WILLIAM BETZ, A. B.

Mr. William Betz was born in a small university town in Nassau, Germany, where he received his first schooling. When still a boy, he came to Rochester with his parents. He entered Wagner College, in this city, and was graduated at the age of fifteen. A year later he completed the classical course of the Rochester Free Academy. He was then admitted to the Sophomore class at the University of Rochester, and was graduated after three years, in 1898. He was elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and was awarded the Townsend prize scholarship.

In 1899, Mr. Betz began his work as a teacher of mathematics in the Rochester High School. In 1903, he was given charge of the department of mathematics in our school, which position he now holds. During the summers of 1902 and 1903, he traveled in Europe, giving particular attention to the methods of instruction used in German schools.

Mr. Betz is a member of several mathematical societies. He believes in the importance of his chosen subject, and expects for it an auspicious future.

To

WILLIAM BETZ, A. B.

In token of our esteem
and affection,

this volume is dedicated

PREFACE

WE, the Class of June, nineteen hundred and seven, in putting this SENIOR ANNUAL - CLARION before you, intend merely a memorial of the glorious class and its participation in the school activities, rather than a history of the whole school: as each succeeding class will have its chance in the future, which is far too near. Therefore, as you read the following pages we only hope that it will fix the more firmly in your mind the memory of our class and Alma Mater.

Class History

TO look back over four years, full of good times and exciting events, and to reproduce them in short form, is no easy task, and only the most important events will be mentioned. One bright morning, in September, 1903, a merry crowd of girls and boys gathered on the steps of the old annex on Chestnut Street. Here was the beginning of the Class of June, 1907, and here we made our start in High school life.

Although we were alone in that small building, and apart from the upper classmen, we soon introduced ourselves through a "Modern Comedy of Errors," which we presented in the Assembly Hall. The success of this entertainment reflected great honor on the class, since no other freshman class, either before or afterward, attempted anything of the kind. We shall never forget the good times which we had, and the many happy days which were spent in that old annex.

In our sophomore year we entered the new building and came in touch with real High school life. During this year we again attempted and successfully accomplished something, which had never been done before, namely the publication of a High School Song Book.

While we were enjoying ourselves we were suddenly shocked and grieved at the news of the death of Miss Lockwood, who had been our best friend during our first year. The class received this news with great sorrow, and expressed its heartfelt sympathies. May the name of Miss Lockwood ever remain in our memories as that of a kind friend.

Every one will remember how eagerly and enviously we watched the seniors going through their celebrations and longed for the time when we could do the same. But, alas! time passes too soon, and our good times are almost over.

When our junior year came around, the class was more of a unit, and a little more class spirit was shown to be in existence. The class went to work with a will and the result was shown by the success of the Junior Farce, and, especially of the Junior Prom.

