In 1937 Cantor Kaufman entered the Eastman School of Music and from there went to his present post in Buffalo. He is still studying music at Peabody Conservatory of the Eastman School.

His concert here will be in three parts and include chants, Palestinian songs and Jewish folk songs. He will be in costume of the period which the songs depict.

Looking for a collar-button would be a “pipe” for George Kapell, who spends most of his days and parts of his evening searching for deeds and titles from 5 to 100 years old.

Searcher of Titles Finds Work Pleasure, Says Tracing Heirs Adds Spice to Task

The constant probing into yellowed pages results in a stock of extra-curricular information for the title-searcher. Mr. Kapell among other things learns whole family histories merely from reading wills, deeds and other formal documents. He finds out who the family black sheep with the gold craze in ’94 and ’98 was. And he learns which boys went off to the Civil and World Wars to be marked among the missing.

Incidentally, these lads who run away from home, later to become heirs to a property, cause loss of sleep to the title-searchers. Their disappearances mean missing information, unrecorded papers and imperfect descriptions.

The matter of spelling is another petty bane. The long line of evens which have revolved around a property may be sadly disrupted by a piece of bad spelling.

Since Western New York has been settled—which is some time—the white man has been making mistakes.

Old Errors Corrected

The first sale recorded had an error. The seller’s surveyor generously gave the buyer six extra towns in the northwest corner of what was later to become Monroe County. Later the error was corrected when it was apparent that several hundred thousand acres of land had been given away.

In the early days of title-searching, attorneys did the work. Mr. Kapell says Lately, title-searchers and accounts clerks took over the duties and about 60 years ago abstract companies were organized for the purpose of search work. The development of search work has been gradual, but the practice is now so widespread that few transfers are completed without a thoroughgoing search of the property’s history.

Georgs Kapell Holds Spelling, Surveyors’ Errors Chief Bane

Do you get angry when you lose something? Do you get still more angry when someone else loses something and you must look for it? How is your adrenaline flow during these searches? Pretty high, if you’re an average human being. In fact, you’re plain mad if you’re a normal soul.

In view of that, consider the people who make it their business to hunt for things which other people have lost. These are the title-searchers.

Fun Title Work

Thirty-five years of title-searching have mellowed George A. Kapell, who recently resigned from the county clerk’s office after 12 years of service to organize the Western New York Abstract Corporation. In fact, he thinks hunting for lost titles, heirs and deeds is fun.

There are many little things which brighten the day’s work for a title-searcher as he laboriously wades through dusty titles in the court house after another, he says.

For instance, he finds citizens who buy a choice of a subdivision and proceed to build a house upon another. It is the job of the title-searcher to run down these mistakes.

A search begins when a property is sold or an effort is made to borrow money on a mortgage to a property. The searcher traces the transfer of the title back about 60 years to what he considers a “good starting point,” and reviews the history of the property down to the present owner.

Thus it is that the searcher not only finds the history of the property, but also the history of the title searcher himself.

In his search for the family histories, Mr. Kapell has discovered some interesting facts about his own ancestry. He has traced his family back to the early settlers of Rochester, and has found that his ancestors were among the first to settle in the area.

Mr. Kapell is now a partner in the Western New York Abstract Corporation, which he expects to become one of the largest in the state. He believes that title search is a field that offers great opportunities for growth and development.

Mr. Kapell is a graduate of the University of Rochester, where he majored in history. He is a member of the American Institute of Title Searchers, and has served as president of the organization.

He is married and has two children. He enjoys reading, traveling, and spending time with his family.

George Kapell, 61, president of the Western New York Abstract Corporation, said the company is committed to providing accurate and timely title research services to its clients.

In his work, Mr. Kapell and his team have helped countless clients to verify the legal ownership of their properties. They have worked with banks, real estate agents, insurance companies, and others to ensure that transactions involving real property are conducted without any legal disputes.

Through their efforts, Mr. Kapell and his team have built a reputation for excellence and integrity. They are dedicated to providing superior service to their clients and to ensuring that the transactions they facilitate are conducted in a safe and secure manner.

Mr. Kapell is a member of the Rochester Bar Association and the New York State Bar Association. He is also a member of the National Association of Title Searchers and the American Land Title Association.

In his spare time, Mr. Kapell enjoys spending time with his family and friends. He also enjoys reading, traveling, and participating in community activities.

Mr. Kapell is a native of Rochester and has lived in the area for most of his life. He is a graduate of the University of Rochester, where he majored in history. He is also a graduate of the University of Michigan, where he earned his law degree.

Mr. Kapell is a former city councilman and served as mayor of Rochester. He has dedicated his life to public service and has been a strong advocate for the rights of all people.

Mr. Kapell is married to Mrs. Donald Kimbel, and they have two children: Mr. Leonard Davidson and Mrs. Celia Beth. They also have three grandchildren.

Mr. Kapell is a member of the American Legion and the Republican Party. He is also a member of the Rochester Athletic Club and the Rochester Country Club.

In recognition of his many contributions to the community, Mr. Kapell has received numerous awards and honors.

The Western New York Abstract Corporation is proud to be a part of the Rochester community. We are committed to providing our clients with the highest level of service and attention to detail.

CITY MOURNS
ROY C. KATES

Host of Friends Grieved at Death Of News Chief
D. & C., AUG 15 1938

Death of Roy C. Kates, 59, general manager of The Democrat and Chronicle and Times-Union, yesterday deeply shocked his host of friends, who had felt that although he had been seriously ill, he was regaining his health. It was the hope they had entertained of his complete recovery and the suddenness with which their optimism was shattered that made sorrow at his passing more poignant.

