MISS EFFIE HELEN ESSON was born in Rochester, New York. She graduated from No. 14 School, and the Rochester Free Academy. In 1896, she was admitted on the basis of competitive scholarship to the N. Y. State teachers' training class. Miss Esson then taught one year in the Whitehead district of Penfield, N. Y. In 1898 she taught the ninth grade at No. 17 School, and in 1901 at 31 School she held a similar position. In 1903, she entered the University of Rochester. During her college course she taught in the Evening Schools at No. 26 and East High. In 1908 she began her duties in the English department of East High School.

Miss Esson has had charge of a large portion of the boys of our class since their freshman year, and both boys and girls have learned to respect and honor her.

MISS M. BLANCHE KELLY was born in Penn Yan, N. Y., and received her early education at the Penn Yan schools. In 1902, she graduated from Vassar College with an A.B. degree. A year later she was graduated from the State Normal School at Albany with the degree of Pd.B. Since 1903, Miss Kelly has been associated with the German Department in East High School.

Most of the girls of June 1914 have had Miss Kelly as their study room teacher for the four years that they have been in East High School. Still, the entire class appreciates the keen interest that she has had in our welfare. Miss Esson and Miss Kelly both have often kindly consented to advise or chaperon class activities.

Class History

It happened not very long ago,
But four short years in fact,
That June Fourteen to East High School came,
Scarce knowing how to act.

Bright shone the sun and the Seniors smiled
As we entered these dreaded walls,
And bright do we hope the day will be
When we go from these well-loved halls.

With instructors kind and ambitions keen,
We frolicked through all the first year;
In the second half we were organized,
With a place in the real school sphere.

Well we remember the first day we met,
Assembled in room forty-seven,
And the candidates put up for class president
Were numbered to nearly eleven.

Imagine, what clever young Sophomores, we,
Who thought in the whole institution
There never were pupils so smart and so bright
When we published our class Constitution.

We adopted a motto so worthy and true,
To find us a way or to make it,
Tho' trials and troubles and obstacles rose
We never attempted to break it.

Small pleasures, too did lighten our toil,
And chasing our cares away,
We went to our sleighride, our jolly May-walk,
And Sophomore dance so gay.

A tennis team we wished to have,
Alas, 'twas far from funny
That many things we planned to do
Lacked class support and money.

Soon Junior year upon each head
With serious weight descended
And eager students we became
While fame with power was blended.

Our president to farming took;
So then his reign was over
We missed him, our athletic star,
But he is just in clover.

In February we proposed
A party to go skating;
The last we ever heard of that
Was in the class, debating.

A Junior Prom, the only fun
That we could boast, alas
'Til three short months elapsed, and then
We were the Senior class.

How deeply then we carved our names
In East High's Hall of Fame
And if we're proud of June Fourteen
On us must be the blame.

As athletes great success we earned;
The plays revealed our actors;
In all debates and school affairs
We were important factors.

Most loyal to the class and school
June Fourteen's ever been
With Jan. Fourteen's memorial
We said we'd not join in.

With practical good common sense
Our Class Day has been slighted,
And to our Senior Dance, '04
Alumni we've invited.

A tennis tournament we've planned.
This time we'll see it finished
A trophy cup has been put up
And Class zeal's undiminished.

But now our history's near complete
With grief we say "farewell."
With memories sweet and courage strong
To make our futures tell.

MARJORIE HICKS,

Class Historian.

Class Poem

Fare Ye Well

Bid ye farewell, dear Alma Mater,
To the friends who leave you now,
We the Class of Nineteen Fourteen,
Give you this, our humble bow.
In this life of constant struggle,
We will fight as we've begun,
With our goal fixed clear before us,
We'll do our best until it's won.

These days of joy are spent and gone.
The happiness which once was ours,
Has turned to sorrow, gloomy, meek;
And sadly we recount the hours.
But you need never to be lonely,
For others come to fill our place.
They will comfort you, hereafter
They will cheer your now sad face.

* * * * *

It's a long time since we left you,
Years have soared above our heads,
Fate has fashioned every footstep,
Some are living, some are dead.
Now, holding each his own domain,
Ever faithful, just, and true,
Few of the good old class remain.
Still praise they God and honor you.

