New York: George Eastman Claims Magnate as Uncle

A namesake of George Eastman, $115 a month watchman at the Bronx County Jail, declaring himself a relative of the Kodak magnate, today was preparing to claim a share in the big fortune.

The New York man, who says he thinks Mr. Eastman was his uncle, lived with his wife and two daughters at 106 17th Street.

New York dispute estate that the watchman believed his father, Charles Eastman, 30, brother of Rochester's noted editor and that both of them were born in Waterville.

Although his story conflicts with the Kodak manufacturer's family history, which shows he was an only son, the New York man maintains that his father ran away to the Black Hills the same year, when he was 12, and later came east to Connecticut. He further claims he is a descendant of Roger.

Smith Gift Aided Cornell

Another "Mr. Smith" gift, made anonymously, was credited to George Eastman today. Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell University, made public for the first time that in 1927 Mr. Eastman presented a gift of $100,000 to the university, according to its sea dispatches. It was made anonymously through Walter Todd of Rochester.

Some $15,000,000 in Eastman products is marketed annually by the Kodak firm.

Expressions of profound regret over the death of George Eastman are contained in a resolution adopted today by the executive committee of the Rochester Exposition Association.

The resolution reads: "In the death of Mr. George Eastman mankind has lost a great benefactor."

The world is the poorer for his loss. More especially are the loyal citizens of Rochester, his native city, bereaved, for it was the people of Rochester who were the largest benefactors of his counsel, advice, friendship, and of his generous gifts. Mr. Eastman gave $10,000,000 to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, under whose name is to be aroded the new "George Eastman".

Rochesterians Voice Loss

In Death of Mr. Eastman

Further expression of the loss felt by Rochesterians in the death of George Eastman and of appreciation of his character and office were made yesterday.

J. BURKHART, director of the Rochester Dental Dispensary, was eulogized by Dr. William E. Smith, chief of dental services in the state, who praised his "great and careful mind and his kindness to all.

He was a good man, a good friend, and he will be missed by all who knew him."

The Rochester Dental Dispensary, founded in 1865, was one of the first in the country to provide dental care to the poor. Mr. Eastman was a major benefactor of the dispensary, and his generosity allowed it to expand its services.

Sorrow Expressed by Moose At Death of George Eastman; Was Member of Fraternity

George Eastman was a member of but one fraternal organization, the Loyal Order of Moose, as far as can be learned from friends and associates of the late philanthropist.

He belonged to the General Assembly Lodge of the order, with headquarters at Mooseheart, Ill., and joined several years ago and is reported to have paid voluntarily 30 times as much dues as any other member.

He made several large contributions to Moosehood, the Moose lodge having paid one of $35,000 to the building fund for the House of God there.

In a telegram today to the Rochester Lodge of Moose, Senator James B. Selden, chairman of the general council, expressed his sorrow at Mr. Eastman's death. He instructed J. M. Gilbert, deputy supreme director for Western New York, and William M. Smith, supreme councilor, to represent the Supreme Lodge of Moose in the funeral service.

Mr. Eastman had stated that he considered it an honor to belong to the Moose and that they could depend on him at any time the organization might need his assistance.

Rochester Lodge last night stood a moment in silence at its meeting in respect for a departed member. A resolution of sympathy was passed, and a delegation from the lodge also will attend the funeral.
As a personal friend of Mr. Eastman over a long period of years, I have learned to know him as a man whose passing is a great loss to humanity throughout the world. He was a man whose work, though mainly technical in nature, had a profound influence on his contemporaries and far beyond. His standing is pre-eminent, ranks equally as high with other great men, both past and present, and his philanthropic work has done much to benefit humanity throughout the ages.

CARL W. ACKERMAN, Dean of the School of Music at Indiana University, and author of "George Eastman," a biography: George Eastman had lived a tragic death. His fortune was not to bring him more than brief moments of happiness. His philosophy was expressed in his famous saying, "philanthropy and responsibilities" and through all his active years, he was busy living these in full.

WILLIAM JAY SCHIEFFELIN, chairman of the Citizens' Union: I learn with great regret of the passing of Mr. Eastman. I wish to pay a tribute to his generous help in the cause of greater education and his philanthropic work for Tuskegee endowments. These will serve as a permanent memorial to a far sighted and public spirited man.

LOUIS WILEY, Business Manager of the New York Times: Mr. Eastman was a man of great capacity and vision, as he showed in his amazingly successful business career and as a benefactor. His passing has left a void of forty-five years and I amBah a

Adopt Resolution on Passing of 'Great Civic Leader' at Special Session—Regent of County Resides Expressed

Monroe County Supervisors, meeting in special session yesterday, adopted a resolution, voicing regret of the "passing of this great civic leader.

The regret in full reads: "Death has taken George Eastman, the leading citizen of Monroe County, whose life began in poverty and hard work, and whose achievements, triumphed over discouragements which would have baffled and defeated a lesser spirit. All those who knew, have and working youth for many generations to come."

The regret goes on to say that by his efforts a great industry has been nurtured and brought to splendid fruition in our community. His support of the thousands of homes and the decent education of the children of these homes and brought joy to millions of people, in that they have been able to preserve in photographs the features of their loved ones and scenes precious to their minds, the possession of which perpetuated memories has brought untold solace and mental and spiritual refreshment to countess millions; and "Whereas, our own spirits can take from the great spirit of this man who has passed on, by the short life of his vision, the lives and work champers of all time, one of the great builders of his country and his achievements spread the name of America far and wide, and was a Rochester possession whose fame is larger with the passing of years."

Symbolized Ideas

George Eastman symbolized the man. He was the greatest financial power the city, the state, and the country has ever known. But that many of his fellow citizens did not know him until today may be a cause for regret. Yet many who prided from his benefactions were unaware of the great benefactors in whose capacity was given life by his generosity. He was a master of life embraced in the word usefulness. He had few, if any, hobbies, he was content to draw the curtain and live in a world of one's own. To Rochester, the name of George Eastman will always stand for an elevation of public life. He will be remembered as a man of tender feelings, who was. His monuments are before the city and world, and in the form of a memory that man cannot live by bread alone; he knew the value of life, and for the work which he did voluntarily, he is remembered in the form of a memory.

CITE HIS GREAT COMMUNITY GIFTS

Praise Public Spirit, His Industry and His Interest in Youth

The regret of the community in the passing of George Eastman was expressed by official action of the City Council, School Board and Supervisors in special meetings yesterday. The call of Mayor Charles S. Owen, a special meeting of the City Council was conducted at which the Supervisors, in company with the special committee to draft a memorial to Mr. Eastman. This motion was made by Councilman A. E. Kiser and was seconded by Councilman W. S. Owen. It was adopted by an unanimous vote.

