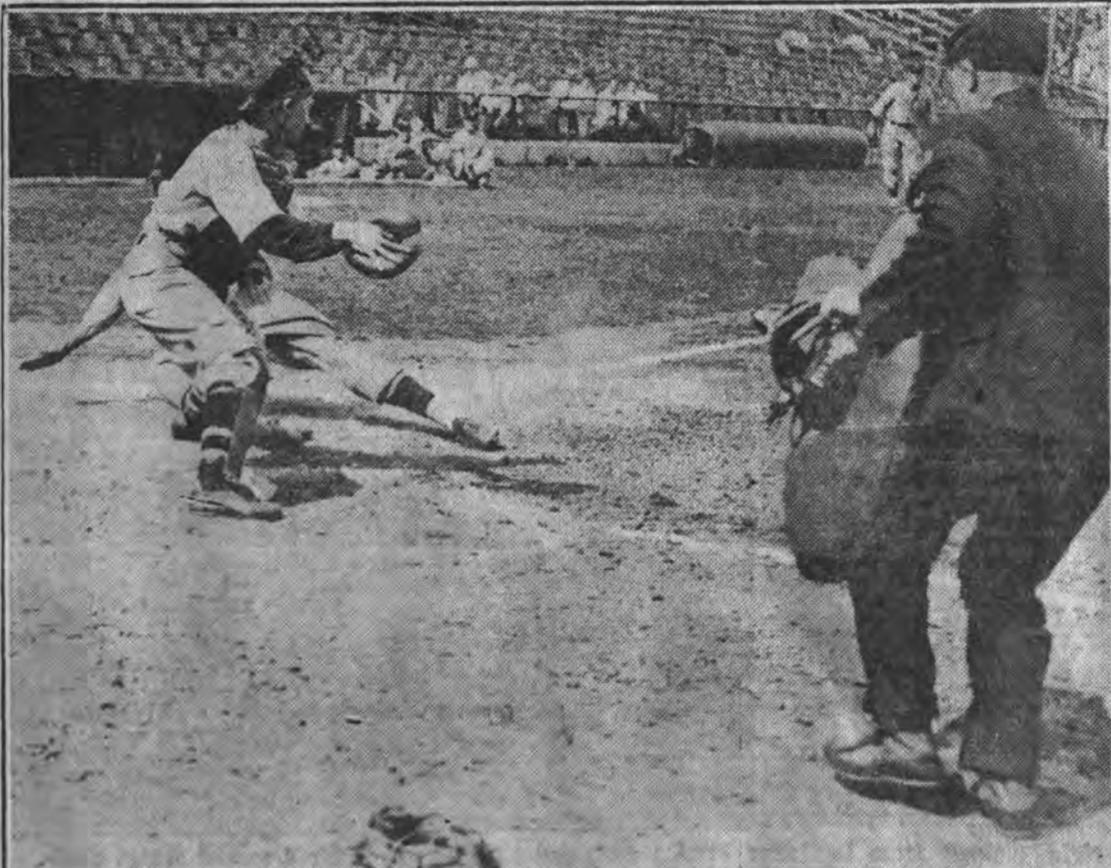

Recently Signed Talent for Crippled Red Wings

Harold Epps, left, Mike Pellino, local semi player, above, and Joe Rampolo were a trio of newcomers to the Red Wing cause yesterday. Epps, a former Western League star from Cedar Rapids, looked good as an outfielder and hitter while Rampolo did pretty well in his first mound start. Pellino, a little nervous, showed real league possibilities.

And Albany Had to Slide for That 1st Game Run

Peter's Albany's third sacker, is seen above sliding home in the fifth inning of the first game for the Senators only tally.

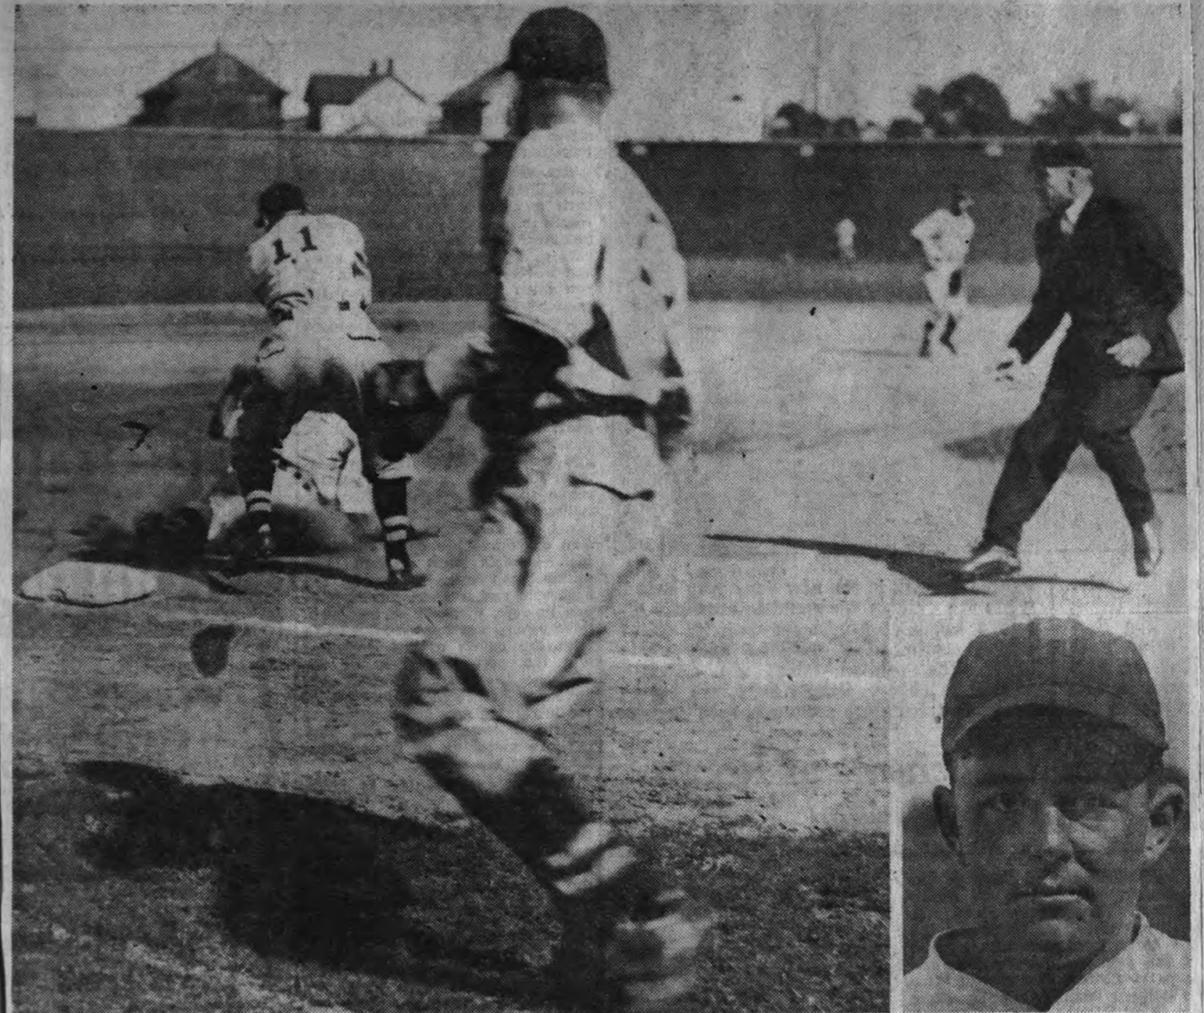

Catcher West had no chance to make a play. A long fly to right field by Alabama Pitts drove in the tally in losing tilt.

Cards Help Celebrate Radio Fans Day

The entire entourage of the St. Louis Cardinals from Vicepresident Branch Rickey down to the trainer stopped off at Rochester today for the annual Radio Fans Day exhibition game against the Wings. Several members of the team were snapped as they rested at their hotel. Above from the left are Charley Gelbert, Jess Haines, Ernie Orsatti, Jack Rothrock and Manager Frank Frisch. Below, Branch Rickey stops to autograph a baseball for a fan, while the veteran Haines looks on.

When Mills Started Wing Scoring with Three Bagger

Buster Mills, a very busy gent in Red Wing livery these days, was safe at third on a three-base blow to right in the first inning yesterday. The hit scored Hal Epps with the first Wing run. Johnny Kroner is making the play, too late to get Buster. That's Flint Rhem in foreground. Inset shows Larry Barton, first sacker, who joined the Wings yesterday.

'Rip' Visits Old Station

Jimmy "Rip" Collins

It probably wasn't courteous treatment of the big delegation of Syracuse fans, but the Red Wings snapped the winning streak of the Chiefs last night and sent them into second place. Things were rosy for the visitors in the first inning when Dellasandro scored the first run. The bags were packed and the photo on

Snapped As Syracuse Chiefs Made Merry at Expense of Crippled Wings

There was plenty of Syracuse fun yesterday afternoon at Red Wing Stadium when the Chiefs opened a series with the Red Wings. Buster Mills is seen, upper left, safe at third after hitting a triple in third inning. Jake Flowers, upper right, is being administered to by anxious mates after twisting his ankle at third base in second. Niemic is safe at first, below, in the fourth inning when Crabtree's toss gets away from Bob Weiland. The ball can be seen dropping. The blow was ruled at hit by official scorer after discussion

Pitches Four-Hit Shutout Verdict

Ray Harrell of the Rochester Red Wings, flashed some of his 1934 form yesterday afternoon as he turned back the Baltimore Orioles with four hits for a 1-to-0 victory.

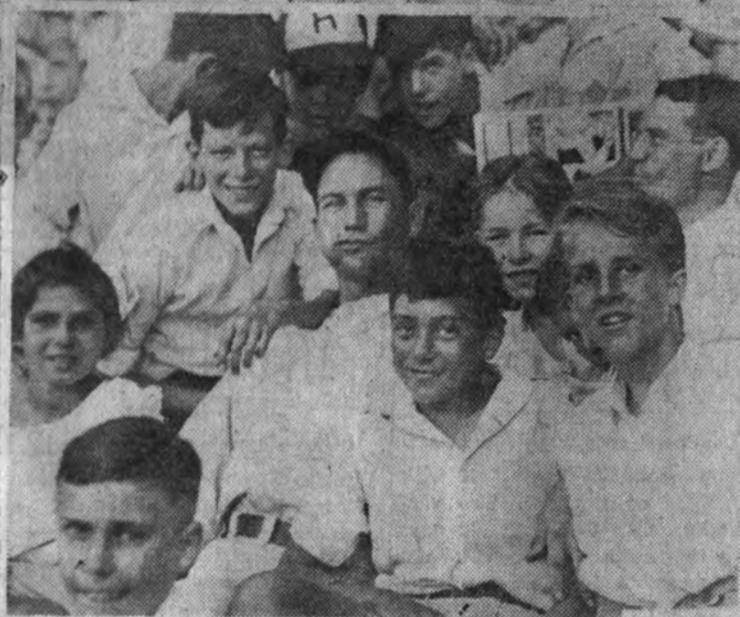

Pitches Four-Hit

Ray Harrell of the Rochester Red Wings, flashed some of his 1934 form yesterday afternoon as he turned back the Baltimore Orioles with four hits for a 1-to-0 victory.

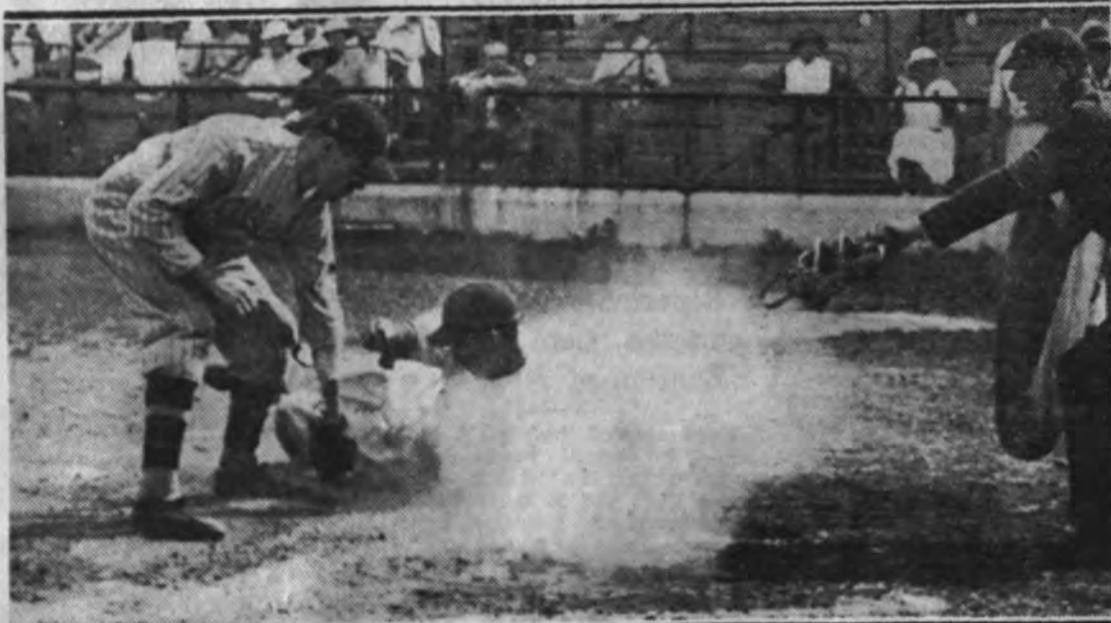

After watching the home team absorb a 7-2 defeat from Syracuse in the opening game, the 7,000-odd Radio Fans Day crowd had lots of fun in the exhibition game against the Cards which the Wings won 5-2. Rip Collins, Pepper Martin and Charley Gelbert along, Charley Gelbert staging a nifty adagio on third base, following with Dizzy Dean were kept busy all afternoon giving autographs to the flocks of youngsters. On the left, Collins is signing a baseball, and on the right Dean is doing his stuff for Joe Durnherr Jr., while Pop snapped the picture. In the center photo, Jimmy Brown and Jimmy's triple. The latter grabbed Gelbert to prevent a bad collision as Charley was reaching for the throw. Below, Al Eckert, second Cardinal pitcher is sliding over the plate in front of the plate for the first St. Louis run.