Mr. Kates, besides being one of the best known newspaper men in the state, also was an active churchman. He was a Republican and for many years one of the late George Aldridge's closest advisers. The YMCA also claimed his attention and his friendship and advice at the Monroe Branch were valued highly.

Funeral To Be Monday
His body will be returned this morning from Silver Creek where he had gone to recuperate from an illness that began in April, to his home at 207 San Gabriel Drive. Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p.m., Monday afternoon in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, with the Rev. George E. Norton, S.T.D., rector, officiating. Burial services in Mt. Hope Cemetery will be private.

Mr. Kates was stricken with appendicitis April 26, while visiting his daughter, Mrs. John D. Larkin, in Buffalo. He underwent an operation at the General Hospital, Rochester, and an embolism developed. He remained at the hospital until May 7. After his return home he suffered a relapse and for some time he was kept alive by the use of oxygen.

Mr. Kates had always had robust physical health, and that together with his temperate habits and a courage demonstrated in many ways in 40 years of newspaper work and politics, served him in the crisis. He slowly regained strength and finally went to Silver Creek, the home of Mrs. Kates, expecting to put the finishing touches on his struggle back to health.

Succumbs Suddenly
Mr. Kates, publisher of the Gannett Newspapers, called Mr. Kates' death, "a terrific blow.

"It is impossible for me to express how intensely we who worked with him feel over the passing of Roy. Having been close to him for nearly 30 years, I had the great privilege of knowing him intimately. No one could be more loyal, more faithful. He was one of the highest integrity, lofty ideals and high principles, he had the respect and admiration of all who knew him. He was always fair, considerate and sincerely interested in every one in our organization and it was only natural that we should all really love him.

He was an exemplary citizen, a doting husband and father, and in every respect one of the most valuable men in our community.

The passing of Roy Kates is especially a terrible blow to all of us who were associated with him, but it is also a tremendous loss to Rochester.

Leaders Pay Kates Honor

Leaders in many fields of civic life joined yesterday in expressions of regret at the passing of Roy C. Kates, general manager of The Democrat and Chronicle and The Rochester Times-Union.

Business, fraternal friends, leaders of character building institutions, Democrats, Republicans, and the heads of the city and county administrations voiced their grief. Business associates of Mr. Kates were also affected.

Gannett, publisher of the Gannett Newspapers, called Mr. Kates' death, "a terrific blow.

"It is impossible for me to express how intensely we who worked with him feel over the passing of Roy. Having been close to him for nearly 20 years, I had the great privilege of knowing him intimately. No one could be more loyal, more faithful. He was one of the highest integrity, lofty ideals and high principles, he had the respect and admiration of all who knew him. He was always fair, considerate and sincerely interested in every one in our organization and it was only natural that we should all really love him.

He was an exemplary citizen, a doting husband and father, and in every respect one of the most valuable men in our community.

The passing of Roy Kates is especially a terrible blow to all of us who were associated with him, but it is also a tremendous loss to Rochester.

Enter Politics Early
Mr. Kates was born in Barre, Orleans County, Dec. 31, 1876, and came to Rochester at the age of 12 with his parents. His education was obtained in Public School 20, the Meadows School and from tutors. He early became interested in politics of the old Fifth Ward and espoused the Republican cause.

Never inclined to sit on the sidelines, he became active in his party as soon as he could. In the last elections he carried on a very active campaign for Aldridge, Republican leader in Monroe County, not the least of Mr. Kates' qualifications being his ability to make those close to him feel that they were being "taken and smile."

Thus began a friendship that never ceased during Mr. Aldridge's life, and Mr. Kates always was one of the inner circles which managed Republican affairs. But he refused to run for office, although Aldridge offered him the nominations of congressman and mayor and office of postmaster. His interest in politics was always thrown in the balance in favor of better government and better men.

Started as Reporter
Although he liked the game of politics, that was his avocation. When the decision had to be made between newspaper work and any other form of employment, his choice was journalism. As a young man he became a reporter on the Rochester Democrat.

Then he became telegraph editor of the Rochester Herald, and later editor of the Sunday Recorder.

After the Evening Times had been purchased by John E. Morey, he became its city editor, and in due course succeeded S. Powell French as managing editor, and became secretary and part owner.

When Frank E. Gannett in 1913 acquired the Evening Times and the Union and Advertiser and consolidated them in the Rochester Times-Union, Mr. Kates became the managing editor and a director of the company. In 1926, he became general manager of that newspaper, and when Mr. Gannett purchased the Democrat and Chronicle in 1928, he was made general manager of both papers.

Active in Church
Mr. Kates' first church affiliation in Rochester was in the old Hedding Methodist Church at St. Paul and Scramont Streets. Later he joined St. Paul's Episcopal Church and took a lively interest not only in the church, but also in the diocese.

He served as Sunday school leader and at the time of his death was a member of the vestry of St. Paul's. Last Saturday he was made president of the board of the Episcopal Church, Head House.

Of his brothers, the Rev. Jerome Kates, is rector of Stephen's Episcopal Church of this city. Mr. Kates, though ill, followed the ordination of his son through a special radio hookup.

