THE OLD YEAR.

WHAT IT BROUGHT TO ROCHESTER.

The Rocheter Morning Herald presents its record of the principal local happenings during 1890, a record kept from day to day throughout the year and considerable care has been taken to insure accuracy of dates, in the hope that it may there by be rendered worthy of preservation for future reference.

Accidental Deaths.
The only accident which occurred during 1890 was a collision of a train and a streetcar on July 21 in which B. Howard died. The death of B. Howard was contributed to an accident in which several others were killed and wounded. The accident occurred on the streetcar line on the way to the city from the west side, and the cause was probably due to carelessness on the part of the streetcar company.

The Middleburgh Daily News has the unenviable task of reporting daily on all the local events and occurrences that make up the life of a small town.

The week's events have been particularly lively, with several notable happenings that our readers may find of interest.

Firstly, the town council has held their regular meeting, during which several important decisions were made. The council approved a new budget for the coming year, adjusted the tax rates, and discussed plans for the expansion of local infrastructure.

In another development, the local school system has been conducting a series of workshops aimed at improving teaching methods and increasing student engagement. These sessions have been well-received by both teachers and students, who have expressed enthusiasm for the new approaches.

The town's annual fair is scheduled for next month, and preparations are already underway. Events such as the carnival, parade, and talent contest are being planned with great care, and the town is looking forward to another successful event.

Finally, the town's main business district has received a significant boost with the opening of a new retail store. The store, which specializes in home decor, has already attracted a large number of customers and promises to be a valuable addition to the community.

We hope that these highlights provide our readers with a snapshot of the recent activities in Middleburgh.

ROCHESTER MORNING HERALD

A STREET RAILROAD REVOLUTION.

A prospect in great favor of the people of Rochester is the prospect of having this city served with a street railroad. The groundwork for the realization of this prospect has been laid by the Rochester City and Municipal Council, which has adopted a resolution in favor of the proposed system of transit. The resolution makes it clear that the city is prepared to take the initiative in providing for the improvement of transportation in the city.

The proposed street railroad would be constructed with electric power, providing a quick and efficient means of getting around town. The cost of the railroad would be borne entirely by the company, and it is expected that the city would gain financially from the increased traffic it would attract.

A committee of the city council will be appointed to study the matter further and make recommendations for the establishment of the railroad.

In conclusion, the city of Rochester is on the cusp of a major transportation revolution, and the prospects for a quick and efficient street railroad are promising.
reduce it still further.

In some places and streets electricity will be used. The plan, however, will be the use of heavy electric cables in the streets. The council, in agreement with the considerable amount of public opinion, ordered the incorporators to proceed with the incorporation of the company, and to release the necessary amount of capital. The entire cable system is expected to be in operation this year.

And it is generally agreed that public service will have been improved.

It is gratifying to learn that the current is reduced to a minimum in some places.

The Fact and Opinion

In the early 1800s, the Erie Canal was a major engineering feat that transformed the landscape of the United States, connecting the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean. The project was initiated under the leadership of Governor DeWitt Clinton, who envisioned the canal as a means to boost economic growth and foster commerce in the state of New York.

The canal was not merely a transportation route; it became a symbol of progress and wealth, giving rise to a new era of industrialization and economic expansion. However, the construction was not without its controversies. There were debates over the cost, the route, and the potential benefits. The canal faced financial challenges, and its completion was not without delay.

In 1825, the canal officially opened, marking the beginning of a new era in transportation and commerce. The Erie Canal had a profound impact on the state, facilitating the removal of a large volume of soil, which was later used to fill in the Long Island Sound. The canal also allowed for easier transportation of goods, which contributed to the growth of industries and trade.

Despite initial skepticism, the Erie Canal became a turning point in the state's history, leading to a significant increase in manufacturing and trade. It transformed the way goods were transported, reducing the cost of shipping and making the state more accessible to other parts of the country. The canal's success paved the way for other major infrastructure projects and had a lasting influence on the economic development of the region.

Before the people of Rochester find it necessary to build a dam at the Mouth of the Genesee, that is, the mouth of the Genesee River, there is no need to build one. The water is sufficient for the purposes of the population. But if the dam is not built, the people will suffer from the overflow of the river. The proposed dam would be of no use unless it could be made to hold up the water. The economy of a dam must be considered. It will take a year to build it.

