Hospital Notes.

Miss Mumford is with us again and received a most enthusiastic ovation from everyone connected with the hospital.

Mrs. Wm. H. Perkins is improving and we are glad to hear will soon be in Rochester.

Our plea for the equipment of the new Laboratory of Pathology has met with one generous response this month. Mrs. Henry H. Stebbins gives $50.00 for this purpose. Bausch & Lomb have already given generously and are willing to make large discounts on needed instruments. Who next will contribute toward the $500 needed for this invaluable work?

A New York surgeon telegraphed for the privilege of operating in our hospital upon one of his patients who was spending the summer near Rochester. Imagine Miss Keith's surprise when he not only brought his own assistant but all of the paraphernalia that is used in an operation at the present day, including ether, etc. His amazement at finding a modern equipped hospital which he called equal to any he had ever seen was amusing as well as gratifying. Verily the provincialism of New York City equals that of Boston.

Miss McCoy has been called to the government hospital at Mantanzas, Cuba, and may take two or three of our nurses with her.

The loveliest thing about the flowers from the Democrat and Chronicle's Children's Gardening Club is that it is a continuous performance. At no time during the summer have the wards and the children's pavilion been without fresh flowers. This week they were fairly showered with flowers that had first done duty at the Children's Flower Show, many of them having taken prizes. Here is a letter copied from the Democrat and Chronicle that expresses the appreciation of the patients :

DEAR LITTLE FRIENDS:—Everyone seems to have a good word for the Children's Gardening Club so I would like to add my thanks for your favors.

I was in the City Hospital for three weeks this summer and your flowers that came to our ward so beautifully, helped to make my stay a happy one. I expect it will surprise you when I tell you that we had many happy times in the Hospital. We told each other stories and sometimes, quite softly, sang some familiar hymns. "Scatter the Sunshine" was our favorite.

Perhaps we were happier than most of the people in the Hospital because we had seven little babies to take care of and love. Each little one had a round tag with his or her name on it pinned to its dress so they wouldn't get mixed, for that would have been dreadful. But I'll tell you a secret, every mother knew her own dear baby, tag or no tag. They were all lovely, good babies, but when they were hungry they cried and sometimes they all cried at once and then—just think of your own baby brother or sister, when he or she cries, multiplied by seven.

I used to watch you come up the front walk with your big bunches of flowers and how your faces did shine with the joy of doing good. With kisses and love for your favors, I am,

Your loving friend,

"BABY'S MAMMA."

Children's Pavilion.

Little Mary McDonald, the daughter of a missionary in North Dakota denies herself a trip to Winnipeg to send an offering for the Mary Bed. If there was more of such altruism there would be no lack of funds to carry on the good work.

It is quite a coincidence that most of the children in the pavilion at the present time have their feet or limbs under treatment.

Baby Charity is responding to the good care she is having, and developing into as fine a baby as those born under happier auspices.

Home-Cure Treatment for Worry.

To cure worry the individual must be his own physician; he must give the case heroic treatment. He must realize, with every fibre of his being, the utter, absolute uselessness of worry. He must not think this is commonplace, a bit of mere theory; it is a reality that he must translate for himself from mere words to a real, living fact. He must fully understand that if it were possible for him to spend a whole series of eternities in worry, it would not change the fact one jot or tittle. It is a time for action, not worry, because worry paralyzes thought, and action, too. If you set down a column of figures in addition, no amount of worry can change the sum total of those figures. That result is wrapped up in the inevitability of mathematics. The result can be made different only by changing the figures as they are set down, one by one, in that column.

The one time that a man cannot afford to worry is when he does worry. Then he is facing, or imagines he is, a critical turn in affairs. This is the time when he needs one hundred per cent. of his mental energy to make his plans quickly, to see what is his wisest decision, to keep a clear eye on the sky and on his course, and a firm hand on the helm until he weathers the storm in safety.

There are two reasons why a man should not worry, either one of which must operate in every instance. First, because he cannot prevent the results he fears. Second, he can prevent them. If he be powerless to avert the blow, he needs perfect mental concentration to meet it bravely, to lighten its force, to get what salvage he can from the wreck, to sustain his strength at the time when he must plan a new future. If he can prevent the evil he fears, then he has no need to worry, for he would, by so doing, be dissipating energy in his very hour of need.

If a man does, day by day, the best he can by the light he has, he has no need to fear, no need to regret, no need to worry. No agony of worry would do ought to help him. Neither mortal nor angel can do more than his best.—The Kingship of Self-Control.

Workingmen's Hospital.

The workingmen of Birmingham, England, set an example to artisans and laborers all the world over.

Every year they collect nearly $100,000. Half of this sum they devote to the maintenance of the hospital of the city, the other half is expended in the building and maintenance of convalescent homes, the payment of skilled nurses to go and nurse the sick poor in their own homes; the provision of artificial limbs and surgical implements for those who need but cannot afford to buy them.

$100,000 raised by workingmen! A large sum is it not? Yes, and it is not the result of any mere spasmodic effort. The total has increased, steadily, uninterruptedly, year in and year out, with unwavering continuity.

How is the miracle worked?

Here is the way it is done.

Every contributing workingman gives a penny (two cents) every week. This gives something like 90,000 contributors, less than half the population of Rochester. There are certainly 50,000 workingmen in our midst. If each one paid two cents a week they could raise $52,000 a year.

There are few workingmen in Rochester who would miss a dollar a year, paid in 52 weekly two-cent installments.

But how do the Birmingham people make use of the money so raised?

There are over twenty medical charities in the city and the majority of them are absolutely free to all. The rich man and the poor man are alike at liberty to take advantage of treatment by the most skilled physicians and specialists in England. Men of international reputation, like Sir James Sawyer and the late Dr. Lawson Tait, are among the practitioners at the hospitals.

The Birmingham City Hospital, erected at a cost of over a million dollars, is one of the finest medical institutions in the United Kingdom and—listen to this, ye utilitarians—architecturally beautiful. Here, in justice to the wealthy men of Birmingham, it is just to say that, though the workingmen of the city do more than any one else to support the medical charities, the site for the City Hospital was bequeathed and one gentleman, Sir Thomas Holder, gave no less than $200,000 towards the building fund. Then the middle classes have their hospital Sunday collections, which realize about $25,000 annually, and the musical festival, held triennially, produces a like amount on an average every time it is held.

But the workingmen are the backbone of the support of the medical charities. This fact is recognized by all classes, and the governing bodies of the different institutions are assuming more and more of a practical and intelligent working class complexion. All these bodies are elective and the workingmen having the power of the purse, have been able to insist on the application of the principle of "No taxation without representation." Birmingham, be it noted, is Democratic at heart, though its old leader, Mr. Chamberlain, has been stricken imperialistic.

How is the money subscribed? How are 90,000 men kept up to their duty? In every workshop a "Hospital Saturday" fund agent is appointed and once a week he makes the round and collects the pennies. There is little if any difficulty. The men see the good work of the hospitals; they see their sick folk go to the convalescent homes. Two-thirds of the shops of the great Hardware Capital have their list of paying workmen and their representative on the great Hospital Saturday Committee.

The Convalescent Homes are entirely a workingmen's organization. Artisans originated the idea; artisans administer the homes; artisans, their wives and children go there in their times of sickness.

Workingmen of Rochester, is not this a fine fruit of the democratic spirit? J. R. M.

Wanted--A Nurse.

It may seem strange that in this land of the trained nurse, and in this comparatively small city with its five training schools for nurses, there should still be raised the cry "Wanted--A Nurse." Yet that 'here is a field for the trained nurse still untilled, and of some promise, is patent to anyone who will investigate.

The well-to-do are sufficiently provided with trained nurses at what I may term the "Union" rate, from which the nurse is not supposed to deviate. On the other hand the penniless are provided with trained nurses by the hospitals without charge; one or more nurses being assigned to the work which is known as District Nursing. But between those two rather widely separated classes are all those people who, while they cannot afford to employ a nurse at full time and rate, are yet unwilling to be classed as paupers and receive pure charity from the hospitals. They are willing and able to pay something for skilled attendance, but are unable to secure it.

At commencement and other anniversary exercises, annual dinners and like gatherings, we are wont to hear much of the nobility of our allied professions, the devoted lives of self-sacrifice of their followers, of charity and philanthropy and kindred virtues exemplified in our complacent selves. There is just enough truth underlying all this to save it from absurdity, but it is the part of wisdom to remember that most men and women select one profession rather than another because they think that in that line they can do their best work and receive in return adequate compensation. And it is not belittling to either the individual or the profession to acknowledge this important motive.

But in this matter of providing skilled attendance to people who are unable to pay the highest rates, are the nurses as a class doing their share? Few physicians would refuse to attend a patient on account of his inability to pay an adequate fee. Few nurses, on the contrary, are willing to give any of their time to patients who cannot pay the regulation rate. As a result many worthy people must depend upon untrained, and often, ignorant nurses (?) at times when lack of training may mean the death of the patient. For in many emergencies of life a skilled nurse is as much to be sought and prized as a competent physician.

Remedies for this state of affairs suggest themselves, but only a fair trial would prove or disapprove their practicability. One plan, suggested by the already existing scheme of district nursing, would be for the hospital to take charge of this work. One or more nurses could be detailed to make daily visits on such patients as do not require the constant attendance of a nurse. The Hospital could charge a somewhat elastic fee per diem according to the length and character of the service rendered, also taking into consideration, to some extent, the circumstances of the patient. In this way another fund could be added to the income of the Hospital; a fund which would grow steadily with the diffusion of the knowledge that trained nursing could be obtained at moderate cost.

Another plan would be for the local association of trained nurses to take the initiative in the matter, assuming the responsibility and establishing headquarters where nurses might be obtained for such work. Provision might also be made for supplying nurses to patients who require constant attendance. As in any other form of partial or complete charity, precautions against imposition would have to be taken. The details of such a plan would require careful thought and discussion.

Whatever remedy may be deemed the best one to apply, the condition exists.

Beautiful Customs.

In Russia beggars knock at the doors or windows of dwellings, bow to the ground, and mutter, "For Christ's sake!" The pea ant housewife instantly collects a few crusts and gives them to the applicant. It would be considered a sin to turn the petitioner away. In times of plenty bakers keep a kind of bin filled with bread, which is freely given to those who beg for it "in the name of Christ."

Another Russian custom, still more touching, is called the practice of secret charity. A family is known to be in want, but too proud to beg. Then the neighbors determine to help them without hurting their feelings. After sundown a tap is heard at the destitute family's window, and the simple words, "For Christ's sake," are borne into them. The father runs to see who is there, but finds no one. No trace is left except, perhaps, a few footprints in the snow, and a loaf of bread on the window ledge.

[REDACTED]

This paper goes to press under the shadow of a great sorrow. Our beloved President lies dead by the hand of an assassin, and we can only pray for grace to accept his last words: "Good-bye, all, good-bye. It is God's way. His will be done." If this is "God's way" of freeing our land of anarchy and sedition he will not have died in vain. The following extract is taken from the Buffalo Express:

The nurses who were on duty in the Emergency Hospital on the Exposition grounds when President McKinley was carried in on the day that he was so seriously wounded, are just beginning to realize that they performed an active part in an event that is of international importance and one that will be a matter of history.

"It was so pathetic," said Miss Morris, "when he was on the table before the anesthetic was given. He seemed to feel so badly that any one should shoot him because of a personal hatred. That seemed to be the thought that pained him most. He lay there, so white and still, never uttering a complaint and seemed to be trying to comprehend what prompted his assailant to the deed.

"Once he said gently: 'He didn't know, poor fellow, what he was doing. He couldn't have known.'"

Wants.

We are still asking for a wall clock for the nurses' dining room.

Fruit and vegetables would be most welcome.

Always old cotton and linen.

Shoes for children from 3 to 12.

Table napkins for the nurses' dining room.

Whist.

Hour after hour the cards were fairly shuffled
And fairly dealt, but still I got no hand;
The morning came, but I with mind unruffled,
Did simply say: "I do not understand."

Life is a game of whist. From unseen sources
The cards are shuffled and the hands are dealt.
Blind are our efforts to control the forces,
That though unseen, are not less strongly felt.

I do not like the way the cards are shuffled,
But still I like the game and want to play,
And through the long, long night will I unruffled
Play what I get, until the break of day.

Hospital Notes.

It is not generally understood that on Wednesdays from 4 until 6 some of the managers are always at the hospital and glad to show visitors over the building.

The presence of Mrs. Wm. H. Perkins in the hospital meetings is like the king coming to his own.