Happy Kids Cheer Wings' Sunshine Day Victory

Senators Help Red Wings Score

Three consecutive errors and a passed ball in the second inning enabled the Wings to score a couple of runs yesterday and take a lead they couldn't hold. In the above photo Gene Moore is sliding over the plate on Catcher George's passed ball. Eldon McLean, Albany pitcher is covering the plate, but the return throw was too late. White is the umpire.

Champs Will Be Here Tuesday to Tangle with Wings

The World Champion St. Louis Cardinals, including the Dean Brothers, our own Jimmy (Rip) Collins and Pepper Martin will be here Tuesday to tangle with the Rochester Red

Back at Wings Stadium

Charley Gelbert (left) and John (Pepper) Martin, who won a place with the world championship Cardinals through their prep work with the Rochester Red Wings, were in Rochester today as the Cards played their annual Radio Fans Day exhibition game against the Wings.

GENE MOORE

DOC WEAVER

When Bob O'Farrell lined to right field in yesterday's Red Wing - Cardinal exhibition, doughty Moore ran like an antelope for the ball. He laid hands on it at the fence near the clubhouse but couldn't stop. Moore banged into the fence and bounced back, hurt. After treatment, however, O'Farrell flied out to Moore anyhow.

Heap 'Big Chief' Koy Brings Home Winning Tally

Bears in the ninth inning of the first game yesterday afternoon at Red Wing Stadium.

to the injured Johnny Mize of the Red Wings. Next in line is the great "Dizzy" Dean autographing baseballs for his fans. A cluster of balls can be seen at his side. In the center

Charley (Swamp Baby) Wilson of the Red Wings is seen doing his specialty, the bellywhacker slide. Charley Gelbert, the former Red Wing and Card ace, is seen gazing out of the dugout in meditative mien. At the extreme right Joe (Ducky Wucky) Medwick, the Card powerhouse, is seen taking a cut at the horsehide. He is second in National League hitting.

Farewells and Homeruns Feature Owl Doubleheader

Picture shows Tony Kaufmann, veteran pitcher, who has been sold to the Cardinals of St. Louis, bidding goodbye to his team after it had won the first game. Other picture shows Gene Moore, explaining how he handled his bat in making the two homeruns to feature the victory. Gene hit one over each fence, right and left, with a man aboard each time.

A STUDY IN BASEBALL FANS

The candid camera caught pictures of the fans at last night's baseball doubleheader between Rochester and Buffalo in Red Wing Stadium. Rochester is winning and the man standing up is a home team booster. The man at his side is a Buffalo rooter.

Here is Mrs. Gene Moore, intently watching the play. Her husband, rightfielder for Rochester, slammed out two home runs and is she thrilled!

These two Rochester girls appear at the moment to be more interested in conversation than baseball.

The Kaufmanns Pack for Journey

Tony Kaufmann and the Missus were kept busy yesterday packing for the trip to the St. Louis Cardinals. The deal sending Tony away was an outright sale. Tony was a big favorite and one of the most popular Red Wing players.

Sankey, Montreal short stop, caught at home by Wayton's fine throw to Florence in second inning of first game at Stadium yesterday. It didn't matter as Royals tallied six runs in this frame to pave way for easy 7-2 victory over Red Wings.

Wings in Seventh Place but You Would Never Guess it Watching Antics of This Trio of Athletes

The Red Wings may not be headed for the International League play-offs, but thanks to the above trio, and other members of the supporting cast, they are playing their best baseball of the season now. Above, right, Gene Moore, who is regarded by many experts as the premier right fielder in the Internation; center, Ray Harrell, whose recent pitching performances stamp his as one of the league's smartest hurlers and Al Fisher, extreme left, who blanked Buffalo with five hits recently and is due to receive a trial with the Cardinals next Spring. Fisher and Harrell are slated to hurl against the league leading Montreal Royals this afternoon. Indications point to plenty of thrills as the aroused Canadians promise to make Shotton's men eat humble pie

Stretching for High Ones Old Stuff for 'Pepper'

A throwback to the old days! That's what they're saying all over the major league circuits about "Pepper" Martin, ex-Red Wing and now playing a sensational game for the Cardinals. During the recent Giant-Card series in New York Gotham fans cheered Martin while booing Dizzy Dean and members of the home club. Martin does everything in daring, reckless fashion and has been the spark plug of every Card spurt.

Wings Again Choose Bartow For Spring Training Camp

Shotton Makes Selection After Looking over Other Sites

Rochester's Red Wings will use Bartow, Florida, again as their spring training quarters in 1936, according to an announcement by President Warren G. Giles yesterday. Negotiations were under way for several weeks and the Wings picked Bartow for the third successive time. Rochester's International League representatives trained at Bartow in 1934 and 1935.

Bartow affords an ideal spot for spring training, with major league clubs situated in camps within a radius of 100 miles. Major and minor league ball clubs in training camps located in the vicinity of Bartow afford the Wings an excellent exhibition schedule.

Since the Wings left the training grounds last spring, the city of Bartow has been making improvements for the 1936 season. Ground keepers have been shaping the field into good condition to have it ready by the time Rochester departs for the training wars.

The Bartow site was again picked through Manager Burt Shotton. Shotton who lives in Winterhaven, visited several cities which bid for the Red Wings, but after viewing the various places suitable for spring training, he notified President Giles that Bartow was the best spot he could pick to condition a ball club in.

The first squad of Red Wings will report for training in the early part of March. A schedule will be made up of major and minor league opponents for exhibition games.

He'll Manage Columbus Red Birds

Blades New Manager; Flowers Gets Release; Camp Opens Mar. 13

Ray Blades is 1936 manager of Red Wings. D'arcy (Jake) Flowers is released outright.

Training camp opens at Bartow, Fla., March 13.

A new manager, who six years ago played under Billy Southworth on the championship 1929 team, will pilot the 1936 edition of the Red Wings. His name is Francis Raymond Blades, 38 years, 3 months old, a native of Mt. Vernon, Ill., and a resident of the same state.

Blades is swapped in a deal which sends Burt Shotton, last manager of the Red Wings, to Columbus Red Birds. Both Blades and Shotton are veterans in the St. Louis Cardinal system.

Shotton in 1935 mid-season succeeded Eddie Dyer, another veteran in the organization. Dyer replaced Pat Crawford who was hired as manager but suffered an injury which has eliminated him from baseball. And Crawford, in turn, succeeded George "Specs" Toporcer who piloted the 1933 and 1934 teams. Blades attended McKinley High School in St. Louis, where he was a pitcher and infielder. In 1920 he was signed by the St. Louis Cardinals after being scouted by Charley Barrett. The Cardinals optioned Blades to Memphis in the Southern League, where he played second base, shortstop and the outfield, hitting .253 in 140 games. In 1921 Blades was shifted to Houston, where he played 158 games at second base and batted .278. The following year he hit .330 in 118 games at the keystone, and about Sept. 1 was recalled by the Cards.

From 1923 on, Blades was one of the regular Cardinal outfielders, a dangerous hitter, fast on the bases, and full of nerve. He was the type of ball player who would break his leg to win a ball game. He had a good season in 1925 and he hit .342.

Blades ran into a fence in 1926 injuring his knee. In 1927 and 1928 his injured knee handicapped him severely. Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club physician for the Cards, performed a successful operation and Blades regained full use of the knee. Blades was sent for a while to Rochester and then to Houston in the 1929 season. In 1930 he was back with the Cardinals. He batted .396 in 45 games for the Cards in 1930.

Blades remained with St. Louis as an extra outfielder, coach and pinch hitter through the 1932 season. Offered the managership of the Columbus Red Birds he assumed control of that club at the start of the 1933 season and led it to its first American Association pennant in more than a quarter of a century. His team also defeated Buffalo in the Little World's Series. Paul Dean, Bill Delancey, Bill Lee, and Burgess Whitehead were among those sent to the big leagues by Blades that year.

In 1934 Blades still was on the active list at Columbus. Never out of the pennant race, the Red Birds finished only a game or two behind Minneapolis during the regular season, but defeated the Millers

Giles and Blades Make Statements

Official statements to The Times-Union in connection with announcement of the swap of managers are made by Ray Blades and Warren C. Giles as follows:

Ray Blades—(By Wire)—"You can count on me for 100 per cent effort and 100 per cent cooperation to provide a winner."

Warren C. Giles—(By Phone)—"Ray Blades is a fighter, a sound tactician, and has shown uncanny ability to get the most out of his men. He is what I call a champion manager. I am confident he will be a successful and popular manager here."

Ray Blades is 1936 manager D'arcy (Jake) Flowers training camp opens at a new manager, who six years ago played under Billy Southworth on the championship 1929 team will pilot the 1936 edition of the Red Wings. His name is Francis Raymond Blades, 38 years, 10 months old, a native of Mt. Vernon, Ill., and a resident of the same state.

Blades is swapped in a deal which sends Burt Shotton, manager of the Red Wings, to Columbus Red Birds. Both Blades and Shotton are veterans in the St. Louis Cardinal system.

Shotton in 1935 mid-season succeeded Eddie Dyer, another veteran in the organization. Dyer replaced Pat Crawford who was hired as manager but suffered an injury which has eliminated him from baseball. And Crawford, in turn, succeeded George "Spec" Toporcer who piloted the 1933 and 1934 teams. Blades attended McKinley High School in St. Louis where he was a pitcher and infielder. In 1920 he was signed by the St. Louis Cardinals after being scouted by Charley Barrett. The Cardinals optioned Blades to Memphis in the Southern League, where he played second base, shortstop and the outfield, hitting .253 in 11 games. In 1921 Blades was shifted to Houston, where he played 11 games at second base and batted .278. The following year he hit .330 in 118 games at the keystone and about Sept. 1 was recalled by the Cards.

From 1923 on, Blades was one of the regular Cardinal outfielders, a dangerous hitter, fast on the bases, and full of nerve. He was the type of ball player who would break his leg to win a ball game. He had a good season in 1925 as he hit .342.

Blades ran into a fence in 1926, injuring his knee. In 1927 and 1928 his injured knee handicapped him severely. Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club physician for the Cards, performed a successful operation and Blades regained full use of the knee. Blades was sent for a while to Rochester and then to Houston in the 1929 season. In 1930 he was back with the Cardinals. He batted .396 in 45 games for the Cards in 1930.

Blades remained with St. Louis as an extra outfielder, coach and pinch hitter through the 1932 season. Offered the managership of the Columbus Red Birds he assumed control of that club at the start of the 1933 season and led it to its first American Association pennant in more than a quarter of a century. His team also defeated Buffalo in the Little World's Series. Paul Dean, Bill Delancey, Bill Lee, and Burgess Whitehead were among those sent to the big leagues by Blades that year.

In 1934 Blades still was on the active list at Columbus. Never out of the pennant race, the Red Birds finished only a game or two behind Minneapolis during the regular season, but defeated the Millers

Operation Helps

Johnny Mize, Red Wing first baseman, now on the voluntary retired list of the St. Louis Cardinals, is reported improving in St. Louis after an operation to remove growth on pelvic bone.

Mize Gains After Bone Operation

Ex-Red Wing Slugger Progressing in St. Louis

Johnny Mize, the big Georgian who came to Rochester labeled one of the finest rookie prospects in baseball only to have his career blighted by an injury at the age of 21, may yet go on to big league fame.

The Associated press, in a dispatch from St. Louis yesterday, quotes Dr. Robert F. Hyland, St. Louis Cardinal physician as saying: "Mize is progressing satisfactorily after an operation for the removal of a growth on the left pelvic bone."

Mize, who came to the Red Wings in August, 1933, was injured rounding first base early in June that season and although he has played periodically since has never been a sound ball player. Johnny was sold to the Cincinnati Reds at the close of the 1934 season, but was returned to Rochester last spring. He played out part of the summer here, but was later placed on the voluntary retired list at his own request.

If Mize proves that his leg is sound next spring, he may return here or be grabbed up by a major league club. It is unlikely that he will be plucked off by a major club however until he proves he has completely recovered from his ailment and can stand up under every day grind.

Facts and Rumors Gathered At Dayton Baseball Confab

Dayton, Ohio—(AP)—Facts and rumors from the big baseball player mart:

PAUL FLORENCE

FACTS: Managers Bill Terry of New York Giants and Frank Frisch of St. Louis Cardinals made a deal, probably for a Giant pitcher and a Cardinal second baseman, but will not announce it until the major league meeting at Chicago next month.

Outfielder Earl Webb, sold by Milwaukee of American Association to Knoxville of Southern Association. Catcher Paul Florence of Milwaukee sold to Galveston, Texas League.

Portland traded former Manager and Infielder Bill Cissell to Baltimore of International League for First baseman Bill Sweeney.

St. Paul of the American Association purchased Art Herring, a right handed pitcher, and Henry Steinbacher, an outfielder, from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League.

GERALD WALKER

RUMORS—Al Simmons will be traded to Detroit for Outfielder Gerald Walker, Third Baseman Gilbert English (obtained from Portland), and a pitcher.

Pittsburgh will give $40,000 and a rookie catcher to Philadelphia for Catcher Al Todd.

In a big three-cornered deal, the Boston Red Sox will obtain Outfielder Helne Manush and Pitcher Jack Russell from Washington; the Yanks will get Outfielder Roy Johnson and Pitcher Bump Hadley from the Senators; Washington will get Outfielder Ben Chapman and Pitchers Jimmy Murphy and Jimmy Deabong from the Yanks.

St. Louis Browns will trade Pitcher Dick Coffman, the Prayer-Manager Rogers Hornsby sent home on a charge of breaking training rules last season, to the Chicago White Sox for Outfielder Vernon (Call Me George) Washington.

