The Senior Annual

June 1919
FOREWORD

In this book we have set down the history of our sojourn in East High's spacious halls and the activities of the past school year. We have attempted to include that which is worthwhile and interesting.

We have tried to work on the principle of "quality not quantity."

We submit it to you in the hope that its worth may grow as the years roll by.
TO

MISS GEORGIA M. HUNTINGTON
MR. ALBERT H. WILCOX
AND
MR. WILLIAM C. WOLGAST

—THE THREE MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY TO WHOM WE ARE MOST INDEBTED FOR PAST KINDNESS AND GUIDANCE. WE, THE CLASS OF JUNE 1919, DO AFFECTIONATELY AND RESPECTFULLY DEDICATE THIS SENIOR ANNUAL.
R. WILLIAM CARL WOLGAST was born on the good old farm in the township of Amherst, Erie County, New York, on July 23, 1888. After completing the course of study at the "little red schoolhouse," he went to Tonawanda High School, from which school he entered the University of Rochester, graduating from that institution in 1915.

Before coming to East High School, Mr. Wolgast taught in the Newark, New York, High School.

There are many reasons too numerous to mention, why the members of June 1919 feel that Mr. Wolgast is simply a brother to everyone in the class. But perhaps the reason why the feeling first arose is that he entered the halls of East High School with the class of June 1919. Mr. Wolgast, through his never ceasing efforts, has instilled in each one of us, some of that fine spirit of American manhood of which his is such a fine example. He will always be remembered by the class as one of the finest friends a "fellow ever had."
MISS GEORGIA M. HUNTINGTON was born in a little town called Quaker Street, near Philadelphia. However, the family soon moved to Rochester, and Miss Huntington has lived in this city ever since. After studying at the Rochester High School, Miss Huntington went to Vassar College, from which institution she graduated in 1903.

Miss Huntington then came to East High School to teach in the Mathematics Department. After a trip through Europe, she studied in New York, and then came back to East High. At the end of our second year in school she was appointed Faculty Advisor of the class.

Miss Huntington has proved a kind and interested advisor, and her smile has cheered us whenever we have felt downhearted. She will always remain in our memory as the embodiment of true loyalty and friendship.
MRS. NORMAN D. STEVE was born in East Henrietta, N. Y., and prepared for college in the Pittsford High School. From there she went to the University of Rochester, graduating with her class in 1912.

Mrs. Steve then took up teaching at the Pittsford High School and came to East High School in 1914, as a teacher in the mathematics department.

When the class of June 1919 entered the halls of East High School Mrs. Steve, then Miss Frances Glotzbach, was appointed the faculty advisor, in which capacity she served until she left school in 1918.

During the two years that Mrs. Steve was with the class the girls, especially, derived great benefit from her sincere and friendly attitude and counsel. It was with deep regret that they witnessed her departure, and they were indeed thankful to have had such a friend at all.
East High School
The School Year

With each new semester the large and ever increasing registration at East High is a cause for wonder and anxiety. But, nothing daunted, it mounts higher and higher. To say that we have reached our limit would be misleading, for we are already far beyond it, and, furthermore, accommodations, however inadequate, will have to be attempted for the increasing numbers. The present registration stands at nineteen hundred and fifty-five students. This is practically a hundred per cent over the number for which the building was originally planned. It has been possible to carry on, under such crowded conditions, only by having the pupils entering in January report for classes in an afternoon session which begins for some at 11:30, for others at 12:45, and still others at 1:30, and closes at 4:30. This serves the purpose, in so far as attending classes goes, but to many of our boys and girls it is a big question whether school really means business in the way that it should. Although classes have been getting larger, especially in the lower grades, the greatest difficulty is encountered, rather, in the matter of school administration. To an outsider it must seem as though East High is never really at work, for some students are always coming in, and others leaving, for it is quite desirable to have students go home to lunch, if they live in the vicinity of the school, and again, to excuse others early in order to relieve the congestion as much as possible.

As a result of this very badly over-crowded condition, some of the things we do are merely worthy attempts. We attempt to provide each student with locker accommodations; we attempt to have a seat for everyone in a study room; we attempt to give all a part in the assembly, which is so essential to the creating of wholesome school spirit; and, finally, we attempt to fulfill the requirements of the state law, calling for an hour of gymnasium work and one of recreation for each student in the school each week with our apology for a gymnasium and no athletic field at all!

However, it would not be proper to create the impression that our time is wholly spent in complaining, for we continue to do things at East High in spite of difficulties. We have every reason to believe that the work done in the class-room is up to the standard; our athletic teams are giving fine accounts of themselves, and we sing and play as well as usual. In one particular we are especially proud of our achievements, and that is in the purchase of Thrift Stamps. Our goal for the year ending in June is set at fifteen thousand dollars. Our chances of attaining it are exceedingly encouraging, in that for several successive weeks the school has stood one hundred per cent, for every student present on the day of the sale made a purchase of some denomination.