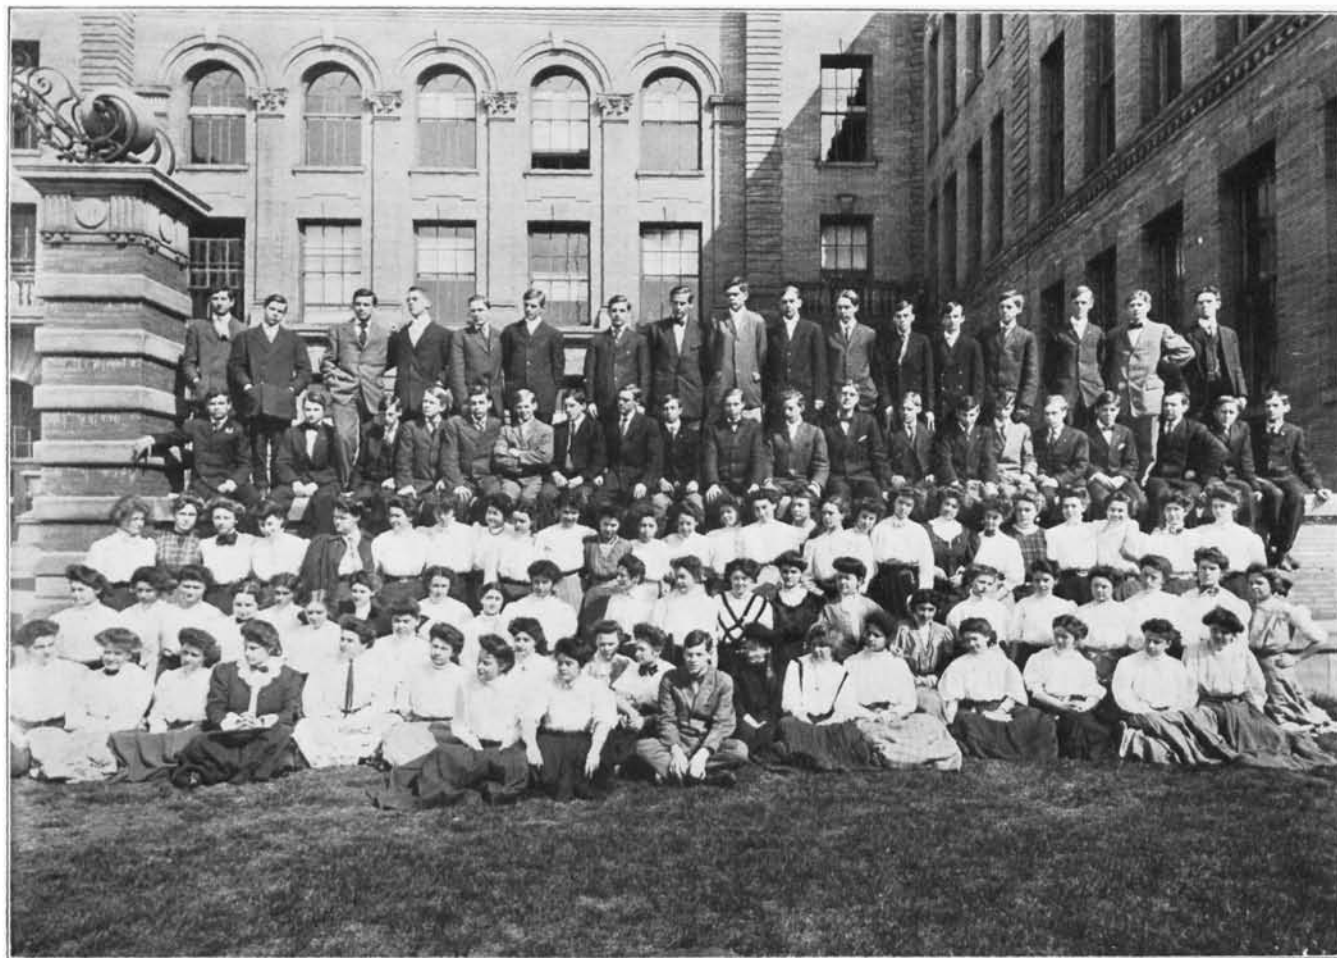

Seniors at last! The time when we should be in our glory arrived and we were ready for it. During the three previous years, '07 was gradually working up to its Senior year and was getting ready to make it the most successful. Everyone realized that if he was going to do anything in school activities before he left school, he must do it right then, and student organizations contained more representatives of '07 than before.

The Senior Play is well under way, and we hope that it will eclipse the success of all previous classes.

But '07 must soon come to its parting day. When the ceremonies of Commencement Week are over, '07 will be no more. Some of us will complete our education in higher institutions, and some will go out into the world; but wherever we may be, the recollections of '07 will ever cling to our memories.

Although not a class of many athletes, '07 has its shining stars in other lines. She possesses many bright students and clever actors, who have made a name for themselves. In musical and literary lines, '07 has helped greatly to spread the reputation of the school. '07 has borne herself nobly during the four years, and will leave with flying colors. Long live '07!

CARL A. DANIEL.

Class Poem

The fading sun was sinking in the west;
The brook was gliding over mossy stones,
And passing through a quaint and quiet dell,
It murmured to the trees in dulcet tones.

To this sequestered glade where ran the brook,
There came a man with careworn mien and eye,
And wishing to forget the weary world,
He sank down on the green sward with a sigh.