RED WINGS SELL PAUL FLORENCE

By JACK BURGESS
Dayton, Ohio—Paul Florence, who was sent to the Rochester Red Wings last season from Milwaukee of the American Association, has been sold by that club to Galveston of the Texas League, according to an announcement issued here today by officials of the Milwaukee Club.

Bill Buckley, a Rochesterian attending the baseball confab here with expectations of securing work as an umpire, may land in a Midwestern league.

Reports that Specs Toporcer, also of Rochester, will manage the Elmira team of the New York-Penn. League could not be confirmed.

Two Cardinals Become Red Wings

Six-player swap made by Warren Giles and Branch Rickey brings to city Ernie Orsatti (left) and Jack Rothrock, first baseman and outfielder, who were World Series stars in 1934. Kaufmann also involved in deal.

Red Wings' 6-Man Transaction Seen Vindicating New Deal

Concrete evidence that there is fact behind the new deal program promised by the Red Wings is offered by the latest transaction completed by the Wings in which six players are involved. In this giant trade the Red Wings obtain the services of First Baseman-Outfielder Ernie Orsatti, Outfielder Jack Rothrock and Pitcher Tony Kaufman from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for rookies J. C. Clark, Lou Stoffic and Ed Morgan.

JACK ROTHROCK the announced intention of Orsatti to retire from baseball to enter the movie field.

His brother, Vic, who is a leading Hollywood agent, has been after him for the past couple of years to give up baseball and enter film work, but Ernie's love of the game has kept him from conceding.

The new program planned by the Wings involves less experimentation than last year, when the club dropped to its lowest depth, seventh place, and the sprinkling of the lineup with enough seasoned veterans to enable the promising youngsters coming from smaller leagues to provide the club with the necessary balance.

Orsatti and Rothrock are players of known ability. Both are hustlers and fighters. They are the type that Manager Ray Blades wants. Both have achieved fine records in the majors, with Orsatti coming to the Wings with a lifetime batting record of .310 in the National League, and with a hitting mark of .381 behind him in his last year in Class AA. That was in 1928, with Minneapolis. He hit .318 for the Cards in the 1934 World Series.

There is only one drawback to this deal. It is

If Orsatti is persuaded to report to Rochester it will be only because he loves to play baseball. His attitude toward the game has helped make him a valuable player, for when he is in action you can depend on him to give everything he has. In the National League he has been overly enthusiastic, the result being many injuries sustained by his refusal to give up on fly balls that were against the outfield fences.

If Orsatti reports he will play first base for the Red Wings.

Rothrock played every inning of every game for the Cards in 1934 and played 129 games for them this past year. He graduated to the Cards in 1933 from Columbus, where he hit .347 for the season and .454 in the Little World's Series against Buffalo.

Rothrock also can play the infield. He was a second sacker when he played in Rochester in 1926 under the late George Stallings. He went to the Boston Red Sox that year, was moved to the outfield, and has played there the majority of the time since. He hit .275 for the Cards last year.

Orsatti is 31 years old and a southpaw hitter, while Rothrock is 29 years old and a switch hitter.

Kaufman was obtained because Ray Blades wanted somebody of his type to assist him. Tony is a great fellow on a ball club and his graduation to the Cards toward the end of 1935 was a reward for loyal service. The promotion was made to enable him to earn a substantial extra amount of money.

President Warren C. Giles of the Red Wings will return early this morning from the major league meeting at Chicago.

Tom Carey Gets Marriage License---on 13th!

Ex-Wing Shortstopper Flaunts 'Jinx' Of Friday

Found: A baseball player who defies superstition.

Without gum under his hat peak, without looking for a load of barrels, without attention to the base paths, or a particular spot for his glove, Tommy Carey took out a marriage license in this city.

The former Red Wing star shortstop took a leaning stance at the license clerk's counter in the City Hall, wound his strong fingers around a fountain pen and threw out the fee as he asked the right to wed Grace Carbone, 1 Aster Street.

And Tommy did it on Friday, tract without stepping on the sack on his way to the bench, in fact with a jolt to superstition.

Tommy now has two strikes on him in the marriage league, with the departure from the bachelor circuit to become complete Tuesday morning at Holy Family Church.

After the ceremony Tommy plans to stay in town for a time, before returning to Hoboken, New Jersey, to prepare for spring training with the St. Louis Browns, with which American League club Tommy starred as a second-sacker last season.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Carey, who were married this morning at Holy Family Church.

Rochesterian Bride Of Infielder Carey

Tommy Carey, of 1118 Park Avenue, Hoboken, N. J., second baseman of the St. Louis Browns, was married in Holy Family Church, Ames Street, at 9 o'clock this morning to Miss Grace Carbone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Carbone of 1 Aster Street.

Carey is a former Rochester Red Wing player.

The Rev. Henry Bleier, assistant pastor of the church, officiated and the children's choir of Holy Family parochial school sang the choral parts of the nuptial Mass which was attended by friends of the young couple.

Miss Carbone was attended by Miss Ruth Lynch and William J. Doser was groomsmen. As the couple left the church, to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Charles Claus, organist, they were showered with confetti. They stopped to accommodate news camera men and to receive the congratulations of many of those who attended the nuptials, among them Gabriel H. Paul, secretary of the Rochester Red Wings Baseball Club.

A wedding breakfast was served at the Doser's Restaurant, 1144 Joseph Avenue, following the ceremony. Tomy said he had no immediate plans for a honeymoon.

Carey Gets Raise from Browns

Tommy Carey, the Harp from Hoboken, former Red Wing shortstop and now a hireling of Rogers Hornsby's St. Louis Browns is a happier man today. The reason—Tommy got a contract with a worth while raise from the Browns front office and although he wouldn't reveal the figures he seemed very content over the contents. Carey played second base for the men of Hornsby the latter part of last season and made a big hit with Hornsby.

TOMMY CAREY

Carey who is spending his honeymoon in Rochester, expects to leave the city soon for a visit with relatives in Hoboken. The Browns are to train in West Palm Beach, Fla., and Tommy plans to remain in Hoboken until Mar. 1.

Blades Named Wings' Pilot In Surprise Deal Sending Burt Shotton to Columbus

Aggressive Manager Of Red Birds Brings Victory Record

By ELLIOT CUSHING

Democrat and Chronicle Sports Editor

Francis Raymond (Ray) Blades last night was named manager of the Rochester Red Wings, succeeding Burt Shotton in a surprise move which sends the 1935 Red Wing pilot to Columbus.

Blades, who led the Columbus Red Birds to American Association and Junior World Series championships in 1933 and '34, assumes his duties immediately and will take charge of the squad when it reports at the Bartow, Fla., training camp next March.

Simultaneous announcement that Blades had been signed to a Red Wing contract and that Shotton would move to Columbus, another St. Louis Cardinal subsidiary, was made last night by Warren C. Giles, president of the Rochester Red Wing Baseball Club.

Blades, who had a brief stay at Red Wing Stadium in 1929 as player and coach, won a pennant in first year as manager at Columbus and is considered one of the soundest tacticians among baseball's younger school of managers.

A former major league star with the St. Louis Cardinals he had his baseball days cut short by a knee injury, which forced him to retire almost at the height of his career. Unable to stand up under the rigorous daily grind, Blades turned to coaching and it was in this capacity that he came to Rochester in '29, also serving as a pinch hitter and utility outfielder.

Shotton Takes on Pilot's Post at Columbus

The following winter he submitted to a leg operation which proved successful and he rejoined the Cardinals where he was used sparingly. He batted at the amazing clip of .396 for 45 games in 1930. He remained with the Cards throughout 1932 and although his knee was greatly improved he did not play regularly.

In 1933 Branch Rickey, vice-president of the Cardinals impressed by Blades' coaching tactics and handling of young players, offered him the management of the Columbus club. Blades promptly justified Rickey's confidence in him by leading Columbus to its first pennant in over 25 years, and going on to win the Junior World Series from Buffalo.

Win Junior Series

In 1933 he repeated at Columbus, beating Minneapolis in the Association playoffs and then leading his team to victory over Toronto in the Junior Series. Last year, with a club that was picked to finish in the cellar by a poll of Association baseball writers, he finished in a tie for third place.

In signing Blades President

Giles said:

"Ray Blades is a fighter, a sound tactician and has showed uncanny ability to get the most out of his men. He is what I call a championship manager. I am confident he will be a successful and popular manager here."

Blades from his home at McLeansboro, Ill., wired briefly:

"You can count on me for 100 per cent. effort and 100 per cent co-operation* to provide a winner."

Blades is the fourth Red Wing manager to be named in 1935. Pat Crawford was appointed last Jan. 25 only to become seriously ill on the day he was named. Eddie Dyer was entrusted with the job on Feb. 2, only to be relieved of his duties in midseason when Shotton was named his successor June 2.

Shotton finished the year, being unable to elevate the Wings from their lowly position, finishing deep down in seventh place. During August, however, President Giles announced that Shotton had been signed for 1935 and would again pilot the team.

Shotton, although regarded by baseball men as a shrewd manager, was not popular here. His task was a thankless one, trying to rally a hapless ball club. He will take charge of the Red Birds at the opening of spring training next March.

Aggressive Manager

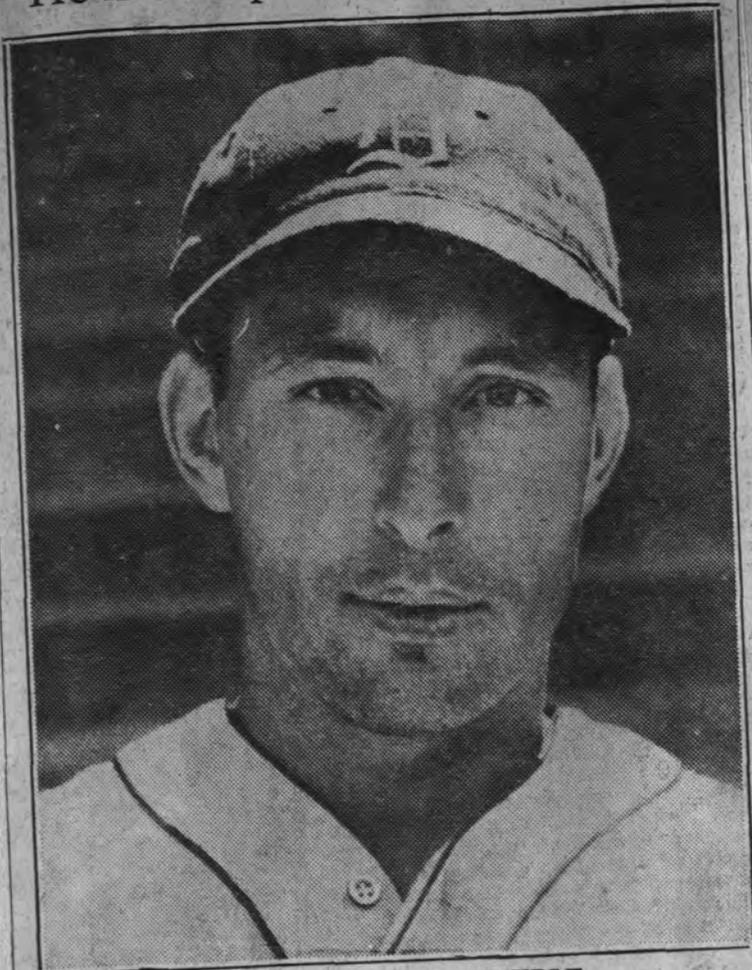

Blades is 38 years old, married and comes here as a non-playing manager. He is distinguished on the field by his aggressiveness and will fight to the last drop for his ball players. He is a 'ball players manager,' a superb handler of men, particularly pitchers.

During his three-year stay at Columbus he sent such players as Terry Moore, Lew Riggs, Billy Meyers, Bill Lee, Paul Dean, Bill DeLancy, Burgess Whitehead and Ed Heusser to the big leagues.

Blades is a native of Illinois and began his baseball career as a pitcher in high school. He was signed by the St. Louis Cardinals in 1920 after being scouted by Charley Barrett.

He started his minor league career with Memphis in the Southern Association as an infielder but upon joining the Cards in 1923 he was put into the outfield because of illness of Austin McHenry. Although he had practically no outfield experience he clicked both in the field and at bat and developed into one of the National League's outstanding outfielders.

He'll Scoop 'em Up For Wings

HENRY (HEINIE) SCHUBLE

Former Detroit Infielder Takes Place of Wilson

Inner Defense of Wings Complete For '36 Race

Renovation of the Red Wings' 1936 infield took on its most complete appearance last night when President Warren C. Giles announced the outright purchase of Shortstop Henry (Heinie) Schuble from the Toledo Mud Hens of the American Association.

Schuble was obtained to replace Charley Wilson, who was sold to the Montreal Royals during the week.

For the past four years Schuble has served as utility infielder with the Detroit Tigers, now World Champions. Shortly after the world's series he was traded to Toledo, and when a good cash offer for his services was made by the Red Wings, the Toledo club moved him to Rochester.

He received a full share of the world's series last year, approximately $6,700, and the year before he received a full loser's share, when the Tigers lost to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Brand New Infield

With Schuble for shortstop, the Red Wings' regular infield alignment now stands without a single member of the 1935 team that finished seventh. The only member of last year's infield cast likely to be retained is Jimmy Brown, and he is favored for the utility job.

Jack Sturdy, rated the most promising infielder in the minors today, is conceded the third base job. Schuble will play short and Lou Bush is expected to land the second base position. Ernie Orsatti will play first if he decides to forestall his movie work for another year at baseball. Sturdy and Bush played with Ashville in the Piedmont League last year, and Orsatti was with the Cardinals. Sturdy hit .371 and Bush .336 for the pennant winning team piloted by Billy Southworth.

