Just in Passing

Distinguished in three fields is Frank W. Lovejoy, president of Eastman Kodak Company, and his achievements in any one of them would warrant his selection by the Rochester Museum as its civic medalist for 1941. Mr. Lovejoy is a chemist, an engineer and a business executive. Fourth Rochesterian to receive the award, he finds himself in the distinguished company of Dr. Herman LeRoy Fairchild, James Gleason and Edward G. Miner.

Times-Union NOV 10 1937 Ancestor and Descendant

His name was Elijah Parish Lovejoy. This week, on the centenary of his martyrdom for the freedom of the press and of humanity, three of his descendants joined former President Hoover at Lovejoy's alma mater, Colby College, and there received honorary degrees.

Among them was a man whom Rochester is proud to hail as one of her leading citizens—the president of the Eastman Kodak Company.

As Rochesterians we rejoice in the honor paid to Frank W. Lovejoy. And as a newspaper we bow in tribute to the memory of his illustrious ancestor.

2 Here Named

D. & C. On Trade Body

Appointment of two Rochesterians on a committee seeking expansion of international trade, lowering of trade barriers and formulating constructive policies bearing on international business transactions in 48 countries, was announced yesterday in Washington. Named to the American Committee of the International Chamber of Commerce by Elliot Wadsworth, Boston, committee chairman, are Frank W. Lovejoy, president of Eastman Kodak Company and Edward G. Miner, chairman of the board of the Pfau & Co. Company.

Lovejoy Explains Loss of Bonds To Grand Jury

Kodak President Frank W. Lovejoy yesterday appeared before the grand jury at the Courthouse as one of 10 witnesses to tell of the disappearance of several negotiable bonds from a desk in his Henrietta summer home. Four men, arrested last month in the case, are free in bail pending outcome of the grand jury probe.

One of them is Harold S. Clark, 46, of 154 Merchants Rd., former security broker accused of criminally receiving one $1,000 bond and second degree forgery in connection with sale of that bond, allegedly stolen last July 14. Clark recently was enjoined from further stock dealings.

Lovejoy's former butler, Angress Carter, 46, of 220 Hayward Ave., is charged with first degree grand larceny in allegedly stealing four $1,000 bonds; Walter Brown, 40, of 26 Leopold St., elevator operator, is accused of second degree forgery and criminally receiving four bonds, and Robert L. Wells, 37, of 351 Clarissa St., apartment house superintendent, is charged with criminally receiving three bonds, according to Assistant District Attorney Clarence J. Henry.

Lynn Will Bars Monument, Limits Fund for Funeral

Self-effacing by nature, the late William F. Lynn, former county judge, displayed his distaste for ostentation when he made his will in 1930.

In the document, awaiting probate yesterday in Surrogate's Court, Judge Lynn issued this order and injunction:

"I limit the expenditure from my estate for my funeral to the sum of $300, and I forbid the expenditure of anything for a so-called monument."

Judge Lynn, member of the bar for 45 years, died last July 30, leaving an estate of "more than $20,000" in realty and personal property.

He left his property in trust for life use of the widow, Mrs. Josephine C. Lynn, 42 Trafalgar St., and a daughter, Mrs. Jane L. Sutter, Cranford, N. J. They will share the income and, if necessary for their maintenance, may invade the principal. On their deaths, the remainder will pass to whom the daughter wills it or, if she makes no will, to her descendants. Attorney Smith O'Brien, a nephew, was designated executor and trustee.

Cited Hero Gives Credit to 'Other Fellow'

A 25-year-old Rochesterian who risked his life to save a friend from drowning last year met national acclaim today with the simple statement: "The other fellow really did the rescue."

Joseph Lo Curto, I Parker Pl., is one of 26 heroes who will receive citations and bronze medals for deeds of valor from the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission.

The slender, good looking assistant buyer in a North Street wholesale grocery was New York born and raised. He moved to Rochester 13 months ago, shortly after the August day when he and John C. Di Lorenzo, 25, with whom he went to college at St. Johns in Brooklyn, went fishing in Gerritson Inlet of Jamaica Bay.

Their boat stuck on a sandbar, was overturned by the incoming tide.

"I was clinging to the side when I saw John floundering in deep water about 15 or 20 yards away," Lo Curto recalls. "I swam to him—that's just about as far as I could swim—but he grabbed me and we both went under, despite my attempts to hit him and get loose."

"I couldn't make it back, but Lawrence Herrera jumped from a passing speedboat and brought us both in."

Herrera, 39-year-old typewriter mechanic of Brooklyn, also will receive the medal and citation.

LOYSEN LISTED FOR $10,000 JOB AS STATE AIDE

D. & C. OCT 11 1938
Ex-Rochester Man
Named to Head
Insurance Unit

Milton O. Loysen, onetime Rochester insurance adjuster and St. Lawrence University track star, last night poised for the biggest broad jump of his career—from a bureau superintendency in the State Department of Insurance to director of the Division of Unemployment Insurance.

Dispatches from Albany last night said the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram T. Loysen, 159 Crawford St., has been asked by Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller to accept the $10,000 a year job vacated when Paul Sifton moved to Washington to become assistant federal wage-hour administrator.

Loysen's decision had not been given last night but it was expected he would accept.

The director-to-be was born in Rochester 36 years ago, attended School 33 and East High School. In St. Lawrence University, where he was graduated in 1933, he made a name as a broad jumper.

Returning to Rochester after graduation, he was employed for a short time by Eastman Kodak Company. Later he was an adjuster for Aetna Insurance Company.

He left Rochester six years ago, when George S. VanSchalck, of Rochester, then superintendent of insurance, took him into that department. His rise there was rapid and today he is head of the liquidation division in New York.

Loysen married the former Hilda Carlson of Worcester, Mass., one-time an instructor at the University of Rochester. They have four children and reside in Manhasset, L. I.

Although Loysen was listed in press reports as living in Rochester, Democratic leaders here said they did not know him and his appointment, if he gets it, will not be considered a Monroe County job.

ROCHESTERIAN

GETS N. Y. JOB

D. & C. NOV 28 1938

Appointment of Milton C. Loysen, former Rochesterian, as executive director of the division of placement and unemployment insurance of the State Labor Department was announced from New York last night by Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller.

Loysen, 36, is a graduate of Rochester schools and of St. Lawrence University at Canton, N. Y. In school, he was an athlete, excellent in track events. He has been special deputy superintendent of insurance since 1936, and in his new position will fill a vacancy occasioned by appointment in September of Paul Sifton as deputy administrator of the new federal wages and hours law.

"Mr. Loysen has a broad background of insurance work," said Miss Miller, "accumulated over a period of more than 10 years, and including both private and state official operations."

In 1931 Loysen first entered state employ when George S. Van Schaick of this city, then state superintendent of insurance, appointed him an executive assistant in the State Insurance Department at Albany. Prior to that he was with the Eastman Kodak Company as an assistant in the personnel administration division.

In 1927 he took a position as an inspector for the Retail Credit Company, making reports for insurers, and the following year he joined the Aetna affiliated companies in the Rochester office, handling casualty, surety, life and miscellaneous claims.

Loysen, who was graduated from St. Lawrence in 1923, left Aetna in 1931 to accept Van Schaick's offer of a position in the state department. He was transferred to the New York City office in November, 1931, and now makes his home in that city.