School Board Memorial

The interest of Mr. George Eastman in the children of Rochester and the contributions which he made in the form of personal giving and through the corporation, the Board of Education, have long been subjects of appreciation and gratitude on the part of the entire board. The teachers of the city, says a set of resolutions passed yesterday by the Board upon recommendation of Mr. Eastman. Continuing, these resolutions recite the activities in which he engaged for the benefit of the children.

It is now nearly 20 years ago that Mr. Eastman became interested in the educational activities of the children. The result of his generosity has been to increase the openings of 6,000 different children have been treated at the dispensary, involving the dispensing of medicines for the dispensary. Not only this, but 1,000 patients have been given by the dispensary in one year. In addition to this service, the dispensary has been the center of the city's operations for the children of Rochester.

Gift of Musical Instruments

In the beginning, Mr. Eastman showed the free use of musical instruments available for the school children of the community. He helped the establishment of the Music Institute in the city. He also was instrumental in the establishment of the Music Institute in the city. He also was instrumental in the establishment of the Music Institute of Rochester, and it is through his influence on behalf of what he believed to be the most effective way of proclaiming the beauty of George Eastman's music, the mystery in life itself, there is the power of genius. He brought this music to the people, and his art. He was a master of life and health in the forest, whose death transformed the world into a world of health. Rochester is fortunate in that it was the soil in which the art of his genius could flourish, and its fruits were so lavishly distributed.

Sorrow is in the hearts of his fellow citizens, who should be deeply rooted, permanent, and true. But Mr. Eastman was not the only one who can be described as the predominant note at his passing. He viewed life and death with unfailing endurance. He believed in the right of the individual to his own thoughts and was not afraid to express his own. To him, death was not the end of life, but the beginning of a new task. He left us with a legacy of memories, and his influence on those who knew him will be remembered with gratitude and sorrow.

Loved Home City

Rochester today would be a much different city if George Eastman had not lived here all that he gave and left to the city and the state. Through his influence, he was able to do for the city, the state, and the country. He had a great influence on behalf of what he believed to be the most effective way of proclaiming the beauty of his music, the mystery of life itself, there is the power of genius. Mr. Eastman brought this music to the people, and his art. He was a master of life and health in the forest, whose death transformed the world into a world of health. Hundreds of Friends and Employees File Past Rose-Blanketed Bier of George Eastman in Final Tribute—Admission to Home by Card Only

Rochester today accorded homage to her most renowned son and greatest benefactor.

Hundreds of sorrowful friends and employees filed past the rose-banked bier of George Eastman this afternoon at his home at 900 East Avenue, where the body lay in state from 2:30 to 6 o'clock.

Admission to the Eastman residence was by invitation only. The cards were not issued publicly, although several hundred were granted to 360 Kodak employees who had previously been acquainted with the founder in the days when every worker knew Mr. Eastman personally.

The body also lies in state tonight from 8 to 10 o'clock and from 9:30 to 12:30 o'clock. Public funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, where Mr. Eastman attended.

The Rev. George Edward Norton, S. T. D., rector of St. Paul's, and an intimate friend of Mr. Eastman's, will deliver the eulogy. It was Dr. Norton who told the Times-Union that the man died in the belief that "at least there is peace in the future when he is to have his reward." He also said that the dead man had a love of mankind which he could not express.

Exposition Group Acts

Regret over death of Mr. Eastman: The following resolution adopted yesterday by the executive committee of the Rochester Exposition Association:

In the death of Mr. George Eastman, Rochester has lost its most notable benefactor.

The world mourns his loss. More especially are his fellow-citizens of Rochester, his thousands of admirers throughout the United States, and the beneficiaries of his charitable gifts throughout the world, the largest of whom is the University of Rochester, the largest of whom is the University of Rochester.

Eastman was an ardent admirer and an earnest supporter of Rochester Exposition Association. His generosity, his friendship, his patronage, and his capacity to do good, and his works of benevolence, have been the cause and have given liberty of his time and means, and the heart of the world. He was ever mindful of the welfare of Rochester, and when he could see the city, he would be there, and when he could not see it, he would be there in spirit.

Resolved: That we extend to his memory the highest compliments, and that our sympathy be conveyed to his family and friends, and to his friends and admirers throughout the world.

Resolved: That a copy of this resolution be sent to the family, and that a copy be spread upon the permanent records of this Association.

Cousin Tells of Eastman's Boyhood Life

Devoted Himself to Care of Mother, Says Elmiran—Minister Joins in Tribute

Reminiscences of George Eastman's boyhood were recalled today by his cousin, Edward R. Billings of Church Street, Elmira.

"George Eastman devoted himself to the care of his mother," he said. "He was very affectionate to his family. He was a quiet youth. While I was visiting him he would go to the drug store to buy me medicine. His mother had given him a little closet under the stairs, and while I was there I took one of the old photographs she had ever done."

Mr. Billings remembers going to Corning with Mr. Eastman to purchase equipment for use in his experiments. His mother had given him a little closet under the stairs, and while he was there, he took one of the old photographs she had ever done.

Work for University Will Go On, Resolution Asserts

The executive committee of the Board of Trustees of the University of Rochester yesterday adopted the following resolution on the death of George Eastman:

"George Eastman began his active interest in the University of Rochester 30 years ago in what seemed, at that time, a large way. As the years have passed, his interest grew and also his vision of the possible service that the University can render. He has been, for many years ago, in the field of music education, and enlargement of the University's professional service in that field to include wide community organizations and to open the way for the growth of music to realize such an enlarged conception as he has in mind. It is a matter of great regret that the University is not in a position to meet the opportunities that have presented themselves."

"For these reasons, the University will continue its work in the field of music education, and the Trustee who has been in mind. It is a matter of great regret that the University is not in a position to meet the opportunities that have presented themselves."

"The University, therefore, will continue its work in the field of music education, and the Trustee who has been in mind. It is a matter of great regret that the University is not in a position to meet the opportunities that have presented themselves."

"The University, therefore, will continue its work in the field of music education, and the Trustee who has been in mind. It is a matter of great regret that the University is not in a position to meet the opportunities that have presented themselves.
A Long Farewell

The last words will be said, the last honors paid, to the memory of George Eastman today. By the extent of the shock which his death has caused may be measured the power of his life. Even in his home city, so modest was the man and so unostentatious his mode of life, his full fame and weight were only partly grasped. Now his fellow citizens are apprised, by the messages from every land, by the stir in the marts of the world, by the lavish tributes from here and low, just what place it was that George Eastman filled in the life of his time.

