EAST HIGH SCHOOL

Sweet be thy memory,
High School of ours;
Fair be thy destiny,
Fadeless thy flowers;
Hearts that have loved thee
Have won in life's fight,
Names that we honor
Thy standard holds bright.

The Alma Mater

Our Alma Mater dear,
To thee we sing;
May all thy future years
New honors bring;
May friends thy banners raise,
Thy foes grow less,
All love and praise
To our old E. H. S.

In token of our deep gratitude for his co-operation in our interests, we dedicate this book to
MR. GEORGE HERBERT STUDLEY

Nineteen fifteen

MR. GEORGE H. STUDLEY

MR. GEORGE H. STUDLEY was born at Rockland, Massachusetts, and received his early education at the Rockland High School, the Bryant and Stratton Business College at Boston, and the Ithaca, New York, High School.

Mr. Studley first taught at Thomaston, Connecticut, in 1894. Following that he was principal of the Union School at Marcellus, New York, and, later, of the Union School at Hartwick, New York. Mr. Studley then came to Rochester and studied at the University until 1904. During this year he acted as a supply teacher at East High School. In 1906 he was appointed as a regular teacher of Mathematics and, later, of Commercial Subjects.

"A Full-Blown Rose"

Class Poem

Last month 'twas but a slip of green—this scented blossoming rose.
While fed by Mother Earth, 'twas then a dainty bud—and so it grows;
Now petals ope to peep upon the world—oh, wondrous hour!
The climax of God's work is yet to come—the full-blown flower.

For youth he uses harsher tones—to warn approach of a full-blown rose.
How like a rose are we, just blossoming in East High's halls,
First a little slip; then sealed bud; now as we bloom, the world calls!
O'er babe, the slip; and child, the bud, gently mild zephyr blows;

Let us awake and heed the warning: Come! the world to us is calling.
Tarry not, friends, for each idle moment a petal is falling.
Shall we, with hearts unresponsive, sleepily drift with the tide as it flows?
Do this—and miss what is rightfully ours—the joy of a full-blown rose?

No! this, dear Alma Mater, in accents loud we acclaim;
With God's help our blossoms shall not fade. May we live to honor thy name!
Through the many thorns and briers that may hold us in their throes,
May each dear classmate blossom—into a full-blown rose!

RACHAEL MUSCAT.

Class History

HELENE A. TIERNEY

I CANNOT remember what sort of day it was when the illustrious class of January 1915 entered East High, but I do remember that we seemed to be tagged, labeled or something like that, for we were objects of curiosity every way we turned. (I have found out since, by observing the incoming Freshmen, that it was because of the dazed, perplexed expressions on our countenances). Our career in old East High had begun.

It took us a term to get our bearings, but the second term we organized. The confusion and excitement of our first class meeting! The first year we chose our class pins and started off the second by drawing up a class Constitution by which the class has faithfully abided.

Our class was rather shy so our activities did not commence until our Junior year. But even then our class was not so much for the social as for the educational side. The class forgot its own interests and worked in the school's behalf. During the year we held a very successful Hallowe'en party. A sleighride was attempted in February, but the weather would not permit. The girls held a Thanksgiving party, but left the boys out. Two of the most important offices in the Roman State were held by members of our class, that of "Praetor Urbanus," by Foster L. Mills, and that of "Pontifex Maximus," by Winfield Riefler. A Roman Trial was conducted successfully in October by Foster Mills. The Clarion's most successful year, financially, was due to Winfield Riefler's management. Our class claims the honor of giving the school one of the most efficient student presidents they have ever had. This office was held by Winfield Riefler. Leola Mayer and Luella Goodridge played on the girls' basketball team.

Our fourth and last year was the most eventful one. In February we held our Junior Dance, postponed from our Junior year. It was an "all-around" success. This year Helene Tierney was a member of the girls' debating team and helped East High to keep the Delta Phi cup. The chess team was captained and managed this year by two of our members, Sol Posner and Maurice Komenski, respectively. Engle Marks played on the school basketball team, and Winfield Riefler was Censor of the Roman State. Bernice Doehler proved a most capable editor-in-chief of Der Kamerad.

The members of the class have all worked for the interests of the school and have attained results of which the school and class may be justly proud.

May this history help the class of January 1915 to recall in the future its happy high school days.

HELENE A. TIERNEY,
Class Historian.

Class Prophecy

ANNA CAROLINE PICK

"Should auld acquaintance be forgot
An' never brought to min'?"
We hope the class will think of this
In nineteen thirty-nine.

DECEMBER 31, 1938—Twenty-five long, dreary years spent amongst the heathen, thousands of miles away from civilization and friends, a stranger in a strange and hostile land. At last my mission here is ended and I am again free to join my own people. I have watched and waited for this eventful hour and it has come finally. Tomorrow our good ship will set sail for Home and I am counting the hours until I shall be in dear old Rochester again. What a vision home brings to my mind! Vividly I see the Class of January 1915 and how anxious I am to know whether each one achieved the successes he was striving for.

January 1, 1939—Set sail for San Francisco. Imagine my surprise when on board the vessel, I recognized the Captain as Whyland Sprong and I knew his ambition had been realized for he was at least running something. I asked him to introduce me to a party of tourists whom I thought looked familiar. One was Count Rockford Filski and another Sir William Grimm, English noblemen.

"What a change," thought I, "in my former class-mates!"

