History of the School

Rochester was one of the first towns to develop the free high school, which type was long considered charity. The first high school was established in 1827. The old stone building was plain and nearly square, reminding one of a prison. In 1857 the "Fitzhugh Street High School" was opened, to meet the demands for a larger building. Subsequently, in 1873, it became necessary to build the "Rochester Free Academy." Some of the present teachers will recall it. Nevertheless, within thirty years, even this "large and modern, finely-equipped" structure was found small and inadequate. Plans were laid for a new high school. The old "Rochester Free Academy" is now used for municipal offices.

The new building, our East High School was completed in 1903, and the first class started in December of that year. The building was acclaimed one of the most beautiful and complete in the state. The spacious assembly hall, the large corridors, the modern gymnasium, and the fine lunch-room were the admiration of many visitors, and the delight of the pupils. Provision was made for 1008 pupils. Mr. Albert H. Wilcox, a graduate of the Rochester Free Academy, was chosen principal.

It is perhaps interesting to note that the "Clarion" is older than the school, Volume I No. 1 being published in the Free Academy in November 1900. The first football team "marched, marched on down the field" in 1896. In March 1901, the foundation was laid for the present Executive Council. All these activities were automatically transferred to East High School when the pupils moved into the new building.

In 1905, two years after East High School was established, West High was opened and many who were attending here were transferred to the other side of the river. Since that day, keen rivalry has existed between the schools in every kind of activity. Kodak High School and Charlotte High came under the jurisdiction of the Board of Education when these wards were incorporated into the city.

Inasmuch as East High School was intended originally for only a thousand pupils, the building soon became crowded. As the city grew, the attendance increased. To meet this condition two lunch periods were established, assemblies divided, and an afternoon session for freshman provided. Nevertheless the system was unsatisfactory. Consequently, the Board of Education leased the factory of a chicle company on North Goodman Street. This building when refinished and beaver-boarded, was occupied by the freshman. The Class of June '25 has attended there a year.

The present enrollment of Kodak High is 83; of Charlotte High 189; of West High 1885; of East High 2784, of which 297 are at the Annex. The four junior high schools—Washington, Jefferson, Monroe and Madison—are with the proposed North High, expected to provide adequately for all future pupils.

A Review of The School Year

Inasmuch as very few human beings are able to determine just exactly what progress is, and since success is a term which only few dare to use, we feel that it would be rather presumptuous on our part if we sat down and labeled a year as successful or marking progress in the history of the school. We can but reflect upon the many sides of the life of East High School and endeavor to point out the instances in which rather outstanding accomplishments have been made and to single out examples which devote the trend of scholastic effort and undergraduate activity at East High School.

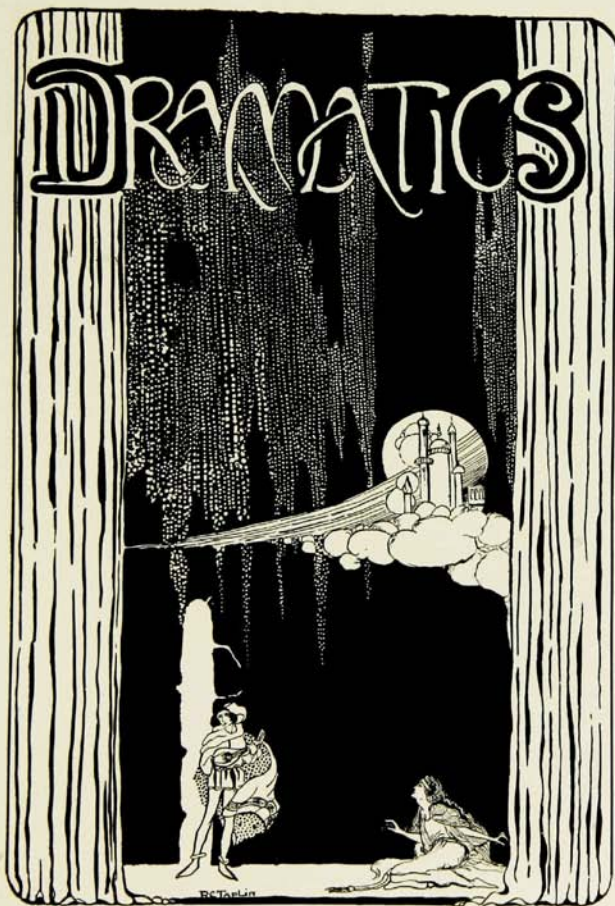

To the outsider the most important feature of the year in the high school has been the quartering of some twenty-eight hundred of Rochester's youngest and finest in a building with an original capacity of a thousand, assisted by a beaver-boarded gum factory. To us on the inside, the year has stood out in this regard as an example of well-planned manipulation of equipment, the situation being so skillfully managed that the over-crowding, that constant source of parental lament, seems only evident during the five minute interval between classes and at the double period when pupils are herded into the lunchroom for a hasty repast. This problem has only a few more years to run, we pray. But at some future time people will look back and marvel at the administrative feat which is passing before our eyes to-day.

A few noticeable changes, necessitated by the influx of Rochester's youth will be credited to the year 1921-22. The Annex opened in the fall with a splendid equipment for technical courses, making possible the enlargement of the lunchroom at the main building. Large rooms have been cut up into small recitation rooms, and the teaching staff has been augmented to take care of the additional classes.

School activities have had a flourishing year. The athletic teams have been of a quality representative of the standard of the school. Returning to a five-cent rate, the Clarion has enjoyed a year of service to the school and a record-breaking circulation giving evidence of the pupils' appreciation of their newspaper. The band and orchestra have been established as vital parts of the school's assembly program. The supply store has given an ever-increasing service to the school. The thrift campaign, at the present writing, promises to be a most valuable item in the year's achievement.

We could mention new clubs which have sprung up and organizations which have languished. Enough has been said, however. The year 1921-22 has almost come to a close. It will rank, we feel, as significant, when recorded in the annals of our school.

Dramatics

Two farces and a play were presented this term before the school by the Senior Classes. The ranking Senior Class produced "Nothing but the Truth," a farce, and "The Crisis," a play. The Senior Term Class gave the other farce, "Come Out of the Kitchen." All were well attended.