Other survivors are the widow, Mrs. Helen E. Kates, who was Miss Thomas when they were married in 1907; two daughters, Mrs. Larkin and Miss Mary Kates; three other brothers, William E., Arthur G., and Floyd L. Kates, all of Rochester; three sisters, Emma D., Alice L., and Ethel M., Kates, all of Rochester, and a granddaughter, Anna Kates Larkin of Buffalo.

Mr. Kates was a member of Oak Hill Country Club, Rochester Club, Washington Club, Genesee Falls Lodge, F&AM, Oddfellows, Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club and Ad Club.
With Loyalty His Guiding Star, Roy Kates Attained Political Renown

By JACK BURGESS

A product of the old Fifth Ward, from the Park Street neighborhood, where politics was a he-man’s game and a caucus was a clariion call to battle. Roy Kates stood on the threshold of young manhood, deliberating whether to enter journalism or the great national pastime.

Each offered a tempting lure, but the dignite and definiteness of the newspaper work attracted the finer instincts of the young man.

But Roy, as everybody knew him, wouldn’t divorce himself completely from politics. He loved the smell of the battle of ballots almost as much as the printers’ ink of the presses. There was that something about him, the infectious Herald, heartily laugh, the knack of telling a good story and a comrade for all, that set him apart as a leader.

Smiling Fighter

It wasn’t long before he assumed a leadership in Republican politics in a ward that had been dominated by Harvey Mohnihan, the Dakes and Crinnans. He wanted to clean up an Augean Stable and soon the attention of George W. Aldridge, county boss of the party, was attracted to his keen intellect, clean fighting, laughing young man.

That was the beginning of a beautiful friendship. It was almost a father and son affection, for the great party leader was fond of the fatherless youngster who was making a against odds to win a place in the world.

The keen mind of Aldridge discovered the brilliant mind of Roy Kates, and the mental and moral fibers in the young ward leader. He sensed the level judgment of the man whose political acumen was remarkable in one of his years.

Rebellion is Squelched

There came a time when rebellion threatened the party. The Evening Telegram had transferred to St. Paul’s Vestry an opposition to the Old Big Fellow” because he refused renomination to some of its leaders. The rebels published the old Evening Times and with Buffalo editors wagged a bitter battle. They tempted Kates, then on the editorial staff of the Herald, but the young leader offered and was in the front line of the van-guard of Aldridge’s regulars. It was a great victory for Aldridge, a post for the rebels. Down went the Fifth Ward, Kates organized a fighting group and the ward gave a handsome majority to the candidates. Roy’s words were to say that this fight was the beginning of Roy Kates’ career.

Editor of The Times

After the defeat of the rebels, their organ, The Times, went down rapidly. Then came the moment for Aldridge to prove his faith in the young Fifth Ward leader. A group suggested by Aldridge took it over. John E. Morey was made president and Mr. Kates, managing editor.

Beginning there, Mr. Kates marched forward. When the Gannett group merged the Times with the Union and Advertiser as the Times-Union, an executive place was accorded Mr. Kates and he was managing editor. The politics of journalism, political or journalism, did Mr. Kates fail to devote a share of time to church work. Early in life he was affiliated with St. James Episcopal Church and a consistent member of the Sunday school. As a member of the vestry he soon became known in the church and his work at the state and national attention. As a lay member he attended many diocesan conventions. In later life he was a constant contributor to the Times-Union.

Tolerance was one of his outstanding attributes. While a staunch Episcopalian, he numbered devoted friends among the Roman Catholics and other denominations. He was considered a fellow in the Episcopal church and in the Roman Catholic church, as well as among other denominations.

Declined Public Office

Politics still beckoned him. He declined partnership with several offices, although he could have won an election without competition. He could have gone to the Senate or the Congress. His greatest refusal came about 12 years ago when he was sought as candidate for Mayor. Mr. Aldridge urged him, it almost commanded his lieutenant who had never balked at his leader’s orders. Mr. Kates declined the honor and went to the business daily office to serve.

But Aldridge was determined Roy Kates would win and should be the Mayor of Rochester. He summoned Dr. Charles R. Barber, an old friend of Roy’s, and said: “We must select an able man, a man of the highest integrity, loyalty ideals and high principles, he had the respect and admiration of all who knew him. He was always fair, considerate and sincerely interested in every one in our organization and it was only natural that we should all rally to him. He was an exemplary Christian, a devoted Christian, a wonderful husband and father, and in every respect one of the most valuable men in our community. The passing of Roy Kates is expected to be a severe blow to all of us who were associated with him, but it is also a tremendous loss to Rochester.

Kates Pleased When Son Was Ordained

Roy Kates, an ardent churchman, experienced one of the happiest days of his life, June 14, when his son, Frederick, was ordained to the ministry at St. Paul’s Episcopal Church in East Avenue.

Although confined to his home by his recent severe illness, Mr. Kates was able to hear a broadcast of the ceremonies arranged for his benefit by Station WHAM. The Rt. Rev. David Lincoln Ferris, bishop of the Rochester Episcopal Diocese, was present and assisted by the Rev. Jerome Kates, an uncle of the boy, and the Rev. George E. Norton, rector of St. Paul’s, The Branch.

Following his ordination the young minister was appointed curate and assistant to the rector of the Church of St. Michael and St. George in St. Louis.