Our special joy and satisfaction since November 11 has been the gradual return to our midst of those who had gone from us, both students and members of the faculty, to render service to the country. First we welcomed back those who were still in camps in this country, and, after several months, came those from "Over There," direct from the field of battle, with wounds and lingering effects of being gassed, all evidences of work well done.

The old world to-day is sick of many aches, the causes for which are not easily chronicled. The cures for all its woe are also many and varied and not readily arrived at. Yet if we attempt to arrive at as simple a solution as possible we ought to encounter no trouble in agreeing that it needs more enlightenment. If this be true, how can our citizens continue to neglect the proper education of our boys and girls because of such a lack of sufficient school buildings and equipment. And to you for whom this book is the parting word in your school life, and who now go to meet the bigger problems of life, do not forget to use your influence in securing adequate educational facilities for Rochester.

Class Poem

It was about four years ago
That we entered old East High,
But those dear four years of ours
Have year after year rolled by.

It is our Alma Mater dear,
For which our banners raise,
It is East High, the school of ours,
That gets our love and praise.

It will be with tender memory,
That we'll think, dear school, of thee,
For long is the time we've worked with you,
In search of life's golden key.

As our high school life now comes to a close,
And the sun sets on the side of the hill,
Eyen though we shall be far from thee,
Thy name shall go with us still.

So now that we are Seniors,
And look at the life to come,
It is just then we start to realize
That our life has just begun.

It is we, the Seniors, of Old East High,
Who will get the cheer and the yell,
But we, as the class of June '19,
Can only say, "Farewell."

ARTHUR J. BAMANN, '19.

JAMES A. AUSTIN

Private Austin left his school work and the Class of June '19 October 10, 1917, enlisting in the infantry. He has been in France for the past twelve months, and has recently returned home.

ARTHUR DURBIN
119 Hillside Avenue

Private Durbin enlisted in April, 1918, and went into training at Camp Wadsworth, South Carolina. In June, 1918, he went overseas, returning in March, 1919, with the Twenty-Seventh Division.

Class President (3), Executive Council (3), Class Constitutional Committee (1), Soccer Team (2-3), Wearer "R," "E," Numerals, Cross Country (1), Track (1), Roman State Official (1), Class Basketball (1-2), Second Basketball Team (3).

ERNEST MARTIN is another member of the class who responded to the country's call. He left with the other boys and has spent several months in France.

We regret that we were unable to procure Martin's picture for the Annual.
As we look back on our years in East High School we say, of course, that June 1919 is the finest class that ever entered that finest school in the Union. Many have been the good times and the friendships that have come through the class of June 1919 and East High.

In September, 1915, a very long, straggling line of very green Frosh came to East High for the first real school day of their young lives. Three hundred and fifty greenies made up the Class, the largest one that ever entered the school.

Everyone soon became used to his surroundings and, as Frosh finals or (half-bakes), the boys and girls held their separate class meetings and organized. In the spring the girls held a sausage roast at Durand-Eastman Park. They had the usual difficulties with the fire and usual good walks and "sings." A little later the boys held a similar roast at the same place. They played baseball, swam, fished, fought and acted as all Frosh do.

During the "Soph" year the girls held two parties in the girls' gym; one at Christmas and another in the spring—this one was intended to be a picnic but was turned into a party because of rain. The boys had a coasting party at Highland Park during the winter.

The next fall, when Juniors, the boys and girls combined, and since then the June '19 spirit has been running high. During the Junior year we had three parties. The first was the "Junior Yump," held in the girls' gym. At this the boys and girls became better acquainted while eating orange ice and cake. The next party was the "Rag Bag Tag," held at the Brick Church Institute because of the coal shortage at school. Although the place was rather unfamiliar everyone who dared to come had a fine time. The pinnacle of success for the year was the "Junior Dance," which came off in the spring in the upper corridors. It was one success from start to finish.

In the fall of 1918 we came back to school, Seniors, determined to have an ideal year and one of which we should be proud. Everyone pitched in to put the Class to the front and to make it illustrious in the annals of the school. The first party of our last year was the "Senior Spree," held in the girls' gym. At this the boys and girls became better acquainted while eating orange ice and cake. The next party was the "Rag Bag Tag," held at the Brick Church Institute because of the coal shortage at school. Although the place was rather unfamiliar everyone who dared to come had a fine time. The pinnacle of success for the year was the "Junior Dance," which came off in the spring in the upper corridors. It was one success from start to finish.