In New York, Loysen became assistant special deputy superintendent in charge of the liquidation bureau. During the next three years he had charge of the liquidation of about 20 new companies and about 70 old and inactive proceedings then pending.

Loysen will take over his new post at once, Miss Miller said.

HAVE YOU MET

Times-Union SEP 21 1938
KEN LOYSEN

Ken Loysen's biggest thrill in radio was something that one usually reads about but never actually encounters.

One evening Ken was at home lounging around in comfortable "take-it-easy" clothes. It was cold out and he looked forward to a comfortable evening at home. Suddenly the telephone rang. It was WHAM calling. The featured vocalist on a program WHAM was to feed to the Blue Network, coast to coast, had suddenly been taken ill. Could Ken hurry down? Sure. Arriving at the station he found members of a forty-five piece symphony orchestra taking time out before program time. As luck would have it the selection scheduled for the soloist of the evening was "I Am Fate" a number that is considered very difficult and requires eight minutes to sing. Ken had only seen it once before and then for just a few minutes. With the studio clock ticking away the few remaining moments before "air time" Ken and the conductor hurriedly ran over the song. Quiet . . . On the air . . . Music . . . Soloist time . . . Orchestra introduction . . . Song . . . the final note . . . Wonderful. As often happens a bad rehearsal made for a good opening and Ken's difficult selection had been sung without a single mistake.

Ken Loysen has been associated with radio since 1922. He encountered the demon "mike" on a school program way back in the era of crystal sets and peanut tube receivers. After his debut as a baritone soloist, over station WHQ, Ken faded from the radio picture although he continued his vocal training. Five years later he turned up in the Atwater-Kent Auditions. Hard work for a hobby paid big dividends and Ken, in a glorious burst of high "f," well controlled technique and interpretation, shattered all competition and won the Rochester award.

Soon after the Atwater-Kent Auditions, Ken became a professional soloist. His first "big" chance was the WHAM "On Wings of Song" program. In 1931 he joined the staff of WHAM and started out as a staff announcer, vocalist and music librarian.

In the seven years that Loysen has been with Rochester's fifty thousand watt station, he has become well known as an announcer as well as a baritone. His cheery style and friendly manner are recognized far and wide. To mention only a few of the programs that Ken has sung on is a hard job. From the many perhaps these four are best known: Wings of Song, Ivanhoe Program, Down Melody Lane and Kroll's Style Revue.

His present job is supervising the Traffic Department which keeps WHAM's broadcasting schedule corrected, up to date and planned months in the future. When time permits Ken's hobbies are fishing, hunting, golf, tennis, and fancy ties.

Career at End

EUGENE M. LOWENTHAL

Eugene M. Lowenthal

A typically Rochester civic figure has passed in the death of Eugene M. Lowenthal.

Mr. Lowenthal was successful in business; that is the foundation on which much of Rochester's civic and cultural advance rests. He had scientific training for his business career, but his mind very early grasped a broad view of a business man's civic responsibilities.

To list a few of his civic activities is to sketch the breadth of his interests and his value to the community: Director of the Baden Street Settlement, one of Rochester's oldest and most valuable social service enterprises; director of the Highland Hospital and of the Monroe County Savings Bank; director of the Temple Berith Kodesh; member of the Rochester Club and the Rochester Ad Club.

He made real contributions to the community.

TIMES-UNION AUG 22 1938

Through the death of Eugene M. Lowenthal, Rochester loses a resident who was active and forceful both in industrial and civic affairs.

Mr. Lowenthal, as a young man, prepared himself by scientific study and training to carry on and expand the knitting business which his father had founded. He thus laid a firm groundwork for an industrial career.

Civic responsibilities also were accepted by Mr. Lowenthal and given the same careful attention as the demands of his business.

He was a director of the Baden Street Settlement, engaged in social service; a director of the Monroe County Savings Bank and of the Highland Hospital; director of Temple Berith Kodesh; former president and one of the founders of the Irondequoit Country Club.

Reserved in manner, kindly and capable, Eugene M. Lowenthal contributed much to the community.

Half-Minute Interview

QUESTION: Would you favor shortening high school by half a year so that boys in the 18-year-old draft can get at least a taste of college before entering the armed forces?

INTERVIEWED: Herbert P. Lansdale Jr., YMCA general secretary. Said Lansdale:

If education authorities in the secondary schools and colleges can work out such a plan to their mutual satisfaction, I believe it would be highly worth while. Based on observation of youth of the last war, of which I was one, the ratio of service men who returned to college was in direct proportion to the length of time they had spent in college before they entered the armed forces.

RESOLUTIONS
TIMES-UNION AUG 23 1938

The following resolution was adopted at a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Monroe County Savings Bank held Tuesday, August 23rd:

Eugene M. Lowenthal

Eight years ago we were privileged to elect Eugene M. Lowenthal to the Board of Trustees of the Monroe County Savings Bank. Today we convene to express our sorrow at his passing.

Since his election to the Board he has proved by his ability, his personal charm, and his keen sense of obligation to the responsibilities of trusteeship, the wisdom of our choice. In the fulfillment of his duties as Trustee and as a member of the Executive Committee and many other special committees associated with the Board, he expended much of his time, his thoughts, and his energy, giving himself the more generously, perhaps, because of his deep personal interest in the institution and the people whom it serves. He regarded his stewardship as a trust, and as such he discharged it.

Because of all that he has contributed of unselfish and loyal service to the Bank, we, his associates, shall miss him greatly. But even more particularly shall we miss him because of his endearing personal qualities. His deeds of service to the Bank are written in its records, but the warmth of his friendship and the pleasure of association with him will be inscribed indelibly in our hearts and minds.

The many business, charitable and religious bodies with which he was affiliated will mark his passing with deep regret, but it is the members of his family who have suffered the irreparable loss. To Mrs. Lowenthal, especially, and to their children we express our sympathy, simply, perhaps, but none the less sincerely, because our sorrow must be encompassed in words. Adv.

To Death

Narrowly missing two passersby, Alexander Lyall, 60, for 27 years an employe of Weed & Co., 15 Exchange, plunged to his death at 10 a. m. today from the fourth floor of the store.

By his death, Lyall, manager of the store's house furnishings department in the basement and well known to many Rochester shoppers, left four children orphans, the youngest about 16.

Lyall's body, hurtling head down, missed a big awning and crashed to the sidewalk. He died instantly, his skull fractured.

Associates of Lyall at the store reported later he had appeared to be in a very nervous state the last five of six months. His wife died about three years ago.

Born in Dundee, Scotland, Lyall had worked at the Weed store in Buffalo three years before coming to Rochester. He lived at 1022 N. Goodman.

His only survivors in this country are the four children, Betty, Margaret, Alexander Jr. and Nancy. He also is survived by two brothers in Scotland.

Able, Public-spirited

Death of former County Judge William F. Lynn brings sadness to hosts of professional and personal friends, and on every tongue yesterday when his passing became known rose instant tributes to his ability and fine character.

Distinguished as a lawyer; keen, courageous, fair as a judge; he was known also for his civic spirit, for his work in civic movements, for his guiding judgment where community situations and projects were discussed.