Miss Keith read a paper before the Monroe County Association of Nurses this month on "Obstetric Nursing—the Old and the New Methods." This was her special work before coming to Rochester, and her experience and knowledge are of great value to the association and the hospital.

After the Pan-American comes the Hospital Donation. Interest in this vital event already permeates the city, and the usual preparations and agitations are in progress.

The annual dinner discussion is before the board and the vexed question whether the dinner or luncheon would be most acceptable to the men is always in evidence. It might be a good idea to incorporate it on the city ticket and have it settled by vote once for all. Heretofore the conservatives have carried the day.

The donation will be held in the Eureka Club House on the 5th and 6th of December. The committees who were responsible for the great success of our last donation have been nearly all reappointed by the president, and the outlook is favorable for a record-breaking donation.

Miss Lydia Rumsey has resigned her position as treasurer of the REVIEW, much to the regret of the managers. Her years of faithful service have been the means of bringing a handsome income to the hospital. Mrs. Louis S. Chapin has kindly consented to serve as treasurer and we wish her the same success.

The hospital is about to add a new member to its corps of instructors. No family is supposed to be without one, therefore the hospital will soon have a skeleton of its own to be kept in the closet when not on duty.

The following instance of the vicarious service sometimes rendered by the hospital is interesting: A hurry call came for the ambulance, directions were given to prepare for an immediate operation, the room was made ready, doctors on hand, nurses in waiting, instrument sterilized, everything in readiness—when word came that the patient had changed her mind and wanted to go to St. Mary's. Our ambulance was instructed to take her there.

The 4th Twig will offer its usual beautiful assortment of hand-made under-clothing and baby clothes for which they are famous. They have also added to their repertoire for the donation what is literally a crying need—a fine assortment of dressed dolls. Orders are solicited and can be sent to Mrs. Willard B. Spader, 261 Culver Road.

When Major Wadsworth so considerably postponed his reception because of the President's death, it was a kindly thought to distribute the refreshments among the hospitals.

The Out-Patient Department for September reports: New patients, 69; visits of all patients, 290; prescriptions, treatments, etc., 325.

Children's Pavilion.

It is worth a trip to the hospital to see the children flock around Miss Keith when she visits the pavilion. One is reminded of the Pied Piper of Hamelin to see them coming from all directions—some on one leg, some creeping, but all eager to touch her somewhere; even the babies raise their arms and beam a welcome. Little Phoebe, who is there for the fifth time, said to her as we left "Oh! how I love you." It is not often we find these qualities combined with great executive ability.

A very entertaining quilt has been donated to the children by some clever woman. There are chickens, dogs, cats, flowers and children outlined in color. It is a great joy to the children. Now it is over little Bessie, who has had her leg suspended so long.

The children are jubilant over the fact that the Kindergarten is again in session. It is by far the most popular function in the hospital. The committee are to be congratulated upon securing the services of such delightful kindergartners. The gifts and supplies were a present from the St. Andrew's Kindergarten.

An ambulance baby has been added to our number.

Little Charity has become well and strong enough to be taken again by the Children's Aid Society.

The wheeled chairs presented to the hospital have been in constant use this summer, the patient patients waiting their turn. Will not some friends of the hospital remember that there will be chairs to sell when the Pan-American closes?

Hourly Nursing.

Under the auspices of the Monroe County Nurses' Graduate Association, a system of hourly nursing has been established in this city. This work is instituted as an experiment, in response to a seeming need of skilled nursing for patients who can pay for a limited amount of care, but who do not require or who cannot afford to pay for 24 hours' attendance.

The Hospitals are frequently asked to send their district nurses to this class of cases, but as the district nurses are allowed to attend only people who are unable to pay anything, there has seemed to be no regular system of meeting this demand.

Such calls as the following are fair samples of the class of work we refer to,—to people who board, and being slightly indisposed, but not sick enough to need to go to a hospital, need a bath and to be "fixed up" for the day; to the mother of a family who can manage to worry through an illness if she can have attention for an hour or two each day; or perhaps, it may be a surgical dressing that needs to be done, to save the time of a busy doctor.

The work consists of baths, alcohol rubs, obstetrics, minor surgery, massage, etc. Fees for service will be 75c for first hour, and 50c for each additional hour,—obstetrics, minor surgery and massage, extra. In the event of the regular hourly nurses being too busy to respond to a call, a committee consisting of Miss Langstaff, City Hospital, chairman, Miss Lowry, Homeopathic Hospital, and Miss Cone, 43 East Avenue, phone 360 will supply a substitute.

This work is not in any sense undertaken as a charity. Of course, if it is found that the public does not wish, and does not support this form of service, it will be discontinued. The addresses of the hourly nurses are as follows: Miss Hollister (graduate of Rochester City Hospital), 158 South Fitzhugh St., Rochester phone 2921; Miss Sercombe (graduate of Rochester City Hospital), 185 South Fitzhugh St., Rochester phone 1379, Bell phone 3103; Miss Harp (graduate of Rochester Homeopathic Hospital), 202 William St., Rochester phone 1862.

The following editorial from the American Journal of Nursing gives an interesting account of the International Congress:

The third International Congress has become an event of the past, but the influence of this great gathering of nurses from many countries will be felt until the end of time.

The programme of the meetings was carried out with few changes. It being the week of mourning for our late President McKinley, the sessions were conducted with dignity and an absence of levity befitting the occasion. Each society at its executive meeting opened its proceedings with the passage of a resolution of sympathy for Mrs. McKinley, and Mrs. George W. Townsend, president of the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union, prefaced her address of welcome to the Congress with the following beautiful and appropriate remarks:

"We meet under the shadow of a nation's grief, but there is a sad comfort in the thought that all good work must go on. I am reminded of the beautiful and significant epitaph to the great Wesley brothers in Westminster Abbey: 'God takes away the workers, but carries on the work.'"

Five hundred nurses entered their names in the register. The arrangements for the guests were most satisfactory, and that such a series of meetings, beginning on Monday morning and lasting until Saturday afternoon, were conducted without complication or confusion is a tribute to the fine organization of the Buffalo Nurses' Club and to Miss Damer, its president, who was the chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The presence of so large a delegation from other countries was a greatly added interest to the Congress, and they were a representative and most interesting body of women

The final meeting, held in the Temple of Music at the Exposition grounds, was an occasion to be remembered for a lifetime. This magnificent great auditorium was filled to the walls when the meeting was called to order. The music of the organ gave the guests their first welcome. Mayor Diehl, of Buffalo, and Mrs. John Miller Horton gave the addresses of welcome, and the programme consisted of three papers by members of the foreign delegation, Mrs. Bedford Fenwick, of London, giving "A Plea for the Higher Education of Nurses," Miss Louise Stevenson, a delegate from the National Union of Women Workers of Great Britain and Ireland, speaking on similar lines, and Miss C. J. Wood, a delegate from thirteen societies of nurses in England, closing with "A Retrospect and a Forecast."

Miss Isla Stewart, president of the Matrons' Council of Great Britain and Ireland, bestowed upon Miss McIsaac the badge of honorary membership in that society, and the heart of every American nurse was filled with pride that the president of the Congress should be so honored. It was a pretty ceremony, to which Miss McIsaac responded gracefully, saying in part that, while she accepted with pleasure and gratification the honor done her in the bestowal of this badge, she also felt that the honor was not to herself alone, but was a tribute from the English nurse to the American nurses.

The exercises closed by the singing of "America," led by Brooke's band of Chicago.

A number of nurses in the uniform of different schools acted as ushers, adding much to the artistic effect. Captain Munson, with the men from the Hospital Corps of the United States Army stationed in the Exposition grounds, were guests of the occasion, and after the meeting escorted the nurses across the plaza to the green behind the government buildings, where an exhibition of battle-field methods of removing the wounded was given and greatly appreciated by all present. The reception given by the Woman's Board of Managers of the Pan-American Exposition was the closing event of the week, and in the attractive rooms of the Woman's Building old friends and new bade each other "good-bye," with mutual expressions of regret that the Congress was over.

How Insects Spread Disease.

Recent searches into the manner by which certain common diseases are distributed from man to man has fastened a very large share of the blame on two of our common pests, the mosquito and the fly. The diseases in this way transmitted are malaria, typhoid fever and yellow fever.

Not every mosquito can act as the bearer of malaria, but only those of a certain species known as the anopheles. Briefly the process is as follows. In sucking the blood of a malarial patient, the insect draws into its system the minute animal parasite known to be the germ of disease. This parasite finds its way into the walls of the mosquito stomach and there passes through a stage in its life quite analagous to the relation between the caterpillar and the butterfly. That is, it is entirely unlike the form in which it is found in the human blood. Later this new organism is collected in small glands which pour out these secretions through a small duct along the insect's beak and in this manner is carried into the blood stream of some other person and by its development gives rise to the symptoms of the disease

Healthy persons have allowed themselves to be bitten by infected mosquitos and have then had malaria, while a party of English scientists lived in perfect health all last spring on the Roman Campagna by protecting themselves from the bites of these pests.

Two of our army surgeons in Cuba have recently shown another species of mosquito to be able to convey yellow fever and one of them, Dr. Lazear, died of this disease after allowing an infected mosquito to bite him.

The swarms of flies that infested the camps of our soldiers three years ago were proven to carry typhoid fever. This they did by bringing on their feet particles of dust or dirt containing the bacillus of typhoid. This bacillus was then deposited whenever the flies landed on the food or drink of the men. As typhoid is practically only conveyed by what passes our mouths, we see that in addition to having a clean supply of food every effort must be made to keep the flies away.

By destroying the larvae of mosquitos in the pools of water where they breed we may hope to prevent malaria to a great extent. This can be done by pouring kerosene oil over these pools.—C. O. B.

VOL. XXXVIII.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., NOVEMBER 15, 1901.

Generous Gift Secured for the Hospital by One of its Staff.

The many friends of the Hospital will be pleased to learn that Mr. Chas. T. Ham of this city recently gave his check for five thousand dollars to his physician, Dr. Wm. S. Ely, to be used for the Hospital in any way that Dr. Ely may deem for the best interests of the Institution.

The Coming Donation.

The Donation for the City Hospital, which has been held for so many years that some of us now object to remembering just when it began, is to be held at the Eureka Club, North Clinton street, during the afternoons and evenings of December fifth and sixth.

Many are the preparations that are being made for it, and its success is already assured.

The Twigs will have their usual places in the large assembly hall, so adequately adapted for the purpose.

The popcorn, lemonade, ice cream and side shows, will not be missing! But in the dining-room we shall see a change!

The old order of things, for this year at least, has passed away, and something new will take its place.

The gentlemen who for several years have said they "could not take the time for a dinner at noon," or "they could not work after a hearty meal in the middle of the day," can say it no longer. We are to serve luncheon at noon for fifty cents, quickly, and as little or as much as one desires. Hot oysters, a cup of coffee and a piece of pumpkin pie "like mother used to make" would not dull any man's brain! Or if he prefer, he may have raw oysters, roast beef, turkey, ham, pork and beans, cranberries, pickles, two kinds of pie, and give up work for the afternoon.

At 6 o'clock we will serve a supper, also for fifty cents, which in reality is equal to a dinner.

We sincerely hope that everyone will co-operate with us in this change, and take both their luncheon and supper at the Donation.

The entertainment committee have arranged for Dossenbach and dancing for Thursday evening, and some popular entertainment for Friday evening.

Hospital Notes.

One of the managers will be at the Hospital each Wednesday afternoon, from two to four, to take anyone interested through the buildings.

Dr. W. H. Sutherland finished his course at the Hospital October first, and has already received an appointment.

He has been made house physician in the Private Patient Building of the New York Hospital, for one year.

Some improvements are soon to be made in the X-Ray room. The room has to be darkened which makes ventilating more difficult. A revolving fan is to be so placed that the old air may be sucked out and fresh air supplied.

The nurses' dining-room has the appearance of being in gala attire, with its dress of fresh paint and "done over" floor.

The nurses may no longer linger at the tables there forgetful of the time, for the First Twig has kindly donated to them a clock, one that strikes, to remind them of exacting patients waiting for them.

The past month has been a busy one surgically. There have been fifty operations performed during October, as compared with thirty-two in September and thirty-nine in August.

During the twelve days preceding November 4th, it was necessary to operate ten nights out of the twelve.

The women's surgical ward has been full most of the time, and occasionally some of the patients had to be placed in other wards.

Two very acceptable gifts were received at the Hospital, last month.

A patient in the green room left as a gift to the room, two very pretty water-colors, they hang just opposite the bed and are a pleasing change to the eye, from the former bare walls.