The final rites for Mr. Eastman must be in keeping with the simplicity of his personal life. Fulsome tributes or excessive sentimentality would be out of harmony with his creed. Exemplary display would be abhorrent to his sense of taste. Death to him was an inevitable climax; he viewed it with philosophic acceptance. He approached it "in his usual way," a good philosophic way, and drew the drapery of life around him and lies down in pleasant dreams.

The country, and in particular Rochester, finds it difficult to realize that the physical presence of Mr. Eastman will never again be seen on earth. He and his benefactions symbolize life, not death. Some little time will be required to make the readjustment of thought. Probably Mr. Eastman had thought more about his departure than had his fellow citizens; the orderly arrangements, the detailed care with which he was provided for the continuance of his work and the furtherance of his ideals were characteristic of the man. To him, a decision once made, was a living force, not to be stopped nor turned aside.

Sorrow will be the prevailing mood as the city says its last farewell to Mr. Eastman today. Yet one may feel that sorrow is not the note that he himself would have wished to hear; it would have been his note of satisfaction that he was able to leave so much to help the world onward to better and easier life.
Eastman's Welcoming of 7th Veterans at N. in 1919 Recalled

By A. J. Sigel

March 1, 1932

Veterans of the 7th Division who came back to the United States in the early days of 1919 and some few Rochester newspapermen have an unusual memory of George Eastman.

Col. Henry W. Morse headed a citizens committee which journeyed from Rochester to welcome home the Rochester boys, survivors of the units which had gone from here in the early days of 1917.

Among those committee members were George Eastman and Canon A. A. Notebaert. The morning they arrived in New York City, dock strike developed and the boats the committee had engaged did not return. They were scurrying about and two boats manned by their owners were engaged.

That trip will linger long in the memory of the survivors of that day, of whom the writer is one. The committee included the Leviathan and the Mauretania. The day was foggy. It was lunch as an unofficial escort to the docks. Everyone ate roast beef off crockery plates.

Fellow Traveler Retells Tale of Eastman Escape From Death in Flames

George Eastman’s narrow escape from death in a flaming Egyptian train was recalled in a message to The Times-Union today from Albertus Perry of Erie, Ohio, a fellow passenger.

“The tragic death of George Eastman,” he writes, “brings to my mind a strange experience he and I had together in Egypt just four years ago Monday.

“With about 80 other Americans we were returning from Luxor to Cairo on the night train after having visited the tomb of King Tutankhamen in the Valley of the Kings.

“This train ride is a night’s run of about 440 miles over the Egyptian Government Railroad. We left Luxor at 4 p.m. and were due in Cairo at 8 a.m. We arrived at noon.

Passengers Fled

It was a solid Pullman train composed of five sleepers, diners and baggage cars. I was in the end compartment of the head sleeper. Mr. Eastman was in the next car.

“About 4 a.m. I was suddenly aroused by the smell of smoke. Within five minutes the first two cars were completely destroyed.

“What I did in those five minutes I have no desire to write at this time, but it was not long before the passengers of the two sleepers were crowded into the dining car. We were a pitiful sight. None of us was dressed any too attractively, including Mr. Eastman, but we were glad no lives were lost.

“Mr. Eastman had lost a great deal and seemed quite disturbed. We got him a cup of coffee. In fact many were in need of such a stimulant. We were able to serve all, although my touring company had to pay the bill and we were charged full price for every bit of service rendered.

“The railroad officials in Egypt had not yet learned how to conduct themselves in such an emergency.

Honor Rewarded

“However, the railroad company did recognize the heroic efforts of my porter and rewarded him. I was in Egypt again the following year. He recognized me in a dining car and told me of his more responsible position on the railroad.

“As for Mr. Eastman, since that exciting morning we have often exchanged greetings. But since coming out to Erie last fall from Baltimore, where I had been living for many years, we have neglected to keep in touch with each other.

“I regret his leaving us. I feel I have lost another friend.”

Bishop O’Hern Expresses His Sympathy to Relatives

The following letter was sent to Mr. and Mrs. George B. Dryden yesterday by the Rt. Rev. John Francis O’Hern, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Rochester.

March 18, 1932

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Dryden
800 East Ave., Rochester, N. Y.

My dear Mr. and Mrs. Dryden:

Being confined to the house for the past two weeks, I regret not being able to express by personal call my sincere condolence on the passing of Mr. Eastman, Rochester’s First Citizen.

It has been my privilege to have known and to have been associated with him and the Kodak executives for more than a quarter of a century by reason of the proximity of the Cathedral and the Kodak offices in the State Street district, two blocks of which territory we shared in business.

Then coming to East Avenue three years ago, I found Mr. Eastman a most welcome and hospitable neighbor, whose confidence I appreciate and prize. Hence it is that his demise, which has brought sorrow to the hearts of many of the greatest leaders in the world, means a real loss for one who has held him in the highest esteem, whose memory will continue far beyond the confines of Rochester, whose citizens claim him for their own, and who will miss his guiding spirit, his civic pride, his

Devotion to Mother Recalled

Tribute of Committee

George Eastman began his active interest in the University of Rochester 20 years ago in what seemed, at that time, a large way. As the years have passed his interest grew and also his vision of the possible service the University can render. Thirteen years ago he led us into the field of music education, and enlarged the University’s proper services in that field to include wide community education in the appreciation of music.

To realize such an enlarged conception he furnished buildings and endowment of unprecedented scope.

Eleven years ago, in co-operation with the General Education Board, he made possible a further expansion of our activities by giving very large gifts for medical and dental education of the highest order.

Eight years ago, having caught the vision of the University’s need for funds, he contributed one-fourth of the 10 million dollars raised by our community and other friends to create and endow our new River Campus and to dedicate our beautiful Old Campus to our College for public school system.

Paying his part of that fund, he further signaled his faith in the University and its work by adding the education of women, in order—to use his own words—to our University must be "all set to become one of the best in our land.

This faith for us was of the same far-reaching character which had marked his success in the Eastman enterprise. He challenged us to aim at nothing less than the highest attainments, and he had faith and vision to realize. Our largest benefactor in gifts, he was still more our bolsterer in the adoption of the highest ambu-
The Rochester Board of Education's resolution follows:

The Rochester Board of Education hereby extends to George Washington Eastman its appreciation and appreciation for the benefit of the children of Rochester of the Last Rites.

While the fading light of a dying day sifted through the stained glass windows, exciting scenes of the life of Mr. Eastman were played upon the faces of the audience. The music was the work of Mr. Eastman, and the music that he loved best—compositions from Beethoven, Wagner, Mozart.

