BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS.

TWO SINGULAR MEN.

A stranger with long hair, a white coat, a white hat with a crape band and other evidences of lunacy, entered Apple's restaurant yesterday and said to the proprietor:

"Sir, let me explain in advance that I am a singular man."

"All right, sir. A singular man's order is as good as any one else's."

"I want six oysters on the half-shell—on the left-hand half, if you please."

The oysters were opened and placed before him, and when he had devoured them, he said:

"Now take six oysters, run them through a clothes-wringer to remove the dampness, and dry them for me in olive oil."

This order was also filled, when he called for a cup of salt and water, added milk and sugar, and drank it down and asked for the bill.

"I also desire to explain in advance that I am a singular man," replied the proprietor. "Your bill is $5."

"Impossible!"
"Just $5, sir."
"But that is monstrous!"

"Perhaps it seems high, but that's my singular way of charging for singular lunches."

"I'll never pay it!"

"Then I'll sadden your heart!"

The sad proceedings were about to begin when the long-haired man forked over and walked out. The lesson seemed to sink deep into his heart, for he halted at John Harris' fruit store and without any explanation in advance, paid the usual price for a banana and carried it off without asking Harris to dip the ends in rose-water. The last seen of him he was pricing seventy-five cent pants at the Union Clothing Company's.