Another patient generously left behind him the bed-side table which he had used while there.

Children's Pavilion.

The kindergarten is as popular as ever, Miss Gilman and Miss Griesheimer have it in charge and the "Splinters" have assumed the defraying of the expenses.

At present there are two children in the Pavilion who are having their legs straightened. One little girl had hers broken by means of some marvelous instrument, then done up in plaster that they may grow together straight—There she sits, jolly and happy, with ten little live toes peeping out from the end of white plaster legs.

Another little black curly haired girl has beside her always a black curly haired doll, so exactly like herself that I wonder the nurses do not make a mistake and give the medicine to the wrong child.

The children have already begun to ask Miss Keith if it "isn't almost Christmas time."

Twig Notices.

The "Twigs" have all been busy for many weeks preparing all kinds of fascinating articles, to be sold at the Donation.

The following report should be a veritable directory for one's various needs.

The Parent Stem offers bedroom articles

The First Twig, by request, will serve their usual a la carte luncheon.

2d Twig, linen specialties and fancy articles.

3d Twig, bags and baskets.

4th Twig, infants' clothes, underwear and dolls.

5th Twig, lemonade.

1st Graft, neckties.

2d Graft, home-made candies and living pictures.

Columbian Twig, aprons and some special dolls.

Splinters, candy.

Magnolia Twig, desk articles.

Shavings, novelties.

With this list no wish should go ungratified.

Cripple Fund.

To date the Cripple Fund amounts to $3,397.53.

Contributions to this fund are received at the Donation. Each donation swells the amount and the interest is used to provide surgical appliances for children, who otherwise might remain cripples all their life.

A total of five thousand would yield a satisfactory income for the purpose. Who will help to raise it?

What is a Cancer?

BY JOSEPH ROBY, M. D.

A normal surface.

Irregular cell growth of a cancer.

In view of the recent announcement of the discovery of the cause of cancer at Buffalo and with the belief that the reading public are and should be interested in the great problems that confront those who are trying to relieve the suffering of mankind, this rather technical article was attempted.

The parts from which a cancer grows have an arrangement very much like a tile or mosaic floor, the little pieces of tile corresponding to the minute bodies called cells and the mortar to the substance between the cells.

But as the different rooms in a house have different uses and, therefore, different floors or coverings, so the various parts of the body have different kinds of cells. Like the outside brick-wall, the skin is composed of many layers of cells but the stomach, for example, has only a simple layer of cells much like a tile floor. These surfaces have the power to automatically repair themselves when the cells wear out, those in the deeper layers dividing into two and gradually replacing those in the superficial layers. Normally this is done exactly as the cells are needed, no more and no less, and the floor remains smooth. But when the surface becomes the seat of a cancer these tiles or cells grow in a lawless manner, many thousands more than are needed so that they make little tumors or swellings on the smooth floor and they grow down into the crevices of the tissue underneath the surface, or, to carry out the simile, through the walls of the house into the next room. These cells are also carried to distant parts of the body and lodging there give rise to new tumors similar in arrangement to the original one. The other parts of the body, such as the bones or cartilages corresponding to the scantling in the walls of the house may also be the seat of abnormal growths and then there is a bony or a cartilagenous tumor. The tumor being classified according to the material composing it, the word tumor meaning simply a swelling.

What characterizes a cancerous tumor is its tendency to ulcerate, to recur after incomplete removal, to give rise to tumors of a similar nature in other parts and the tendency for the patient to lose flesh and strength.

The problem that confronts the medical profession is to find out why these cells grow in this abnormal manner, for only by knowing the position and cause of the leak in our house can we prevent or cure it.

Leprosy, The Plague and Small-Pox In Early Days.

"Leprosy is one of the oldest of known diseases, having existed in Egypt some three or four thousand years before Christ. During the middle ages the number of leprosy houses in Europe alone is estimated at twenty thousand; the number of individual cases and of separated colonies must therefore have brought the aggregate up to enormous figures. It was a disease that attacked rich and poor alike, and was met with everywhere in the civilized world.

The plague, or as we now call it bubonic plague, was perhaps the most terrible of all these diseases. It has been known to history since the second century, A. D., and from the sixth to the seventeenth century prevailed throughout Europe in epidemics of varying intensity. London seemed particularly subject to it. On an average of every decade or so, though sometimes as often as every three or four years, and again at intervals of twenty or thirty, there would be outbreaks of more or less severity—The climax was reached, however, in the great plague of 1665, in which a hundred thousand people are supposed to have perished.

But probably the most virulent as well as the most fatal, of all of these diseases was small-pox. It was known in China, for several hundred years before Christ, and became widespread throughout Europe at the time of the Crusades. It was first brought to America by the Spanish conquerors in the sixteenth century. Leprosy could be controlled by segregation; the plague confined itself to epidemics, tremendous enough, some of them, but with periods of practical quiescence between the outbreaks, but small-pox was ever present in the community, as much a recognized factor as tuberculosis or pneumonia is in our day. * * * A most conservative estimate placed the annual mortality in London as late as the period between the years 1760 and 1800 at from two to five thousand per million living.

In the year 1716 there was living in London, a woman famed as the cleverest and most beautiful of the day. She was Lady Mary Wortley Montagu * * * a woman of influence and enthusiasm. In common with the majority of people in in those days, she also had been a victim of small-pox, which "had deprived her of very fine eye-lashes," though this fact does not seem to have marred her beauty. Her husband, Mr. Wortley Montagu, being at this time appointed Ambassador to Turkey, she decided to accompany him to the Porte, undertaking thereby a journey which no woman, and very few men, had ever before attempted. The effect was naturally heightened by Lady Montagu's rank and position, and the interest in the undertaking was further increased and sustained by a series of letters. * * * It is in one of these, written at Constantinople, April 1, 1717, that we first find mention of that custom of inoculation that was soon to become so inseparably associated with her name.

"I am going to tell you a thing that will make you wish yourself here.

The small-pox, so fatal and so general amongst us, is now entirely harmless by the invention of engrafting, which is the term they give it. There is a set of old women who make it their business to perform the operation every autumn, in the month of September, when the great heat is abated.

People send to one another to know if any of their family has a mind to have the small-pox; they make parties for this purpose, and when they are met (commonly fifteen or sixteen together), the old woman comes with a nutshell full of the matter of the best sort of small-pox and asks what veins you please to have opened.

She immediately rips open that you offer to her with a large needle (which gives you no more pain than a common scratch), and puts into the vein as much matter as can lie upon the head of her needle, and after that binds up the little wound with a hollow bit of a shell."

No. 4

The Annual Donation.

An article in one of our daily papers tells us that in 1864 the Rochester City Hospital held its first donation, or "Thanksgiving Party," as it was then called. I am sure no brighter days dawned then, than on the 5th and 6th of December, 1901. Again the officers of the Eureka Club opened their hospitable doors to us, and the second year there proved beyond a doubt that it is the best place for holding this Donation. With fear and trembling the Board of Managers decided to try the annually discussed plan of a fifty cent luncheon at noon, and the usual fifty cent supper at night. Their fears, we hope and think, were forever banished by the crowds that took advantage of the change. Nearly four times the amount was taken at noon this year as was taken last year, with no falling off in the evening. This shows a decided gain and most hearty thanks are extended to all who co-operated in the new plan.

Especially are we grateful to the Episcopal clergy of the city for bringing so many of the visiting bishops and clergy both to the luncheon and supper. Keen were the interest and curiosity when it was whispered around that at one table in the dining-room were the Bishop of Alaska, Bishop of Southern Brazil, and the new bishop to the Philippines. Unknown to these dignitaries, many were the ladies who walked around the table simply to get a glimpse of them.

Mrs. Landsberg, Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Gilman controlled the kitchen department, and without them there simply would be no donation.

We owe much to Mrs. Goldsmith for the success of the days. Her quiet manner and absolute amiability made matters culinary work like a charm.

The dining-room arrangements were in the hands of Mrs. Garson and Mrs. Osgood. Mrs. Hoyt and Mrs. Frank Macomber had charge of tables, etc. Mrs. Oscar Craig served oysters, tea and coffee.

The entertainments were both interesting and profitable. Mrs. Frederick Allen and Mrs. Warham Whitney had that department. Thursday afternoon a conjurer bewildered all who saw him, even though the room was small, and that is usually destructive to mysteries. Friday afternoon this room was converted into a Japanese tea-room. With the dainty cups of delicious tea, low stool-like seats and fair maidens in costume, one could almost imagine herself across the sea. A clever vaudeville helped to make Friday a day of successes.

The dancing both evenings was well attended. Friday night 461 dancing tickets were sold.

When one succeeded with difficulty in passing the treasurer's desk, where Mrs. Danforth and Mrs. William Perkins beguiled you, (for it was a great pleasure to all to see Mrs. Perkins so near the place graced by her for so many years), the large hall where the Twigs held sway, opened before you.

Here, on your right, the First Twig had their lunch counter, where unexcelled tea, coffee, bouillon, sandwiches and cake took the place for those who wished it, of the heavier luncheon in the dining-room. Only when great pressure was brought to bear upon the ladies of the first Twig, did they consent to have the lunch counter, but we hope now it will be continued each year.

On the left the Mites, with a fish-pond, and orange tree, bewitched the ever moving, restless little ones who so love to go to the donation. The protecting Parent Stem came next with a most complete and attractive line of bedroom articles.

The Splinters offered toothsome candies, also the cleverest candy boxes, painted by the members, representing golfers and swells in all their phases. The Splinters have contracted to pay the Kindergarten teachers and took subscriptions at their table.

The Second and Third Twigs sold fancy articles, with a specialty of bags. Bags of all kinds, from the daintiest little silk bags to shoe bags warranted to hold men's twelves.

The Properly Bent Twig had the only correct thing for them to sell, flowers! Roses, carnations and stately chrysanthemums. Here, subscriptions were taken for the "Cripple Fund," which should commend itself to all.

The Fourth Twig were in their usual place in the middle of the floor. They make each year a number of babies' clothes, and fine underwear which are sold at the Donation. They are glad to take orders through the year. This year, in addition, they had over a hundred dressed dolls, Boys in galateas, Russian blouses and Norfolk suits; girls in dainty evening cloaks, dimities, muslins, gingham and even correct trained nurse's costumes, all found ready purchasers.

The Fifth Twig served lemonade and iced tea, both afternoons and evenings.

The First Graft showed an assortment of over two hundred turn-over collars, in variety and charm equal to Caskell & Caskell of New York. Their other linen novelties made this one of the most satisfactory of all the tables.

The Second Graft had home-made candies, so delicious one is moved to believe that all Rochester's talent in candy making is not confined to Whittle's.

The Columbian Twig showed their usual lot of aprons for ladies and waitresses, besides bags, flat silver cases, burnt wood novelties, made by one of the members, and water-color sketches of favorite spots in South Park.

The Magnolia Twig was the envy of all, with their latest importation of Chinese ladies. These were dressed in costumes of soft suede, in reds and grays, with a fan in one hand and a bag for stamps in the other, the only trouble was there were not half enough of them.

Making a Man.

Hurry the baby as fast as you can ;
 Hurry him, worry him, make him a man.
 Off with his baby clothes, get him in pants.
 Feed him on brain foods and make him advance.
 Hustle him, soon as he's able to walk,
 Into a grammar school ; cram him with talk,
 Fill his poor head full of figures and facts,
 Keep on a-jamming them in till it cracks.
 Once boys grew at a rational rate,
 Now we develop a man while you wait.
 Rush him through college, compel him to grab
 Of every known subject a dip and a dab.
 Get him in business and after the cash
 All by the time he can raise a moustache ;
 Let him forget he was ever a boy,
 Make gold his god and its jingle his joy.
 Keep him a-hustling and clear out of breath,
 Until he wins—nervous prostration and death.
 —Christian Endeavor World.

Health Hints.

There's a skin without and a skin within,
 A covering skin and a lining skin ;
 But the skin within is the skin without,
 Doubled in and carried completely throughout.

Good people all, have a care of your skin,
 Both that without and that within ;
 To the first give plenty of water and soap,
 To the last, little else but water, we hope.

But always be very particular where
 You get your water, your food and your air ;
 For if these be tainted or rendered impure,
 It will have its effect on the blood, be sure.

The food which will ever for you be best,
 Is that you like most and can soonest digest.
 All unripe fruit and decaying flesh
 Beware of, and fish that is not very fresh.
 But of all things the most I would have you beware

Of breathing the poison of once-breathed air
 When in bed, whether out or at home you may be.
 Always open the window and let it go free.
 All you who thus kindly take care of your skin,
 And attend to its wants without and within,
 Need never of cholera feel any fears,
 And your skin may last you a hundred years.
 —Hospital Tidings.