THOUSANDS HEAR SERVICE

While the capacity of the church was limited, a large number heard the music and services by means of amplifiers in the Sunday School room and the radio.

The funeral cortège, which had for years played at the home of Mr. Eastman for the entertainment of himself and his friends, was now played for the last time. The music that he loved best—compositions from Beethoven, Wagner, Mozart.

ASHES REST IN URN

The ashes now rest in an urn of the Last Rites.

For a city that has been identified with the Kodak Company, Eastman's passing is a sad event. The company that he founded, which he endowed in 1915, has made the City of Rochester a name to be remembered.

Mr. Eastman has passed on. He has left us all an inspiration. His life will never be silent but rather eloquent. His memory will be a light to guide us on the path of progress.

Mr. Eastman is gone, but his memory will live on. His legacy of wisdom and courage will be an inspiration to all who come after him.
Prominent Visitors Present

All through the morning there was a flow of people through the door to view the body and to pause a second at the exhibit in exchange of appreciation and regret. Front and back of the church and in the lobby, there werek Congressional Interests. The funeral was attended by a large number of prominent citizens, including

Service at St. Paul's Marked by Characteristic Simplicity and Beauty of Musical Setting

By MARIAN MARX

An outpouring of Rochesterians numbering thousands stood in silent reverence and addressed outside of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in East Avenue yesterday afternoon while within simple but impressive funeral services for George Eastman were held.

The services were conducted by the Rev. George E. Norton, rector of St. Paul's, assisted by Bishop Sheard Litchfield, F.R.C., Dr. Murray Barlow, president of the University of Rochester, and Dr. Ralph Noyes, president of the University. Musical selections in the service reflected Mr. Eastman's quiet dignity and cultural tastes.

In the church, gathered in honor of the man whose achievements and benefactions are indelibly inscribed on the hearts and minds of the entire community, were representatives of virtually every civic, educational and philanthropic organization, the influence and accomplishments of all of which have been enhanced because Eastman was fortunate enough to have Mr. Eastman as its citizen and to be the place for the development of his genius.

City Senses Its Loss

There is not a single individual in Rochester who does not feel the loss of George Eastman. Through his giving came a realization to the people of Rochester that the tower of strength, generosity and ability

City Halls Activity

Throughout the city activity was suspended at 3:30 o'clock. All the offices of the Lincoln-Alliance Bank and Trust Company were closed promptly at 3 o'clock instead of 4 o'clock. Sixty seconds of silence was the tribute of the thousands of children in the public school system, in response to a request by Herbert S. West, superintendent of schools.

At the direction of Mayor Owen the City Hall bell was tolled 77 times during the funeral services. Seldom is the bell tolled, except on occasions of grief or elevation, and tolling was in respect to the memory of the man who has done so much for the city. The last time it was tolled for a citizen was in June, 1866, at the death of Mayor Clarence D. Van Zandt, who was a life-long friend of Mr. Eastman.

At noon the chimes in the tower of Rush Rhees Library of the University of Rochester were sounded by Prof. John R. Stater.

Theater Lights Dimmed

At the hour of the funeral the lights in all the motion picture houses in Rochester were dimmed, and all activity was suspended for a minute. The offices of Hubbell, Taylor, Goodwin, Nixon & Hargrave, were closed at 1 o'clock. The late Walter S. Hubbell, who was head of the firm, was Mr. Eastman's attorney at the start of his business career, and was a close friend. Thomas J. Hargrave, member of the firm, is vice-president of the Eastman Kodak Company, and is in charge of its Legal Department.

In Hollywood all activity in the motion picture studios was suspended at the hour of the funeral services. Supreme and Surrogate Court in Monroe County suspended at 1 o'clock.

Civic memorial services for Mr. Eastman will be held next Wednesday evening at the Eastman Theater. Dr. Rhees announced yesterday. The program will consist of short addresses of gratitude and appreciation for his gifts to the community and orchestra and vocal music selected to express the affection of the community for its benefactor. Flags on all the University of Rochester buildings will remain at half mast until after the memorial service.
East Ave. Named 88 Years Ago by Pioneer of City

East Avenue's name is nearly a century old and is inescapably identified with the growth of Rochester. It was said today at the office of City Historian Edward F. Forman, who wrote a few studies of the history of East Avenue.

Mr. Forman early in the 18th Century East Avenue was known only as Pittsford Road. The stage coach which traversed it, forded the Genesee River near present Court Street, before the construction of the Main Street bridge.

In 1844 Josiah W. Bissell, to whose energy and industry historians are grateful, published a newspaper about the town and its development. Pittsford Road was called East Avenue. It is recorded he was anxious to give the thoroughfare the name of a person; and from several dozen street signs with the legend 'East Avenue' and stuck them up at intersections at midnight, his tenacity carried the day, and it became East Avenue officially.

At that time the road was dusty in the summer and a sea of mud in rainy weather. Sometimes it was impassable to the stage coach. It was laced with a little stream which became acres of frog ponds in the Spring. Houses and cabins were few.

Historians see in the transformation of this dismal thoroughfare into an avenue of beautiful homes and luxurious estates a testimonial to the road from Rochester from the struggling village to a prosperous city, now third in Union's largest state.

It is significant that residents of the present East Avenue would take no objection to a change of the name of their thoroughfare in such a cause, and be moved to show any action on their part that might bring about the change.

The people of the city could never forget the man for whom it was named, and they will show the same tenacity as the people of Pittsford, in the simple lasting tribute to his memory.

Mr. Forman's statement follows:

"Rochester is one of its greatest and most influential cities, and East Avenue is a tribute to a man who took the lead in building up the city in a material way and who has been an important influence in every way. I am sure that the name of East Avenue is an ideal for which Rochester should stand."

May the name of East Avenue be changed to something more appropriate and rich in memory. It is a step to perpetuate the memory of Mr. Eastman's memory.

By ROY YERGER

Many feel name East Avenue of Importance to City, that Something Bigger should be Proposed to Perpetuate Eastman's Memory

James E. Gleason of 766 East Avenue, president and general manager of the Gleason Works, Inc., suggested that very serious consideration be given to some more effective way of perpetuating Mr. Eastman's memory.

"I have a feeling that Rochester's memorial to Mr. Eastman should be something as big as he was big," declared Mr. Gleason.

"I do not consider naming a street after him very effective."

J. B. Todd of 603 East Avenue, chairman of the board of the Todd company, emphasized that the name of East Avenue constitutes something of an asset to the city.