IRWIN COLE,
Class Poet.

Class Prophecy

DURING the course of my extensive travels, I happened to come upon this little white-walled Hindoo Monastery, perched far up on the side of a great rock mountain in one of the remotest corners of India. The little, brown, barefooted monks, surprised at the advent of a stranger in their lonely retreat, have shown me all the courtesy possible, and even consented to show me, this morning, their renowned collection of precious and semi-precious stones.

On looking over the glittering heap I was at once struck by a great crystal, so large and perfect that I believe the world has never seen its equal. Having made quite an extensive study of the peculiar powers of crystals, I was resolved to test one of my favorite theories by means of this flawless stone. Concentrating my mind upon its glittering surface with a tremendous effort of will power, I ventured to propound to it a weighty question and one which had been near to my heart for some time, "What is the fate of my classmates of June '14?" I demanded in sepulchral tones.

Deliberately I made my mind a blank, and then my whole consciousness was enveloped by the insidious and powerful influence of the crystal and I entered upon that extraordinary journey which I shall never forget, though I should live for a thousand years.

I seemed to be on board a mammoth liner, the fastest boat of its time, and what was my surprise to recognize in the Captain, with his wealth of gold braid, my old friend Herbert Brady! I asked the charming social directress Persis Nicholls to point out some of the celebrities on board. She said that many actors and actresses were returning to the United States on that boat for the opening of the theatrical season, and pointed out to me, Mlle. Marjorette Hicks, the Tragedy Queen, a slim young lady dressed in black with a drooping black plume on her hat, who generally played Ibsen but occasionally condescended to Shakespeare. "Little Georgie Madigan," the comedy hit, playing the leading role in "When You Are Both Irish and Polish," was also on board, and the famous moving picture actress, Elsa Dossensbach, known from one end of America to the other. I found that Al Cleveland had won a place for himself in "When Lizzie Smiles." Herbert Ernisse had starred in a Comic opera of which the words had been written by Ida Edgar, the dreamy poetess, and the music had been composed by the modern Paderewski, Eddie W. Krieg. Among the lesser lights of musical comedy and vaudeville I saw on board, Charles Allport, Merton Edgcombe and Richard Chubb, song and dance artists; and Marion Stewart, Edna Loeffler, Jeanette Levy, Thelma Cooper and Esther Seward who was playing "Mother."

Several members of the younger set of New York, London and Paris were on board. Among them I recognized Vera Katz, who inspected me coldly through her lorgnette, Elsa David, Lucille Sens, Charlotte Frieberg and Helen Freeman. Lucy Sage, New York's most exclusive hostess, was surrounded by a group of titled foreigners and American millionaires, among whom were Chauncey Young, Reginald Parkhurst, Milton Trimby and Gerald Young, polo-players of international reputation.

A group of ladies were gazing curiously at a short little man, gracefully reclining on a steamer chair, reading a London paper. I readily recognized the chubby face, surrounded by long, artistic, curls. To make sure, however, I inquired his name and found that he was Owen De Neve, the famous Cubist.

When he had strolled languidly away I picked up the paper. The red headlines were "Suffragettes Forcibly Fed." and what was my surprise to see, in the photograph below, my old friend, Ruth Chamberlain, in handcuffs! Around their leader were gathered Elmira Mosman, Jessica Rockwood, M. Louise Lewis, Ruth McCarthy and A. Louise Lewis, in prison garb, but undaunted.

Upon arriving in New York I went immediately to the Grand Central Station to take the train for Rochester. I recalled something familiar in the stentorian voice of the train-announcer, as he bawled out my train, and at last placed him as Harold Walters, one of my old classmates.

Hastening to the magazine stand to procure something to read on the train, I saw, at a glance, that June '14 was well represented in current literature.

The Outlook, which was at the time violently in favor of Howard Rowley for President, was edited by Edwin Scott Roscoe. Although the name of the Editor of the Ladies' Home Journal was unfamiliar to me, I saw on the staff the names of Irwin Cole, who wrote all the poetry for the magazine, and Joseph Sweeley, editor of its best-read department, "How I Knew When the Right Man Came, Advice to Girls." The "Better Babies" page was written by one whom I had known as Jean MacAlpine, and was headed by a photograph of the proud mother and her twelve sturdy children. I picked up the Saturday Evening Post, but laid it down in disgust when I saw that, since Gould Hatch had become editor, the paper contained nothing but love stories. In the New York Journal the cartoon, drawn by John Bornkessel, called forth a reminiscent smile. New York's largest German paper, I found, was edited by Lena Prussin of our class. Russel Fishbaugh, however, who had recently published a complete edition of his poems, was the one who had attained the most lasting place in the realm of literature.

