Dreisewerd, Rookie Southpaw Hurler, Agrees to Wing Terms for ’41 Season

Wife Dons Glove to Aid ‘Lefty Clem’ In Workouts

ONE of the most likely rookies on the 1941 Red Wing mound staff, Lefty Clem Dreisewerd, yesterday officially entered the International League champions’ family as he returned his signed contract to Prexy Oliver French. The signed contract of Lynn Meyers, utility infielder, was in the same mail.

Slapshot Tony Kaufmann and French look for Dreisewerd to “arrive” this season on the basis of his record with lastplace Portsmouth in the Middle Atlantic League last season. The big fellow, 6 feet 1½ inches and 185 pounds, won 23 last season while losing but nine, and he won 13 in a row.

Dreisewerd has developed a screwball, the same pitch which is taking Mike Ryba back to the majors this year, and as he is a lefthander, Kaufmann figures it to be doubly effective. Though he uses it frequently, he walked but 49 men all season while fanning 165.

Dreisewerd has lived in a trailer during the off season of the last three years, following the warmer weather South. He is now wintering in New Orleans, working out every day. Dreisewerd insists his wife dons a catching glove to act as his battery mate, and can catch his fastest pitches.

The tall hurler will probably drive from New Orleans to West Palm Beach, where he will continue to live in his trailer during spring training.

Clem Dreisewerd, who returned signed Wing contract yesterday, won 13 in a row, 23 for season against 9 losses last year in 25 complete games for last-place Portsmouth team of Mid-Atlantic League. He boasts great record.

R. C. & E. Honors Retiring Engineer

Retiring from active service after 46 years in the employ of the Rochester Gas & Electric Corporation, Patrick Drum, 309 Flower City Pk., chief engineer of Station 3, was guest of honor at a farewell party given last night at the Turn Verein.

During his long service, Mr. Drum witnessed the evolution of steam generation from crude, laborious methods to the present high speed system. Only a few weeks ago he was given the honor of setting in motion the newest turbine, with automatic coal feeders pouring in fuel at the rate of 12 tons per hour under full load.

Commander C. H. Davis To Be Buried Today

Comm. Charles Henry Davis, who served as an inspector here during the World War, will be buried today in the Presidio, San Francisco. He was a son of the late Admiral Davis and a nephew of the late Senator John Cabot. Lodge of Masons.

He leaves a wife, Reilly Davis, formerly of Rochester, and three sons, Charles H. Davis, Lyman and Contant Davis, all of Berkeley, Calif. Commander Davis died Sunday (July 15, 1941).
Rufus K. Dryer, 91, dean of Rochester bankers, died at 6 a.m. today. In his home, High Acres, Geneva, death quietly ended the long and prominent career of a man who had for three quarters of a century been actively identified with Rochester and banking. He had been ill about 10 days.

At his death, Mr. Dryer was chairman of the board of trustees of Monroe County Savings Bank. He had been a trustee since 1883. From 1918 to 1933, he was president of the bank and made chairman of the board Jan. 8, 1935. He made weekly trips to Rochester to preside at board meetings, making the last of these Oct. 13.

Born Aug. 17, 1848, in Gorham, he was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Cyrus Dryer, who later moved to Henrietta.

Mr. Dryer's first job was with the James Cunningham Company, 1862. He later became vice-president and treasurer of the firm. His son, James C. Dryer, is now vice-president.

It was 21 years after starting his first job that Mr. Dryer became active in banking, becoming associated with the Monroe County Savings Bank as a trustee in 1883. He was for many years a member of the board of directors of the Security Trust Company of Rochester and at the time of his death was chairman of that bank's executive committee.

Kept Faith in America

His long and intensive experience and his staunch faith in the ability of the American people to weather any kind of crisis brought this typical comment from him on the 50th anniversary of his trusteeship at the Monroe County Savings Bank, July 10, 1933, in the depth of the economic depression: "Every cloud has a silver lining; every tour coming through all right, if we only wait. This world is too big to give up."

Modest to a high degree, Mr. Dryer often told interviewers "not to waste printers' ink on this."

