W. T. Dagge Dies, Ex-Kodak Worker

An employe of Eastman Kodak Company for more than 30 years, William T. Dagge of 379 Flint St. died yesterday in his home.

Mr. Dagge, who retired from active business 10 years ago, was a member of the Red Men. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Minnie Aldridge Dagge, and a sister, Miss Minnie H. Dagge.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow at 271 University Ave. with burial in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

DEATH TAKES

W. W. DAKE, 84, EX-DRUGGIST

JUN 6 1940

Former Owner of 3 Stores Victim Of Pneumonia

William W. Dake, foremost Rochester druggist in pre-chain store days, died last night (June 5, 1940) at his home, 3294 East Ave., of pneumonia after an illness of three weeks.

Born in Albion 84 years ago, Mr. Dake lived virtually all of his life in Rochester. With his brother, Charles, he started a drug store at Main Street East and North Street, where the Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Company store now is, in the '80's. This prospered and a new store was opened in what is now the Dake Building, at the southwest corner of Main and Clinton. Later, a third store was added at Fitzhugh Street North and Main Street West.

About 20 years ago, William Dake, at that time head of the company, disposed of the Main Street East and Main West stores to the Liggett Company. Charles Dake died several years ago. The Dake Building was acquired later by Edwin C. Redfern and is still owned by the Redfern estate.

After he sold the business, Mr. Dake devoted a great deal of his time to golf. A veteran member of the Rochester Country Club, and a lefthanded player, he won many tourney prizes in Rochester, Pinehurst and elsewhere. Walter Hagen was his caddy at one period. Of recent years, failing health had compelled Mr. Dake to give up the game.

Mr. Dake also was an enthusiastic motorist and owned one of the first automobiles in Rochester. He also was a member of the Genesee Valley Club, Genesee Valley Lodge, F. and A. M., Damascus Temple, Shrine, and various other organizations.

Survivors are his wife, Etta Rice Dake; a brother, Henry Dake; two nephews, Elmer H. and Harry A. Dake, all of Rochester, and several cousins. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the East Avenue home with the Rev. Weldon F. Crossland of Asbury Methodist Church officiating. Interment will be in Riverside Cemetery.

William Dake Funeral Scheduled Tomorrow

The Rev. Weldon F. Crossland of Asbury Methodist Church will officiate tomorrow at funeral services for William W. Dake, 84, a leading Rochester druggist for many years.

Rites will be conducted at 3:30 p. m. at Dr. Dake's home, 3294 East Ave., where he died last night after a three-week fight against pneumonia. Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery.

Mr. Dake was born in Albion, but lived most of his life here, starting a drugstore with his brother, Charles, at Main Street East and North Street, where the Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Company store now stands, in the 1880's.

The firm expanded and the brothers later opened two other stores, one in what is now the Dake Building, southwest corner of Main and Clinton, and the third at Fitzhugh Street North and Main Street West.

Sold Stores 20 Years Ago

Some 20 years ago, Mr. Dake sold the Main Street East and Main Street West stores to the Liggett Company.

His brother and partner died several years ago. The Dake Building is now owned by the estate of the late Edwin C. Redfern, who acquired it after the sale of the drug stores to Liggett.

Of recent years, Mr. Dake was forced by ill health to give up golf, to which he largely devoted himself for many years after his retirement. A lefthanded player, he was a veteran member of the Rochester Country Club.

Hagen Was His Caddy

He won several tournaments for lefthanded players here, in Pinehurst and other golfing spots. Walter Hagen, who rose to international prominence as a golf professional, was his caddy at one time.

A pioneer motorist, Mr. Dake owned one of the first autos in this area.

He was a member of the Genesee Valley Club, Genesee Valley Lodge, F&AM; Damascus Temple, Shrine and several other organizations.

He leaves his wife, Marietta Waldox Dake; a brother, Henry Dake; two nephews, Elmer H. and Harry A. Dake, and two nieces, Grace D. Ashton and Helen D. Appleton, all of Rochester.

D'AMANDA GETS STATE TAX JOB GIBBS VACATED

Choice for Post Held Move for Harmony

By JOSEPH R. MALONE
Democrat and Chronicle
Staff Correspondent

Albany — Appointment of Francis J. D'Amanda as Monroe County estate tax attorney was announced here last night by Mark Graves, president of the State Tax Commission.

D'Amanda succeeds Milton E. Gibbs, who was sworn in as Court of Claims judge last Saturday. He will get $5,000 a year and will be able to continue his private law practice. D'Amanda's appointment is effective at once.

Selection of D'Amanda by Donald A. Dailey, Monroe County Democratic leader and his consequent appointment by Commissioner Graves, followed much political maneuvering in Monroe County.

Seen Harmony Move

Intended as a harmony move on Dailey's part, designed to win back the loyalty of ward leaders now partly alienated from the county organization, it appeared as forerunner of a final disposition of the long-drawn-out fight over federal judge.

When it became known that Gibbs was slated for Court of Claims judge, Democratic leaders notified Michael S. Cariola, 16th Ward leader, that D'Amanda would be named estate tax attorney if Cariola would give his approval.

Cariola, leading figure in the Cariola-Komenski-Kelly combination which is fighting appointment of Corporation Counsel Harold P. Burke as district judge, was chilly to the proposition. But he apparently lent his approval following National-State Chairman James A. Farley's visit to Rochester last Saturday, for Dailey let it be known that D'Amanda's appointment was conditioned on Cariola's nod.

D'Amanda ran independently for Monroe County district attorney three years ago, after he was denied Democratic organization designation by Judge Harlan W. Rippey, then Monroe County Democratic leader. He campaigned so vigorously in Italian districts that the Republican candidate Daniel J. O'Mara, was elected.

A coolness between Cariola and D'Amanda followed that election as a result of Cariola's refusal to desert the Democratic organization candidate, Goodman A. Sarachan. This was the cause of Cariola's reluctance to give approval to D'Amanda for estate tax attorney.

D'Amanda is a graduate of the University of Rochester and Harvard University and a member of the law firm of Chamberlain, Page and Chamberlain.

JOHN DAGGETT RITES HELD AT RESIDENCE

Adjustment Firm Aide Passed At 69

Funeral services for John Mayhew Daggett, 69, were held yesterday morning at the home, 365 Hurstbourne Rd. Daggett, who was manager of the Rochester office of the Fire Companies' Adjustment Bureau Inc., died Monday at the home.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Winifred Barbara Comer Daggett, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. T. C. Comer, New York City; a sister, Grace, and two brothers, James M. and Edward H. Daggett.

Daggett began his business career with the Security Insurance Company of New Haven. Later he was with the Commonwealth Insurance Company of New York, being secretary when he severed his connection there.

After this he was affiliated with the Connecticut Fire Insurance Company of Hartford as special agent in the Rochester field. Next he accepted an offer from the Stuyvesant Insurance Company of New York where he became vice-president. Serious illness forced him to relinquish business for a time, and after regaining his health he was appointed manager of the Elmira office of the Fire Companies' Adjustment Bureau, being made manager in Rochester a short time later.

Daggett was a descendant of the Rev. Naphtali Daggett, one-time president of Yale University. He was a member of the Sons of the Revolution in New York State.

Peace Justice Danford Dies; Active as Brighton GOP Aide

RVF Rochester D. D. & C. JUN 21 1937
Fay W. Danford, active Brighton Republican leader, and for four years justice of the peace in that town, died yesterday afternoon (June 20, 1937) in Strong Memorial Hospital, after an illness of several years. He was 59.

Brought back to his home Saturday from Boston, where he had undergone a lung operation on May 24, he developed pneumonia yesterday morning, and, although rushed to Strong Memorial Hospital and placed under an oxygen tent, was unable to rally sufficient strength to meet the attack. He died at 5:15 p. m.

Rochester Native

Born in Rochester, Mr. Danford was taken to Buffalo by his parents when he was 8. He lived in that city and in Cleveland until about 17 years ago, when he returned to Rochester.

For several years he successfully operated second-hand furniture, auctioneering, and coal businesses simultaneously. Under the pressure of ill health he retired about a year ago.

About 15 years ago Danford moved to Brighton, and entered actively into politics there. Although always a staunch Republican, he was in almost constant conflict with the party leaders, and it was only after a battle of several years that he won the party designation for the peace justice post four years ago.

Organized Club

He was an organizer, and president of the Neighboring Neighbors, Brighton social club. He was a Spanish War Veteran, having served with the famous Rough Riders.

Fred S. Roberts, his friend and associate for many years, last night declared that in Mr. Danford's death "the liberal and progressive elements in Brighton have lost a great leader. Mr. Danford was happiest when he was doing things for other people."

He leaves his wife, Grace; a son, Ross; a sister, Mrs. Gertrude Byrens of Buffalo, and two brothers, Gail and Roy of Buffalo.

Funeral services will be conducted in the home at 2311 Elmwood Avenue at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in White Haven Cemetery.

STUDENT WINS HONOR

Leonard B. Darling, 471 Glenwood Avenue, student in mechanical engineering at Cornell University, is one of 28 seniors chosen to membership in the Quill and Dagger, senior honorary society, it was announced yesterday.

RNF Biography, D,

A PROFESSOR OF PISCATOLOGY

By Everett G. Leach

THERE is an old saying about fishing and fishermen—"Any darn fool can catch them where they are but it takes a smart man to catch them where they ain't."

R. E. Davey of 218 Laburnum Cres. qualifies as one of those who can land the big ones in the same spots where you and I can't get a bite.

During the last 18 years this quiet spoken man, whose blue eyes regard you amiably through steel-framed glasses, has landed between 4,000 and 5,000 fish, mostly vigilant lake trout.

