Alma Mater

Sweet is this memory, High School of ours;
Here is this gesture, Fidelis to forever.
Hearts that have loved these four years in life's fight;
Names that we honor, the standards hold upright.

Our Alma Mater, keep the we sing;
May all thy future years new honors bring;
May friends rise, past memories pure, fly from gone years;
All love and prayers to our old F. H. S.
Alma Mater

Sweet be thy memory, High School of ours;
Fair be thy destiny, fadeless thy flowers;
Hearts that have loved thee have won in life's fight,
Names that we honor thy standards hold bright.

Our Alma Mater dear, to thee we sing,
May all thy future years new honors bring;
May friends thy banner raise, thy foes grow less;
All love and praise to our old E. H. S.

DEDICATION

"To Albert H. Wilcox, an inspiring friend and teacher, whose sincere interest in the individuals of the school has made him their respected leader, this book is affectionately dedicated."
FOREWORD

Four years of delightful experiences, and we pass on into a different world. High School memories become a part of our mental treasure store. The happy days spent in East High School are really worth cherishing in our fond collection of reminiscences.

This book is intended to serve as a guide into the past when we are somewhat older, and can appreciate the joyful days we spent in our dear Alma Mater.

ramblin' along with Jan. '28

what sweet little dears we were when we first came to East High... so innocent... so credulous... so simple that we even believed everything that our teachers told us... but that was before we met the honorable and exalted general smith who taught us the little tricks of life that make us great successes... oh... yes... Herr Schmidt as the brewers call him taught us how to be high and mighty sophisticates... ho... hum... and before we could even neglect our garters... we turned collegiate... ray... ray... and from that time on nothing but the latest in collegianna satisfied us... leather heels... zippy cravats... and all the rest of the... oh... you know what... being collegiate we had to throw dramatic... cut out the razz... and it is here that we cut some swanky ice when we put on that smashing football drama at the end of the rainbow... standing room only folks... but that wasn't our fault... no not much... being such marvelous actors... shhhhh... and again we went back to society... hot dog... and woof woof... but the bow Wow was certainly a wow of a snappy strutter... all we needed to deaden the party was seven more hot jazz bands... but the lure of the footlights beckoned again... so this time we clicked out another fast comedy hit called just out of college... and that had them all stopped with its George Ade humorous gags but we didn't want any more laurels on the stage

so we went back again to our social racket of rip snortin' parties and the next one entitled the fiesta was a beauty... what I mean... just look at this usual view of the fiesta at the night... and use your imagination... or draw your own conclusion... and then it didn't take long before senior day came round... so the boys were wild and their pants were woolly... and the girls in the artist garb were knockouts... and how they gave the ballroom floor of the Seneca the old workout... well... shed a tear for good times but graduation day soon over took us and we had to bid good-bye to our alma mater with our coveted sheepskins under our arms and depart for the cruel outside world.

A sportswoman and teacher of the finest type, Mrs. Elizabeth Hall commanded the highest admiration and respect as class advisor of January 1928. Her admirable spirit, her wise guidance, her fair attitude, and cheerful air of friendliness endeared her to each member of the class. The loss to us of Mrs. Hall's services through a most unfortunate accident in 1926 was inestimable, and was deeply felt and regretted by all. Her interest in our class, though she was no longer in an official capacity has never wavered, and has always helped us onward.

Mrs. Hall's place was as capable filled as was humanly possible through the appointment of Miss Lois Turner to succeed her. Miss Turner was in an especially advantageous position to assume the advisorship inasmuch as she had most of the girls of the class in her homeroom and already had their confidence. Her loyalty and confidence carried the class through many a difficult crisis; her zeal often put the finishing touch to doubtful class projects. Her excellent services on behalf of the class are a cherished memory to be carried through the years by the truly grateful class of January 1928.