Is Colorful Scrapper

Schuble, who was 28 Nov. 1, is a colorful little scrapper who loves to play ball. Despite the fat series checks he received the last two years while sitting on the Detroit bench, he announced during the last series he was through being a substitute and that he would request his trade to a team where he could play every day, regardless of the league. His transfer to Toledo followed.

Schuble is the same player who was rushed to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1927 by Danville of the Three-eye to assume the regular shortstop position when Tommy Thevenow broke a leg. "Heinie" was only 19 then and he was playing his first full season of professional ball, but that didn't stop him from turning in a good job while the Cardinals were battling for the National League pennant. He hit .257 for the Cards in 65 games.

Rip Collins Lists Ten Commandments For Boys Who Seek Success in Athletics

Ball Player Advises Moderation in Talk To Ad Club

James Anthony (Rip) Collins, baseball player and orator, yesterday presented his "Ten Commandments" for boys who want to become athletes.

Speaking to fathers and sons of the Ad Club at their annual banquet on the Sagamore Roof the amiable first sacker of the St. Louis Cardinals kept an appreciative audience in a continuous uproar as he revealed humorous anecdotes of the national pastime before delving into inside baseball and clubhouse secrets.

Collins chose "Horsehide and Hickory" for his topic but stated at the outset he had not prepared any speech but would "just ramble along as best I can."

He made no attempt to eulogize any of the players, revealed a lot of their faults and included some of his own.

His 10 Commandments

"Rip's" Commandments, which he recommends to all boys athletically inclined are:

1. Get at least eight hours of sleep and realize that early to bed and early to rise still is sound advice for a growing boy.
2. Keep away from tobacco in any form until you have attained your full growth and are in a position to debate its use with yourself.
3. Do everything in moderation. Even good things can be overdone. It is as much a mistake to study too hard and too long at the expense of sunshine and exercise and recreation as it is to ignore class work.
4. Do not abuse your God-given powers. Exercise and athletics are wonderful. But too many youngsters burn themselves out with too much competition while they are still growing.
5. Always remember your eyes are most important. Do not strain them with too much use, especially by artificial light, and never lose sight of the fact all great ball players have had perfect sight.
6. Train yourself to obedience. That means obedience at home as well as in school and on the ball field. Complaining about decisions means the woodshed or the bench.
7. Remember it is important to be able to "take it." Gameness is vital in baseball and in your life's work.
8. Love and respect your home ties. Nobody in this wide world can match your mother and your father in deep personal interest in you.
9. Be neat in everything you do. That goes for action and dress and language too.
10. The truthful boy goes the James (Rip) Collins was batting at a microphone instead of a baseball yesterday and his fans, including Ad Clubbers whose guest he was, said his average lost nothing by switch.

Ad Clubbers And Sons Hear Baseball Star

"Horsehide and Hickory" was the topic of James (Rip) Collins, first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, before more than 300 members of the Ad Club and their sons at a fathers and sons luncheon at the Sagamore.

Stories and anecdotes of the diamond and the players who make the game were told by the Cards' star. He also went a bit into statistics when he revealed that big leagues last season used 12,000 bats and nearly 150,000 balls and more than enough adhesive plaster to stretch from the Four Corners to Lake Ontario.

Collins' older son, James Jr., was a guest at the luncheon.

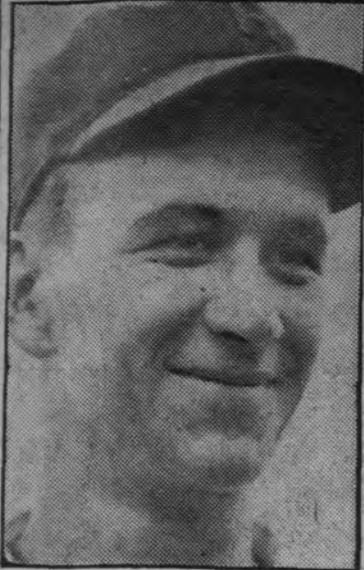

'Now, Dad, Tell 'em This One'

James (Rip) Collins' two sons, James Jr., 13, (left) and Warren, 6, helped the Cardinal first baseman prepare the address he delivered at the Fathers and Sons luncheon of the Ad Club at

The Sagamore this noon. All three are shown here concentrating on the anecdotes of the diamond that Collins later told his audience. The older boy attended the luncheon with his father.

Old Favorites Return

RAY HARRELL

Red Wing pitching staff was practically completed yesterday when President Warren C. Giles announced that Kleinke and Harrell had been obtained from the Cardinals and will be in the Rochester training camp at Bartow early in March.

More substantial strength was added to the 1936 Red Wings last night when President Warren C. Giles announced the acquisition on option from the St. Louis Cardinals of Pitchers Ray Harrell and Norbert Kleinke.

This deal insures the Wings starting the next International League season with a pitching staff composed entirely of tried men who have had outstanding success in AA company.

Kleinke and Harrell were the young sensations of the 1934 schedule, Kleinke finishing third in the league's won and lost records, and also standing third in effectiveness. Both men were sold to the Cardinals as a result of their success and last year, when the Wings were in the mire, they were rushed here in an attempt to pull out the club.

Warmed Cardinal Bench

Inactivity while on the Cardinal bench told on them and it was a while before they could recover their effectiveness. Each suffered an injury the first day he pitched to further complicate the situation.

The experience gained by the result of the inactivity of Kleinke and Harrell was responsible for their optional release to the Wings at this time. This makes it possible for them to train with the Wings, get plenty of work, and whip themselves into the proper shape for the league season.

Rochester's mound corps is set now. In addition to Kleinke and Harrell, it is composed of Leslie Munns, who was with Brooklyn last year; Bob Weiland, Al Fisher, Johnny Michaels, Tony Kaufmann, Ward Cross and several rookies coming up from the Cardinals' minor league holdings.

Ward Cross in Shape

The prospective strength of this alignment can be taken from the records of the men. Weiland was one of the most effective pitchers in the league last year, even though he worked for Albany and Rochester, eighth and seventh place clubs.

In his last year in AA Munns was one of the leaders of the American Association. Michaels was fourth in the International League earned run ratings in 1934, while Fisher was successful enough with the Wings last year to be sold to the Cardinals. He was returned here on option to get away from the situation that interfered with the progress of Kleinke and Harrell last year, namely, inactivity on a big league bench.

Cross, who cannot be definitely counted on because of the arm injury sustained last year, reports that the trouble has disappeared. If this is correct and he is able to pitch as he did before his injury, the pitching staff will be still more formidable.

Bob O'Farrell

O'Farrell Is Signed As Catcher for Red Wings Next Season

Bob O'Farrell, veteran catcher who was voted the National League's most valuable player in 1926, and who recently was selected by Hugh Fullerton as the all-time All-St. Louis receiver, today was signed by the Red Wings to fill the gap behind the plate that has existed since the 1934 season closed. O'Farrell, who has managed two major league teams and who has been on the receiving corps of the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds, recently was released outright by the St. Louis Cards, with whom he played during the 1935 season.

In announcing the signing of O'Farrell, President Warren C. Giles of the Red Wings made it clear that he was obtained for first string catching duty.

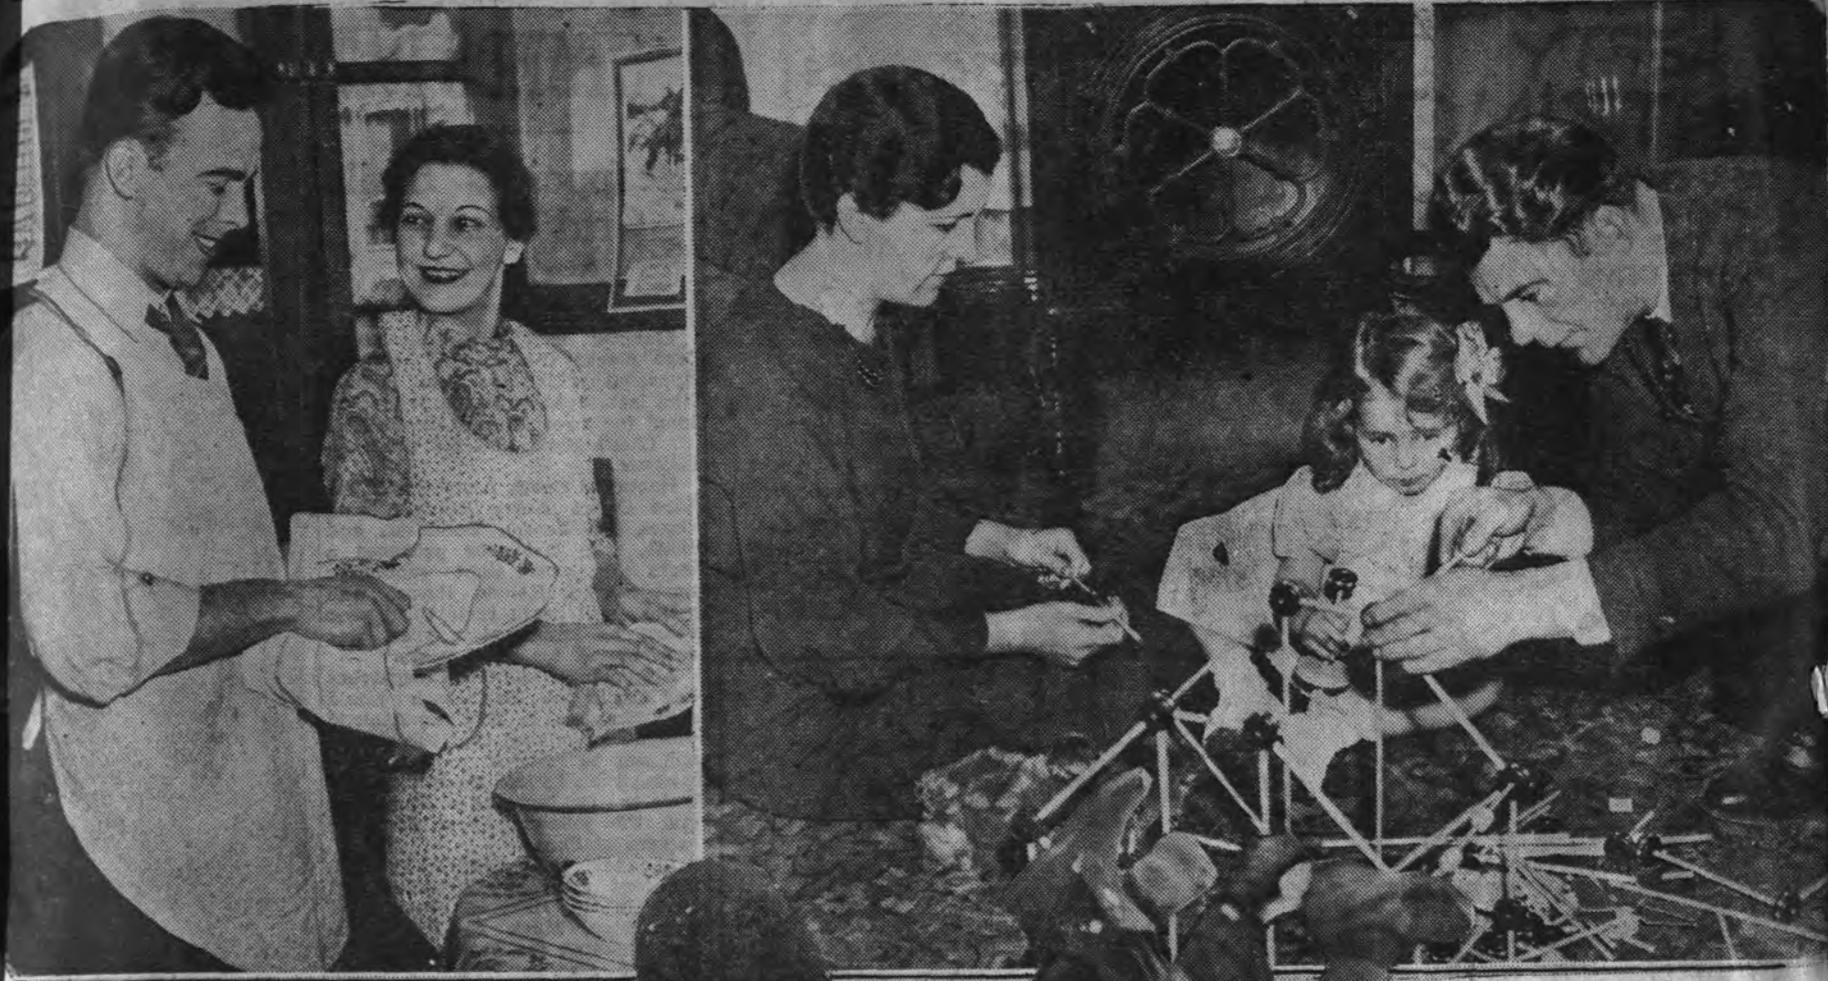

Although Giles didn't say so, it obviously marked the departure from the most recent policy of having a youngster as the first string man. O'Farrell's experience is his chief stock in trade, and that's the very thing that the younger boys cannot get until they have served their time.

O'Farrell's signing also is consistent with the club's expectancy of having the best pitching staff in the league. No club can depend on its mound corps without a good catcher as a backbone, and the way the 1936 Red Wings shape up they will have to depend considerably on their hurlers.

Another factor in the acquisition of O'Farrell was the possibility of him helping to develop the young man who will serve as his second string catcher. His teaching may be the means of Ray Blades sending another promising youngster to the majors like he did Delancey, O'Dea and Ogradowski in his three years at Columbus.

During his spectacular career, which started in 1915, his greatest thrill came in the world series of 1926, when he threw out "Babe" Ruth, trying to steal second, for the final out of the seventh and deciding game. The victory gave St. Louis its first world's championship.

International Stars Move to Major Show

Wings' Contribution Off but Others Send Up Record Crop

WHEN the 16 major league teams open their schedules April 16 their lineups will be studded with more former International League players than at any time since the formation of the present professional baseball structure.