When I reached Rochester I hastened to Alexander Street, in hopes of obtaining news of my old friends. I was not disappointed for, in front of the school, where "Louis the Greek's" cart had been accustomed to stand was a large "Hot Dog" wagon. Is there,—can there be something familiar about the proprietor's husky form? Yes, it must be,—it is. Hank Hays! With a lightening deduction, like that of Henry Rogers, the modern Sherlock Holmes, I inferred that the "Shrimp" must be near at hand. As if to prove my conclusions, D. Marks sauntered up just then on his way to Convention hall where Dean Quinby and Emily Otto were to give an exhibition of the Maxixe, Furlana and other old-fashioned dances. With him was a group of boys among whom I recognized, John Arthur Jennings, "Sarah" Grunau, Judge Harmon, Howard Minchin, and rosy John Ballard. Having obtained for Post-graduates and Hold-overs admission into all school activities, they had decided to remain in East High indefinitely, in order to perfect their famous system of High School graft, the best in the United States.

On entering the familiar building I found that not a few of my classmates had attained the honor of being teachers there. Allen Williams was head of the Latin Department, Harold Keogh of the English Department, Chester Brooks of the History Department, Larelda Barth of the German, and Helen Voelckel of the Chemistry. Florence Clark was librarian.

Desiring to obtain all possible information, I invested in a paper whose title was unfamiliar to me, "Rochester Women's Interests," edited by Miss Florence Wolff. In this I read of the contest between Helen Harvey and May Ganss, members of our class, who were running for "Mayoress" of Rochester, the one on the Prohibitionist, the other on the Socialist ticket. I also saw that Katherine Emerson was Speaker of the House of Representatives, and that Ethel Heift, Laura Belle Price and Ethel French were distinguished and often-quoted members. The law firm of Joseph Schleyer and Alexander Douglas was strongly recommended for all cases such as divorce, desertion, alimony, etc.

I had decided to go, in my search, from Rochester straight to Mexico, because I thought that some of my classmates, who never could keep out of a row, might be interested in the revolution there. At the Barber and Bridle hangars I took the Mexico City Air Line Express. Immediately our light ten-passenger bi-plane rose above the lower stratum of clouds and fanned along steadily through the cold, still, upper air.

After some time I turned to the operator, who was muffled in furs, and asked him the make of his wonderfully steady machine. "It's a Potter, No. 2," he said, "made by the celebrated inventor, Craig Potter." Then I knew that the aviator was George Seitz, for no one else could have made his voice heard so plainly above the roar of the propellers.

Since his engines were droning steadily, George proceeded to tell me about some of the other members of our class. He said that Julius Baldwin, "the Painless Dentist," had been much in the public eye since he had made a set of diamond teeth for Katherine Van De Carr, the Grand Opera prima donna. Helen Zimmerman, it seems had gone as a missionary to the Soudan. Edna Sterling had married a minister and, probably on account of her several children, was very much interested in Bible School work. Isabel Stewart was earning fabulous sums as an artists' model in Paris. William Bell, Leonard Henderson, Whyland Sprong, D'Orville Doty, (a married man), and Joseph "Home-run" Lisson were playing in the National League, and—

Just at this point the machine began to pitch and toss unsteadily, blasts of hot air shot up from beneath us,—there was evidently some unusual atmospheric disturbance. Clutching the arms of my seat, I asked apprehensively, "What's the matter, George?" "Oh, nothing serious," he answered, "probably John Challice is somewhere around beneath."

We immediately started downward in a long descending curve and alighted on a level meadow near the City of Mexico.

The first person I saw on the street was John Challice, standing on a soap-box and making a speech to a crowd of three or four barefooted Mexicans. I saw that his political training in the Roman State had been useful to him.