His public service set a standard of integrity that levelled all group divisions; his private character met all the tests of family and neighborly relationships. Few Rochesterians have been so universally loved and respected.

The community loses much by his passing. D+C July 31, 1940

William F. Lynn

The responsibilities, rights and importance to the state of each individual citizen were always present in the mind of former County Judge William F. Lynn, whose distinguished career as a jurist and attorney has now closed.

Mature in experience at the Rochester bar when appointed county judge in March, 1932, by Governor Lehman, his work on the bench at once justified the expectations of those who knew and admired him. He was elected for a full six-year term in November of that year.

With judicial ability and knowledge of the law Judge Lynn combined sound appreciation of the social importance of effective, even-handed administration of justice.

During his service on the bench Judge Lynn introduced changes in the system of calling jurymen which saved time for members of the panels and also saved substantial sums in jury fees. This illustrated a practical turn of mind not too much bound by respect for merely customary methods having no real advantages.

An able lawyer, a true representative of the people on the bench, and a man of the highest character, death of William F. Lynn not only brings sorrow to his friends and associates but is a real loss to the community he so well served.

Wm. Lynn, Former Judge, Dies at 68

Death today ended the 45-year legal career of former County Judge William F. Lynn, one of Western New York's most prominent jurists and attorneys. Judge Lynn, who had been in failing health for some months, died at 2 a. m. at his home, 42 Trafalgar St. He was 68.

After practicing law in Rochester for more than 35 years, he was appointed county judge in March, 1932, by Governor Lehman to fill the vacancy left by the death of Judge Frederick L. Dutcher.

He was elected for a full six-year term in November of that year on the Democratic and Law Enforcement tickets. White-haired, ruddy complexioned, he was known as a benign, scholarly, fair-minded jurist. His shrewdness, judicial ability and knowledge of the law won him the high regard of the legal professional and litigants as well.

Career Ends

WILLIAM F. LYNN

A long illness ended in death today for Judge Lynn. An attorney for 45 years, he served as county judge from 1932 to 1938.

Born in Mendon

Born in Mendon Oct. 22, 1872, he attended rural schools and Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, from which he was graduated in 1892. He studied law with his brother, former United States Marshal John D. Lynn, and was admitted to the bar in 1895. The two brothers were law partners until Judge Lynn's elevation to the bench in 1932.

In 1929 his fellow lawyers elected him president of the Rochester Bar Association. He also was a member of the New York State and American Bar Associations, and of Immaculate Conception Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Josephine Cronin Lynn; a daughter, Mrs. Henry G. Sutter of Cranford, N. J.; two brothers, John D. and Thomas M. Lynn, both of Rochester, a sister, Emma M. Lynn, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 9:30 a. m. at the home and at 10 o'clock at Immaculate Conception Church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Reprimanded Jury

His ideal on the high place of the courts was illustrated when he took occasion to reprimand a County Court Jury which had objected to trial of a civil action as being too trivial to waste the court's and jurors' time.

He reminded the veniremen that the court is the people's court, and that the jury, judge and attaches are the people's servants. Any citizen, he said, may go into court without asking permission. The smallest matter of the smallest citizen is of the greatest concern to the government of the people, it was his conviction.

Lost in GOP Landslide

"Whenever we get to the point in this country in the administration of government where that is no so" he said, "and particularly in the administration of the courts this will cease to be the country it has been."

He was defeated for reelection in the Republican landslide of 1938 and resumed the private practice of law.

Lynn Death Recalls Famed Slaying Trial

Memories of one of the most sensational murder trials in Monroe County were rekindled today with the death of former County Judge William F. Lynn.

The case of Antonio Cumbo, accused of the racketeer murder of Domenico DiVincenzo, Central Park baker, slain in front of his store June 29, 1932, was one of the first criminal trials over which Judge Lynn presided. His conduct of the trial was cited by his fellow lawyers today as exemplifying his keenness and fairness.

Cumbo was tried four times before he was finally convicted of the slaying, setting a record for the county. Judge Lynn presided at all four trials, and sentenced him on June 19, 1933, to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison. The conviction and sentence were appealed, but upheld by the Court of Appeals. Subsequently Governor Lehman commuted the sentence to life imprisonment. Cumbo is now in Attica Prison.

Assistant District Attorney Anthony Miceli, who prosecuted the case, today said of Judge Lynn's conduct of the trials:

"Although he had had little previous experience with criminal cases, Judge Lynn showed a keen grasp of criminal law, and was always painstaking and courteous with all parties concerned in the case. He was a judge every minute in the highest sense."

The Cumbo trials led to two changes in murder trial procedure. As a result of the lengthy process and expense of drawing jurors for the four trials, Judge Lynn and Miceli inaugurated a system for calling only part of a panel of veniremen at a time, instead of summoning the entire panel of 225 to be held until a jury was picked. This was credited with a substantial saving in jurors' fees.

A change in the state criminal code evolved also from the Cumbo case. An amendment was introduced by District Attorney Daniel J. O'Mara at the instigation of Judge Lynn by which persons with conscientious scruples against the death penalty no longer are summoned for jury duty in capital cases.

"I am sincerely grieved to hear of the passing of Judge Lynn," O'Mara said. "I had occasion to be in very close association with him during his service as county judge in connection with the handling of criminal cases. He was able, sincere and conscientious in the performance of his judicial duties."

Charles Van Voorhis, president of the Rochester Bar Association, spoke for its members when he said:

"Judge Lynn has passed on. We deplore the loss of a splendid citizen, an able lawyer, and a courageous and wise jurist."

He went to East Rochester in 1902 and opened a coal business. Four years later he and W. F. Brainerd and Andrew and William Brown organized the manufacturing company. Mr. Lewis was active in the business until two weeks before his death.

He leaves his wife, Marian Lewis, and a brother, Dr. Frederick A. Lewis of Auburn.

Presided in Cumbo Trial

His first criminal trial was that of Antonio Cumbo, accused of the racketeer murder of Domenico Di Vincenzo, Central Park baker. "Although he had had little previous experience with criminal cases, Judge Lynn showed a keen grasp of criminal law and was always painstaking and courteous with all parties concerned in the case," Assistant District Attorney Anthony Miceli, who prosecuted the case, said yesterday. MINOR RITES HELD Held in Hollywood

Last rites for M. Paul Link, 54, former Rochesterian who died Sunday (Dec. 16, 1945) were held today in Hollywood, Calif. Formerly active in the paper box manufacturing business here, he was a member of Rochester Consistory and Damascus Temple of the Shrine. He left here about 10 years ago. He is survived by a sister, Lillian, of California.

Two changes in legal procedure followed the trials. A system of calling only part of the panel of veniremen at a time instead of summoning the whole 225 until a jury was picked resulted in several economies. Also an amendment was introduced and adopted whereby persons with conscientious scruples against the death penalty are no longer summoned for jury duty in capital death cases.

O'Mara Cites Qualities

District Attorney Daniel J. O'Mara yesterday praised Judge Lynn as "able, sincere and conscientious in the performance of his judicial duties. I am sincerely grieved to hear of his passing. I had occasion to be in very close association with him during his service as county judge."

Speaking for the Rochester Bar Association, Charles Van Voorhis, president, said "we deplore the loss of a splendid citizen, an able lawyer and a courageous and wise jurist."