Minister. "You have a great deal to be thankful for. You are blessed with a good husband and children, and seem to have everything to make you happy."

Doleful Woman. "Yes, I know, but I sometimes think that the Lord has taken it out in corns."

Carpets and Draperies.

To the citizens of Western New York we can confidently announce that never before have we shown a stock of Carpetings and Draperies so large and complete as can be seen in our store this season. Nothing is made in floor coverings that we do not carry in stock, and not a novel thing in Draperies has been manufactured this season that has not found its way to our store. In justice to yourself you cannot afford to miss visiting our store when in want of Carpets or Draperies of any kind.

Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Rochester City Hospital.

At the annual meeting of the directors of Rochester City Hospital, held Thursday, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Henry G. Danforth; vice-president, J. J. Bausch; treasurer, Henry S. Hanford; secretary, Albert H. Harris; executive committee, Julius M. Wile, chairman; Henry G. Danforth, Harold P. Brewster, Morley A. Stern, C. J. Brown, Albert S. Harris. New directors were elected as follows: Sylvanus F. Jenkins, Jr., George Wilder, Willard B. Spader and William S. Morse.

The executive committee submitted its report covering the work of the year, as follows:

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 16, 1902.

To the Board of Directors of Rochester City Hospital:

GENTLEMEN—Your executive committee desires to submit as part of its annual report the very able and complete report of Mrs. C. H. Angle, corresponding secretary, read at the recent meeting of the board of lady managers. This report covers fully the history and the work of the institution during the past year, and leaves but little to be added.

The new laboratory, which has been so long needed, is now in operation, and its daily use averages fully four hours.

When an examination is made of the financial statement the item of "supplies purchased" for 1901 should be compared with the same item for 1899, as the number of patients cared for was about the same. The increase in groceries was doubtless caused by advancing prices, while the increased cost of coal is partly due to heating new buildings constructed since 1899, but mainly to an increase in price. As a matter of fact, there were thirty-three tons less used in 1901 than in 1900. The difference in the cost of drugs, etc., is partly made up by larger stock now on hand.

A careful inventory is made each year, one copy of which is kept at the Hospital and a duplicate is given to Mr. Hanford, the treasurer.

The Hospital accepted and gratuitously cared for patients from the following institutions for a total of 1,642 hospital days :

	Days
Door of Hope.....	476
Children's Aid Society.....	480
Sisters of Mercy.....	328
Young Women's Christian Association.....	196
Deaf Mute Institute.....	98
Rescue Mission.....	28
Rochester Orphan Asylum.....	46

This does not include the care of twenty-nine children who were brought to the Hospital after the Orphan Asylum fire.

These 1,642 charity days cost the Hospital $2,643.62. The total number of charity days for the year was 10,546, costing $16,979.06. The annual donation netted $8,737.13, so that the general receipts were drawn upon to the extent of over $8,000 in order to meet the expense of this charitable work. We think these facts entitle the Hospital to more liberal treatment from the city, for despite the increasing charity work done each year the city's payment on that account has steadily decreased for several years past.

In 1899 the city paid.....	$6,134 32
In 1900 the city paid.....	4,860 70
In 1901 the city paid.....	3,877 19

While economy in municipal expenditures is to be encouraged, we still feel that the city ought not to expect the Hospital to care gratuitously for patients who should be paid for by it, and that the authorities are drawing the line much too sharply at the present time, thus doing an injustice to the institution.

The total receipts for care and treatment during the year from all sources was about $35,000, made up as follows :

$8,800 from 392 patients paying $7 or less per week.

$3,500 from 150 patients paying $8 per week.

$10,200 from 371 patients paying $10 per week.

$500 from 14 patients paying $12 per week.

$7,500 from 93 patients paying $16 per week.

$2,500 from 18 patients paying $21 per week.

Had it not been for the more liberal use of higher priced rooms by private patients, the interest on the endowment fund, the greatest economy, and the best possible management, the year's summary must have been very unsatisfactory.

Miss Keith and her able assistant, Miss Jones, have taken up the work so well done before under Miss Palmer, and have carried it on to the entire satisfaction of your committee, and we report every department of the Hospital in the best possible condition.

Respectfully submitted,

ALBERT H. HARRIS,

Secretary.

Hospital Notes.

The annual meeting of the Board of Managers was held January 6th. It was necessary to elect a new member to take Mrs. Richard Harlan's place on the board, she having left the city.

Mrs. Wm. C. Werner received the election, and the board is very much pleased that she has accepted the position.

Contributions for hard wood floor, large chair, and blankets for St. Luke's room, were received from : Mrs. Josiah Anstice, Mrs. Franklin Brewster, Mrs. Richard Moore, Miss Laura Hawks, Mr. James Wolcott, Mr. Henry B. Hathaway, Mr. Thomas Hawks, Mrs. William A. Murphy, Mrs. Charles B. Potter, Mrs. Wilbur J. Mandeville, Mrs. Francis Gorton, Mr. Edward H. Vredenburg, Mrs. Rob Roy Converse, Mrs. Allen J. Cuming, Mrs. Charles A. VanderBeek, Mrs. Mary A. Moore, Mrs. Howard L. Osgood, Mrs. Caroline Rowley.

Six dollars of the amount contributed was given in memory of Emily E. Chapin.

Mrs. Charles Angel and Mrs. F. S. Macomber will be at the Hospital on Wednesday afternoons during February from 2 until 4, to receive visitors and show them through the buildings.

One of the Managers went to the Hospital not long since to inspect things generally. After going through the building she bethought herself of a telephone message which she wished to send, asked permission and went inside the telephone booth, soon her message was given. As she stepped out she heard the noisy clatter of the ambulance horses on the brick driveway, saw the ambulance surgeon rush in, plunge into his great coat, clap on his hat, grab up his bag and hurry off to parts unknown !

The Manager smiling with pleasure and interest, said : "Hurry call, isn't it, what is the accident ?"

The accident was, that she had touched the hurry call button.

By Permission.

Children's Pavillion.

On going into the Pavillion one afternoon, I was greeted from the corner bed with "I can read now !"

There sat Lillian, beaming with happiness, a book in her hand, and others beside her.

She read to me with great pride and very well indeed,

It is wonderful how rapidly she has learned, and only proves what an advantage a teacher is to these children, who have to be shut in so long.

Little Madelaine was fairly bubbling over with merriment that day, for she had lost her white plaster legs, and now has little black stockinged ones just like any other little girl.

The bones of the legs are still rather soft, but it is hoped that time, care and diet will eventually make them hard.

One of the kindergarten instructors is so interested in teaching the children to read that she goes to the Pavillion extra days that they may progress more rapidly.

Quinine.

There is probably no drug in use at the present time which occupies a larger field of usefulness than quinine, and some thoughts concerning it would no doubt be of interest to readers of the Review.

Quinine is what is known as an alkaloid, and is obtained from the cinchona tree whose native habitat is the mountain range of the Andes. "Kina-Kina," signifying "a good bark," was the name given to it by the ancient Peruvians, who were probably the first to appreciate its usefulness. The Spaniards learned of it from them and introduced it into Europe about the year 1640. It is red when dried and reduced to a powder and contains various other alkaloids, quinine being the most important. The bark was named in honor of the Countess del Chinchon, whose husband was viceroy of Peru and who is reported to have been cured of severe fever by its use. She soon afterward returned to Spain and is said to have first administered the bark to the sufferers from ague on her husband's estates in that country; and thus it became appropriately known as "Countess's Powder," by which name it was long referred to.

It was not until about the year 1820 that the ingredient quinine was discovered in the bark and found to be the efficient part. Before that the entire bark was used as the fever remedy. Since its discovery its use has steadily increased until now it is said that fully two hundred and fifty tons are used each year. This seems very surprising at first, but when we consider its ever increasing field of usefulness and its greatly diminished cost it does not seem so remarkable. Twenty-five years ago quinine cost more than ten times its present value, but the cultivation of the cinchona tree has been much improved and its original habitat much enlarged. It is now grown in the East Indies, Ceylon, Himalayas and other tropical countries. At one time it was in danger of extinction on account of the excessive waste which took place in the gathering of the bark by the natives of Peru, but since it has become more extensively cultivated the growing and gathering of the bark is under government supervision in many places. The tree is one of graceful and stately growth, the trunk being not more than six inches in diameter and the height of the tree often reaching fifty or sixty feet.

At the time of the introduction of cinchona bark the sanitary outlook in Europe was very unpromising. The injudicious arrangement and dirty condition of all dwellings from palace to cottage; the constant pollution of towns with all kinds of organic refuse; the many swamps and fens, which in the summer became dry and loaded with the decomposing remains of a luxuriant vegetation; everything combined to promote the development of fever and ensure its spread. No remedy was known that was even fairly reliable; lingering illness and death from fever were as common as they were unavoidable.

It would be no exaggeration to say that there are fertile lands inhabited by man today that would be dreary wastes were it not for what quinine has enabled man to do. For we must not forget that it is a preventive against fever as well as a cure. In the exploration and settlement of many distant lands it is as indispensable as ammunition. The greatest foe that African explorers have to contend with is fever, an enemy more deadly than the native with his poisoned arrows. It is said that half the explorers in Africa succumb to fever, and were it not for the beneficent use of quinine it is doubtful if any such undertakings would be feasible. Stanley and many others have ascribed to its use the virtue of enabling them to accomplish their undertakings.

At first it was not known how or why the cinchona bark cured fever, especially that almost universal kind commonly called "ague," but which we now more properly and specifically designate as malaria. It was used empirically, but so efficacious was its result that often some magic charm was credited to it. It was not until very recently, and long after quinine was found to be the efficient part, that it was discovered just what true ague, or malaria, is, and precisely how and why quinine is such an almost unfailing cure.

The discovery of the true cause of malaria, the plasmodium malariae, with, the secret of its origin, its growth, how it infects mankind, and how such growth and infection can be prevented marks one of the most important events in medicine of recent years.

Edward Mott Moore, M. D.

It is not often that an entire community so sincerely mourns the loss of one man as Rochester, that of Dr. Moore.

His generous nature, loving heart and ready sympathy endeared him to all whose privilege it was to know him.

In its early days he was greatly interested in the plans for the City Hospital, and gave much valuable advice for carrying out the project.

He was a member of its Board of Directors in 1847, and again in 1864, but it was to St. Mary's Hospital that his life work was given.

Now he rests from his labors, and his good works do follow him.

Following are the resolutions adopted by the Monroe County Medical Society:

Dr. Edward Mott Moore, for many years a member of this Society, and once its president, died in this city March 3, 1902, in his 88th year. For seventy-two years Dr. Moore had been a resident of Rochester. After an excellent preliminary education, general and technical, he studied medicine and graduated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1838. In 1841 he began his work as lecturer, which was carried on for many years in medical colleges in Woodstock, Vermont, Pittsfield, Mass., Cleveland and Buffalo.

During this time he was actively engaged in the study and practice of his profession. As a surgeon he was widely known and had a vast experience. His career embraced many of the wonderful achievements in medical science with which we are all familiar.

He performed major operations before the introduction of anæsthesia in 1846. He was hospitable to new ideas, kept in touch with all real progress in his profession and was closely associated with important discoveries and improved methods. He was the head of the staff in St. Mary's Hospital in this city from the founding of that institution.

Dr. Moore was a man of strong intellectual gifts—a clear vision, sane judgment, equitable temper, absolute self-control. He loved the society of the young, sympathized with the bright and ambitious student and was generous with his advice and help. His mind was essentially scientific and practical, therefore it followed necessarily that he was one of the first to accept the doctrines of Darwin and Spencer, and to interest himself in biological studies.

Dr. Moore was an advocate of independence in politics, of every civic reform. His influence for good in our city was constant, quiet, effective. His later years were devoted exclusively to the development of our system of park, working with wonderful prevision for the remote future and not merely the immediate present. That work gave him the distinction of being the father of the parks. His plans, if carried out, will more and more serve to keep alive his memory.

We have lost the oldest and the wisest of our medical friends. He had passed far beyond the four-score limit, yet only his physical strength had abated. He was still our trusted counselor and our staunch friend. We revered him only the more as time went on. We are grateful for the benefits that we enjoyed in this long and intimate relation of friendship and shall continue under his influence, though he is withdrawn from our sight.

We adopt as our own expression the inscription of a memorial in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, to an English physician:

"Eminently distinguished for science.

"Beloved for the simplicity of his manners and the benevolence of his heart.

