Savings Chief Ends 39 Years in Postoffice

His Yard and Garden To Keep Him Busy, Says Veteran

There was a musical smile on Ross Loughborough's visage as he pulled down the window on the postal savings cage in the postoffice last night at 5 o'clock.

For with that motion he ended more than 39 years of service in the postoffice, 25 of which have been in the postal savings department, and he didn't quite know how he felt about leaving his familiar place.

Under the compulsory age limit he is being retired, although his co-workers know him as "the youngest 65-year-old man in Rochester."

That doesn't mean that he is going to be idle, however. The yard and garden at his home at 348 Mulberry Street need lots of attention, he says. And he welcomes the opportunity to read and study history and genealogy, his favorite hobbies.

He will also continue to teach a night class in citizenship at School 9, a job he has carried on for several years in addition to his work at the postoffice.

He was appointed a postal clerk Aug. 1, 1897. When the postal savings department was established in October, 1911, he was put in charge of that work in the Rochester office, and has continued in that position since that time.

As left to go home last night the Rochester chapter of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks presented him a handsome desk set, with an engraved plate bearing his name.

Dr. Frederick Losey, Shakespeare Lecturer, U. of R. Graduate, Dies

New York, June 2—Dr. Frederick Douglas Losey, 63, who as an authority on Shakespeare had lectured in every state of the union, died today of heart disease.

Doctor Losey, a native of Conesus, N. Y., was graduated from the University of Rochester, where he had begun his career as an interpreter of the classics while still an undergraduate.

His last recital was at Colgate University on Apr. 27. Since 1916 he had devoted himself principally to Shakespearean lectures, although his reading of "The Christmas Carol" was an annual event in many colleges.

Doctor Losey founded the dramatic organization of Syracuse University, Eer's Head, and the Blackfriars of the University of Alabama.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Marie L. Huber Losey, whom he married in Rochester in 1893, and a brother, Rev. John B. Losey, of Pasadena, Calif.

HUNT PRESSED FOR DRIVER IN STREET DEATH

Family Arranges Charles Ludwig Funeral

As funeral arrangements were completed last night for Charles Ludwig, 74, police pressed their search for the hit-run driver who left him dying in St. Paul St., where he was found by his son early yesterday.

Rites for Ludwig, Rochester's third traffic victim this year, who died at 3:30 a. m. in Highland Hospital, will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday at his home, 18 Vick Pk. B. Burial will be in Mt. Hope Cemetery. Survivors are the son, Charles W. Ludwig Jr., a daughter, Mrs. Philip Ludwig, and three grandchildren.

John G. Lorenz, Pioneer Oil Operator, Dies

Word was received here today of the death, Mar. 1, of John Charles Lorenz, 95, father of Mrs. William F. Barth, of 18 Curtis St.

Mr. Lorenz was a pioneer oil field operator in Pennsylvania and a resident of Titusville, Pa. He died of injuries suffered in a fall.

He was born in Rexheim, Germany, Oct. 14, 1842 and came to America in 1866 with three brothers and three sisters, all of whom settled in Clyde. He went to Pennsylvania in 1859 and was employed in the oil fields for 40 years.

A sister who remained in Clyde, Mrs. Annie M. Eckert, died in 1885 at the age of 93. A sister, Mrs. Lena Schneider of Syracuse, six sons, six daughters, 19 grandchildren and six great grandchildren survive. He was married three times.

The son, who lives at the Vick Pk. B address, hailed his car in St. Paul St. near Hart shortly after 12:30 a. m. when he saw a body lying on the pavement. As he turned over the unconscious form he recognized his father, founder and for 18 years president of the German Club.

Arriving a few minutes later, Raymond Archer, 350 Monroe Ave., reported he was hailed in St. Paul St. by a driver coming in the opposite direction on the wrong side of the street. When he stopped the car the other man asked him to fall an ambulance, saying he had struck a pedestrian. As Archer called police from a nearby restaurant the man disappeared.

Police of Vest Avenue said the hit-skip driver is about 25 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall and wore a uniform, cap and puttees such as worn by a service or parking station attendant or a chauffeur. His large black sedan bearing 1937 plates was battered, one headlight being turned around, Archer told them.

Archer was on his way home from the northern part of the city when he met the driver and later the younger Ludwig, a friend and employee at his motor agency. The elder Ludwig had been attending a meeting of the Badischer Mannechor and apparently, was crossing St. Paul St. to get a street car when felled. He was a retired piano dealer.
Canon Law Wins 3-Year Dispute; 5,123 Masses Slated for Dead Veteran

By JAMES B. HUTCHISON

INVOKING ancient canon law, the Rochester Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church today brought ease to the soul of James W. Loucks, 90-year-old Civil War Veteran.

From war-torn China to the jungles of Africa, Catholic missionaries will celebrate 5,123 masses for the repose of Loucks' soul and that of his brother, Daniel, as the result of a lawsuit filed by Archbishop Edward Mooney's efforts in unraveling legal knots that held up the rites for three and a half years after the veteran's death.

Story Unfolded

The strange story of unsewing religious faith, that dates back to a pledge made at the Battle of Gettysburg, was unfolded in a demonstration of Judge George W. Pratt in Bath Surrogate's Court.

When the tall, white-bearded veteran died Jan. 18, 1884, at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home in Bath, he left the bulk of his $9,273 estate to be used for masses for himself and his brother, who died in 1919.

Under laws of the church, the masses should have been celebrated within a year after Loucks' death. But nearly four years slipped past before the conflict between state and canon law ended in the establishment of a legal precedent, paving the way for fulfillment of the veteran's last wishes.

In the little hamlet of Manheim, in Herkimer County, James Loucks was born in 1844. When he was only 10 years old, he enlisted as a private in Company H, Second New York Heavy Artillery, formed at Utica to Join the Union Army at the battlefront.

Marvels at Sisters

Loudon was recognized by the Confederate forces from Cold Harbor to Gettysburg, and during the fierce hand-to-hand battles he valiantly at the work of the Sisters of Charity in caring for the wounded and dying.

He became interested in the Catholic faith. When his company wheeled into action at Gettysburg, Loucks vowed that “If the Almighty God spares me in this war, I will become a Catholic.”

The veteran's battlefield pledge was repeated by the Rev. Arthur A. LeMay, chaplain of the Soldiers and Sailors Home, who knew Loucks intimately during the last 15 years of the veteran's life.

When he was mustered out of service, Loucks went to Little St. Mary's Cemetery, Little Falls, where he lived on a farm near the city with his brother, Robert H. Loucks. Remembering his vow, Loucks studied in the Catholic Church with the Rev. James Ludden, then pastor of St. Mary's in Little Falls.

He was converted to the faith and remained a communicant until his death. From 1877 to 1889, he was sexton of the church.

Masses Delayed

Puzzled by terms of the will, the bank president filed a petition for “judicial settlement” to determine whether the principal of the fund should be paid for masses or the income. Meanwhile, with legal proceedings dragging, no masses were celebrated.

Learning of the situation, Archbishop Mooney, through Attorney Eugene J. Dwyer entered the case on behalf of the Rochester Diocese. Canon law, Bishop Mooney pointed out, provided that if masses are not said within a year after death, the diocese shall take the money and bequeathed for that purpose and see that terms of the will are carried out.