The Class has taken a prominent part in East High affairs ever since its entrance. It has been exceptionally well represented on the Clarion, in athletics, dramatics, debating, in fact, in all the activities of the school. Several of the Class gave up their school life to take part in the great war, and during the spring, summer and fall of 1918 many of our boys and girls left school to work on farms, to help win the war.

Here you have in a few words the outstanding features of June '19; its endeavors and successes. The Class has reason to be proud of its history. It stands upon its merits and accomplishments, and, best of all, having spent four years in East High, it goes out leaving the school finer for having harboured the Class of June 1919 within its walls.

FRANCES M. GREENE, Historian.
(The following narrative was brought into our editorial rooms some few months ago by an eccentric genius who affirmed that every word of it was true. Be that as it may, we attempt neither to substantiate nor to discredit his tale and publish the manuscript here, more because of its unique character than for any literary merit or current interest.—Ed. Note. December 20, 1949.)

UPON my graduation from high school, incensed at a society so organized that the majority could tyrannize with impunity over the minority and individual members, and feeling that one of my basic rights as a citizen of a free country—"the pursuit of happiness"—had been infringed upon, I left the world of men and embraced a mode of living, exempt from the fetters of society and civilization. I became a hermit and dwelt absolutely alone in an inaccessible region of one of the wildest sections of this country. The reason for my action was this: In January, 1919, the States of the Union ratified the Prohibition Amendment to the Constitution, making it a law of the land.

Thus I lived for thirty years without seeing a human form or hearing a human voice but my own and only reminded of the fact that the world of men was busy on the outside of my impenetrable wilderness by an aeroplane (a mail plane, as I afterward found out) which twice a day flew over my forest abode.

One day, as I sat watching the flight of the huge, purring bird over my head (it had long since become my custom to be ready and watching when it flew over) I saw a little black speck fall from the machine. As it sped nearer to the earth its color became white, and the next instant it dropped in the forest not far from where I sat. I hastened to where it lay and picked it up. It was a newspaper. I had kept my faculties of reading and speech by reading aloud daily from my Bible, and I eagerly tore open the wrapper. The headlines seemed to jump out at me, and my head reeled, for this is what I read:

"COUNTRY AGAIN WET."
"After Thirty Arid Years Congress Repeals Dry Amendment."
"Experiment a Failure."

I stopped to read no more, but rushed to my shack and packed up a few belongings in a bag ready to start at sunrise and then sat down to read thoroughly my paper by the light of a blazing log fire.

No sooner had I begun to scan the columns, however, than strange recollections began to surge back upon me. My school days, out of which I had stepped into this wilderness, passed before my mind's eye, and the cause for all this was the startling items I saw spread before my eyes.

The sheet I had was a copy of the "Chicago Clarion," edited by the noted Earl L. Arnold and owned by William Vicinus, the "Cattle King," bank president, millionaire of the windy city, who had unsuccessfully run for mayor seventeen times.

The main feature of the day's news was, of course, the victory of the wet forces. Their head and the author of the bill was Hon. John A. Graham, of Reno, representative from Nevada and international president of the "Y. W. C. A." The leader of the opposition was Hon. Miss Margaret Weston, of New Jersey, president of the Federated W. C. T. U. and Anti-Saloon Leagues of America." The article was written by the special press correspondent, Barney D. Iola, and was therefore undoubtedly the most authentic and accurate speculation on what might have been true obtainable.
The article went on to intimate that the president was heartily in accord with Congress' action. Miss Gates, it said, had always been a stateswoman, and never had she so clearly shown it as now.

Probably, at some time in your life, gentle reader, you have experienced a series of astounding occurrences, heaped one upon another with confounding complexity. If you have, you know that after a certain point has been reached you cease to be astonished any longer and take the most outré happenings as if they were part of your daily life. This was the point I had reached. During the rest of my extraordinary adventures I took things as they came, and I must leave it to my readers to determine, perhaps with the aid of their imaginations, any unusual occurrences.

But to get back to my newspaper; I will list the items I noted without any attempt, as I said, at comment on their unique interest for me.

The International Court of Settlement of the League of Nations had just completed its session, and the American judge in the tribunal, Hon. William Carl Wolgast, was expected home shortly on the Trans-Atlantic Aero Line, when a detailed statement could be obtained on the decision in the Swiss-Dutch Cheese Controversy.

The suit of Insley vs. Crone for breach of promise was attracting considerable interest. It had been in the courts for fifteen years and seemed, as Judge Pergrin said, to be a clear case for Miss Insley, except that Crone very stoutly, and not without reason perhaps, claimed that he was not responsible for his actions and could not, accordingly, be sued. Levy and Lazerson were lawyers for the defense, while Misses Beckwith and Stein were handling the case for the plaintiff.