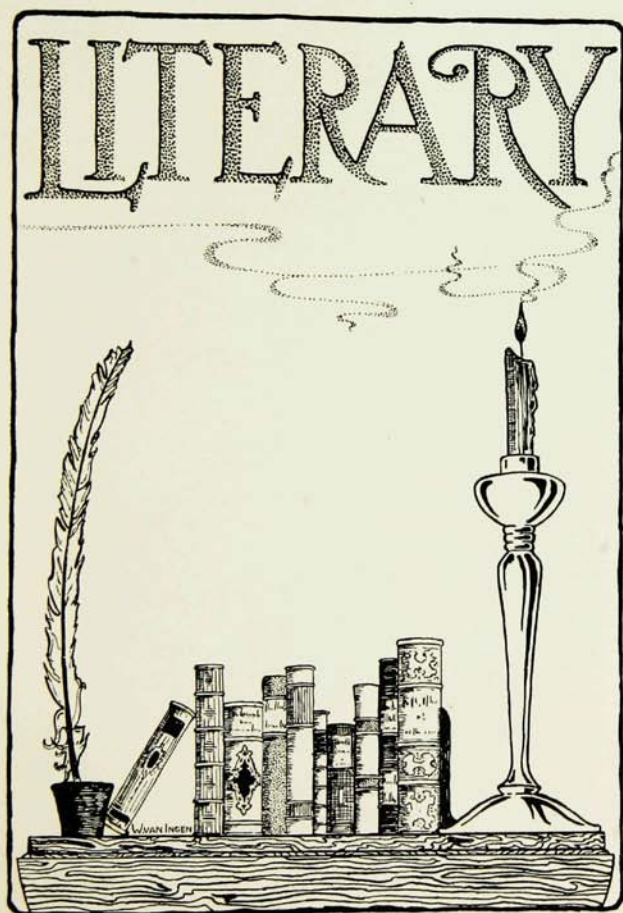

"Nothing but the Truth," by James Montgomery, was presented remarkably well by the graduating class, June '22. The characters were all well portrayed. It was as a whole, a credit to them.

The class of January 1923 followed with "Come Out of the Kitchen," by Alice Duer Miller. This farce also was a success. With but one slip or two, the parts were well taken.

The popular play "The Crisis," is as the Annual goes to press, yet to be given by the ranking Seniors. Rehearsals are promising. Although the play is difficult to produce, there is little doubt of its success.

Behind the scenes, tirelessly working away, coaching, directing, advising, is Miss Burns. To her is due the success of all the school's dramatics—but what's the use? Miss Burns needs no word of praise.

Clubs—Literary

There are numerous clubs in and out of East High School. Some of these have succeeded; others have failed. New organizations are on the increase. If school spirit is coincident with interest in school activities, the present situation is gratifying and encouraging.

A "French Club" composed of third year, "A" pupils in French, was organized last term by Miss Deming. Meetings were held every Wednesday. The lives of great French authors were discussed; songs were sung; and games played—all in French. Miss Deming declares the venture a success from the start.

During the past year, the boys' "Hi-Y" club regularly held its Tuesday supper-meetings and discussion groups. For the most part, they were well attended. Aside from the good times that the members enjoyed, a marked fellowship sprang up among them. The speakers for the meetings were chosen with one object in mind, that of bringing to the attention of the fellows the fundamentals that make for success in life.

The East High School Girls' Friendship Club with a membership of one hundred twenty-five, has had a very successful year. The speakers at the meetings have stirred the members with subjects vital and close to them. The Club has moreover, done social service work in the form of entertainments for the children at the Shelter and at Iola, in distributing Thanksgiving dinners, and in giving parties for the poor children. The goal for next year is set at two hundred members.

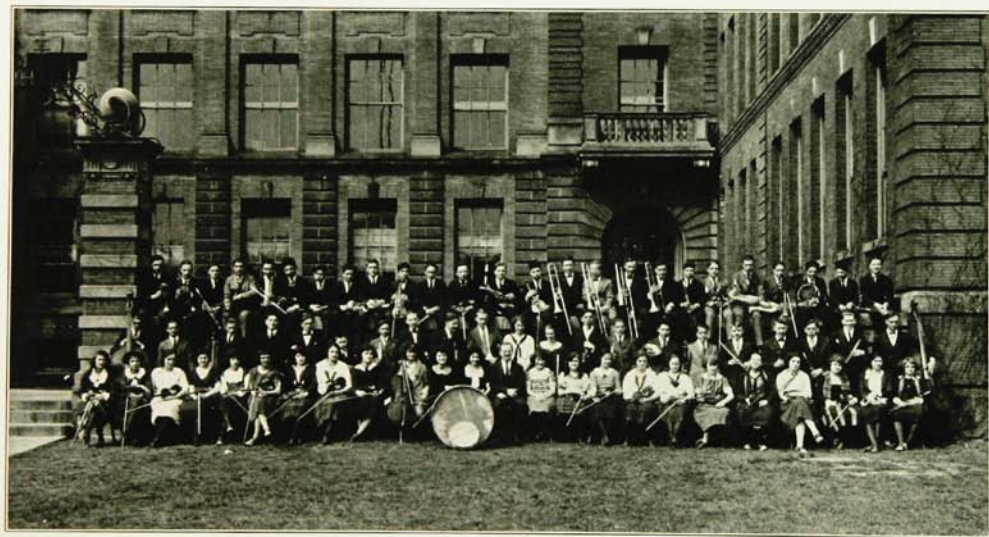

Two other promising clubs have been formed this year. The Science Club takes up every phase of science in which there is any interest. The other club is the Newswriters, for managers of all activities. Its object is to secure publicity for the school and its organizations.

The Supply Store Management is to be commended for its decided success. The College Suppers were successfully resumed this term.

The Clarion of last term attained the honor of being one of the best, if not the best, high school paper in the country. We believe the present editors are holding their own.

At last, the Orient has gone to press. We have tried to put out an annual that is a complete review of the school year, and at the same time, a memorial of and to the Senior Class. We hope that some day you will say we have succeeded.

Review of Music

The year was notable in musical work for the joint concert which was given by the Band and Orchestra. By means of the concert the Orchestra and Band were able not only to entertain East High students, but to exhibit their ability to interested outsiders.

The new plan for orchestral work, originated by Mr. Jay W. Fay, has enabled more students to take part in musical work. The Symphony Orchestra, composed of the more skillful players, is able to give the best quality of music, while the Junior Orchestra is able to take care of the less proficient, but just as enthusiastic beginners.