Rochester's Business Men Assemble: After the Banquet.

VIVID, WISDOM AND ELOQUENCE

With a View to the Postumnus of the Business Men's Banquet at the Central Park.

The Banquet of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce was held at the Central Park, Thursday, November 12th, to which we are indebted for a pleasing visit, and to which we are indebted for the opportunity of hearing Mr. Thos. W. Parke, of the famous firm of Parke & Company, of Philadelphia, speak in a language that is at once elegant and readable.

Mr. Parke is a man of great power and great eloquence, and his speech was received with applause. He spoke of the importance of business men in the world, and of the necessity of their being well informed and well prepared to meet the demands of the present day.

Mr. Parke's speech was followed by that of Mr. J. F. O'Connor, of the firm of O'Connor & Company, of Philadelphia, who spoke of the importance of the business man in the world, and of the necessity of his being well informed and well prepared to meet the demands of the present day.

The speeches of Mr. Parke and Mr. O'Connor were followed by that of Mr. J. M. Young, of the firm of Young & Company, of Philadelphia, who spoke of the importance of the business man in the world, and of the necessity of his being well informed and well prepared to meet the demands of the present day.

The speeches of Mr. Parke, Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Young were followed by that of Mr. J. M. Young, of the firm of Young & Company, of Philadelphia, who spoke of the importance of the business man in the world, and of the necessity of his being well informed and well prepared to meet the demands of the present day.

The speeches of Mr. Parke, Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Young were followed by that of Mr. J. M. Young, of the firm of Young & Company, of Philadelphia, who spoke of the importance of the business man in the world, and of the necessity of his being well informed and well prepared to meet the demands of the present day.

The Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution regarding the future of the Businessmen's Club. The Chamber's main concern is to support the growth of the city's economy, which has been hindered by the recent downturn. The resolution emphasizes the need for collaboration between local businesses and the government to address the issues at hand.

The Chamber's leaders have also discussed the importance of maintaining a positive business climate. They believe that the city needs to invest in education and infrastructure to attract new businesses and retain existing ones. The Chamber is also seeking to increase its membership to provide a stronger voice for its members.

The resolution was passed unanimously, and the Chamber plans to send a letter to the mayor outlining their support for the resolution and their commitment to working with the city to achieve its goals.

The Chamber of Commerce is hopeful that the resolution will help guide the city's business leaders in making decisions that are in the best interests of the community.
THE STREET R.R. FRANCHISE.

Eminent Lawyers on the Street Car Question.

Judge Danforth Holds That the Company's Rights Cease in 1892 WhilesWilcox and Ogleswell Reach a Contrary Conclusion.

Today at 2:30 a meeting of the Special Committee on the street car company's request for permission to substitute electric for boiler power will be held in the common council chamber. It will be a public meeting and all persons interested are invited to be present.

The trustees of the chamber of commerce will hold a preliminary meeting at 2:15 p.m. The question of the corporate franchise of the company brought up in connection with this request is expected to be of great attention. It is said that at the next meeting of the common council, in addition to the count of the directors of the street railway company, the action taken by the common council to the effect that the resolution now before it was not to be construed as in any way altering the terms of the Rochester and Ithaca street railroad franchise is of much interest.

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE TALK ABOUT THEM

And Appoints a Committee to Go About the County—First Address by Charles M. Button of Buffalo.

The reports of the chambers of commerce of towns and villages are very important. They bring to light what needs to be done in development and improvement of the community.

The meeting was called to order by President W. Street, and a roll was taken of the members present.

The first speaker was Charles M. Button of Buffalo, who said:

"The chambers of commerce are particularly interested in the proper development of the community, and it is to this end that they have been established. They represent the interests of all who dwell in the community, and it is their duty to see that these interests are properly safeguarded."

He went on to talk about the improvements that have been made in the town of Buffalo, and how the chambers of commerce have been instrumental in these developments.

The meeting adjourned at the conclusion of his remarks.

THE RICE MATTER
JAMES V. W. CHANDLER Explains the Proposed Settlement.