In the military line, an item ran that the Supreme Council of the League of Nations had ordered General Arthur Durbin with his army into Mexico to suppress internal disorders there. The article was not given a very prominent place, however, and seemed to treat the affair as an everyday occurrence such as a lynching in Georgia or a fight on St. Patrick's Day.

The coming elections occupied no little space in the columns, and Samuel Horowitz, the manager of the Socialist Party, was earnestly requesting, from the printed page, that all loyal, fair-minded citizens vote for the candidates of his party: Stark for Governor; Wingo for mayor; Emma Silien for United States Senate and Anna Rissinger for Representative from that district. The Prohibition Party, the other strong political organization in the field, was under the leadership of Katherine Deininger and offered for the approval of its constituents, the following: Alice Milliman for governess; for mayor, Marion Hess; for United States Senator, Sadie Neiman, and Eunice Peck for Representative. Dorothy McWade was Commissioner of Elections, and Florence Sowerby had just been reappointed to a seat in the Supreme Court. Elsie Reynolds and Mabel Gilbert were going on a debating tour representing their respective parties to fight out the issues.

Next I turned to the theatrical page and beheld the various bills and programs with an accompanying editorial on each production, rendered by the celebrated critics, Aaron Becker, Doris Wait, Olga Graeper and Frances Crombie.

First came the notice of the great indoor circus owned by Giff Bloomer, the successor to P. T. Barnum. It was advertised as the greatest show on earth or on Mars by its publicity manager, Louis Kirzenbaum. Art Ashman and Gordon Berns, premier clowns of America, were among the headliners. Elsie Traenkle, the bare-back rider, and Edna White, the marvellous toe dancer, were supposed to be worth coming halfway across the country to see. Reeves, Marzullo and Mendelowitz, the death-daring acrobats, would hold the spectators breathless while the savage wild beasts of Howard Spencer, the celebrated lion-tamer, jumped through blazing hoops. Trained seal would perform for Fischer, and mammoth elephants for Bowie. Oppenheimer, it stated, had been given charge of all the monkeys in the show because of his intimate acquaintance with the habits of these animals.

The next announcement that attracted my attention was the program for the Annual Music Festival to be held shortly, at which all the leading musicians in the country would be present. The famous singers, Van Tassel, Lap, Bagnall, Oliver, and Kane; Bamann and Rosenthal, the peerless violinists, Brennan and Claudia Goldstein, upon whose heads had fallen Paderewski's fame; and Helen Brown and Elva Pembroke, the noted elocutionists and free verse exponents; all were to be there and it was prophesied that under the direction of Walt Taylor, the affair ought to be a magnificent success.

The "Song and Dance Revue of 1949" seemed to be one of the large productions then running. Its cast was advertised as follows, and was purported to be the equal of any ever gathered on one stage: Louise DeMocher, Bertha Cady, Alean Hahn, Isabel Steele, and Lucy Anthony. These stars were supported by a large chorus and the following gentlemen: Barg, Brown, Fenner, Perry, and Weinstein, with Jimmee Welch as the comedian.

Along the line of heavier drama, Abe Lipsky's "Liberty Theater," advertised the famous melodrama "The House of a Thousand Follies" or "Fifteen Years in Congress," by Bernance Adwen, with a star cast made up of Elma Costich, Elizabeth Coxford, Julia Goldstein, Helen Middleton, Amy Stebbins, Joe Leichtner, Henry Leonardo, Jerome Diamond and Harry Caplan.

At the "Summer Garden," Albert Lipman's playhouse, what was put forward as the sensation of the decade was running. It was a drama of the good old style by Doris Rich, entitled: "The Mormon Widower." Kaspet Solomon, the grieving husband, bereft of his nine hundred and thirteen wives, because the cook put rat poison in the soup one night when he was out at the club, was superb, it was said, and was ably supported by a cast made up of the following theatrical lights: Pauline Simon, Constance Borisch, Hortense Doehler, Polly Finucane, Jennie Hoffman, Stella Rosenbaum, Mildred Vincent, Doris McClelland, Morris Lester and Philip Karz.

The movies of course, got their share of publicity, and among the leading film corporations, I read of Howard Steitz's company, "The Excelsior All-Stars." His latest production, a stirring drama of the life of the great unwashed, was entitled, "Jaded Jason, the Gashouse Slave." The scenario was written by Lydia Wuensch and directed by Abe Rotkawitz. Elmer Bleier and Virginia Grenelle starred, supported by a capable cast which contained the names of Lottie Bendes, Helen Baker, Frances Matthewson, Isabel Stillman and Helen Rekers.