At nearly every assembly, either the Band or Orchestra plays. Four-part singing has been abandoned, but the old "Alma Mater" still rings out. The Glee Clubs have also been abandoned the past year. The splendid success of both Band and Orchestra is due entirely to Mr. Fay who has made a firm place for music among school activities.

Review of Athletics

The athletic teams of this year have reflected credit on East High School. Perhaps every game has not been won, but the fine spirit shown in defeat is admirable.

After winning two hard games from Syracuse Central High, it was the "luck" of the basketball team to lose to them in the third, for the championship of New York State. East High must be content with second place, and hope. Nineteen victories out of a possible twenty-two is, nevertheless, a fine record.

On account of the wide-spread enthusiasm for swimming, this art rose practically to the heights of a major sport. Without exaggeration it may be said that swimming enjoyed the most successful season of its existence.

A new sport has sprung up to prominence in East High this year, namely wrestling. The surprisingly large crowds which attended the practices and matches speak well of its popularity. For an inexperienced team it did well. As the hockey schedule called for games late in the season, the ice must melt. The team bowed to West High in its one game.

At the present writing, baseball with a team composed largely of veterans, is very promising. A championship would not surprise the school.

Track in late years has slumped. With a cinder path behind the Armory, now, there is every encouragement to a good track team. The prospects for this year are brighter than they have been for several seasons. The schedule is quite complete.

The Reserve Teams deserve considerable credit. They play the game before no audience; they hear no cheering; they get little support. Yet East High owes these for the material of its first teams. The Basketball Reserves captured the city championship. The freshmen have done well all around. The Baseball Reserves are working hard.

Girls' Athletics

The girls' gymnasium has had a lively and busy year. Something has been going on nearly every day of the school week.

Basketball practice did not begin until November, because Miss Wangman was busy with the physical examinations. Not many girls came out to practice, so the class teams could not be picked until March.

The school basketball team was picked early in April, three days before the first game. It did not have very much time in which to practice. The first game was played April 5, with West High in the girls' gymnasium, here. The team put up a hard fight, but lost by three points.

However basketball alone has not been carried on in the gym. Miss Wetherill has given dancing lessons on Thursday afternoons. She is one of the most capable teachers who could be procured. Many girls made the most of the opportunity offered.

An exhibition of all kinds of gymnastic work was given on April 7, at the Normal School. Marching, exercises, games, dancing and basketball were demonstrated by the girls under the direction of Miss Wangman, Miss Mason and Miss Wetherill.

The Class History

It may be rather unprecedented to start this with a dissertation on hair, even though hair may reveal a lot of—stuffings, perhaps. However it was at the period when the girls' hair was neatly and unbecomingly pulled away from their faces and fastened in the back with a rubber band or, as much as this confession involves, a hair-ribbon, that a gathering of freshman girls was held in the girls' gym for the purpose of entertainment. I look back upon that afternoon with vague recollections of numerous unfamiliar faces, a large collection of teachers (I cannot believe that they were all there in the capacity of chaperones: if so, they had a frightful opinion of "frosh"), a few futile games and someone dancing, as I have since discovered, someone always does. Having progressed thus far, it is only just to mention the young men's hair—they did not comb it at all; at least that was to be inferred.

In the second year of this history, the girls, who had valiantly wadded and pinned their hair up, conceived and carried out the idea of a day on which they should all wear hair-ribbons and gingham dresses. It is not necessary to argue about either the origin or originality of this plan, but its popularity is evident.

Apparently the south side was more ambitious than the north; for the girls' next venture was a Hallowe'en Party with the usual accessory of a cider and doughnut dissipation.

Later in the second term, the "Soph 'Sprise" was given in the evening, and half the girls issued forth in male attire to escort the other half. It was a wild orgy in which fast and daring maids asked their teachers to dance, and faculty members, none the less reckless of their reputations, accepted.

Seventy dollars was raised for the Memorial Fund by June '22 by selling pop and ice-cream at a base-ball game. This same year our girls' basketball team won the championship.

I feel conscience-stricken at not having mentioned the boys more (but facts are facts) so I shall see what I can say for them: judging from appearances, they now combed their hair—every night before retiring.

In the third year of this history of our hair which, incidentally, had been experimented with until we succeeded in obtaining an effective coiffure not dissimilar to that of a Fiji Islander, while the rougher sex had secured a polished effect by applying axle grease and varnish, we united and gave our first dance together, the "June '22 Hullabaloo." The boys supported one side of the wall, while the girls decorated the other. By the time the "Junior Jumble" came along, however, there was less bashfulness and more pep.

In our fourth year term, the class made its reputation by the "Sara-Gaky" and the last term brought forth the "Spring Hob-Nob."

HELEN M. FIEN, Historian.

Class Prophecy

Note: The Action takes place during the Month of June, 1935

With a muttered imprecation to the gods to restrain me from all deeds of violence, I pounded violently with my baton, and dismissed the orchestra. Things had not been going well, at this, the final rehearsal of "La Pumpenikél," Gertrude Greenstone's newest musical spasm, and I had grave doubts as to its success.

The day before, one of the chorus girls, Bernice Kern, had eloped with Francis Gunderson, the leading man, and had insisted upon a honeymoon that made them both twenty minutes late to rehearsal. While waiting for their arrival, Thelma Biracree, the prima ballerina, had sustained a fit of temperament, and talked harshly to her maid, Ralph Twardokus, who had promptly gone into hysterics, and required the services of a physician. And then, during the 'love duet,' sung by Eugene Biel and Elizabeth Kondolf, Eugene had suddenly refused to continue, offering the plea that his wife objected to his making love to anyone but herself. It was this last which caused me to call an end to the rehearsal, as chronicled above.

After I had listened to Dorothea Smith, the concertmeister, accuse Ruth Taplin, solo 'cellist, of trying to spoil one of her incidental solos, by dragging the 'cello part, and had removed them from each others hair, and had cautioned the head janitor, Pearce Titter, against feeding bootleg hooch to Roland Goldstein, one of his force, who polished the brass door-knobs, and had prevented Wilhelmina van Ingen, who had designed the stage and lighting effects, from lynching Francis Keiper, the electrician, after he had turned a bright red light on her "Pearly Gates of Heaven" set, I decided to go immediately to my apartment for some rest, in preparation for the evening's performance.