In November, 1932, Judge Lynn was elected to the full six-year term as county judge in the Democratic landslide.

Always fair-minded and shrewd, he reprimanded a jury once for objecting to trial of a civil action as being too trivial.

He reminded them that the court was the people's court; that the jury, judge and attaches were the people's servants. Any citizen, he said, may go into court without asking permission; the smallest matter is of the greatest concern to the government of the people.

Defeated in 1938

Judge Lynn was defeated for reelection in 1938 when the Republicans regained control of the county. He then resumed his law practice.

He was born in Mendon in 1872, attending rural schools and Genesee Wesleyan Seminary. After graduation in 1892 he studied law with his brother, former U. S. Marshal John D. Lynn. He was admitted in 1895 to the bar. The brothers were law partners until 1932.

In 1929 he was elected president of the Rochester Bar Association and was a member of the New York State and American bar associations.

He leaves his wife; a daughter Mrs. Henry G. Sutter, Cranford N. J.; two brothers, John D. and Thomas M. Lynn, and a sister, Miss Emma M. Lynn, all of Rochester.

They Say There'll Be a Renaissance of Romance on the River

All the appurtenances of romantic evenings on the Genesee are being overhauled these spring days at canoe liveries. Above, Barton Blair puts a canoe under the scrubbing brush; the youngster bringing the armful of paddles out of winter storage is 11-year-old Floyd Wilcox, and below, William V. (Willie) Long, dean of rivermen, inspects one of the paddles he shapes himself.

Canoe Business Boom Nears, Says Veteran Liveryman

D. & C. MAY 6 1937

Increase in Use Noted Already, with Season Ahead

Watch for Cupid to pluck his bowstring and create a bumper crop of romances on the river this summer!

Or, to be factual, the business of canoeing—historic ideal setting for romance—is due for a boom season in the Genesee Valley Park region of the muddy but moonlit Genesee.

Cupid's barometer, reliable these 52 years, is wiry, kindly, white-haired William V. Long, dean of canoe livery proprietors. Up around his weatherbeaten livery where the canal crosses the river, they call him Willie with a mixture of affection and awe—the affection preponderant. The awe is because Willie shows signs of becoming ageless as the river that has been his bread and butter for more than half a century.

'Upwards of 75'

Willie was at home the other sunny afternoon. He was bouncing canoes around on his dock with amazing agility and appalling disregard for the canal almost underfoot.

"Mr. Long," said an onlooker with a mixture of diffidence and curiosity, "you don't look old enough to have been on the river 52 years—why, you must be upwards of 70."

"Humpf-f-f-f," snorted Willie, "I'm upwards of 75."

Willie Long can tell it's going to be a boom season—and that romance will surge proportionately—because 1936 was his best year in seven and last Sunday he rented 20 canoes with the 1937 season not yet officially opened.

Willie Long hasn't the slightest idea how he got in the canoe livery business. He just grew up with a love of boats.

Makes Own Paddles

As far back as he can remember, when he was a little tot crossing the Atlantic from England to make his home in America, he was carving full-rigged clipper ships out of 2 by 4's. He never stopped carving. For years, as an evening "chore," he used to manufacture one paddle a night after supper. He still makes all his own paddles.

He started a rowboat livery business on the river 52 years ago when canoes were only rumors that still hadn't materialized. Now his rowboats are few, but this grand old man of the Genesee can lay sound claim to the title of father of canoeing in this area.

About 35 years ago one or two privately owned canoes appeared on the river. Willie Long gazed at them speculatively, made up his mind, and took a daring plunge—he bought a few. They caught like wildfire.

Way back in the so-called Gay

Nineties, Willie Long went through his first depression—the bicycle depression. Everybody thought, talked and rode bicycles, and canoeing suffered. The automobile depression of recent years—with pleasure-seekers taking to the highways instead of the waterways—was his second major hurdle.

Sees Signs of Upturn

In each case, Willie applied his calm philosophy—he "waited them out."

They came back after the bicycle depression, and they are coming back now from the automobile depression. Willie says there is a definite exodus from the highways back to the waterways. Pretty fair proof of the consistency of his business is the fact that in peak years he had about 100 canoes, and now he has over 75.

Willie says he feels better and more like working this spring than he has in five years. Day before yesterday he went away for the day (driving his own car) and laid a keel in a cruiser. Try that one some time when you are "upwards of 75."

Dramatic Political Rise Puts 'Youngster' at GOP Helm; British Born Leader Wins Note as Humanitarian

Times-Union JUN 11 1938

First Ward Work Proves Path to Fame

Times-Union JUN 11 1938
By CHARLES E. WELCH

A FAIR-FACED, black-haired and well-groomed "boy" going on 37 will step into Tom Broderick's political shoes Monday night when Republican committeemen from all over the county elect him chairman of their committee on which he is now serving as secretary.

It will be a great day for the Scotch-English lad who put his native country behind him and came to this country and to Rochester just 14 years ago this month to make his home here and swear allegiance to the United States.

It will culminate a brief political career which saw him advance in the short space of five years from the uncertain and usually unappreciated position of a downtown ward leader to the topmost party position a political organization can give.

Youngest Man in Job

Arthur Lochte—his friends all call him "Art"—is the political climber who will gain the distinction of being the youngest man ever to hold the chairmanship of the Republican County Committee. His will be a difficult job, particularly in view of the good record established by Broderick, his immediate predecessor.

BUT Lochte can be depended upon, his friends say, to fill the bill with credit to himself and to the party. He has demonstrated his ability as a political leader, as a public official and as a factory manager, in all of which positions he has come in contact with all kinds of people and all classes of men. Particularly has he found opportunity to study humanity in many of its phases in the ward in which he chose to make his home, the First.

TING-A-LING

Well may John Lochte be tingling today with joy—for at his age of 36 he is the youngest man ever slated to take over the reigns of Republican county leader.

NEW TASK—MORE ACQUAINTANCES

His friends call him Art. But most of his friends are in the First Ward where he is supervisor. Now he must win friends all over the county. A successful leader needs them. An attractive personality—winning smile, good judgement, easy approach—should help him go far. He is well-groomed.

LIGHTS UP

Lochte has one hobby. He calls it "humanitarianism." He says he likes to help men who are "down and out." And in his ward, haven of "down-and-outers," there is opportunity for good deeds.

G. C. Lochner Rites Monday

Funeral services will be held Monday at 10:30 a. m. at 141 Scio and at 11 a. m. at Corpus Christi Church for George C. Lochner, 61, widely known in the automotive business here for many years.

Mr. Lochner, father of Robert W. Lochner, Irondequoit town attorney, died yesterday. Besides his son he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. William Parke Jr., and Doris Lochner, both of New York City; two brothers, Julius F. and Oscar Lochner; three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Aspenleiter, Mrs. Gerard Morel and Mrs. Carl Fuehrer, all of Rochester, and five grandchildren.

Michael Luciano Dies, Detective's Father

Michael Luciano, 72, of 7 Waite St., father of Detective James Luciano of the Rochester Police Department, died yesterday (Jan. 16, 1942). He came to Rochester from Italy when 12 years old.

