Alma Mater

Sweet be thy memory,
 High School of ours;
Fair be thy destiny,
 Fadeless thy flowers;
Hearts that have loved thee
 Have won in life's fight;
Names that we honor
 Thy standard holds bright.

Our Alma Mater dear,
 To thee we sing;
May all thy future years
 New honors bring;
May friends thy banners raise,
 Thy foes grow less,
All love and praise
 To our old E. H. S.

Class History

One cold, brisk February morning, four long years ago, the teachers and members of East High School, grateful for the honor thus conferred upon them, welcomed to its spacious halls two hundred fifty verdant "frosh," who were to compose the glorious and memorable class of January, 1922.

After being duly initiated into the halls of this famous building, and having found out where the office was, and where the elevator wasn't, the class proceeded to make itself known. However, it was not able to do much the first year, because of the "flu" epidemic.

The second year of our course brought forth a semblance of union between the members. The girls organized and held a couple of lively parties in the gym. The boys went so far as to elect officers, and committees, but at that point they became either frightened or lonesome, for they held no jollifications at all.

In our junior year the North and South, weary of "stag" affairs, combined organizations, and everyone came forward with enthusiasm to make the name of January '22 illustrious. Our two parties, the "High Jinx Ball" and the "Hallowe'en Hop" were brilliant and successful affairs, while the "Junior Jaunt" at Durand-Eastman Park proved as thrilling and unusual as a picnic can be.

In order not to be selfish, the class held a candy sale which gave everyone something sweet to think about, and added greatly to the class treasury.

As seniors, much work lay before us. Although candy sales and plays were predominant and important, we managed to squeeze in time for two socials, known respectively as the "Spring Special" and the "Senior Serenade." The latter was the crowning success of our high school career. In June we joined forces with June '21 and sailed over the deep blue sea to a metropolis, called Cobourg.

January '22 has tried to add to the strength of the school activities. It has been exceptionally well represented on the Clarion, in dramatics and in athletics. Under the direction of Miss Burns, it has given very successfully both a senior farce and play.

Now, as we stand on the threshold of a long and misty future, we wonder if the coming years will hold as much pleasure and opportunity for us as those we have passed in our dear Alma Mater.

HELEN GREEN, Historian.

Mr. Eddy—"Now what are you here for?"

The Class Poem

Do you Remember
 How that last dawn we softly stole away
 And swiftly through the silent wood we sped
 Half sad to think it was the last time
 we should tread
 This trail to greet the coming day?

Do you Remember
 How the fairies of the dawn had left frail cobwebs on the grass
 And all the blades were glistening wet with dew
 The old familiar scene, how strange and new
 To eyes that first saw dawn come dancing past?

Do you Remember
 How the mist in upward curling flight
 Ghostlike in gossamer veils of gray
 Brushing the mirror surface of the day
 Kissed us with lips chill cold as a winter's night?

All this you must remember
 How beauty shimmered through a blur of tears
 As all the pan pipes of dawn
 Poured forth in silver soaring song
 The melody of coming years.

HELEN WILCOX, Poet

The Prophecy

Night falls quickly in the desert and as our caravan journeyed towards the oasis of Bir el-Abd the sun's last purpling rays kissed the desert sand. We were on our way to El Arish in our first visit to the Orient in January of 1935.

Before us stretched miles and miles of sandy barren. One could not feel alone, however, with the myriad of stars lighting the deepest of midnight blue skies.

A caravan of some distinction which had passed us earlier in the day was encamped in a palm grove not far from us. A Bedouin, clad in silk with a striped turban, reclining on a Damascus rug of orange, smoked before a fire.

Our dragoman, Nirza, informed us he was a savant of mixed blood, Sheik Aba El Kasam. Furthermore, this nomad of a wandering tribe was far famed as a prophet.

Our curiosity thus aroused to fever heat, we dispatched the faithful Nirza to intercept him in our behalf. He returned with the word that Sheik Aba El Kasam had most graciously consented to receive us.

Seated around the Bedouin's fire we begged him to tell us what had become of our friends in America—the class of January 1922. Our interpreter, a half naked Moslem boy, put our appeal into picturesque jargon to our unintelligible ears.

The seer must have been of an imaginative faculty, extraordinary. After smoking placidly he suddenly dropped his nargitheh, stared wildly around him and worked himself into a frenzy of body that cast weird shadows over the creamy colored sand.

Silence again and the desert had returned to its ancient solemnity as old and wide and still as the stars themselves. This time it was the Moslem boy who interrupted with his interpretation.

It would be too arduous a task to repeat the story word for word in the broken English in which it was given. Consequently the following is simply the story of the mind pictures that the Moslem boy's words produced.

The first scene that came before my eyes was Greenwich village with all the unique signs of its trade. Here I found Helen Reynolds established as a Bohemian artist of masques, and not far from her was Mildred Forster, the second Zona Gale. Dorothy Sykes, the spiritualist, was interrupted by Albert Eidman who dropped in to invite them to a party in honor of the Russe artiste, Ruth Lapides.

Mr. Wolgast—"If you don't know, make a good guess."