Death of Roy Kates Mourned

By Gannett Executives

Sorrowful tribute was paid Roy C. Kates today by Frank E. Gannett, publisher of the Rochester papers which Mr. Kates had served so long. Mr. Gannett said:

It is impossible for me to express how intensely we who worked with him feel over the passing of Roy Kates. Having been close to him for nearly 20 years, I had the great privilege of knowing him intimately. No one could be more loyal, more faithful than he. A man of the highest integrity, loyalty ideals and high principles, he had the respect and admiration of all who knew him. He was always fair, considerate and sincerely interested in every one in our organization and it was only natural that we should all rally to him. He was an exemplary Christian, a devout Christian, a wonderful husband and father, and in every respect one of the most valuable men in our community. The passing of Roy Kates is expected to be a severe blow to all of us who were associated with him, but it is also a tremendous loss to Rochester.

Frank E. Tripp, General Manager, Gannett Newspapers, was present from his Elmira home:

The death of Roy Kates is a severe personal blow to his hosts of friends of whom I was proud to be numbered. He was a man of strong character, deep sincerity and staunch loyalty to his family, his friends and his work.

He played a big part in the development of The Gannett Newspapers in Rochester. The company’s loss is great, but deeper and more disheartening is the loss of his companionship, counsel and keen wit.

Roy Kates’ passing is a loss to all Rochester, all Gannett Newspapers, greatest of course to his family. To the whole family he so proudly reared to perpetuate his honored name and good works.
Leaders Saddened by Death of Mr. Kates

Roy C. Kates is seen above (left) when he became managing editor of The Times-Union in 1918. Right: The general manager of the Rochester News when he received the first copy of the Rochester Centennial booklet two years ago.

The death of Roy C. Kates cast a shadow across the paths of countless friends in Rochester today. Here are some of their tributes:

Ray H. McKinney, president of J. P. McKinney & Son, New York, representative of The Gannett Newspapers—Lovable, charitable, a true gentleman and a life-long friend, dear to all who knew him, ever considerate of the weak, fearless of the strong. Roy C. Kates, has not left us except in a mortal sense, for always there shall be with us the heritage of his spirit.

Richard H. Tullis, assistant general secretary, Rochester YMCA—Roy Kates occupied a place in the service of the YMCA in Rochester that can never be filled.

Ernest R. Paviour, president of R. S. Paviour and Son and vice-president, Rochester YMCA—He made his way into the hearts of all kinds of people. He had friends everywhere. I visited with him, sat with him on the YMCA board and worked under him on the old Evening Times. He was my idea of a real man. He knew human nature and liked people. That is why he was so successful in newspaper work, so accurate in his political judgment and so helpful in directing social work.

City Manager Harold W. Baker—Mr. Kates was a good friend and a good citizen. We need more men of his type. Personally, I am very, very sorry to hear of his death.

Donald A. Dalley, former Democratic county leader—It is a great shock to me to hear of the death of Mr. Kates. He has left behind a fine record of achievement. He was always a strong supporter of liberty and welfare of our city. His death is a distinct loss not only to Rochester.

Patrick J. Slavin, director of parks and playgrounds—in the death of Roy Kates, the parks and playgrounds of Rochester have lost one of their most ardent supporters and thousands of Rochesterians have lost a dear friend. I saw Roy the day I left for Silver Creek to recuperate. He had not looked better in years. His death is a great shock to me.

Herbert S. Bramley, director, Sibley, Lindsay and Curr Company—Roy Kates was a man Rochester can ill afford to lose. Public spirited, sympathetic with every movement toward progress and universally loved, every business man in Rochester, particularly those who have had contact with him, will feel they have lost a personal friend. I considered him one of my very best friends and I feel deeply sorry.

Erwin R. Davenport, director of The Gannett Company—I do not think any man in Rochester had more personal friends than Roy Kates. His friendship was something to be cherished and cannot be replaced. His death is a severe loss not only to his friends but to the community at large. He was an outstanding newspaperman, a high type citizen and a wonderful father and husband. Personally, I feel his death very deeply.

Thomas E. Broderick, Monroe County Republican chairman—Mr. Kates’ death certainly is a tragedy. He was very close to me.

Alex G. Simpson, president Genesee Valley Trust Company—It was my pleasure to know Mr. Kates. Through many years, I esteemed his friendship highly. His worth as a newspaperman and as a citizen was easily recognizable. I join in deploiring his death.

H. Douglas Van Dueren, attorney—I had been intimately associated with Mr. Kates in the work of the “Y” at Monroe branch and came to know him well and to value his friendship and advice. I am very deeply grieved to learn of his death.

County Clerk Roy F. Bush—I knew Mr. Kates as a 14th Warden. I admired him and enjoyed his friendship.

Death Comes to Roy Kates
After Long, Valiant Fight

The Rochester Times-Union, with deep sorrow, records the death of Roy Chester Kates, its general manager. Mr. Kates died unexpectedly today at Silver Creek, N. Y., where he apparently was recovering safely from a serious illness suffered last spring. Roy Chester Kates was stricken by death early today at Silver Creek on the shore of Lake Erie.

Mr. Kates, who was general manager of The Times-Union and Democrat and Chronicle, lived at 107 San Gabriel Drive. He was 65 years old.

Stricken by an attack of appendicitis last April, an embolism developed and was followed by pneumonia. Fighting with the tenacity which marked his success in the publishing field, Mr. Kates emerged from the shadow of death and soon was well enough to make a visit to the home of his wife's family at Silver Creek where he was ordered to take a long rest.

On a Picnic Tuesday

Regular reports to his office in Rochester indicated steady progress was being made toward complete health. Only Tuesday night Mr. Kates enjoyed a picnic.