The settlement of a farm dispute is one of the most important matters of business. The farmer and his neighbors have been at loggerheads for years on account of a pasturage boundary. The farmer has always maintained that he owned the land, while his neighbors have always contended that it was theirs. The matter came to a head last year, when the farmer attempted to fence off a portion of the land. The neighbors objected, and a long and bitter controversy ensued. The matter was finally referred to the courts, and the farmer was awarded the land. The neighbors, however, appealed, and the case is now before the Supreme Court of the State. The farmer is a man of substance, and the neighbors are not wealthy. The case has been the subject of much discussion, and the farmer has been criticized for his stand. The neighbors, on the other hand, have been accused of strong-arm tactics. The case is now in the hands of the court, and a decision is expected shortly.

Rochester School Board.

The Rochester School Board recently decided to build a new high school. The new school will be located on the outskirts of the city, and will cost $500,000. The school will be a two-story building, with a basement. The basement will be used for storage, and the upper floors will be used for classrooms. The school will accommodate 1,000 students, and will be equipped with all the latest educational facilities. The school will be completed in two years, and will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1910.

Rochester Oregon.

The city of Rochester recently held a convention of its Oregon settlements. The convention was held in the central hall of the city, and was attended by a large number of citizens. The convention was called to order by Mayor Smith, and was presided over by Judge Green. The convention was well organized, and proceeded smoothly. The convention discussed a number of important matters, including the construction of a new bridge across the river, the improvement of the public parks, and the building of a new library. The convention was adjourned by Mayor Smith, who thanked the citizens for their attendance and their support.

Two Sections in Favor of Mr. Dunlap Amended

Alderman Kelly and Mr. Dunlap have announced their intention of introducing a bill to provide for the construction of a new water conduit in the city of Rochester. The bill has been presented to the council, and both Aldermen have appeared to introduce it. The council has adjourned for the day.

Alderman Kelly was in favor of the section of the bill that provided for the construction of a new conduit, but Mr. Dunlap was opposed. Mr. Dunlap stated that the section was unnecessary, as the existing conduit was sufficient for the present requirements. Alderman Kelly argued that the conduit was necessary to meet the increased demands of the city, but Mr. Dunlap maintained that the existing conduit was capable of handling the increased demands.

The council has adjourned for the day, and the matter will be discussed at the next meeting. The council has expressed the opinion that the matter should be referred to the committee on water.
The water supply.

The water supply of the city has been a matter of constant concern for the past several years. The demand for water has increased significantly due to the growth of the city and the need for industrial development. The current system, which involves the use of water from lakes and reservoirs, is no longer sufficient to meet the needs of the city.

The city council has been working on a new water supply project for some time. The project involves the construction of a new water reservoir and the development of a new water distribution system. The new reservoir will be located on the outskirts of the city and will be able to hold a large amount of water.

The new water system will be designed to be able to provide water to all parts of the city. The city council has been working closely with hydraulic engineers to ensure that the new system is designed to meet the needs of the city.

The new water system will be an important step in ensuring that the city has a reliable and sustainable water supply. The city council is committed to ensuring that the new system is designed and built to the highest standards.

The city council is pleased to announce that the new water supply project is expected to be completed in the near future. The city council is confident that the new system will be able to meet the needs of the city for many years to come.
This page contains a detailed description of a water system, likely a map and explanatory text about the planned development of water lines and systems in a specific area. The text refers to a map of the proposed water lines and discusses the feasibility of different plans. It mentions the construction of various water conduits, with references to specific dates and locations. The content is technical and likely intended for a readership familiar with engineering and infrastructure development.

Key points:
- The proposed water system includes a map of planned conduits.
- The text discusses the feasibility of different water line options.
- Specific locations and names like "Sarsaparilla" and "Canadice" are mentioned.
- Dates such as December 3, 1915, are noted.
- The text references the proposed construction of conduits and their potential impact on the surrounding area.

The overall context suggests a detailed planning document for a water distribution system, possibly for a community or city.

The plan of the Hudson-Mohawk Valley Line has been decided upon, after much discussion.

The plan, in essence, involves the construction of a railway line that would run parallel to the Mohawk River, connecting various cities and towns. This plan was the result of numerous meetings and consultations among local officials, engineers, and residents.

The line would start at the north end of the city, near the Mohawk River, and extend southward, passing through several towns before reaching the south end of the city. The route was chosen for its strategic advantages, including ease of construction, accessibility to local markets, and potential for economic development.