As I came out from the stage entrance, however, I heard a voice calling my name, and as I turned, in search of its source, I found a huge 'Complex Eighty,' (The car designed by the eminent auto builder, Justin Doyle, and made famous thro the advertising genius of Christopher D'Amanda, drawing up to the curb, and found the much married and very often divorced society leader, Marjorie Bellows, with her latest marital aquisition, Jack Holahan, in the tonneau. After a word of greeting, I was informed that they were about to drive to the office of "The Daily Bull," to leave a notice of their latest social triumph in the form of a "Te de Boudoir," with the Society Editor, Lois Dildine. Ordinarily this notice would have been charged the regular advertising rates, but because Miss Dildine had always been a personal friend of the Holahans, they received special rates on all news of this type.

As I had neglected to send tickets to Charles Bunnell, the music critic for the "Bull," I accepted an invitation to drive over with them and in a few moments we all engaged in a spirited conversation with most of the business and editorial boards of the paper.

Robert Gordon, the Editor in Chief, was absent from the party, as he was engaged at the time in emptying the waste paper baskets, which had become clogged with material submitted by Max Lapiques, called by the latter poetry, and by Bob several other things. Richard Hawkins, the General Manager, left his position of filling inkwells to speak with us for a time, and Lawrence Ring, of the Sport Page, sent Howard Garnish, the office-boy, to say that he would join us as soon as he had finished sweeping up the press room floor.

When I had finally taken leave of the party, I had just time to dress for dinner, and dine at "Miggs Manse," Marion Maggs' popular tea room, before going over to the "Metropolitan" to direct the Premiere of "La Pumpenikél."

Back stage there was a calmness and general quiet that seemed ominous—it was much like the silence that precedes a storm, and I was worried.

As I glanced over the house, before beginning the overture, I saw that Society had turned out en masse. In a stage box were Walter Hallett, Clark Hastings, and Jacob Stern, representing the big business interests, of the world. Motoka Takagi, the star of the revival of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," was present, with Elmer Trew, her manager. Lucille Thomas, Marion Tickner, Mildred Seekins and Eleanor Peck, of the "Zigzag Midnight Colics" running on the Winter Garden

Roof, were seated near the stage, and Philip Oliva, the leading theatrical attorney of the age, occupied a prominent position in the first row.

I raised my baton, and the performance began. "La Pumpenikel" could not be classified as belonging strictly to one form—It resembled a Chinese drama in length, had many of the attributes of the musical comedy, bore close resemblance to the Italian Opera, was copied in parts, after the current bed-room farce, and was deeply tragic in sentiment. As the long series of parallel fifths, doubled in octaves, which marked the close of the overture, came to an end, I breathed more freely, and after Sylvia Weisbuch and Kenneth Warren had finished their "sister" bit, and received an ovation, I was almost at ease.

The first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh acts passed off smoothly enough, and the curtain rose for the eighth act—This was the act in which the love duet occurred—and the stage was empty!

I held the last tone of the entre-acte until George Bott, the bass player gave one last WOOF and gently expired, then lowered the baton and waited.

After a moment or two Frederick Whitney, the call boy made his way into the pit with a message from Harry Norton, the stage manager.

The message stated briefly that Hildegarde Biel, nee Killip, was backstage, and refused to let Friend Husband sing the love duet, and what in the name of the holy whiskers of the Prophet should he, (the stage manager) do? After assuring myself that the audience was sleeping soundly, I sent word back to skip the act, and go on! After Harry had spent fifteen minutes consulting with Philip Linfoot and Ralph Lisson, it was decided that too much time had elapsed to change the sets, and so it happened that the next act, "A Wreck at Sea," was played in a set depicting "The Desert of the Sahara at Midnight."

The audience awoke just as the noted tragedian, Paul Ribstein, made his entrance in the character of "The Wreck," and applauded wildly as it watched him hurl the drunken sailors against the property cactus plants, and when the submarine entered, plowing thro the pyramids, the applause grew deafening. After Bronson Price, the captain of the submarine had cast out life preservers, and rescued the Wreck and his accomplice, the heroine, (played by Aldine Peters), the sobs shook the house, and it was with difficulty that the play proceeded. It was finished finally, however, and the final curtain descended amidst a perfect riot of sound.

After receiving congratulations from the radio king, Howard Mouatt who demanded the broadcasting rights for his firm of radio stations, and giving him a promise to consult with his chief engineer, Walter Nelson, some time during the next month, I left the house, and started at a brisk walk towards Forty-second street. I had hardly started when I encountered a group of "La Pumpenikel's" chorus—among them Lois Silsby, Daisy Tinney, Carolyn Snyder and Arloa "Red" Lattimore. They had already appropriated Rolf King, the rising young clubman, and Saul Kroll, the eminent race track magnate, and were of the opinion that if they could attach me they might eat. They didn't!

I continued on my way, meeting for a moment The Hon. Abe Lebowitz, ambassador to the United States from the Republic of Ireland, in deep conversation with his secretary, the Rabbi Thomas Maloney, retired from the Cathedral of St. Patrick in Jerusalem, to enter the political field; and shortly afterwards I met also Harry Levenberg, Spanish Interpreter in the New York State Supreme Court.

By this time, I had reached my place of abode, and after reading a chapter of one of William McQuat's latest works, I retired.

I arose early next morning, and, of course, sought at once the papers. I noted the reports of the Critics, and found that they had unanimously "panned" the show, and was well pleased, for I knew that we should play to capacity houses for the rest of the run. That is human nature! I was rather surprised at the number of East High Alumni mentioned that morning in the papers. Curtice Platt, and his "Raving Maniac" jazz aggregation were opening in one of the better cabarets that evening. Louis Regner and Homer Vicinus announced the opening of "The School Elite—a place of learning for Young Men and Young Women, where All the Gentler Arts and Sciences may be Pursued." Included in the imposing faculty were Stanton West, Professor of "Chemical Bomb Construction," Dorothea Vorce, Instructor of "Self Defense and Aggression", Ada Welch, Professor of "The Ancient Crafts of Cookery and Sewing," and Cornelius Vandenberg, Professor of "Elementary Educational Methods."

After a leisurely breakfast, I decided to walk over to the "Trans-Continental Aircraft Service Bureau," Carl Grashof's contribution to modern travel, for the purpose of arranging a vacation tour.

Chancing to glance over the lists of recent departures I noted, among others, these names: Freda Scholls and Esther Reeves, sailing for China, via 8 mile level route, for the purpose of doing missionary work among the unfortunate people of that country.

Benjamin Schultz, Daniel Gallancy, and Jack Leitstein, en route for Russia, via 3 mile limit, for purpose of preaching Socialism to the Rushing Russians. (Leaving at request of Secretary of State, Mabel LaGasse).