A unique question of law arose when the Herkimer Trust Company argued that under state law, as executor of Loucks' estate, it was entitled to dispose of the money as it saw fit.

Canon Law Prevails

COUNSEL for the bank notified Archbishop Edmund F. Gibbons of the Albany Diocese, who also joined the legal battle, contending the money should be used for masses in that diocese because Loucks was a lifelong member of the Little Falls parish.

After lengthy arguments and a study of the canon law filed by Dwyer, Surrogate Pratt decided that canon law superseded state law in the case, because Loucks' estate was bequeathed to the necessary and according to the customs of the church.

The entire fund of $6,123 must be expended for masses, which $1,757 cut the amount to $4,365. Thus, through the expenses of the court, Loucks' estate, nearly 2,000 masses cannot be celebrated.

The Rev. William Bergan, chancellor of the Rochester Diocese, said today the $4,365 fund will be turned over to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith to distribute the money to foreign missions, where the masses will be said immediately.

Surrogate Geo. W. Pratt

He untangled legal knot in Civil War veteran's will case.

According to Father LeMay, thrifty, he saved nearly $10,000 from his wages as a farmers' helper, road worker and shoemaker.

Then in May, 1913, he was admitted to the Soldiers' Home in Bath at the age of 69.

Making his will July 28, 1923, Loucks bequeathed $200 to John's Orphan Asylum of Utica, $100 to the Sisters of St. Joseph in Little Falls, a trunk and three suitcases to a nephew, Alvarado, to another relative, Emerson Sutin of Gloversville.

After requesting to be buried in Little St. Mary's Cemetery, Little Falls, Loucks left the remainder of his money to the Herkimer County Trust Company “to be used for masses for the repose of my soul and my brother, Daniel.”

Never Married

Loucks never married. He was deeply religious and spent much of his leisure reading and studying.

Ex-Superintendent of Poor, Clarence V. Lodge, Dies

Clarence V. Lodge, Monroe County superintendent of the poor for about 15 years at the turn of the century, died yesterday at his home in Sterling.

Mr. Lodge, 84 years old, received injuries in a fall six weeks ago, from which he did not recover.

He was first elected superintendent of poor, on the Republican ticket, in 1894. He was born in Henrietta. As a young man he was appointed warden of the almshouse and from the time he became superintendent of poor he made his home in the 14th Ward, Rochester.

When he lived in Rochester, he was active in the Masons and was a member of the IOOF and the Red Men.

Hawaii Calls Ship Designer

A Rochester man who helped build America's fleet during the World War at Charlestown Navy Yard will sail from San Francisco for Hawaii Apr. 11 for duty as a naval architect again.

He is Edwin Law, who has accepted a civil service appointment and the assignment to Hawaii. At present, he is with the Apo Arm at Bayonna, N. J., building mosquito boats.

A graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Long is the son of William Long, Genesee Valley Park boat livery proprietor for many years. Edwin Long's wife, daughter Elizabeth and son William live at 2062 Culver.

Ira Ludington, 15, Dies; Services Thursday

Ira W. Ludington, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Ludington, 70 Wilshire Rd., died today (Dec. 7, 1943) at Geneseo Hospital. He had been ill some time.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Hedges Memorial Chapel Thursday afternoon at 2 p.m.
Robert T. Lansdale, 43, former East High School instructor, was appointed commissioner of relief for New York State at a salary of $12,000 yearly.

Appointment of Lansdale, director of the Institute of Welfare and Research of Community Service Society of New York, fills the vacancy created by the death last February of David C. Adie.

Long Experience Cited

In announcing the appointment, Chairman Lawrence S. Greenbaum of the State Board of Social Welfare said Lansdale was chosen because of his more than 20 years experience in public welfare work throughout the state, including New York City.

Born in Elmira, he is the son of the late Herbert P. Lansdale, former general secretary of the Rochester YMCA, and Mrs. Lansdale.

He was graduated from Elmira High School and received his A.B. degree from Oberlin College, after which he returned to East High to teach English and journalism. He left there in 1925 to enter the New York School for Social Work.

World War I Veteran

A World War I veteran, the new commissioner served as director of the state and local organizing study of the New York City Council on Unemployment Relief, and for four years was assistant to the commissioner in the United States Office of Indian Affairs.

Lansdale holds an A.M. degree from Columbus University and is a member of the faculty of the New York School of Social Work of Columbia, in charge of public welfare administration.

His brother is Herbert P. Lansdale, who followed in the footsteps of his widely-known brother and is present general secretary of the YMCA here.

Rites Set Saturday

For Gerald P. Looker

Gerald P. Looker of 113 Stoneleigh Court, Pittsford, was held today in the Ingmar and Nagle Funeral Home, Court and Chestnut streets.

Funeral services for Gerald P. Looker, 36, of 113 Stoneleigh Ct., Pittsford, were held today in the Ingmar and Nagle Funeral Home, Court and Chestnut streets.

In poor health for three years, Mr. Looker died Thursday (Dec. 2, 1943) in the Billings Hospital, Chicago, where he had gone Nov. 2 for an operation.

He was an active member of Oak Hill Country Club. He was also a member of the National Constellation Lodge, F&AM, of Malone and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary D. Looker; a daughter, Joan; a son, Second Lieut. Hugh Looker; his brother, Earl L. of Malone, and a sister, Mrs. Gladys J. Cook, also of Malone.

Burial will be in Malone.
Self-Rule for Puerto Rico Opposed

A native of Puerto Rico, now enlisted in Rochester's army of war workers, today denounced President Roosevelt's proposal that Puerto Rico, a United States possession, be granted self-government.

Such action now, said Rafei Lopez, 339 S. Plymouth, a former teacher of Spanish, would not alleviate famine conditions on the Caribbean island, convert it into an Atlantic "Gibraltar" for the defense of the Panama Canal, and would only result in a political blunder for Washington.

On Tuesday the President asked Congress to consider as soon as possible an amendment to Puerto Rico's organic law, permitting the people to elect their own governor. Reports of hunger and want in the territory, ruled by America for 43 years, spurred the President's action.

"The two million people in Puerto Rico are calling for food—not for the right to elect their own governor," the 32-year-old Puerto Rican declared. "Just because Puerto Rico will be self-governing doesn't mean they can open the sea lanes and let food come in."

The whole matter should be a post-war problem. Right now such action might endanger the general war effort, because then the people would fall easy prey to Axis propaganda, which already has a foothold on the island.

Instead—Lopez would encourage the immigration and distribution of the overcrowded population to the mainland and even to the United States. He discussed the farm labor problem, saying "we could import farmers from Puerto Rico here. They could also help in war factories."

Death Takes Ex-Policeman

Conrad M. Linhos, 70, of 737 Bay St., superintendent with the Junior Police Company and Brown's Race, died yesterday (Nov. 20, 1943).

Mr. Linhos, employed by the company for 33 years, was a native Rochesterian. He was a member of Court Highland, Foresters of America, and the Brotherhood of Christ Lutheran Church.

Surviving him are his wife, Anna; five daughters, Mrs. John Aberle, Mrs. Owen Blake, Dorothy K., Ruth M. and Florence M. Linhos; a son, Carl H. Linhos, five sisters and a brother.