It seemed to him that he was back again,
At the dear school where boyhood days were spent,
Plodding along, his books upon his arm,
Up the broad walk, and through the door he went.

Then quickly passing through the long, broad hall,
He came to his familiar study door,
And friends of old looked up as he came in,
To welcome him with greetings as of yore.

But soon there came the clanging warning gong,
And tardy ones ran panting through the hall,
That they might reach their study room in time
To answer when their teacher roll would call.

Then swift to the Assembly Hall they passed,
And there they heard announcements for the day,
Also a sincere, earnest talk, and then,
With nod and smile dismissed, they went their way.

But not before a thousand voices rang,
In loud praise to their Alma Mater dear—
Who does not know that song beloved by all!
Who will not sing it ever loud and clear?

To study room and class room new they came,
He shuddered as he sat down, for he knew
That he must answer, "Unprepared" today
To problems mastered only by the few.

Thus passed the day, from class to class he went,
Until at noon the bell called all to lunch,
Then what a rushing, running, surging crowd
Sped down the stairs to get a bite to munch!

The luncheon done, he went back to his class,
But all too soon the happy day was o'er,
The bell rang loud and laughing boys and girls,
Dismissed, ran down the hall and through the door.

He, then, awoke and found 'twas all a dream.
And he was lying in the grassy glade.
The brook still murmured to the nodding trees,
But blinking stars peeped through the dusky shade.

He lay there thinking of the days gone by,
Of friends whom he would never see again.
He wondered where his former mates had gone,
And how they had fared in the affairs of men.

For on their final graduation day,
The last time they had gathered as a class,
He knew their ways would never meet again,
No more together happy days they'd pass.

For each would choose a different walk in life,
So far and wide his class would scattered be,
Some would succeed, he knew, and some might fail,
Yet all would be remembered lovingly.

The care-free days of school-time now had fled,
They had gone—had vanished from his sight—
Yet he would always sing for old East High,
And cheer with vim, the purple and the white!

CLAIRE LEONIE HAAS.

De Conversion ob Peta Johnson

OLE Peta Johnson war one ob de good ole men ob de community. He libed all alone in de ole house down on de corner, whar ole Squire Perkins hung hisself. All de odder niggas in Musquash Holler wouldnt go near de ole house at night, for de world, but dat didn't bover Peta. He didn't take no stock in such fings.

De people of Masquash Holler had neber seen Peta's wife. Peta said dat she had died ob wearen life preservers. Dat disgusted Peta wiv everyfing. He wouldnt hab his life 'sured on dis bery account. In ovver ways, Peta war an odd ole chick. He didn't take no stock in men's looken into the future by tryen to predict de wedder. He used to bet wiv his friend, Parson Simon Jenkins, dat de wedder would be jus de opposite ob what de wedder man said. He almos' always won, an he came out ob each bet wiv moe faifth in his own convictions den when he went in.

In fact, Peta war bery peculia. But de funny fing about it war dat he war peculia only by spells. When he war most peculia, dere war no gotten long wiv him, and den all de good people ob Musquash Holler let him be, an' jes felt bad for him. It war Parson Simon Jenkin's opinion dat Peta had been hatched in de rong time ob de moon, cause Peta mos' always had his bad spells on de awful bad dark nights, when de moon dassent show hissself. It war a long time befoe dat part ob de question war satisfactorily settled, but like all great truifths, it war bound to come out sooner or later, an' sure nuff it did.

Wiv all his peculiarrites, Peta war a kind ole sole. In fact, dat he war a bery good man for a nigger, ebery one cenceded. He war one ob de deacons ob de church. Dat's what made him so good. Almos' ebery Sunday he invited some ob de congregation down to dinna. Dem war good dinnas dat Uncle Peta had too, roast chicken and duck, dat Peta said he raised hissself. Eberybody liked to come down to Peta's house den. But it war Peta's generrossity dat led to his undoing, an' subsequent converssion, an' de scandal ob de community. It happened in dis way:

It war free or four nights before Tanksgiven. De moon war round an' full, an' Uncle Peta war mad. He stood in his dorway an' looked up at Parson Simon Jenkin's house, a little way up on de hill. "Golly! I wish I could turn dat moon out," he fought to hissself. An' jus as Peta war wishing de hardest, de moon did begin to go out! For a few minutes, he war too 'sprised even to fink. At last, de truifth began to come to him. It war goen out jus for him! He went into de house an' got a big bag, an' as soon as de moon war all turned out, he went up towards Parson Jenkin's.

