WE, THE CLASS OF JUNE, NINETEEN HUNDRED
THIRTEEN, GRATEFULLY DEDICATE THIS BOOK
TO MISS CLAIRE WILLIAMS, IN SINCERE APPRECI-ATION OF HER NEVER-FAILING INTEREST IN THE WELFARE OF THE CLASS.

MISS CLAIRE WILLIAMS was born in Lockport, N. Y. She received her early education at Grammar School No. 15, and later entered the Rochester Free Academy. Following her graduation in 1902, Miss Williams attended the University of Rochester, graduating from that institution with the Class of 1906.

After the completion of her college course, Miss Williams taught at the Rochester Business Institute for three years, and in 1909 she entered upon her duties as a teacher of English in the East High School.

Nearly all the members of the Class of June, 1913, have studied under Miss Williams, and it is most fitting that this Senior Annual be dedicated to her.

CLASS HISTORY

By HOWARD WILLIAM MINCHIN

Class Historian

THIS history is not written for the purpose of boasting of the triumphs and successes of our class, but merely to serve as a remembrance in future years of what we did at old East High School.

Our class was greatly handicapped owing to the fact that we had to attend the afternoon session for one year. We were able to take part in but very few activities and when we returned to school in our Sophomore year, we were considered little better than Freshmen by the upper classmen. They did not hold this opinion of us very long, however, for the way in which our class supported the various school activities clearly showed that we were a live class and ready to give East High School our best.

Our first social success was the Sophomore sleighride and informal dance. This was attended by one hundred or more of the Sophomores and their friends and they all expressed it as being the best ever.

We were also successful in athletics in our Sophomore year. Our class baseball team won the interclass championship of the school and the Sophomore study room team carried off first honors in the school basketball tournament.

It was not until Arbor Day of our second year, however, that our class gave the school its real surprise. On that memorable day, the members of the class assembled in front of school and planted an ivy with appropriate ceremonies. Although the planting of ivy is an old custom in most of the universities and many high schools it remained for June 1913 to inaugurate it at East High School, and it will no doubt become a tradition of the school.

At last we were full fledged Juniors and we started in to show that we were worthy of our position. It was at the beginning of our third year when the first attempt was made to introduce soccer-football into the school to take the place of the old rugby game. The first soccer team to represent the school was composed of a large number of June '13 boys and it was largely due to our efforts that soccer was put on a basis with the major sports of the school. The interclass debating tournament which has now become an annual affair was also started by our class. In the winter months the members of our class were active in the production of the first Comic Opera ever given by the school and the Junior Dance, the big event of our Junior year, was a success.

Our Senior year was the most important one of our high school course. During the first term we gave the Farce which had been postponed from our Junior year and later our class presented a Shakesperian play out of doors. This was the first time that an East High School class attempted to give an outdoor play but, judging from its success, it will no doubt be repeated by future Senior classes.

Our class has seen football and fraternities go and other activities take their place. The abolition of these was a big disappointment to the majority of the students but at all times our class remained loyal to the school in an effort to make the newer sports and activities as popular for the East High students of future years, as football and the other organizations were to us. It is now time for us to say goodbye, but in our future life we will always hold dear in our memories, the pleasant times we had at our Alma Mater, old East High School.

CLASS PROPHECY

By NANNIE E. McGLENNON, Class Prophet

It was a hot sultry late June day in the year 1933 and I stood at the corner of Broadway and Fourteenth Streets in the midst of the late afternoon crowd, wondering how to spend the next two or three hours. With me was my old high school friend Elizabeth Barry, now Madame Leblanc, whom I had met the day before. She was making her annual visit to America and suggested that we spend the following afternoon together. Consequently, I had called at the Haldorf for her and we were now trying to decide between the Aerial Elevated and the old fashioned "rubber-neck wagon."

"Let us take the sight seeing automobile," said Elizabeth, with her slight French accent. It is true they are very passé, but it will take us back to the old days in Rochester, when we used to ride in the one which went out East Avenue and looked so much like a house on wheels." That plan suited me, and hastily buying a newspaper from the little "newsie" by my side, we hurried across the street and climbed into the machine. While we were waiting for it to start, I glanced over the paper and was attracted by the large headlines on the front page.