The body was taken to Corbett Funeral Chapel, 756 Main St. E. Services will be held Monday at 11 o'clock, interment will take place in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Rites Planned Today For Ex-Policeman

Last rites for Herman J. Ludke, 69, of 21 Arnold Pk., retired policeman, will be held at 11 a.m. today in the Corbett Funeral Chapel, 735 Main St. E.

Mr. Ludke, who retired 12 years ago, was appointed to this city when a young man and was associated with the Rochester Police Department in 1901, assigned to Exchange Street Station, from which he worked for 30 years.

For almost that entire period he patrolled the night beat encompassing the Four Corners and the Front Street section. In those days that section was known as his "neighborhood." Policeman Ludke—a powerful man of more than 200 pounds—was known for his ability to terminate brawls without aid of his nightstick. Fellow workers recall one night when Policeman Ludke grasped two husky young men engaged in augging match that threatened to turn the establishment into a shambles. Policeman Ludke grasped them, knocked their heads together and then carried them out the door—one under each arm.

Two years before his retirement he was transferred to University Avenue Station.

He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Albert Langworthy and Olga J. Ludke; five sisters and a brother. He will be buried in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

DEATH CLAIMS
EDWARD LLOYD, OFFICE CLERK, TILL TWO WEEKS
Packing Company
Officer Known
As Singer

Mr. Lloyd had been at his office for two weeks, except for one morning last week, associates said.

Noted for his fine tenor voice and his activities with the Cambrian Welsh Society, Mr. Lloyd was born in Wales and came to this country in 1898, taking up his residence in Ulica. There he sang in the local churches and with Masonic groups.

He came to Rochester in 1921 when Frederick M. Tobin took control of the Rochester Packing Company. As director of payroll, Mr. Lloyd had always held the post of assistant secretary-treasurer.

In Rochester he sang at Baptist Temple for many years and was active in Masonic work. He was a 32nd Degree Mason and was president of the Rochester Welsh Society. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias and the Rotary Club, of which he had been a director. He was a fellow of the Royal Academy of London.

He leaves his wife, the former Jane W. Lloyd; two daughters, Mrs. Paul G. Germann and Mrs. Rodney C. Mertz; a brother, John Lloyd; a sister, Mrs. Hugh Roberts; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p.m., Monday at Ingmar & Nagle Company, 137 Chestnut St. Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery.

ROBERT P. LEVIS, MAGISTRATE IN NEW YORK, DIES

Rochester Native.

Magistrate Robert P. Levis of New York, a native of Rochester, died suddenly last night, Dec. 2, 1943, at his home, 226 South Avenue, at 11:15 a.m. He was a Republican.

Mr. Levis attended Rochester schools and was educated at the University of Rochester in 1898 and Columbia Law School in 1903. He was employed by the city's water works and comptroller's office from 1921 to 1941, resigning to the New York City bench last January. In 1941 he was elected sheriff of New York State, only to have the office abolished by voters at the same polls. He was a Republican.

Judge Lynn was born in East Bloomfield and spent his early years on a farm. Through his own efforts he attended Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, graduating there in 1875. He came to Rochester, studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1881.

Seven years later he became a county judge on the appointment of Gov. David B. Hill, filling the unexpired term of Judge John S. Morgan. In 1889, William Werner, a Republican, defeated him at the polls.

From then until Jan. 11, 1916 when he became U. S. marshal for the Western New York district, he campaigned actively for the Democratic Party each fall. He frequently was a delegate to state and national conventions.

At conventions he was sometimes mistaken for the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh. He was acquainted personally with every recent Democratic presidential candidate and was a close friend of William Jennings Bryan.

Judge Lynn served a term of several years as a U. S. attorney for the Western New York district shortly before he was made marshal, but the Senate refused to confirm his nomination.

He had served as president of the Rochester Bar Association and was a member of many local civic and political groups.

He is survived by his second wife, Mrs. Joan Lynn Schild; two children, John D. Lynn, Jr., and Mary Stuart Lynn; a sister, Miss Emma M. Lynn, and a brother, Thomas M. Lynn. He was a brother of the late county judge William F. Lynn. Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery.

Rites Planned Tomorrow For Former U. S. Marshal

Last rites for Judge John D. Lynn, Rochester's World War I marshal, will be conducted at 2 p.m. tomorrow at his home, 14 Lambert Pl., where he died as result of a fall early yesterday (Jan. 21, 1943). He was 85.

Known as "the Grand Old Man of the Democratic Party" here, he was noted more for his accomplish- ments as U. S. marshal than as a jurist, a title gained in an interim appointment to the County Court bench.

On President Wilson's appointment Judge Lynn became U. S. marshal for Rochester and Western New York in 1916. A few months later he was sent on war- ports in the Pacific, where he was in charge of the U. S. military medical unit. He organized and directed the U. From then until Jan. 11, 1916 when he became U. S. marshal for the Western New York district, he campaigned actively for the Democratic Party each fall. He frequently was a delegate to state and national conventions.

At conventions he was sometimes mistaken for the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh. He was acquainted personally with every recent Democratic presidential candidate and was a close friend of William Jennings Bryan.

Judge Lynn served a term of several years as a U. S. attorney for the Western New York district shortly before he was made marshal, but the Senate refused to confirm his nomination.

He had served as president of the Rochester Bar Association and was a member of many local civic and political groups.

He is survived by his second wife, Mrs. Joan Lynn Schild; two children, John D. Lynn, Jr., and Mary Stuart Lynn; a sister, Miss Emma M. Lynn, and a brother, Thomas M. Lynn. He was a brother of the late county judge William F. Lynn. Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery.

John D. Lynn

Though John D. Lynn, whose death has come in his 85th year, was appointed to the County Court bench in 1888, he was best known as U. S. Marshal for Rochester and Western New York during the World War.

This task he performed with remarkable insight and effectiveness. There were 16,000 aliens in the area to be enrolled. No serious trouble occurred.

Such difficulties as arose were handled with firmness by the marshal. But he took the humane and sensible view that well disposed persons of German birth should not be persecuted or annoyed, a policy which was fully vindicated by results.

Always a staunch Democrat, Judge Lynn was one of the elder statesmen of his party. He attended its conventions regularly for upwards of 40 years. A well read man, with a large home library, John D. Lynn, was noted for his wide knowledge of history and political events, both local and national.

Kindly, likeable, with a keen sense of humor, Judge Lynn had a host of friends who will regret his passing.
Judge Lynn Prominent In Democrat Circles

John D. Lynn, distinguished Rochester Democrat and former county judge who died today at his home, 14 Lamber ton Pk., attended every national convention of his party for half a century. He was 85.

The first convention he missed in more than 50 years was in 1935 when illness prevented his going. Preceding it was one of the major disappointments of his life.

Adren Roosevelt Backer

He was an ardent Roosevelt man and had known the President since the days when FDR was a state senator. At political conventions Judge Lynn, as he continued to be known up to his death, was often mistaken for the late Thomas J. Woll, of whom he closely resembled.

Born in East Bloomfield, Ontario County, Judge Lynn spent his early life on the farm. It was through his own efforts that he saved enough money to acquire an education.

He was graduated from Genese Wesleyan Seminary at Lima, in 1875. He then came to Rochester and studied law, being admitted to the bar in 1881.