"Wonder if de Parson's got a padlock on de turkey house," he thought. He kept on till he got up to Simon's. It war all dark an' still, an' he went straight for de turkeys. It took Uncle Peta's ole rheumatic legs a quite a while to get de turkeys, wivout making any noise. He had jus' got free nice big cnes, an' he war jus' chuckling to hissself about how de parson would enjoy his own turkeys Tanksgiven day at Peta's house, when what should Peta hear but a big kackling down among his own chickens. He grabbed his free turkeys, an' started for home as fast as his ole legs could carry him, wiv de turkeys squaking as loud as dey could squak. He did not notice, when he came out, dat de moon war waking up again an' shoven hissself.

He had got about half way down de hill when he saw someone coming toward him from de opposite d'rection, wiv a half dozen squaking chickens in his hands. Uncle Peta war neber madder in his life. He ran right for de man, an' de man ran for him. De moon war getten brighter ebery minute, an' by its light Peta recognized his ole friend, Parson Jenkins. At de same time Simon knew Peta. De two stopped an' glared at each odder.

"Yo' ole brack skinfink," began Simon, "drop dem turkeys or I'll hab yo' excomuikated from de church."

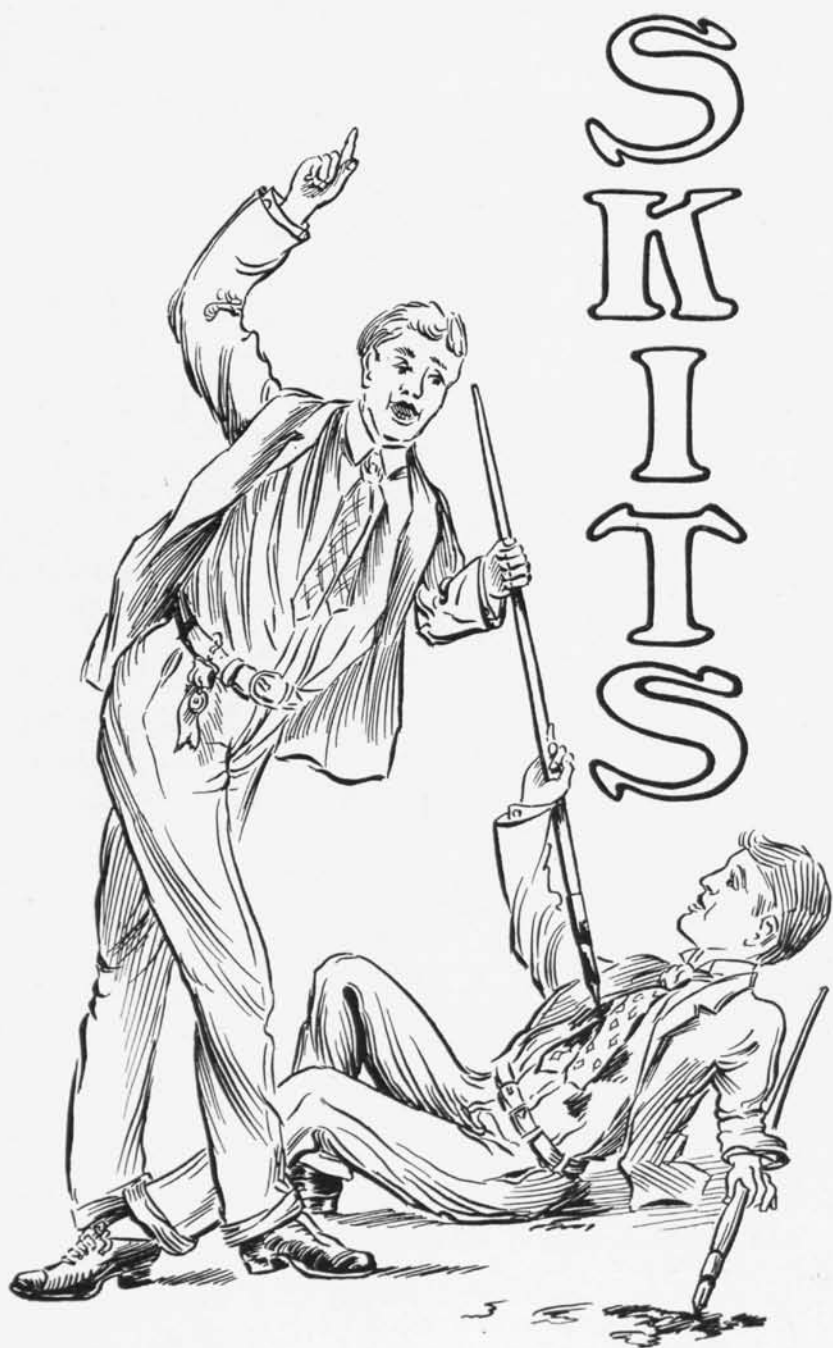

"Shut yo' yaup, yo' fief," snarled Peta, "whare yo' git dem chickens?"

"Yo' drop dem turkeys or I'll lick yo' shore," yelled de parson.

"I'll make yo' big mouf all pudden sauce if yo' say annodder word," yelled Peta back to him, shaking wiv unholy rage.

But by dis time all de people ob Masquash Holler had wakened up, an' were comen to see what de trouble war about. Dere war no 'scape for ever Peta or Simon. It war de parson's wit dat saved dem.

"Breverin an' sistern," he began, an' at de well known accents, de place war as still as do all were in de meetin house on Sunday mornin. "Breverin an' sistern, I hab found de ebil spirit in de soul ob our good friend, Peta Johnson. Peta Johnson war born in an eclipse ob de moon. Tonight am his birtfh night. Yo' hab all seen de eclipse tonight. When by bressed Providence I found him wiv my turkeys, he war so obercome, dat he gib me dees chickens in return. On Tanksgiven day, we will all meet at Deacon Peta Johnson's, an' gib fanks to de Lord dat Peta has got rid ob his debbil, an' for de turkeys."