Irving Kussmaul, welter-weight champion, and Isadore Freedman, manager, sailing to Europe, via 1000 metre route, for the purpose of engaging in fistic combat with European pugilists.

After arranging with Elmer Costich, Manager of the Bureau, the details of my trip, I sauntered across town to the "Cosmopolitan Club," where I knew a large number of old '22 men might be found. Sure enough! As I entered the door, I heard sounds of deep agitation, and entering the lounge, perceived Harold Birnbaum, the well known elocutionist, in the act of rendering a pathetic excerpt from one of the earlier plays of the shining light of modern drama, Ruth Baird. Grouped around him, in attitudes of pain and suffering, were Robert Bullock, the retired Editor of the "Evening Globe," William Duke, of "Hair Tonic Elite" fame, Jack Lowe, City Microbiologist, and Henry Langknecht, the banker.

As I joined the group one of the house staff presented me with an announcement of the annual reunion of June '22, to be held at the Ritz that evening, at midnight, and after questioning the others, and learning that they all intended going, I resolved to do likewise.

Thus it was that after the performance that evening, I made my way to the Ritz, and joined in the revelry therein displayed.

In addition to those whom I have mentioned, practically every other member of the class was either, present, or had sent messages of regrets.

As it was the custom at these reunions to have the guests answer to the roll with their respective occupations, it may be of interest to transcribe parts of these minutes to these pages, verbatim.

Acting Secretary George Baldwin, of the Class of June '22, and members of the Class.

Sec.—Bennie Ade.

B. A.—I am at present presenting a series of lectures on Household Economics, and I take pleasure in inviting all of—

Sec.—Quite so, thank you. Dorothy Allau.

D. A.—Modiste, Mr. Secretary.

Sec.—Thelma Allen.

T. A.—Vice President, Society of Psychical Research.

Sec.—Marion Amsler.

Sec.—Emily Batho.

E. B.—Merely Married, Mr. Secretary.

Sec.—George Bay.

G. B.—Manufacturer.

Sec.—Joseph Black.

J. B.—Advertising Agency, and if you want really good results—

Sec.—Quite so, thank you. Dorothy Blackford.

Pres.—I am in receipt of a wire stating that Miss Blackford is at present engaged in producing a feature film in South Africa, and voicing her regrets at her inability to join us.

Sec.—Irene Bloom.

I. B.—Modiste, Mr. Secretary.

Sec.—Elsie Blatau.

E. B.—Secretary.

And thus the roll call proceeded. It was discovered that Willis Bradstreet and Herbert Bristol held the controlling interests in a large dairy farm, and that Herbert Marth was president of the company which furnished them synthetic hay, which was used in a machine manufacturing the synthetic milk from which the cheese which they sold was built, and that Elizabeth Brockway was tennis champion of Fairport. No one was surprised to learn that Eleanor Brown was a film star, but when it became known that Hestor Brown wrote the daring scenarios that "Brownie" used, a riot almost ensued. Seymour Bernstein and Josephine Brush were found to be working together, although neither of them knew it, for Miss Brush was the owner of one of the most popular beauty shops in the city, and Bernstein grew the rice from which her choicest talcs were compounded. It's such a small, small world!

It must not be supposed, however, that all the members of June '22 were engaged in useful pursuits. Oh no! A great many of them were married. Among this group of transgressors were numbered Elizabeth Cargill, Viola Carroll, Edith Censer, Dorothy Chartoff, Helen Chilson, Jessie Cohen and Minna Klass, and from among the members of the weaker sex who were depending on someone else for their existence were Lester Fishman, David Flaum, Willis Daggs, Chester Driver, Harry Feld and Sam Shafer.

It was surprising to note the great number of persons engaged in teaching; there were, among others, Ruth Denio, Lillian Eesley, May Feldman, and Sadye Levin, all teaching French, and Frank Gilbert and Howard Lee teaching Physical Culture—kindred subjects, you see!

Helen Fien, Rosalie Desmond, Charles Douglas and Frank Dugan, the committee in charge of the reunion, had planned a monstrous series of entertainments, those who participated being Ezra Egar, Lawrence Ellsworth and George Engert in a song and dance Revue, Dorothy Fleming and Henrietta Forbes in a gymnastic exhibition, Catherine Fisher and Bernice Franke in a rapid-fire dialogue, Hyman Freeman and Earl Gaesser in a musical revue, assisted by Elsie Frank and Seelye Galoup on the tamborine and bones, respectively, and Lois Gibbs and Marion Gell in a mind reading stunt. Ruth Goetz and Florence Conolly were in command of a group of Oriental dancers, consisting of Myra Konowitz, David Koren, Irma Krug, Ralph Lawrence, Helen Lavine and Evelyn Lerner, which was pronounced the outstanding feature of the evening, everyone agreeing that it was the most unusual thing, from the standpoints of grace and ease of movement that had ever been produced. Armand McGuire, the producer, offered a fabulous sum for the right to present the act on the vaudeville stage. The offer was declined.

The party "broke up" just as the first rays of the sun came peeping into the room, and I left the scene of the festivities with a feeling of happiness tugging at my heart and Roswell Ward moving along at my side. As we walked he talked. He told me of his work and experiences as Chief Diagnostician in the "Wardcliffe Home for Nervous Wrecks"—several times I wondered whether his psychopathic work might not have affected him, for his tales were often very wild and woolly.

From him I learned of several members of the class whom I had lost contact with. He told me that Joseph Wolk and Joseph Widerker were brokers, and had almost succeeded in breaking both Fredrick Wootton and Gordon Zimmerman in an oil venture, and that Elizabeth Wolters and Julia Zuck, policewomen of the city, were responsible for the sensational arrest of Earl Rogers and Waldo Ross, on a charge of driving a monoplane at excessive speed. It might be mentioned that information had been secured thro the occult power of one Mme. Imcukoo, nee Arline Rowe.

It was at the suggestion of "Ros" also that we stopped at one of Catherine Nown's chain of cigar stores to consult a directory in the hope of learning more about June '22 classmates.

Chancing to open the book at the "M's" we found the following information:

Merz, Leslie. Clerk. Unmarried. White. No Police Record.

Miller, Faustine. Secretary. Married. White. No Police Record.

Stuart, Miller. Municipal Employee. Unmarried. No definite Color.

Mohr, Elizabeth. Clerk. White.