Besides his son, James, he leaves his widow, Mrs. Christiana Luciano, seven other sons, Augustus, Angelo, Philip, John, William, Anthony and Thomas; three daughters, Mrs. Peter Macera, Mrs. Christopher Di Mora and Mrs. Anthony Pellegrino, and 10 grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at the home at 8:30 a. m. Monday and at 9 a. m. in Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulcher Cemetery.

George J. Leicht DTC Passes at 80

George J. Leicht, 80, manufacturing tailor for Stein-Bloch Company for 42 years, died yesterday in his home, 52 Hurstbourne Rd., Irondequoit. He was an uncle of Al Sigi, newscaster for The Times-Union.

Survivors include three sons, Dr. Frank N., Dr. Eugene F. and Leo M. Leicht, Rochester; three daughters, Mrs. William Fingerhuth, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Joseph G. Klee and Miss Elizabeth Leicht, Rochester; two brothers, Joseph and John Leicht; four sisters, Mrs. Mary Kuhn, Mrs. Katherine Drenger, Miss Angeline Leicht and Mrs. Joseph Tschiderer; 14 grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday in the home and at 9 o'clock in St. Ambrose Church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulcher Cemetery.

Lawless Honored By Paper Group

David F. Lawless, 9 East Blvd., returned yesterday from New York City where he was elected chairman of the Eastern States Division of the National Paper Board Association at its meeting there Friday. He was elected a director of the national group at the annual meeting in the metropolis Nov. 25.

Lawless has long been associated with the paper industry. He is treasurer of Lawless Brothers Paper Mills Inc., East Rochester, founded by his father, the late David T. Lawless, in 1881.

Last Rites Arranged for C. E. Lewis

Final rites for Charles E. Lewis, 559 Merchants Rd., division superintendent of the subway line for Rochester Transit Corporation, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at 271 University. Burial will be in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Mr. Lewis, who died yesterday (June 1, 1942), was a native of Clifton Springs. He was a former telegrapher for the Lehigh Valley and New York Central railroads.

He was formerly superintendent of the old interurban lines of the New York State Railways operating from Rochester to Sodus Point and Geneva. He became associated with the subway system here in 1927.

He was formerly a Republican committeeman of the 18th Ward.

He leaves his wife, Ida P. Lewis; a daughter, Miss Mary Jane Lewis; a son, Robert C. Lewis, with the U. S. forces in Australia; a brother, Maj. George A. Lewis, Rochester, and a sister, Mrs. Richard Kinsey, Shortsville.

His Hobby 'Humanitarianism'

Lochte, who brushes his wavy black hair straight up and back from the forehead, has only one hobby. It's what he proudly refers to as "humanitarianism." Perhaps that's why he elected to "settle" in the First Ward, haven of many drifters and down-and-outers.

"I've always been interested in humanitarianism," the young leader said today. "It's my hobby, if you can call it that. I've found happiness and satisfaction in doing my bit to help the fellow who's on his uppers."

That can hardly be taken to mean that Lochte intends to provide political jobs for everyone who is up against it. Even politics has its limitations and in his new job as Republican chief in Monroe County Lochte will find it one of his responsibilities to take care of the most deserving of his party followers and strive for a record which will compare favorably with that of Broderick.

Came from Toronto

Born in Birkenhead, England, Apr. 14, 1902, of Scotch parentage, Lochte emigrated to Canada early in life and came to Roch-

Funeral Arranged For War Worker

Funeral services for Leary, 44, former attorney and recently employed in a Rochester war plant, will be conducted at 8:30 a. m. today at 207 Chestnut St., and at 9 o'clock in the Immaculate Conception Church. Burial will be in Bergen.

Mr. Leary died Tuesday (July 14, 1942) in Highland Hospital. Surviving are a sister, Mrs. John Schur, and an aunt and uncle.

ester June 28, 1924, entering this country and the Empire State at Niagara Falls. On his arrival here he assumed the position of production manager for the American Laundry Machinery Company, for which he qualified while a resident of Toronto. He made his home at Brick Church Institute in North Fitzhugh, living a bachelor's life until a half dozen years ago when he married Mrs. Helena Collins and moved to his present address at 124 Main West.

When former Sheriff William G. Stallknecht quit the Republican leadership of the First Ward in 1934 Tom Broderick, who had succeeded Harry J. Bareham as county leader, selected him to succeed Stallknecht and wrest the ward from Democratic control. The following year Lochte ran for supervisor and was re-elected last fall. Recognizing his ability, the Republican board this year elected him chairman of the County Building Commission.

Must Get Acquainted

Little known to the county electorate outside of his own ward and to the personnel of the Board of Supervisors, Lochte's first task will be to get acquainted.

Easily approachable, yet quiet and reserved, he possesses grim determination to succeed, exercises good judgment and has an attractive personality and a fine faculty of making friends. To these qualifications and his humanitarianism "hobby" he attributes his success.

Lochte Gives GOP Fifth Leadership in 25 Years

Advancement of Supervisor Arthur Lochte to the Republican county chairmanship will give to "rock-ribbed Monroe County" its fifth leader in a quarter of a century.

It will also bring into the party leadership the second supervisor ever to hold the job and will return to the city the chairmanship which has been held by one of the towns—Irondequoit—during the last four years.

George W. Aldridge, first of the county's leaders and the one who won recognition as one of the most prominent of state and national Republican chiefs, continued in power a long term, his death ending his political career early in the 1920's.

James L. Hotchkiss, who succeeded him after serving as "buffer" for Aldridge and while holding the office of county clerk, had a short reign, factional fights within the party resulting in his resignation about a decade ago.

Third was Harry J. Bareham, who quit the chairmanship in 1934 after the party suffered one of its worst political reverses which found the Democrats in control of the city and county governments in 1934.

In September of that year Thomas E. Broderick was elected by the county committee to succeed Bareham.

TAKES ALL KINDS OF PEOPLE

JUDGE JOHN D. LYNN

By Arch Merrill

SIXTY years ago a young law clerk began walking to his downtown office from a West Avenue lodging house.

Every work day now, residents of West Main Street may see that same slight but jaunty figure swinging along, with his inevitable cigar, bound for his office.

It is at least a mile from John D. Lynn's home in Lamberton Park to his desk in the Wilder Building, but every morning and night the grand old man of local Democracy, whose service as United States marshal during hectic World War days is a shining chapter in the city's history, keeps up the pedestrian practice of his youth.

And John D. Lynn was 81 years old Tuesday!

The years have made drastic changes in the thoroughfare he traverses that 60 years ago was virtually a country road, but through keen and kindly blue eyes he looks today with tolerance and almost boyish interest at the strange new, clashing, clanging machine-made world about him.

Last Sunday, following a custom of many years standing, old friends and neighbors gathered with members of his family to honor the patriarch of the clan of Lynn. The 81-year-old judge stood for five hours, erect and gracious, receiving his guests. At the end he said he wasn't in the least tired.

Born in East Bloomfield, John Lynn came to Rochester to read law when a youth. The country boy became one of the city's most influential citizens. County judge, U. S. attorney, war time marshal, president of the Rochester Bar, leader of his party—that is the roll of his public service.

He had hardly taken office as marshal, a job regarded previously as pretty much of a sinecure, when the United States entered the great war and the new marshal found himself buried under new and multitudinous duties. To him fell the task of enrolling 16,000 aliens, of guarding against enemy espionage and preserving friendly relations with the district's many German-American residents.