"I would not care to comment," Vicemayor Isaac Adir said.

"Mr. Forman's proposal strikes me very favorably. I think it would be a fine tribute and the people of Rochester would be very glad to have it." Dr. Joseph I. Guzetta.

"Anything we can do to perpetuate the name of Mr. Eastman, after all he has done for the city of Rochester, ought to be done," R. Andrew Hamilton.

"The suggestion does not strike me as favorably. The name of East Avenue is so well known that we should hesitate before discarding it."

Charles Stanton: "I think it would be a fine thing to do and a fine testimonial to Mr. Eastman. The change wouldn't be a great one, but I think the name of East Avenue should be perpetuated in some other way."

Harold S. W. MacFarlin: "I personally believe it would be more appropriate to retain the name of East Avenue than to change it."

"I think it would be a very fine gesture but my vote in the City Council would be dependent upon the nature of the change," said Nelson A. Milne.
PUBLIC SERVICE
FOR EASTMAN
Music that he loved will be played by the Rochester Civic Orchestra and three speakers will eulogize him at the public memorial service for George Eastman Wednesday evening in the Eastman theater.

Details of the program were announced today by Dr. Rush Rhee, president of the University of Rochester, sponsoring the service.

ALLING TO PRESIDE
Joseph T. Alliné, chairman of the board of trustees of the University of Rochester, will preside. Mayor Charles S. Owen will speak for the city. Roland B. Woodward, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, will represent community interests.

Dr. Rhee will speak in behalf of educational interests.

Selections by the University of Rochester Glee Club will include the integer Ylles, the Kibbourn Quartet, favorite small group of musicians of Mr. Eastman, will play. The Rochester Park Band will play, and the Rochester Civic Orchestra will also be heard.

A general invitation to the public to attend was extended by Dr. Rhee.

SOCIETY ADDS TRIBUTE
The Society of the Gencese also added its name to the hundreds of organizations which have passed resolutions on the death of Mr. Eastman. The Kodak founder was guest of honor a year ago at the annual dinner of the society in New York.

The resolution stated in part:

"The memory of that occasion is a priceless heritage to all who participated in person, and in spirit. The ringing tributes of that occasion will ever echo in the hearts and minds of those who knew and loved him."

Rochester to Pay Tribute
To Memory of Mr. Eastman

Rochester will pay tribute to George Eastman Wednesday evening when memorial services will be conducted at 8:15 o'clock at the Eastman Theater under the sponsorship of the University of Rochester.

The services are being planned as a public expression of the esteem in which Mr. Eastman was held by this community, and it is expected that the theater will be filled to capacity for the simple program. In the building which he built and gave to the University, the music that he loved will be played, and three speakers will pay him honor.

Mayor To Speak

Joseph T. Alling, chairman of the board of trustees of the University of Rochester, will preside. Mayor Charles S. Owen will speak for the city of Rochester; Roland B. Woodward, executive vice-president of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, for the community interests; and President Rush Rhees, of the University for the educational interests of his institution. A reading will be taken from the resolution adopted by the directors of the Eastman Kodak Company.

The Rochester Civic Orchestra will open the program with an overture number. The College Glee Club will sing the Integer Vitae. Other selections will be given by the Kilburn Quartet, whose playing Mr. Eastman especially enjoyed. An organ and strings number by Harold Gleason and students of the Eastman School of Music is also on the program. The concluding number will be the Echoes composed by Dr. Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music, for the Beethoven centennial last year. It will be performed under the direction of Dr. Hanson's brother, the student orchestra and the chorus of the Eastman School of Music.

Tributes to Be Given
By Leaders of City;
Orchestra Will Play

All America will listen tonight to Rochester's final homage to George Eastman.

From 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock, the program of public memorial services for the great philanthropist will be broadcast from Station WJR over a network of National Broadcasting Company. Respectful friends, employees, and fellow citizens of Mr. Eastman are expected to fill Eastman Theater, the institution he built for "enrichment of community life." Doors will open at 7:45 o'clock. No cards of admission are required.

Joseph T. Alling, president of the board of trustees of the University of Rochester, sponsors of the program, will preside. Mayor Owen will speak for the city; Roland B. Woodward, executive vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, for community interests, and Dr. Rush Rhees, president of the University, for the city's educational and philanthropic interests. Doctor Rhees will also read resolutions adopted by Eastman Kodak Company directors.

His Favorite Music

Music beloved by Mr. Eastman will be included in the program. The Wagner Good Friday music from " Parsifal" will be played by the Rochester Civic Orchestra as the opening number. The Kilburn Quartet will play the Cavatina from Quartet 13 and Harold Gleason and the Eastman Student Orchestra will play the Transeoscopes for organ and string instruments.

The concluding number will be the Elegy composed by Dr. Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music, for the Beethoven centennial last year. It will be performed under the direction of Dr. Hanson's brother, the student orchestra and the chorus of the Eastman School of Music.

Memorial to George Eastman
Adopted by Kodak Directors

The following resolution relative to George Eastman, adopted by the directors of the Eastman Kodak Company, was read by Doctor Rush Rhees last night at the memorial services for Mr. Eastman:

His work is done. His career has ended; but in the hearts and minds of men, his work is still a throbbing, living thing.

George Eastman was more than a business genius and public benefactor. He was a founder and idealist, who felt the responsibility of giving and founding wisely. Others have had wealth well given; but must:

He gave of his own fortune; had the greater part of it; but Counselors of the Eastman Company

To the Eastman Company

Dedicated the Evening

of the program,

to

friends

His work is done. His career has come to a close. He had lived a good and noble life. He has left to his city the greatest benefactions from the world and his city's lesser ones will be known—his gifts might not be merely generous but wise.

The world at large will feel that he was a great philanthropist. We, his associates in the country he founded, were witnesses to his giving—more than money. We saw him devote to his benefactions his untiring, intelligent interest that he had put into the business in the days before his means enabled him to make his benefactions. We saw him courage in the days of stress; his anxiety to be helpful to his quiet, confidential optimism; his belief in the fundamental company.

It was his love for his mother; his first generosity; his first gifts were for her happiness and comfort. For her there was a loyalty that touched the hearts of those intimates who were so fortunate as to witness it.

He had a fine and equal loyalty to his friends, to his coworkers, to his community and to his convictions.

Without his unselfishness, his generosity, his personal gift to all employees, millions would not have seen the light; for years he kept the story of one of his greatest benefactions from the world and numberless smaller deeds will not be known—all typical of the modesty of the man, typical of the humility of his own life for being helpful, quietly and always wisely.