"New York Senator Rapped on the Head by Colleague for Scathing Remarks. Bont Between Hon. H. E. Rauschenbusch and Senator from Missouri Causes Much Amusement in the Senate Today," I read. I showed the article to Elizabeth and we both had a hearty laugh, remembering Hilmar's thinly veiled sarcasm in constitutional assemblies some twenty years before. Over the page in the court news was an account of a hotly contested divorce case between Lawyers Sarachen and Bradfield, and it was mentioned that Judge Cochrane lost some of his habitual gravity when the defendant, Philip Barry was brought in, charged by his wife with having too large a collection of photographs of fair damsels to be considered truly devoted to her. The fashion page was edited by Evelyn Rosenbloom, assisted by Edna Schaick, and they predicted a return of the one time fashionable hobble skirt and bulgarian blouse. The clever illustrations of the prevailing modes were made by Helen Carberry.

Just as the barker called "All aboard," a dark business-like little man jumped in next to us, and as he mopped his perspiring face with his handkerchief, he drew the "Horticulturists' Review" from his pocket. Elizabeth and I seemed to recognize him, and after a few moments thought, we exclaimed simultaneously "Harold O'Brien." It was indeed he, and we had a long chat together. Harold was one of New York's most successful salesman and simply in listening to the explanation of his work, I had hard work from investing in his concern. He lived in Tarrytown, and told us that his greatest pleasure was to return after a business trip to work in his garden which had a state-wide reputation. There, he cultivated blue roses which bloomed in March and many other heretofore unheard of varieties. Harold also told us of many of our former classmates. Chaliss Reed was the matron of an orphanage; Davina Sheldon a professional chaperone; Lillian Sage a cloak model; Harold Meng a clown in Barnum & Bailey's circus. James Baird and Milton Trimby reporters; Edward Grauwiller a deep sea diver (this was probably caused by the great profundity he always showed in school); Kenneth Cunningham the owner of New York State's largest chicken farm; Ruth Shepard a hair-dresser; and Judge Harmon and Robert Taft the new athletic directors at Yalevard.

As we passed the Lyceum we noticed a sign announcing the early appearance of America's great emotional actor, Donald Sawyer. Mr. Sawyer's able manager and private secretary, Edmund Weigand, attracted as much attention as the star himself, and had an international reputation for novel neckties and waistcoats.

As we were crossing Fifty-third Street, we narrowly missed striking down a short important-looking little man with a large diamond stick-pin in his scarlet tie. As the machine stopped and the chauffeur jumped out to make sure no harm was done, I heard someone in back of me exclaim:

"Why, that's Sol Paley, the multi-millionaire." It surely was, and how important he looked! A trained nurse stepped forward from the crowd and we recognized Rhoda Whiting. She immediately pronounced Mr. Paley unhurt and as the crowd was dispersing we noticed a poor man pushing a baby carriage and holding another small child by the hand, struggling vainly to cross the street. As he tried for the third time, a friend approached him, whom we recognized as Walter Pardee.

"Hello Doty!" said Walter. "Come on to the ball-game with me, I'm sporting editor of the Times and I have a pass." "Sorry, old man," answered the patient D'Orville, "but I'm taking the kids to the Zoo. There, there, Arabella, father's here," and he finally gained the other side. "Such happiness!" ejaculated Harold with a groan.

As we left the business section of the city, the Barker explained the most important buildings on each side. "To your right, is the College of Modern Languages, Dr. Joseph Schleyer, principal and professor of German. To the left is Dr. Charles Teresi's famous children's hospital. Farther on is Miss Florence Dalrymple's Select School for Young Ladies."

As we approached Madison Square, we saw a large crowd, and upon inquiring, found it was attracted by the weekly concert given by the Trott Band. The selection it was then playing was composed by Mr. Trott himself and Mark VanLiew had written the words.