This directory was one of the new issue, authorized by the Director of Census, Roland Reinish, and produced with the aid of a staff composed of Kenneth Pratt, Mary Preston, Rose Privitera, Frank Pudetti and Gordon Roda, all members of the Department of the Interior, and Ruth Newman and Frank O'Meara of the Department of Spiritual Research, a new department, founded thro the activity of the W.C.T.U.'s late president, John Morse.

This directory had the added advantage of being classified into professions and commercial activities, and under the business interests of the country we found Elmer Hutchinson, head of a huge lumber syndicate, Harvey Hill, president of an Inspirational Series publishing company, Irma Gottschalk, director of an employment bureau and Christie Hickey, of the "Salon Parisienne," an exclusive gift shoppe on The Avenue.

As we left the store we nearly succeeded in sweeping from his feet Edwin Steefel, owner of the city's baseball team. After an explosive discourse on the art of walking, he presented us with passes to the afternoon's game, and we parted amiably enough.

After lunch with "Ros", (whose tenacity in sticking to me I hardly knew whether to admire or disparage), we wended our way to the ball park for the purpose of indulging in the relaxation the game promised to afford.

We stopped, of course, at the club house, to greet Manager Edward Hanna, and Charles Haggerty, Wallace Hagaman, George Schaffert and Charles Kalbfus, members of the team, before proceeding to our box.

While waiting for the game to begin, we were greatly amused at the many signs surrounding the field. Morris Stoler, who owned the advertising concession, allowed only signs of whose beauty and truth there could be no doubt, and the following gems of the advertiser's art met our eyes.

After we had amused ourselves by reading the signs, we began to notice the people all around us. In a box close to ours was seated a party of distinguished looking people whom we speedily identified as the leaders of the Bohemian element of the town, and shortly after were able to name most of them. Among them were Ada Goldstein, Edna Gordon, Pearl Greenberg, Josephine Hagberg, Norma Hallauer, Evelyn Harrison, Dorothy Jameson, Dean Johnson, Ralph Hutchinson, Nelson Hauer and Arthur Hardwick. In another box sat the famous "Full Quart Quartet," from the "Summer Orchard Roof," consisting of Florence Kenyon, Marion Keeler, Marion Howard and Alice Higham, accompanied by their manager, Abe Goldstein.

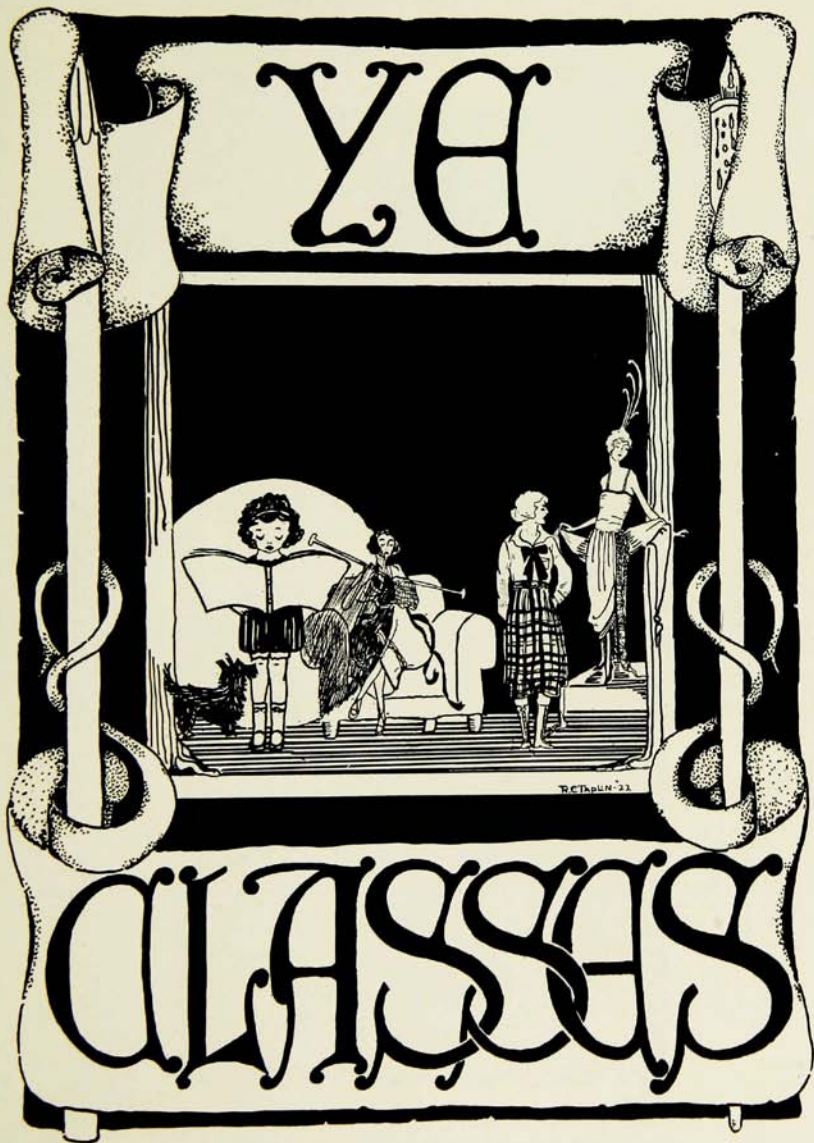

Out in the bleachers the well modulated voice of Miriam Levin could be heard explaining to Estelle Long and Dorothy Marvin the real reason why Raymond Mason had been unable to attend the opening of Charlotte Rosenberg's Lingerie Shoppe. (The reason may not be chronicled here, as it is of the type belonging strictly to the scandal supplement of the New York American.)

Just as Thomas Long and John Mahoney, the umpires, came out upon the diamond, there was a commotion in the grandstand, and Dorothy Manson, with her customary degree of shyness and excessive modesty, entered. She was clothed, as usual, in an unobtrusive set of scarlet Knicks and emerald green slip-on, and was escorted by her devoted friends, (strictly platonic, y'know), Samuel Soppe and Harry Sanzel. Janet Sprague, the well known color chemist, gazed for one long moment, and then fainted, and it took the combined efforts of Helen Spencer, Dorothy Shannon and Elizabeth Sullivan to bring her to. At almost the same instant Vera Tweddell, the composer, caught a glimpse, and with a wild look in her ordinarily mild eyes, she delivered a lecture on diminished two-seven chords, and pleaded for an axe. After Minnie Schiff, the popular harmonist had quieted her, Arthur Rosenberg, the manager of the park approached Miss Manson, armed with a smile, a pair of smoked glasses, and an opera cloak of a dark black shade, which he requested her to don. She indignantly refused, and left the stand in a fit of rage, for which everyone felt very sorry.