The booming of cannon was heard continually. Down the street dashed a regiment of cavalry with Maxiano Greenhouse, leader of the Revolutionists, at its head. He was flourishing a sword and exhorting his men with his usual persuasive eloquence. "Down with dictator Gosnell, the Murphy of Mexico! Let the people rule! etc., etc."

In the wake of the army came "Hoolie" Thompson, offering free tango lessons to all who would support the revolutionists, since they had declared themselves in favor of giving women the vote.

By this time Verne Edgcumbe, general of the dictator's forces, and the revolutionists were engaging in a hot fight.

A carriage dashed past, containing refugees who were anxious to get out of the city. Among them I recognized Antoinette Douglas, wife of the President of Costa Rica, Verona Stiefel, Gladys Fearv, Marion Levis and Mildred Wagner, wives of diplomats. Abe Richardson, a book collector, who had been searching for some old Spanish documents, was hurrying to get his books out of a ware-house on the firing line. Elliott Smith and Vincent Wallace were trying to barricade the windows of their phonograph store. Helen Halpert, Hazel Thomas and Lillian Hackett were hastily fleeing from their sumptuous offices in the building of the "American Beauty Co. St." Osgood Pitcher, Sol Lefkowitz and Roy Burleigh, successful prospectors, known as the richest men in Mexico, had just ridden into town from their ranch and were preparing to take an active part in the fray. Elsa Bayer, Bertha Pagels, Adelaide Cray and Esther Crane, excited globe-trotters, were securing places on balconies from which to watch the battle. In short "all was bustle and excitement!"

Suddenly, with a great clatter of hoofs, the rebel cavalry in three divisions led by Irving Lusink, Lester Carmen and Chester Forkel, came down three converging streets into the plaza and charged some government buildings there. Robert Shafer and Harry Wootton returned the fire smartly from two large brass cannon, while Frederick Hewitt's division of the Gosnellistas boldly formed around the front of the fortifications to protect the flag. But their attempt was unsuccessful for Homer Waite, at the risk of his life, stepped forward and shattered the shaft with a rifle shot.

At the rear of the combatants the fearless red-cross nurses, Mary Virginia Martin and her assistants, Marion Ament, Olive Puleston and Martha Rowland peacefully went about their errands of mercy.

Above the roar of the cannon and the hiss of shrapnell, the voice of Maxiano rose, urging on the revolutionists, and, in the confines of the government buildings, the oratory of Challice, though somewhat hoarser, had not ceased. There was deafening din and confusion everywhere. In short it was just like a Senior Class-meeting of June 1914!

Slowly my eyes withdrew their fascinated gaze from the gleaming heart of the crystal. Gradually I became aware of objects round about, of the sunlight on the crumbling walls, of the lime-trees swaying in the breeze. Then my consciousness returned and I realized my unparalleled experience. "Quick," I shouted to the blinking Hindoo, "give me pen and parchment." And now I am just finishing perhaps the strangest and most extraordinary document in the history of mankind.

The Alma Mater

Sweet be thy memory,
High School of ours;
Fair be thy destiny,
Fadeless thy flowers;
Hearts that have loved thee
Have won in life's fight
Names that we honor
Thy standard holds bright.

Our Alma Mater dear,
To thee we sing;
May all thy future years,
New honors bring;
May friends thy banners raise
Thy foes grow less,
All love and praise

Publicum Concilium

DURING the past year the Roman State has been exceedingly busy. The first activity of any importance was the election, preceded by a vigorous campaign. The Populares gave a most exciting and interesting gladiatorial show. The Optimates held a pantomime at which delicious candy was given away. Although the Populares won 45 of the 55 offices an Optimates consul and censor were elected; also two or three other officials were Optimates. After the election the school paper, "The Clarion," brought graft charges against the State, but their charges were answered to the everlasting credit of the State.

The "Vox Populi" was published every month with special articles for the freshmen.

Two plays were given by the sophomore classes, "Circe" and "Horatius," which were very amusing and instructive.

The Latin Museum made a very creditable start, by building several Roman implements of war. A Latin Exhibit was made corresponding to one made in a Chicago school. This Exhibit shows the practical value of Latin.

Several laws were passed, emulating the laws of ancient Rome, but relating to the present State.