Named County Judge

Only seven years after being admit ted to the bar, he was appointed a county court judge by Gov ger David Bennett Hill, to fill the unexpired term of Judge John S. Morgan. He was succeeded in 1889 by William E. Werner, elected on the Republican ticket.

Then followed long years of serv ice to the Democratic Party with his wit and campaign eloquence in constant demand. He served frequently as a delegate to state conventions as well as national conventions up until 1936.

On Jan. 11, 1916, Judge Lynn was appointed marshal by President Wilson, succeeding Henry L. Fasset of Elmira and the office for the Western New York district was moved from Elmira to Rochester.

He had been in office little more than a year when the United States entered World War I. To him fell the task of enrolling 16,000 aliens, of guarding against enemy espionage and preserving friendly relations with the district's many German-American residents.

Launched for Work

Later even his political foes ad mitted he served with diplomacy and fairness to all in his difficul test position.

He continued as marshal until 1924, when he resigned to return to the practice of law. A Republi can administration was about to appoint a successor.

Judge Lynn continued in the practice of law and an advisor in political circles until two years ago. At one time he was president of the Rochester Bar Association and was a member of many political and civic organizations. He was a brother of the late County Judge William F. Lynn.

Bar Group Honors Lynn

Tribute to the late John D. Lynn, former county judge and United States marshal, for his services to his community and government, and as a man unblemished in his professional, official and business connections, was paid yesterday afternoon by the Rochester Bar Association.

In memorial services held in the Court House, a Johnston read by Judge Harvey F. Remington said:

"He was an upright and one which brought him recognition from the state and national govern ments but, above all, the genuine love and regard of men and women irrespective of party or creed."

Judgment Lynn died Jan. 21, 1943, at his home, 14 Lamber ton Pk., at the age of 85.

Harry W. Lunt Death Declared Accidental

A certificate of accidental death was issued today for Harry W. Lunt, 71, of 251 Milburn, Rochester investment broker electrocuted near Lyndonville, Orleans County, late yesterday afternoon.

Lunt was killed instantly when a 32-foot water pipe he was helping to hold contacted high tension wires carrying 2,300 volts of electricity. His hands were “frozen” to the pipe.

Coroner David E. Fraser of Orleans County said Lunt was helping Fred M. Willett, Medina, owner of a cottage and a dance hall in Medina, to remove the pipe from a community well in Yates township for repairs. The pipe swung in the air and touched the wires.

With his niece, Mrs. Grace Clark of the Milburn Street address, he was visiting at the Willett cottage. Willett was knocked unconscious and Arnold fell to the ground as electricity coursed through the pipe.

Lunt was the uncle of Thomas E. Lunt and Clarence S. Lunt Jr., Rochester real estate brokers. He had been a resident of Rochester for many years.

Power Shock Kills Investment Broker

Lunt, a holiday visitor at a Lake Ontario resort near the Orleans County town was killed instantly when 2,300 volts went through his body, freezing him to the pipe he was holding. He was the uncle of Thomas E. Lunt and Clarence S. Lunt Jr., Rochester real estate brokers.

Lunt was helping Fred M. Willett, Medina, owner of the cottage where Lunt and his niece, Mrs. Grace Clark of the Milburn Street address, were visiting. With James Arnold, Medina, aiding them, they had removed the pipe from a community well in Yates township to repair it when it got out of control and contacted the wires.

Willett was knocked unconscious and Arnold fell to the ground as electricity coursed through the pipe which they were working on.

An inhaling from the Lyndonville Fire Department was used on Lunt to no avail. Coroner David E. Fraser of Lyndonville said he would issue a certificate of accidental death.

The body was taken to the Smythie Funeral Home and will be brought to Rochester.

Dr. Carl Ladd Succumbs At His Home in Freeville
Jon 24 1943
Dean of Agriculture At Cornell Victim Of Heart Disease

After graduating from the College of Agriculture, Cornell, in 1912, he took his doctor's degree work in the department of farm management at his alma mater, specializing in farm accounts, and received the degree in 1915. He then became director of the New York State School of Agriculture at Alfred. In 1921 he undertook the duties of the extension professor in farm management at Cornell and for four years had charge of all the extension teaching in agricultural economics and farm management. From 1929, Dr. Ladd held the position of director of extension at Cornell University. He supervised all of the extension activities of the two state, colleges, including Farm and Home Bureau work, 4-H Club work, farm organizations, correspondence courses, radio instruction and various other activities.

During 1928, Dr. Ladd spent months in England studying methods and organizing research in agricultural economics and farm management for one of the English educational institutions. During this time he traveled extensively over England, Scotland and continental countries, completing his view of the agricultural world by studying conditions on farms and in the colleges and experiment stations.

As chairman of the New York State milk and dairy stabilization committee during the critical period of 1929-1930, Dr. Ladd was in particular touch with the current problems of the New York State dairymen.

On July 28, 1938, he married Miss Florence Clark of Bradford, Vt. Dr. Ladd was a Mason and Rotarian. He attended the Presbyterian Church.

Memorial Rites Slated For Doctor

Arthur Scobey conducted memorial services in honor of Dr. Harold R. Leve at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Mt. Hope Cemetery, Range 3, off Forest Avenue, between Elm and Oak. A memorial will be unveiled.

Dr. Leve, member of the Kodak Temple and a native Rochesterian, died a year ago. He was a graduate of the University of Rochester and the College of Physicians and surgeons of Columbia University. He was on the staff of Park Avenue Hospital, vice-president of the medical staff of the Jewish Home for the Aged and active in Masonic circles.

FARMERS LOSE STANCH FRIEND IN LADD DEATH

Death of Dr. Carl E. Ladd at his home near Ithaca last night removes from the scene the man who in recent years had made firm influence on the Cornell staff in the life of his time, and will be greatly missed.

As dean of the New York State College of Agriculture, Ladd was known widely as an able administrator and sound thinker, thoroughly conversant with the needs of the states' producers and consumers. As a result of his professional abilities, Ladd was noted for two outstanding characteristics: "Keeping his ears close to the ground," and "sticking by his guns."

Ladd had little sympathy for classroom education alone. He not only kept himself informed of the current practical needs in the farm field, but to a remarkable degree was aware of the extension and teaching trends. This won for him widespread respect far beyond the state. A side of him less known to the public was his relationship with Washington.

Agents of Government

The land-grant college, including Cornell, have been the agents of the federal government in supplying public funds for agricultural education and extension teaching. In recent years numerous federal programs relating to agriculture were rolled into the extension service in the United States. The administration of these programs was considered unsound from a Northeast point of view. On top of that, extension work often stiffened up the farmer's attitude toward staff members with the implication of these programs with political appointees.

Ladd took a determined stand that the colleges would not advocate no programs or practices that were considered unsound. He insisted that appointments to the extension service in his home state were made entirely on ability and training, and that the same rule must apply in administering new activities undertaken by the service. When a paycheck was held up because an appointee did not have approval of a county political chairman, Ladd decided to face the issue. He declined to ask the local leader to approve the appointment, but went to Washington and told the national party chairman that unless the rule was withdrawn he would have to report the facts to his farmers. He won his point.