"Respected for his inflexible integrity.

"In all the relations of his professional life he was sagacious; cordial, diligent and humane."

We tender to his family, particularly to the sons, who are our fellow members, our heartfelt appreciation and sympathy.

Hospital Notes.

We hear so many opinions expressed about charity patients in the Hospital, that a few facts may not come amiss. There are fifteen free beds in the Hospital.

At one time in February there were ninety-seven patients in all, throughout the Hospital; of this number twenty-six were free patients.

With the fifteen free beds filled, this left eleven patients to be cared for free on other beds, and at the same time there were eight more who were paying less than the regular amount, some even as little as $1.25 a week. When one realizes that they receive the same care, food and service as those paying full board, it will be seen that the Hospital is doing, what should be considered, its share of charity work.

Such instances as the following frequently occur.

A patient is brought in seriously ill with diphtheria.

The contagious pavilion is opened, heated, lighted, and two special nurses detailed.

In all probability anti-toxine has not been given, so anywhere from one to three doses are necessary.

The patient may not live over two or three days, yet for all this the Hospital receives $3.00, while the anti-toxine alone costs $7.00.

It does not require a skilled mathematician to determine whether this belongs on the profit or loss side of the accounts.

Miss Lois Whitney left in her will, three thousand dollars towards the endowment of a bed in memory of her mother. The amount was to be paid to the Hospital when the interest should have increased the amount to five thousand dollars.

The amount is now complete, and this endowment put upon the Memorial tablet in the hall of the Hospital.

The highest number of patients in the Hospital, during February, was one hundred and one, the lowest seventy-eight, and the number of operations performed was fifty-six.

Dr. S. H. Rosenthal finished his term of service at the Hospital on the first of February. He is now with Dr. Simon L. Elsner, as his assistant.

When the sleighing was at its best last month, Dr. L. W. Howk sent a large sleigh to the Hospital, and twenty of the Nurses had a jolly ride. A few days later Dr. Howk again sent the sleigh, that all those who could not go the first day might have their chance too.

The hard wood floor in St. Luke's room is laid, and the room again in order, with a new Morris chair waiting for someone to use it.

Mrs. Oscar Craig and Mrs. Arthur Hamilton will be at the Hospital, Wednesday afternoons in March, from four until six, to show visitors through the buildings.

The Children's Pavillon.

What an excellent thing it would be if all mothers could send their babies to the HOSPITAL to be trained. There are a number of babies there now, of various ages, yet harmony not bedlam, exists. When twelve o'clock comes, the bottles and cups of milk come too. Each babe waits patiently, without temper or screams, until her particular bottle arrives, even though the dear little darkey in the next crib, already has hers. In the home a baby is a little tyrant, in the HOSPITAL a little soldier. So much for discipline, even in a six months old child.

A happy group greeted our eyes in the Pavilion, Monday morning. All the children were up, dressed and sitting around the large table, ready for a good play. A new set of doll's wooden bed-room furniture and miniature tea-table fixings had just arrived, so numerous getting-ups, goings-to-bed, and meals were in progress.

Little Madelaine was very much amused when it was suggested that she should ask Dr. Weigel to prescribe for her doll, who had lost the top of her head hair and all.

Within the week a little half-starved baby has been brought to the Pavilion. She has been neglected and in consequence her functions do not work properly. It may be of interest to know how such a little one is helped. In the Pavilion three sets of coils of steam-pipes are so arranged that they run under the crib, rather close to the mattress, so that the air under and close to the bed is kept heated. The baby is nicely tucked in to prevent draughts, the steam turned on, and the temperature can be raised to 90°. Of course heat is essential to a poorly nourished child. The little one undergoing this treatment now, is gaining already.

Home Hydrotherapy.

The use of water as a therapeutic measure is almost as old as are the ills of the human race. Its routine employment however has been largely empirical, and only within the last half century has its use been put upon a scientific basis. The empirical use of water in a systematic way has been practiced very extensively in this country in the so called "water cures." But so commonly was it associated with the practices of quackery that it fell into disrepute with regular physicians as a therapeutic agent and its value was disregarded. Thanks to the efforts of Fleury, Liebermeister, Brand, Ziemsen, Winternitz and others, its employment has been placed upon a scientific basis and it is now one of the most valued of remedial agents, especially in the treatment of functional nervous diseases.

The modern "water cure" is a very different institution from its earlier namesake, and with its special apparatus, furnishes convenient facilities for hydrotherapy. But however elaborate the hydriatic institute, after all it does not modify the simple principles of water treatment, but only affords convenient and varied modes in its application. Many valuable methods of water treatment can be carried out in the most modest home, and it is the object of this brief paper to show how this can be accomplished.

In a general way, cold water acts as a tonic, warm water as a sedative, while the very hot bath is seldom needed.

For its invigorating tonic effect, nothing excels the cold douche, in which the temperature of the water varies from 60° to 40°, while the pressure of the ordinary city service is quite sufficient. To be most effective as a tonic low temperature, pressure and volume are important. But usually the stream delivered by a half or three-quarter inch hose attached to the bath room or kitchen service is quite sufficient to secure excellent results. It is my habit to have the necessary length of hose without a nozzle attached to the house service in the bath room if possible or to the kitchen service if that only be available. The patient standing in the tub is then douched by the operator, the pressure being increased as required by compressing the open end of the hose.

The stream is directed up and down the spine and back of the legs at first, then over the chest and abdomen if advised, for the space of thirty to sixty seconds.

The patient is then dried thoroughly with a towel. He may lie down for a few minutes well covered up, till reaction occurs, when he may dress, not more than twenty minutes to half an hour being required for the whole operation. The first effect of the application is to drive the blood from the surfaces, while secondarily the peripheral vessels dilate and the skin is in a glow. The essential features of the treatment are the sudden shock and force of the stream of cold water and the brief duration of the douche. In more sensitive persons this vigorous treatment may be modified. The mildest form of applying cold water for tonic effect is the cold ablution in which the patient stands in a tub of water of a temperature of 50° to 80°, while cold or cooler water is dashed against the skin, vigorous rubbing being done meantime by the disengaged hand.

Then comes the half bath, in which the patient sits in a tub of water of a temperature of 85°, while cool and cooler water is splashed and rubbed over the skin till the teeth chatter. A coarse linen sheet is then quickly thrown over the patient and he is thoroughly dried.

Another method is by affusion, in which water of a low temperature 45° to 60° is poured from a height from a wide mouthed vessel or bucket half a dozen times and the patient is then rubbed briskly with the hand and dried as before.

A more vigorous method consists in using the drip sheet. The patient stands as before in warm water, while a sheet dipped in water of a temperature of 80° to 60° is thrown over the head and shoulders. Water of a still lower temperature is then dashed against the sheet, while a smart rubbing is kept up for from two to five minutes and then the patient is dried thoroughly.

In many cases if the sudden shock produces too great a sense of pressure in the head, a cold compress can be placed upon the head during the treatment with good effect. Rubbing with the hand stimulates the skin circulation and is usually employed as an accessory in sensitive cases if it is well to avoid too great shock.

This tonic use of cold water is of special value in simple neurasthenic states, in hysteria, in hypochondria and in lithaemia, or in conditions dependent upon "poor circulation." It directly increases the red blood corpuscles and promotes metabolism or tissue change. But like all remedial measures it should be used under the advice of the physician. A later article will deal with the use of water as a sedative, as well as with the value of wet packs.

While this paper is in the press, we learn of the death of Mr. Samuel Wilder. As one of the oldest directors, and a most faithful and self-sacrificing friend of the Hospital, his death is a serious loss to the institution.

A lawyer who studied in Mr. Lincoln's office, tells a story illustrative of his love of justice. After listening one day for some time to a client's statement of his case, Lincoln, who had been staring at the ceiling, suddenly swung around in his chair, and said :

"Well, you have a pretty good case in technical law, but a pretty bad one in equity and justice. You'll have to get some other fellow to win this case for you. I couldn't do it. All the time while talking to that jury, I'd be thinking : 'Lincoln, you're a liar, and I believe I should forget myself and say it out loud.

A careless young woman in starting to leave a car, dropped her purse. A young man who evidently intended to leave the car at the same time, saw her drop her purse, picked it up and put it into his pocket. He was noticed, and just as he stepped from the car an elderly man gripped him by the arm and whispered, "If you don't give that purse to the young lady this instant I'll expose you."

"Yes, certainly!" and the young man then said, "I beg pardon, Elizabeth, you dropped your purse."

"Oh, thank you, Jim," she replied.

"I hope you are satisfied," said Jim to the elderly gentleman, "The lady is my sister."

The Limit of Microscopic Power.

Professor McKendrick, in his presidential address to the physiology section of the British Association in September, remarked that the smallest particle of matter that can be seen with our present microscopes, is between one-four hundred-thousandth and one-five-hundred-thousandth of an inch in diameter. The diffraction of light in the microscope forbids the possibility of seeing still smaller objects. Yet the living spores studied by physiologists are sometimes, probably, even smaller in size than the most minute particle that the most perfect microscope can show.

SAMUEL WILDER.

After a long illness Mr. Samuel Wilder passed away on Sunday, March 16th.

In recognition of the qualities of Mr. Wilder, who for forty years served on the Board of Directors of the Rochester City Hospital, we publish the following memorials of him:

BY THE DIRECTORS OF THE ROCHESTER
CITY HOSPITAL.

The board of directors of the Rochester City Hospital express their deep sorrow at the loss of Samuel Wilder, one of the dearest and, in service, one of the oldest members of the board.

Mr. Wilder was elected a director in 1862 and a member of the executive committee in 1865, and served on that committee for twenty-five years, during the greater part of which period he was its chairman. For three years, from 1897 to 1900, he was president of the board and only ceased to occupy that office because he declined a re-election. His interest in the hospital and its work, however, never flagged. For many years it was his practice to spend a portion of each morning at the institution, giving to the officers in charge the benefit of his ripe and mature judgment on the many little, but perplexing questions constantly arising, and cheering them in their work with his sunny personality and constant sympathy. For the past two years the board has been deprived of his presence at its meetings, but he was always well informed as to what was being done and what ends were sought, and his advice and counsel were freely and wisely given and with as perfect an understanding of the opportunities and needs of the hospital as if he were at the meetings.

Generous, true and steadfast, he never wavered when the outlook was darkest, and always ready to meet the present emergency with strong mind and kind heart, he made each task seem lighter to his younger, less confident, associates.

BY THE MANAGERS OF THE ROCHESTER
CITY HOSPITAL.

The managers of the City Hospital are deeply sensible of their loss in the death of Mr. Samuel Wilder. For many long years he has been their most trusted friend and adviser. In the midst of perplexities, and in days of dire distress coming earnestly and generously to the aid of the hospital, in securing the funds necessary to lift from it the burden of debt; unwearied, jealous of criticism, and full of faith in its success. Those of the managers who have had the privilege of working with him in the hospital to secure the best results in all departments, can never forget his courage, his cheerfulness, his untiring energy day by day, his constant devotion to the highest interests of the institution.

His confidence and trust will be an inspiration to those who are still laboring to bring to perfection the work so dear to his heart. With the deepest sense of our loss, we lay upon his bier a token of our love our appreciation of his labors and our warmest sympathy with the members of his own family.

BY THE TRUSTEES OF THE UNITARIAN CHURCH.

In the death of Mr. Samuel Wilder the Unitarian Church loses one of its most faithful friends. He has always occupied a leading place in the councils of the church and was a regular attendant and a member of its board of trustees for more than half a century, and was always and in all ways a loyal and liberal supporter. His kindly, genial nature, his sound judgment and sympathetic interest in all good works will be sadly missed, and we, the members of the board, especially appreciate the great loss that the church has sustained by his death.

We extend our sympathy to his bereaved family, and enter on our minutes this slight evidence of our appreciation of his worth.

(Signed) PORTER FARLEY, Chairman.

A. S. OSBORN, Secretary.

BY THE DIRECTORS OF THE CENTRAL BANK OF ROCHESTER.

Whereas, Death has taken from among us our friend, Samuel Wilder, the founder, for many years the president, and always in the greatest degree interested in and watchful of the welfare of this bank; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we do not here attempt to adopt words of praise upon the standing, reputation or character of Mr. Wilder, for his whole life so well and so long known to this community is an ample eulogy. That no language could be too strong to express our sorrow, our sense of the loss that this city has sustained, and our heartfelt sympathy for every member of his family.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this bank, and a copy of them sent to his family.

FROM THE LEAVENWORTH (KAN.) TIMES.