Medium and compact of stature, with neatly-trained thick hair showing silver in generous streaks, this veteran of the lakes and streams is as physically fit at 57 as a well-trained athlete. He ought to be. He has conditioned himself by rowing a boat an estimated 9,000 miles!

Mr. Davey was born on a farm not far from Rochester and, except for two years when he taught school down in the Catskills, he has always lived in Monroe County. As a boy he served his apprenticeship with hook and line in Braddock's Bay.

After high school he prepared for the teaching profession at Brockport Normal School, Rochester Business Institute, and Cornell University. For the last 33 years he has been a member of the faculty at East High School.

Although he doesn't say so, you wonder if his choice of vocation may not have been influenced by the parallel between the fishing season and a school teacher's summer vacation.

Disdaining the prerogative of an Izaak Walton disciple, Mr. Davey thumbs through his snapshot album and shows you the beauties he has caught, and never mentions the whopper that got away.

He will modestly assure you that the real fishermen of the family are his two boys, Homer, 24, and Bruce, 9. Mrs. Davey likes to fish also.

"How to land the big ones—in one easy lesson" is an extracurricular activity of R. E. Davey, above, for 30 years a teacher in East High School. In the last 18 years, Mr. Davey has landed between 4,000 and 5,000 lake trout and rowed 9,000 miles in pursuit of his hobby.

Mr. Davey maintains that to catch fish you must, by patient observation, ascertain the reason for every nibble on the hook. About 10 years ago his bait box contained a lure that in some aspects was a corker. Fish invariably struck at it but unfortunately they would often escape the hooks before the landing net engulfed them. Obviously the hooks were too small.

Mr. Davey tried fastening a larger gang hook to the spoon but found that the added weight slowed up its action and made it ineffective. He then fashioned a larger spoon to accommodate the heavier hooks and thereby, began a hobby within a hobby.

Since then he has designed and made all of his lures. Their irresistible fascination for the finny denizens of the deep establishes beyond doubt that his artificial bait has what it takes to make the fish stop, look, and then take a bite. His spoons realistically simulate a thoughtless minnow with just enough sense to say "Howdy" to a hungry trout.

Next Mr. Davey devised an ingenious gadget that soothes a fisherman's shattered nerves when Mr. Trout scoots under the boat and neatly binds the line on rod or boat bottom. This maneuver usually means a broken pole or line, or a lost fish. Mr. Davey's contrivance is an unique attachment to the rod tip which provides for a free running line no matter where a frantic fish decides to run.

A limber rod is another factor that contributes to the complete enjoyment of a fisherman's sport. Mr. Davey finds that those he makes suit his purposes better than anything turned out by the enterprising tackle manufacturers.

The stock he uses is foil steel, imported from France, as supple as a green willow and broken just as easily. The swordsmen for whom it is made are annoyed beyond words unless their foils can be tied in a bow knot. The French steel makers have so tempered their product that it can almost be done.

.. and an Angling Artist Is This Waltonite Whose Spare Moments Are Spent Manufacturing the Lure That a Fish Can't Resist

The same qualities that make a perfect foil also make a perfect fishing rod. Tapering from the size of a pencil at the butt to the size of a knitting needle at the tip, you can imagine the sport of playing an eight-pound trout at the end of such a rod.

Mr. Davey's fishing gear is held in such high regard by those who know of it that he is kept busy by friends who want it duplicated for themselves. His friends have told friends—(remember the man who built a better mousetrap)—and now he finds his spare time barely sufficient to keep up with the demand for lures, tips, and rods.

With the smell of spring already in the air Mr. Davey waits impatiently for the best days of the fishing season. Should you be impelled to dunk a worm in any of the nearby Finger Lakes some afternoon next summer you may see him on the water. The chances are that while you're wondering if that same worm has crawled under a rock for a snooze, Mr. Davey is envisioning something new in tackle or technique that will better equip him to match wits with the cunning and crafty Mister Trout.

Davey Rites Set Tomorrow

Colleagues on East and West High School teaching staffs will be bearers for Roy E. Davey, dean of commercial teachers in Rochester public schools, at funeral services tomorrow. Mr. Davey died unexpectedly yesterday. He was 58.

Bearers will be John E. Merrell, John A. Baird, Fletcher H. Carpenter, William E. Foster, and Earl A. Partridge, of East High School, and Louis A. Pultz, of West High.

Services will be conducted, 3 p. m., at the home, 218 Laburnum Cres. The Rev. Robert J. Drysdale, pastor of Mt. Her Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Rush Cemetery.

FUNERAL RITES ARRANGED FOR ROY E. DAVEY D. & C. NOV 2 1938 Pioneer Teacher Will Be Buried Tomorrow

Funeral services for Roy E. Davey, 58, dean of the commercial teachers in Rochester public schools and a pioneer of his field in school work, will be conducted at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the home, 218 Laburnum Cres. Burial will be in Rush cemetery.

Davey, who joined the teaching staff of East High School in 1905 and had been head of the commercial department since 1913, died of a heart attack Monday night after a day of teaching.

One of the city's early leaders in business education, Davey had taught normal school courses during summer sessions at the RBI before commercial studies were established by colleges.

Charles E. Cook, director of commercial education for the Rochester public schools, yesterday described him as "a natural born teacher and a leader of young people who had the happy faculty of encouraging pupils to do the utmost for themselves."

His contributions to the commercial field in public education extended beyond Rochester when he served as a member of the Regents examination committee. He helped prepare the first state-wide tests in business subjects. Before coming to Rochester he was principal of the high school in Accord. He was born in Parma, wa, graduated from Brockport Normal School and Rochester Business Institute and attended Cornell University.

Sporting circles knew Davey as the inventor of much ingenious fishing tackle. He liked to fashion poles and lures in his spare time.

He leaves his wife, Florence Ely Davey, and two sons, Homer S. and Robert Bruce.

Roy E. Davey D. & C. NOV 3 1938

For more than thirty years, students of East High School knew Roy E. Davey and found him a keen, sympathetic teacher and warm friend. He conducted his first class in that school back in 1905 as a young man not long out of normal school and college. Students of that period will remember him as assistant to Charles E. Harris in the physics department.

Later he was transferred to the commercial department, of which since 1913 he had been the head. In that position he extended his reputation beyond the limits of Rochester. He served as a member of the Regents examination committee, he helped prepare the first state-wide tests in business subjects. He was instrumental in building up the commercial department at East High to its present importance.

Mr. Davey was genuinely interested in youth and its proper training. He made friends easily and enjoyed a wide acquaintance among sportsmen owing to his reputation as an expert fisherman. Few of East High's teachers have contributed more faithful service or been more genuinely liked.

Tribute Paid Roy A. Davey At East High

East High School's population threw routine aside yesterday to assemble in tribute to a teacher, friend and counselor who died suddenly Monday following a heart attack.

Roy A. Davey, who was head of the commercial department and a pioneer in business education, was eulogized by student and faculty speakers for a sympathy with practical problems of boys and girls that extended even to job-hunting for them when they had finished their courses.

It was an assembly, Principal William C. Wolgast told the pupils, "not so much to mourn him as to show our appreciation."

James Smith, president of the senior class and member of the soccer team, described his former teacher as one always willing to give ear to a pupil's problems, a friend and fan of the school's athletic teams "who gave us a pat on the back whether we won or lost," an instructor in business education who advocated strict honesty in all undertakings.

Albert H. Wilcox, retired principal of East High, enjoined the assembly to recall the meticulousness with which Davey filled his task as treasurer of student affairs and the large amount of time he spent in helping boys and girls to find jobs, then counseling them on how to hold their jobs, and praised his sympathetic dealings with youth and his genial personality.

A student quartet directed by C. Kenneth Mock sang "There is No Death." The school alma mater song closed the program.

W. S. Davenport Funds Bequeathed Wife

William S. Davenport, president and general manager of Davenport Machine Tool Company Inc., 167 Ames Street, left a net estate of $95,531 to his widow, Mrs. Edith E. Davenport, 1555 Highland Avenue. A tax deposition filed by the widow as executrix showed the estate had a gross value of $108,740, including $13,075 realty and $60,020 preferred stock in the machine tool firm. Mr. Davenport died last Jan. 7.

Life insurance payable to the estate amounted to $5,078. Insurance not part of the estate aggregated $36,000, of which $25,000 was payable to the company, leaving $11,000 to the estate.

The homestead was valued at $26,150, half of which was owned by Mrs. Davenport. For many years a business associate of her husband, she and Mr. Davenport bought the home out of joint savings, it was stated.

Funeral Services Set For Firm Official

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for William S. Davenport, 76, at Mt. Hope Chapel. Burial will follow in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

President and general manager of the Davenport Machine Tool Company, 167 Ames Street, he died at his home 1555 Highland Avenue.

Born in Williamstown, Vt., he came to Rochester in 1919 and organized the tool company with which he has been connected ever since. A nephew of Thomas Davenport, pioneer in electrical development in the United States, he was a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Edith E. Davenport; a brother, the Rev. Walter E. Davenport, Vermont, and several nephews and nieces.

Junglegrounds free of subversive influence are promised by Davis, king of American hoboes, who boasts of formation of a hobo police force 800,000 strong. Davis wears the crown and scepter, indicative of his sovereignty, on a stick pin as indicated by circle.

Hobo King, Selling Razor Blades in City, Reveals One-Eye Connolly Heads 'Force' of 800,000

BY ROGER B. SPAULDING

Jeff Davis, King of the Hoboes, announced here today the formation of a hobo police force, 800,000 strong, to check on Fifth Column activities in jungleground.

Chief of the jungle bulls, the "king" disclosed, is One-Eye Connolly, the gate-crasher. The bulls, all members of Jeff's Hoboes of America Inc., will keep eyes and ears open for Fifth Column stuff among the tramps and bums they see on the road. Suspects will be reported after the jungle police take "requisite action," King Jeff said.