Coming towards us, was a tall, good-looking man in naval uniform. There was something about him strangely familiar and as I was trying to decide whether or not I knew him, he came forward and introduced himself as Admiral Bennett Sykes, U. S. N. We urged him to join us, and then we four old June 13's started to talk over old times and inquire after old friends. James told us that Edward Herendeen was United States Tennis Champion, as well as a successful banker; Clarence Oppenheimer owned a tobacco plantation in Cuba; Gordon Mirick had won the Nobel prize for his remarkable work in mathematics; Sol Rabinowitz was New York City chess champion; Walter Reily owned a ferry company which operated between New York and Coney Island, and Dr. Roscoe Taylor was doing a wonderful work among the deep-sea fishes of Labrador.

We had completed our trip in the sight-seeing machine and as it was about six o'clock, decided to hunt up a restaurant and get something to eat. As Harold was going to take the Admiral home with him, we said goodbye to them and started down town. In the distance we heard a band and learned from the passersby that a suffrage parade was coming. We decided to wait and see it, and indeed were glad we did, for in it were some of our former classmates. Gladys Shafer led, on a white horse, followed by Sadie Greenstone and Hazel Molz, Louise Peck and Marion Pauley distributed yellow badges through the crowd.

After the parade we found the restaurant and tired and hungry, we stepped inside. A smiling and polite proprietor came forward to meet us, whom we recognized as Lesser Levin. He told us that Herman Lefkowitz had retained his fondness for Latin and was teaching it in China; Albert Morris was a successful manufacturer of clothing; Fred Hewitt owned the roller-coaster and chute-the-chutes at Coney Island; Saul Herman had recently published a chemistry text-book, and Richard Leonardo had a fruit farm in southern New York.

As Elizabeth and I were leaving the restaurant we very nearly bumped into a lady coming in the opposite direction. "Inez Pond," I exclaimed. "Excuse me for calling you that, but it is more natural than anything else." Inez smiled good-naturedly and insisted on taking us home with her in her new aeroplane called "The Bat" which was a short distance down the street. She had a delightful home and husband, and five of the liveliest children I ever saw. We told her of our adventures that afternoon and asked her about some of our other old friends. She told us that Marion Ament had a studio where she designed American fashions; Maude White (that was) had just written a book, "How to be Happy though Married"; Alice Foley was director of the lunch-room at Washington Irving High School and Gertrude Thompson and Gladys Griffith taught there; Anita Hines was a social service secretary; Emma Knapp was a kindergarten teacher; Marion Preston and Carrie Odell were music teachers! and Mary Owen was a member of the Supreme Court.

Inez invited Elizabeth and me to be her guests that night at the theatre, so we left the five healthy children to the care of their father and went to see some vaudeville. Louise Bowen did a clever little singing act and Rose Van Gunt provoked much laughter in a scene from "Madam Sans Gene." Mabel Huckle and Esther Nuffer were in the audience and informed us that they were both doing settlement work.

They also told us that Effe Malette was teaching solid geometry in the University; Frances West was a popular illustrator; and Esther Meyer had joined a famous company of Russian dancers which was now appearing in Europe.

As we were leaving the theatre, we noticed an especially fine motor car waiting at the curb and as Inez was vainly attempting to repress a sigh of envy, two men came out of a neighboring building and got into the machine. Recognizing them as Hugh S. Dewey and Howard W. Minchin, we hurried to speak to them and were invited to take a ride. Hugh explained that the machine was his own make, embracing all the latest features in automobile construction and equipped with the Dewey spring seat and non-puncturable tires. Howard was in New York on a business trip to look after his shares in the Telescope Trust. He evidently had retained his ability to do many things at the same time successfully, for he was Mayor of the Western city in which he lived and author of a book, "What the Canals of Mars Really Are."

The boys—or men they were now—had kept track of many of their classmates and informed us that Ezra Frankel and John Bornkessel were acquiring great wealth by their business ability. Samuel Barber was a singing teacher and Alexander Douglas a Y. M. C. A. secretary. Meyer Miller was a prize-fighter; Neal Murphy and Roy Howlitt, scientific farmers. David Mason spent his time in the musty laboratory, hunting for a substitute for gold and David Mendelson was teaching music abroad. Oliver Smith and Katherine Emerson had a dancing school where all the latest dances were taught, and Harold Smith was leader of an orchestra.