And Mr. Ellis S. Smith! The "Man at the Helm" who with sardonic kindness steered the ship of January 1928 through a turbulent sea of troubles. Together with Miss Turner he steadfastly pursued a salutary policy of allowing the class to work out its own salvation but he was always there in a pinch. Time and time again he offered invaluable suggestion which invariably resulted in an increase of the renown of the class. There were undoubtedly innumerable occasions upon which both Mr. Smith and Miss Turner performed acts, for our benefit, which passed unknown to us. These acts, unknown to us, were never verbally recognized or appreciated. We take this occasion to express our heartfelt appreciation for all such past kindnesses.

The Class of January 1928 has been singularly fortunate in the happy selection of Faculty Advisors. Our school career over, we still treasure their friendship and glory in past relations with these loyal friends and true.
Class Poem

We have drunk of the well springs of knowledge
That foam from the hill-side of life;
We have run in the races of effort
That our limbs might be strong for the strife.

We have dwelt with the wise—they have shown us
The several pathways of truth.
Farewell to thee, land of plenty!
Hail to thee, future of youth!

June '28 Class History

From far and wide, from hither and yon, came the members of the class of June, 1918-to-be, on a September morn of 1914. Some disappeared into the Annexes,* others hibernated in the Main Building. Not until our respective Junior years did we all collide in the Main Building.

Soon after this collision we acquired Mr. Remington and Miss VanNess as class advisors. Inspired thus, we proceeded to elect class officers, an Old Spanish Custom in the school. Herb Heesch, emerged president; Marge Munce, vice-president; Helen Wilson, secretary and George Bantleon, treasurer.

We rambled through the year without calamity. Shortly after we had become the heterogeneous conglomeration of venerable seniors that we are, we again elected class officers. When the dust of battle had cleared Herb Heesch was still president, and George Bantleon still Infernal Revenue Collector, while Jim Sebaste had become vice-president and Doris Wilson secretary.

Determined to make our final year the most auspicious, we indulged in a harrowing, hugely successful party, the Senior Ghost Train, of October 30th. Followed soon the Senior Farce, "Seventeen." Two months later came, "You Never Can Tell," our Senior Play. On May 18th we romped through the final Senior party, one blowout that was far from being a flat tire.

If the treasury is not a liability after the Orient comes out, we shall cap the year by an excursion to Cobourg, on Senior Day, in June. After this, for the brighter ones, comes graduation; in the years after graduation—what? (Consult Class Prophet.)

Not to brag at all, but merely as a matter of record, we wish to state our fond belief that in Mr. Remington and Miss VanNess, the Class of June '28 has been blessed by just about the best two advisors that may fall to the lot of any class. There is the statement; the proof, to be brief, lies in the record of what these two have done in behalf of the class.

Any project which we might plan, and which met with their approval, was assured of their full and earnest support, and many a time, it has been mostly their support which has carried these projects through to a successful conclusion; their support which has made of the class the smooth-working unit that it is. Any time the members of the class have needed advice or suggestions in the management of class activities, these two have been ever willing to help out, often at the sacrifice of valuable time or of personal enjoyment. Always ready with good advice, approving or censoring, as they judged best, they have been true guardians and friends of the class.

The time now draws nigh when we shall end our four years' sojourn here and depart from East High. In this process we shall be forced to leave behind physically these two who, by the good judgment of Mr. Wilcox, were assigned the guidance of the destiny of our class, but we shall never forget them. By their friendliness and appealing personalities—for who could fail to be favorably impressed by the dry, pertinent humor of Mr. Remington, or the companionable, sunny nature of Miss VanNess?—they have won a place in our hearts which time can with difficulty assail.

We are about to leave East High, but in departing it is in our power to bestow a final gift to the school; to some future class we leave the opportunity and privilege of having Mr. Remington and Miss VanNess as advisors to that class, and as companions and loyal friends to the members thereof.