There died in Rochester, New York, the other day one of nature's noblemen, Samuel Wilder. This is the opinion of one who knew him well for over half a century.

Samuel Wilder was a man of business. Of New England stock he was strong in his opinions, and his ideas of right and wrong were of the highest order, bespeaking a man of great character. He was successful in life because of his absolute integrity. He leaves as a monument to his memory in Rochester a magnificent building, known as the Wilder block. To his family he left the heritage of a good name, kept through a long and busy life:

FUNERAL OF SAMUEL WILDER.

Funeral services over the remains of the late Samuel Wilder were held at the family residence 197 East avenue, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Many friends and acquaintances, who had known Mr. Wilder during his long business career in this city were present.

Prayer was recited and hymns were sung. A touching tribute to the character of Mr. Wilder was paid by the Rev. William C. Gannett, pastor of the First Unitarian church, of which the deceased had been a member for many years.

The honorary bearers were Frederick L. Whittlesey, William Van Zandt, Rev. Dr. Max Landsberg, William F. Cogswell, Thomas C. Montgomery, John Howe, Arthur S. Hamilton and Charles P. Boswell. The active bearers were William H. Averell, Sherlock Andrews, John J. Bowen, L. L. Allen, F. P. Allen, Warham Whitney, H. P. Brewster and Henry G. Danforth. Interment was made in Mt. Hope cemetery where a brief service was performed at the grave.

Hospital Notes.

Mrs. R. H. Hofheinz and Mrs. Wm. C. Werner will be at the Hospital Wednesday afternoons in April, from two until four, to receive visitors and show them through the building.

The greatest number of patients in the Hospital during March was one hundred, the smallest eighty-five.

Mrs. Keith for some time has felt the need of some cribs of a particular kind for use in the maternity section of the Hospital. She has now found a firm that will make them for $6.00 apiece. The mattress costs $1.05, making the total cost $7.05. Two or three of the Twigs have expressed their desire of giving each a crib, and there may be others who would like to follow their example.

Spring house-cleaning has begun at the Hospital and is already well advanced.

The mansard rooms are all re-painted and the halls cleaned. Most of the floors are re-waxed and much of the paint washed, but the burden of having over a hundred windows washed is still heavy upon Mrs. Keith.

One of the spring improvements is an incline from the piazza to the ground, so that patients may be wheeled in and out. No longer will the life of the patient and the joints of the chair be endangered, as in the past, when they had to be carried.

Children's Pavilion.

Anyone who will go to the Pavilion on a Thursday afternoon at half-past two, and see the children at their school and singing, will be more than repaid for the effort.

Little Madelaine has gone home, and her merry little self is sadly missed. She had improved so much that her shoes with braces enable her to walk very well.

The little baby who last month was being warmed back to health over a coil of heated pipes, has gained so that she is advanced to the next crib, and another little one is undergoing the same treatment.

Oral Hygiene During Sickness.

There is no time when greater care should be exercised and so little is done in the way of taking care of the teeth as during sickness.

The teeth are integral parts of the body, and during this time suffer from lack of nourishment and are deficient in power of resistance; suffering in a large degree the effects of general disease. These facts are not understood by physician or nurse, and the result is that many a good set of teeth is ruined.

The condition of the teeth, after a long illness, is not due to the strong medicines used, although, of course, it has its influence. The Homeopathic physician finds the teeth of his patients in quite as bad a condition as those of the regular practitioner.

The use of floss silk, a soft brush, alkaline mouth washes, and the constant use of precipitated chalk or Phillips' milk of magnesia, are all indicated. If the patient is unable to use the silk or brush, and the mouth is foul and offensive, frequent rinsing with plain water, listerine, lime water, or one of the many excellent antiseptic mouth washes on the market is advised.

The nurse, or the patient, if able, should wrap a soft cloth around the finger and gently clean the teeth; this will do nicely, in conjunction with an antiseptic wash, and greatly aid in keeping down the accumulation of injurious deposits.

The gums, in health, are one of the least sensitive organs in the body; but in a diseased condition one of the most sensitive, and under neglect soon become loose and spongy, and bleed at the slightest provocation. To aid in their healthy preservation they should be gently massaged daily.

Caution should be exercised in the giving of iron and other harmful drugs. The acid solvent contained in most of these preparations, coming in contact with the teeth, has a very destructive effect, which is not obviated nor even modified by taking the "tonic through a quill," as the attending physician sometimes directs. By a little practice the medicine can be directed along the tongue, which can be formed in a funnel shape, head thrown back, with little or none touching the teeth.

After the administration of any drug the mouth should be thoroughly rinsed with an alkaline wash or lime water.

A most trying period for the teeth is during pregnancy; particular attention should be given the teeth at this time, and frequent visits to the dentist are necessary. If the teeth have been neglected, it is not necessary or even advisable to go through long, tedious sittings; the teeth can be filled with some one of the plastic filling materials, and thus tide the patient over until a more opportune period.

There cannot be any set rules for a diet at this period, but, in general, avoid a too liberal indulgence in sugar, butter and superfine flour. The diet should consist largely of milk, eggs, oysters, meat, vegetables, fruits, whole wheat flour, and the morning dish of oatmeal and cream.

The Mary Bed.

Next month is the month when the annual subscriptions for the Mary Bed are due. We wish that we could add more names to our list of annual subscribers. The fund now amounts to $384.76, and we think that it might be quickly made up to one thousand, if more Marys would show the interest we are sure they feel in our Hospital, and in the endowment of a bed in the Children's Pavilion, to be known as "The Mary Bed." Will all those who are annual subscribers please send their subscriptions during the month of May to Mrs. M. H. Wright (Treasurer for the M. B. Fund), 282 East avenue.

The whole wheat flour of to-day contains all the mineral elements; the outer husk or coat only is rejected. Analysis shows that five hundred pounds of whole wheat flour contains seventy-eight pounds of muscular material and eighty-five pounds of bone and tooth-forming material. On the other hand, superfine flour contains but sixty-five pounds of muscular material and thirty pounds of bone and tooth-forming material.

In conclusion, a liberal amount of common sense is to be used in the diet during pregnancy and long illness. Attention to the teeth during these times is most essential to present comfort and to future health and appearance.

W. W. B.

Woandsu, a New Food-Plant.

The French chemist Balland has recently analyzed an annual food-plant called woandsu, growing in tropical Africa, and introduced in Southern Asia and Brazil, and his conclusions are interesting. It is, he says, the first fruit, in the natural state, that he has ever examined which shows all the chemical properties of a perfect nutriment. Two pounds of it would supply the daily requirements of the human system. Like the peanut, it matures under ground. Its eatable kernel is shaped like an egg. It furnishes a very white flour, whose flavor, after cooking, resembles that of chestnuts.

April Rain.

It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining daffodils;
In every dimpled drop I see
Wild flowers on the hills.
The clouds of gray engulf the day
And overwhelm the town—
It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining roses down.

It isn't raining rain to me,
But fields of clover bloom,
Where any buccaneering bee
May find a bed and room—
A health unto the happy,
A fig for him who frets,—
It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining violets.

Hospital Notes.

Three years ago, at the time our beautiful Nurses' Home was opened, giving its wide, quiet spaces and the comfort of separate rooms to the members of the school, it seemed an impossible future that was thought of when it was shown that the third story was arranged so it could be finished off as the growth of the school should make more space necessary.

And already that time is near, for every room in the Home is occupied and four nurses are quartered elsewhere as well as may be.

This increase in the members of the school has been caused by the development in the use of private rooms in Hospitals, which is conspicuous all over the country, and which calls for more service than work in the wards, not that the care given the patients differs in quality, but that each patient being in a separate apartment, the amount of work is multiplied out of all ratio to the number of individuals.

In many ways this special work affords valuable training, for while the wards give experience of a variety of ailments, in special work a nurse finds the need of adaptation to a patient's peculiarities and whims, which arises from constant association, much more forcibly than in the less monotonous life of the wards. In the old days, when this part of the training was exceedingly limited, many a nurse had to learn its lessons in bitterness after she was outside Hospital walls, and perhaps did herself irreparable harm in the process. So, though it seems discouraging to look forward already to further equipment for the Home, the necessity is really not a misfortune, but a development. * *

The Directors of the Hospital made a departure by holding their last quarterly meeting in the assembly room of the Nurses' Home. Sixteen out of the twenty members were present. At five-thirty they held their executive meeting, after which they made a tour of the Hospital. A hurry call for the ambulance was arranged for their amusement and edification. Finally they adjourned to a dinner served for them in the nurses' dining hall. They announced themselves as more than pleased with the whole affair.

Miss Keith's heart is made glad by the attainment of her long wished for medicine closet, which the receipts from the REVIEW have made possible. It has been placed for convenience in the upper corridor, and is of the most modern type. It is a four-sided compartment, three sides having shelves, the fourth being the doors, which are half glass. The first shelf has the sink, with hot and cold water for washing the medicine glasses, and also holds the necessary tray and glasses. Under this shelf stand the large bottles, etc. The other two shelves are of glass, and hold all the required medicines, be they sugar-coated pills, capsules or nauseous liquids.

The system of giving out the doses comes from Boston, and is as good as are the brown bread and baked beans.

A drawer contains packs of small square cards, and on each card is written the name of a patient, what medicine has been prescribed and the quantity. These cards differ in color, and indicate when the medicines are to be taken. Green means every four hours; yellow every three hours; blue before meals and red after meals; while white stands for odd times. One nurse has charge of administering the doses. For instance, before a meal she goes to the closet, unlocks the doors, which are swung on double hinges to fold back out of the way, and takes out her pack of blue cards. As she measures a dose into a glass she covers the glass with the card and places it on a tray, and so on until all are arranged, then with a pitcher of fresh water she takes her tray from bed to bed to all who require doses before meals. After each dose is taken the card is again placed over the glass. When the glasses are washed and cards put away the medicine closet is locked until the next dosing time. The system is so accurate and simple that it commends itself to the most critical.

Children's Pavilion.

The new night nursery for the maternity babies is a model of daintiness and convenience.

There are two long, low stands, each large enough to hold three bassinets. The drawers of one stand holds the necessary blankets, that of the other contains the sheets.

Then there is the white table, in fact all the furniture is white, which holds the scales for weighing the babies; also a low table for the bath tub, with a conveniently low chair to go with it. The drawer of this table holds all the accessories of a baby's bath.

A chest of drawers filled with baby garments completes the furniture.

After the babies are asleep at night it is the duty of the nurse in charge to lay out in proper order the clothes to be used for each child the next morning after its bath.

No printed motto is necessary here, for system, order and cleanliness can be read in every detail of the room.

Reorganization of the Out-Patient Department.

On the first of May the Out-Patient Department of the Hospital was reorganized. The object of the changes made is to extend the scope and increase the efficiency of the work. Hereafter physicians will be in the Magne-Jewell building each week day at 11 o'clock, to attend to any patients who may come. There will be a similar clinic on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, at 7 o'clock. Special clinics will be held as heretofore, except that in each instance the afternoon hour will be uniformly 4 o'clock. Particulars are given on another page of the REVIEW.

Our Out-Patient Department is designed solely to give treatment to indigent patients. Such are always welcome. Physicians, clergymen, those connected with charitable institutions, or doing work among the sick and unfortunate, and who know of persons who need the care and treatment offered are cordially invited to direct them to this department of the Hospital, where they will have the benefit of the ample facilities and resources of the institution.

The Twigs.

The Twigs are very much in evidence this month.

The Board of Managers has invited all the Twig members to meet them at a "tea" to be given on Friday afternoon, May the twenty-third, from three until five, at the Nurses' Home. Miss Keith has consented to permit the guests to go through the buildings between three and four o'clock. We hope that all will avail themselves of this charming opportunity of seeing the "Isabelle Hart Memorial Home," and the many improvements in the Hospital.

A request has been made for a report from each Twig of the work done during the year. It is hoped that this will meet with a ready response.

The Third Twig is making most attractive comforters, and are very glad to receive orders for them. Orders may be sent either to Mrs. C. H. Babcock, 151 Plymouth avenue, or to Mrs. W. W. Chapin, 110 South Fitzhugh street.

The subscription dance under the auspices of the Fifth Twig was a great success. The fruit of their labors is a gift to the Hospital of one of the new modern baby's cribs, furnished completely, and three glass-topped bed-side tables.

The Mary Bed.

The following annual subscriptions have been received :

Mary E. Cornell, Ithaca, N. Y., $1 00
Mary Lawrence Redmund, (in Mem) 5 00

The annual subscriptions are due this month and we wish that they could be sent promptly to Miss M. H. Wright, Treasurer for the M. B. Fund, 282 East Ave.