As we were driving down the street someone hailed us from an aeroplane overhead, and looking up we saw Allan McConnell. He was in a hurry but stopped long enough to tell us he was an artists' model—"Artists of the Gibson type," he was careful to explain. Farther along standing on the curb was Earl Miller, now floorwalker in Vanamaker's and he had a copy of the great new novel which was attracting so much attention, in his hand.

"Did you know that Esther Olson wrote this?" he asked. "Esther Olson, a novelist!" I exclaimed. "I always knew she would write novels," said Inez. "She was collecting material even when she was in High School."

As Earl was quite a friend of the ladies in former times, we "Do you know what day this is?" asked Arthur. We confessed our ignorance and he replied "It's the twentieth anniversary of our graduation from East High." Twenty years! It didn't seem possible. But it was the 23rd of June, 1933, and as we shook hands in saying goodbye, we made a mental wish for the everlasting prosperity and success of that splendid school, where we had spent four such happy years of our life.

asked him what has become of some of the June '13 girls. He told us that Johanna Ramsbeck was the wife of the Japanese Ambassador; Harriet Deane and Muriel Jones were playing in stock companies; Ethel Greene was a librarian, and Marion Culley was old Dr. Wiley's assistant and probable successor in the government department of pure foods. Edith Harrison and Margaret Gerahty were "personally conducting" parties of young girls abroad; Lois Hill and Gertrude Carberry were now investigating conditions in the rubber section of South America, and starting a gun factory there. Pearl Bennett was carrying on excavations in Crete, and Ruth Cornell was principal of a girls' preparatory school. Alma Dailor and Esther Salblowsky were her assistants, and Miss Dailor insisted that a recess of ten minutes be given the pupils every hour, as he knew from her own high school days that some mental relaxation was necessary. At this point Earl looked at his watch and excused himself hastily, explaining that his wife was very particular about his being home early.

Inez was getting uneasy about her children so we took her home and then left Elizabeth at the Haldorf. As we were standing in the lobby, we noticed a man in evening dress come from the palm room, literally surrounded by ladies. It was Arthur Jennings, and excusing himself from his fair admirers, he came forward to speak to us. He was now a fortune-teller, catering especially to the fairer sex, and "making all kinds of money" as he expressed it. He told us that Abe Cominsky was a professional ball-player; Harold Dugan a veterinary surgeon and Pauline Rosner was living in Paris where she was a leading modiste.

CLASS POEM

By JOHN ARTHUR JENNINGS

Class Poet

NOW the class of white and gold
Bids farewell to days of yore,
And fond ties and friendships old
Holds in mem'ry ever more.
When time calls we must obey
But we backward turn our eye
To the days when wont to stay
'Neath the roof of old East High.

Oh! may we be ever true
To that class we hold so dear;
Great success in aught we do
In our ev'y future year.
May our purpose still withstand
All unfriendly blows and strife,
Triumphing on sea or land
Storms severe of after-life.

Many years may come to pass,
And diverted be our ways,
Nineteen-thirteen, our lov'd class
Never can forget those days,
When we fought to gain fair honor
For the purple and the white;
May East High, our Alma Mater
Ever keep her standard bright.

THE ALMA MATER

WEET be thy memory,
High School of ours;
Fair be thy destiny,
Fadeless thy flowers;
Hearts that have loved thee
Have won in life's fight
Names that we honor
Thy standard holds bright.

Our Alma Mater dear,
To thee we sing;
May all thy future years,
New honors bring;
May friends thy banners raise
Thy foes grow less,
All love and praise
To our old E. H. S.

SONGS and YELLS

SCALP DANCE

WITH big chief and his band
Of fearless Orient Braves
We've jump't the reservation
We're on the war path lookin' for
Some pale face scalps to raise,
Have heap big celebration.
We've struck the trail, yi, yi, yi,
Blood in our eye, yi, yi, yi,
Our curdling yels are ringing,
When the game is done and we have won
Their top knots we will wave,
Back to our wigwam bringing.

CHORUS

Yes, we'll scalp 'em, scalp 'em, scalp 'em,
Make 'em bite the dust;
We'll smear up their backs you bet
Beat them worse than they've been yet,
Were up to the minute, always in it,
And we'll rub it in;
And while we yell they'll play like—well
Old Orient will win.