He dedicated to the world nearly three score years of active business life, he imparted his respect for his dedication to high ideals; respect for his resourcefulness, his integrity, his intelligence; respect for his character.

His name is inscribed more than a memorial to his family and to his immediate associates. It is a memorial to a world that has lost a worth while man.

Yet the world will continue to enjoy him; for his work is still a throbbing, living thing.

Eastman Tribute
To Go on Radio

A memorial program for George Eastman will be broadcast by WHAM at 8:30 p.m., replacing the usual broadcast of the Eastman School Orchestra. Joining with the orchestra will be the Eastman School Chorus and Harold Gleason, organist. Dr. Howard Hanson will conduct. The program will consist of Locatelli's "Scena Sinfonica," Symphony of the Third Movement from the Eastman Student Orchestra, and the Heroic Elegy for chorus and orchestra by Dr. Hanson, a Board of Trustees of Mechanics Institute, and the Community Conference Board, the latter formed eleven years ago at his suggestion, today published resolutions on the death of Mr. Eastman.
Kodak Workers Aid City Leaders
In Memorial for George Eastman

Dr. Rhee, Mayor, Woodward
Speak at Service; Music Magnate Loved Played.

A life dedicated to enrichment of the lives of others and a man whose qualities of leadership were of priceless significance to Rochester's economic development were the tributes paid George Eastman in a memorial service last night in the Eastman Theater.

Men and women representing scores of welfare and civic organizations benefited by the far-seeing philanthropies of Mr. Eastman and those closely associated with Student Orchestra, the Kodak Workers of Rochester Civic Orchestra, the Kilburn Quartet and the Eastman Student Orchestra, was made up of those who cherished the memory thereof as a priceless heritage.

Dr. Rhee, Mayor, Woodward, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, who opened the program, said:

"This was the life of a man whose career and his work was well done."

Dr. Rhee said:

"His was a disciplined life. In his early youth he grasped the significance of managing his own life. Self-discipline summed by necessity and ambition enabled him to achieve and acquire wealth make possible. This outstanding citizen of our community made himself a benefactor to a world that has lost a worth while friend."

The program of music given by the Rochester Civic Orchestra, the Kilburn Quartet and the Eastman Student Orchestra, was made up of songs selected by the program's director, George Eastman. The concluding number was in the Eastman School of Music. A resolution adopted by directors of the Kodak Corporation, as read by Dr. Rhee, pointed to George Eastman's work as a thronging, living thing. It stated in part:

The self-discipline freed him from all pretense. He knew what he knew clearly and never pretended to know anything he didn't know. "Mr. Eastman's life was a courageous and aggressive life. In all his undertakings he never took counsel of fear. He faced the problems of his early days with confid­ence and determination that marked him as a man who could be relied upon not to lose heart or to fail. His courage gave him the intellectual honesty which marked him. His mind was receptive to the ideas and opinions of others, but he did his own thinking and acted upon his own convictions.

Had Love of Beautiful

"The spiritual essence of Mr. Eastman's life was his love of the beautiful. There was a natural fineness about him that drew him towards the things in life that satisfied his conscious knowledge; he sought the satisfying and appealing qualities in the music of the masters. This self-discipline freed him from all pretense. He knew what he knew.

George Eastman Memorial

In Which All May Take Part

Editor, Democrat and Chronicle:

George Eastman deserves to have his name remembered and his civic spirit perpetuated by something greater than the name of a street.

George Eastman devoted money, time and effort to the enrichment of civic life. Who can measure the effect in the years that he spent money he spent for instruments for use in the public schools? He knew what a Rochester public school could find enjoyment in something more elevating than jazz, more helpful to the soul than bridge contests.

The monument which he deserves is the establishment and perpetuation of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra and the regular use of the Eastman Theater literally for the enrichment of life. This will cost money, time, and effort, but it will be a monument worthy of the man and a basis for justifiable civic pride, and will make his and our beloved city a better place to live in.

Memorial to Mr. Eastman Is Proposed

Options Obtained in Main Street East For Monument

Proposal that the triangular site at Main Street East, North Street and Franklin Street be cleared and a monument erected there to the memory of Mr. Eastman has been made by Paul Schubmehl, real estate representative. He claims he has obtained options for the property and has received much encouragement from many of Eastman's friends, who have expressed a willingness to contribute to the construction of the monument.

Mr. Schubmehl said he is interested in the project as a son of the city. He said in the promotion of the sale of real estate, and he said a number of persons have expressed interest in the project. The formal crystallization of sentiment regarding the project awaits the reading of Mr. Eastman's will, due to be given to East Avenue to honor the memory of George Eastman.

Eastman Ave. Home

Owners Prefer Name

Sixty-four property owners in Eastman Avenue desire the name of the street changed, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Killian of 43 Eastman Avenue, who said that the house-to-house canvass of the thoroughfare to discover the residents' reaction to the recent suggestion that a new name be given to East Avenue to honor the memory of George Eastman.

Eastman Avenue was given that name about 20 years ago, Mrs. Killian said last night, because it is the nearest street to Kodak Park and with the exception of Ridge Road.
SEES OBLIGATION IN MILLIONS WILL MAKES AVAILABLE

George Eastman’s Final Gifts of Upwards of $15,000,000 Taken as Intended for Community
HOME’S SERVICE TO CITY TO GO ON, SAYS DR. RHEES

The text of the will of George Eastman will be found on Page 4.

The University of Rochester, one of the principal objects of George Eastman’s benefaction during his lifetime, is further enriched in his will, admitted to probate yesterday, which gives to the University the major portion of his estate, estimated at upwards of $17,000,000.

The University’s share is expected to amount to as much as $15,000,000. Bequests to it amount to somewhat in excess of $12,000,000 and in addition he left his beautiful East Avenue residence and estate, including all furnishings, paintings and works of art, to the University as a house for its president, with a fund of $2,000,000 for upkeep of the property.

All gifts to the University, with the exception of $2,500,000 to be used for the Eastman School of Music, and the fund of $2,000,000 for upkeep of the residence, were given without restriction as to the use either of principal or income.

If at the end of ten years the University trustees deem it inadvisable to continue use of the East Avenue property as the president’s home, they may dispose of it, as well as the fund, in the manner they deem best for the purposes of the University.

Dr. Rhees Accepts Trust

Acknowledgement of the University’s great debt to Mr. Eastman was expressed yesterday for the trustees by Raymond L. Thompson, treasurer, as follows:

“The University is deeply conscious of its obligation to carry on the trust and confidence placed in it by Mr. Eastman. This determination is best expressed by the trustees of the University in the resolution adopted Mar. 16, 1932, from which I quote as follows:

“‘And now he tells his friends that his “work is done.”