Home Hydrotherapy.

The sedative influence of hydrotherapy is usually secured by the warm full bath or the warm douche. It is indicated particularly in cerebral hyperaemia attended with headache, insomnia or even with mental excitement as in mania.

In contradistinction to the hot or cold bath it is well called the neutral bath, the temperature being constantly maintained between 92° and 100°. Its duration may vary from 15 minutes to two or three hours or more, according to the requirements of the particular case. In acute mania or great mental excitement, it may be continued for hours with good effect in quieting the patient, provided care is taken that it produces no untoward exhaustion.

For persistent insomnia there is no more efficient method than the neutral bath, prolonged for an hour at bedtime. Not only does it have the effect of reducing blood pressure in the brain, through its dilating influence upon the peripheral bloodvessels, but it has a powerfully calmative effect upon the nervous system.

Its method of administration consists in filling the tub with water at a temperature of 95° to 100° arranging a support for the patient's shoulders by means of a strip of canvas fastened to the edges of the tub, or by a sheet passed around the tub and so pinned together, that the shoulders, while covered with the warm water, are yet somewhat supported. No one who has tried to lie in a modern bath tub for an hour need be told the added comfort secured by proper support of the shoulders. If the tub is too long a support may be arranged at the foot for bracing the feet.

Blankets should now be drawn from the foot of the tub and from the top and pinned together about the patient's neck. In this way the rapid escape of heat is prevented and the patient protected from chilling, although it is important by means of a floating thermometer to note accurately the water temperature that hot water may be added as needed to maintain a uniform degree of heat. At times, especially when first used, the full warm bath may cause a faintness, or even syncope, under which circumstances an attendant should give the bather a swallow of cold water or place a cold compress on the head, or even administer some such simple stimulant as aromatic spirits of ammonia in small doses.

Nor is it unusual for the sedative effect to be so pronounced as to cause the bather to fall asleep, and if he is left alone, one must make sure he could not slip down and become wholly submerged.

An alternating hot and cold application of water, the so-called Scotch douche, is often a valuable application in local inflammatory conditions, such as sprains, bruises and the like. It is applied by douching the part alternately for a dozen or more times, with very cold and very warm water, at temperatures of 40° to 50°, and 110° to 120° respectively. Or buckets of hot and cold water can be equally well used, especially in the treatment of the wrist or ankle. For sprains of these joints there is no more effective treatment with equal simplicity of procedure.

The alternations should be momentary and the series may be repeated frequently during the day.

Another sedative measure, perhaps less positive and therefore applicable in very susceptible patients, is the use of the "wet pack" warm or cold. This is given in the following manner:

The mattress is first covered with rubber sheeting or a thick comforter for protection, and two woolen blankets are then spread smoothly above the rubber sheet. A linen or cotton sheet of suitable length is then lightly wrung out of water of the proper temperature and quickly placed about the patient's body, while he stands with his hands raised and, if need be, to avoid shock, with his feet in warm water. The upper edge of the wet sheet comes just under the arms, while the lower edge reaches nearly to the knee for a "half-pack," or to the feet for a "full-pack."

The application, while made quickly, should be done skillfully. The sheet is applied closely to the skin, and any air spaces between the skin and sheet thoroughly smoothed out to avoid local chilling. The patient then lies on the blankets which are closely drawn around him and his shoulders well tucked in, another blanket or more being spread over all. Reaction quickly occurs, the skin warms up, and a delicious sense of languor or even sleep results.

In the "full-pack" the sheet is closely applied about the trunk as before, the arms are then extended along the trunk and carefully covered with the folds of the wet sheet, and the legs treated in a similar manner, a large sheet of course being required and the same care being used to avoid air interspaces.

If a "cold pack" for mild tonic effect is required, the sheet should be wrung out of water at a temperature below 70°; if a "warm pack" is indicated for a purely sedative effect, a temperature of 100° or 115° is proper.

The duration of a pack is one hour approximately, and the patient is then taken out of the wrappings and carefully dried and allowed to lie for an hour further, or for the night if the pack is given during the evening for insomnia.

Further methods of using water in the treatment of disease of course are employed, but in reality they are but modifications of the procedures already described.

OUR MARY LOUISA.

BY ELIZABETH L. GOULD.

Our Mary Louisa is "most nearly seven,"

And there are things she would like to know.

"How do folks wind folks right around little fingers?

And what has become of the snow?

"Can they mend mother's head if it splits with a headache?

And where do the doughnut holes go?

And why is it better to eat bread than candy?

And where do the peanut-trees grow?

"And once in how often is 'once in so often'?

And why won't the old bellows blow?

And who makes small pitchers with big ears to listen?

And why is it best to speak low?"

These things and "perhaps just a very few others"—

A couple of hundred or so—

Our Mary Louisa, who's "most nearly seven,"

Is really quite anxious to know.

The hearts that dare are quick to feel.

The hands that wound are soft to heal.

—Bayard Taylor.

Hospital Notes.

As each year goes by we wonder more and more what we ever did without the "Isabelle Hart Memorial Home."

Here it is that the nurses have their lectures, and here also they may spend their recreation hours, with books, magazines and piano to divert their minds from the worries of nursing.

What more fitting place than before the beautiful memorial window for the last services, when one of these nurses was called from her ministering work here to her rest beyond.

When graduating day comes, the building is turned into a bower and here the graduates receive their well earned diplomas.

I am sure in after life the nurses must often think with pleasure of the hours spent there.

This year the Home opened its doors for a new attraction, a "Twig Tea." The Managers invited the members of all the Twigs to take "tea" with them, May twenty-third, from three until five.

It was one of the first oppressively warm days, but, notwithstanding, a goodly number were present.

The President of the Board, Mrs. Arthur Robinson, the other managers and Miss Keith were at the door to give each one a warm welcome.

Mrs. Warham Whitney served iced tea at one table, while Mrs. Wm. E. Werner served sherbet and cakes at another table.

Several of the nurses were present to show guests through the Hospital, and many availed themselves of the opportunity, expressing great delight over all they saw.

Miss Keith and Miss Jones gave the afternoon to us and thereby added much to the pleasure of the day.

April and May have both been busy months, but May is a little ahead.

The largest number of patients any day during April was one hundred and two, while in May the greatest number was one hundred and eight.

The lowest number in April was eighty-two, in May it was ninety-one, while the daily average for April was ninety, that of May was ninety-eight.

It is gratifying to read in the Democrat and Chronicle the many applications for seeds for the children's gardens.

The flowers were much appreciated by the patients in the Hospital, all last summer, and not the least of the pleasure was in seeing the children who brought them.

Mrs. Landsberg and Mrs. Huntington will be at the Hospital Wednesday afternoons in June, from two until four, to show visitors through the building.

Children's Pavillion.

For many months the Pavilion has been harboring chiefly girls, but now the boys have their innings and their ward is full. Why is it? Is it base-ball, foot-ball, or only the natural course of events with boys in fine weather.

Who has not known the delights of an express box? Well, the children in the Pavilion know it too, for Mrs. Olds sent them one. When it was opened it was found to be fitted with furniture and fixtures for the doll house, which is getting to be quite a mansion.

The children take advantage of every good day to be out on the lawn, some in wheel chairs, some on cots, others on crutches. It would add much to their enjoyment and comfort if there were two or three go-carts, express carts or baby carriages to facilitate their getting around.

Has not someone got one they can part with, so that the dear little girl, who has recently come to the Hospital with her legs so twisted that she cannot walk, can be pushed or drawn around instead of having to just sit still on the piazza?

The number of cases of small-pox in town necessitates extra vigilance at the Hospital.

A regular epidemic of vaccination is taking place there. They are vaccinating twenty a day, so that there may be at least twenty-four hours between "takes."

The Twigs.

The twenty-two "Twigs" are such important factors in the work of the Hospital, that it seems wise to publish their work for the benefit of the public.

Only a few, however, have as yet sent in their report for the year.

The Mosquito.

In the last two years the mosquito has risen to high rank in economic importance, and his or rather her absence from man's environment is more than ever desirable, for from being an ordinary pest, science has proved her pestilential; and upon her narrow but well humped-up shoulders is placed the burden of causing or at least transmitting two of the most widespread and dangerous diseases of tropical and semi-tropical climates, viz., malafia and yellow fever.

There is probably no more interesting page in the history of biological investigation than that which relates to the life cycle of the lowly organism that causes malaria. After years of patient and painstaking work this has been proved to be a low animal form called a plasmodium and not a vegetable form or bacteria. It was first discovered by an Italian investigator named Laverau.

The primary origin of the plasmodium is still unknown, I believe, but its history after introduction into the human body may be summarized as follows: At once after obtaining entrance into the blood current, the little animal penetrates into the red cells and lives apparently upon the red coloring matter of the blood. After it reaches its full growth it divides into a number of parts, each part being a spore and capable of penetrating and living upon a fresh blood cell when they are set free by the bursting of the walls of the cell in which they have developed. This occurs when the subdivision of the organism is completed. The bursting of the blood cell walls, or sporulation, as it is called, is practically simultaneous for all the cells that have been infected at one time, and the sudden invasion of the blood current by the immense number of spores suddenly set free causes the chill or rigor so characteristic of malaria. This cycle of cell invasion by the plasmodium, subdivision of the organism and sporulation may go on indefinitely if not checked by medication. It is during the comparatively short period of time while the spores are floating free in the blood current that quinine exerts its poisonous effect upon the parasite, the walls of the blood cell protecting it from the effect of the medicine at other times. As long as the plasmodia remain in the human body the above described sequence of changes occurs, but as soon as they are removed an entirely different development takes place. Some grow large only, others throw out slender filaments which separate from their parent body and fuse with the larger non-flagellating forms. This is the true sexual generation of the parasite. So far the change may go on anywhere outside of the human body, but it is only in the stomach of the mosquito and only in that of the one genus Anopheles that a further development will occur. Here the fertilized organisms attach themselves to the walls of the stomach, penetrate it to its outer muscular coat, where they locate and begin to grow. After increasing about five times their original size they rapidly subdivide into a great number of small spindle-shaped cells called blasts. The continued growth of these blasts finally burst the walls of their parent and also the muscular coat of the mosquito's stomach at the same time, and they are thus liberated into the body cavity of their host. Being endowed with great activity they penetrate into any and all parts of the mosquito's structure. Now the one thing that heretofore has caused mankind to curse the mosquito as a pest is its power to poke a somewhat elongated proboscis through man's skin in order to suck from him a modicum of his blood. As the blood does not always flow readily the mosquito injects a little dissolving fluid which has the desired effect from the mosquito's standpoint but is most irritating to man. This so-called poison of the mosquito is its saliva and is secreted from two glands that lie under the esophagus and empty into the proboscis. The blast enters these salivary glands as well as other parts of the mosquito's body and are injected with the saliva into the blood of any person who is unfortunate enough to be bitten. Once introduced into the blood current they penetrate the red blood cell, develop, and by sporulation bring on the malarial spasm.

To prove the correctness of this theory of the cause of malaria three heroes of science exposed their lives and health to a series of experiments, the most striking of which was the following:

Two of them lived day and night upon the heretofore deadly Roman Campagna, slept with their windows open, living as they would elsewhere with the one exception of not stirring outside of their hut during the time when it is known that the Anopheles is abroad and also in having the windows and doors of their dwelling perfectly protected by screens. For three of the most dangerous months they remained, in perfect health, although the inhabitants of the neighboring villages were suffering from malaria in all its forms.

As a central experiment some mosquitoes of the Anopheles genus, that were known to have sucked the blood of a person sick with malaria, were sent to London, England, and there the third hero, the son of a physician, a young man known to be free from disease and who had never been exposed to a malarial infection permitted them to bite him and in due course sickened with a severe type of intermittent fever.

These experiments and the biological investigation that I have hastily sketched, seem to prove conclusively what I stated in my opening paragraph that the mosquito has risen to a high position in economic importance. R. M. M.

Calf Paths.

One day through the primeval wood,
 A calf walked home, as good calves should.

But made a trail all bent askew
 A crooked trail, as all calves do.

Since then two hundred years have fled—
 And, I infer, the calf is dead.

But still he left behind his trail,
 And thereby hangs my moral tale.

The trail was taken up next day,
 By a lone dog that passed that way.

And then a wise bell-wether sheep
 Pursued the trail o'er vale and steep.

And drew the flock behind him too,
 As good bell-wethers always do.

From that day on, o'er hill and glade,
Through those old woods a path was made

And many men wound in and out
And dodged and turned and bent about.

And uttered words of righteous wrath
Because 'twas such a crooked path.