Took Interest in Yachting

One of his many interests was yachting. He was a member of Rochester Yacht Club and at one time was active in the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto.
Rufus K. Dryer

Oct. 29, 1937

The name of Rufus K. Dryer for more than half a century was linked with business and financial leadership in Rochester. His death in Ontario County, where he was born 91 years ago, gives proper occasion for adding to the recognition that was given him during his lifetime further tribute to his life and services.

One of Mr. Dryer's most important services was his part in guiding the services of the Monroe County Savings Bank. He served on its board 54 years and for fourteen of these years he was its president. He also served as a director of the Fidelity Trust Company, long one of the city's leading banks, and of the old Merchants' Bank, whose business interests were so important in Rochester's development. An officer of the Cunningham Carriage Company, a director of Curtice Brothers Company and one of the founders of the Chamber of Commerce, he was recognized as a business leader. He also was a leader in social service effort. The Hahnemann Hospital, later the Highland, was one of his major interests.

His interest in yachting was expressed in his membership in the Rochester and Toronto Yacht clubs.

The impress of such a long and useful life is difficult to estimate, but two communities, Rochester and Geneva, will long remember his presence and be grateful for his efforts.

Rufus K. Dryer

For more than 50 years Rufus K. Dryer was active in the banking and industrial life of Rochester. His death at 91 at Geneva, where he had made his home in recent years, has given occasion for testifying to his high quality of leadership.

Mr. Dryer's first job in Rochester was with the James Cunningham Company, in 1882. He later became vice-president and treasurer of the firm.

In 1883 he was chosen a trustee of the Monroe County Savings Bank. His increasing interests in banking led to his becoming an executive. For 14 years he was president of the Monroe County Savings Bank and was chairman of its board of directors until his death, coming regularly to Rochester for bank meetings.

He was also for many years a member of the board of the Security Trust Company. He was a director of Curtice Brothers Company, one of the founders of the Chamber of Commerce, and was interested in the development of the Hahnemann Hospital, later the Highland.

Thus Rufus K. Dryer's long and useful life was a valuable factor in the progress of Rochester.

Memorial to Rufus K. Dryer

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Security Trust Company, held May 29, 1937, the following Memorial was unanimously adopted:

Rufus K. Dryer, for thirty-seven years a director of the Security Trust Company of Rochester, died on March 27, 1937.

Elected to the Executive Committee on Jan. 15, 1908, Mr. Dryer served in that office continuously until his death, and was chairman during the last thirteen years of his life.

His quiet modesty of demeanor served to emphasize the strong, forceful personality which so characterized Mr. Dryer all through his business career and made him so universally loved, admired and respected. He had to mellow and was respected. He had too many of those associated with him, and his helpful and sympathetic understanding of their problems especially endeared him to the younger members of our staff.

His standard of conduct and well balanced judgment added greatly to the fine tradition of this Trust Company, and it is with deep appreciation of the great loss that we are bound to work with him have sustained, that we spread this testimonial to Mr. Dryer on our minutes. Let them be a source of comfort to his family.

Thus Rufus K. Dryer's long and useful life was a valuable factor in the progress of Rochester.

Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Monroe County Savings Bank

His interests, especially during his later life, was centered in his family and in his bank. To live with and for his family was his greatest; to be engaged in his calling at the Bank was his joy and pleasure. During the depressed period of the bank holiday his spirit of optimism stimulated all those who were associated with him to solve the problems at hand with courage and determination. At one time his optimistic outlook found expression in the statement: "We are coming through all right, if we only wait. This world is too big to give up."

Best of All, Civic Leader Finds Young Son's Casual Tribute

Jim Duffus, aged 10, newspaper in hand, walked up to his father, Roy A. Duffus, this morning with a "Nice going, Dad," and walked out of the room again.

And that, said the casualty insurance expert just elected president of the Underwriters' Board, was the best congratulation of the Duffus boys, he explained—there's also Roy Jr., 14—are their father's chief recreation, as well as one of the big reasons he has for years been active in Rochester's civic life.

"I feel other men are giving up their time to be Scout leaders for boys, and the least I can do is to be active in work for other men's boys," Mr. Duffus explained in the clear, rapid speech for which he is famous.