The bill for the next three days of the week featured the play, "A Thousand on a Plate—A Drama of Baked Beans and Burglary," by Eunice Kernan, starring Marvel Ferguson and Mildred Fladd and directed by Gussie Relin.

In the book review column only three books were spoken of favorably. They were: "The Value to the Young of Intense Application to the Task in Hand," by the three noted experts on the subject, Marjorie Burnett, Bella London and Bernice Ginsburgh; next, the "Golden Smile of Loretta Labelle," by Pearl Brovitz, and Laura Robertson's masterpiece, "An Education and How To Get It."

Somewhat along this line, also, was an announcement that the book entitled "Utopian—The Universal Language," would soon be put before the public by its editors, Bessie Kennedy and Helen Meyer.

Favorable criticism was also bestowed upon Bertha Besley's manual: "Basket Ball—A Game for Old and Young and Especially Young Ladies."

As I had been perusing the last few columns of my paper, the fire had burned low, and my eyelids had grown heavy. With a reminiscient sigh I put up my precious sheet and devoted my attention to going to sleep, with happy visions of the scenes and adventures the morrow would bring.
I need not dwell on my trip out of my wilderness above and into the realm of civilized man. I will not stop here to mention the curiosity my strange appearance aroused nor the changes I saw 'round about me. Suffice it to say that in a short time I found myself alighting from the train in the very heart of one of the largest cities in this country.

At first I was very much confused and bewildered, especially as I had rushed headlong back into the world without giving the least thought as to where or how I was to live. As my mind cleared somewhat, my immediate needs became apparent, and looking around, I sought for someone who could direct me to a place where I could obtain food and lodging, as it was drawing on toward evening, and I had not tasted food since early in the morning. While looking about me I perceived, at some little distance from me, a gentleman of such exceeding height and spareness of stature that I was under the necessity of looking twice to be sure I was not scrutinizing a light pole. He was standing on the curb reading a paper, with apparently little to do, so I ventured to approach him.

"Pardon me, sir," I said, "but I am a stranger in these parts. Would you be so kind as to direct me to a place where I may obtain food and rest for my tired body?"

He looked up (or rather down) from his paper at me and took in my odd appearance with some amusement for an instant before answering. In that instant, imagine my surprise at recognizing my old school fellow, Hank Burton. Of course, he did not recall me, so changed was I, and I did not attempt to enlighten him, but, after receiving some directions from him in answer to my query and thanking him, I hesitated, desirous of at least asking him a few questions. At last I said:

"May I inquire your name, sir?"

He looked down again and answered: "Certainly. Henry Burton."

"And your occupation?"

"To know everyone and everyone's business."

"Ah, is not that quite an undertaking?"

"It is, but it is all in the game when one is a private detective."

"You are a detective, then?"

"Yes, the best one in America."

"And you know everyone and everyone's business?"

"Yes, everyone but you and everyone's business but yours. I say, old whiskers, I've taken quite a fancy to you. What is your name?"

I replied, "Nemo."

It was his turn to be astonished, and he asked: "What is your business?"

"Coming back to life."

At this he gave me a keen look, half amused, half inquiring, and after apparently sizing me up as a harmless but entertaining lunatic, he said: "Nemo, my friend, won't you take supper with me?"

I accepted with thanks, and we were soon seated at a table in a removed nook of a restaurant.

I opened the conversation:

"Now, friend Burton, since you are so well informed on the affairs of the many inhabitants of this land, perhaps you will be so kind as to give me some news of a few of my old friends, of whom I have lost track; for instance, Allen Morris."

He looked at me strangely and then answered.

"Nothing easier. Allen was a classmate of mine. Morris and Stein, another classmate of mine, are models for the great fashion plate artists, Ruth Robinson and Walter Pestke."
“Tell me about some more of your classmates,” I urged.