Senior Alphabet

A is for applicable, Leon's Waterloo;
And it stands for Albert, our prexy, too.

B is for Badger, a fellow quite jolly;
And the hungry Barnes, so melancholy.

C is for Clapp, with face toward the Lord;
Also for Corey, who speaks not a word.

D is for Daniel, a student quite classic,
With timorous heart and expression seraphic.

E is for Emerson, as a writer renowned,
A splendid debater with logic quite sound.

F is for Fussers. They dwell in Room—
There's Frost, Funk and Fonda (?) Naught seven has plenty.

G is for Girls, whom we all adore;
There's Gerber, so fair, and dark-haired Gilmore.

H is for Higbie and for Hovey and Haas,
Each one is a credit to our glorious class.

I is for Irving, who continually grows;
He talks very much, but little he knows.

J is for Jennie, to the stage much inclined;
Also for Josh, a most horrible grind.

K is for Kasmeyer, a votary to slumber;
Also for Kenneth and his dates without number.

L is for Lee, with intentions quite good;
Likewise, for Low, who would if he could.

M is for Matthews, and also for May,
They seldom work hard, and sleep half the day.

N is for Nerlich, she's not very slow,
This little fact from experience we know.

O is for Otto, a cherub, we claim,
With perpetual grin, fast climbing to fame.

P is for Page, and for Post, and for Perl;
Also for Palmer, a very nice girl.

Q are the Questions which rise in debate,
Naught seven's debaters soon settle their fate.

R is a Rugg which cannot be beat;
His head is quite large, caused by the heat.

S is for Snell and for the Smith twins,
Also for Shepard, with his good-natured grins.

T is for Taylor, a lass fair to see,
For co-education, a very strong plea.

U is for Us— Acknowledge we're IT;
A class, full of energy, spirit and grit.

V is for VanHoesen, a thorough athlete,
From the top of his head to the soles of his feet.

W is for Wunder, who almost has brains;
And Waterman, too (here the writer refrains.)