Sells Razor Blades

King Jeff, duly elected ruler of more than a million members of the American organization and emperor of the League of Hoboes of the world, is in Rochester to sell razor blades. He let it be known that he and his wife are staying "in a furnished room, by gosh," after "riding the cushions, by gosh," on a train from Niagara Falls, where they celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary.

While he's here, Jeff disclosed, he'll bestow the title of "Grand Duke" on Emanuel Koveleski, "because of his good deeds." The veteran AFL leader, along with mayors, governors, police chiefs, judges and others throughout the country, has been one of Jeff's subjects for years. The "king" himself claims membership in 92 AFL unions.

'Caste' System Explained

The bald, side-burned, 58-year-old monarch of the knights of the road (he wears his crown and scepter as a stickpin) explained as patiently as ever today the difference between hoboes, tramps and bums. "The hobo will work, the tramp won't work, and the bum couldn't work, if he would. Tramps and bums expect the world to give them a living. The hobo only wants to be given an opportunity."

Usually whimsical, the "king" is deadly serious about the war and its implications for America. "I've ringed this old world six times," he said, "and I think Communism, Facism and Nazism are spreading. That's why I organized the jungle bulls. People don't realize it—but the hoboes are the best friends this country has. They're loyal. Just suppose our boys were on the other side of the fence—God help America!"

Final Rites Set For Robert Dash

EDWIN L. DAVIS SUCCUMBS TO LONG ILLNESS

D. & C. JAN 15 1939
Minister's Father
Heart Ailment
Victim at 75

Edwin Leander Davis, 74, father of the Rev. Ernest E. Davis, minister of West Avenue Methodist Church, died yesterday (Jan. 14, 1939) in his home of a heart attack, following a long illness.

Mr. Davis, whose home was at 68 Rosedale St. was born in Shelby Center on Christmas Day, 1864, and as a young man prospected in British Columbia. He had lived in Rochester 50 years. He was a store manager for W. E. Woodbury & Co., grocery concern until 30 years ago when he became a sales representative for J. R. Watkins Company.

His territory covered the eastern half of Monroe County at the time of his retirement, a year ago. His brother-in-law, Grant W. Spaulding, who covered the western county territory for the same firm, died a week ago.

He leaves another son, Donald Francis Davis, besides the Rev. Mr. Davis; two daughters, Mrs. Mildred Davis Lewis and Mrs. Lucille Davis Brightman, both active in choir work; two sisters, Mrs. Flora D. Porter and Mrs. Ida R. Powell. All except Mrs. Powell, who lives in Albion, are Rochesterians. There are also seven grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Rosedale Street home at 2 p. m. Tuesday with the Rev. Robert E. Brown, former pastor of Spencer-Ripley Methodist Church, officiating. Interment will be in Mt. Hope Cemetery. Mr. Davis was a member of his son's church.

MOVIE PIONEER PASSES AT 78

D. & C. JAN 5 1940
Harry Davis, 78, the man who opened Rochester's first nickelodeon movie house, is dead, according to word received here yesterday.

Mr. Davis, who died Tuesday in Pittsburgh, founded the old Bijou Dream movie theater here in 1905 at Main Street East and North Water Street.

For the nickel admission price, Rochesterians sat on hard-seated wooden chairs to watch the flickering films that entertained moviegoers of more than 30 years ago.

D. & C. FEB 21 1939 Henry Clay Davis Dies in New York

Henry Clay Davis, 77, vice-president of 21 Brands Inc., liquor importers, and former general agent of the Lehigh Railroad, died last night at his home in New York City after a brief illness. Burial rites will be Thursday at Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Davis, born at Union Square, Oswego County, resigned his post with the Lehigh during the World War to serve as transportation director for the Commission for Relief in Belgium. He was awarded a medal for services by the late King Albert of the Belgians.

He was a member of the Genesee Lodge, F&AM, and the New York Produce Exchange. His widow, a son, a brother and two sisters survive. R. F. Biography, D.

Progressive League Honors Rochesterian

Tobias J. Davis, Rochester insurance broker, has been elected to the executive committee of the State Progressive League, said to be an offshot of the onetime Progressive Party, according to word received here yesterday from New York.

The League was organized in Chicago in 1912 by Theodore Roosevelt. Its purpose is "the progressive rewriting of Republican principles with added emphasis on popular government." Davis is a former resident of New York City, where he served on the Republican County Committee. Dr. Bernard Lazarus, Hollis, L. I., physician, is chairman of the Progressive League.

Charles F. Day Taken by Death

Charles Franklin Day, 78, former contractor and builder, died yesterday (Jan. 6, 1940) at his home, 61 Fairview Ave., after a long illness.

Born in Wayland, Mr. Day succeeded his father, Orleans W. Day, in operating a saw mill and lumber business. He came to Rochester in 1904 and entered the contracting business.

He leaves his wife, Elizabeth B. Day; two brothers, William W. and Dr. Harry W. Day, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary J. Faulkner and Mrs. Frank E. Homan. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday at 137 Chestnut St. Burial will be in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Final Rites Arranged for G. W. Dean

Last rites for G. Welford Dean, 71, veteran building contractor who died Wednesday night, will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at his home, 504 Arnett Blvd., with burial in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

In the brick manufacturing business in Florida for several years, Mr. Dean had been a contractor here for 25 years, building many small homes on the west side of the city.

He leaves his wife, two daughters, Miss Lucille Dean, Rochester, and Mrs. Frank Isler, Jersey City, and a son, Prescott Dean, Rochester.

EMPLOYEES DINE CHIEF

Ninety-two employees of the J. Hungerford Smith Company last night paid tribute to J. E. Dean, general manager, for his 25 years of service with the firm. The testimonial dinner was held at the Hotel Rochester.

Feb. 27, 1938

Frank E. Deavenport

Funeral services for Frank E. Deavenport, 67, of 436 Birr St., for many years a commission house broker in Rochester, will be held today in the home at 2 p. m. He died Monday in St. Mary's Hospital.

For 45 years Mr. Deavenport was associated with his uncle, Daniel Deavenport, in the Liberty Pole Commission House, Franklin and Main streets, founded in 1865. The younger Deavenport retired from active business in 1925. He was a member of United Commercial Travelers.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Anna M. Deavenport; a sister, Mrs. Ralph Wilson; a niece, Mrs. John W. Thorne, and a nephew, George W. Wilson. Interment will be in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

It's This Way

Young Photographer
Wants to Join
Circus

T.M. Feb. 23, 1938

By HOWARD C. HOSMER

A YOUNG Southerner who was just recovering from an old-fashioned Northern cold told us the other day he wanted to work for the circus this summer.

There's nothing unusual in that except that, ever since he can remember, the circus has been parked every winter within walking distance of his home.

The would-be circus man is Loomis Dean, 21. His home is in Sarasota, Fla., the town that Ringling built, and the place Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey's circus makes its winter quarters.

LOOMIS DEAN

Dean is tall and slim and speaks softly. He has a self-appointed task—preparing himself for a career and convincing his artist father and sister that photography can be art.

Services Held For George M. Decker

Last rites for George M. Decker, Spanish American War veteran, were to be conducted today at 532 Lake Ave. by L. Bordman Smith Camp, United Spanish-American War Veterans, with burial in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Mr. Decker died Sunday at his home, 4417 Lake Ave. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Nicholas Terhune.

To that end, he's studying photographic technology at Mechanics Institute, where he entered last fall instead of taking a fourth year in engineering at the University of Florida.

He heard of Mechanics quite by accident through meeting a Sarasota commercial photographer—Earl Burrell, a Penn Yan man who once worked for Kodak here. Young Dean had been thinking of studying photography, but he couldn't find out where to go.

"DOWN in Florida," he told us, "people don't seem to think there's anything much to photography but portrait work and photo finishing. The newspapers go in for portraits—not so much for action. Then, the Miami Beach pictures are always taken on the beach—pretty girls and all that."

His artistic family wasn't so keen on photography. His father, William Dean, is a well known artist and now lectures on art appreciation in Sarasota's Ringling Museum. His sister, Maude, teaches interior decoration in the art school which, with the museum, is part of a $40,000,000 gift of John Ringling.

Dean thinks he made a little progress with his family at Christmas time, when he took home several books on modern photography and pointed out the advantages of the science as an art form.

He wants to show that photography can reproduce action, "without freezing" the subject.

Colleagues Join Circus

Last summer he was a life guard at Lansing, Mich. He wants to follow his friends this year—with the circus.

It annoys him to see people look down their noses at circus workers. "Why," he said, "ushers, ticket takers and sometimes barkers are likely to be University of Florida men. I know one who is a doctor of philosophy."

The performers, too, are highly respected in Sarasota. According to Loomis, "they own nice homes and are well known in the community."

Services Tomorrow For John L. DeCook

John L. DeCook, 48, Rochester World War veteran and a member of Doud Post, American Legion, died Wednesday at Batavia Veterans' Hospital.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at 828 Jay, with burial in Mt. Hope Cemetery. Military rites will be supervised by Doud Post members.

Mr. DeCook leaves his wife, Estella a son, Jack DeCook; his father, John DeCook Sr.

In the old days, when American vaudeville was booming along, many of the circus acts took to the road in the winter. Now, he says, they either go to Europe and tour the southern part of the continent with European circuses, or they stay home in Sarasota.

ONE of the many things varying with the weather is the telephone "business" of the U. S. Weather Bureau here.

Bad Weather Swamps Phone

Largely depending on how bad the weather is, phone calls either trickle or pour into the bureau, according to Meteorologist Jesse L. Vanderpool. He says people swamp the bureau with calls on weekends, particularly stormy ones. The worse the weather, the more calls. Apparently people trust their eyesight on nice days.