"EXECUTIVE COUNCIL SLUMBERS ON," "COUNCIL DEFUNCT," and other such charging statements, spread out in headlines at the beginning of the year announced to East High School that it was existing without any student control; that student government, and through it massed student expression, had fallen into a state of stupor. The student body read these degrading statements, smirked easily and unmovedly, and produced as their only reaction a detraction of the respect and honor that was accustomed to go with election to the highest student body of the school. Yet, in several cases this semester the very persons who wrote these articles were members of the Executive Council who were attempting to arouse student opinion to such a degree that reform would be inevitable.

East High had sunk to such depths of nonchalance and indifference that it seemed nothing could make the pupils feel that they must act. If it were true that student government had ceased to exist, it was also true that the school was getting on very well without it. The few pupils who took the interest to discuss the topic of student government expressed the opinion that a student governing body was an unnecessary and purposeless thing in East High School.

In spite of these discouraging reactions a few student leaders held the firm conviction that with student government of a wholesome sort, East High School would be a better institution. If for no other reason than to give boys and girls the training in citizenship that comes with tackling civic problems in high school, student government must be. In the eyes of these pupils East High was far from perfect; something was lacking in its honor system, in its social life, in its courtesy, in its support of activities. Teachers were at times wronging pupils; pupils were often wronging teachers; pupils were occasionally wronging each other. Here was a wide field for student endeavor.

"Let us have," said these constructive pupils, "a government that will take from the pupils and give to the faculty the powers that the faculty has through practice exerted and give to the pupils powers that will remain with them—powers that will allow them to exert a healthful influence over the fortunes of the school. A committee of arbitration can protect the rights of pupils in any unfairness in discipline or in awards for activities, a student finance committee can be a check on the disposal of the funds of the Students' Association, and a third committee can take up questions of the reputation, honor, and appearance of East High School."

Confidence that a new student government would have the power and ability to bring about a better state of school life rested on the hope that a new government would by home room representation come into direct contact with the student body and would thereby obtain prestige and influence with the pupils.

But to get this new government: there was the difficulty. The Executive Council was a degenerate body, having one by one lost the powers originally assigned to it. It was so devoid of power that it was unable, even under the urging of its president and leading members, to sign its own death warrant. Because of the organization of the school government under the Executive Council, there was little hope of a change being brought about by the usual and expected methods. Action had to come by spontaneous action of pupils functioning in no official capacity.

The history of the government movement shows that the excitement of the original campaign for the abolishment of the Executive Council begun by The Clarion more than two years ago had soon died down, and that an investigation committee appointed by the president of the Council had failed to hold a single meeting. Work done by a committee under John Sleight, president of the Students' Association last year, in re-writing the bulky and out-of-date constitution of the Students' Association proved in vain, for the results of their efforts were never laid before the Council. Fully in favor of the new government campaign which The Clarion, under the direction of its managing editor, Abe Miller, began last term, Albert E. Arent, president of the Students' Association, attempted to have the Council take action on substituting a superior form of government, but he soon found that the machinery of the Council was too weak to allow any decisive action to be taken.

It was this term, with Miss Helen Hess, editor-in-chief of The Clarion, trying to stir up feeling through the columns of the school publication, that a triumvirate met to institute some independent and unofficial action for rousing the student body from sluggishness in school affairs. Miss Hess, Albert E. Arent, and formed the group that set about the momentous task. Frequent meetings resulted in a clear idea of a new government, and during the Easter vacations a detailed constitution was written. In less than a month the triumvirate was ready to gather a corps of home-room workers, and to make the first concentrated effort for the adoption of a radically-changed government.

Unquestionably their efforts have resulted in a step forward. Whether their confidence in the ability of East High pupils to govern themselves sincerely and well is justified, remains to be learned from the results of this long and difficult struggle.

With a limited purse, the second combined yearbook staff set out to produce the "greatest annual of East High School," just as other staffs have done in days gone by. Multitudinous ideas were examined, then adopted or discarded according to the financial limitations.

The business staff still had to contend with the merchants' dread of so-called "bootleg advertising," and every advertisement in the back of this book is the result of some hard work of a member on the business board.