Furthermore, he added, all his civic enterprises, came from being a member of the board of management of the Central YMCA to teaching a Bible class, have no direct bearing on his job.

Leads 'Double Life'

"I keep business and the rest of my life as separate as possible," he said. "I haven't written a nickel of insurance for a member of the Hubbell Bible Class at First Baptist Church, for instance. That's something that has nothing to do with business."
Joy Brought To County Democrats

By CHARLES E. WELCH

Monroe County gains one Supreme Court justice, through appointment by Governor Lehman of former Representative James P. B. Duffy, Democrat, to fill a vacancy in the Seventh Judicial District.

Confirmation of Mr. Duffy's appointment, which spelled joy to the Democrats here and gloom to the party in Ontario County, which made a strong bid for the $15,000 job, was given by the Senate today.

Recommended by Donald A. Dailey, Monroe Democratic leader, Mr. Duffy's name was sent to the Senate last night by Governor Lehman and was referred to the finance committee.

2 Others Appointed

Governor Lehman at the same time announced the appointment of Supreme Court Justice Benjamin B. Cunningham to a full five-year term as associate justice of the Appellate Division, fourth department, and of Justice Marshall N. Taylor as temporary associate justice of the Appellate Division.

Justice Cunningham, who has been serving under a temporary appointment as an associate justice since Jan. 2, succeeds the late Justice Robert F. Thompson of Canandaigua, Ontario County. The vacancy which Mr. Duffy will fill was created by Justice Cunningham's advancement.

Appointment of the former congressman, who was defeated for renomination by Representative George B. Kelly in the Democratic primary in the 38th District last September, carries with it recognition of Mr. Dailey as county leader. It foreshadows, in the opinion of party leaders here, the early appointment of Corporation Counsel Harold P. Burke as federal judge to succeed Harlan W. Rippey, who is now on the Court of Appeals.

Mr. Duffy had been proposed for the federal judgeship in opposition to Burke.

Appointment of Burke is being opposed by Kelly, because Burke supported Duffy in the primary election.

"Jim" Duffy, as his friends know him—tall, blond and well-groomed—began the practice of law after his college years, but has found little time to devote to his chosen profession in the last 25 years.

Born in Rochester, Nov. 29, 1878, a son of Walter B. Duffy, he attended Cathedral School and later went to Georgetown University. He studied law at Harvard and was admitted to the bar in 1904.

"Big Jim," as he was called in college, went in for athletics at both Georgetown and Harvard and was a member of the varsity crews of both institutions.

Upon his return to Rochester in 1904, he began the practice of law, but seven years later put aside his law books to look after his father's business interests. He became head of the Duffy-Powers Company, and remained with the department store until it discontinued business.

Nominated on Both Tickets

A Democrat, as his father had been, Jim Duffy nevertheless attracted the attention of George W. Aldridge, Republican leader of Monroe County, early in his business career. He was nominated on both the Republican and Democratic tickets for the Board of Education.

He served 22 years on the board, and was its president four years. Following repeal of prohibition, he was appointed by Governor Lehman as a member of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

He served on this board until the fall of 1934, when he was elected for a two-year term in Congress, defeating former Representative James L. Whitley, Republican.

He has just been re-appointed by the Governor to a five-year term on the ABC board, and was reluctant to resign to make the run for Congress. He did so only after Governor Lehman had approved a proposal by Judge Rippey, then County Democratic leader, that Duffy enter the race against Whitley.

Duffy's term in Congress was brief, due to his defeat after one term by Kelly, who had the aid of the newly-organized American Labor Party.

Pictured as he left St. Patrick's Cathedral after morning Mass today was James P. B. Duffy, nominated by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for Justice of the State Supreme Court. Duffy is a former congressman.
DUFFY FRIENDS
CAMPAIGN

Republican and Democratic friends rallied to Supreme Court Justice James B. Duffy's support yesterday.

Prominent at a Powers Hotel luncheon, called to discuss plans for winning his candidacy, were Harper Sibley, former president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. Herbert W. West, former Rochester superintendent of schools.