For him, as respects active participation, this is sadly true. For us who carry on what he has inspired, his work is only just begun. Only the future years will be able to measure the greatness of that continuing work. With us is left the task of grateful determination to make that measure adequate.’"

The following statement of Dr. Rush Rhees, president of the University, referring to Mr. Eastman’s disposition of his home, was made public yesterday:

It is evident that Mr. Eastman desired that the home to whose comfort and beauty he gave so much thought, should continue after his death to be of service to the community of Rochester. He chose to seek this end by giving it to the University for an official residence for its president. In accepting this trust the University has confidence that throughout the coming years its presidents will endeavor to realize Mr. Eastman’s desires.

Million for Dispensary

The other largest single gift was one of a million dollars to the Rochester Dental Dispensary. Eight other Rochester institutions are given substantial bequests as follows: Rochester General Hospital, Genesee Hospital, Y. M. C. A., Rochester Orphan Asylum, Door of Hope Association and Family Welfare Society of Rochester, $50,000 each; Peoples Rescue Mission, $25,000.

Mr. Eastman’s will provides for carrying out all of his existing unpaid subscriptions and commitments for educational institutions and philanthropies. In addition, he gives to the Rochester Community Chest $100,000 for the first year following his death and $50,000 for the second year. He also provided for continuance of his support to the Bureau of Municipal Research of Rochester for one year beyond the present year.

In the codicil to his will, signed March 14, the day of his death, Mr. Eastman revoked bequests to the Young Women’s Christian Association of Rochester, Cornell University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Between the date of execution of his will and that of the codicil he had made substantial pledges to each of these three institutions.

Mrs. Ellen Andrus Dryden of Evanston, Ill., Mr. Eastman’s niece; her children, Ellen Maria Dryden and George Eastman Dryden, and Mr. Eastman’s secretary, Mrs. Alice K. Hutchison, who had been with him since almost the beginning of his career, are the principal individual beneficiaries under his will. Mrs. Hutchison was left $100,000; Mrs. Dryden $200,000, half of which consists of a fund for upkeep of “Oak Lodge,” Mr. Eastman’s hunting property in North Carolina, which also was left to Mrs. Dryden. Her two children each receive the income from a fund of $100,000. Personal effects of the testator were left to Mrs. Dryden.

Bequests to personal employees at his home included a bequest to his housekeeper, Miss Marie Cherbuliez, of $10,000; to his cook, Eliza De Lea, of $3,000, and to his butler, Solomon C. Young, of $3,000. Twenty-three other employees were left amounts ranging from $2,000 to $200, and there are also a number of bequests in the form of annuities to certain distant relatives.

To Dr. Harvey J. Burkhart, director of the Rochester Dental Dispensary and Mr. Eastman’s personal representative in the establishment of the dental dispensaries for children which he has established abroad, Mr. Eastman left the equivalent of life income from a fund of $50,000. Dr. Burkhard is at present in Rome arranging for Italy’s acceptance of Mr. Eastman’s gift of $1,000,000 for a dispensary in Rome.

Gifts to Persons and Institutions Revealed by George Eastman's Will

University Made Agent
To Pay Annuities and Carry Out His Wishes

The text of the main body of the will of George Eastman, who died in 1932, has been revealed. Eastman, a prominent Rochester photographer and businessman, made gifts to various institutions and individuals through his will. The will directs that a trust be established to pay annuities and carry out his wishes.

Gifts to Individuals

The will provides for gifts to various individuals, including family members and friends. For example, Eastman left a bequest to his daughter, Elizabeth Eastman, of $25,000.

Gifts to Institutions

Eastman also made gifts to various institutions, including the University of Rochester, the Young Women's Christian Association, and the Rochester Public Library. The will specifies that a trust be established to pay annuities and carry out his wishes.

Provisions for Relations

The will includes provisions for the relations of the individual and the institution, including the establishment of a trust to pay annuities and carry out George Eastman's wishes.

Notes Will Stand

I hereby further modify said paragraph seven of my will by eliminating therefrom the final sentence thereof, providing for the cancellation of notes payable to me therefor, in whole or in part, from the securities bequeathed to the University of Rochester by paragraph 11 of my said will or from my residuary estate, as other securities of equal par value as my executor shall see fit, and all securities so substituted for securities bequeathed to the University of Rochester by paragraphs 2, 3 and 4 of my said will shall be charged with the same condition as to payments to beneficiaries as are set forth in said paragraphs 2, 3 and 4.

May Sell Securities

I further direct that the university shall have full power to sell and dispose of any of the securities bequeathed to it in said will and to invest and reinvest the proceeds as it shall see fit. If the university shall sell any of the securities so disposed of, it is hereby directed that said securities, or such other securities of equal par value as my executor shall see fit, and all securities so substituted for securities bequeathed to the University of Rochester by paragraphs 2, 3 and 4 of my said will shall be charged with the same condition as to payments to beneficiaries as are set forth in said paragraphs 2, 3 and 4.

Previous Bequests Changed

Ninth: I hereby eliminate paragraph sixteen of said will, and in lieu thereof I hereby give, devise and bequeath to the University of Rochester, or the residue and remainder of my property and estate, of whatever name and nature and which may hereafter become, situate, which I shall own at the time of my death.

Tenth: I hereby modify paragraph eighteen of my said will so as to read as follows:

Paragraph Eighteen: I hereby request my executor to employ thousand dollars ($100,000), for the purpose of enabling her adequate to maintain said property, it being my desire that she shall retain ownership thereof and shall maintain said property and use it as a private hunting lodge and estate for a period of at least two (2) years after my death. In the event that my said niece shall not survive me, I hereby give, devise and bequeath said property and said sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) to my said niece's daughter, Ellen Maria Molitor, for the same purposes as aforesaid.

In the succeeding paragraph Mr. Eastman conveys his original will in every respect. The codicil was executed on March 14, 1922 and the attesting witnesses were Frank M. Crouch, Marion B. Folson and Albert K. Chapman.

Becomes Official Home of President of University

Residence of George Eastman at 900 East Avenue, which by his will, probated yesterday, becomes the property of the University of Rochester for the residence of its President.

Set in spacious, beautifully groomed grounds and formal gardens, the home of George Eastman, which now becomes the residence of the President of the University of Rochester, has long been one of the show places of Rochester. Of American Colonial architecture, with a dignity that is at once gracious and mellow, and the approach of the mansion gives the impression of being much older than its actual 32 years. It was built for Mr. Eastman in 1883.