On returning home from the picnic, Mr. Kates complained of a stomachache. A physician advised him to refrain from strenuous activities. The ailment was not believed serious.

Shortly after 7:30 a.m. today Mr. Kates arose. He toppled over and was dead before help could reach him.

Mrs. Kates With Him

In the house at the time were Mrs. Kates and his daughter, Mary. Another daughter, Mrs. John D. Larkin of Buffalo, is 25 miles away at her summer home. A son, the Rev. Frederick Ward Kates, a recently ordained minister in the Episcopal Church, was in St. Louis. Other survivors include four brothers: The Rev. Jerome, pastor of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, and three sisters, Emma L. and Ethel M. Kates, all of Rochester, and a grand-daughter, Anne Kates Larkin of Buffalo.

Roy Chester Kates

Because it was hoped and believed that he was well on the way to complete recovery from serious illness, the death yesterday morning of Roy C. Kates brought an especially sharp shock to his associates and to that large group who called him friend.

Roy Kates—everyone called him by his first name—was one who possessed in extraordinary degree what Kipling calls the "human touch." It was impossible for him to appear stiff or formal. If any group he happened to be with veered in that direction, it was his way to inject a bit of humor, or a shrewd, quizzical remark which eased the tension.

Roy Kates liked his fellowmen, and they in turn responded with genuine liking for him.

He learned by individual contacts and conversation rather than from books or documents. His knowledge of Rochester and its people and way of life, was unusually wide and searching. It was acquired at first hand.

To such a man newspaper work made a special appeal. He rose rapidly, and when eye trouble interfered with the close application demanded for handling "copy," he made a stepping stone out of adversity, becoming an executive and part owner of the Rochester Evening Times.

When The Times was acquired by Frank E. Conradi and consolidated with The Union & Advertiser, as the Rochester Times-Union, Mr. Kates became managing editor, and later general manager. His executive ability and capacity to inspire loyalty and good feeling were recognized.

Interest in civic affairs led Mr. Kates to take an active part in politics. Although he was no speaker and always refused to be a candidate for office or to accept any political appointment, he was one of the most influential men in the Republican Party in Monroe County. His advice was often sought, and if followed usually proved sound, from both the strictly political and the civic viewpoints.

For many years a vestryman of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Mr. Kates had a deep interest in church affairs, to which he gave much time and attention. He was also active on behalf of the Rochester YMCA, and identified with a large number of social and civic organizations.

By his associates, by those who worked with and under him, Mr. Kates was regarded not only with the respect due his ability, but with real affection inspired by his kindness of heart.

Death claimed Mr. Keller, 62, vice-president and secretary of Keller, Heumann, Thompson Company, yesterday. He died in the office of the firm's president, Sol Heumann.

FREDERICK L. KELLER

Death of Frederick L. Keller, vice-president of Keller, Heumann, Thompson Company, removes a man who had played an important part in building up one of the city's leading clothing firms.

Mr. Keller went to work in the shops of his father, a coat manufacturer, at 18, and early established himself in the same business.

Thus he brought knowledge and experience in his specialty to the merger in 1920 which created the firm, whose factory is now located in Clinton Avenue North.

For several years Mr. Keller's activities had been restricted by ill health, but his death brings a shock to his many friends, as well as loss to the community of a citizen who employed his marked ability and energy usefully and constructively.
John Keenan, City School Commissioner, Accepts Post as Football Tourney Czar

Conference Teams To Post Lists Tomorrow

By DON HASSETT

ENDING his support to The Democrat and Chronicle Athletic Association's 10-team Western New York Football Conference, John E. Keenan, member of the Board of Education and one of the city's leading grid protagonists, has agreed to act as czar of the forthcoming tournament. As commissioner of the Conference, he will be virtual dictator of the competing teams, occupying a post and wielding authority in the area football picture comparable to that of baseball's Landis and Bramham.

Already associated with the DCAA as chairman of its Civic Scholarship Awards committee, Keenan has a vital interest in football, dating back to his own school and college days. His selection for the commissionership is due to his efforts in restoring football to local high schools, Keenan's perseverance and personal initiative having opened the way for resumption of the sport in public schools here after a 50-year lapse.

Keenan, when approached with the invitation to accept the commissioner's post, asked for complete data on the organization. After studying it, he accepted, wholeheartedly supporting the Conference idea. Keenan said, "The Western New York Football Conference has a great deal of merit. Not only from standpoint of raising money for unfortunate youths who are in need of financial support for college—but because it creates for the first time a uniform program for the professional football teams in Upstate New York."

Funds acquired by the DCAA through the Conference, as through the successful Tournament of Champions, will be made available to the Civic Scholarship Award committee.

Pointing to date on which DCAA's Western New York Football Conference will begin eliminations at Franklin Field for rich prizes is John E. Keenan, member of the Board of Education and leader in restoration of high school grid activity, who has been named commissioner of WNY pro circuit, sponsored by this paper for scholarship fund.

Because he and his schoolmates at Cathedral High were unable to play formal interscholastic football with public high schools where football had been banned, Keenan first became interested in the game. His schoolboy team had to assume the name of Crims to play a high school game against the old East High Midgets of more than two decades ago, and Keenan determined to do something about school football even then.

Freshman football at Georgetown University further heightened his interest as he played under George Exendine, old Carlisle Indian star. Though too light for varsity ball, he followed the sport closely until he left Georgetown to join the Navy in 1917.