They were forced to go to America to put up bail for two people whom they thought I might know. Did I? Poor "Maury" Komenski had tried to get money under false pretenses and was caught at it this time; no, he was not class treasurer but a politician; the other was Irwin Cole, the famous soapbox orator, charged with hot (?) -headedness in delivering an oration on "How To Be Happy Though Married."

January 3—Arrived in San Francisco. Glad to be under the Stars and Stripes again. Women had at least obtained their rights here; the customs inspectors were Cora Fowler and Mary Cohen. The largest hotel was run by Reed & DuBois. I then went to the "Minton Gardens." Katherine Poorman was clerk here. Upon being shown around in the kitchen, I caught a glimpse of Elston Yaeger employed as head cook and Conrad Zaenglein as dish washer; Edward Ashworth was general "girl." So this was a result of women's rights. Deliver me!

January 5—And still as I near New York, I meet more of my friends. In Chicago, where I stopped off to view the stock yards, I noticed Joseph Lisson who was extremely happy, being still able to "shoot the bull." I visited an exposition here, and whom should I meet but David Hackwell and I am sure his ambition was realized as he was the "perfect" model for Goldman, Levine & Begy, makers of "Klass Klothes."

January 7—At last, the Statue of Liberty and New York; almost home! My attention was attracted to a small urchin who persisted in trying to sell me a paper. Finally I yielded, but horrors! what difficulties did I encounter as I again endeavored to labor through German! The editor of Die Hausfrau was Bernice Doehler. On the first page under Isadore Messinger's picture, printed in large red letters: "If You Want Your Rights, Vote for Messinger on Socialist Ticket." In looking through the paper, I noticed that Clayton Bush had been unable to pose for "Slimy Si the Sleuth" for some time, as late hours did not agree with him, and that the famous artist, Mary McConnell, (providing she did not forget) would have to seek elsewhere for such an excellent model. I took the bus down Fifth Avenue, and who should be the "shouter" but Rachael Muscat; Ray sure did make good use of her voice. As we rode, my eye caught sight of a sign, "Elmer Greenstone, M.D., Heart and Head Specialist." I especially noticed a conspicuously dressed young lady and upon inquiry found her to be Gweneth Thompson, a frivolous creature who cared for nothing but society. What a change in the Gweneth of by-gone days!

"Down with men, down with men!"

Naturally, I could not help but listen and who should the speakers be but Sophia Braveman, followed in turn by Grace Fisher. A weak-voiced person in the audience came forward and cried:

"Well, if you don't want them, I do."

Everyone was anxious to see who could be so brave, and upon being asked her name and address she gave it as Eunice Bickford, Abramson's Home for Old Maids. I hurried to the home, wondering whether I might find some of my other class-mates there. The first one I saw was Mildred Churchill, heart-broken, bemoaning her fate; also Ida Levenson and Ina Acheson who "never did have any use for them anyhow." I asked them if they ever heard of our other class friends and they told me Garson Meyer had published a book entitled "Take Up Economics and Be Happy." Earl Newman, I learned, had invented a way to disguise one's self completely when arrested for speeding eight times a week. That evening, I went to the event of the season, the Tierney-Booth ball. By way of entertainment, Mr. Booth gave exhibitions of the latest society dances, the waltz and two-step, and we were very fortunate in obtaining for one performance, the only human giraffe in captivity, Arthur Weston. Among the prominent members present were Rev. Spaeth, Henry Salmon, head of the Y. M. C. A., and Sol Posner, the world famous man who could play chess and talk at the same time.

January 10—Dear Rochester at last! It seems as if it were but yesterday that I left. I do not recognize many faces but still I am happy to be back. Just one more glimpse of East High “for old times sake.” Our beloved Mr. Wilcox had accepted another position and in his place was Winfield Riefler of whom the teachers were very much afraid. What a change in Room 24! Hannah Cohen as a stern old French teacher would not go on with the lesson until the giggling ceased. Lillian Gruber was very successful as an elocution teacher; Leola Mayer was physical directress and urged all the freshies to take up basketball. As head of the typewriting department, I found Luella Goodrich, who was then dictating something about women’s unions. Bertha Goldberg was a teacher of English and had the course so arranged that all the pupils read poetry and picked out descriptive passages. No more Burke, Carlyle, or Lincoln speeches!!! I left the school feeling satisfied and knowing that those pupils would have an advantage as good as I had had. Walking down Main Boulevard, I looked over Sorge’s Barber Shop and read a sign “Hallauer & Hill, Farmers.” Sam doing a “Skin” business and Everett and Wilbur expert farmers. A neighbor of these farmers was Elliot Smith, experienced chicken raiser. I recalled our usual “hangout” and entered the Victoria. The manager, Foster L. Mills, recognized me at once and complained of poor business. He told me he had given Engle Marks a pass for life.

Jean Cadzow, Ruth Lerner and Anna Wolfe had made a success on the stage and were playing at the Temple. Sidney Freedman was admiral of the "White Kitchen," taking charge of all the vessels. Melba Welsh had settled down, I heard, and was devoting all her time to teaching her children how to swim. She told me she had taken her youngest to the school of Link & Gordon, who were running an exclusive place for children. Glenwood Piper and George McBride were gentlemen of leisure, occasionally playing the stock market. I saw George Madigan walking up and down Main Street between two signs on which was printed, "Sarah, the Man of Mystery. Hear Him Sing or You'll Miss the Greatest Opportunity of Your Life."

And so it was with them all, some here, some there, yet each striving for success.