Ex-Engineer's Funeral Set or Tomorrow

Funeral services for Edward Frank Lacy of 42 Camden St., a New York Central Railroad engineer after a long illness. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Myrtle Lacy; three daughters, Mrs. Mary Holley of Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. Marjorie Stahl and Mrs. Virginia Cairns; two sons, Floyd E. of Syracuse and John of Rensselaer.

Loss to State and Nation

The untimely death of Dean Carl E. Ladd, of the State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, is a blow to state and nation.

Dr. Ladd had served as dean of both the Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics at Cornell from 1932 until last year, when these two colleges were separated, and Miss Sarah G. Blanding was made dean of the Women's Division.

To enumerate the various services of Dean Ladd to agriculture in his state and in the nation would be almost impossible. It is, however, true that practically every move for progressive agriculture, or to promote a more intelligent approach to the vital problems of farm management and production, numbered Dean Ladd as a participant or leader.

The Rochester area saw a great deal of Dean Ladd. He was a constant attendant at the meetings of the New York State Horticultural Society, held in this city each winter, and had made himself, as it were, indispensable to that organization as a leader and counselor.

Dean Ladd was a great teacher of agriculture, and had much to do with making the Cornell College of Agriculture one of the outstanding schools of that type in the United States. His work not only contributed greatly to the practical functioning of the school as a teaching institution, but in the field of research important studies and discoveries were registered under Dr. Ladd's leadership.

Thus the thousands who knew Dean Ladd in New York State will remember him not only as a warm, friendly, human personality, but as a man whose scholarship was matched by practical knowledge and a common-sense approach to the day-by-day problems of the dirt farmer.

Dean Ladd did not live in his laboratory or classroom. He lived in the world where men and women have to produce food, for the health and sustenance of the race.

He made a significant contribution to the life of his time, and will be greatly missed.

FLYING PUPIL AT 15 GETS HIS REWARD AT 19

Air Corps Awards Lieutenancy to Joseph Lentine

Joseph Lentine was 15—just a kid—when he signed up for the ground school training program offered in 1939 by The Democrat and Chronicle to interested boys and girls in aviation.

He’s 19 and has his wings as a second lieutenant in the United States Army Air Corps.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lentine, 237 Washington Ave., were mighty proud to hear about it. They poked through a scrap book and found Joseph’s picture on the day that he received his certificate from the Democrat and Chronicle Ground School of Aviation—just a simple little diploma that said he attained a scholarship average of 85% for the term. Just a kid, he was.

After Joseph finished the preliminary two days of airplane flying, he took instruction at the Municipal Airport in flying, and last year became Rochester’s commercial pilot and flight instructor. As a matter of fact after he received his certificate he had to wait for his 18th birthday to take the required examination.

He went into the Army in January. He’s now at Rosecrans Field, St. Joseph, Mo. He was commissioned in Detroit.

For Lentine the span between a younger tinkering with toy planes and a lieutenant with his wings wasn’t quite four years.
Heart Attack Victim

D. T. Lawrence, FORMER HEAD OF BOARD, DIES

Supervisor for 10 years passes at 64 in Webster

D. T. Lawrence of Webster, who retired in 1934 after serving five years as chairman of the Monroe County Board of Supervisors, died unexpectedly of a heart attack in his home, 47 Park Avenue, Webster, yesterday. He was 64.

A native of Webster, and educated there, Mr. Lawrence for many years was widely known in Republican politics throughout the county. He was a member of the Board of Supervisors, the last five of its years, and of the Board of Education, at one time he taught school and operated his own farm.

At the age of 22, Mr. Lawrence was elected as a member of Webster Lodge, 113, one of the youngest to hold this office. He was also a high priest of the Webster Royal Arch Masons.

He was widely known as an active Granger. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Edith Ann Wright Lawrence of Webster, and a son, Mrs. John Reeves of Rochester.

The funeral will be in the Webster Methodist Episcopal Church, Webster, Saturday at 2:30 p.m. There will be Masonic service at the family lot in Webster Union Cemetery.

Funeral Services Held For Owen Lee

Members of the Sea Breeze Volunteer Fire Department were bearers yesterday at funeral services for Owen A. Lee, 47, former chief of the Sea Breeze fire department, who died Thursday (May 20, 1943) at his home, 38 Brad St.

A one-time employee of the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company, he was among singers who appeared on early radio programs. The rites were conducted at the Savage Funeral Home, 1980 State St., and burial was in Riverside Cemetery, May 25, 1943.

Clerk 'Hikes' 13,000 Miles; 'Thumb Tired'

Desmond Constantine Lawrence is back home in Greece today after a six-months vacation in which he covered an estimated 13,000 miles at a total cost of $40.

Burned a deep bronze by United States and Mexican suns, the 33-year-old confectionery store clerk who lives at 146 Wyndhurst Dr., said he came home because the rainy season is in Mexico and his "thumb is tired."

He and a companion from Chicago hitched their way as far south as Puntarenas, Costa Rica. Many times they were questioned by Central American police after being mistaken for foreign spies.

"Once," Lawrence laughingly related, "I was arrested as being a bank robber named Lorenzo." After an all-night investigation he was released.

Another time, Lawrence said, they were lost for two days in a Costa Rican desert without food or water. Finally they were covered by a grass hill on the edge of the sand.

"We thought we were through. That boat looked like a palace," he related.

Lawrence who first hooked his thumb beside the road in the zero-worth district of New York last January went first to Chicago where he met Jacob Klein, another hitchhiker whom he met in Mexico a few years ago while "hiking."

Funeral Takes Optometrist

Max Levinson, 69, of 1403 Greendale Ave, optometrist here for 48 years, died at his home yesterday (July 18, 1943).

Hotel Man Takes New Capital Post

Jack Lynch, former Rochester hotel man, who has for several years been assistant manager of the new Willard Hotel in Washington, has been appointed assistant general manager of the new Statler Hotel in Washington.

Lynch formerly was with the Smoketown Hotel which he went to Washington several years ago with Harry Somerville, who was then superintendent of the Willard. Somerville has severed his connection with the Willard and is residing in New York City.

Ex-Rochesterian Rushed for Jobs At Capital Hotel

The man (and woman) power problem is no problem at all to Jack Lynch.

The former Sagamore Hotel manager, now assistant manager at the new Hotel Statler in Washington, was so crowded with job applicants yesterday, according to the Democrat and Chronicle's Washington bureau, that a reporter could hardly get to his desk. Although the Statler requires a staff of 750, Lynch said he was having no trouble getting recruits.

"We are importing most of our highly specialized people from other cities," he said, "but a hotel is run mostly by unskilled help and we are getting that locally."

Mr. Lee's father, George, was one of the first dairymen in this section. The Lee Road, Gates, was named in his honor.

Mr. Lee was educated in the Rochester and Greece schools and was a graduate of the Brockport Academy. He founded the W. S. Lee grocery in Brookport in 1903. He retired in 1928 but resumed business in 1934.

He married Caroline Blossom, Oct. 20, 1913. He was the clerk for the Board of Education and is honored in the plaque in the Brockport Central School, which was dedicated in 1931, occupying one room. He was also a member of the Daniel Holmes Chapter of the F & A. M.