Mr. Sibley was at Harvard while Justice Duffy was studying law at that institution. Mr. West was school superintendent at the same time. Mr. Duffy was member of the city Board of Education. J. Arthur Jennings, chairman of the Duffy Nonpartisan Campaign Committee, outlined progress of the campaign.

Colleague Praises Judge Duffy

Supreme Court Justice James P. B. Duffy, Democratic candidate to succeed him on the bench, received high praise today from a former Congressional colleague, Harry Chandler of Memphis, Tenn.

As a member of the House Judiciary Committee, 74th Congress, Mr. Chandler developed "the highest confidence in the integrity, honesty and reliability of Justice Duffy," he wrote in a letter to the chairman of the Non-partisan Judicial Committee which is supporting the justice.

"No man more faithfully and meritoriously represented a Congressional district than he," said Chandler. "I am sure that he has carried the same qualities into his present work, and I sincerely hope that he will be honored by selection to fill the remainder of the term of public service for which he is so well qualified."

Further endorsement came from Senator-elect John E. Miller of Arkansas, who wrote: "As a member of the House Judiciary Committee, I had an opportunity to apprise him. I doubt very much whether I have ever met any man who possessed, in my opinion, more qualifications that a judge should have than does Jim Duffy."

Duffy on Trial

Of Family Heirs

Returning from a trip to Ireland to trace descendents of the O'Des, family of which he is a member, James P. B. Duffy yesterday began a further search through Washington records to settle an estate valued at several million dollars. He is expected to return to Rochester today or tomorrow.

The estate was left by Michael O'Dea, who died intestate in Los Angeles last year. He was a first cousin of Mr. Duffy's mother. Harriet O'Dea, named a co-administrator of the estate by the daughter of Mr. Duffy's uncle.

All parties, according to the former justice of the State Supreme Court are working toward an equitable settlement of the valuable estate. Information obtained in Ireland was sketchy, because many records were destroyed in the Dublin rebellion of 1922.

DUNN, Leader In Shoe Making Dies

William H. Dunn, formerly one of the largest manufacturers of shoes in the country, died at his home at 14 South Goodman Street today, aged 81.

Following his retirement, Mr. Dunn maintained an office in the Terminal Building. He was a member of Christ Episcopal Church.

Society Chooses U. of R. Teacher

Jack W. Dunlap, associate professor at the University of Rochester, yesterday was named president of the Psychometric Society meeting at State College, Pa., according to the United Press.

Meeting at the same time was the American Psychological Association which was told by a University of Iowa psychology professor that so-called "intellectuals" who know all the answers often are "unintelligent."

"When carried to extremes, mental stunts such as cross-word puzzles and question and answer superciliously have the effect of making a waste-basket of the human mind," said Dr. George D. Stoddard. "Sheer accumulation of information is the antithesis of intelligence."

Rochesterian Wins Degree
At Syracuse U. in Long Quest

Such a thing as a nine-year lapse in his quest for higher education couldn't curb Thomas H. Dennis' desire for "more of the same," so on Monday he will step right up in the Syracuse University sheepskin parade and receive his B.A. degree.

Dennis, nearing his 29th birthday, a claims investigator for the city when Federal Judge Harold F. Burke was corporation counsel. His wife, Mrs. Vera Dennis, now is Judge Burke's secretary. The couple's home is at 29 Clio St., Rochester.

Dennis graduated from Aquinas Institute in 1929. For a few years he worked at various jobs, played some semi-pro football and investigated claims against the city. Then the Democratic regime went out and so did Dennis.

That political upheaval opened the door for Dennis to resume his education quest. He entered Canisius College in Buffalo in September, 1935. After two years there he transferred to the College of Fine Arts, Syracuse University. By dint of hard study and extension courses he became eligible for his degree in less than three years.

So this weekend will find Mr. and Mrs. Dennis enjoying the pre-commencement festivities on Piety Hill. And Monday Mrs. Dennis will see her husband receive his degree.

The summer will be but an interlude on his educational trail as he has been accepted for entrance at Hahnemann Memorial College, Philadelphia, where in September he will begin a course to gain an M.D. degree.

Thomas H. Dennis of 29 Clio St., who went back to school after a nine year lapse, is shown with Mrs. Dennis, who will see him get B. A degree from Syracuse University.