Many big time club stars prepped in the league in which Rochester is represented, and this year there will be a new crop from the International, many of whom will be in the regular alignment when the starting gun is fired.

Being as the Red Wings were a seventh place team last year, they didn't have the number of men to send up as during an ordinary season, so the overwhelming majority necessarily must come from the group that made Rochesterians wince while doing so much to provide the landing place for the Wings' tumble.

Transfers Offer Relief

Therefore, the transfer records should provide plenty of relief, for they show that men like George Puccinelli, a former Red Wing and the leading batter of the International League last year; Pete Appleton, another ex-Red Winger, who won 23 games for the penant winning Montreal Royals; John Kroner, Jimmy Ripple, Chad Kimsey, Cal Chapman, Harry Gumbert, George McQuinn, Al Neimic and "Whitey" Hilcher are among those who will attempt to break into the big league picture.

Pooch was drafted by the Philadelphia Athletics from the Baltimore Orioles because he led the league with a .359 average, batted in 172 runs and smacked 53 homers. He is expected to step right in the lineup as a regular because of the recent wholesale sellout of Connie Mack's fence busters.

Appleton goes to the Washington Senators, also by draft, in his attempt to shatter the major league complex that has prevented his making the grade up there before. He has the stuff to make good.

Mack May Make "Pooch"

Kroner, who dealt the Red Wings more misery last year than any one player, was sold by the Syracuse Chiefs to the Boston Red Sox for a crack at third base. Al Neimic, the Chiefs' brilliant young shortstop, also graduated to the Red Sox, but was shifted to the

BUSTER MILLS

Athletics in the big dealings between those clubs.

Chad Kimsey, who won 16 games for the Royals, was sold to the world's champions, the Detroit Tigers, while Harry Gumbert, the ace of the Baltimore hurling corps, was purchased by the New York Giants before the close of the season.

Cincinnati takes up Cal Chapman, George McQuinn and "Whitey" Hilcher, Chapman and Hilcher graduating from Toronto and McQuinn from Newark. Chapman, a brilliant hitter who didn't receive deserving recognition last year, batted .329 for the Leafs while playing shortstop. After completing the season with Toronto, he went to Cincinnati and played in 15 games, batting .340. Don't overlook him.

Reds Like McQuinn

McQuinn, another brilliant prospect, but who had a poor season last year, is being groomed to succeed Jim Bottomley as the Reds' first sacker. He only hit .288 for the Bears last year, but the Reds still were willing to outlay a sizeable bundle of money for him because of their confidence that this average was only because of a one season slump.

Bill Terry loosened up with a fat bankroll for Jimmy Ripple, ace centerfielder of the Montreal Royals, who hit .333 last year and who won a position on the league's all-star team. Recently Terry announced a plan to shift Ripple to third base, but his latest ideas indicate that Ripple is pretty sure of being the extra outfielder of the Giants.

Mills, Moore on Dodgers

Gene Moore, who played right-field so brilliantly for the Red Wings last year, is being heralded as Brooklyn's regular leftfielder by scribes in that city. Moore's all-around ability has attracted so much attention that the newspaper boys are cracking him up, even though they haven't seen him.

As for Buster Mills, also sold by the Wings to Brooklyn, the writers aren't making predictions like they are for Moore. Buster finished the season with the Dodgers. He's a scrapper, though, and they'll have to think twice before counting him out of their plans.

The above mentioned men aren't all that the majors are taking from the International. Henry Johnson, who hurled for the Chiefs the tail end of the season, will be with the Athletics; Woodley Abernathy of the Orioles will attempt to break into the outfield of the Phillies; Nolan Richardson will battle Frank Crosetti for the Yanks' shortstop post, having graduated last fall from Newark; Dick Siebert, Buffalo's first sacker, will be with the Dodgers, and the Athletics will try Catchers Frank Hayes and George Savino. Hayes was with Buffalo and Albany last year on option, while Savino played with the Chiefs, and was sent to Philadelphia by the Red Sox, who owned his contract.

A summary of the big leaguers' raid, shows that the Athletics netted the most, five players from the Interantional, with Brooklyn getting three, Cincinnati three, the Giants two, and the Red Sox, Washington, Phillies, Detroit and Yankees one each.

Gene Moore Signs Dodgers' Contract

Rated Coming Star Along With Buster Mills By Brooklyn

New York—(AP)—The Dodgers announced the receipt of two more signed contracts yesterday,

GENE MOORE

Eugene Moore, a rookie outfielder, and Catcher Walter Millies agreeing to terms.

Moore, one of the most promising newcomers on the Dodger roster, was purchased from the Rochester International League club last fall along with Buster Mills in a deal which sent Pitcher Leslie Munns and a bundle of cash to the Red Wings.

Millies who was bought from Dayton in 1934, spent last season on option to Chattanooga of the Southern Association, where he was rated as the outstanding receiver of the league.

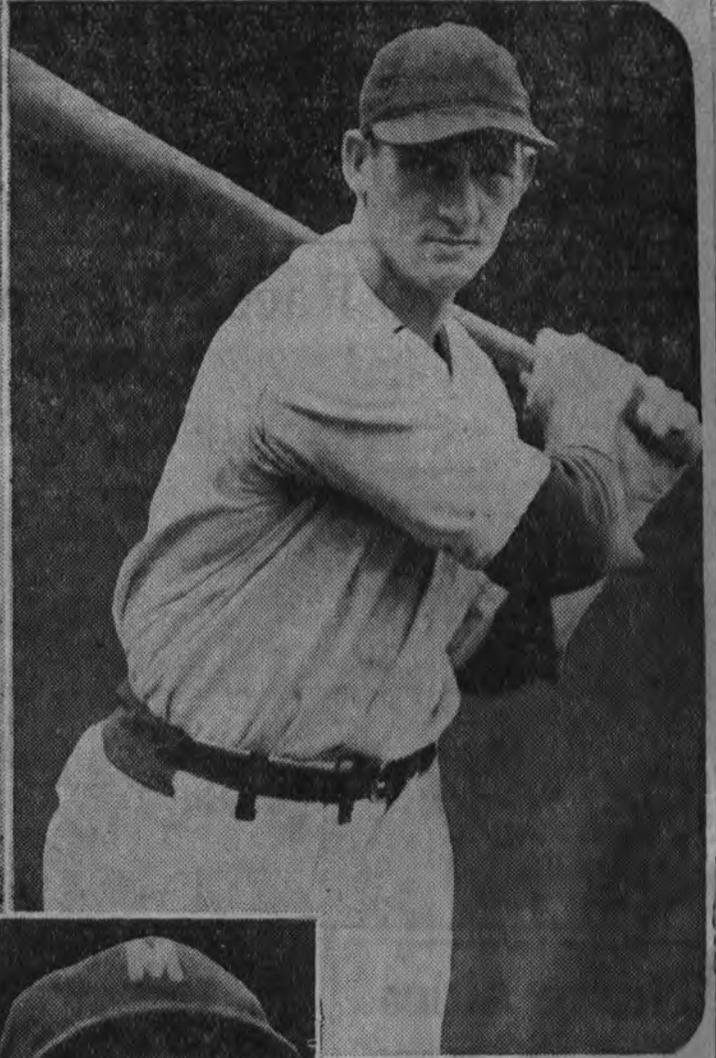

In announcing the signing, Brooklyn officials said the deal with Rochester called for further cash payments if either Moore, Mills or both are retained after Apr. 15, and they expected to make them. They believe Moore, who has had trials with the Reds and Cardinals, is sure to stick in the big league this time. A left hander, he hit .318 last year.

To Settle Here

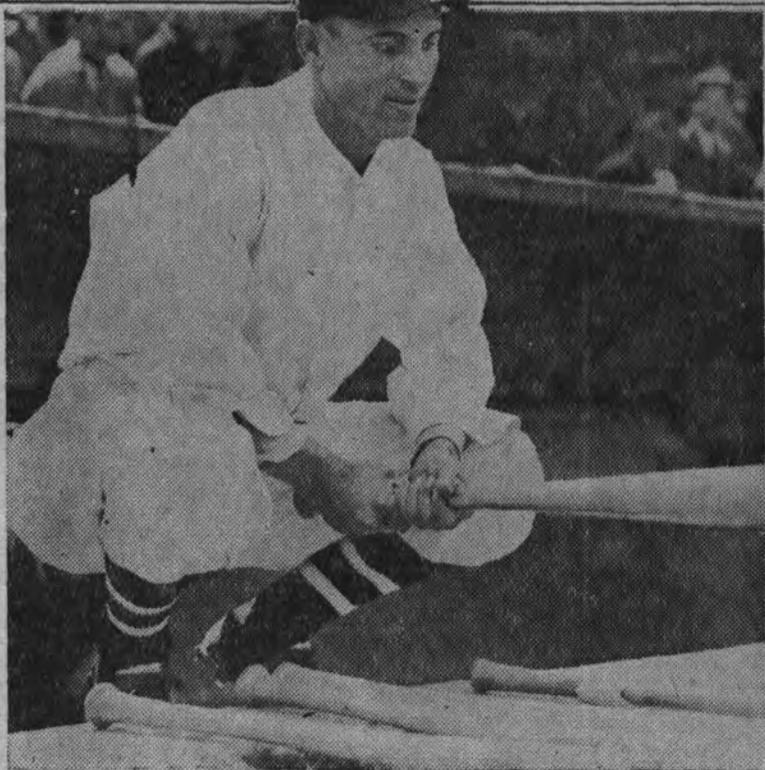

Lou Bush, speedy infielder of the Red Wings, who will replace Jim Brown at second base, is due in town this week. He will bring his wife and establish his home for the season. Then he will go on to the Bartow, Fla., camp.

Johnny Mize on High Road to Recovery at His Georgia Home

Johnny Mize is smiling again. The big kid who threatened to blossom into one of the most powerful hitters in baseball only to be plagued by an injury, is recovering from a recent operation at his home in Georgia where the above photo was taken. John is doing the chores around the farm, chopping wood, etc. and reports he never felt better in his life.

Physicians Say Ex-Wing Slugger Will be Ready for Regular Job In Majors This Spring

BIG Johny Mize is coming back—healthy and strong.

That's the latest word from his mountain home near Demorest, Ga., where the $55,000 rookie first baseman is completing convalescence from a recent operation to remove the pelvic arch growth that kept him from being a major league regular last season, when he had just turned twenty-one.

And skeptical surgeons, who pronounced the operation successful but doubted his ability to regain his normal strength and speed without taking a full season layoff, are inclined to agree.

If Johnny is right, it spells bad news for National League pitchers and may bring about a sharp realignment in the senior loop initial sack situation.

For Mize, a 6 foot, 3 inch athlete who weighs 210 pounds, is rated by the vast majority of big league scouts as the greatest natural hitter in the minor leagues today.

Although he has been with the Rochester Red Wings for more than two seasons, Mize is being groomed for the gateway job with the St. Louis Cardinals now held by another Rochesterian, Jimmy (Ripper) Collins.

Bill Terry, New York Giants' pilot and no slouch himself as a gate tender and hitter, has tried hard to buy or trade for either Collins or Mize. There are at least three other clubs in the National circuit that would welcome either man. So a great deal depends on proof in spring training of Mize's confident statement:

"I'm ready to go right now."

Mize broke into baseball with Greensboro at the age of seventeen. He was an outfielder, awkward but a powerhouse at bat and fast on the bases.

In 1932 he was sent to Elmira, where he led the NYP loop in hitting. His fielding hadn't improved in the pastures, so the master minds decided to utilize his power in placing him at first base.

He reported to Rochester in that capacity and soon displaced the veteran Art Shires. His fielding was acceptable and he ran bases well. But at bat he was a sensation. He battered down fences in every park in the International League through the 1933 season.

'Rip' Signs Contract

THE routine of signing a contract to play first base for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1936 was disposed of by Jimmy (Rip) Collins yesterday in the office of President Warren C. Giles of the Red Wings.

Collins waited until Giles returned from New York yesterday to affix his name to the document because ever since 1928 "the Ripper" has signed his contracts in the presence of the man who is at the head of the Cards' leading AA link.

Collins seemed perfectly contented, but he wouldn't indicate the size of the figures on the paper to which he affixed his signature. He said: "All I can say is that I am very well satisfied with my 1936 contract. The club has been very fair with me."

When "The Ripper" was in New York for the Baseball Writers' Dinner he talked at length with Frankie Frisch, manager of the Cardinals, and received permission to report to the training camp with the first squad, which will be in about three weeks. He is anxious to get down there, but disappointed that he will not be accompanied by Mrs. Collins, who is recuperating from an operation at the Genesee Hospital.

Casey's Eleven Outfielders May Mean Help for Wings

Gene Moore

By AL C. WEBER

Even up here in the "tall celery," as the New York sports scrawlers usually term any baseball area outside the metropolitan limits, there is, year by year, more than a passing interest exhibited in the comic antics of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

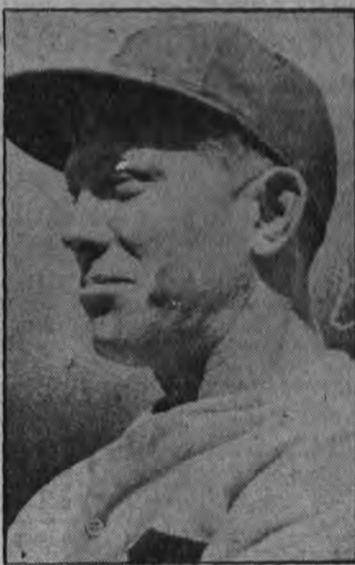

Dating back probably even beyond the day that Uncle Wilbert Robinson and "Rabbit" Maranville saw three of the "Gowanus Goats" put out at third base almost simultaneously in one of the many Dodger specials, the deeds of the Flatbush clan spread to all points where baseball is played.

Rochester this year will have a serious interest in the Brooklyns, in addition to the annual laughs.