He is survived by his widow, Caroline B. Lee; one sister, Mrs. William Clift of Palmyra; four granddaughters, Mrs. Robert W. Witherly, the Misses Ruth E. and Shirley E. Lyon, all of Palmyra, and one son-in-law, Mrs. James Clift, of New York City; one great-grandson, Richard L. Witherly; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at the home Wednesday at 10 a.m. The Rev. E. D. Webster officiates. Internment will be in the Lakeview Cemetery.

Ad Man Retires; On Job 69 Years

William S. Lyndon, a member of the advertising department of The Times-Union, will retire today after 69 years of newspaper work, 52 of which have been spent on the Times-Union.

Born in 1868, he became a journeyman printer in 1887, and worked in Rochester until December, 1902, when he became mechanical superintendent of the Syracuse Post-Standard and later of the Geneva Daily Times, returning to Rochester in 1908. In 1909 he was employed as an advertising man on The Union and Advertiser. In 1913, with the merging of the Advertiser and the Rochester Evening Times, he remained with the new paper, The Times-Union.

Last Rites Planned Today For Newark Ex-Contractor

Newark—Funeral services will be conducted today for John L. Lyke, 89, who conducted a paper and paint store here for 38 years and was a decorating contractor until his retirement 16 years ago. He was believed to be the oldest member of the Deluge Hose Company of the Newark Fire Department.

Mr. Lyke was a member of the Newark City Temple of Elks.

He is survived by a sister, Lillian, who lives in California.

Dean Ladd of Cornell Dies After Short Illness

Ithaca—Dean Carl E. Ladd of the State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, a nationally-recognized authority on agricultural education, is dead at the age of 55. He succumbed last night to heart disease with which he had been stricken Tuesday after returning from Springfield, Mass., where he was a director at a meeting of the Federal Land Bank.

Ladd died a few hours after State Police brought an oxygen mask from Syracuse University to his home at Freeville. Connected most of his life with the state college, where he was named director of extension in 1925, Ladd was a former executive director of New York's Emergency Food Commission. He was also a member of the State War Council and its predecessor, the State Defense Council.

Ladd, a native of McLean, Tompkins County, was graduated from the College of Agriculture in 1912. In 1915 he became director of the State School of Agriculture at Alfred, later serving as assistant secretary of the State School of Agriculture at Alfred.

In 1928, Ladd spent six months in England, studying methods and organizing research work in agricultural economics and farm management for an English educational institution.

In 1929, then-Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed him executive secretary of the governor's agricultural advisory commission, in which capacity Ladd studied closely public problems in agriculture.

As chairman of the State Milk Supply Stabilization Committee in 1932, Ladd was the first to come in contact with New York dairymen's economic problems.

Headed State Council

Ladd took a leave from Cornell in 1932 to become chairman of the state conservation commission. He was named dean of both the agriculture and home economics colleges at Cornell the next year, when the schools were separated.

He served three years, beginning in 1933, as chairman of the state agricultural council. In 1936-38 he was chairman of the state planning council.

As dean of the New York State College of Agriculture, Ladd was known widely as an able administrator and sound thinker, thoroughly conversant with the state's producers and consumers. Aside from his professional abilities, Ladd was noted for his "keeping his ear close to the ground," and "sticking by his guns."

Final Tribute

Paid to F. W. Lovejoy

Friends and business associates of Frank W. Lovejoy, late chairman of Eastman Kodak Company's board of directors, who died Sunday, Sept. 14, 1945, gathered at his hear in First Universalist Church today to pay tribute.

The body reposed in state from 9 a.m. to noon. Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. with burial in Riverside Cemetery.

The eulogy at the final rites was delivered by the Rev. William Wallace Rose, former minister at First Universalist, now of Lynn, Mass.

Except for certain continuous operations, the three Eastman Kodak Company plants, the office building and Distillation Products Inc., a subsidiary, were closed in respect to Mr. Lovejoy's memory.

Farm, Public Life Leaders Attend Services

By J. B. SKEFFINGTON

Ithaca—Sorrows friends, among them leaders in agriculture and public life yesterday filled Sage Chapel on the Cornell University Campus to pay final tribute to E. E. Ladd, for the past 11 years dean of the New York State College of Agriculture. Dr. Ladd died Friday night.

From the chapel the cortège wound its way some dozen miles over the hills of Central New York, to the Chemical classroom at McLean. There, a mile across the valley from the farm where he was born, he was an altar at rest in a section of the country he loved to talk and write about. Nearby to the Ladd plots, are monuments to Revolutionary War soldiers. As the party reached the grave the silver wings of an Army bomber flashed in the sun.

Simple Rite at Grave

A simple prayer by the Rev. Edward Horn, Ithaca Lutheran pastor, was the only service at the grave. As service was in Sage Chapel, the minutes of the Rev. W. J. Wright, assistant director of the Bureau of Markets, were recited by the Rev. W. J. Wright, assistant director of the Bureau of Markets, with whom Dean Ladd had been associated for years.

U. S. State Aides Present

From Washington, U. S. Commissioner of Agriculture, E. W. W. Wilson, director of extension of the United States Department of Agriculture, and the state extension agency of the League of American Farmers, represented by Maurice C. Ruff, public service commissioner, and a former member of the Ladd staff; M. C. Catherwood, state commissioner of commerce; Webster J. Strope, director of the Bureau of Markets; A. K. Getman, director of the Bureau of Agricultural Education of the State Department of Agriculture; A. E. Buczkol, director of the Bureau of Plant Industries; T. N. Hurd, state farm market director, Harry H. Duncan, director of the Rochester office of the Department of Agriculture and Markets.

A variety of state and federal agencies were represented. Present were Joseph P. King, New York assistant director of the United States Cotton Extension Service; J. A. Bevan, director of the New Jersey Extension Service, and a delegation of Army officers serving at Cornell.

Farm Organizations

Farm organization officers present included Fred H. Sestner, Albion, president of the New York Credit Administration; George Strope, Macedon, treasurer of the Dairymen's League; C. W. Banen, president of the New York and New England Apple Institute; Harold M. Stanley, Skanes, secretary of the State Grange; Edward E. Foster, Ithaca, general secretary of the StateFarm Bureau Federation.

From Springfield, Mass., came a delegation of Farm Credit Administration officials. Dr. Ladd was a trustee of the Federal Land Bank and affiliated organizations. Present were Allen Gillette, Farm Credit Administration general agent; E. H. Thomson, president of the Federal Land Bank; and Bernard A. Colby, president of the Intermediate Credit Bank.

Worked Unstintingly

W. J. Wright, until recently state leader of junior extension at the college came from his home in Stockbridge, Mich., for the service. As friends gathered in small groups to recall the life of Dr. Ladd there was general feeling that he had shortened his life by an unyielding devotion to his work, especially burdensome with the added load of wartime activities. Some months ago Dean Ladd was urged to save himself, but at the time he remarked that he was going to do anything he could "before the war became home office."

Tribute Paid
Late Dr. Leve

This was the keynote of the simple tribute paid to the late Dr.
Harold R. Leve, who served many hundreds of Masons, fellow physicians, fraternity brothers, and relatives who attended the services at Mt. Hope Cemetery yesterday afternoon to unveil a monument in his memory.

Dr. Leve, who practiced medicine in Rochester for 20 years, died here
July 24, 1942.