The editorial board considered it a delightful duty in writing the grinds of their fellow classmates, and hope they will accept them for better or worse.

The art work in this annual is an innovation in high school publications throughout the world. Clay models made by James Sebaste, art editor, used as the art motif in the book. The Oriental designs employed is in keeping with the Far East atmosphere which symbolizes the name of our school, a theme traditionally handed down from past generations.

This yearbook was published without the editorial faculty supervision of former years, although the class advisors showed more than a passing interest in the progress of the work. Roy E. Davey held the purse strings of the book, and he certainly succeeded in doing his task well.

Every few years, the Clarion undergoes a change. This time it was changed from a weekly news-magazine to a bi-weekly paper since Principal Wilcox felt that students put too much time on the school paper when it was issued weekly.

Donovan M. Jenkins stepped in this year to take charge of the faculty supervision of the Clarion. Mr. Jenkins, however, didn’t have a journalism class until the second semester.

At the Eastern Interscholastic Publications Association convention held at Ithaca during December, the Clarion was awarded honorable mention in the newspaper group. The delegates, Alice Willson, Abe Miller, Harold Altman, and Donovan M. Jenkins studied the publications of various other high schools.

The Clarion started the ball rolling for a change of student government by agitating against the system of the Executive Council. Prizes were given to students who made the best plans for change of school government.

The Christmas issue of this year’s Clarion was one of the largest ever put out in East High. The paper had three sections which included a literary and political supplement besides the regular news section.

The financial status of the Clarion this year is unusually good. Very seldom does the Clarion succeed in making a profit, and this year the Clarions of both terms returned a fair monetary gain.

This year East High School welcomed a new teacher who has stepped into George Carhart's place as advisor of the school paper, the Clarion. Needless to say, Donovan M. Jenkins has made good. With youthful enthusiasm, Mr. Jenkins launched a campaign to make the official organ of the Students' Association one of the brightest periodicals in the state. And as a result, the Clarion increased its circulation under the regime of Donovan M. Jenkins.

A journalism class conducted by Mr. Jenkins during the second semester was quite a successful organization. This group contributed much toward making the Clarion such an important factor of the school's activities.

Two numbers of the Clarion inspired by Mr. Jenkins at this time are worthy of mention. The political issue of the first semester and the quarter century edition published during the second term were both rated high in scholastic publication circles.

Roy E. Davey acted in the dual role of advisor to both the Clarion and the Orient. And how he watched the expenditure of the shekels can be ascertained by looking over the ledgers of both publications. The Clarion returned a fair profit on every issue this year, which is more than can be said for many preceding years.

Mr. Davey possesses that indefinable zeal that spurs on all that associated with him. The business managers of the Orient established a record in gaining advertisers for the yearbook, and behind it all was Mr. Davey.

How Mr. Davey learned to guard the treasury of the school may puzzle many, but one thing they know and that is, he certainly can get more out of a dollar than many a financier.

A new feature in faculty supervision of publications was instituted this year for the Orient. The regular class advisors inspected the copy of the yearbook instead of one faculty member as in the past.

A brightly lighted stage... actors entering and exiting in their parts... swift action or quiet, sedate conversations... finally the last word, the last gesture, and the curtain descending for the last time.

That is a play—the culmination in a few short hours of weeks of preparation and rehearsing, of weeks of acting the same scenes over and over, adding, subtracting, or remodeling the sections, in order to achieve the nearest possible point to perfection. That is the finished product, but in the weeks of polishing up and perfecting lies the success or failure of that production.

To Miss Katherine Burns, director of dramatics in East High School goes the task of tutoring senior actors during the weeks of preparation, and of getting out of them the most and the best that they can give. Judging by the reception accorded the senior presentations, she has done the task admirably well. To Miss Katherine Burns, therefore, should go most of the credit for the success of the senior class farces and plays presented in this school.