Plenty to Beat

Two of the Red Wing favorites, Col. Buster Mills and Gene Moore, will be fighting for a permanent berth in the big show when Manager Casey Stengel assembles his ivory in the spring training camp.

They were traded to the Dodgers at the conclusion of last season for two players who later turned out to be Pitcher Leslie Munns and Outfielder Len Koenecke (the latter was killed in an airplane late last fall).

Mills and Moore are two of 11 outfielders on the Brooklyn roster, indicating they will be in the thick of a wild scramble for the three regular and two utility jobs. The others are Freddy Lindstrom, Randy Moore, Buzz Boyle, Jimmy Bucher, Nick Tremark, Danny Taylor, Walter Eckhart, Johnny Cooney and Frenchy Bordagaray. Lindstrom, Bucher, Cooney and Randy Moore are capable of doing a turn in the infield, but they are primarily gardeners.

May Solve Problem

This congested and perplexing state of the Flatbush fly-chasing corps may mean the Wings are in line for one of two of the above-mentioned. It may be Mills, it may be Moore; either would be welcome, and would fit nicely into the picture Warren C. Giles contemplates for the 1936 campaign.

If both are fortunate to stick, and the Rochester fans are hoping they do, one of the boys who come down might be available for first base duty; the position that has been Giles' biggest headache ever since Rip Collins left the Norton Street Stadium.

James A. (Rip) Collins

RIP'S HARD-HITTING RECORD

Twice in the World's Series and three times in the Little World's Series, that's the record made by Jimmy (Rip) Collins. His batting average in 1934 was .333. He tied with Mel Ott for home runs in the National League. Each knocked out 35 homers. In the World's Series of that year he batted .367 and fielded .985.

A MESSAGE from James (Rip) Collins

This is my first trip to the plate in the newspaper league. Maybe you'll overlook the fact that I'm a little bit nervous about it. After all a lead pencil doesn't seem as powerful a weapon as a baseball bat!

I'm going to write for The Times-Union a daily story during the baseball season, starting Monday.

They'll be short stories. In them I'll tell you about the big leaguers I meet, about the rookies and their troubles, about the umpires, about close decisions and arguments and about the schemes and plots that win or lose ball games.

I love baseball. It's been kind to me. To me there is nothing better than a hot baseball race with its color and excitement. If I'm able to picture for you some of the things that make it the greatest game in the world to me, I'll figure my new venture is a success.

I've been with you all winter; this way I'll be with you all summer, too.

Starting Monday I'll be writing YOU a personal baseball message every day.

Yours truly,

Ready to bark orders, Ray Blades, left, Red Wing manager, will greet his 1936 hopefuls at the Bartow training camp Thursday. Blades, who will be striving to put Rochester back on top after a disastrous season, will be well fortified in pitching with such stellar flippers as Harrell, Fisher, Cross and Weiland in camp eager to take their turn in the box.

NEW PLAYERS EN ROUTE TO BARTOW CAMP

Reds' Outfield Complete,
Infield 75 Per Cent
Set as Training
Siege Opens

By JACK BURGESS

Frederick, Md. — Two annoying problems were solved today by Warren Giles, president of the Red Wings. He signed two players who will fill infield and outfield holes which have been an irritation for two months.

First, he announced via long distance phone from Florida, that Heinie Schuble, shortstop, had accepted terms and signed a contract.

Second he disclosed that Frank Doljack, hard hitting outfielder, had signed and was enroute to the Bartow camp.

Schuble, last year with Detroit, is expected to be the sparkplug of the revamped infield, and when he recently informed Giles that because of the illness of his wife he preferred to remain in Houston, Tex., it seemed as if plans had gone completely to pot.

Apparently Mrs. Schuble has recovered, for Heinie wired that he would start immediately from Houston and motor to Bartow, arriving probably Saturday morning.

First Base Only Gap

Doljack telegraphed "Terms acceptable, contract in mail" and added that he expected to be at Jacksonville on Wednesday morning, to join the other players who will be met there by Giles and escorted to Bartow.

Doljack was with Reading, Toronto and Newark in other years. Milwaukee had him last year.

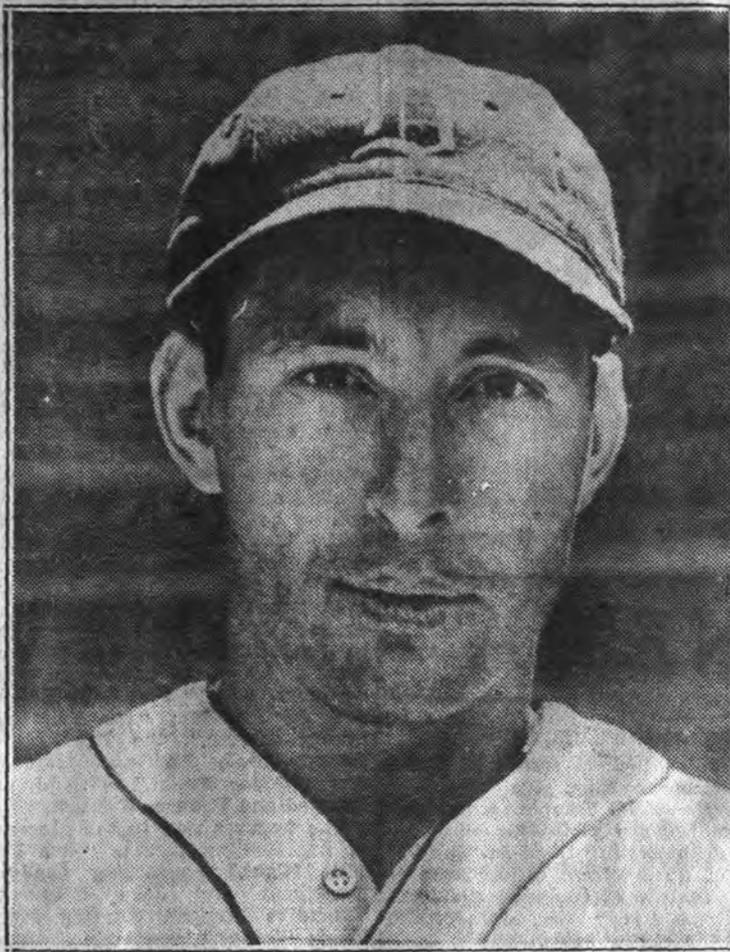

With Schuble in the clan the infield is 75 per cent set for the season. Only first base is a problem. Bush will play second, Schuble at short and Sturdy at third.

Outfield Complete

There is no hole now in the outfield, with Crabtree in center, Rothrock in left and Doljack in right, the picture is complete. Harold Epps and Ray Blades, the manager, are the utility gardeners.

With eight starting pitchers of top class and six relief gunners, and Bob O'Farrell as No. 1 catcher, the outfield intact and the infield needing only a first baseman, the Red Wings look to be on paper the class of the circuit and the answer to the prayer for a fifth pennant.

Two Key Men Join Wings

Heinie Schuble, new shortstop.

Frank Doljack, fly-chaser.

Ready for the Bell

Johnny Michaels, Red Wing portsider, expects a big campaign on the mound this year. The slim southpaw is confident of proving a big help to the Rochester team in pennant bid.

Blades Versus Ump

HOW the umpires regard Blades is a tale often laughed at in camp. He had a scrappy reputation in the Association and there was one umpire who cordially disliked him. Every time anyone on the bench criticized, the umpire walked over, pointed to Blades and ordered: "Off the field."

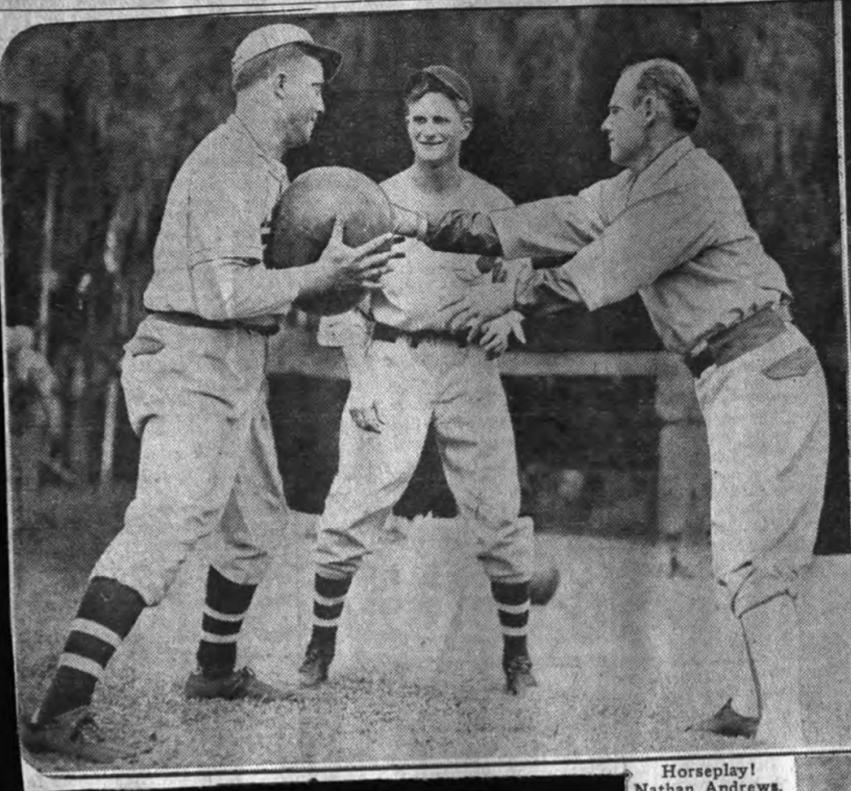

Blades

One day before a playoff game, a rookie on the bench shouted a blast at the umpire. The game hadn't started yet, but the umpire moved over to the bench, thumbed at Blades, remarking: "The clubhouse for you." And the innocent Blades never saw the first game of that important series.

BRANCH Rickey didn't get here Friday as expected but a story on the two Deans, Dizzy and Daffy, preceded him. Rickey has definitely made up his mind not to confer with Dizzy. "He will not cross the street to talk terms with Dean" said the informant who was in a position to know. "It is not a question of salary. It is one of discipline. Dean will have to come to Rickey, hat in hand and subdued. You remember Chick Hafey tried that once, stayed out till May and it cost him $2,500. Dean will take the same medicine."

Down here in the grapefruit league, where gossip is easy, the chatter is that 75 per cent of the Cardinals would just as soon see Dean on some other club. He is not popular with the players.

Addition of Larry Barton at First Base Rounds Out Red Wing Infield

Socko! Lou Bush takes a full cut at the pill during Red Wing workout. Former Mass. State grid star is out to win regular second base job with Blades' club. Early reports indicate he has stuff to make grade in Double A company.

Barton batting! Wings' new first sacker rattles boards on Bartow fence with hot drive. Larry's work has been so impressive this spring Wing board of strategy has decided to string with him as regular first baseman. Barton finished campaign here last year and showed some classy work in the field. If he can keep hitting he will be a real star.

Presenting Mr. Nubs Kleinke Jr.--Actor!