“Well,” he returned, “if it will be of any interest to you, I will. I always make it a point to be obliging. Let me see. Frank Cross is one of the leading salesmen of this section of the country. Pink suspenders are his line, I think. Dick DeMallie and his henchman, Frank Hartsen, run the politics of this city to please themselves. Abe Sanow is president of the Wheat National Bank. Three of the girls in my class, who couldn’t keep out of trouble any other way, have got jobs arresting other people for getting into trouble, and mighty fine policewomen Helen Scott, Helen Lindboe and Katherine Nettelman make, I tell you. Lena Sadowsky is the confidential secretary to Josephine Hettig, the efficiency expert of the city, and Esther Bertrand runs a hair-dressing parlor. Then, too, if you weren’t a total stranger in the city I suppose you would have heard of the famed Kandy Kitchen of Louise Burnett and Ruth Culley. Frances Greene, who, when we were in school, never knew what it was to be bothered by troubles, has had a nervous breakdown from excessive worry and mental anxiety, caused by trying to make a farm a paying proposition. She is resting up down South and writing a book with her farmerette friend, Helen McNall, on ‘How Not to Farm—A Guide for the Amateur Hick.’ Heinrich Kaman is the world’s chess champion, and the firm of Loysen, Mutschler and McNall runs a very stylish billiard academy. The latest sensation of the day is the elopement of Dorothy Kallusch with an English duke, and now, since we have finished our meal, if you will allow me to suggest a form of recreation for the evening, I would strongly recommend that we take in the pugilistic encounter at the Boxing Arena which is to take place this evening, and which will decide the middleweight championship of the world. Are you agreeable? O.K., thither let us wend our way.”

The hall was a marvelous structure and packed to the doors. My loquacious companion, Hank, informed me that it had been planned by Miss Georgia Huntington, the illustrious architect and geometrician, discoverer of the fourth dimension.

We did not have long to wait. Soon the announcer, Lillian Moeschler, stepped into the center of the ring and, in a full, round, resonant tone, made the following statement:

“Contestants for the title: Leslie Chilson, holder, and Roger Williams, challenger; seconds, respectively, Frank Leach and George Wilkin; referee, Vincent Fagan; water boys, Israel Levinstein, Howard Stape and Bertram McLellan; match, 30 rounds. Ladies will please remove their hats.”

Then the conflict began, and long and bloody was the scene we witnessed. At last Kid Williams succeeded in slapping Battling Chilson’s wrist, thereby sending him to the mat for the count, but in doing so he sprained his little finger and was carried from the arena in a dead faint.

The hour being late, I asked Hank if he would now show me where I could get a room for the night. This he most kindly did, and, as we were about to part, I said:

“Before we say ‘good-bye,’ may I put myself in your debt one bit further? Tell me, pray, what has become of my old acquaintance, Chuck Wilcox?”

Hank looked puzzled for an instant, then he answered:

“Ah, that I do not know, but, judging from what I knew of him in school and the way he was headed when I last saw him, he is safely in jail by now.”

With this we parted, and I was soon lost in dreams, seeing again my old schoolmates and witnessing once again the strange destinies which become the lot of those who tread the complex paths of this world.

CHARLES S. WILCOX, Prophet.
Class Will

E., the Class of June 1919, of East High School, Rochester, Monroe County, New York, being of sound disposing mind, do hereby make this our last will and testament in the manner following:

First. We hereby give, devise and bequeath unto the dear Freshmen the 8th, 9th, and 10th periods (except as delinquent upper classmen shall desire to use the 8th period in detention room), trusting that they will use them to good advantage in adding to their small supply of wisdom.

Second. We give and bequeath unto anyone so witless as to take them the clocks in this building, useful chiefly as instruments to show at what time the said instrument ceased to go.

Third. We give and bequeath unto the budding students of Elocution and admirers of the dramatic art the rear recesses of the assembly hall in which to enjoy their vacant periods.

Fourth. We give and bequeath the richly upholstered chairs in the lobby of Mr. Wilcox’s office unto any who may be so unfortunate as to have to occupy them.

Fifth. We give and bequeath unto all the unknowing and unsophisticated the sinkers and sundry other delicacies of the lunch room.

Seventh. We give and bequeath unto all or any who shall raise a prodigious thirst (especially after January 16, 1920), the drinking fountain on the boys’ side of the lunch room, trusting that he who drinks therefrom will remember that too much cold water in the stomach right after a meal is bad for the digestion.

Eighth. We give and bequeath unto the athletes and camouflaging time-killers afflicted with nothing to do, a corner in the gym office in which to bewail their troubles.

Ninth. We give and bequeath unto the class succeeding us the front seats in the assembly hall, trusting they will occupy them with becoming dignity and not disturb our chewing gum thereunder deposited.

Tenth. We give and bequeath, last but not least, unto the school in general with deep regret and best wishes for the future, our excellent class advisors, Miss Huntington and Mr. Wolgast, trusting they will find some other wanderers in the halls of learning in need of kind guidance, and trusting, also, that they may be as deeply appreciated and as sincerely admired by all those who come after us as they have been by the Class of June ’19.

In witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our hand and affixed our seal this very day on which the Annual shall come out.

(Signed) \[JUNE 1919\]

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The Executive Council has accomplished a great many things during the past year. One of the greatest of these is the inauguration of the “college suppers” for boys and girls. These suppers have proved in many cases of great advantage to the pupils in ascertaining the college which they should attend. The class of June ’19 hopes that this idea may be kept up in years to come.