By this time the game was fairly started. Up in the press box Eleanor Ratcliffe, Rose Mores, Helen Morris, and Margaret Merrell were typing busily, and Sylvia Nieman and Genevieve Pecorara were discoursing volubly over the Radio, for was not, at that moment, "Chuck" Kalbfus coming to bat? He was! With a vicious swat he met the first pitched ball, and sent it whizzing past the pitcher, the shortstop, the second baseman,—directly towards me. I heard the shouts of the people around me, as if in a daze. My fate was imminent. Suddenly I screamed, and threw myself upon my back. There was a crash—then I opened my eyes. I was lying upon the floor of a room that seemed, somehow, rather familiar. It was dark, but thro the window the moon shone in. Gradually my senses returned to me, and with a muttered word of disgust, I arose, stepped back into bed, pulled the covers around me, and made myself a firm, solemn promise, never again to attempt the writing of a prophecy for a class whose numbers are infinite!

THE CLASS OF JUNE 1923

June '23 also came as freshmen, in the afternoon. They continued to do so for their entire first year. However the second year they joined the early-risers and came, or were supposed to come, at eight-thirty. The Class thus far has had two parties, the "Skidoo Frolic" in their junior term, and the "Junior Jamboree" this term. A picnic, the "Juniors in Zuland" is planned for the third of June. We hope June '23 will succeed as well with school activities as they have with their class parties.

THE CLASS OF JANUARY 1924

January '24 is the third class to have started high school in the afternoon session. The second term the girls enjoyed a "Freshman Party." The Sophomore year, the boys slept while the girls succeeded with the "Soph Scramble." This term the sections combined. Plans are being laid at the time this goes to press, to have a class party soon after the Easter vacation.

The Class of June '24

In December of the year the class of June 1924 entered East High School,—the girls held a class party. Nearly every girl was present and had a jolly time. Later in the year, they had an outing at Maplewood Park. Meanwhile the boys were rather timorously breaking into athletics. The great event of the second year was the "Soph Sale," the first of its kind in some time. Recently the girls held a very successful "Soph Wash-Day."

Class of January '25

January '25 was the first class to tread the halls of the Annex. The second term, however, they moved to East High School proper. The girls of the class made their debut at a party in December. The boys of the class have, at least, made their presence in school activities felt, as though they were ready to burst forth into flame. This term fellow-pupils from Washington Junior High School joined them here.

THE CHICLETS

THE FRESHMEN—AFTERNOON

June 1925

The Class of June 1925 has occupied the Annex, of which mention is made on page six, since last September. These freshmen are the first to have attended here for two consecutive terms. They are confirmed "Chiclets," and appear to be very proud of it. Perhaps the latter accounts for the fact that they are the butt of many a joke, just "as Frosh should be." Nevertheless, there are some loyal East High rooters over on Goodman Street.

The boys' and girls' sections of the Class have not organized. However, the various home rooms and English classes have carried on freshman activities very satisfactorily.

The "Annex News" page of the Clarion, appearing in several issues, was edited commendably by the freshman English pupils.

The social functions of the "Chiclets" have been limited to home room parties. These parties proved popular, for such rooms are occupied by both boys and girls.

The Class has done well in athletics. The boys have made their mark in soccer, swimming, tennis and basketball and are deserving of credit. This spring's sports are promising. The girls also have put out a worthy basketball team.

For the present term, parts of the class were required to report at the main building for their classes, particularly the commercial pupils. The girls there have met and elected officers. One party has been held.