Not only does the bureau get a deluge of weather calls, it gets queer ones, too. The other day a woman called up and asked the government men if it would be all right if she washed her hair.

THERE is approximately one clergyman to minister to the spiritual needs of every 920 Rochesterians.

Which means there are about 364 clergymen, all creeds, now living in the city. Of these, less than half, or 65, are Roman Catholic. About 30 are Baptists, about 26 Presbyterian, about 22 Methodist Episcopal, about 18 Episcopal. Some 20 are Lutheran.

There are about 25 rabbis and three Pentecostal clergymen. On the list are ministers of half a score other creeds, among them the Evangelical, Reformed, Unitarian, Universalist, Adventist and Congregationalist.

GENEVA TO GET WORK OFFICIAL

Paul B. Smith, superintendent of the Rochester district, State Employment Service, yesterday appointed Bernard J. Dee manager of the district's Geneva office.

Dee will fill the post vacated by the death of LeRoy Van Etten, whose assistant Dee had been since September, 1939, accord to Smith.

Dee headed the National Re-employment Service office here in the four years preceding 1937, and joined the staff of the State Employment Service in 1938. He served in Geneva, and later was made manager of the Penn Yan office which was discontinued last fall.

Returning to Geneva, Dee, a war veteran, served as local veterans' placement representative.

Injured Student Finds There IS a Santa Claus

Loomis Dean, center, of Sarasota, Fla., Mechanics Institute student, is confined in General Hospital, result of a fall on an icy walk. Fellow students are holding a benefit dance that he may be able to go home for Christmas. Christine Varallo, left, painted a sign for the ball. Dick Maurer and Bob Morrell, drummer, at right, are tuning up.

D. & C. DEC 7 1938 Mechanics Dance to Aid Victim of Sidewalk Fall

His hard-earned cash vanishing rapidly for hospital bills, 22-year-old Loomis Dean of Florida, who slipped on a patch of Rochester ice, gloomily contemplated a bleak Christmas yesterday.

BUT—there's a chance unlucky Loomis may yet get home to Sarasota before Dec. 25.

At Mechanics Institute, where the injured youth is a brilliant photography student, his friends are renewing one's faith in the strength of human compassion. By personal contribution and a benefit dance, scheduled for Saturday night, they expect to raise nearly $200. Out of this they figure all of Dean's hospital bills and other expenses can be paid, with enough left over to get him to Sarasota for the holidays.

Young Dean, who worked last summer with Ringling Brothers Circus to make enough money for his tuition at Mechanics, slipped on the sidewalk in front of his rooming house at 43 S. Washington St. last Saturday afternoon. Heavy rains the night before had frozen the sidewalks that day, and Loomis did a jack-knife just as he turned to enter the house.

The fall knocked him unconscious. Nurses from the nearby Visiting Nurses Home in Spring Street picked him up, and he was removed to General Hospital. Until yesterday, it was believed his skull was fractured, but X-rays showed his head only badly bruised. He will remain in the hospital about a week.

Dean, a tall, lanky youth who works part-time nights at Mechanics and also has worked in the school cafeteria for his meals, had planned to leave for home Dec. 16, when the holiday vacation begins at Mechanics. He was promised a ride most of the way with a school instructor.

Joan Klein, who conceived the idea of the benefit dance, said yesterday that $82 already has been raised by voluntary contributions from Dean's classmates in the Photo-Tech department. Miss Klein, from Cleveland, a junior, has arranged for the student swing band, print shop and art poster department to donate their services. The school will donate Eastman Hall for the dance. Assisting are:

Ticket committee—Mary Ireland, Ralph Downen, James Liccione and Miss Klein; posters—Christine Varallo, Alma Daetsch, Everett Newell and Alice Gere; printing—Alan Taylor, Craig Nichols and Joe Horner.

Death Halts Reunion Plans Of Ex-Symington Official

D. & C. NOV 25 1937

Tragedy called a halt on a family reunion in Rochester yesterday when Joseph Bell Deisher, former superintendent of the Symington Company's Lincoln Park plant, died unexpectedly in his home in Lancaster, Pa.

Making plans to spend Thanksgiving in Rochester with his son, Joseph Jr., a student in the University of Rochester Medical School, Deisher had arranged to accompany his family to Rochester today.

At 49 he was superintendent of the Columbia Gray Iron Foundry, Columbia, Pa., a position he took five years ago when he left the Symington plant.

Besides Joseph Jr., surviving are: his wife, Edna Hert Deisher; a daughter, Virginia; and two sisters, Daisy and Olivia Deisher of Jagger Springs, Va., Deisher's birthplace.

Death Halts Father's Plan For Reunion

Death today ended plans of Joseph Bell Deisher, formerly superintendent of the Symington Company's Lincoln Park plant here, for spending Thanksgiving Day in Rochester with his son, Joseph Jr., University of Rochester Medical School student.

Mr. Deisher died unexpectedly today at his home in Lancaster, Pa. He was 49. With his wife and children, he moved from Rochester five years ago to become superintendent of the Columbia Gray Iron Foundry, Columbia, Pa.

On Friday, Mr. Deisher was to have given a talk at Cornell University on "Malleable Iron." Funeral services will be conducted here at a time to be announced. He was a member of Ancient Craft, Rochester Masonic Lodge.

Surviving are his wife, Edna Hert Deisher; his son and a daughter, Virginia; and two sisters, Daisy and Olivia Deisher of Jagger Springs, Va., Mr. Deisher's birthplace.

Former Engineer At Kodak Passes

D. & C. NOV 16 1937

Darrach deLancey, 67, industrial engineer who supervised building of the original Kodak Park plant, died last night in his home in Waterbury, Conn., after a long illness.

He was a native of East Orange, N. J. He came to Rochester in 1890, after his graduation from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

During the World War DeLancey was secretary of the second district draft board. Later he assisted President Wilson at the peace conference, and in 1919 was appointed to the U. S. Shipping Board, a post he resigned in 1921. He retired from active work in 1922.

His widow, Mrs. Harriet Gallup deLancey, two daughters and a son survive.

Ex-Rochesterian Enters Annapolis

Jack L. DeLany, 38, formerly of Rochester and Clyde, has been appointed to the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, it was announced yesterday.

DeLany, whose home is in Syracuse, was appointed first alternate by Representative John Taber of Auburn. His acceptance into the academy came as a result of the government program ordering expansion of the academy personnel.

A graduate of Clyde High School, the youth formerly attended School 6 and is the son of Mrs. Janet P. DeLany.

Executive Marks 50th July 7 With Brewster-Gordon Firm

July 7, 1882, was a big day in the life of Jacob J. De Jongh of 288 Elmdorf Avenue.

He probably didn't realize it then, for it meant going to work on a hot summer's day when the rest of the gang was just finishing up its celebration of a rip-roaring Fourth of July.

But today in his office at the Brewster-Gordon Company, Mr. DeJongh is looking back on 55 years of service with the company.

In 1882 he rode to work on the horse-car, this morning his son, Walter, a student aviation pilot, drove him to work in the family sedan.

In 1882 he was an office boy, today he is vicepresident, treasurer and credit manager of the concern.

He has seen the company's business quadruple, and its location moved twice from its original building at 153 East Main Street.

Looking 20 years younger than the 71 he claims, Mr. De Jongh was to put in another busy day at his desk, and then with his son, Richard, 24, who is an assistant superintendent in the company, go home to work in his garden and maybe read a few chapters of his favorite mystery author before going to bed.

Ex-Rochester Man Seeks New Degree

Roland R. DeMarco, former Rochesterian, has resigned as history instructor of East Islip High School, effective next month, to become a student member of the Advanced School of Education, Teachers College, Columbia University.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Mariano G. DeMarco, 146 Averill Ave., Mr. DeMarco will complete his studies for a doctor of philosophy degree. He studied at the University of Munich in Germany last summer. His wife is the former Lydia Hees, graduate of the Eastman School of Music.

Export Chief Dies

DOMINGO E. DELGADO

Export salesmanager for Eastman Kodak Company for 40 years, Mr. Delgado died last night in his apartment at The Sagamore.

Eastman Export Head Dies at 66

Fellow-Masons will conduct funeral services at 4 p. m. tomorrow for Domingo E. Delgado, 66, who organized and directed Eastman Kodak exports over a period of 40 years.

Mr. Delgado, known as "Del" and "Mr. D." to Kodak employees over much of the Western Hemisphere, died last night in his Sagamore Hotel apartment after an illness of six months.

Born in Puerto Rico

Born in San Juan, Puerto Rico, Nov. 15, 1870, he attended Jesuits' College there, first entering export business in the United States. He was engaged in export shipping with the Ward Steamship Line when he came to Kodak Aug. 18, 1897, to organize the firm's export activities.

He expanded Kodak's sketchy export beginnings into international fields, Central and South America, Cuba, Mexico, the West Indies, Hawaii, Japan, China and the Philippines, known at Kodak as "the export territory."

He was later president and director of 12 subsidiary companies in the Far East and Latin-America, established under a plan sponsored by him. He traveled widely in his work and knew principal photographic dealers in all countries in the Eastman export territory.

Adventurous Life

His adventures were often exciting, ranging from capture by the Germans on the high seas during the World War to a hurricane in Cuba and a hotel fire in Japan. Civil war in Spain last year forced him to cancel a trip there.

Mr. Delgado was formerly a director of the American Manufacturers' Export Association, and the Foreign Trade Association.

His club affiliations included Genesee Falls Lodge of Masons, Shriners, Rochester Club and Monroe Golf Club.

Much of his spare time was formerly spent on his farm in Parma Center Rd. When the place was destroyed by fire this year he moved to the Sagamore.