CLARION

The Clarion is now, more than ever, considered one of the best school papers in the country. A great deal of credit is due the students who sacrifice several nights a week to this worthy activity.

SENIOR PLAY

The Senior Play, “Oliver Goldsmith,” went off in fine style, and, considering the fact that this is one of the most difficult plays ever attempted by high school students, its success was remarkable.

ORCHESTRA

During the past year the Orchestra has thrived, and we certainly wish we could hear it more often in the assemblies.

THRIFT STAMP CAMPAIGN

When the sale of Thrift Stamps was started, Mr. Wilcox emphatically declared that the amount of sales was not as important as the percentage of buyers, and the school has responded with one hundred per cent sales and a total of about twelve thousand dollars for the year.

BOOK EXCHANGE

One of the activities in East High, which is perhaps one of the most commendable and receives least notice, is the Book Exchange. It has saved a great deal of money for the students this year.

GLEE CLUBS

The Boys’ and Girls’ Glee Clubs have worked hard also, and their concerts in the assembly have been greatly appreciated by the whole school.

East High has done a great many things to help the country in time of need, but perhaps the greatest achievement she has made in that direction, has been in the Thrift Stamp sales.

The school eagerly took to the new way of saving, which has practically supplanted the former school savings bank system, and the total derived from sales kept increasing from week to week. But by far the most encouraging part of the accomplishment has been the number of weekly purchasers. The majority of the home rooms on both sides of the building subscribed one hundred per cent through the greater part of the year, and for several consecutive weeks the whole school stood one hundred per cent.

$15,000 has been set as the goal for the year's total, and all indications point to victory.

It was through the able and untiring efforts of the Home Room committees, that the remarkable record was made possible, but the lion's share of the credit for the success, is due to Mr. George H. Studley, who has organized the movement, and whose novel means of keeping it alive, have won the admiration of the most skeptical.
Any doubt that may linger in anybody's mind as to the ability of the girls to get in and do things ought to be dispelled by the record the Book Exchange has made this year under the direction of Frances Howard.

The Book Exchange, which is operated by the Commerce Club, has handled books during the past term the value of which amounted to over two hundred dollars, and saved about seventy dollars for the students of the school. By its diligent work the Book Exchange is gaining popularity among the students, and is proving a live, worthwhile organization.

The committee in charge of the Exchange this term consists of John Albiston, chairman, Frances Howard, manager, Albert Lipman, Emanuel Anderson and Gordon Wood. Mr. Clarence C. Rogers is the Faculty Advisor of the Book Exchange.
Other Organizations

The Science Club

When the Science Club was first organized it looked as if it would be a successful failure, but after meeting and overcoming many difficulties, it was finally established. Many of the teachers have given the club interesting talks on the subjects of gas masks, gold mining, sea weeds, astronomy, chemical experiments, insects and birds. Walks have been taken in the field for the purpose of studying the birds and flowers, and others will be taken in quest of insects and minerals.

Those interested in a club of this kind derive a pleasure from life, as new discoveries are constantly being made.

The Chess Club

The Chess Club has had an interesting revival during the past term. At the beginning of the year it started with a boom and has kept up the pace with which it started.

First it put through a successful school tournament, in which Heinrich Kaman and Jean DuBois were tied for the high honors. Later it ran off an interclass tournament in which June '19 came out on top. Not satisfied with this, the club backed a school championship tournament in May. The season as a whole has been exceptionally active, and it is to be hoped that future clubs will have the same success as did that of 1918-1919.

The Agora

The Greek Club, known to the school as the Agora, has just completed a successful term. They held a dance early in the year which gave all a good time. Later they gave two A-1 candy sales to the school and netted over twelve dollars on each. Five dollars of this money was contributed to the Scholarship Memorial Fund. May 7th, those eligible to take Greek received an entertainment from the Agora, which they say they will not forget soon.

The Agora is one of the few clubs in the school, which have lasted and made valuable contributions to the school. It has always held a place among the school activities, and its plans for next year promise to keep it there.

It would be exceedingly unwise to publish a Senior Annual in the year 1919, without saying something with regard to the Athletic season, for which that year will go down in the annals of the school, and giving due credit where it justly belongs.

The basketball season was by far the most interesting to follow of any the school has had in many years. Coach Arthur Donnelly did not have very many men who could be call "wizards at the game" to start off with, but nothing daunted, he pitched into the mix-up of candidates and molded a team that has made East High famous in Rochester's scholastic basketball circles. Don worked hard and earnestly and did not stop at anything to gain his ends, which were merely to put out a winning combination of basketball players, which we know he did. The men on the team fought with the old spirit that has characterized the years of basketball in the past, and, with such a coach as Donnelly, their task was made lighter by a large degree.