Even his political foes admitted he served with diplomacy and fairness to all in his difficult position.

Judge Lynn has attended every national convention of his party for half a century—except the 1936 gathering when illness prevented. It was one of the major disappointments of his life. He is an ardent Roosevelt man and has known the President since the days FDR was a state senator. At political conventions he was often mistaken for the late

Thomas J. Walsh whom he closely resembled and has many an amusing tale arising from being taken for Walsh, who was a personal friend. The late William Jennings Bryan stopped at the judge's home when the Great Commoner visited Rochester.

He does not believe the country is going to the bowwows. The veteran has seen too many other "crises" come and go.

Judge Lynn was always proud of his spacious lawn around his home and spent many hours trimming it and keeping it free from weeds. But a few years ago when a small boy was killed by an automobile near the Lynn house, he said: "It wouldn't have happened if the boys had been playing on my lawn instead of the street," so from that day on, children have been allowed to romp at will on Judge Lynn's lawn and childish feet have worn tracks across its once velvety expanse.

John D. Lynn is not spending his twilight in a chair dreaming of the past although he is an excellent raconteur and has many a story of the Rochester of bygone days. He is at his office every weekday. So if you bump into a white-haired little man with a drooping moustache, clutching a cigar that may or may not be lighted, dashing about the Court House with all the abandon of youth, it's likely to be Judge John D. Lynn, 81 years young.

THE THINGS MEN LIVE BY

By Edmund W. Peters

EDMUND F. LORENTZ can make his living in almost any language—and he does in 10 of them.

If he wished, he could give a one-man impersonation of a Slavic Tower of Babel, adding Germanic tongues to the confusion. The "gift of tongues" is his and it's a generous gift, one he finds indispensable in his duties as City Court interpreter.

Lorentz speaks Polish, Russian, Ukrainian, Czechoslovakian and German fluently. He also can converse in Macedonian, Swedish, Serbian and Norwegian. "But brokenly," he says modestly, letting his perfect English speak for itself.

For nine years now he has been serving as a link between the foreign-born haled into court for minor offenses and their judges, each ignorant of the other's language. Four out of five neighborhood differences never reach the courts because Lorentz goes into a linguistic huddle with the disputants and their lawyers and attains an amicable settlement.

The three bells that summon him from his second floor office in the City Court building to the courtroom three doors down to act as interpreter don't tinkle so often these days. Lorentz says the older among the foreign born who came here with the great tide of immigration don't get involved in legal difficulties now while youngsters of foreign descent learn English in the schools.

As deft with figures as he is skilled in foreign phraseology, Lorentz has found a new task to absorb 80 per cent of his time. Placed in charge of the court's statistical reports to the state in 1931, he straightened out books that had lain untouched for a year and installed a system of his own that Albany officials inspected and placed in statewide use.

"When it comes to interpreting, I've become a 'spare tire' now," he declares, with one of his frequent smiles.

From Poland where he was born in 1895 Lorentz came to Rochester by ways as varied and careers as diversified as the languages he mastered. At 17 he was in Russia, serving as a junior subpoena clerk in a branch of the Imperial Court.

With his brother, he came to Camden, N. J. in 1911. In succession, he was a grocery clerk, insurance salesman, bookkeeper, confectioner, real estate agent and owner of his own delicatessen. In between, he managed to go to night school, attend Temple University for a year—and teach primary English to newly-arrived foreigners!

He heard about the Civil Service examination for court interpreter. "I didn't have the faintest hope of getting the job," he confesses. He topped the list—with 100 per cent!

Of medium height, with 185 pounds packed on his chunky frame, Lorentz has a coal-black mustache contrasting sharply with his graying hair. He talks in a soft voice and his dark brown eyes gaze into the distance when he discusses the 100 to 200 letters addressed to the chief of police which he translates annually.

If they bear a Yugoslavian postmark he is almost willing to wager they are from abandoned wives or mothers. If from Germany, he is just as certain they will ask for news of missing relatives. Most pathetic of the Yugoslavian missives he received was from a woman with three children who said her husband had left her.

The four, she wrote, were subsisting on the roots of trees and the children were also being fed grass. She felt certain that her husband was in Rochester, earning plenty of money and that he ought to send her some to relieve her distress.

How Lorentz acquired his lingual ability might be illustrated by his mastery of Norwegian. He found it had a few basic English words. His interest grew and he couldn't be satisfied until he had learned it. He doesn't want to learn any more; it's hard enough to keep up to date with those he's learned already.

Russian and Polish, he thinks, are the best of the languages. "They are the clearest, richest and most flexible. I know of none which has so wide a range in superlatives as they have." For music, he'll take the Spanish and Russian classics, hundreds of records of which he owns.

To maintain fluency he resorts to various expedients. He is a contributor to a Polish daily circulating here and published in Buffalo. He writes for Ukrainian and Russian publications whose offices are in New York City. A Macedonian bootblack lends him books so that Lorentz won't forget that language.

Every Saturday morning Lorentz's office becomes a medley of the tongues he speaks. Anxious hordes of the foreign-born swoop down on him for advice, even asking his help in marital problems.

His most difficult job? It was a letter given him by the chief of police. Lorentz studied it in his office without avail, took it home and tackled it again after supper. He poured over it for hours and then decided it must have been written in some language unfamiliar to him.

As a last resort, he read it aloud. It was written in illegible and phonetic English!

TRIBUTE PAID TO LANSDALE
AT MEMORIAL
D.&C. JUL 20 1942
Friends Gather at
'Y' in Honor of Secretary

Friends and co-workers of the late Herbert P. Lansdale Sr. gathered in the Central YMCA yesterday for a memorial service.

'Y' workers, civic leaders and clergymen participated in the program paying tribute to the widespread work of the late Mr. Lansdale, who for 17 years was secretary of the Rochester YMCA and whose efforts resulted in the building of the new YMCA in Gibbs Street.

Following the invocation, given by the Rev. Hugh Chamberlin Burr, executive secretary of the Federation of Churches, and a hymn directed by Charles C. Ball, Gilbert J. C. McCurdy, vice-president and director of the Rochester YMCA, introduced several speakers who paid tribute to the late Mr. Lansdale.

Edwin Allen Stebbins, president of the Rochester 'Y' from 1910 to 1916, briefly outlined the local work of the man often referred to as "the father of Rochester's modern YMCA system," and who came to Rochester in 1912.

Harper Sibley, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and president of the Rochester 'Y' from 1920 to 1926 and from 1931 to 1939, told of Mr. Lansdale's national and international work which included service in the National War Work Council during World War I, as adviser to the National YMCA Committee of China, and as general secretary of the Egyptian YMCA.

Eugene Field Scott, formerly religious secretary to the 'Y' here and at present general secretary of the Brooklyn YMCA, paid tribute to the late secretary on behalf of the YMCA of the entire country.

Following a message from Rabbi Philip Bernstein of Temple B'rith Kodesh, read by McCurdy, the Rev. Justin Wroe Nixon, dean of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, spoke on behalf of the churches of Rochester, paying tribute to the late Mr. Lansdale for his great interest in community religious activities. The Rev. Mr. Nixon also delivered a prayer following his message.

The Rev. Mr. Burr closed the service with the benediction.