Painters Halt Work to Attend Leader Rites

All AFL painters' brushes lay idle today as union members attended funeral services for Edward Decker, Painters Local 150 business agent and president of the Allied Building Trades Council.

Painters under contract with employers throughout the city served notice yesterday that they would not work today in deference to their dead leader. Active bearers were these business agents: Fred Kent, Decker's successor in the painters local; Louis Gorovese, laborers; Arthur W. White, carpenters; James Burke, bricklayers; John Downes, electricians, and Harry Reza, ironworkers.

Boy Science Test Winner To Leave Tonight for Fair

Week's Stay as Guest Awaits Builder of Radio Set

Winner of the grand award offered by the American Institute of the City of New York at this spring's Science Center Fair at Monroe High School, 16-year-old George Dundon, will leave Rochester tonight for New York City and the World's Fair, where he will be guest of the Institute next week.

Dundon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myrl Dundon, 283 Sagamore Dr., captured the prize by exhibiting the amateur radio telegraph set he built and operates at his home under the call letters WSTOH. Now completing his junior year at Charlotte High School, Dundon exhibited his scientific handiwork at the fair in competition with exhibits in all fields of science entered by pupils of high schools from five counties. The award was based on excellence of construction and general completeness of the exhibit.

There is nothing new or novel in his radio set, with which he has communicated with amateurs in 30 states. Dundon modestly confessed last night, but on his trip to New York he will be required to exhibit it and explain it to visitors three hours daily at the Westinghouse Building. The rest of the time in New York will be largely his own, and his Institute host will furnish a guide for sightseeing.

Dundon became interested in amateur radio about three years ago, largely through listening to amateurs on the short wave bands. Studying the subject, he began building his own apparatus and a year ago qualified for his amateur station license. His station transmits 100 watts input and thus far he has confined himself to the telegraph end of the hobby, though plans eventually to work into the phone field.

Special U.S. Aide Resigns Post for Private Practice

John F. Dailey Jr., onetime Rochesterian, yesterday resigned as special assistant U.S. attorney general in New York City.

Nephew of Donald A. Dailey, Monroe County Democratic leader, and Vincent Dailey, state Democratic campaign manager, and a brother of Philip Dailey, secretary at Democratic headquarters, the attorney said he was resuming the private practice of law after four years in cracking down on false insurance claimants.

Before leaving office, Dailey said, according to the Associated Press, he turned over to the Medical Society and Bar Association names of 48 lawyers and physicians for disciplinary action. In addition, 44 persons have been convicted as members of a ring of doctors, lawyers, chasers and claimants who, he said, defrauded insurance companies out of millions of dollars through false claims for disability benefits.

He Saw the World

Things began happening for him soon after he enlisted Sept. 6, 1938. He was assigned to the light cruiser, U. S. S. Brooklyn, and for the next two and a half years saw a good deal of the world. His last cruise took him to Iceland in the convoy for the U. S. with invasion forces sent there last month.

In fact, he traveled so much that he's glad he's going to be "on the beach" awhile. Recently transferred to the Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C., he is home on 30 days' leave, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Di Gennaro of 572 Columbus Ave.

He reports that the Icelanders appeared glad to see the Americans; that Iceland is a bleak, treeless place, shrouded in fog most of the time and so windy that the natives have to anchor their roofs with huge boulders. Its main port, Reykjavik, is unpromising. It was closed by the British and the Icelanders welcomed the American occupation because it meant trade with the country would be resumed. The British soldiers there are glad they will be leaving, they told Gennaro; the natives didn't seem to like them.

Icelanders are big, blond, Nordic folk, and many of their girls are very pretty, he observed. Of the sights he saw there, he was particularly struck with the windowless "pookey huts" built for the British soldiers. They are made of corrugated iron, cylindrical shaped with wind resistance, and resemble oil drums. In the winter, snow is packed around them for insulation.

On a 9,000-mile goodwill cruise to New Zealand, he had the time of his life. The New Zealanders turned the country over to the American service men.