X is the letter which has puzzled you all,
But for the Class of Naught-seven, 'tis no puzzle at all.

Y is the Yell of the Class of Naught-seven;
The welkin resounds whenever 'tis given.

Z is the Zeal and likewise the Zest,
Which Naught-Seven has shown when put to the test.

Acta Diurna

Time: Gray's Fourth Period.

GRAY: (Gazing about room) "How do you do, Sm--h? We haven't seen you for some time. Hm." (Sickly smiles). "Sh-p--d, translate 'Nautae torquent spumas et coerulea verrunt.'"

SH-P--D: "The sailors blow off the foam and pass over the green." 'Quis novus hospis' is here translated, 'What fresh stranger.'"

GRAY: "I presume you are all going to take the Saratoga trip?" (No response.) "Why, Jove, you can't afford to miss it. Look at the money you are saving." (Laughter) Ma--h--ws, translate 'Iroia circum amens vidit, calor ossa reliquit.'"

MA--H--WS: "And when she beheld my arms about her—" (Laughter). "The color left her cheek."

GRAY: "Doubtless, she left it on his coat. Hm! Miss G—, translate 'Spem fronte serenat, etc.'"

MISS G—: "She smoothes her forehead with hope."

GRAY: "Probably she was washing her face. Hm! Proceed, W--nd--r, with line beginning 'Nocturnos que movet Manes'"

W--ND--R: "At night she moves the shades."

GRAY: "Do you mean she was drawing the curtains? Hm!"

R--NS--W: (translating 'Partis animum versabat in omnis') "She was turning her mind around."

GRAY: "Presumably she was a crank."

W--CK--S: (translating 'Dulces cruciae') "Sweet booties"

GRAY: (sarcastically) "Dear little shoes. Hm!" (Convulsions).

(The next passage was a love scene, which was feelingly translated by M. D. ipse, whereat the class marveled greatly).

MY--S: (translating 'Supra caput adstitit') "She stood on her head." (Shrieks).

GRAY: (suddenly) "How many of you girls paint? (Giggles) Sm--h, translate 'Fugite, O misci, fugite.'"

SM--H: (returning from trance) "Flee, O wretched flea." (Uproar).

GRAY: (translating 'Occurrit Acestes pelle ursae') "Acestes appeared in bear hide."

Here M--LL--R, translate 'Quique pedum cursu valet,' Whoever had the greatest feet."

(Exit Gray amid uproar.)

Roughhouse.

DON'T USE BIG WORDS.

In promulgating your esoteric cogitations and superficial sentimentalities, avoid platitudinous ponderosity.

Free lunch—food for thought.

Father (meaningly) — Who is the laziest boy in school, Tommy?

Tommy—I don't know, pa.

Father—I should think you would know. When all the others are industriously studying or writing who is it that sits idly by in his seat and watches the rest instead of working himself?

Tommy—That's the teacher, pa.

F—ierce lessons.

L—ate hours.

U—nexpected company.

N—ot prepared.

K—icked out.

—Ex.

Vinegar-faced Old Woman (smelling Pat's strong pipe)—If you were my husband, I'd give you poison.

Pat—Yes, begorra, and if I was yere hoosband, I'd take it.

If money talks,
As we've heard tell,
To us it always says:
"Farewell."—Ex.

Small Boy—Auntie, did God make both you and me?

Aunt—Yes, dear.

Small Boy—He's doing better work than he used to do isn't he, auntie?

A little piece of rubber,
A little drop of paint,
Makes the bad report card
Look as if it ain't.—Ex.

There was a young man from Bordeaux,

He wanted to visit a sheaux;

But he found that he wouldn't

Be able—he couldn't

Come up with the requisite deaux.

He bought a new bright postage stamp,
This up-to-date young chap,
Then rounded all the corners off
And wore it for a cap.—X. Rays.

Wife of a Colonial Officer (visiting native village) — "What a dear little child it is. What's your pet name, dear?"

The Dear — "Kanavalugakalavakki Kuyajanga."—Ex.

He flunked in Latin—failed in Chem.

They heard him softly hiss:

"I'd like to find the man that said:

"That ignorance is bliss."—Ex.