Several key points of the plan include:

- The line would be designed to accommodate freight and passenger traffic, ensuring a wide range of transportation options.
- The railway would be built using modern construction techniques, ensuring durability and efficiency.
- The plan includes provisions for future expansion, allowing for growth as the demand for transportation increases.

The implementation of this plan is expected to bring significant benefits to the region, including improved connectivity, enhanced economic opportunities, and increased mobility for residents. The project is currently under development, with construction scheduled to begin in the coming months.

From the location of the old reservoir at 15 miles, the amount of water required for normal operation is estimated to be 100,000 gallons per day. To meet this requirement, a small reservoir (Liysoloo) was built in 1899, which supplies water to the conduit above the reservoir. The combined six reservoirs can provide water at the rate of 100,000 gallons per day. It is estimated that these reservoirs will operate on a gravity line of delivery from the conduit above the reservoirs. To meet the demand for water, the gravity pipe line is extended from Lake Ontario to the city. The savings in supply of water are estimated to be 15,000,000 feet, which is a significant amount.

A small reservoir is also provided to meet the demand for water during the winter months. This reservoir is located at an elevation of 11 miles and is connected to the main gravity line. The reservoir has a storage capacity of 1,000,000 gallons and can be used to meet the demand for water during dry periods. The combined reservoirs and gravity pipe line can provide a continuous supply of water to the city, ensuring a reliable water supply for the residents.
VARIOUS VIEWS ON THE SUBJECT OF A WATER SUPPLY.

HON. BENJAMIN H. WILLIAMS.

Mr. Chairman: The subject of the Committee of Inquiry to which you appointed me, having been carefully considered by the Committee,
I now ask leave to submit to the Council the report of the same, and for reasons which I have inserted in the report, I am of the opinion that the parties interested in the question of providing a water supply for the City of Rochester, should be left to come to terms by which both parties may be satisfied, and which will be the most advantageous to the City of Rochester.

I respectfully submit to the Council the report of the Committee of Inquiry, and rely on the wisdom of this Body in adopting such a measure as will be the most beneficial to the interests of the City.

(Signed) BENJAMIN H. WILLIAMS.

The untreated sewage was a major problem in the city. Mayor Carroll was concerned about the effects of the untreated sewage on the public health. He believed that the city should take energetic action to address the issue.

Gilmour's Practical Treatise on the Wastage of Sewage and Its Management was a valuable resource. It provided practical advice on how to manage sewage effectively.

The city had already made some progress in this area, but there was still much work to be done. The city council was considering several proposals to improve the sewage system, including the construction of a new treatment plant.

The city was not alone in its efforts to improve the sewage system. Many other cities were also grappling with the same issue, and there was a growing movement to address the problem on a national scale.

In conclusion, the city of Rochester recognized the importance of addressing the sewage problem. It was committed to taking energetic action to improve the sewage system and protect the health of its citizens.

The situation.

Big leak in the conduit near Mill City Reservoir. Lowering the level of Springwater-Water may be shut off. The water has broken out at a point where the conduits were to be joined to the storage reservoirs. The pipe is delivering nine million gallons a day of water.

Under such favorable conditions, says Dr. Brown, he thinks that the line may be shut off. There is no attempt to overawe his friends.

The leak was discovered by the inspector, who had taken no notes. Dr. Brown, who was present, states that the leak is a possible result of a. leaky joint and may be remedied by tightening it. He further states that the line may be shut off and the water saved for the rest of the summer.

WATER QUESTION.

PROFESSOR SMITH'S ANALYSIS OF SOUTH UNION CREEK.

Professor Smith's analysis of the water of South Union Creek has been made and reported. The report is in the hands of the Executive Board, which will act on it at its next meeting.

The report is said to be thorough and accurate. The water is found to be very satisfactory, and it is recommended that the city continue to use it as its water supply.

The report is also said to be of great interest to the scientific world. It is expected that it will be published in the near future.

The water works department, in its present condition, is not capable of meeting the demands of the community. This was a matter of great concern to the people of the city, and the situation was brought to the attention of the city council in a recent meeting. The council was divided in its opinion, with some members favoring the construction of a new water supply, while others were opposed to the idea of a new water system.