On the whole, the past year has been one of singular success for the Roman State.

CHESS during the last year has taken firm root among the leading activities of East High. After the termination of a successful season East High won the Junior Chess League Championship for the second consecutive year, coupled with the Interscholastic Tournament victory. Unusual interest was manifested by the students in both High schools. It is interesting to note that even among the girls a movement was inaugurated for a Chess match with the girls of West High.

In the Chess Tournament against West High thirty-five tables represented each school. It took two months to complete the tournament and after a hot and exciting contest East High forged out ahead.

In the Junior Chess League Tournament the Oriental Chessmen administered a coat of calcimine to the J. Y. M. A. and West High strategists. This is the most successful year in the Chess history of East High.

The school was very fortunate this year in having Harry Block. He is the Junior Chess League champion and has lived up to his reputation in the games he played at East High.

Captain Raynarts finishes a most successful career on the Chess team. He has been on the Chess team for three consecutive years and has not lost a game. He will be sorely missed next year.

The management of the Chess interests in the school was ably handled by Sol Paley and later by Sol Posner. As a strategist Sol Posner excels all others on the team. He has yet to lose a tournament game. He should prove a strong nucleus for next year's team.

Maurice Komenski, George Pardee and Max Greenhouse all helped in maintaining the high standard of the Chess team. Although the loss of Ralph Schreiber, who was forced off the team by a heavy program, was for a time severely felt, the three recruits more than made up for the loss.

The Year in Debating

LAST year the season in debating was the brightest ever witnessed in East High School. The final victories were heralded early in the year by the interesting meetings of the Boys' and Girls' Debating Societies. Parliamentary law drills, informal discussions, and informal debates were given with great enthusiasm.

The trial debates for the boys' debating team were held early in the year. Forty boys tried out. The officers of the society are: Harold Gosnell, president; Paul Rauschenbusch, vice-president; and Arthur Tower, secretary.

The girls' team was not selected until this spring. The officers of the society are: Helen Zimmerman, president; Ethel Gordon, vice-president; Eunice Maurer, secretary; and Doris Wynkoop, manager.

This is the second year that Interclass Debating has been a recognized activity. Paul Rauschenbusch, chairman of the Interclass Debating committee ran off the debates with his usual ability. The final bout between the June 1917 team and the June 1915 team was not completed, when the Annual went to press. The interclass debates have brought to light some fine material for the school team next year.

In the Interscholastic debates East High's good fortune reached its zenith. The first victory of our boys over the Schenectady lads was a hard-earned one, since our opponents were all silver tongued orators. The next interscholastic debates were held upon the same night. Our boys received the only defeat of the season at the hands of the Clyde debaters due mainly to Clyde's superior delivery. The girls, however, repeated last year's victory over our friends of West High, in an exciting and well fought contest. A week later the same boys who debated Clyde again entered the lists but this time for a victory. The West High boys, victorious now for three successive years, at last met their downfall.

Helen Zimmerman deserves a great deal of credit for the clever work she did in advertising the Girls' Debate. John Challice also worked hard and deserves favorable commendation.

The Musical Season

MISS EUNICE ENSOR
Musical Director

THE MUSICAL CLUBS this year have had one of the most successful seasons in their history. The Boys' and Girls' Clubs under the direction of Miss Eunice Ensor have contributed mainly to their success. The Boys' Glee Club has increased materially in size over other years, but the membership of the Girls' Glee Club was so greatly enlarged that a division into two organizations had to be made early in the fall. In fact, the total enrollment in the classes of vocal music this term in East High School has exceeded that of any previous year.

Since the Glee Clubs last winter were reorganized by the Board of Education, they were admitted into the Tuesday Musicales Programs in the grammar schools. These concerts were given by the Glee Clubs in schools: numbers: 14, 27, 36, 15, 8, 23, and 20. Other entertainments, including several smaller engagements, were given by the Glee Clubs at: The Church of Reformation, the Shop School, Spencer-Ripley M. E. Church, Monroe Ave. M. E. Church, and Pittsford. The Clubs netted over one hundred dollars from these concerts.

The School this year has been exceptionally fortunate in its soloists and reader. The Mixed Octette and the soloists have taken part in all of the programs, and have given several concerts unaided.