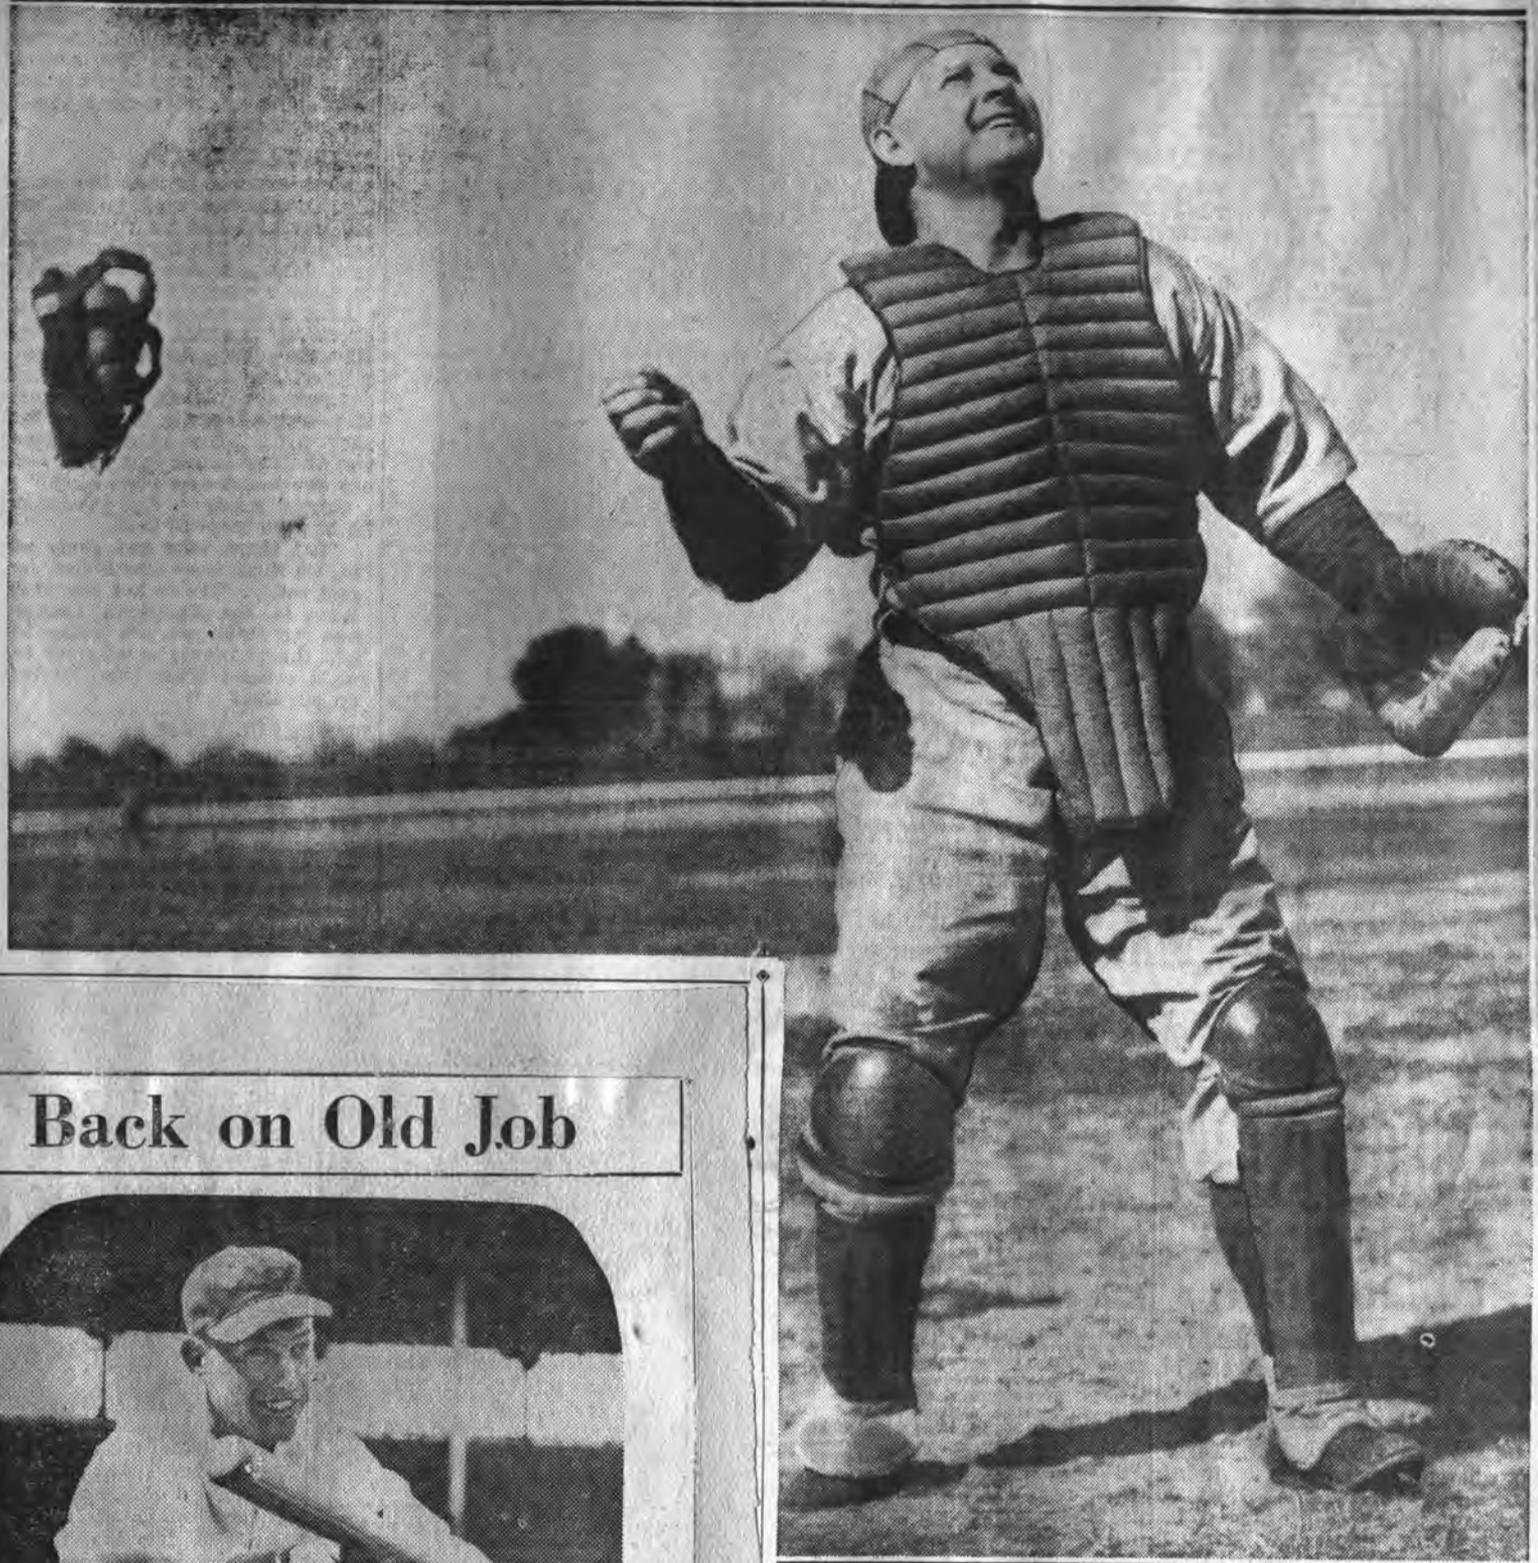

Now look, I'm just a youngster, see? Practically a baby, y' might say, a mere neophyte . . . but I know my own mind. So when I say I don' wanna be no fireman or policeman or street car motorman when I grow up—I mean it, see! Y' wanna know what I'm gonna be? A PITCHER—at's what! Jus' like my ol' man. YOU know HIM . . . Nubs Sr., the good-lookin' fella 'at pitches for Mr. Giles' Red Wings.

Now I'm bein' thoughtful. Sorta lookin' into the future, unnerstan'? Seein' ahead 'about twenty years. Course I'm oney one now . . . an' that ain't very old. But when I get to be TWENTY, Oh boy, look out! 'Cause when I'm twenty you guys is gonna see another Nubs Kleinke foggin' 'at ole apple up t' the plate—and it ain't gonna be Nubs Sr., either. What's good enuf for my Pop is good enough for me!

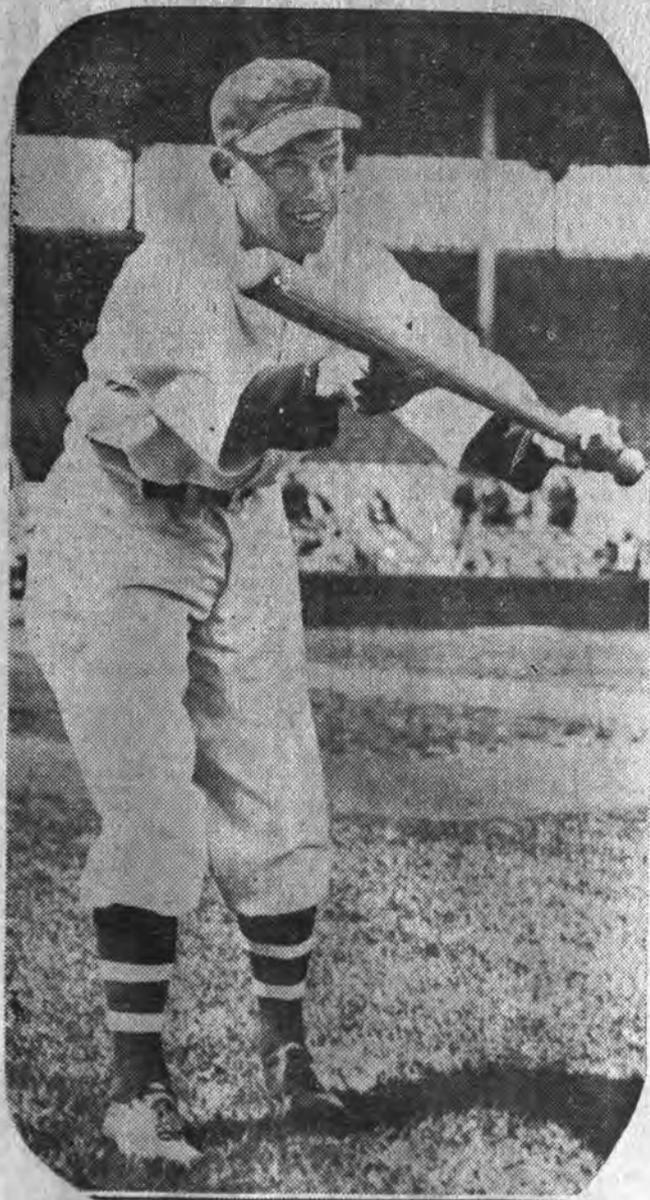

In this pose I'm laughin' into the camera, see? . . . on account when I grow up and get to be a great guy like my Pop I'll sorta be expected t' know my onions when the newspaper fellas wanna take the picture of Nubs Kleinke Jr., the great pitcher 'at fogs 'em post those ole batters eva time. Me 'n MY Pop—say, we're jus' like THAT! We unnerstan' each other, get the idea? Pals!

Favorites Win Mat Titles; Russer 165-Pound Champion

Reynolds, Bulavinetz Repeat in County Raffle Meet

Twelve good matches climaxed the Monroe County amateur wrestling tournament finals, held at the Columbus Civic Center gym last night. Howie Reynolds of the home club gave the best show of the meet, pinning the shoulders of Sam Leone of the Aljo Club in 2:20, while Mike Bulavinetz of Central Y downed Ed Vance in another good bout, throwing the heavier man in 2:32.

The Bott brothers of the Aljo Club, Joe Arluckas of Central Y, and D'Francisco, Russer, and DePrez of the Columbus Club also topped their respective weight classes.

Max Russer, whose wrestling has improved greatly this season, sprang something of a surprise by winning the 165-pound title. Russer beat Ang Dini of the Aljo Club on a 3:06 time advantage.

The DePrez-Reddy tussle renewed an old rivalry, DePrez once more proving his superiority over the stocky Y grappler. Summaries:

Semi-Final

118-pound class: Jim Ciccone, Aljo, defeated Sam Bellomio, Aljo, fall, 7:40.

135-pound class: Ray Bartl, Aljo, defeated Jim Cavoti, Columbus, time advantage, 3:54.

165-pound class: Max Russer, Columbus, defeated Adam Adams, Aljo, time advantage, :59.5 (overtime).

175-pound class: Mike Bulavinetz, Central Y, defeated Jack Flaher, Central Y, time advantage, 3:57.

Final

118-pound class: Roy Bott, Aljo, defeated Jim Ciccone, Aljo; time advantage, 3:15.

128-pound class: Art Bott, Aljo, defeated George Houle, Columbus; time advantage, 3:47.

135-pound class: John D'Francisco, Columbus, defeated Bud Sommers, Aljo; time advantage, 1:09.

145-pound class: Howie Reynolds, Columbus, defeated Sam Leone, Aljo; fall, 2:20.

Stars Trail Red Wings in Ice Playoffs

By Associated Press
NEW YORK, Mar. 27.—The Detroit Olympics, who breezed through the 1935 International Hockey League playoffs, were well started toward the final round of this year's series today.
Two games up on the Syracuse Stars, the leading Eastern Division team, the Olympics left their home rink behind needing only one triumph on foreign ice to clinch the round.
The series between the leaders is on a three-out-of-five basis with the winner going right into the final for the title. The Olympics, after taking the opener Tuesday 4-2, came through again in brilliant style last night to win, 2 to 1.
While the Stars should make a better showing on their own rink in the remaining games, they face a tremendous handicap in having to win three in a row. The series will be resumed at Syracuse Sunday.