DOWN THE FIELD

MARCH, march on, down the field,
Fighting for old East High;
Break through old line
Their strength to defy:
We'll give a long cheer for East High's team
Ther're here to win again, team may fight to the end
But we will win.

Rah! Rah! Rah!

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM

THE YEAR IN ATHLETICS

By HOWARD W. MINCHIN

THE athletic season of 1912-13 was not only a most successful one from the standpoint of victories won, but also in the development of the lower classmen who will form a nucleus for the teams of the next two years.

The Soccer team, captained by Oliver Smith, played in the Saturday Afternoon City League, and despite the fact that their opponents were veterans at the game, they made a most creditable showing.

The basketball team, led by Warren Gibbs, went through the season with fourteen victories to their credit against three defeats, the season ending with a decisive win over West High School. With one or two exceptions all of this year's team will be eligible next season and with Judge Harmon, as captain, prospects for a winning team are very bright.

The indoor track team won first place in the annual University of Rochester interscholastic meet and the outdoor team captured first honors in the Batavia meet. The outdoor team also took third place in the Colgate University interscholastic meet. Captain Harold E. O'Brien was a heavy point winner in each of these meets and his loss will be keenly felt next year.

George Durbin proved an efficient leader for the baseball team and to date the nine has won the majority of its games.

Hockey has lost none of its popularity as a school sport and a strong team represented East High during the past season. Seven of the eight games played were turned into victories, the team losing to the University of Rochester seven. The team was under the leadership of Ralph Bickford who has been a member of the squad for three seasons.

Girls' basketball is now a recognized school sport, and those who play on the team are awarded a purple "E". The girls were returned the winners in all but one of their games, their victories including two games with West High School.

The Advantages of a College Education

By HOWARD D. MINCHIN, Ph. D.
of the University of Rochester

COMMENCEMENT DAY means the day of change to every graduate. To some it may mark the close of school life, and to others a step leading to college. To all must come the problem of making a choice and the questions which confront them are: "What place in life can I find?" or "To what College shall I go?" Emerson says that the world presents to each one of us a test involving the following questions: "Who are you? What do you? Can you obtain what you wish? Is there method in your consciousness?" Can you help any soul? It surely seems worth while that each member of the graduating class should give careful thought to these questions.

It is training that gives freedom in the use of the materials that are yours and it is this freedom that marks the power of the great and the successful. Can you afford to go into the world with your present training?

One must have material in the nature of thoughts and plans and he must also have ability to give expression to these efficiently. Success in life is the fitting of tools and material to heart and mind. It is the fruit of character, and character involves sincerity, thoroughness, and truthfulness.

Success comes to him who has the clear vision of the morrow and then lives the to-day so completely that it makes for the work of that morrow. He is successful who is not blinded by the gain of specific ends but seeks complete development. To him there will ever be ahead a stretch of inviting highway.

The college opens its doors gladly to him who desires the greater vision. Its curriculum offers him a means of training and here the youth is to find himself. The training the college has to offer is for him who desires a clearer understanding of life. The four years come at a time when youth is full of noble desire and ideals are clear. It is a transition period when knowledge commences to show its power.

College is worth while to him only who allows it to be worth while. The college is not only the place for one to find himself but it aids one in the finding. It offers the opportunity and the result rests with the individual. If you have the desire to be efficient the college proposes to join with you in working out the problems that are to be yours. There will be obstacles to meet, but

"He who climbs the mountain does not always climb;
The winding road slants downward many a time;
Yet each descent is higher than the last.
Has thy path fallen? That will soon be past.
Beyond the curve the way leads up and on;
Think not thy goal forever lost and gone.
Keep moving forward; if thine aim is right,
Thou canst not miss the shining mountain height."

MUSICAL CLUBS

THE Boys' and Girls' glee clubs and the orchestra have experienced a most successful season. The glee clubs were under the direction of Eunice Ensor and Ludwig Schenck was in charge of the orchestra.