"They wouldn't let us pay for a thing," recites this bronzed youth, who was 18 when he enlisted, is now 21. "We just walked into theaters. In restaurants, someone always insisted on paying our checks. We were taken on a 375-mile train ride into the interior, where we saw the famous Rainbow Mountain, which is composed of bands of bright-colored rock; the hot sulphur springs where the native tribes cook their meat; spent only $2.50 all the while we were in New Zealand, and that was for souvenirs."

A CLASSROOM CAPITALIST

Wherein Young (in Fact Quite Young) Don Dettman
Of Rochester Proves by Personal Experience That Private Enterprise Still Can Pay Off in Profits

By William J. Kirby

Don Dettman, entrepreneur.
The "entrepreneur," or enterprise, is the backbone of the Capitalist System, say the economists.

He risks his capital on the chance of gain; he fails or he succeeds and sometimes builds up giant industries like the Kodak industry, providing wealth for the world and employment for thousands. He is the sparkle in the ginger ale of the BUSI-NESS SYSTEM. An artist could draw the well-known picture of Uncle Sam, label it The Enter-rpreneur, and be right.

So, dear reader, look at Don Dettman, a senior in Jefferson High School, and see Uncle Sam.

It is true that he had been sent to the point of studying reports on steel production, car loadings, back debts, electrical output, the price of commodities, etc., etc.

A "when you went to bed nights," we asked in interviewing our entrepreneur, "did you lie awake pondering the problem of inventories, or was your capital in the trends of trade?"

He looked rather contempla-tively at us and answered:

"I figured that if I could make and sell Christmas wreaths and I did it—at a profit."

The facts:
Don, a senior in Jefferson High School, living at 1363 Lake Ave, decided a year ago, when he learned the knack of making wreaths from his older brother's florist, that he would swing the job himself in the Christmas season last year. He began to lay his plans last summer. There was foresight, an admirable business quality.

He went on his bicycle to vari-yous places to gather cones, an indispensable article in decoration of wreaths. Last August, it was necessary for him to go to Highland Hospital for diabetic treatment, which has been diabetic for six or seven years. But the faithful use of insulin daily he keeps well and is growing fast.

Having made a few wreaths in the hospital, he obtained leave to visit nearby Highland Park, where his gathered cones, each one of them, brought him memental grounds and retrieved them when he went home.

As the Christmas season loomed, problems of capitalization and help had to be solved.

Don had a little money of his own, saved from his weekly earnings as a carrier for The Democrat and Chronicle, but hardly enough. There were frames and easels to buy, and ribbons, hem-lace, white pine, cedar, yew, wire and ruscus. So he turned to his brother, Howard, for non-collateral loans and so solved the problem of capitalization.

The "plant" problem was easily solved; it could be set up in the living room and in the daily for 40 degrees.

When it came to employees, Don was undecided whether to hire or "help."

In our interview with him,
Don admitted that this point bothered him. He wanted no one to work with him or for him older than himself; he wanted to give his neighborhood chums a break. He knew that he would decide to pay the "manufacturing load," that he would have to have help at the bench and a sales force outside and that the sales force would have to work in relays; for it would be too cold for one boy to stay out too long.

He argued the partner problem,
he admits, If he just employed
"help" what would he pay them and would they be good workers? If he went into partnership, what would be the divvy? He was the entrepreneur; it was his idea; the overhead was his; he had painted the sales signs, contacted someone in the country for his greens, and was putting up the capital.

In the end he compromised on making Frank Contestable, of White Street, a chum, as a partner, the partner to have 33 1/3 per cent of the net, and decided to hire other boys, the partners to set a figure on what the workers were worth.

Wreaths were first displayed
Dec. 1. Don's business ledger shows no sale.

Was he discouraged?
No on o oo l

He knew it was necessary to display his goods early, and, besides, some persons would be "looking around" for wreaths and bouquets for not only home decorations, but also for the Christmas rush.

As he was filling the roles of manufacturer and retailer, there was in addition to work at the Christmas rush, when time simply didn't count. This meant that actual work at the bench had to be suspended, for there were books to be kept, and one had to keep up the working temperature around 40 degrees.

The result was that Santa Claws was able to carry presents to parents in several homes in that neighborhood. Put into cold tables, it foots up!