Albert, it seems, is in charge of a section of the New York Sun devoted to advice to girls on the delicate subject of how-to-hold-your-husband-with-household-chemistry. His advice, however, had proved fatal in the case of Virginia Thompson, the fascinating widow.

The scene changed and I found before me Broadway in all its glitter of electric lights. Saloma McGregor and Priscilla Greene were "headliners" in the season's success, the "Lure of the Sea." Angelo Maggio, the famous contortionist, was entering with Ethel Stillman, the philanthropist.

Then, as the interpreter mentioned Julius Lichter, familiar Rochesterians flashed before my eyes. Julius, you know, is the architect of the North High School where Laura Mae Robertson teaches.

It seemed that the next words of the Moslem boy were surely a fault of hearing, but no—it was true. Frieda Rose is married to Robert James, the cigarette manufacturer, where, sad to relate, the consumption is greater than the output. Robert's old friend Carleton Rudman is now the owner of a thriving ranch in upper Nevada. Not long ago, Albert Isner attempted to sell him some Sloane's Linament for his mustang Lightning. He left hastily on Janice Paine's jitney airplane for the refreshing air of Rochester.

As the seer described East Avenue I understood more fully the truth, "the old must give way to the new." For here Katherine Nair had opened a "French Pastry Shoppe." Helen Adler, the snake swallower, and Dorothy Briggs, the matron of the Orphan Asylum, sipped tea and nibbled French pastry while they discussed the affairs of Henry Cardew, who was teaching jazz to the African Cannibals.

Again the scene shifted to the famous Dutch Delicatessen where a sign read "food cooled to stirring air of music," and of course Lawrence Heinrich was proprietor. Earl Guttenberg hurried in to buy beans for his nineteen, hungry young scamps. A huge car sped past with two frightened personages on the back seat, Julia Bishop, first lady of the land, and Arthur Welsh, the detective. Myra Kuimjian, in a ducky chauffeur's uniform, was gleefully feeding the gas. They were on their way to see Hilda Zimmerman's "Home for Stray Cats," but Arthur went on to keep an appointment with Beatrice Moshier, the heart specialist. Myra brought the car to a sudden stop, nearly running over the Chief of Police, Harry Clark, who expressed his opinion in no few words. Harry wasn't feeling very good humored. He had just removed Standish Favour to a new abode, familiar to those who disturb the public peace. Stan's pal, Edward Steele, had lost little time and had "freighted" it to Washington. Here he spent happy days playing put and take with Bertha Kentner, the novelist.

Atta Bartlett is also in Washington. She has opened a school for "Midsummer Night Madness" where Clinton Haines teaches dancing. He uses his feet for other feats however, for Philip Gordon, the demonstrator of Armstrong Heaters made a somewhat hasty exit through the front door.

Again, as quickly as the figures of the silver sheet change, Maynard Hallman, ambassador to Japan, and Richard Evans, the explorer, stood before me. Dick is exalted for his work in finding the entrance to Hades. At present he was taking a little recreation from exhausting labors in the form of a vaudeville show. Williard Glerum and Inez de Calesta, the vampire, featured with Violet Bender, in a one act play entitled "The Village Gossip."

After the play, Violet hurried over to Bedina Fenig, attorney-at-law, who is conducting a suit for damages against Spencer Cook, the beauty specialist. The affair is causing quite a bit of comment inasmuch as Dr. Peter Altpeter is testifying in Miss Bender's behalf. Like many other physicians, Dr. Peter was in a great hurry, especially at this time. He was to meet Mr. Earl Hieb, who has amassed a small fortune from his "panacea-for-all-ills."

They were due at the wedding of Miss Marion Fleischer and the wedding was a big event. The bride was to wear a coronet of pearls and rubies, beautifully executed by Marguerite Butts, a craftsman of silver and jewels. Faith Hewitt has recently returned from France with the wedding gown, created by herself.

Among the out of town guests were Samuel Grover, who is so besieged by women that he hasn't time for an occupation; Ward Hamilton, the famous smuggler of Bourbon; Mary Wallace, now a countess, beloved of all Italians; and James Crombie, Jr., who holds the golf championship of America.

Miss Murphy—"When the faculty gave this play."

Speaking of sports, of course you remember Selden Mapes: Irene Preston his social secretary, says it's simply impossible to keep track of his affairs. He recently lost quite a sum at the races after following the tip of Elmer Smith, the jockey. At present he is much interested in Carolyn Bareham's movement to renew the ancient order of King Arthur's Court. Jack Berman is backing the enterprise. He has returned to Jerusalem with Jerome Cowen, Ralph Hurwitz, and Benjamin Levine, where they are cultivating dates.

Adelaide Seneca is carrying out her romantic qualities as the head of an expedition in quest of a buried treasure in the South Sea Islands. The inspiration lies in a map which was discovered in the bottom of a dried-up well, which once belonged to the estate of an old seapirate. The other members of the expedition, Harvey Olsan, Arthur Joffe, and Philip Gordon are confident of its success. They base their hopes on the words of Madame Verna Morse who predicts a long journey for Adelaide and declares by the Mount of Venus that she has great financial ability.