When elected a member of the school board in 1937, Keenan's first business with the board was the resolution to return high school football. He fought for the legislation until it was passed in 1938, and in two years' time has seen a promising six-team league, representing all the public high schools, mushroom into existence.

Explaining the personal attention he has given the league, Keenan says, "I've always been interested in the return of the high school sport, and this was by first opportunity to help in its return. I've always been an ardent fan, believing that in America where football was born we should participate in an American sport. The high school league gives young men in their teens this opportunity while the WNY Conference fosters a similar interest among the pros."

Keenan has named two assistants, Deputy Commerce Commissioner Henry V. Buhler and Emmett Schnepf, to aid him in the duties of the commissioner's office. Keenan and his aides will attend the meeting of managers of Conference teams at 8 p.m., tomorrow night at Powers Hotel, at which the participating elevens from East Rochester, Clyde, Le Roy, Geneva, Buffalo, Syracuse and Rochester—the Maine, Vays and Tartars—will be represented.

Player lists must be presented at this session, at which final preparations for the Conference opener at Franklin Field on Oct. 20 will be outlined.

Kelly Puts National Problems Before Local Political Issues

B, Dec 1937

This was the program laid out for himself by Representative George B. Kelly yesterday on his return from the special session of Congress. Queried on his plans to restore harmony to warring Democrats in Monroe County, he said:

"Believe it or not, I am working full time to Washington. I am returning there Jan. 2 for the regular session and I am going to keep right on being a congressman until I am recalled." He thought the regular session might end by May 1, after which he thought he might give some attention to local politics. Kelly said he "naturally" was interested in a local peace but he insisted he had no concrete plans to bring it about.

Aides Have Plans

Despite Kelly's plans, it was known that ward leaders were prepared to campaign on his doorstep with plans to change the local Democratic organization from the American Labor Party. Kelly conceded himself yesterday with saying that he was "hopeful" the situation would be ironed out.

Behind the scenes, before Kelly's return to Washington, will be many conferences, but there will be few bulletins posted on the course of negotiations.

Favors Tax Change

Kelly was disappointed at failure of wage and hour legislation but pleased at the War Reference, HOLC Win Kelly, Dec 24, 1937

Representative George B. Kelly of Rochester has shown his support behind the Ludlow war referendum and HOLC bills in Congress. A member of the steering committee conducting both bills in the special session, he has aided in obtaining 114 of the 208 signatures necessary to bring the Ludlow bill out of committee.

The referendum bill would make a national vote necessary to declare war, except in cases of invasion, and the HOLC bill would cut HOLC interest rates from 5 to 31/2 per cent and increase amortization period of loans.

Kelly 100 Word Autobiography Goes Into Congressional Directory

Washington Bureau
Democrat and Chronicle

Washington — The first public statement of every new Congress-man is about himself. It is printed in the congressional directory and becomes a part of the permanent record of each Congress-man. What each member says about himself is always read with great interest. Sometimes only the same party affiliation and address is given, while others have been known to write upward of 1,000 words, the majority of the time to which they are limited.

George B. Kelly, new Congress-man of the 58th New York District, said this about himself in the new directory of the 74th Congress issued late yesterday:

"Democrat of Rochester, N. Y.; born in Waterloo, N. Y., Dec. 12, 1900; graduate of St. Peter and Paul's Parochial School, Rochester, N. Y.; continued studies through extension courses at Western University of Rochester, assistant production manager, Fashion Park, Rochester, N. Y.; member of the Assembly from the two terms 1933-34; served in the Senate, 1935-36; married; won primary contest against incumbent Congress-man; elected to the Seventy-Fifth Congress on Nov. 3, 1936, receiving 107,088 votes; J. Fritchie Jr., Republican, 72,910; R. Briggs, Socialist, 1,800; Enza Harari, Communist, 414; and, Glen Simpson, 2,018."

Kelly Backs War Vote Bill

Rep. George B. Kelly of Rochester is devoting considerable effort during the special session of Congress to the Ludlow war referendum and HOLC bills.

Kelly is on the steering committee for both bills. He has already helped obtain 114 of the 208 signatures necessary to bring out of committee the Ludlow bill, which would make a declaration of war dependent on a national vote, except in cases of invasion.

He also is working to obtain signatures to a petition to bring either the Ellenbogen bill or H. R. 726, of which he is a cosponsor, out of committee. Either of these bills would cut HOLC interest rates from 5 to 31/2 per cent and would increase the amortization period on HOLC loans.

"If I plan to devote serious study to the chapters of the three major matters before the special session, farm control, hours and wages bill and government reorganization," he said last night, "I plan to go across the state to all counties of the three major matters, discuss local politics now, particularly his future plans.
Choice Job Rumored For Kelly

By JESSE S. COTRELL

Although he was defeated for reelection to Congress, Rep. George B. Kelly of Rochester is not likely to be left out on a limb by the Democratic administration.

He is in the "plum" line for a choice job as a reward for his staunch support of New Deal legislation in his two years in Washington.

Reports are that Kelly is under consideration for second assistant secretary of labor, or for New York State administrator of the new Wages and Hours Act.

Many Vacancies

Whether the young legislator finds one of these places, or some other federal position, depends on what slate makers now at work decide to do. It is certain that the New Deal will do a great variety of vacant places here.

He is being carried on the preferred list of the New Deal bigwigs to take care of soon after his term expires Jan. 3. According to informed circles.

Kelly went to bat for the Roosevelt administration on a number of important measures; he served on the major Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committees.