Speakers who eulogized Dr. Leve included Herman A. O'Connor, who represented the St. Louis Lodge, F.
& A. M.; Mrs. Hyman Phillips, associate matron of Flower City Lodge,
Order of the Golden Chain; Dr.
Simon Wronker, who spoke for the medical profession, and Goodman
A. Sarachan, associate state attorney for Western New York, representing Kappa Nu, a fraternity which Dr. Leve founded at the University of Rochester.

The service was conducted by Rabbi Aaron Solomon, cantor of Tempel Beth El. Members of the doctor's family attending the cerenomy included his widow, Eva R.
Leve; two sons, Austin and Lloyd;
two brothers, Benjamin and Julius;
and a sister, Mrs. Irving Rosenthal.

Memorial Rites Set Tomorrow

Lovejoy's Integrity, Service Cited at Rites

"His desk at Kodak Park and his home in the hills were the two poles in his life. And to both he brought the best that he had in him."

Officiating yesterday at the last rites for Frank W. Lovejoy, chairman of the board of directors of the Eastman Kodak Company, who died Sunday (Sept. 16, 1945), the Rev. William Wallace Rose, of Lynn, Mass., former minister of the First Universalist Church, where the services were held described the Kodak executive as a simple, straightforward, frank and warm-hearted man, devoted to public welfare.

"In a career covering nearly five decades," the Rev. Mr. Rose said,
"Frank Lovejoy never lost a friend or made an enemy, yet kept his integrity to the end."

Commenting on Mr. Lovejoy's qualities of generosity and human-ty, the minister declared that the executive had been a good layman and churchman, serving as chairman of the board of the church in which the services were held.

"Frank Lovejoy helped to create the Rochester tradition of public service and private rectitude, and was himself an example of that tradition at its highest and best."

He was a good man," the Rev.
Mr. Rose concluded.

From 9 a.m. until noon, hundreds of personal friends and Kodak employees filled into the church to view the body which lay in state.
Burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

All Eastman Kodak plants and offices in the city were closed yesterday in tribute to the memory of Mr. Lovejoy and flags on the company buildings were flown at half mast.

Forty-four honorary bearers, representing friends, officers and reps of the company and business associates, attended the service. They were: Paul Strong

Frank W. Lovejoy, Head of Kodak, Succumbs at 73

Mr. Lovejoy had not been working long at Kodak when George Eastman named his early partner, Col. Henry Alvah Strong: “Mr. Lovejoy is taking hold fully as well as I expected. He may turn out to be a very valuable manager.”

Made Plant Manager

This opinion was given practical effect with his promotion to assistant manager of Kodak Park Works just two years after he came to Rochester. A year familiarization with plant management. That was only the beginning. In 1906, “graduating” from Kodak Park, he became general manager of the Kodak Park development department for the whole company as well as one of its directors.

His subsequent stages of elevation as manager of the company’s business were election to a vice-presidency in 1919; appointment as general manager of the Kodak in 1924, continuing as general manager, and election as chairman of the board of directors in 1928.

The year 1900 was one of far-reaching significance in the photography industry. Under Mr. Lovejoy’s direction, Kodak began the manufacture of film base in continuous strips, several feet wide on large, slow-moving film bases. Previously, film had been made in comparatively short pieces on glass-covered tables. The transition to manufacture in continuous strips meant greater uniformity, new quality standards, new economies in quantity production and provisions for enough film to meet the tremendous demands of the expanding country, including those of the motion picture industry.

Cuts Unemployment

Mr. Lovejoy’s ability also produced administrative achievements of permanent value. One of his first was the reduction of seasonal unemployment, a problem because of the plan he worked out, the evil of seasonal unemployment, was virtually eliminated in December and the highly seasonal nature of sales of some of the most important Eastman products.

Mr. Lovejoy in 1921 relinquished the heavy duties of general manager, he was able to select company activities with which he desired to concern himself. Foremost among these interests was the welfare of the company employees and their families. He became a director of the company. Besides his Kodak connections, Mr. Lovejoy was a life member of the National Association of Manufacturers and of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He was one of the leading executives of the Rochester Rotary Club.

Gifts to Causes

Mr. Lovejoy had been a large contributor to various Rochester causes, especially the Community Chest and the Civic Music Association.

For many years he had a farm in Henrietta, which was his summer home and outside interest. When he had time, he enjoyed shooting, both skeet and pheasants. He was member of a gun club, members of which are from all walks of life, and one fellow member with whom Mr. Lovejoy seemed especially to enjoy himself was a steam-shovel operator.

The Kodak executive also was a member of the American Chemical Society, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Rochester Engineering Society, Phi Beta Kappa and the Masons. His club memberships included the University, Rochester, Genesee Valley, Country Club and Monroe Golf Club, the Technology Club and Engineers’ Club of New York City.

Mr. Lovejoy was an active member of the Fortnightly Club, a discussion group which held monthly meetings at homes of members. Surviving near relatives are the widow, the former Florence T. Fuller whom he married in 1907; two sons, Lt. Frank W. Lovejoy Jr., a physician serving with the Navy and Frederic Fuller Lovejoy, a technician fifth class, doing photographic work in the Army. A son, George L. Lovejoy and a daughter, Harriet Fuller Lovejoy, are deceased.

City Leaders Pay Tribute to Frank W. Lovejoy for Many Sterling Traits

Rochester civic and industrial leaders yesterday paid high tribute over the passing of Frank W. Lovejoy, chairman of the board of directors of the Eastman Kodak Company. Some of their statements follow.

Thomas J. Hargrave, president of the Eastman Kodak Company—"Mr. Lovejoy was the finest man I have ever known—fine in every way. His capacity for leadership and executive ability was outstanding. But somehow I feel he will be remembered most for his abiding faith in people. He was truly a great humanitarian."

"Many times he told me that good human relations counted more than anything in this world. His entire life in Kodak was devoted to that attainment. I honestly believe that most of the time he was thinking ways to improve the lot of the other fellow. He will be remembered and mourned by thousands in Kodak and Rochester."

"All of us must resolve to carry on in the spirit of fairness and the consciousness of right that dominated his life—for that is the only thing he would want us to do. That could well be our memorial to him. Rochester has lost its greatest citizen. We must preserve what he created."

William F. Strang, president of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce—"Mr. Lovejoy was one of the foremost citizens of Rochester and an extremely capable successor to George Eastman. His death will be a loss to the community not only because he was a leading industrialist, but because he was a man of broad civic interests."

Postmaster Donald A. Dulley—"Frank Lovejoy will be missed not only by his close associates in business, but by the entire community."

When Frank W. Lovejoy went home, Rochester lost a citizen whose memory will ever be held in the highest respect for his great civic interest.

M. Herbert Eisenhart, president of the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company—"I think Rochester has lost an outstanding citizen, and I have lost a close friend of 35 years. His going is a tremendous loss to the community."

Raymond Ball, president of the Lincoln-Rochester Bank and Trust Company, director of the Eastman Kodak Company and University of Rochester trustee—"Frank W. Lovejoy will long be remembered as a man who contributed greatly to the building of an industry known throughout the world, who had a keen personal interest in the welfare of its employees and who gave wholeheartedly of himself in support of worthy causes while community affairs. He will be missed by hundreds of people in all walks of life who trembled at his name."

"Rochester has lost one of its finest and most useful citizens."