Nathan La Due, the society leader, gave a farewell party at Beatrice Stahl's Tea Kettle Inn. Ella Trox and Evelyn Zweig, the two pretty waitresses, were quite startled to hear Eva Lipsky's talking parrot ask for a cracker. Among those present were fire-chief of the Eighteenth ward, Irma Pero; Francis Allen, the artist, protege of society women; James Morton, President of the School Board, who has passed a bill providing milk and crackers for all high school students; and Gladys Hunt, the entomologist.

The next figure was Julius Rapp—which reminds one of the rhyme of Kenyon Cox about the "Wild Boarder."

His figure is not noticed for grace;
You may not much care for his face;
But a twenty yard dash,
When he hears the word "hash,"
He can take at a wonderful pace.

While we are considering the matter of food, it is apropos to mention Seymour Bloom, a regular customer at the Nair Pastry Shoppe and "Bob" Price, the "Hot Dog King."

The procession moved slowly on and Archangela Cupolo, the sculptor, came into view. She was on her way to Roland Yaeger's Fairport Art Museum.

Mr. Harris—"Wonderful, this boy read his text book."

Her figure of a hurdy gurdy, posed by Herbert Latimer, was to be unveiled there.

We heard quite often the remark, "this is the season of knickerbockers, and indeed it is proved on all sides that this most trim and attractive of street costumes has again come into its own through the efforts of Marrocco, the designer of feminine habille." Woman now takes her furs out of storage and ponders, "Will they last another winter?" But not if they have seen the new seal and beaver skins trapped by Howard Foster, who is at present doing business in Alaska, much to the discomfort of the fur-bearing animals where, in fact, colds are prevalent among the bears due to the scarcity of outer covering.

The wee sma' hours of the morning were nearing. The little Moslem weary with fatigue, patiently recited the tale of the destinies of January '22. Drowsy with visualizing the fates of so many, the remainder, filing past in review, were pictured to my sleep-starved brain.

Leading the parade was Helen Wilcox, the lithesome dancer at the "Martinel-li." Myrtle Fox was also tripping the light fantastic. Here are the others as they appeared:

LILLIAN HAGERMAN—movie star
 NEIL MONAHAN—hair dyer
 ELBERT SANFORD—chaplain in the army
 JOSEPH ROCHOWITZ—chief consumer of "Bob's" cigarettes
 WILHELMINA KOHLER—elocution teacher

Class Song

TUNE: All By Myself

We're so unhappy, dear old East High,—
 Four years have sped quickly by Since our first meeting in the dreary winter of nine-teen-eight-teen,
 But now we've got to say Goodbye.
 That is making us sigh.

Chorus

*Dear E.H.S. we are grieving,
 For today we must part.
 Long have we strolled in thy cosy halls
 so dear.*

*Talking on the stair,
 We used to be, oh so busy,
 Watching the clock on the wall,
 And as we travel on through life
 Our thoughts will be with you.
 We'll never forget you, dear E.H.S.*

May we ever faithful be,
 To hold thy memory
 And thy standards high, as we
 Strive on through streets of success;
 And may those we leave behind,
 Win all the victories they find.

McCurdy's

Where not alone garments for daytime and evening wear are featured, but where you will find everything in the way of sports apparel, from modish millinery to smart, snappy footwear.

One of our specialties is gloves—gloves for women, for men and for the growing ups. The Trefousse glove is sold exclusively in Rochester, by us.

Another feature with us, is footwear of the latest designs—Fifth Avenue, N. Y. styles at the same time they are the vogue there and catering specially to the demands of the younger generation.

As a Matter of Education

It should interest you to know that Rochester's largest retail store has a street frontage of 599 feet, more than 14 acres of floor space, a Tea Room with seating capacity for 500 persons, and upwards of 2000 employees.

The size of the store in 1868—when the business was founded—was 25 ft. x 160 ft. Honest merchandise, honest methods and courteous service have built it up to its present substantial size.

As it has served your parents in the past so it hopes to serve you now and in the years to come—always to your complete satisfaction.

Picking Your Vocation

Deciding upon your life work is only the beginning, as the attainment of success in any business demands a thorough understanding of business principals.

This includes a practical knowledge of record keeping systems. Thousands of letters, orders, bills, receipts, checks, etc., must be filed so that they can be found instantly when wanted. Every business man should know how this is done.

Drop in at our store; say that you are from E. H. S. and we will be glad to show you some interesting things about "Y and E" Record Keeping Systems that will prove a long step in your business education.

FOR EVERY MEMBER OF THE FAMILY

The "Buddie" Desk is a combination desk and chair that is adjustable.

For Your Study

A seat that gives the greatest comfort — tilting and adjustable top, protects visions, and being easily moved can be placed in most favorable lighting conditions. Large drawer under seat for books, pencils, games, toys, etc. "A place for everything and everything in its place," for father, mother and adult members. The adjustability and compactness of the large size outstrips all comparison with roll or flat top desk and chair, as a desk for reading, studying, writing, drawing, telephone desk or home study.