Early in the season during Miss Ensor's illness the glee clubs were without any instructor, and although this handicapped them somewhat, upon her return the members took up the work with greater enthusiasm and in the end they were rewarded with success.

The glee clubs this year for the first time sang several classical pieces at their various concerts and these were the cause of much favorable comment by the music critics of Rochester.

The orchestra and the glee clubs have given concerts in many of the city churches and in nearby towns, in all thirteen appearances being made. The male quartette and the mixed octette took part in most of the concerts and the clubs were fortunate in having several soloists and readers.

The Musical Clubs have worked hard this year and in all of their appearances they have made a strong showing which reflects credit upon East High School.

The Revision of the Constitution

By HILMAR RAUSCHENBUSCH

WHILE June, 1913, was the ranking class, the great duty of revising the East High School Constitution was undertaken and successfully completed.

For years the necessity of revision had grown more and more evident. The matter was many times taken under consideration—and dropped. A committee was finally appointed that spent many weary nights pondering over the good of the school, the grammar, superfluities and shortcomings of the old Constitution. But this committee had the brawn and the brain and the blood of the Saxon and the Celt and the Gaul, so a report was finally made. End of Act I.

It was now up to the population of East High School, the Students' Association, one thousand strong, to deliberate on the Constitution. This they did. The school had never before attempted anything of a similar character. However, no faculty aid or interference of any kind was needed or exercised.

Seven "Constitutional" Assemblies were held. In only the first and last was there no discussion. All the others had matters that absorbed the attention of the students.

But there were two great struggles that will always stand head and shoulders above the rest. "R's" for Soccer and representation in the Council for the "Hold Overs." Both were entirely new things. Both were adopted by the Association, but the Council later rejected the one concerning the "Hold Overs."

The discussion on the Soccer insignia was a fight by some of the athletes in the school who believed in "the good old times" against the more progressive element. The fight went on for weeks before the matter came up for action. It was a good fight and the losers were no less loyal to the sons of East High School than before.

The other fight was more personal and bitter. The welfare of the school was no longer at stake, simply the welfare of small groups of "studes," the hold-overs. In this case the other students sat back and cheered the leaders on, instead of taking part themselves as they usually did. The matter finally passed; and it took several sessions of the Executive Council before the effects of that vote were destroyed.

The good results of these "Constitutional" Assemblies are many. Everyone became acquainted with the rudiments of parliamentary law and the possibilities of preventing and hastening the transaction of business. This will undoubtedly show itself in future class meetings. Then over a thousand pupils became acquainted with the fact that constitutions are made and not handed down by former generations as something sacred and not to be touched. Nearly fifty amendments of some kind or other were made and fought out. These discussions provoked oratory. Everybody felt the necessity of being able to speak intelligently on some question. Self government in East High School was more firmly established and was proved expedient. These are direct results of the "Constitutional" Assemblies.

The custom of singing the Alma Mater after every assembly originated during these meetings.

There are certain men who should be thanked for contributing to the success of the assemblies. The Constitutional Committee, composed of Craig Cochrane, Hilmar Rauschenbusch, Morris Copeland, Winfield Riefler, Vernon Bowman, Howard W. Minchin and Harold E. O'Brien, did its work efficiently, and the secretary of the Students' Association, Howard W. Minchin and his assistant, Morris Copeland, both worked hard to keep the records of the meetings correct.

Although on numerous occasions in the past decade certain amendments were made to the Constitution, but until this year it has never been entirely revised by the students. It is hoped that the work has been done well and that the new Constitution will aid the student, in future years in carrying on school activities.

To the Graduating Class

THE Rochester Business Institute wishes to congratulate you on the successful termination of your course of study. If you are thinking of a business career we shall be glad to advise with you with respect to a course of study which will thoroughly fit you for service in the business world.

To the Undergraduates

You do not know perhaps that the R. B. I. continues its work throughout the summer and that you can take up with us subjects in which you may be deficient, or extra subjects of which you wish to get knowledge, at any time in the summer.

You could take from two to four weeks vacation and then come here and get additional training in penmanship, arithmetic, bookkeeping, commercial law, commercial correspondence, English, shorthand and typewriting.

Send for prospectus or call at our offices in the Y. M. C. A. Building.