It is of brick construction with a light-colored cut-stone trim, its lofty pillars in front and many chimneys adding to its beauty. There are nine fireplaces in the house, which is three stories high, and contains 37 rooms, 12 bathrooms, a large conservatory and two organs. In hot summers, the conservatory is a paradise in which Mr. Eastman kept cows and chickens to supply him with fresh cream and eggs.

The ground area of the house is 10,488 feet square. The structure is well back from East Avenue, partially screened by high shrubbery and approached by a curving drive. Fronting 481 feet on East Avenue and 551 feet on University Avenue, the grounds are 908 feet deep.

Full appraisal value of the mansion is set at $660,144; the assessable value of the land, $198,600 and of the building $395,160, a total of $553,766.

One of the most distinctive features of the house is the ornamental iron grill work in the music room, the work of Samuel Yellin of Philadelphia, and considered to be an exceptionally fine example of the art. The paintings hung on the walls are rare and of great value, among them works of Corot, Whistler, Rembrandt and Titian.

The End of an Era

George Eastman displayed devotion to the same interests and used the same careful methods in dividing his $20,000,000 estate that characterized a lifetime of philanthropy in giving away $100,000,000.

Rochester institutions came FIRST with him.

And just as the University of Rochester, to which he had previously given $23,600,000, was his foremost beneficiary while he lived, his supreme interest in it is again shown in bequests of $12,000,000.

Incidently, he has made it one of the wealthiest of American colleges in addition to action taken by him during recent years to increase its facilities for usefulness.

Practically his entire estate will remain in Rochester, with generous gifts for the Dental Dispensary, General Hospital, Y. M. C. A., Door of Hope, Friendly Home, Friendly Welfare Association and others.

His love of music was demonstrated in a bequest of $2,500,000 to the Eastman School of Music, which was built and endowed by him. Intimate friends and former associates were remembered.

Perhaps affection for home, and a desire to have it remain long as he left it, actuated the bequest of his residence to the university, with $2,000,000 to maintain it for ten years as the home of its president.

Provision is made for the Community Chest with a bequest of $100,000 for the first year and $50,000 for the next.

There is no bequest for the Chamber of Commerce, for which he had erected the splendid building housing it.

Contrary to expectations, there is NO bequest for the City of Rochester. Even the Cluett-Peabody Building is given to the university.

Filing this historic will for probate brings this city to a rude awakening to the fact that it marks the END of an era.

For decades his wealth was poured into funds for improving the health and welfare of its people, facilities for their culture, enjoyment, and the "enrichment of community life."

Now the people of this city must decide whether or not they will do for themselves the things that Mr. Eastman did FOR them so long, making Rochester renowned among cities.

They must determine whether or not the means for continuing Rochester as a center of culture and a better place in which to live shall be perpetuated.

Their answer will decide whether these things are deeply rooted, or have only a superficial hold on the people. It is not too much to say that it will decide THE future of Rochester.

Accepts Trust for Community

Whose Will Probated Yesterday, Makes the University of Rochester His Residuary Legatee and Agent in Carrying Out His Wishes for Rochester's Betterment.

Who in Assuming Proprietorship of Mr. Eastman's East Avenue Home as University President's Official Residence, Declares Intention of Continuing Its Use for Community Service.
The following statement of Dr. Rush Rhees, president of the University, referring to Mr. Eastman’s disposition of his home, was made public yesterday:

"It is evident that Mr. Eastman desired that the home, to which comfort and beauty he gave so much thought, should continue after his death to be of service to the community of Rochester. He chose to seek this end by giving it to the University for an official residence for its president. In accepting this trust the University has confidence that throughout the coming years its presidents will endeavor to realize Mr. Eastman’s desires."

Million for Dispensary

The other largest single gift was one of a million dollars to the Rochester Dental Dispensary. Eight other Rochester institutions are given substantial bequests as follows: Rochester General Hospital, Genesee Hospital, Y. M. C. A., Rochester Orphan Asylum, Door of Hope Association and Family Welfare Society of Rochester, $50,000 each; Peoples Rescue Mission, $25,000.

Mr. Eastman’s will provides for carrying out all of his existing unpaid subscriptions and commitments for educational institutions and philanthropies. In addition, he gives to the Rochester Community Chest $100,000 for the first year following his death and $50,000 for the second year. He also provided for continuance of his support to the Bureau of Municipal Research of Rochester for one year beyond the present year.

In the codicil to his will, signed March 14, the day of his death, Mr. Eastman revoked bequests to the Young Women’s Christian Association of Rochester, Cornell University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Between the date of execution of his will and that of the codicil he had made substantial pledges to each of these three institutions.

Mrs. Ellen Andrus Dryden of Evanston, Ill., Mr. Eastman’s niece; her children, Ellen Maria Dryden and George Eastman Dryden, and Mr. Eastman’s secretary, Mrs. Alice K. Hutchison, who had been with him since almost the beginning of his career, are the principal individual beneficiaries under his will. Mrs. Hutchison was left $100,000; Mrs. Dryden $200,000, half of which consists of a fund for upkeep of “Oak Lodge,” Mr. Eastman’s hunting property in North Carolina, which also was left to Mrs. Dryden. Her two children each receive the income from a fund of $100,000. Personal effects of the testator were left to Mrs. Dryden.

Bequests to personal employees at his home included a bequest to his housekeeper, Miss Marie Cherbuliez, of $10,000; to his cook, Eliza De Lea, of $3,000, and to his butler, Solomon C. Young, of $3,000. Twenty-three other employees were left amounts ranging from $2,000 to $200, and there are also a number of bequests in the form of annuities to certain distant relatives.

To Dr. Harvey J. Burkhart, director of the Rochester Dental Dispensary and Mr. Eastman’s personal representative in the establishment of the dental dispensaries which he has established abroad, Mr. Eastman left the equivalent of life income from a fund of $50,000. Dr. Burkhart is at present in Rome arranging for Italy’s acceptance of Mr. Eastman’s gift of $1,000,000 for a dispensary in Rome.

Acknowledgement of the University’s great debt to Mr. Eastman was expressed yesterday for the trustees by Raymond L. Thompson, treasurer, as follows:

“The University is deeply conscious of its obligation to carry on the trust and confidence placed in it by Mr. Eastman. This determination is best expressed by the trustees of the University in the resolution adopted March 16, 1932, from which I quote as follows:

‘And now he tells his friends that his “work is done.” For him, as respects active participation, this is sadly true. For us who carry on what he has inspired, his work is only just begun. Only the future years will be able to measure the greatness of that continuing work. With us is left the task of grateful determination to make that measure adequate.’"
