Harper Sibley First In Jack Moranz Series

Today the News introduces a pen and ink biographical sketch of one of Rochester's most prominent citizens, Harper Sibley, drawn by Colonel Jack Moranz, who will begin Wednesday a series of these local portrayals for the Rochester Evening News.

Aptly Moranz has chosen Sibley, who has a background of brilliant economic generalship in Rochester, as an excellent subject for an introductory local sketch.

In concise, clear, simple wording Moranz has told the highlights of Sibley's life to supplement the clever illustrative sketches above.

He could not, of course, point out all the many successful accomplishments of the prominent Rochesterian, his numerous philanthropies and the honors that have been accorded him.

The details could not be related in brief, but lightning-sketch artist Moranz has performed an excellent job of saying as much as possible in the smallest amount of space.

Moranz makes his pen talk. Sometime this week he will characterize another local personality. He will follow with others in daily succession until he has sketched approximately fifty of our outstanding business and social leaders.