Two hundred and fifty wreaths sold. Gross earnings, $149. Cost of materials, $47.50. Net earnings, $101.50. Wages, one boy, 84;
one boy, $5; one boy, $15. Frank Contestable, the more-or-less partner, $65. Net profit to the entrepreneur, $51. Hours worked by the entrepreneur, approximately 170; income per hour, approximately 50 cents.

"I'm planning to go into it in a big way next year," Don confided to us. Perhaps, being Don's uncle, we are prejudiced. But we feel sure that the Capitalist System is safe so long as Don's spirit lives.

Death Takes Ex-Head of Baking Firm

William C. Deininger, 80, Followed Father in Business

William C. Deininger, retired head of the huge General Baking Company which grew from a firm founded by his father in this city, died last night (Sept. 5, 1941) at his home, 963 East Ave. He was 80 years old.

Prominent as a businessman, club member and philanthropist, Mr. Deininger was a native of Rochester and had lived here all his life. He headed the baking firm from 1918 to 1925; and for nine years of retirement he returned to active management as chairman of the board of the company, retiring in 1940, but retaining his status as a director.

Soon after his retirement he plunged into a protracted legal battle with the William B. Ward Baking Interests Co. in the federal courts. Several charges of antitrust violations were brought against the company, and Deininger was named as a defendant.

Deininger was a leader of national and city baking industry groups in the fight, which included charges that the company had engaged in antitrust violations and was subject to federal courts before settlement.

In 1934, after a stockholders' fight, he again won control of the company and held it until his retirement last year.

Two brothers, the late Fred and Henry, were associated with him in the baking business. They inherited the old Deininger firm of Rochester by their father and by mergers built it up into the general baking firm as the result of negotiations for a merger.

Young Rochesterian Receives 2nd Music Fellowship Award

David Diamond, brilliant 25-year-old modern composer, a product of the Eastman School of Music, has been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship in music for the second time within three years, it was announced yesterday in New York City.

The award, providing $2,500 for creative work, adds to a long line of scholarships and honors that have fallen to the young musician, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oskar Diamond, 240 Edgerton St.

Because of Diamond's presence in New York, where he is studying and composing, it was not certain last night to what use he would devote the fellowship.

Music by Diamond, whom critics consider quite modern in technique, has been played by the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, the Greenwich Symphony Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic Chamber Symphony, the Philadelphia Chamber Symphony and others.

Diamond first won nationwide attention when he was selected as the winner of the Elfriede Whiteman $2,500 scholarship given by Paul Whiteman. Later he was one of five winners in a contest among American composers sponsored by the Federal Music Project of New York City.

In April, 1938, he was first awarded a coveted Guggenheim fellowship, for a year's study in music, and another for music composition. He studied under Osias Bamberger, David Diamond's music teacher at the Eastman School under Dr. Howard Hanson, director; at the Cleveland Institute, the New Music School and the Delacorte Institute in New York.

He also studied in the American Conservatory in Fontainebleau, France.

Mr. Deininger died Saturday. With two brothers, he inherited a local baking firm from his father, and by a series of mergers built it up into the General Baking Company, of which he was head until he retired in 1925. Nine years later he returned as chairman of the board of directors, retiring again in 1930, but continuing as a director.

DUFFY NAMED TO USO POST AT CAPITAL

Ex-Jurist Chosen To Function in Liaison Role

Appointment of former Representative James F. B. Duffy as Washington representative of the United Service Organizations was announced here yesterday by Harry Sibley, national USO president.

Duffy, after advising Sibley he would accept the post, a full-time salaried position, for the balance of the year, is prepared to leave for the capital to take up his duties.

Sibley, "very happy that Mr. Duffy's name has been selected because he knows Washington well and because he commands great respect in whatever he does," said the Rochester man's job will be in the nature of liaison work between the USO and other branches of the government.

"The USO," its president said, "naturally must be in very close touch with the Army and Navy, particularly with the morale officers. One of Mr. Duffy's duties will be to keep in constant touch with those officers."

Furthermore, Duffy pointed out, "in order to get the USO's clubs built—they're now in the making—the Federal Security Administration has to consider the problems of community welfare around the camps. Whenever a new situation is created by establishment of a camp in a community, the FSA surveys the program and tries to work out the proper community relationships, including educational, recreational and social.