He was a widower. Surviving is one daughter, Mrs. Albert Boosing of Santa Monica, Calif.

C. Relyea, Rochester, and two grandchildren.

Jungle Calls Denises on New Safara

RVF Biography, D.
Times-Union NOV 17 1937

Another Denis-Roosevelt jungle expedition is in the making.

Armed with their trusty cameras, Armand Denis and his pretty wife, Leila Roosevelt Denis, will be gone a year and do their exploring from motor cars.

Their destination? That can't be told as yet for the simple reason that it hasn't been decided.

That's the information the two explorers left behind after a brief stop here yesterday. Most of their time was spent in tracking down stolen automobiles with its priceless cargo of African jungle films.

While Mr. and Mrs. Denis were renewing acquaintances at Kodak Park, the car was stolen from the driveway there and recovered by police within two hours in Langford Rd., Greece.

The films were found intact along with trinkets of their African adventure. A coat and jacket were gone but the Denises were thankful that was the limit of the theft. They started out for Detroit high in their praise of the police department's efficiency.

Between telephone calls at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Cunningham, 10 S. Goodman, Denis talked of past explorations and future plans. He explained that the selection of a field of operation is contingent on the time of departure because of the vagaries of the weather.

On an expedition completed in August, 1936, the Denis-Roosevelt expedition made two complete overland crossings of Africa by auto. They spanned the Sahara twice and brought back some novel films of African pygmies, giants and jungle animals.

During the past seven months, the Denises have been in Hollywood editing 100,000 feet of film down to 6,000 feet, synchronizing sound effects and whipping their film into final shape.

That's why they spent such an uncomfortable two hours while police hunted their film-laden auto yesterday. As Armand explained "you can always get another car but even the 1938 models don't come equipped with edited jungle film."

Denises Return from India; Pet Banned

ARMAND DENIS, the explorer-photographer, and his wife, the former Leila Roosevelt, both former Rochesterians, are back in America with a pet female mongoose from India on which federal health authorities cast doubtful eyes.

So doubtful was the government over the advisability of admitting the mongoose to the country when the Denises landed in New York two days ago with the prizes of a 10-months tour of Asia and Africa, that they barred the beast.

The reason was that a mongoose, which kills snakes, also kills birds.

Appeals by Mrs. Denis, distant cousin of the late Theodore Roosevelt, to higher authorities in Washington for special permission to admit the mongoose, Tikki, had brought no response today.

Meanwhile, the Denises planned to prepare motion pictures of their jungle experiences for release and to see their four children in Connecticut.

After a stay in this country, they plan to go on another expedition.

Rochester friends and Eastman Kodak officials, whom the Denises have visited frequently at intervals between expeditions, said today they had not heard from the traveling couple. However, it was believed likely they would visit Roch-

Romance flew in the window of the Corporation Counsel's office yesterday.

At just about the same time Harold P. Burke, former corporation counsel, was taking the final step in his rise to the federal judiciary, word came that one of his aides had taken a bride.

Thomas H. Dennis, investigator in the office for the last three years, was party of the second part and Vera Swartzenberg of 80½ South Fitzhugh Street, was the major attraction in a ceremony in Geneseo in St. Mary's Church on Apr. 3. Mr. Dennis confirmed the news last night when confronted with a Washington dispatch announcing his marriage.

Mrs. Dennis up to Saturday was clerk to Representative George B. Kelly in Washington. She surrendered her position and the young couple expected to announce the wedding today, but a Washington correspondent forestalled them. Before leaving for Washington in February, the former Miss Swartzenberg was a secretary at Democratic headquarters and a personal friend to the former Cassie Weber, now Mrs. George B. Kelly.

Mrs. Dennis is a graduate of Nazareth College and her husband of St. Bonaventure College. The young couple are at Mr. Dennis' home at 33 Bardin Street.

Elevator Operator Quits 61-Year Job

Peter De Roo, 83, of 132 Vermont St., elevator operator in the Powers Building for 61 years, yesterday began a life of leisure in retirement.

De Roo started on his "up-and-down" job in 1879, and estimated he made 300 trips a day for more than six decades. During that time he knew most of the tenants in the building by their first names.

Veteran Public Market Master Dies After Brief Illness

Funeral services for William Doerr, 62, familiar figure to Western New York farmers for more than 30 years, will be held Monday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mahlon Baker, 220 Fairfax Rd.

Mr. Doerr, market master at the Rochester Public Market, died at his home in the market square, 280 N. Union, last night after an illness of only four days.

He joined the public market when it opened, July 1, 1905, was assistant market master for 10 years and in 1915 took over the administration of the market. Before joining the market, he had worked at the Galusha Foundry and had seen service with the city engineering department.

Wm. Doerr

He was prominent in the Republican party in both Eighth and 18th Wards and at one time was 18th Ward Republican Club president. Other club affiliations included Elks, Foresters, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Allie Avery Jr., Mrs. Richard Warney and Miss Lillian Doerr; a son, Florian Doerr; a sister, Mrs. Clara Norton, and five grandchildren, all of Rochester.

William Doerr

For many years William Doerr and the Rochester Public Market have been almost synonymous. Mr. Doerr personified the market, made friends with hundreds of farmers and hucksters, and supervised daily many lively transactions.

He had been with the market since it was established on its present site. He helped establish it there in fact. His ability to deal firmly but fairly in many situations brought him both the respect and affection of those who made use of the market's facilities.

His death removes not only a valuable and competent public official, but a personality that had made its impress on the large circle with whom his official and wide personal activities brought him in contact.

W. A. DOHERTY, DETECTIVE, DIES

Detective William A. Doherty, who did much to rid the city of narcotic gangs several years ago, died yesterday (May 25, 1940) following a lingering illness. He was 56.

A member of the Rochester Police Department for more than 30 years, Detective Doherty had been in poor health for a year but returned to work last summer. Shortly before Jan. 1 he was forced to take sick leave again.

He was appointed a patrolman Jan. 16, 1910, and assigned to the Joseph Avenue precinct. He was made a plainclothesman in 1922 and appointed a Grade A detective in 1925. Shortly after his appointment to the Detective Bureau he made several arrests that materially aided in clearing up the distribution of narcotics in the city.

He leaves two brothers, Joseph L. and John E. Doherty, and two sisters, Mrs. Ephram Costello and Mrs. Frank Costello. He spent his early life in Boston.

$50,000 LOST, BARNs RAZED IN MUMFORD ESTATE FIRE

Volunteer Injured In Blaze Laid to Threshing Rig

A spectacular $50,000 blaze, which gave four volunteer fire companies a stubborn three-hour battle, injured one of the fire-fighters and destroyed three grain-filled barns on the Brown Hill Farm, Mumford-Caledonia Road, at 8 a. m. yesterday.

Efforts of the volunteers saved the picturesque farmhouse, owned by Fayette B. Dow, native Rochesterian and Washington counsel for the Petroleum Institute, now on a Canadian fishing trip.

Chief Francis Callan of the Mumford Fire Department said the loss "would exceed $50,000."

Starting from a friction spark which sent a roaring burst of flame from the blower of a threshing machine, the blaze ignited a hay stack near one of the barns. Whipped by a brisk wind, flames soon spread to the three nearby barns, leveling them.

Hose Injures Fireman
Harold Ezard, Caledonia volunteer fireman, suffered a deep laceration over his left eye when a hose he was holding slipped from his grasp and struck him. He was treated by a nearby physician.

Destroyed in the three barns were more than 500 tons of hay, freshly cut from the farm's 175 acres and 3,000 bushels of wheat, newly-harvested. A quantity of farm machinery was ruined by the flames.

Firemen threw streams of water, pumped from the farm well, on roofs of the farmhouse and nearby outbuildings. Companies from Mumford, Caledonia, Clifton and Scottsville were powerless to cope with the barn blaze which had become a raging inferno when they arrived.

Livestock Rescued
Farmhands under Superintendent Peter McGinnis led to safety 100 cows grazing in a nearby pasture. Firemen said the Brown Hill Farm boasts one of the largest dairy herds in Monroe County.

A threshing crew which had begun operations shortly before the blaze started liberated scores of chickens, pigs and other livestock from farm outbuildings.

Attempts of the volunteer firemen to run hose lines to nearby Mumford hydrants were abandoned after the wind-whipped blaze razed the three barns in less than half an hour.

Owner on Vacation
Dow had visited the farm only last week prior to leaving for the fishing trip with Joseph B. Eastman, Interstate Commerce Commission railroad co-ordinator. He had planned to return directly to Washington sometime this week without stopping at the summer home, it was learned.

Son of the late Dr. Frank Fowler Dow, prominent Rochester physician, Dow purchased the Brown Hill Farm, birthplace of his maternal grandfather, several years ago and rehabilitated it. Later he gave it to his mother who died last year.

It was the Washington attorney's custom to spend the summer months at the Mumford farm, friends said. He maintained a complete staff of farmhands who kept the dairy and farm in operation throughout the year.

A graduate of Amherst College and Columbia University Law School, Dow served as examiner of the ICC and later as its counsel. Later he established law offices in Washington where he represents an association of petroleum producers and refiners.

In 1925 Dow engaged in a historic legal battle here when he successfully obtained equalized freight rates in the State Street zone. As an attorney for the Chamber of Commerce, he donated his services, associates here said yesterday. His legal triumph enabled 25 State Street business houses to enjoy switching rates comparable to other zone rates here.

it takes ALL KINDS of PEOPLE....

By Harold Nichols

WHEN gracious Hermann Dossenbach lifts his bandmaster's baton again these summer evenings as leader of the Park Band his sensitive, educated hands will touch chords in the musical memories of a city.

For the name Dossenbach is a tradition in Rochester's own little world of music. It is a name as formidable as Eastman is to the same city's cultural development and Sousa is to the nation.