Manager of basketball, Vincent Fagan, did his share by pulling the team through with a good schedule and the season with a large financial margin for other teams to fall back upon.

Robert McKay is handling baseball, and we are sure that he will accomplish the fine things with his team that Donnelly has with his. With the return of James Fowle, East High can look forward to many other successful seasons in the sports.

The Swimming Team

The swimming team of this year has had to get out and hustle. They have had many set-backs which probably account to a great extent for their several defeats. A summary of the meets follows:

February 14th—East High vs. West High. Score: West High 32, East High 19.
April 23rd—East High vs. Hutchinson Central High of Buffalo, at Rochester. Score: Hutchinson 43, East High 27.

At the time of writing there are two meets still to be, one, a return meet with Lafayette, and one with Hutchinson, both at Buffalo. As in any sport there have been times when East High could have easily carried off the honors, by using a team which was not on the level. But despite the many defeats, the opposing teams have engaged the East High team, and the East High Spirit.

The Girls' Basketball Team (January '19)

Second row—Florence Dean, Miss Wangman, Katherine Chidsey.
Third row—Ernestine Watkins, Marguerite Schleser, Miriam Davis.
This year has been epoch-making in East High athletics, and the girls were by no means behind when it came to the building-up exercises. Although they were barred from playing outside teams, the lassies were by no means discouraged, and went to work with might and main to make the best of the situation.

As soon as the call to basketball was issued, scores of our South Side neighbors answered the call to colors, and before long the girls' gymnasium was alive with court aspirants. Many were the battles, and exciting, and the spirit with which some of the class teams took defeat was admirable. The end of the season saw the January '19 girls on top with an enviable record that bore no defeat.

With the basketball season over, the girls turned their attention to volley ball with the same "go" and pep. Now baseball is the leading sport, and in this out-door sport the girls could favorably compare with any fellow that ever swung a bat.

Much of the success of the girls' athletics this year is due to Miss Lillian Wangman, the girls' physical director. She has made every girl interested in athletics, and it was mainly through her efforts that the girls were awarded the right to receive insignia.
Reserve Basketball Team

Front row—Lynn Dickenson, Abraham Lipsky.
Second row—Louis Kirzenbaum, Lester Bedlove (Captain), Frank Gianforti.
Third row—John McDowell, Charles Callan.
In a high school as large as East High, it is hard for the students to show that they are backing the teams that represent the school in the sports. Of course there are a few financial ways of so doing, but the one real way is by cheering when watching the team in action.

East High has had a memorable year in almost everything, including cheering. This fact was shown at many of the basketball games of last year and at the baseball games of this year. The good work done by the team has been, and is, rewarded by the cheers from the sidelines. Howard Steitz and Millie Bayer (East High's first girl cheerleader), have accomplished the good work only by hard and consistent effort. To them East High's teams owe a lot.
June '19—Interclass Champions

Samuel S. Horowitz

The following credentials were handed in to our noble editor in all sincerity and should be treated in the same manner, despite the fact that on the outside of the neatly typewritten epistle were the calm words, “Please insert.” We beg you to read this and to pardon Sam for living, inasmuch as he, himself, has said, more than once, “I have no excuse for living.” Sam also says, “I am smart when I study.” To be exact:

SAMUEL S. HOROWITZ
48 Joiner Street
Grammar School No. 10
Massachusetts Institute of Technology (same as Harvard or Cornell or both)

Track (Freshman year), Interleague basketball (Sophomore year); I was candidate for E. H. S. Debating team, January 1918, headed by Mr. Clark, and have won a debate on the following topic: Resolved, That high school students should wear uniforms; I was captain of Miss Van Alstine’s third period English class in a debate with the same teacher’s fifth period English class on the following topic: Resolved, That Socialism is a menace to the Government of the U. S.; I have delivered a Fourth Liberty Loan address in my elocution class and was elected by my class to speak in Friday’s assembly; also spoke on the laws that were passed in the State Assembly (spoke about 13 minutes); at the close of my Soph year I stood highest in my classes, in Latin 95 per cent, in German 2-2, 89 per cent; have desire to propose arguments of all sorts in my civics class.

Editor’s note—It is beyond a doubt that the above is a wonderful piece of Bohemian literature, and we regret that we cannot put it alongside those of some of the world’s greatest writers, as Sam himself would have us do. It is indeed an honor to our class to have such a man, and his outstanding ability. The accompanying picture tells the tale. B. D. I. could not get Sam to pose for quite a time, and when he finally did get him to, he managed to get in with an axe to save the rest of the class a job. ’Nuf has been sed.