Kelly Leaves Today to Talk of New Duties

D. & C. Jan. 15, 1939

Major Kelly, lifelong resident of Rochester, joined the RAP in 1914 and went to France early in 1915, and engaged in military flying. Early in 1918 he joined the American Air Corps. He stated that when he reached the front, the average planes of the Allies had a speed of about 60 miles an hour, while all planes, in the last battle, were up to 250 miles an hour. The German planes exceeded in maneuverability. The first planes were armed only with rifles and pistols, and the English were the first to equip their planes with machine guns.

In the early stages of the war the planes flew to high altitudes and were used largely for scouting purposes. This was effective in preventing surprise attacks and was to have revealed a flanking attack and saved the Germans from annihilation at the Marne.

Airplanes during the World War were not effective as bombers. The early planes carried only two light bombs and seldom were able to hit their target. There were no dog fights and the loss of planes and flyers some months ran as high as 60 per cent. The most effective defense was anti-aircraft gun, but the expression of the President was that even at the present day the defense was keeping pace with the increased speed and maneuverability of aircraft in a flying unit.

President John G. Carpenter gave a report of the tridistrict conference. Next week the Avon Club will celebrate its 15th anniversary.
The Book Is Closed--The Story Is Ended

Death has ended Timothy J. Kelly's service to the Monroe County Board of Supervisors after 25 years. The 13th Ward Republican held a seat on the board continuously, starting in 1915. At top is shown his desk with open book as he left it for the last time. Below the desk is draped in black, the book is closed, and a red rose, Kelly's favorite flower, keeps a silent vigil.

Thirteenth Warders were in the vanguard of mourners today, but one longtime friend said it is doubtful if the true number of those saddened by his passing will ever be known, for he was always ready to lend a hand or bestow money upon some family in need. The extent of his benefits was known only to himself.

Chairman Cooper directed Wiles to call a special meeting of the board either Friday or Saturday when action on the death of the supervisor will be taken and arrangements made to attend the funeral Saturday morning.

Colleagues, Friends
Mourn Tim Kelly Death

Black mourning today draped the desk of Timothy J. Kelly, "the little Irishman," in the Board of Supervisors room at the Court House.

News of his unexpected passing in his sleep at home early today left its mark on the faces of his colleagues, and to his hundreds of friends throughout the city and county the sad news traveled swiftly.

"Tim Kelly is dead." James Lee Wiles, board clerk, placed a single red rose on the black-draped desk.

Tim Kelly and the 13th Ward went together. He was born there and lived all his life there. He attended St. Mary's Parochial School in South Street.

Colleagues in county government.
Chairman Samuel A. Cooper of the Board of Supervisors, long an intimate friend, planned a call today to all other members to attend the funeral.

Kelly and Cooper stood together through many a battle and many an experience, one of which found them on a train in Louisville with several other Rochesterians one night in January, 1937, after they attended a convention of the Road Builders Association of America in New Orleans.

Escapes Bullet

A bullet was fired through the rear door of the observation coach in which they rode. It narrowly missed striking Kelly in the head and it sent a shower of glass into Cooper's lap.

Kelly seldom stepped out of his supervisor's role, but in April, 1939, he announced himself willing to step into the political picture as a candidate for Monroe County clerk if Republican headquarters would give him the word. Walter H. Wickers last won the nomination and was elected.

For many years he conducted a tavern in what was known as the Eisenberg block at Clinton Avenue.

Timothy J. Kelly

Death came peacefully as he slept for Tim Kelly, beloved dean of the Board of Supervisors. He was found dead in bed at his South Goodman Street home today.

South and Meigs Street, becoming owner after serving as manager for many years for the late William Eisenberg.

Kelly's circle of friends was wide and extended far beyond his numerous political contacts. He was a member of the Elks, the Union League Club, the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the Red Men and the Liedertafel.

Kelly's favorite flower, keeps a silent vigil.

Short of stature and slender of build, he was a keen and astute political fighter, a figure of great color and popularity. Many of his closest friends were his longtime colleagues in county government.

Friends Pay Homage at Kelly Rites

Rochester politics paused and bowed its head today.

Timothy J. Kelly was buried.

As the bells at St. Boniface Church in Gregory Street tolled, thousands from all walks of life reverently bowed their heads in memory of a man whose unpublicized charities were as many as his friends.

Found Dead Wednesday

Tim Kelly, supervisor of the 18th Ward for 26 years, was found dead in bed at his home, 761 S. Goodman, Wednesday morning after 34 years of bustling life, more than half of which he was a key figure in Republican politics.

Kelly had been active in city and county affairs, both Republican and Democratic, for many years.

His friends were legion.

Friends Seek Memorial for Tim Kelly

Plans to purchase a memorial for the late Tim Kelly, veteran member of the Board of Supervisors, being made today by friends in the Court House, City Hall and throughout the city.

Although exact nature of the memorial is undecided, a group of Kelly's friends announced plans to have a committee named to study the problems and seek contributions.

The memorial plans were spurred when Frank B. Schmidt, managing clerk of the district attorney's office, and one of Kelly's closest friends, received a contribution of a dollar in an anonymous letter from one of Kelly's admirers.

The letter suggested that a committee he formed to include representatives from the 13th and 14th wards, Erie Social Club and the Court House and City Hall. The letter was signed “A friend.”