Hermann Dossenbach, his 70-odd years resting as lightly on his mien as his 205 pounds do on his 5 feet and 10 inches of stature, will be back on the Park Band podium for a series of 25 engagements. With three behind him, he begins next Sunday evening at Genesee Valley Park 22 concerts, nine at that park, nine at Maplewood, two at Ontario Beach and two at Highland Park.

For the 25 engagements the city has allotted $10,000. In return Dossenbach has agreed to hire not less than 50 musicians or vocalists who will be paid at the Musician's Union scale to give programs of two hours average length.

Those are the material elements of the veteran's return to public attention after a six-year eclipse due to a change in city administration. But Hermann Dossenbach does not measure his love for music by mercenary rewards nor could the name Dossenbach ever be permanently shadowed by political byplay.

Hermann Dossenbach's work in music down through the years has been a labor of love.

He came to Rochester, he recalls with a twinkle in his kindly eyes, "under false pretenses, although it ought not be held against me very seriously because I was only four years old when I came."

It was through the influence of Henri Appy, then the foremost musician of Rochester, and his father that Hermann was brought up to be a violinist "when as a matter of fact I never wanted to be a violinist at all."

"It was this way," Dossenbach explains. "Our home was in Niagara Falls. One day Henri Appy was on a visit to the Falls. Passing by our house he heard my brother, Otto, playing the violin. He stopped and asked at the door who was playing. At first he could not believe it was a boy of 10, but he came in and heard for himself.

"Then he persuaded my father, Mathias Dossenbach, to move to Rochester so that Otto might study with him. I was four years old and came along, of course. My father thought I had talent for the violin and made me study with Appy. To spur my ambition they took me to hear Theodore Thomas and his orchestra in a concert at old Fitzhugh Hall.

"Then and there I knew what I wanted to do—I wanted to conduct a symphony orchestra."

Now taking his violin lessons seriously, as a means to an end, young Hermann played in Appy's Philharmonic Orchestra and at the old McKechnie Theater in Canandaigua for additional practice.

He then went to Berlin for instruction under the great Willi Hess. While there he studied harmony and theory under Franz Gruneeke.

At the turn of the century Hermann organized the Dossenbach Symphony Orchestra whose name was changed in 1913 to the Rochester Orchestra. In 1906 he formed the Dossenbach String Quartet which was employed for 15 years at the home of the late George Eastman and at the Lake Avenue Baptist Church in place of a choir.

In 1913 the director instituted the Dossenbach-Klingenberg School of Music, now a part of the Eastman School of Music. Orchestra concerts presented by Dossenbach brought some of the world's foremost artists to the city as soloists. These included Kreisler, Seidl, Schumann-Heink, Hofmann and many others whose autographed portraits adorn the walls of his den in his home at 32 Laurelton Road and evoke fond memories for him. He also has a summer home at Forest Lawn.

Dossenbach first retired from the musical field in 1918 to enter the ice business which he now conducts but returned in 1924 to succeed his illustrious brother, Theodore Dossenbach, as Park Band director after the latter's death.

Dossenbach, who lives by the young-as-you-feel philosophy, is as enthusiastic as a young Eastman School graduate as he prepares the summer concerts. As he pursues his work he eats what he wants—a couple of eggs, toast, grapefruit and coffee for breakfast, no lunch except an occasional apple, and a dinner of plain food—"whatever my wife asks before me."

He also "eats and sleeps" music, does Hermann Dossenbach, for that is his first love, his labor of love, and without it his would not be one of the great names in the city's musical history.

F. J. Dowling Rites Held

Last rites for Frank J. Dowling, 62, were conducted this morning at his home, 720 Winton Rd. S., and at Our Lady of Lourdes' Church, with burial in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Mr. Dowling, Detroit representative for the Schlegel Manufacturing Company, and a member of one of Rochester's pioneer families, died Friday in Strong Memorial Hospital.

Surviving are his wife, Ethel Corris Dowling; four sons, William J., Robert, Thomas and Daniel Dowling, Rochester; two daughters, Mrs. George Kearney, Fitchburg, Mass., and Mary Dowling, Rochester; one sister, Mrs. J. William Foley, Trenton, Mich., and one brother, Harry J. Dowling, Rochester.

Mr. Dowling was the son of the late Katherine Dowling, once city librarian, and the late Patrick J. Dowling.

The Rev. Francis Luddy celebrated mass this morning. In the sanctuary were the Rev. John B. Sullivan, the Rev. Guy Manley and the Rev. Frank W. Mason.

Father Luddy gave final blessing at the grave.

Honorary bearers were Charles P. Schlegel, George Schlegel, Henry B. Warren, Frank Doell, Norman E. Johnson, Maurice Cook, Harold Miller and Sidney Riddell. Active bearers were Earl Sharpe, Archie Sharp, James F. Sproat, Carl Schlegel, Norman Schlegel and William R. Corris.

President Of Stamping Company Dies

Martin J. Dowling, 64, founder, president and treasurer of the Atlantic Stamping Company, 156 Ames, and a member of the board of the Rochester Ordnance District, died early today at his home, 18 Wellington, after an illness of five weeks.

MARTIN J. DOWLING
Death ends manufacturer's career

A native of Livonia, Mr. Dowling had lived in Rochester for many years. He was one of a family of six sisters and five brothers. He founded the stamping company about 35 years ago.

Active in many fields until his final illness, he was a member of the Knights of Columbus, Brook-Lea Country Club, the Rochester Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the Standard Bowling Club.

He leaves his wife, Elizabeth S. Dowling; a son, Martin J. Dowling Jr.; three daughters, the Misses Mary E., Margaret A. and Katherine M. Dowling; three grandchildren and six sisters, Mrs. Mary Smith and Mrs. David O'Connell, Livonia, and the Misses Gertrude, Sarah, Elizabeth and Anna Dowling.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday at 9:30 a. m. at the family home, and at 10 a. m. at St. Augustine's Church, Chili Avenue. Burial will be in Livonia.

FUNERAL RITES ARRANGED FOR M. J. DOWLING

Stamping Firm Head Passes After Brief Illness

Funeral services for Martin J. Dowling, 64, founder, president and treasurer of the Atlantic Stamping Company in Ames Street, will be conducted at 9:30 a. m. Monday from the home, 18 Wellington Ave., and at 10 a. m. at St. Augustine's Church. Burial will be in Livonia.

MARTIN J. DOWLING

Mr. Dowling, who was a member of the board of the Rochester Ordnance District, died yesterday (Apr. 4, 1941) at his home after an illness of five weeks.

He was a candidate for school commissioner on the Democratic ticket in 1939, the only time he ran for public office. Appointed by former City Manager Harold W. Baker to the Zoning Advisory Board in 1934, Mr. Dowling served three years.

He was a native of Livonia where he was one of a family of six sisters and five brothers. He founded the stamping company here about 35 years ago.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, Brook-Lea Club, Rochester Club, Chamber of Commerce and the Standard Bowling Club.

He leaves his wife, Elizabeth S. Dowling; a son, Martin J. Dowling Jr.; three daughters, Mary E., Margaret A. and Katherine M. Dowling; six sisters, Mrs. Mary Smith and Mrs. David O'Connell of Livonia and Gertrude, Sarah, Ann and Elizabeth Dowling.

Death of Martin J. Dowling removes a citizen who has been prominent in important business activity and when called upon has assumed capably some public duties. The company which he founded and headed is an important factor in the city's industrial life, and his services on the city zoning board, and in civic and fraternal circles contributed much to the city's interests in many fields.

In death of Martin J. Dowling at 64, Rochester loses one of its popular and enterprising business and civic leaders. Founder of the Atlantic Stamping Company and its active head, Mr. Dowling did not confine his interests to business. He was a member of the Rochester Ordnance District and held active membership in many social and civic organizations. The community will miss him in many ways.

FUNERAL RITES FOR C. B. DOWN SET SATURDAY

Former Brighton Principal Dies Suddenly

Funeral services for Charles B. Down, 83, former principal of Brighton elementary school, will be conducted Saturday at 2 p. m. at the home, 344 Cottage Street. Burial will be in Brighton Cemetery.

Mr. Down died suddenly yesterday (Apr. 21, 1937) at his home. Born in Lakeside in 1854 he spent his boyhood in the Webster area. Educated in rural schools he served as teacher and later as principal in the Brighton School, Winton Road near East Avenue. The building now is used as a branch public library.

He left his profession to enter the grocery and market business and conducted a store in East Avenue, near Winton Road for several years.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Blanche M. Down, former teacher of Nathaniel Rochester School No. 3 in Tremont Street who now is a member of the special education department of the public schools; a son, Clinton A. Down of Buffalo, and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Hutchison.

Assisting in the services were the Rev. James O'Brien as deacon and the Rev. Andrew T. Dissett as sub-deacon. The Rev. Edward Hartman was master of ceremonies. In the sanctuary were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles F. Shay and the Revs. George Kettell, Gerald Brennan, John Brill, James O'Connell, Bernard Cleary and Harold Rogers.

The bearers were Arthur G. Barry, Edward Dentinger, Leighton Gridley, Edwin Stein, Thomas Brachan and Edward J. McGrath.

Delegations were present from the Knights of Columbus, Elks and Rochester Bar Association.

Customs Inspector
Funeral services for Robert E. Doyle, 47, U. S. Customs inspector, who died Sunday night, will be conducted at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow at his home, 136 Hawley St., and at 9 a. m. in Immaculate Conception Church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

R. E. Doyle, Customs Inspector, Dies

Robert E. Doyle, 47, of 136 Hawley, U. S. Customs inspector, died late last night in Genesee Hospital less than an hour after he was taken there from his home, where he had suffered a heart attack.