Master Minding—

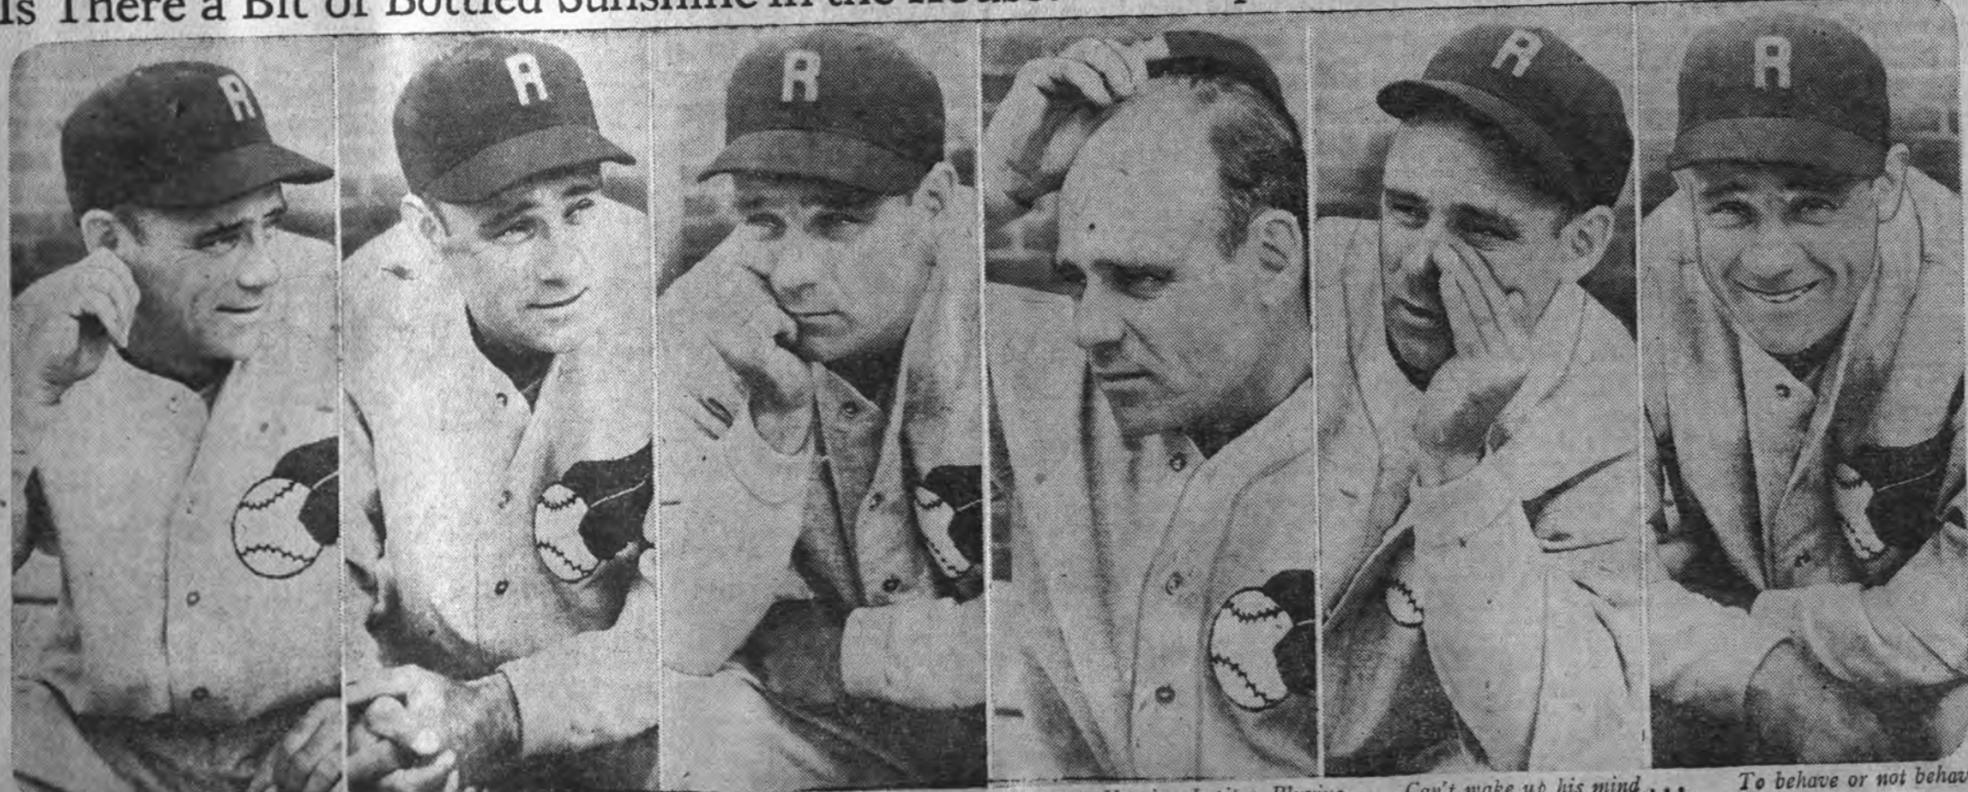

—All Aboard for Pennantville

With the prexy in the driver's seat, the Red Wings are poised for the opening of their 1936 season, which must come sooner or later. They hope to ride through the 154-game schedule with a minimum of trouble and wind up in Pennantville. Next to President Giles is Ray Blades, tour director, with Schuble, Crabtree, Mills and O'Farrell grouped around. At the left are Bosses Giles and Blades in a private huddle.

California Giant Bolsters Red Wings' Hurling Corps

LESLIE (Man Mountain) Munns, 6 foot 4 inch Californian, is Manager Ray Blades choice to pitch the second game of the season for the Red Wings at Albany tomorrow. Munns, a fast ball pitcher, has worlds of stuff and if he is able to overcome chronic fits of wildness, should be a valuable addition to the Wing staff. Large Leslie came down from the Brooklyn Dodgers but figures a good season will find him back in the majors. He's full of enthusiasm this year.

Anxious Robert Has Pulse Taken by 'Doc'

Handsome man on left with the tonsil exposure is none other than Wings' Bob Weiland, whose blood pressure has risen in proportion to postponed baseball games. Before train time here last night, Dr. Robert O'Farrell, eminent diagnostician and backstop, read the patient's pulse. From look on Weiland's face the results must be terrific. Weiland expects to face Syracuse club today.

Galloped in Ready to Play, but Pluvi us Spoiled Plans

The Syracuse Chiefs galloped into town today accompanied by rain. So instead of playing the opening game with the Rochester Red Wings they settled down for a day of rest. The team is shown as it arrived from Syracuse shortly before noon, while, below, Harry Leibold (left), Syracuse manager, and Hy Vandenberg, pitcher, cast a gloomy look at the weather.

By JACK BURGESS

A white flag isn't floating from the pole at the Red Wing Stadium. It's going to be a fight to the finish, with quarter neither asked nor given.

That's the attitude which prevailed this morning at the clubhouse when the athletes swarmed in for the final practice before the big lid-lifting tomorrow.

"I'm not blaming anybody," blurted Blades this morning. "The team just hasn't clicked. It developed weakness where strength was expected. Few things went right. Most things went wrong. Now that we're home, we'll soon discover whether drastic remedies are necessary."

Planning for the game tomorrow, President Giles took time off to remark:

"Every man on the Wing outfit is on the spot. All know that performance is what counts. I really don't know where or how the team

Age and youth will sit side by side at Red Wing Stadium tomorrow for the opening home game as guests of Warren C. Giles.

Michael L. Burke, 84, one of the two oldest living professional ball players in Rochester, will attend with Warren Collins, son of James "Rip" Collins, first baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals. Young Collins will throw out the first ball.

Mrs. Collins, mother of "Rip," will also be a guest.

can be strengthened. It looked like a champion to me in March. But if bad spots continue to show, they will be remedied."

Welland Wins

Put a pin in the pitching and the sore spot has been tabbed. Bob Welland, upstanding southpaw, won the only two games in nine played. He lost one.

Leslie Munns, tallest tosser in the loop, who was expected to handcuff the big bombers of the league, has been in five games and has lost three. In two he was thumped but escaped.

Ray Harrell, fair-haired child of the Cardinal System, was shelled aplenty in the two games he performed, losing one and going out the back door in the other with the whir of basehits buzzing in his ears.

Nubs Kleinke, grudgingly given the Wings by Branch Rickey because he was believed major timber, stepped out in four games, and based on scoring rules he lost only one, but didn't come any nearer winning than Cook is supposed to have come to the North Pole.

Johnny Michaels, lefthander, great when he's good, terrible when he's bad, submitted his samples in three games, was driven to cover in one and escaped official defeat in two others.

As to the others, Tony Kaufmann, Ward Cross, Al Fisher and Andy Doyle, they have been ineffective.

Hitting Good

Blame can't be placed on the batting of the Wings. Any team that clouts above the .300 mark doesn't belong in last place.

One really sour note is the fielding. The infield hasn't been any tighter than a sieve in many instances.

Syracuse is here tomorrow. Manager Leitbold plans to send Hy Vandenberg to the mound. Welland will be the opposing flinger, just as he was to have been at Syracuse.

There may be one change in the Wing lineup. Schuble has a chance to get back at short.

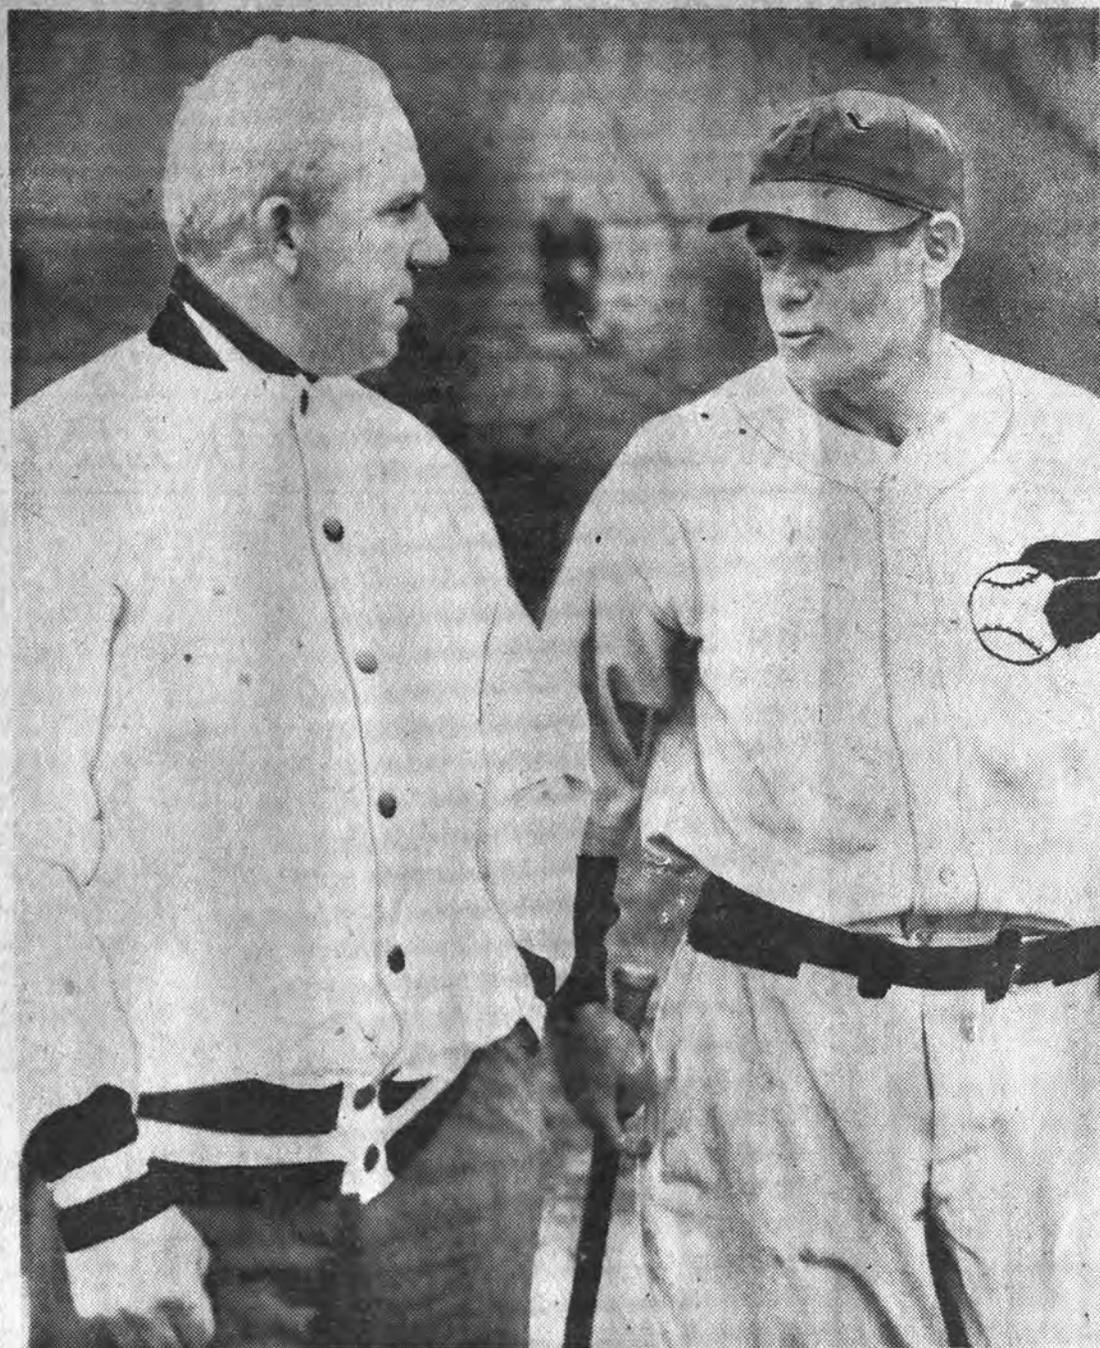

Plans for the opening game are similar to those of other years.

An eagle scout will probably toss the first ball. Frank Rutz, grand marshal, will lead a parade of the two teams to the flagpole. Then the umpire will yell "Play Ball."

County and City officials will attend and there may be some federal representatives.

The game will start at 3 o'clock. No bands will play. Slager Post Knothole.

Too Many Rain Drops

A persistent drizzle, that started in mid-morning and showed no sign of letting up by game-time caused the postponement of the opening game between the Rochester Red Wings and Syracuse Chiefs at the Norton Street Stadium today.

The Syracuse club had just set foot in town when the announcement was made.

Even had the rain stopped, the field would hardly have been in condition for good baseball. Heavy weather recently softened both the infield and outfield into a slithery underfooting.

The entire opening day program will hold over until tomorrow. Rival managers, Blades of Rochester and Leibold of Syracuse were expected to adhere to their original mound selections, Bob Weiland and Hy Vandenberg, respectively.

Prepare Hot Welcome for Chiefs

In this characteristic pose, Ray Blades (left), new Red Wing boss, will be a familiar figure on the steps of the home dugout at the Norton Street Stadium as he watches the efforts of his athletes at the plate. Buster Mills, center, and Jack Rothrock have been a pair of tough babies on International League pitching so far this year, even though the team is in the cellar. Buster is busting for a .447 average, and Rothrock's hitting mark is .395.

It's Easy, If You Know How!

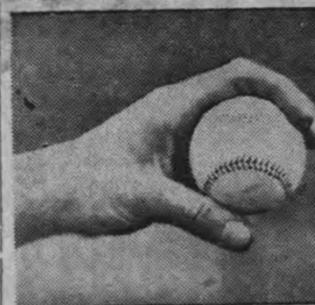

Prof. Bob Weiland reveals secrets behind that big glove which mystifies belligerent International League batsmen. Prof. Weiland will attempt to deliver illustrated lecture: "How I turn pitches into pop-ups" when he faces the Syracuse Chiefs in Red Wing opener this afternoon at Stadium.

Change of pace! Here's pitch that usually catches batter napping. Weiland demonstrates here how he slides ball off fingers, easing up on the pitch to fool batsman who may be looking for fast ball or curve. Usually thrown when batter is in a hole.

Screw ball! Weiland is one of few pitchers in International League to master this intricate pitch. The ball dips away from hitter and although difficult to throw is very effective. Watch for it today. Bob is throwing it quite frequently this season.

Fast ball! The players call it the "hard one," and when Bob cuts it loose it is plenty hard. Weiland can really put something on this one and doesn't hesitate to burn it across whenever he is in a jam. Here he shows proper grip for delivering the ball.

Curve ball! Weiland gets plenty of wrist motion into this pitch. He has a sharp-breaking curve, and usually has good control of it. His curve is considered one of the best pitches in his repertoire. He puts plenty of speed behind this pitch.