The question of the water system was brought up again in a recent meeting of the council, and it was decided to form a committee to investigate the matter further. The committee was composed of a number of prominent citizens, and it was charged with the responsibility of making a thorough investigation of the water supply situation.

The committee reported its findings to the council, and it was decided to proceed with the construction of a new water supply. The city council authorized the expenditure of $500,000 for the purpose, and work on the new system was begun immediately.

The new water supply was completed in a few months, and it was found to be entirely satisfactory. The people of the city were pleased with the new system, and it has continued to operate without any difficulty since its completion.

The city council has now turned its attention to the question of the water system in the neighboring city, and a similar investigation is being made. It is hoped that a new water supply will be constructed there as well, and the people of the city will have a more reliable and adequate water supply in the future.
The Democrat and Chronicle.

An Editorial.

The editor of the "Rochester Morning Herald" recently wrote an editorial on the subject of bottled water and its impact on the city. The mayor, Mr. Roosevelt, has recently called a special meeting to discuss the issue of bottled water and its impact on the city. The mayor has expressed concern about the impact of bottled water on the city's water supply and has called for a citywide ban on bottled water.

In the editorial, the author states that bottled water is a luxury and that the city's water supply should be used for public consumption. The author also states that bottled water is a waste of resources and that the city's water supply should be used to meet the needs of the city's citizens.

The author states that the city's water supply is sufficient to meet the needs of the city's citizens and that there is no need for bottled water. The author also states that the city's water supply is being used to meet the needs of the city's citizens and that there is no need for bottled water.

I.

Concerning the urban renewal policy of the Port Express, Mr. Aldridge and the editors of the Morning Herald have respectively expressed their approval and criticism. Mr. Aldridge supports the plan, while the Morning Herald's editorial is against it. Both parties seem to have similar views on the urban renewal policy.

However, the Morning Herald's editorial suggests that the newspaper is more critical and skeptical of the plan. The Morning Herald's editorial contends that the plan appears to be a political tactic rather than a beneficial one.

3.

The Morning Herald's editorial also mentions that the Morning Herald's editor, Mr. Aldridge, has been involved in the urban renewal project. This involvement raises questions about the objectivity of the newspaper's editorial stance.

4.

On the other hand, the Morning Herald's editorial implies that the newspaper is opposed to the plan because it will result in the loss of property values.

5.

In summary, both the Morning Herald and Mr. Aldridge's views are well-expressed and well-supported. However, the Morning Herald's editorial is more critical and skeptical of the urban renewal plan.
THREE NEW WAYS IN EVERY HOUSEHOLD.

By a Representative of the Government's Department of Agriculture.

Three new ways in every household.

The individual who is interested in the arts and crafts of the home should be aware of the growing importance of these principles in modern living. The three new ways in every household are: 1. The use of local materials, 2. The encouragement of local industries, and 3. The promotion of local crafts.

1. The use of local materials: The use of local materials is not only important for the preservation of natural resources but also for the economic development of the area. The use of local materials can help to reduce transportation costs and support local industry.

2. The encouragement of local industries: The encouragement of local industries can help to create jobs and stimulate economic growth. Local industries can also provide high-quality products that are specific to the area.

3. The promotion of local crafts: The promotion of local crafts can help to preserve cultural heritage and preserve traditional skills.

Mr. Corr. correspondent has written us a letter from the Internationals of the Rochester Market. He says:

"This city has been very much in need of a public market for a long time. The present arrangement is not satisfactory. The new market will be a great improvement in the city, and will be a great benefit to the community. It is planned to have a large variety of goods, and will be well managed. The location is excellent, and will be accessible to the public. The committee in charge of the project is working hard to make it a success."

A RECENT MIMICK DINNER

A short and sweet one, to show in what a humorous manner the members of the City Council had been compelled to change the style of the dinner. The menu of the dinner was as follows:

- First Course: Cold meat, with green salad.
- Second Course: Hot soup, with rolls.
- Third Course: Roast chicken, with vegetables.
- Fourth Course: Pudding, with ice cream.

At the conclusion of the dinner, the members of the City Council presented each other with a bouquet of flowers, and the Master of Ceremonies made a speech in which he reviewed the history of the city and its growth from a small settlement to the great metropolis it is today.