Mr. Doyle leaves his wife, Edna Askew Doyle; a daughter, Eileen; two sons, Richard and Jack T. Doyle; his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Doyle; three sisters, Mrs. Roy Perkins, Rose M. Doyle, and Mrs. Arthur J. Doyle, and two brothers, E. Frank and G. Frederick Doyle.

On Capitol Hill

No Mouse-like Sitting Back in Quiet for Monroe's East District Senator

Times-Union MAR 4 1937

(First of a series of articles from the Albany Bureau of The Times-Union telling what Monroe County legislators are doing at Albany)

THE Chair recognizes the Senator from the 45th.

Already on his feet, the gentleman whose 6 feet and 1 inch of youthful masculinity have caught the presiding officer's eye, bursts without visible embarrassment into his maiden senatorial speech. He is only 34.

Calmly taking issue with one of the Democratic war-horses, Emmett L. Doyle, who represents Monroe County's east-side district, thus makes it evident in this first week of the session that he proposes to make his presence felt at Albany as he previously had in Monroe County's Board of Supervisors.

All precedent to the contrary, Doyle indirectly serves notice he will make the voice of Doyle heard whenever he feels the situation calls for it.

No inhibitions are to serve in reducing him to the mouse-like quiet which has held speechless some of the older representatives for years on end. He's a Regular

Not that Doyle has or is likely to have any ambitions to break with his Democratic party.

He is, of course, for other Democratic "pro" to take a lead in presenting party measures and policies, not merely sit back, listen and vote "aye" or "nay" as party needs may dictate.

This means he will work for the Democratic minimum wage law. He already has voted for Social Security and the Child Labor Amendment.

He is and will remain a regular. But he aims "gram" bills, such as constitutional amendments making terms of assemblymen two years instead of one, and lengthening the governor's term to four years. He will be for Governor Lehman's budget "as is" and for the increase in the gas tax to 4 cents.

Approves Labor Legislation

Partly through his own desire and partly because Democratic and labor leaders appreciate his aggressiveness, he has been constituted the personal chaperon of a vast deal of labor legislation. His chief measure to date was the bill to prohibit written propaganda in pay envelopes. It has passed the Senate and languishes in Assembly committee.

In the field of local legislation, his chief effort to date has been City Court Judge Gitelman's weekend sentence bill. He has got this out of committee and through the Senate.

Bills sponsored by him which are chiefly under attack are one calling for compulsory installation of automatic sprinkler systems in public buildings and one to prohibit high school and college bands from performing outside scholastic circles.

Politics His Hobby

Doyle is with the law firm of Scully & O'Brien, which specializes in labor matters. He is married and has two small sons, the second born since the legislative session began. His hobby, he declares frankly, is politics, but he likes to read, chiefly historical fiction.

At Albany, he is respected, regarded as a promising politician.

NEW REFEREE

TO STUDY JOB

D. & C. SEP 3-1940

Emmett L. Doyle, former state senator, left last night for New York to familiarize himself with his new duties as compensation court referee.

He will enter a 60-day training course in the State Department of Labor's New York offices, as is customary with new appointees to the $4,000 a year post. After that period, Doyle will hold hearings in the Rochester offices of the state department and in other cities in this district.

He was named last week by Commissioner Frieda S. Miller to succeed John W. McCracken, who retired Aug. 1. The appointee, prominent in Democratic affairs of city and county, serves at the pleasure of the industrial commissioner. The post pays a maximum of $6,000 a year.

Doyle lives at 12 Dalkeith Rd. in the 18th Ward. He has been associated with the law firm of Scully & O'Brien.

John Doyle for Toastmaster

Times-Union AUG 23 1937

J. Edgar Hoover, Uncle Sam's chief G-man, was "after" John A. Doyle, Brighton police commissioner, today, and Mr. Doyle was willing.

In the morning's mail Doyle received Hoover's request that he be toastmaster at G-Men's "night," Oct. 21 at the banquet of the International Association of Identification at Willard Hotel, Washington.

The Brighton police head, who is director of the Doyle Detective Bureau here, accepted the invitation.

The identification convention, which draws ballistics and other police experts from all parts of the world, will take place from Sept. 29 to Oct. 2.

Retiring Area K. C. Officer To Be Honored at Dinner

State Heads to Attend Testimonial for John A. Doyle

Retiring after five terms as district deputy of the Knights of Columbus in this area, John A. Doyle will be honored at a testimonial dinner Wednesday evening, Oct. 27, at the Rochester Club.

Headed by District Deputy Howard L. Franklin of Newark, successor to Doyle, a group of K. of C. leaders from various parts of the state will come for the dinner.

Arrangements are in charge of Deputy Grand Knight Joseph P. Flynn of Rochester Council, as general chairman.

Harry B. Crowley, past district deputy, will be toastmaster.

Doyle served three terms under Past State Deputy Michael F. Walsh of Brooklyn and two terms prior to that under the late William F. Armstrong of Albany. For three terms, he was grand knight of Rochester Council and deputy grand knight for one term.

Co-operating in arranging for the testimonial is James M. Ryan, faithful navigator of Rochester Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, and also grand commander of Musa Caravan, Order of the Alhambra.

At the regular council meeting Thursday evening, the subject "Religion of Communism" will be discussed during the Catholic Activities session of the meeting. Chairman Philip H. Donnelly of the Catholic activities committee will preside.

K. of C. to Honor Retiring Leader

D. & C. OCT 27 1937

Church dignitaries and prominent leaders in the Knights of Columbus will honor John A. Doyle, retiring as district deputy of the Knights of Columbus at the testimonial dinner at 7 o'clock tonight in the Rochester Club.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. William M. Hart, administrator of the Catholic Diocese of Rochester, and the Rev. Gerald C. Lambert, diocesan director of Catholic Charities and chaplain of Rochester Council, K. of C., will head list of guests, to include district leaders from Albion, Newark, Geneva, Canandaigua, Auburn, Medina and Ithaca and their delegations.

Harry B. Crowley, past district deputy, will be toastmaster.

150 Knights Meet To Honor Doyle

D. & C. OCT 28 1937

John A. Doyle's leadership in the Knights of Columbus was extolled last night in the Rochester Club at a testimonial dinner. One hundred and fifty Knights from Rochester, Newark, Albion, Geneva, Auburn, Medina and Ithaca joined in tribute to Doyle, retiring as district deputy after five years.

Grand Knight Leo F. Rombaut presented the guest with a hand-painted plaque and inscribed with his service record. A fishing outfit with tackle and pole was presented by Toastmaster Harry B. Crowley.

Tribute to Doyle as "the true example of what every knight should be" was paid by Msgr. William M. Hart, administrator of the Catholic diocese of Rochester, and the Rev. Gerald C. Lambert, diocesan director of Catholic Charities and director of Columbus Civic Center.

Doyle Agency
20 Years old

Sleuths of the Doyle Detective Bureau did some detective work in their own offices today when they discovered it was the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the service by John A. Doyle.

It was on St. Patrick's Day, 1919, that Doyle opened his office in this city, with one employe. Ill for some months, Doyle was absent from work on his agency's anniversary for the first time today.

Now the bureau has fifty-two employes and covers every type of detective service.

When Doyle started his office, he was considered a pioneer in the business for this vicinity. Previously, he had served twelve years with the Rochester Police Department.

His two sons, Arlie T. and K. V. Doyle have joined him in the business and the service has distinguished itself especially in developing store protection, checking shop-lifting and discouraging dishonesty among store employes.

Career Ended

JOHN A. DOYLE
The career of Mr. Doyle, who rose from policeman to national fame as a private detective, is ended. In ill health for several months, he died last night at the age of 55.

Funeral
Saturday

Handsome, white-haired John A. Doyle, with his hearty wit, warm heart and vital personality is dead, and Rochesterians in all walks of life mourned today.

Death came to the former policeman, who rose to national fame as head of a private detective agency, last night in his home, 260 Pelham Rd., at the age of 55. He had been in ill health since last December.

Persons of prominence in the city and nation will join in rites Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at Blessed Sacrament Church. Honorary bearers will include J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Identification and Mr. Doyle's close personal friend; Rep. Joseph J. O'Brien, Sheriff Al Skinner, Police Chief Henry T. Copenhagen, Warden Joseph Brophy of Auburn Prison; Sol Heumann, Supervisor A. Cooper of Brighton; Police Chief Howard Travis of Hornell; Harry Rosenberg, Monroe County legal adviser; Ernest C. Scobell, C. W. Fields, M. J. Dowling, Albert J. Moss, Public Safety Commissioner Thomas C. Woods, Chief of Detectives Dugan Callinan of Niagara Falls, Capt. of Detectives Edward Collins, John A. Boylan, Carl S. Hallauer, Frank J. Smith; Joseph Flynn, grand knight of Rochester Council, Knights of Columbus; Harry Somerville of Washington, Detective Archie Sharp, Patrick Dwyer, Edward Burke and Harry B. Crowley.

Knights to Attend Rites

A delegation of past grand knights, of Rochester Council, K. of C., will attend the services: Leo F. Rombaut, Walter B. O'Neill, James E. Cuff, Daniel F. Fitzgerald, John J. McInerney, William J. Carey, George T. Boucher, and William P. Shafer.

Chief Copenhagen as president of the Police Benevolent Association today named Inspector William McLaughlin, Detective Capt. Edward Collins, Lieut. William Winfield, and Patrolman Arthur Doyle to represent the police department at the rites.

A devout Catholic, a devoted father to his eight children, and a man of great personal charm, Mr. Doyle was one of the best known and loved members of the community for many years. His career was a classic in the American tradition of the boy who raised himself by his bootstraps to a position of importance in the city and in his chosen field.