Choice of the type of memorial, Schmidt said, would be left up to the committee.
Tribute to Tim Kelly

Editor Democrat and Chronicle

"Tim" Kelly, a true friend in need, always a friend in deed, is dead.

Without friendship, farewell handshakes—without love's despairing kiss upon his lips—"Tim," alone in the silent night, started on that strange one-way journey to the Treasure Island of our hopes and dreams, where he trusted we will be richly rewarded for his generosity and the good deeds that he did while he remained with us.

His passing was no doubt as he wished it to be—for there were no joys to share, he always wanted others to enjoy them with him; but if there were sorrows to be borne, he preferred to bear them alone, which was the spirit of "Tim" Kelly.

A joyous character—wit and humor as ready, as light, and as clear, generous, extravagant, and kind.

A helping hand was always extended to those in distress. Even when he knew he was being imposed upon his generosity was flavored with good will.

After twenty-five years of public service—in which he truly tried to help people—he had not lost faith in his fellow men. It seems that the pecuniary construction of some men always to see the good in others, even their faults.

"Tim" Kelly was of that construction.

His length of service on the Board of Supervisors, beginning in 1875, is the longest with the Board. During all those years of faithful service, he was Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, has indeed been both the conservator of the money and the outstanding sponsor of all those things that were beneficial to the community. His discrimination in those matters which were truly beneficial and those projects which only cost money without serving a real community purpose, was remarkable.

He was conservative in spending the people’s money, but lavish in distributing aid to those who were truly needy.

No one can estimate the good that "Tim" Kelly has done for the people of Rochester. The list of those whom he has helped, the helpless and the hopeless he has assisted, is long.

Each of those for whom he has done a favor, if they were to bring a tiny bud as a token of appreciation of his generous deeds, he would rest today beneath a wilderness of flowers.

The Distinguished Career of Professor Francis W. Kelcy

There are people in Rochester who remember the late Professor Francis W. Kelcy, and they are not all in the university where he was, of course, known as a scholar and teacher. Dr. Kelcy, as you may remember, was graduated from the University of Rochester in 1876, and in 1880, he received a degree of his doctor's degree, and as one of his last undertakings conducted an archaeological expedition to the ancient Carthage, of which expedition the University of Rochester was in part the result.

As a classical scholar, as author of Latin text books, Professor Kelcy's name is widely known. To a considerable number of us he was also an example of what he taught. The smaller public knew him as a patron of all the arts, and one whose knowledge and discrimination were of the highest standard. In one of the recent numbers of the Archaeological Journal of the University of Rochester, Professor Kelcy contributed an appreciation of the work of the late Professor Kelcy, in a part of which follows:

But though his teaching was the basis of his life's work, it was a small part in the scope of his intellectual affairs. Book after book from his frequent pen, articles unnumbered, were contributed to various periodicals, and in his work in the university stimulated him to his lifework, which has been the delight of his friends and the despair of his editors. In 1910, he surveyed the charge of the first of the University of Michigan and the Near East. In 1920, he founded and in 1924, he was president of the American Archaeological Association. The University of Michigan, in honor of him, established the Francis W. Kelcy Professorship of Romance Languages, and in 1925, the Francis W. Kelcy Award was established by the University of Michigan.

Full military funeral services will be held at 342 Plymouth Ave. at 10:30 a.m. on Monday, and at 11 a.m. at Holy Apostles Church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulcher Cemetery on Sept. 25, 1949.

By CHARLES F. COLE

After nearly 46 years of teaching the young shoot how to grow," Dr. Ryland M. Kendrick, beloved member of the University of Rochester faculty, will relinquish his duties on July 1, he said today.

Doctor Kendrick, whose genial philosophy and interest in the undergraduates who studied Greek under him endeared him to hundreds of students he has steered through the shoals of "Greek master thoughts," joined the U. of R. faculty in 1891.

Since then, he has served continuously, with the exception of two years' leave of absence during which he studied in Berlin and Athens and married Jane Seymour Cooper of Rochester in the shadow of the Acropolis.

The Greek clergyman who performed the ceremony was a man who had been Dr. Kendrick's father's guide on a trip to Greece in 1890.

The University has been part of Doctor Kendrick's life since his boyhood. His father, Proef. A. K. Kendrick, was one of the five original faculty members, and the present Doctor Kendrick was graduated from the U. of R. in the class of 1894.

"I expect to keep busy, even though I am no longer connected with the teaching staff," Doctor Kendrick said today. Somewhat wistfully, he added:

"I have always enjoyed my class work. I shall miss that."

He plans to continue studying—"that's in his blood—and find plenty of writing and translation during the coming year."

Alumni to Honor U. of R. Professor

University of Rochester alumni will hold a banquet in the Powel Hotel to honor Ryland M. Kendrick, retiring this year as professor of Greek, and to attempt an answer to a question graduates have raised: How can the alumni best serve the University?

Professor Kendrick is an alumnus of the class of 1891, and has been a member of the faculty since 1891. His father, Rev. A. K. Kendrick, was one of the original faculty members.

Professor Kendrick's daughter was graduated from the University's founding, in 1890, and in 1896, so that the Greek department has been a Kendrick monopoly during the 87 years of the University's history.

Alumni are expected to receive attention Monday, with speakers for the programs of more and better football material arrayed against alumni champions of the college, and attendance on high standards of scholarship.

Arrangements are in the hands of the Committee on Alumni Affairs, headed by C. MacDowell, James Gray and Oliver P. Gurnie. Burt F. Ewell presides the Associated Alumni.