In addition, the Public Works Administration will handle construction of the camps, so Duffy will have to keep in constant contact with the FSA and PWA, as well as with the officers of the armed forces. Sibley said.

A prominent Catholic layman, Duffy is a former Supreme Court Justice, was former commissioner of the State Liquor Law, former school commissioner here, and was representative from the 33rd District.

The former Monroe County supervisor, state senator and present 18th Ward Democratic leader assumed a new post as assistant industrial commissioner and continued bearing cases as referee in compensation matters.

Doyle's promotion from referee to the head of this division was announced last night by State Industrial Commissioner F. Miller. Myer Braiman, local attorney and former assemblyman named to the refereeship, will study compensation court proceedings in New York City until the first of the month. Meanwhile, Doyle will continue with the current calendar in this district.

Doyle succeeds Clement V. Connoie, now deputy industrial commissioner. Braiman's selection was made from a field of aspirants including four men inducted by the AFL Central Trades and Labor Council. The pay for Doyle's new job ranges from $4,400 to $5,200 and the refereeship pay range is $5,000 to $5,200. E. J. Doyle, AIDE DENY FAKE ENTRIES ON BOOKS Laid to Oil Dealers Allegedly phony commissions charged in the bookkeeping operations of the Doyle Gasoline & Oil Company yesterday landed Edward J. Doyle, president of William E. Leonard, auditor, in federal custody on charges of income tax evasion and conspiracy to defraud the government.

Doyle, whose firm was sold some time ago to a major national gasoline company, and Leonard pleaded innocent before Federal Judge Harold P. Burke to the charges contained in three sealed indictments handed down by last May's Federal Grand Jury. Doyle was released on $2,500 bail and Leonard in $1,500. Both are charged with bookkeeping operations of the company, Doyle and Leonard between 1931 and 1937. In April, Doyle and Leonard are charged with having knowingly and deliberately attempting to evade $4,074.44 in taxes and in the same year Doyle himself is charged at attempting to evade payment of $6,340.84.

The allegedly phony commissions were the basis for the conspiracy charge. On the books of the company at various times, the government charges, commissions totaling $156,250.22 are shown as having been paid to Leonard, William J. Burns, superintendent, and George E. Meyer, manager of the Doyle Stations. In fact, the government contends, $136,161.85 of that amount went to Doyle himself for his own personal use and benefit, and he failed to report it in his income tax returns over the period the money is alleged to have been received, between 1931 and 1937.

Taxes were paid on the "commissions" however, for the government charges that Leonard, Burns and Meyer signed and filed.

Driver Receives $25 Fine In Highway Hit-Run Death

Admitting that he got out of his car, viewed the body of his fatally injured victim and scene, Harlow V. Root, 46, of Rochester, was arrested by deputy sheriffs yesterday afternoon for leaving the Scottsville Road scene of the fatal accident Tuesday night.

Taken before Peace Justice Lowell Lane of Chili last night, Root pleaded guilty to the charge. Justice Lane fined him $25.

Victim of the accident, Christopher Herman, 32, lay alongside the road for about two hours before being discovered by another motorist and died on the way to a hospital. His home was in Scottsville Road, Chili.

Deputies got their first break in the hit-run death case when Root appeared at the Monroe County Jail yesterday morning and told deputies that he thought his car had struck something Tuesday evening in Scottsville Road about the time Herman was struck. He said he stopped his car, walked back on the road, but could see nothing and assumed he might have struck a dog which had then run off.

He said that Wednesday morning he noticed a large dent in a fender of his car and what appeared to be blood. When he read about Herman's death, he said he decided to report. He did not know he had struck a man when he felt the bump, he said.

Dissatisfied with Root's story deputies and Assistant District Attorney Harry Rosenthal continued to question him yesterday afternoon until he finally admitted having left his car, viewed the victim and then fled in panic.

With the hit-run charge disposed of by the Chili peace justice last night with a $25 fine, Root now stands to lose his operator's license, revocation being required by state law after conviction for leaving the scene of an accident.