Late General Secretary Honored
By YMCA for 17 Years of Service

Tribute was paid the late Herbert P. Lansdale Sr., for 17 years general secretary of the Rochester YMCA, in the following resolution, adopted by the Board of Directors and Advisory Council of the YMCA, Gilbert J. C. McCurdy, YMCA president, announced yesterday:

"He wrote his name in bricks and mortar but, greater than this, he influenced the lives of men in the Kingdom of God.

"In brief time, he transformed an inadequate YMCA building into a far-reaching metropolitan system, and in so doing, he awakened latent leadership in the hearts of scores of men.

"Many assumed heavy agency responsibilities in the community, many more quickened their Christian purposes, because of the life and works of Herbert P. Lansdale.

"He was not interested in the mere erection of buildings and the planning of programs. He was interested in what these buildings and programs would do in the development of Christian youth. His greatest satisfaction came when someone made good in life's difficult battle, and he could honestly say: 'He was one of my boys.'

"Boundless energy and contagious enthusiasm marked Herbert P. Lansdale's 17 years as general secretary of the Rochester YMCA. He came to Rochester on May 15, 1912, and within a year, he had led the association in a successful campaign for new equipment. On Apr. 16, 1915, the cornerstone of the Gibbs Street building was laid. He guided the Rochester YMCA into a period of magnificent usefulness.

"For 17 years he served the 'Y' faithfully and effectively. He built on firm foundations for others to carry on.

"It is not the purpose of these resolutions to recount the career of Herbert P. Lansdale step by step. Rather it is our desire to record the passing of an earnest, unselfish man, who worked hard for his Father in Heaven and strengthened the confidence of a whole community in Christianity.

"The Board of Directors and Advisory Council of the Young Men's Christian Association of Rochester write July 11, 1942 on their records as the conclusion of a splendid earthly career for the glory of God."

HERBERT P. LANSDALE, SR.

Because of his broad knowledge of YMCA work as applied to big centers of population, his advice was widely sought. Early in 1926, at the request of the National YMCA Committee of China, Mr. Lansdale went to the Orient where for more than a month he offered practical counsel on conduct of Y work. Leaving China, he visited with Mrs. Lansdale many world Y projects in foreign countries including that at Salonika, Greece, headed by his son, Herbert P. Lansdale Jr., now general secretary of the Rochester YMCA.

In 1928 he went to Egypt to help train young Egyptian Y secretaries. During six months there he also acted as general secretary of the Egyptian YMCA. Throughout his YMCA career he had taken special interest in the training of young men for similar work. For several years he taught in the summer school at Silver Bay, as dean of the secretarial department. He also maintained close connections with the Springfield Training School.

Mr. Lansdale resigned from his Rochester post on Feb. 21, 1929, after 17 years' service. He continued as general secretary until May 1 of that year, and then served without remuneration for six months to complete several unfinished undertakings.

Mr. Lansdale continued his active interest in YMCA right up until he was stricken ill three years ago. During the previous few years, he and Mrs. Lansdale traveled considerably, spending several winters in California and Florida.

Besides the son named for him, survivors include his wife, Mrs. Lida Eppley Lansdale; a second son, Robert T. Lansdale, New York City, director of Research of the Welfare Community Service Society and a member of the Social School faculty at Columbia University; a niece, Miss Margaret Eppley, and two grandsons.

In accordance with Mr. Lansdale's wishes, a prayer service was held last night in the home with Dr. Justin Wroe Nixon officiating. Burial will be in Greenmount Cemetery, Baltimore, and a memorial service will be held at a later date.

DEATH TAKES
YM'S LEADER
AT AGE OF 73

D.&C. JUL 12 1942

H. P. Lansdale Was Active in World
Movement

Herbert P. Lansdale Sr., father of Rochester's modern YMCA system, died yesterday afternoon (July 11, 1942) at his home, 8 Nunda Blvd.

He was 73 and at the time of his retirement 13 years ago was one of the outstanding general secretaries in the worldwide YMCA movement.

Born in Baltimore, Md., Oct. 30, 1868, Mr. Lansdale was educated there and after nine years in business entered YMCA work in Baltimore. Before coming to Rochester in 1912, he served as general secretary of YMCAs in Elmira, Troy and Dayton, Ohio. In each of these places, Mr. Lansdale's work was responsible for great growth in "Y" development and for financial gains that made possible much more effective work.

Led Building Drive

To even greater degree he continued that record following his acceptance of the general secretaryship of the Rochester YMCA in 1912. The YMCA then was housed in the out-of-date, poorly-equipped building on the northeast corner of South Avenue and Court Street.

With characteristic energy, Mr. Lansdale proceeded to start a movement for a new building. When plans finally reached the fund raising stage he headed teams which, in the first financial campaign for a new building, raised $762,000 in nine days. With the new building under construction, Mr. Lansdale promptly followed with plans for the various branch buildings. First of these constructed was the Maplewood Branch, followed by the Arnett and Monroe branches.

Advice Widely Sought

During the World War, Mr. Lansdale was called from his Rochester post to the National War Work Council, and eventually was appointed secretary of the entire eastern department, with headquarters in New York City. On his return to Rochester he completed development of the Y branches.

HENRY LILLY, CIVIL WAR FIGURE, DIES

D. & C. NOV 8 1942

Noted Veteran, 101,
Held Symbol of Patriotism

Henry Lilly, symbol of patriotism from another war, died yesterday.

The man whose 100th birthday brought a city to its feet in respectful tribute a year ago last Feb. 23 answered his last "Taps" at 5 p. m. in Municipal Hospital, five days after he was taken there, downed at last by the infirmities of age.

The short, white - whiskered, square-built veteran of many battles of the Civil War, a past commander of the state G. A. R., was one of the Rochester area's three surviving heroes of the war between the states. He lived at 1402 Chili Ave. with his second wife, Mrs. Cynthia McDonald Haag Lilly.

Mr. Lilly had not been really well for two years, but, despite his more than 101 years, he was able to take occasional strolls with his wife, and continued to smoke his quota of five cigars daily, until last Monday, when his condition necessitated hospital care.

Funeral services will be held at 365 Chili Ave. at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday, and Requiem High Mass will be sung in St. Augustine's Church at 9 a. m. Burial will take place Wednesday 'n Kensico Cemetery at Valhalla, near Yonkers, where Mr. Lilly lived until he came to Rochester in 1928.

Besides his wife, Mr. Lilly is survived by two sons, Harry and Leo Lilly of New York City; two daughters, Mrs. Fred Jarvis of Pleasantville and Mrs. Frances Burtlett of Bronxville, and five stepchildren, Edward, Ernest and Jacob Hagg, Mrs. Alice Stillman and Mrs. James Kucyna, all of Rochester.

The passing of Mr. Lilly leaves James A. Hard, 31 Rosalind St., and Frank Bissel of Scottsville, both younger men, the last Civil War veterans in this area.

As a symbol of patriotism whose name was known almost throughout the country, Mr. Lilly was the guest of honor of the Abraham Lincoln Association for his 100th birthday Feb. 23, 1941, at a party in the Hotel Seneca at which city officials, leaders of patriotic, civic, fraternal and other organizations and friends honored him.

"Commander Lilly was inspired in us a greater love of country," said Arthur J. Leary, president of the Lincoln group, at the close of the celebration.