Roland B. Woodward, former executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce—"In the death of Frank Lovejoy Rochester has lost one of its really distinguished citizens. Though he carried great responsibilities in the extraordinary growth of the Eastman Kodak Company, he somehow found time to be concerned about and to contribute his influence and money to the solution of many of Rochester's problems. The approach to these problems was always from the human side. Like George Eastman, he had vision and deep human understanding of what business could do to promote human welfare. He was a quiet man of personal charm and great sincerity. Many of us have lost a loyal friend."

Edward G. Miner, chairman of the board of the Fisher Company—"When Frank W. Lovejoy went home, Rochester lost a citizen whose memory will ever be held in the highest respect for his great civic interest."

Mayor Samuel D. Miller—"I am deeply grieved to learn of Mr. Lovejoy's death. He was one of Rochester's outstanding citizens who was so devoted to everything that was best for the city. We shall miss his wise counsel and participation in our community's civic and industrial activities."

James M. Spinning, superintendent of schools—"I am tremendously saddened by the news of his death. He will be missed as one of Rochester's leading citizens and as a contributor to the city's advancement."

"As a councilman, I don't know Mr. Lovejoy personally, but his passing will be a great loss to the community."

George H. Clark, president of the Cochrane-By Company and a director of Eastman Kodak—"I had known Frank Lovejoy since he first came to Rochester in 1897, and have valued him very highly ever since as a personal friend."

"In the passing of Eastman Kodak Company, the board of directors of the Eastman Kodak Company will regret his loss keenly, not only for the sake of the company, but for the whole community."

Edward A. Halbleib, general manager of the Gas Division, General Motors Corporation—"Frank Lovejoy was a great leader, both as an industrialist and a philanthropist. He always contributed above the ordinary to all Rochester's civic undertakings as well as those of a charitable nature."

Gibert J. McCurdy, president and treasurer of McCurdy & Company, Inc.—"Frank Lovejoy will be keenly missed not only by those with whom he was associated in business, but in his many community activities, but by a host of others in the everyday walks of life to whom he was always a friend."

Louis W. Johnson, president of Gimbals, Lindsay & Curr—"In recent years, it has been my privilege to have known Frank W. Lovejoy. I am saddened by the news of his death. Rochester has indeed lost a truly great leader, whose many fine qualities endeared him to all who knew him."

Alan Valentine, president of the University of Rochester—"Rochester has lost not only one of its most distinguished citizens, but one of its most deeply loved leaders. Many qualities brought to Frank Lovejoy the high place in the councils of industry, education and civic affairs he so richly deserved, and the greatest of these qualities were his human kindness and his uncommon integrity. The trustees of the University will sadly miss a loyal and wise associate, who knew him, they will miss even more a modest and genuine personal friend. To Mrs. Lovejoy and his family I give not only the sympathy of the University, but also the pride that such a man loved and served so well Rochester and its community."

Coroner Rules On River Death

Dr. Richard A. Leonardo, coroner, last night issued a certificate of suicide while temporarily insane in the case of Thomas F. Kane, 55, of 409 Lake, whose body was found yesterday morning floating near the Rochester Gas & Electric Corporation's Brewer Street station.

Kane's coat and hat were found on the Smith Street Bridge Sunday afternoon, shortly after he left the time of his death. Elizabeth Kane, 30 Cambridge.
Lovejoy
Chairman Of Kodak

Funeral services for Frank W. Lovejoy, chairman of the board of directors of Eastman Kodak Company since 1941, will be held in First Universalist Church at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Mr. Lovejoy died of a heart ailment yesterday (Sept. 16, 1945) in Strong Memorial Hospital. He was 73. The body will lie in state at the church from 9 a.m. to noon Wednesday. It has been requested that the hours 9 to 11 be reserved for Kodak employees and their families.

The Rev. William Wallace Rose, former pastor of the church here, now of Lynn, Mass., will speak at the funeral services.

Mr. Lovejoy served as president and general manager of Kodak from 1934 until his appointment as board of directors chairman.

He had been associated with the firm for 47 years, and was one of the principal factors in shaping its development.

Born in Concord, N. H.

Born in Concord, N. H., Dec. 11, 1871, he attended public grammar and high schools in that community and was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1894 with the degree of bachelor of science in chemical engineering.

Eighteen years later, Mr. Lovejoy made the arrangements for a meeting between George Eastman and the president of the institute which prepared the way for Mr. Eastman's donation of more than $20 million to that college.

After his graduation, Mr. Lovejoy took a job with a sugar refining company in West Baton Rouge, La., leaving six months later to become chemist for Curtis Davis & Company, soap manufacturers in Cambridgeport, Mass.

Joined Kodak in 1897

Mr. Lovejoy's association with the photographic industry began in 1897 when he became superintendent of the celluloid department at the six-year-old Kodak Park plant in East Rochester. Two years later he was promoted to assistant manager of the Kodak Park Works and a year later was plant manager.

Lovejoy Eulogy Cites Role as Public Servant

"Frank W. Lovejoy helped to create the Rochester tradition of public service and private rectitude, and was himself an example of that tradition at its highest and best."

So declared the Rev. William Wallace Rose, D.D., minister of the First Universalist Church of Lynn, Mass., in the eulogy he delivered yesterday for Frank W. Lovejoy, chairman of Eastman Kodak Company's board of directors, in First Universalist Church here. Dr. Rose, minister of the church here from 1919 to 1929, during which pastorate Mr. Lovejoy was chairman of the church's board of trustees. Mr. Lovejoy died Sunday (Sept. 16, 1945).

Humanness, Humor Cited

Dr. Rose, laid in this address:

There are so many things which chance to be said and grate to perform that tend to affect the pride of office of faith and love for Frank W. Lovejoy, that one barely knows where to begin or end. Everyone here could speak some word, in some instance in which his humanness and humor, his understanding, his readiness to serve, his quiet, uncompromising convictions, his appreciably liberal public welfare sound expression. All these and more marked the man in whose honor and remembrance we are here.

Frank Lovejoy was no strange, complex personality, difficult to fathom or yet account for. He was simple and straightforward, constant in his words, firm in his fears, and yet warmhearted. He would knock on your door whenever he was trying to do if you were trying your best. There he had no pitifulness with his work. All the strong, simple virtues showed in him, without pettiness or vanity. His capacity for bearing might lead the unknowing to underestimate his immense gifts.

And to this we must add that he loved every man in this city of his adoption, his friends, his home, his family and his country with simple directness. He was a Kodak man, and his home in the hills was the two poles of his life. And to both of the best he said. In a career covering nearly fifty years, Frank Lovejoy was a friend of a man or an enemy, yet kept his integrity.

 Called Good Chemist

Between his office and his home stood his church. Always a worshipper there, the church was the leader of the school, which was the leader of New Hampshire, Mr. Lovejoy attended the state's annual meeting which had been held over many years. And it was his attention to the pulp, and his passionate regard for the place, and his personal encouragement which was to be the keynote.

Beyond any formal profession of faith, there was that of all good men, regardless of creed, to do justly, love mercy, walk humbly.

But the real scale of his life which this hour commemorates will be felt in that home where, in the bosom of the family, was the same generous, considerate personality which always knew that there was harmony there and good encouraged.

To that dedicated heart, that indomitable spirit, already echoed there. We give sympathy and also enter there. We give sympathy and also enter there.