The Glee Clubs are particularly indebted to Miss Ensor and the accompanist, Miss Jane Templeton, whose interest and enthusiasm have been largely responsible for the success of the Clubs.

The Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Ludwig Schenck has been somewhat handicapped by its policy, which prohibits the acceptance of compensation for its concerts. It has, nevertheless, made a creditable showing in the several appearances it has made.

The selections, this, as well as last year, have been excellent. In addition to the light and humorous pieces, the numbers included parts from some operas and classics.

Both organizations have a very bright outlook for next year. A large number of this season's membership will remain in school. With such a backing as this, and the spirit which graduates cannot carry away with them, the Clubs should continue to uphold the reputation which East High has always sustained.

ATHLETICS

The Athletic Season of 1913-14

JAMES H. FOWLE

THE usual high standard which East High athletic teams have always set, has been well upheld this year. Although defeated at various times, the teams managed to win when a victory counted. Many drawbacks faced most of the athletic teams this year. In some cases, the captains and managers of some of the teams did not return to school. It was necessary to develop an almost entirely new team, in every athletic activity, and it was hard work, especially in putting out a good track team. A number of fast men, however, have been developed from the lower classes of the school, who should form a good nucleus for the teams of the next two years.

Soccer

The soccer team, captained by Howard Beach, and managed by Irving Myers, won two games, lost three, and tied one, scoring five goals, to their opponents seven. West High was met in four games, of which each school won two games, but the first game played, won by East High, was only an exhibition game, and did not count in the regular series. Two games were played with the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary team, and each school won one of the games. The final game with the Lima lads, which was played at Rochester, was stopped at the end of the first half because of rain, and so the series was not decided. Most of this year's soccer team will be lost by graduation. Vincent Wallace has been elected captain of next year's team, and Welday Roscoe has been chosen as manager.

Cross-Country

The cross-country team, led by Leslie Thorpe, won both the Junior and Senior events in the annual Y. M. C. A. cross-country run on Thanksgiving day, and were tied for third place at the Cornell University Interscholastic Cross-country run. A whole new team had to be developed for cross-country, since not one member of last year's team was left in school. Carl Wisner has been chosen as captain of next year's team.

Basketball

The basketball quint this year won seven out of the nine games played, losing to the Alumni, and to the Pittsford High School team, on the latter's home court. A new plan was tried out this year, that of scheduling a series of three games with West High, instead of only one contest. Only two games were played with the Occidentals this year, and East High won them both. The team was somewhat crippled about the middle of the season, by the loss of Captain Judge Harmon, but finished the season under the guidance of Howard Rowley without any other defeat. Earl Newman was manager of this year's five, and Harry Levin acted as assistant manager. Sydney Freedman has been chosen as leader of next year's aggregation. A fast second team captained by Clinton Thompson helped the team out to a great extent during the season.

Tennis

A tennis tournament was started in the school last fall, and was won by Ralph Bickford, with Malcolm Weed as runner up. Not a team was formed this year, mainly due to the fact that no manager was appointed to look after its interest. The winner of the fall tournament was given a silver cup. A second tournament was held this spring, in which 42 pupils participated.

Track

The track team this year was not as successful as it has been in former years, due mainly to the fact that practically a whole new team had to be developed. Oliver Smith, the captain elect of this year's team did not return to school, and this left only one veteran, William Bell, who was later elected captain of the team. John Arthur Jennings acted as team manager. The indoor team was defeated by the Batavia High School team in a meet at Batavia. The Genesee County lads also romped ahead of East High in a meet at Buffalo. The School team with the University of Rochester Sophomores, but the one team did win, was big losses. This was the University of Rochester Inter-scholastic Meet held at 21st. East High had two years, and needed to permanent possession of which the insert shows. It was mainly through the clever work of Ralph Henricus that East High won this meet, for he alone scored $19\frac{1}{4}$ points, nearly two-thirds of the points made by East High. The outdoor team started off the season by losing a dual meet to the Batavia High School team, but after that the team picked up, and upheld the worthy name of East High on the track.