Under the direction of Miss Burns, four plays were produced by the 1928 graduating classes. The Class of January 1928 started off well with "At the End of the Rainbow," and soon followed with "Just Out of College." June 1928 reverted to more serious light comedy in "Seventeen" and "You Never Can Tell." The latter play is considered rather difficult for a high school production, but the ability of the cast is carrying off the action so smoothly seems to have exploded that theory.

The Class of January 1929 rounded out the dramatic season with "The Charm School," a comedy.

Besides the four class plays mentioned, there was one production staged in the school auditorium of undeniable merit, and deserving of praise. For two nights the accomplished actors from among the faculty graced the stage in their annual affair, the "Faculty Revel," which consisted of one drama, two comedies, and several short numbers. The ponderous task of directing these determined thespians fell upon Erie Remington, talented English teacher, talented actor. Everyone who saw the "Revels" realized that he did extremely well, both in the matter of acting and in the matter of directing.

From the work that the orchestra and band have done this last year, these organizations may easily be considered the best of their kind in the city schools. Karl VanHoesen was not daunted at the beginning of school by the usual dearth of talent, but he went confidently ahead and molded together groups which rivaled even those of the previous year when he first assumed control.

At a goodly number of assemblies the students were highly pleased to hear the orchestra, and whenever it appeared outside, which was quite frequently, additional prestige was gained. The band, likewise, played at assemblies and at the basketball games, performing in a highly creditable manner.

The annual concert has so far been the biggest event of the musical year. There was no admission charge, a large audience being desired, and as a result a well-filled house was present to hear a performance of surpassing worth.

Great credit is due Mr. VanHoesen for the remarkable results which he has obtained with his proteges. Although the school, as a whole, appreciates his magnificent endeavors, it does not perhaps realize what efforts behind the scenes have been necessary to bring about the visible product.

The vocal organizations of this school have also been extremely active during the past year. At the City Teacher’s Institute, selections were rendered, and concerts were given at grammar schools and over the radio. At the two or three assemblies in school at which the Glee Clubs were heard, well-earned acclaim was bestowed.

As this book goes to press, the annual concert will not have been presented, but an ambitious program is being prepared, almost unequalled by those of former years, and a musical treat is assured.

Here it is indeed fitting to mention the Glee Clubs of the University Annex. Under the extremely capable leadership of Marlowe Smith they have done much to uphold the high reputation of East High School, and more will be expected of them, for these groups will form the nucleus of the future main building organizations.

Howard Hinga and Marlowe Smith are to be congratulated on the way in which they have trained these high school singers. The ever-present task of putting together new combinations has been met by them with cool serenity and their results have been truly astounding.

Although the Orientals had one of the hardest fighting teams in the city league, they lacked the essential punch to claim the city championship again. Every game that was lost was only surrendered by a small margin of one or two points which were sometimes gained by the breaks of the game.

Coach "Pete" McKay had even fewer veterans this season to mold his team around than in the preceding years. Ed Hayes, Dick Ader, and Herb Yackel were the three men of the 1927 championship team to return to school. Coach McKay had to strengthen the backfield with Captain Hayes at the expense of weakening the line, but this move saved many a tally from flying into the Oriental net.

The remarkable factor of the disastrous season was the morale of the team. Even though the Eastsiders were rated quite low in the league, the boys entered each battle with the same determination and pluck. Fighting against such odds would have discouraged most teams, but the "old" East High sportsmanship spirit was admirably carried on by the players on the soccer field.

The chances for a championship team next season are much brighter. Coach McKay will get more veterans back to form the nucleus of the team. Captain-elect Herb Yackel is a good leader on the field, and if he will be able to get a battling aggregation or rally around him, the East High eleven should make a creditable showing.