Born on a Pennsylvania farm outside of Altoona, Mr. Lilly enlisted in 1862 with two of his three brothers in the Union Army at Holidaysburg, Pa. A third brother who lived in the South joined the Confederate Army, but none of the brothers faced another in battle.

Shortly after enlistment Mr. Lilly was made company quartermaster-sergeant and served in that capacity until his honorable discharge in 1865.

He was in all battles of the Army of the Potomac—Gettysburg, Chancellorsville, Antietam and the Second Battle of Bull Run.

After the war, Mr. Lilly went to Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and worked as auctioneer in a shoe concern, where he remained for 33 years, later undertaking the management of a branch in his own name.

In 1927 he was elected junior vicecommander of the state G. A. R. and at the state encampment in Rochester a year later he became commander through the death of both senior officers.

He married Mrs. Haag shortly after coming to Rochester in 1928. In 1929 he retired from business, terminating 60 years activity as a shoe dealer.

He was a member of the Westchester County Veterans Association and many other organizations.

FORCE HONORS EMPLOYER, 80

Those Gay 90's may have been good old days but they were tough for the boys in the cleaning and dyeing industry of the city, Edward B. Leary, president of the cleaning firm bearing his name, recalled yesterday.

Surprised by employees of his plant on his 80th birthday, Leary recalled how it was nothing for employees of the plant to go out on Brown's Race in subzero weather and break holes in the ice to rinse out dyed garments.

"They may have been good old days, but I like working conditions better today and I guess you do, too," Leary said.

Leary was surrounded by employees of the plant at noon when then presented a birthday cake and a scroll bearing the name of every employee in the plant with their good wishes for many more years of activity. The presentation on behalf of the employees was made by Edna Schumacher, while Frank Lurz and George Hamilton, who have worked at the plant more than 30 years, stood at the president's side.

Veteran Honored by Workers

Edward B. Leary, cleaning firm president, is given scroll bearing the names of all his employees by Edna Schumacher, the occasion being the celebration of his 80th birthday.

Escaped Gestapo Prisoner Revels in Return Home

Rupert F. Lauer Vows to Stay in Native Rochester 'for Evermore'

AN ESCAPED prisoner of the German Gestapo breathed the free air of Rochester today for the first time in a decade and vowed he would "stay here for evermore."

He is Rupert F. Lauer, one-time Rochester architect. He has endured a "lifetime" of suffering and humiliation at foreign hands between his departure in 1931 and his return on the Swedish-American liner Drottningholm this week, along with other North and Latin American citizens from Europe.

Too happy at being home and free to indulge in bitter talk about the past, he tells his story simply. Here it is, in part:

Born here 52 years ago and educated at East High School and Mechanics Institute, he was working with a local building firm when his wife and mother went to Germany in 1930 to obtain his wife's inheritance there. He followed them in 1931. After legal controversies with other heirs, his wife died in 1936 and Lauer prepared to come home in 1938. But his mother fell ill and he was forced to remain. Shortly after her death early in 1940, his troubles increased.

Seized by Police

The Gestapo forbade his use of blueprints or plans in his work as a builder in Furth, near the Bohemian border. One night four Gestapo agents and the local police chief came to his home and took him away. After three months in solitary confinement at Regensburg, on the Danube, he was placed at work as a stevedore with French war prisoners. He believes the Gestapo suspected him of being an American spy.

He watched for an opportunity

to escape and, six months later, hopped a fast train and rode 600 miles to the German-Swiss border. He had prepared a makeshift lifebelt for swimming the Rhine but was able to elude guards on land and get into Basel, Switzerland, undetected.

Locked Up Again

The American consul sent him to the Swiss military police, who clapped him in jail again. That night, when the consul sent him a dinner, Lauer realized for the first time it was Thanksgiving Day, 1940. The Swiss military, according to Lauer, resented the fact he had been able to gain entrance to the country without permission. Although in frequent touch with American officials, he was forced to work in construction gangs at Basel, later at an alpine house farm at Lugano, in southern Switzerland. Arrangements were made, meanwhile, for his return to way of Lisbon aboard the Drottningholm.

OFFICIALS JOIN IN TRIBUTE TO WARD LEADER

Funeral Scheduled On Monday for Laudisi

Public officials and political leaders of all parties will join Monday to pay final tribute to Supervisor Pasquale (Patsy) Laudisi, 51, 16th Ward supervisor and Republican leader, who died yesterday (June 8, 1944).

Funeral services for Mr. Laudisi, who has been suffering from a heart condition for several years, will be conducted at 8:30 a. m. Monday at his home, 118 Ontario St., and at 9:30 o'clock in Mt. Carmel Church.

Mr. Laudisi, a member of the Santora, Leone and Laudisi men's clothing firm, was in the clothing business for 25 years. He was born in Italy.

Short, portly Mr. Laudisi developed into one of the best known political figures in Monroe County. He was probably the quietest member of the Board of Supervisors, never making a speech or doing much more, on the floor, than voting. But his influence was felt in the committee rooms, where he approached all county problems from a highly practical viewpoint.

Mr. Laudisi was elected a Republican supervisor of his home ward in 1931, but was defeated two years later. In 1935, through some 16th Ward political juggling, he wound up with the nominations of Republican, Democratic and American Labor parties. Republicans were somewhat put out by the coup and the impression was held that Mr. Laudisi would vote with the Democrats on the new board. Election Day, however, found the GOP in charge of county affairs, and Supervisor Laudisi was in the majority.

Subsequently he was named ward leader, or executive committeeman.

Mr. Laudisi was a veteran of World War I. He was a member of Doud Post, American Legion, the Citizens Club, Principe de Piedmonte, Knights of Columbus and Elks. The Board of Supervisors will hold a special memorial meeting Saturday at 11 a. m., and all

PLANS MAPPED FOR MEMORIAL TO CARL LADD

D. & G. DEC 9 1944 Area Men Named To Help Speed Project

Ithaca—Preliminary plans for a suitable memorial to the late Carl E. Ladd, dean of the New York State College of Agriculture, were adopted at a meeting in Ithaca by a group of agricultural leaders under sponsorship of the New York State Conference Board of Farm Organizations.

Frank M. Smith of Springfield Center, chairman of the Conference Board, reported yesterday that the board is keenly interested in developing a fitting memorial for Dean Ladd and has authorized the appointment of a large committee representative of the various agricultural and educational interests with which Dean Ladd was so closely associated for many years.

An executive committee was appointed at the Ithaca conference to perfect plans for the memorial and to implement procedure in attaining the goal. Frank W. Beneway of Ontario and Thomas E. LaMont of Albion were elected chairman and secretary-treasurer, respectively of the Carl E. Ladd Memorial Committee. Others appointed to serve on the executive committee include Harold M. Stanley of Skaneateles, E. H. Thomson of Springfield, Mass., L. B. Skeffington of Rochester, and A. W. Gibson, C. E. F. Guterman, E. R. Eastman of Ithaca, and Mrs. W. H. Potter of Truxton.

According to Beneway, preliminary plans include the creation of scholarships in the New York State College of Agriculture to be awarded to outstanding farm boys and girls, with leadership ability to assist them in their agricultural training and to make it possible for such boys and girls, short on funds, to avail themselves of the inspiration and advantages of higher education.