Hockey

A bad winter made it possible for this year's hockey team to play but two games, although a long schedule had been arranged by Manager Howard Beach. The West High team was easily defeated, and so was the fast University of Rochester seven. Ralph Bickford was captain of the team. John Sullivan has been elected as captain of next year's team, and Arthur Crapsey has been chosen as playing manager. This year's seven was one of the fastest that ever represented East High on the ice, and as a result the team won the city championship, and also claimed the championship of Western New York.

Girls' Basketball

This year's girls' basketball, although not as fast as the teams of previous years have been, established a creditable record on the court. Girls' Basketball is now recognized as one of the regular sports of the school, and as a result, those who play on the team are awarded a purple "E." Florence Felske acted as captain of the team, and Mary Copeland, as manager. The team broke even in the two games played with the Y. W. C. A. team, but defeated the Canandaigua High School girls' team, by a large score. Miss Lillian I. Wangman, the girls' physical director coached the team.

Baseball

The poor weather this spring made it rather difficult for the baseball candidates to practice much before the first game, and, as a result, East High lost its initial game of the season to Fairport. Under the sting of this defeat aided by more favorable weather the team got down to real hard work. A week later, the team went to Albion, and showed the High School team of that village how to play baseball, defeating them 21 to 8. Throughout the remainder of the season, the team kept up its good work, and won a majority of the games. Barney Shaft was captain of this year's nine, and as no student manager of the team was appointed, physical director James H. Fowle acted as manager.

Scalp Dance

WITH big chief and his band
Of fearless Orient Braves
We've jump't the reservation
We're on the war path lookin' for
Some pale face scalps to raise,
Have heap big celebration.
We've struck the trail, yi, yi, yi,
Blood in our eye, yi, yi, yi,
Our curdling yells are ringing,
When the game is done and we have won
Their top knots we will wave,
Back to our wigwam bringing.

CHORUS

Yes, we'll scalp 'em, scalp 'em, scalp 'em,
Make 'em bite the dust;
We'll smear up their backs you bet
Beat them worse than they've been yet,
We're up to the minute, always in it,
And we'll rub it in;
And while we yell they'll play like—well
Old Orient will win.

The Club

THE High School Life Club is composed of fellows from East and West High Schools, organized by the Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of studying the Bible and the human body. The boys of the club strive to create, and extend throughout the school higher standards of character and to become stronger and better themselves. The Club was organized October 16, 1908. Six fellows were present at the first meeting. This number increased to twenty-one members at the end of the first year. At present there are ninety members from East High School alone.

The club also lays emphasis upon social life and physical development. A successful hallow'een party, a sleighride, and a banquet were the principal features of the social side. "Dutch" Rowley was captain of the basketball team which won all its games. The team was composed of the stars of the two schools.

The club meets at the Y. M. C. A. every Tuesday at 6 o'clock for supper and, at 6:30 for its meeting. Several girls from both schools serve the supper. Herman Norton, E. H. S. '09, is the leader of the club and has proved himself most competent. Mr. Gugelman, the secretary of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. is one of the club's chief boosters.

The High School Life Club has completed a very successful season and is looking forward to a still more prosperous year. The officers elected for next year are: John Challice, president; John Howard, vice-president; Harold O'Connor, secretary; Verne Edgumbe, assistant secretary, and M. Ostenterf, treasurer.

THREE THINGS WORTH WHILE

To the home wired for electricity three things that help make life worth living are available.

First: THE GLAD IRON with its concentrated heat which can be controlled perfectly by the user without leaving the ironing board. The heat being practically confined to the face of the iron, the room does not become insufferably hot. The heat being constant, there is no need of those tiresome, temper-trying trips from ironing board to stove.

Second: THE ELECTRIC COFFEE PERCOLATOR wherein coffee—delightful, delectable coffee—may be brewed. The highest priced coffee, when brewed according to old-time methods, suffers by comparison with lower-priced coffees brewed in the electric percolator.

Third: THE ELECTRIC TOASTER—The very name suggests the toothsome, golden brown pithy product, so difficult to produce by other means, but so easy to produce with an Electric Toaster.

PRICES:

GLAD IRONS—3-lb., $3.75; 6-lb., $3.50; 8-lb., $4.75
Electric Coffee Percolators...$8.00 Electric Toaster...$3.75

Let's send the trio on trial. If they don't measure up to the claims we make for them, we'll send for them. 'Phone for them now.