(Alone on the porch) She — My hands are so cold.

He—Well, put them up your sleeve.

'Twas in a restaurant they met,
'One Romeo and Juliet.

'Twas there he first fell into debt
For Romeo'd what Juliet.—Ex.

Gentleman (Who has just been served with soup): "See here, waiter, there is a worm in this soup; see him wiggle."

Waiter—"Oh, that's all right; he can't get out."—Ex.

You thought this was poetry,

But it is not;

The printer just put this in

This way to fool you.—Ex.

Mary had a little dog;

It was a noble pup.

'Twould stand upon its hind legs

When you held its front legs up.—

Little Johnny suddenly asked in a startled voice, "Mamma, is that bay rum in that bottle on your stand?"

"Mercy no, dear!" she replied, "it is mucilage."

"Oh!" said Johnny, then after a moment's pause he added reflectively: "Perhaps that's why my hat won't come off."—Ex.

Side walk,

Banana peel,

Old gent,

Virginia reel.

"Your teeth are like the stars," he said;
The maiden's face grew bright;

"Your teeth are like the stars," he said;
"They all come out at night."—Ex.

THE NERVE OF HIM.

I went to Cupid's Garden;
I wandered o'er the land,
The moon was shining brightly,
I held her little — shawl.

Yes, I held her little shawl;
How fast the evening flies,
We spoke in tones of love,
I gazed into her — lunch basket.

I gazed into the basket,
I wished I had a taste;
There sat my lovely charmer,
My arm around her — umbrella.

Embracing her umbrella,
This charming little miss,
Her eyes so full of mischief,
I slyly stole a — sandwich.

Why Become a Stenographer or Bookkeeper

Because either of these qualifications gives you the opportunity to enter the business world, and to come in close association with men of commanding influence. Because there is no better door to advancement than that afforded by these callings. Because to fit yourself to be an office assistant is to get in line for promotion to more responsible work. Either requires special preparation. For forty-three years the

Rochester Business Institute

has represented the most thorough and comprehensive training for business that a young man or woman can obtain in a commercial school. The work of scores of Rochester business houses is conducted by our graduates, and the efficiency of our instruction is attested by the constantly increasing calls for young people trained in the R. # COLGATE UNIVERSITY

Hamilton, New York

FOUNDED 1819

GEORGE EDMONDS MERRILL, D. D., LL. D., PRESIDENT

THE UNIVERSITY POSSESSES a magnificent equipment. It makes exclusive use of nine large buildings, besides several smaller ones. The value of the buildings and grounds is about $800,000. The endowments amount to nearly $2,000,000. The general library occupies a fireproof building costing $150,000. There are 50,000 volumes and the collection is constantly growing.

PHYSICAL TRAINING—Ample grounds for out-door sports. Quarter-mile cinder track of modern construction. Artificial lake for skating. A large gymnasium fully equipped with modern apparatus, baths and swimming pool. All physical training is in charge of an expert instructor, Dr. Huntington.

THE COLLEGE offers two four-year courses—in Arts and in Letters and Science—leading respectively to the degrees A. B. and B. S. These courses are of the highest grade. There are excellent museums and new laboratories for physical biological, and chemical science, erected at a cost of more than $140,000.

Scholarships are provided for worthy students in need of financial help.

PERFECTION IN AUTOMOBILE LAMPS

HAM'S Tourist Lamp is very popular, it is built on the genuine "Cold Blast" principle and is fitted with our new Special Combination Lense which projects the light directly ahead, penetrating the darkness much further than the ordinary lens. It does not smoke, emits no odor and is guaranteed not to blow or jar out.

MAGIC CARPETS

Put a new floor covering in the dingiest room of your house. The effect is magical. Comfort, cheeriness, cosiness, all come in with the carpet.

And our carpets attract the purse, as well as the eye. For instance—we can brighten up that medium-sized room you have in mind, for 70c. per yard, with a handsome ingrain—all laid.

We could add "luxury" to the description by adding a little to the price, and substituting a Brussels or Axminster.

At any rate, drop in and take a look—for future reference.

All sorts of cool carpeting for hot weather. Low prices.