But still they followed, do not laugh,
The first migrations of that calf.

And through this winding wood-way stalked,
Because he wobbled when he walked.

This forest path became a lane,
That bent and turned, and turned again.

This crooked lane became a road,
Where many a poor horse with his load,

Toiled on beneath the burning sun,
And traveled some three miles in one.

And thus a century and a half,
They trod the footsteps of that calf.

As time passed on with swift feet,
The road became a village street;

And this, before men were aware,
A city's crowded thoroughfare.

And soon, the central street was this,
Of a renowned metropolis.

And men two centuries and a half,
Trod in the footsteps of that calf.

Each day a hundred thousand rout,
Followed that zigzag calf about.

And o'er his crooked journey went,
The traffic of a continent.

A hundred thousand men were led,
By one calf, near three centuries dead.

For thus such reverence is lent
To well established precedent.

A moral lesson this might teach—
Were I ordained and called to preach;

For men are prone to go it blind,
Along the calf-paths of the mind.

And labor on from sun to sun,
To do as other men have done.

They follow in the beaten track,
And in and out and forth and back;

They still their devious course pursue,
To keep the path that others do.

But how the wise old wood-gods laugh,
Who saw that first primeval calf!

Ah! many a thing this tale might teach—
But I am not ordained to preach.

Hospital Notes.

During the absence of the editor, THE REVIEW will be edited by Mrs. Horace Hooker.

In her efficient hands the issues of the next three months will be exceptionally interesting.

Mrs. Vail, who is in charge of the house-keeping department of the Hospital, has just returned from her well-earned vacation.

Miss Keith leaves this week for her term of rest; then Miss Jones will take her vacation.

Speaking of vacations, we must not forget to mention that the managers are to have one too, as there is to be no monthly meeting of the Board of Managers in August.

The September meeting should be a very full one, for then the plans for the Donation are set in motion.

It has been the custom for one of the managers to be at the Hospital each Wednesday afternoon to receive visitors; this is now to be discontinued until further notice.

We wish to express particularly our thanks to those who responded so readily and promptly to the appeal for baby carriages and go-carts. Miss Keith says we can now get through the summer very comfortably with the supply on hand.

Children's Pavillion.

If you could have peeped into the Pavilion Monday afternoon, when the thermometer outside was up in the nineties, you would have seen a number of happy babies rolling around on the floor, dressed in one garment only, and evidently at peace with the world and themselves.

The older children were out on the lawn in a shady corner. Those who were unable to walk were lying on the cool cots prepared especially for lawn use.

The fourth of July brought its usual quota of energetically inquisitive boys. Ten came to the hospital before noon, with fingers, legs and faces with various degrees of burns. With one boy his cannon exploded and blew a piece of cast iron into his ankle. With two others the cannon did not explode, so they investigated the mouth of it, with the result that it went off at the wrong time and blew the powder into their faces.

Will boys ever learn that cannons are even more uncertain than automobiles?

The flowers from the children's gardens are beginning to pour in. Often they are merely left with a card in the office. Then again, the children ask to be allowed to take them into the Pavilion themselves.

Since the arrival in town of smallpox, visiting has been prohibited, so as to reduce to the minimum any chances of infection.

A group of darkies seeing a colored lady coming down the street dressed up in her best becomes, are immediately curious, and one of them says "Where's you gwine?" and receives the reply "I isn't gwine enny whars; Ise been whar Ise gwine."

The hearts that dare are quick to feel.

The hands that wound are soft to heal.

—Bayard Taylor.

Vaccination.

Before the discovery of vaccination by Jenner, and its general adoption by the medical profession, smallpox was a common and an extremely fatal disease. In England it caused from seven to nine per cent of all the deaths during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and in France the average death rate from smallpox during the eighteenth century was three thousand a year. It is said that fifty millions of people died of smallpox in Europe during the century before the introduction of vaccination, and that the disease killed or disfigured one quarter of the population of the world. No class of people was spared; kings, queens and the nobility were attacked as well as the peasantry. Smallpox was so dreaded that the practice of inoculation had been adopted as the course of the disease was then milder than when contracted in the ordinary manner.

Macauley vividly describes the former position of smallpox in these words, "The smallpox was always present, filling the churchyard with corpses, tormenting the constant fears of all whom it had not yet stricken, leaving on those whose lives it had spared the hideous traces of its power, turning the babe into a changeling at which the mother shuddered, and making the eyes and cheeks of a betrothed maiden objects of horror to her lover."

Jenner tested the protection afforded by vaccination thoroughly, before he published his results. The early cases were first vaccinated and later inoculated with smallpox, and it was found that they did not contract the disease; and the first boy ever vaccinated was inoculated twenty times at different intervals without developing the disease. Dr. Waterhouse of Cambridge, who introduced vaccination into this country, experimented on his own children by vaccinating them and then exposing them to smallpox, and also by inoculating them with the disease, and he found that they did not contract it.

The results of these severe tests of the value of vaccination do not accord with the claim now set up by anti-vaccinationists that the lessened prevalence of smallpox is due to improved hygiene and not to vaccination, and there are other facts opposed to such a belief. Smallpox is a contagious disease like scarlet fever, measles and chickenpox, and up to the end of the eighteenth century there was no more immunity to it than to these diseases, for nearly every one exposed took it, but there has been no corresponding decrease in the prevalence of the other contagious diseases. Where vaccination is compulsory, the death rate from smallpox is lowest, and where vaccination is most neglected the disease prevails most. For example, in Berlin, in 1873, during an epidemic of smallpox, 262 people out of every 100,000 died of the disease. When vaccination was made compulsory, the result was that the death rate fell to 3.6 per 100,000 the next year, and in 1888 it was only .07 per 100,000.

The length of time that vaccination affords protection is not certain, so that it is necessary for people to be vaccinated at intervals, and whenever there is danger of exposure to smallpox. The disease is almost always of a mild type in those who have once been successfully vaccinated, but it is only a recent "take" that should be relied on.

The dangers of vaccination are exaggerated by those opposed to it, and are very slight compared to the benefits it confers. Animal virus is now used entirely and is obtained with great care from healthy calves, so that the principal risk is that of infection which accompanies every wound or scratch. It would be as sensible to start a crusade against the use of anæsthetics in surgical work as against the practice of vaccination, for the anæsthetic is more dangerous than is vaccination, but, on the other hand, both have saved thousands of lives.

Hunger.

Hunger results from the demand of the tissues for fresh supplies of building material, so that expenditures of energy may be promoted, and the rebuilding of tissues, destroyed in the ordinary waste processes of life, may continue. It is usually an indication of a healthful activity of the component parts of the body.

Civilized life so fully supplies the wants of the average individual that cravings of hunger are not often experienced. Artificial expedients to stimulate a jaded appetite are not uncommon. Highly spiced and flavored foods belong to this class, but in general should be avoided. Food delicately cooked and tastefully served, however, creates a similitude of hunger, when none existed before, a circumstance which unquestionably promotes digestion and assimilation.

Hunger of a genuine sort is experienced only when the demand made upon the tissues by muscular exercise is considerable. Some experience real hunger for the first time on a sojourn in the woods, or in a hunting or fishing camp, when the outdoor life, novel surroundings, abundant supply of pure air and long hours of exercise stimulate the system and excite a fine sense of buoyancy.

When favorable outdoor conditions are provided for recuperation from an attack of illness or a state of debility, the convalescent gains strength, and usually takes on weight in spite of the greater amount of muscular activity. Such a season is often, and should always be, productive of lasting benefit. Not infrequently, however, the individual breaks down after his return home. One frequent reason for this is that the appetite is not allowed to wait on hunger as it should; the feeding is often forced.

Hunger in every instance awaits the stimulus of vital activity. It is rather the result than the cause of a buoyant vitality.

Consequently a failure of the appetite should not be held responsible for the lassitude or weakness which may be experienced after the return from an outing.

To a large extent, the degree of hunger should be the index of the amount of food required. The return to sedentary occupations is sure to result in lessened appetite, and forced feeding at such a time is disastrous.

Loss of appetite and abnormal hunger are symptoms the causes of which, being often obscure, demand the advice of the physician.

The New Disorder.

Have you got the new disorder?
If you haven't, 'tis in order
To succumb to it at once without delay.
It is called appendicitis—
Very different from gastritis,
Or the common trash diseases of the day.

It creates a happy frolic
Something like the winter colic
That has often jarred our inner organs some,
Only wrestles with the wealthy
And the otherwise most healthy—
Having got it, then you're nigh to "Kingdom come."

Midway down in your intestine
Its interstices infest in,
Is a little alley, blind and dark as night,
Leading off to simply nowhere,
Catching all stray things that go there;
As a pocket it is simply "out of sight."

It is prone to stop and grapple
With the seed of grape or apple,
Or a soldier button swallowed with your pie;
Having levied on these chalets,
Then begin internal battles
That are apt to end in "mansions in the sky."

Once located, never doubt it,
You would never be without it,
It's a fad among society that's gay;
Old heart-failure and paresis
Have decamped and gone to pieces,
And dyspepsia has "fallen by the way."

Then stand back there diabetes,
For here comes appendicitis,
With a brood of minor troubles on the wing;
So, Vermiform, here's hoping
You'll withstand all drastic doping
And earn the appellation "Uncrowned King."

Work for Nurses in Play-Schools.

BY MARY BOYLE O'REILLY,
Secretary of St. Elizabeth's Guild.

The story of district nursing has been told so often and so well that practically nothing remains to be said on the subject. Probably there is not a large hospital in America or in England whose graduate nurses have not at some time voluntarily engaged in out-nursing. Such a corps was first organized in Boston in 1886, and the result of their good work is incalculable.

The Boston City Hospital is located near the centre of one of the city's most crowded quarters. Half a mile to the north is the business district; half a mile to the south, the comfortable homes of the well-to-do. East and west lie acres of factories and tenements, 'lodging-houses, restaurants, catch-penny enterprises, and cheap theatres. In such wards district nurses were not likely to be idle. Experience proved that the chief work lay in trying to impress on these patients the fact that an ounce of prevention is worth pounds of hospital supplies. The very listeners who were quick to acknowledge this wisdom were equally ready to forget it. When the subject came under discussion at a nurses' weekly conference, it was decided to begin on a new line by reaching and teaching the children. To do this the nursing corps of the Boston City Hospital co-operated with the Guild of St. Elizabeth. This association of young women, then but recently organized, had undertaken the task of making friends with the children of the district. To this end the guild was carrying on the usual work of a social settlement, together with a new form of manual training which was called a play-school. In this play-school (open every week-day during July and August, to which attendance was, of course, voluntary) two hundred children were taught to make toys and dress dollies, and to study and paint the flowers they afterwards distributed. The guild's only

"Sunday I go to ze house of a good friend, and zere I dine so extraordinaire, and eat so verree much zat I need no more till Wednesday. On zat day I have at my restaurant one large, verree large, dish of tripe and some onion. I abhor ze tripe, yes, and ze onion also, and togezzer zey make me so seek as I have no more any appetite till Sunday. You see, it is verree simple."—Youths' Companion.

object was to keep the little pupils from the demoralizing influences of the streets.

It was to sixty children of the play-school that the first demonstration lecture was given on July 11, 1899. To make the course at once interesting and practical, the opening lesson was on making a hospital bed and undressing a patient. The demonstration ended in a gale of laughter, and the experiment was an assured success. For eight Tuesdays sixty small but ambitious nurses—note-book on knee—followed the demonstrator through the mysteries of compresses and fomentations, poultices, pastes, bandages, bathing, food, and temperature. Then came lessons on the scientific care of a baby, until one long-suffering infant was actually bathed and fed by twenty eager volunteers.

From being an experiment, the nursing lectures became the most popular course in the play-school. That the lessons taught were not forgotten was amusingly proven by a child patient in the hospital six months afterwards, who, having watched a nurse bathe a baby, gravely took her to task for having omitted some of the frills "which Miss J. taught in the play-school." And when another summer had brought round a second course of lectures (to which only one hundred and twenty of the anxious applicants could be admitted) it was found necessary to borrow a strange baby for the bathing demonstration, since all the play-school babies had clean scalps!

These are only little things, perhaps, but they point the way to large possibilities. In a few summer mornings a score of little girls had gained such practical insight into the tiresome physiology of the school-room that it straightway became interesting, while the facts of physical life, too often dwelt on morbidly by the ignorant, assumed a new dignity.

Windows that seemed nailed down were suddenly opened, waste-pipes were flushed with boiling lye, and the baby's illness was traced to the odorous refuse barrel in the back yard.