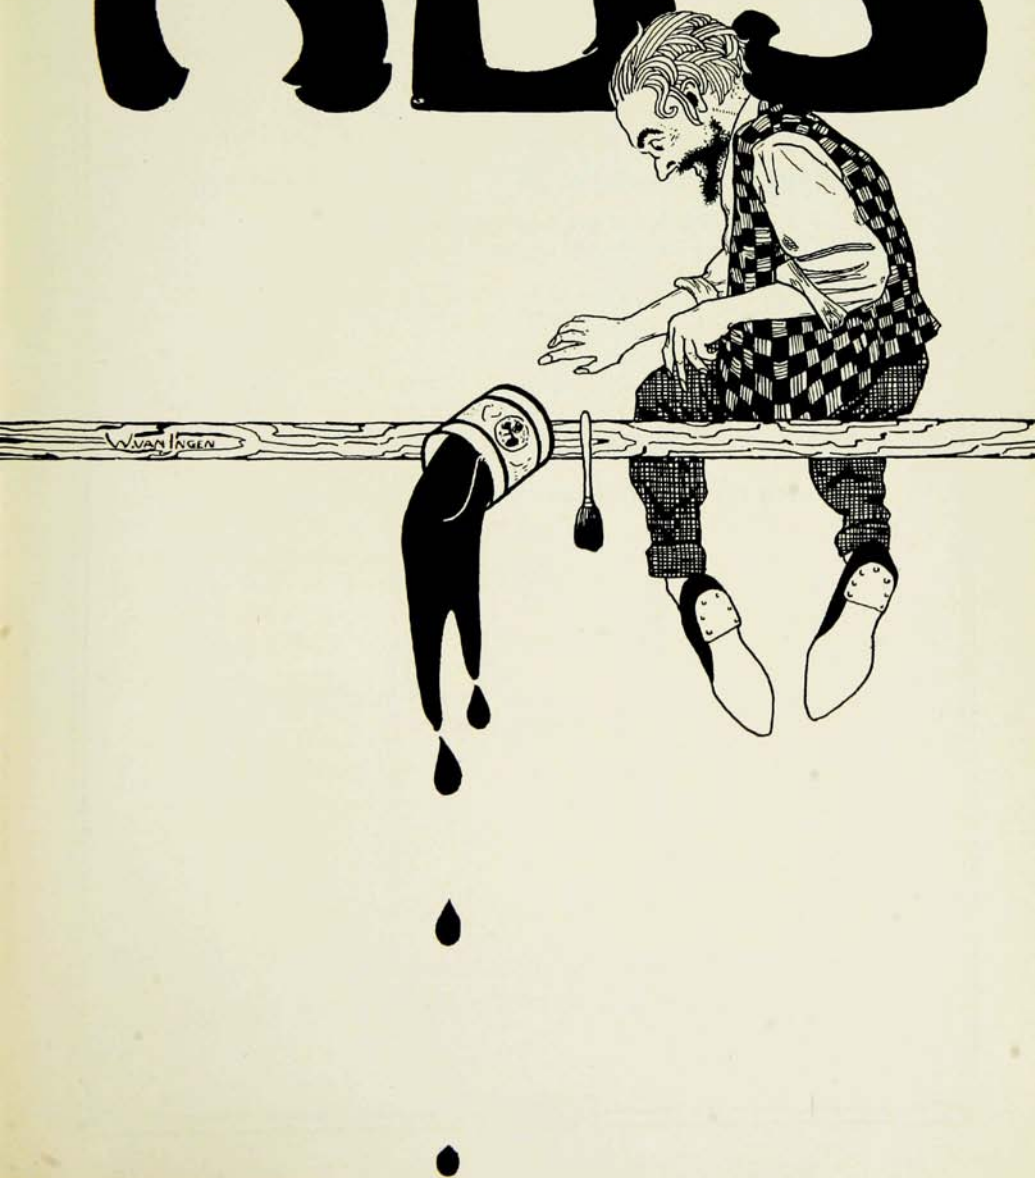

In general we may say that the freshmen at the Annex have made the most of their environment. With factory whistles blowing on all sides of them, and railroad trains whirling under foot, they have come to feel themselves a unit. Doubtless this accounts for their fine teamwork and consequent accomplishments.

January 1926

These lowest of the lowly under-classmen must wait to attend school until their betters have left. One may talk about ten o'clock scholars who come at noon; but here are pupils who think that hour early. One can find them at either lunch period eating breakfast. As soon as the gong rings, one can see a flood of green surging this way and that through the halls. These boys and girls must not be late to class. Wait four years! The gong will find them loitering, and slowly wending their way from room to room.

Of course, the Class of January 1926 has not organized, nor have there been any class activities. As Seniors, learned, honored and respected Seniors, may we advise you to start now and plug along for your Alma Mater, East High School.

Important Questions

To the high school student who expects to continue his studies after graduation, the question of a vocation or profession is of first importance. Next comes the selection of the place to which he will go.

Right here in Rochester, MECHANICS INSTITUTE can be of service in offering a solution to both problems. Its courses in Industrial, Household and Applied Arts afford a wide range of subjects, intended to equip the student thoroughly as a teacher or for a professional career.

The fact that such an Institute, with its unusual advantages is located here at home, should particularly appeal to EAST HIGH graduates. Don't make your decision until you have investigated its possibilities.

"Bull"

Mr. Bills, he says, says he—"A man smiles when you speak of his level head, but call it flat and he gets mad.

"When a man finds his clothes are too loose he should either change tailors or boarding houses.

"After man came woman, and she has been after him ever since.

"Women kiss each other merely to keep in practice; they don't mean it.

"Women had larger waists in ancient times, but the man had longer arms.

"A woman's glory may be her hair, but it's a good plan to keep it out of the soup.

"A woman can drive a man crazy for 24 hours, and then bring him to the gates of paradise in two seconds by simply tickling him under the chin.

"It is always easier to love a poor girl than a rich one—there is less competition.

"Poets take in the beauties of nature; their wives generally take in washing.

"A man never has real trouble until he has a son big enough to wear his clothes.

"Pity the poor young man who parts his hair in the middle—he does it to prevent his mind from becoming unbalanced.

"Some men are about as much benefit to a community as a last year's almanac.

"The happiest day in a farmer's life comes when his best pig takes a three dollar prize at the county fair.

"What an awful change it must be for the ice-man when he dies.

"It isn't always the loser in a fight that gets the swelled head.

"People who live in stone houses shouldn't throw glasses.

"Economy may be a good thing but it is poor policy to set a hen on one egg to save eggs.

"Care will kill a cat; but a gun is just as good.

"It is always unlucky to play cards with a woman who has winning ways.

"When you can't wash your face without freezing the water, it's a sign you have a cold in your head.

"The greatest philosophers and thinkers of the century, now admit that hens lay eggs because they can't stand them on end.

"Woman's success as an engineer is phenomenal. She frequently has a wash-out on the line, but no disasters are recorded.

"Never buy a thermometer in summer—they are always much lower in winter.

"Happiness often consists in being next in a crowded barber shop."

Frank Dugan—"I sleep with my dog every night, you know."

Haggerty—"Rather unhealthy, isn't it?"

Dugan—"I know, but he's used to it now."

ADVICE HOW TO READ THE ORIENT

Firstly, you must buy the book—we prefer you to purchase it before reading as otherwise our sales might be damaged—and then proceed to collect signatures in the only reputable way, that is, by besieging every Senior in the vicinity; in case none are handy attack the teacher, preferably at a moment when she is about to give out the assignment as she can not fail to be flattered and pleased by your attentions at said time. By doing this you may avert the assignment (it was done once!) but, more probably, you will start the teacher on his or her Annual monologue, "Please put those books away and give me your attention!" We do not go so far as to claim that all teachers use those exact words—many are less polite, especially after the first few requests. This, however, must not prevent you from passing your book around the room and annoying the one person who is actually reading the Orient. Lunch period may be used for hunting for more Senior signatures; this practice is most desirable as it prevents any extra eating (we should have omitted the "extra"!)

After spending several days in autographical pursuit you may spend a week in puzzling out the various handwritings. It is then time to read the ads which are to be followed by a reading of the grinds; some day, tho' 'tis dubious, you may arrive HERE—we advise you not to worry if you do not, as but a few people are intellectual enough.

1. Does Pearce Titter when Marjorie Bellows?
2. If Sylvia is short, is Estelle Long?
3. Does Irene Bloom and Viola Carrol?
4. If Marion wanted to know something would Evelyn Lerner?

Picking Your Vocation

Deciding upon your life work is only the beginning, as the attainment of success in any business demands a thorough understanding of business principals.

This includes a practical knowledge of record keeping systems. Thousands of letters, orders, bills, receipts, checks, etc., must be filed so that they can be found instantly when wanted. Every business man should know how this is done.

Drop in at our store; say that you are from E. H. S. and we will be glad to show you some interesting things about "Y and E" Record Keeping Systems that will prove a long step in your business education.