Attains Fame

As head of the Doyle Detective Bureau, which he opened in 1919, he attained a place of importance in national and international police activities. His investigation of many famous cases carried him to all parts of this country and to Europe.

Members of his staff guarded the homes of Rochester's wealthy, as well as many department stores and factories.

Although he studied his profession intensively and constantly, he found time to take an outstanding part in civic, church, club and social activities, with a seemingly inexhaustible vitality and enthusiasm.

Intelligent and shrewd, he developed his abilities as a public speaker to the point where he was in great demand here and elsewhere. His favorite lecture topic was "Crime Does Not Pay."

He was police commissioner of Brighton at the time of his death. He was sworn in at his home for his fourth term last January, when he was apparently recovering from a cerebral hemorrhage he suffered Dec. 21, 1938, on his return from Washington where he introduced Representative O'Brien to his friend, the famous FBI chief, J. Edgar Hoover.

Although the police commissioner's job was considered more of an honorary position at a nominal salary, he made it a full-fledged task to reorganize and modernize the town police department.

Condolences Pour In

Messages of condolence poured into his home today from persons of all creeds and types. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence Doyle; four sons, Arlington T. and Kenneth V. Doyle, who were associated with him in the detective bureau; John G. Doyle, an assistant county attorney, and Robert Doyle; four daughters, Mrs. Benedict L. Miller, Mrs. Cavill Waldron, Miss Rosemary and Miss Marion Doyle; his mother, Mrs. Emma Doyle; two sisters, Mrs. Paul Berger and Miss Anna M. Doyle, and 11 grandchildren.

In addition to his amazingly varied professional, civic and religious activities, Mr. Doyle wrote a series of true detective stories which were dramatized and broadcast over WHAM; wrote articles on crime detection, lectured before many organizations and universities on various phases of crime and his experience in the underworld, and included poetry among his hobbies.

He was born in Canandigua Jan. 22, 1884, and came to Rochester when 19. He worked as driver of a delivery truck and as a meat cutter at the Burkhalter Market in Front Street for a few years, and then took the police examination. On July 15, 1908, he was appointed a patrolman and later was assigned to plainclothes duty. In 1911 he was appointed a detective. He resigned from the city police force in March, 1919, to form his own agency. A branch office was opened in Elmira in 1937.

He attended the inauguration of President Roosevelt in 1933, serving as personal bodyguard to former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

He was a director of the International Association for Identification, a former vicepresident of the International Secret Service Association, a member of a committee of the International Association of Chiefs of Police investigating Communist activities in the United States, and of the law committee of the New York State Police Chiefs' Association and the World Association of Detectives.

He was a prominent figure at every important Catholic function, and participated in the consecration and installation of every bishop since Archbishop Thomas F. Hickey retired as Bishop of Rochester.

He was past grand knight of Rochester Council, K. of C., a member of the Rochester Club, Oak Hill Country Club and Locust Club, and a communicant of Blessed Sacrament Church.

Death Takes John A. Doyle, Famed as Detective, at 55

B. & C. OCT 4 1939
Brighton Police Head,
Civic and Religious Leader Passes

John A. Doyle, the fast-thinking, quick-eyed policeman who used a Rochester precinct beat as a spring board to national prominence as a detective, died last night (Oct. 3, 1939) in his Brighton home.

He succumbed after more than nine months' fight against the effects of a cerebral hemorrhage that he suffered Dec. 21, 1938. He was 55 years old.

His death at 5:30 p. m. in the quiet of his 260 Pelham Rd. home, surrounded by his family, closed one of the most famous police careers in Rochester annals. It was a career that carried him to virtually every part of the nation and to Europe, and, more than that, carried his reputation into national and international police headquarters and into the hangouts of the underworld.

Reorganized Department

Police Commissioner of Brighton, an "honorary" job that he turned into a day-and-night task to reorganize and revitalize the town department, and head of the Doyle Detective Bureau, an agency he opened in 1919 after he closed an 11-year-service with the Rochester Police Department, Doyle had another side equally well known to Rochesterians — that of a civic-spirited, devout citizen.

For many years he was in the front rank at every important civic function. His acquaintances included men and women who made yesterday's and are making today's headlines in public life, business, literature, the sciences, and criminology.

A leading member of the Knights of Columbus, Mr. Doyle was a prominent figure at every important Catholic function. He participated in the consecration and installation of every bishop since Archbishop Thomas F. Hickey retired as Bishop of Rochester.

His full face, snow-white hair and erect physique added to his prominence at public functions. His ability as a speaker added to the influence he created.

JOHN A. DOYLE
Condolences Received

As word of his death spread last night, scores of messages of sympathy and sorrow reached the Doyle home from Rochesterians and others of all walks of life.

Mr. Doyle was stricken last December on his return from Washington, D. C., where he introduced Representative Joseph J. O'Brien to his close personal friend, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He was taken to Strong Memorial Hospital the following day. He returned home in January and during last summer showed signs of recovery. After Labor Day he failed again.

For three terms grand knight of the Rochester Council, Knights of Columbus, and also a former commander of Musa Caravan, Order of the Alhambra, Doyle had the honor of serving as K. of C. state district deputy for three years.

Interviewed on Radio

Internationally acclaimed for his police work, in which he joined a kindly nature with the ability to be at times a "tough copper," Doyle also gained a reputation as a witty raconteur, and in 1937 he was selected as "a self-made man who brought a large and happy family successfully through the mill" to be interviewed at his home over a nationwide radio network in the "Our Neighbors" program.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Florence Doyle, he leaves four sons, four daughters and 11 grandchildren.

Associated with him in the Doyle agency were his two eldest sons, Arlington T. Doyle, vicepresident, and Kenneth V. Doyle, secretary-treasurer. The other children were John G. Doyle, an assistant county attorney; Robert, Rosemary and Marion Doyle, Mrs. Marjorie Miller and Mrs. Florence R. Waldron.

Worked in Market

Born in Canandaigua Jan. 22, 1884, Doyle came to Rochester at the age of 19, and for a few years until he took the police examination worked for the Burkhalter Market in Front Street as driver of a delivery truck and as a meat cutter.

He was appointed a patrolman July 15, 1908, and after a year at the Franklin Street Station was assigned to plainclothes duty. In 1911 he was appointed a detective under the late Capt. William H. Whaley.

His first partner in the bureau was Anthony A. Andrews, retired, detective-captain.

"He was a wonderful worker, always plugging and very thorough," Andrews said of him.

A highlight of his police work was a trip to Paris, where he aided former Sheriff Abert H. Baker and the late Detective-Capt. John P. McDonald in arresting an alleged $185,000 swindler, who eventually was acquitted after three trials.

Caught Many Shoplifters

He resigned from the city police department in March, 1919, to form the Doyle Detective Bureau, with headquarters in the Commerce Building. In February, 1937, the agency opened a branch office in Elmira.

Credited with detecting more than 15,000 shoplifters, the bureau also has an armored car service and is one of the largest organizations of its kind in this section. Doyle was associated with investigation of many major crimes and civil matters throughout the country, and lectured frequently on "Crime Does Not Pay." He wrote a number of true detective stories and dramatized on the air some of his experiences. He was noted for his ability to recognize criminals from photographs.

During the inauguration of President Roosevelt in 1933 he served as a personal bodyguard to former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, a personal friend.

Active in Police Organizations

In January, 1936, he became Brighton police commissioner without salary, in addition to continuing the direction of his private agency. He accepted re-appointment at a nominal salary, and last January was sworn into office for the third time while in his bed at home.

He was a director of the International Association for Identification, a former third vicepresident of the International Secret Service Association, served as a member of a committee of the International Association of Chiefs of Police investigating communistic activities in the United States, as a member of the law and legislative committee of the New York State Police Chiefs' Association, and the World Association of Detectives.

A Republican, he was boomed for sheriff in 1937, and on election of Sheriff Albert W. Skinner, actively aided that official in organizing a county police setup.

Eulogy Applied

Besides his activities in the Knights of Columbus, he was a member of the Rochester Club, Oak Hill Country Club and Locust Club. He was a member of Blessed Sacrament Church.

In 1936, Doyle, whose hobbies included verse, penned a poetic eulogy to the late Captain McDonald, entitled "Good Old Jack," which his friends yesterday cited as also a fitting tribute to the character of its author, and which included this typical stanza:

"He gave a whole lifetime
For the protection of others;
Brought joy, peace and happiness
To many fathers and mothers."

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. in Blessed Sacrament Church. Interment will be in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Bearers Named For Doyle Funeral

Active bearers were named today for the funeral of John A. Doyle, head of the private detective agency bearing his name, to be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at Blessed Sacrament Church. Mr. Doyle died Wednesday after a long illness. He was 55.

They are Carl S. Hallauer, Public Safety Commissioner Thomas C. Woods, Joseph P. Flynn, grand knight of Rochester Council, Knights of Columbus; Harry B. Crowley, Patrick A. Dwyer and Detective Capt. Edward Collins.

John A. Doyle B. & C. OCT 5 1939
Rochester and its suburban area loses a vital figure in the death at 55 of John A. Doyle. Policeman, detective on the city force, he became a leader in efforts to improve policing in the suburban area. As police commissioner of Brighton, an honorary appointment, he worked indefatigably to bring the force up to the standards demanded by the urban character of the town.

Policing was his profession; in public service and in his private agency he brought to it the interest and enthusiasm which makes for competence and efficiency.

But of course John Doyle was much more than an efficient policeman and leader in promoting better police methods. He was a figure in the religious, civic and fraternal life of the city who commanded attention for his engaging personality and for his devotion to highest ideals.

Eminent in the lay service of the Catholic church, a figure of force and usefulness in civic enterprises and gatherings, he made distinguished contributions to the city's life and his memory long will be honored.