SECTIONAL TOURNAMENT AT ROCHESTER

- March 8, 1928: East High 33 vs. Canandaigua High 17
- March 10, 1928: East High 35 vs. Greigsville High 11
- March 16, 1928: East High 26 vs. Corning Free Academy 17

STATE TOURNAMENT AT TROY

- March 22, 1928: East High 19 vs. Southampton High 16
- March 23, 1928: East High 24 vs. Fosdick-Masten 26
Coming within an ace of winning the state basketball championship, the East High team established one of the best records in years. The Oriental basketeers lost only two games during the entire season, and one of the tilts dropped was to the strong Colgate Frosh quint. The only game lost to a high school team was in the semi-final round of the state-wide basketball tourney at Troy when the Eastsiders were nosed out by a 26 to 24 score in a heart-breaking nip and tuck battle by Fosdick-Masten of Buffalo.

In the city league, "Doc" Fowles' proteges steam-rolled over all opposition, coping the city championship without a blemish on their record. West High, traditional rivals from across the Genesee, was decisively trounced twice at the New York State Armory.

The sectional tournament proved easy meat for the East High passers. Wins over Canandaigua, Greigsville, and Corning entitled the Orientals to a crack at the state basketball crown. At Troy, the East High quint eliminated Southside High of Southampton, Long Island, in the initial round, although the team was off form that night. On the following night, the Purple and White tossers showed a reversal of form, but "tough" breaks conspired with the fast Buffalo five to oust the Rochester team out of the title play by the narrow margin of two points.

A new feature of this season was the new ruling which did not allow the coach to direct the team during a game. Captain Kowal took over that responsibility, and his work as floor leader was remarkably exceptional.
Captain Michael Kowal
Center

The cool floorwork of Captain Kowal coupled with a deadeye for the rim was one of the outstanding factors of the Oriental success on the court this season. Mike is a dependable leader, and clearly demonstrated his ability by bringing the East High five through one of the greatest years in the basketball pastime.

Jerry Cohn
Forward

To this elusive, clever forward belongs a great share of the credit for the record established by the Oriental tossers. Besides being one of the high scorers on the team, his pass-work and floor game was invaluable to the machinelike precision of the Fowle coached aggregation. Jerry showed his mettle all season, and was given an honorary berth on the all-state mythical team at the Troy tournament.

Frank Gervasi
Guard

Grit, speed, and an uncanny eye for the hoop characterizes our "galloping ghost," one of the most feared men in Western New York. His spirit and determination was ever an important part of an East High victory. Frank was unanimously chosen captain of next year's team. This All-State guard should prove a happy choice as leader of an Oriental quintet.
NATHAN LEVIN
Guard

Although declared ineligible at the beginning of the season, Nat came back strong to fill the shoes of "Bo" Mink, stellar guard, who was declared ineligible after the second half of the season. Nat is a dependable foul shot, and besides that, can be sure of holding his man.

RAY SHUTRUM
Forward

Ray came to us from Batavia, and has performed so well that our respect for the town has already climbed a few notches. Besides being an excellent shot, ranking fifth in the city league, Ray is a fighting man and that counts! The students of East High expect a great deal from this rangy forward next season.

HYMEN DISHER
Substitutes

Although these boys invested most of their time in bench duty this year, they both were prepared whenever called upon to carry on the work of the fast working East High hoopsters. Never better did they show their worth, however, than in the State Tournament, when they were both put in for the final quarter. They ran true to that old Oriental form, which is sure going some.

The East High baseball nine at the time of writing is just getting underway. Coach "Pete" McKay has rounded up a promising crew of ambitious youngsters, and according to pre-season "dope" should do some fancy ice-cutting in the city baseball league.
Reserve Soccer Team

The Reserves fared much better in their city league than the regulars. The Oriental scrubs won the city championship nosing out Charlotte High by the narrow margin of one point. Coach "Pete" McKay should glean some valuable material from this source for the next team to represent the Purple and White.

SEASON RECORD
Minor Sports

Although these sports are not so much in the public eye, they have proven to be quite popular with many students. Wrestling, Swimming, Track, and Tennis are gaining more favor each year.

The Wrestling and Swimming Teams while not being successful from a record book point of view, have upheld the good sportsmanship tradition which is so dear to East High.

Our track exponents have fared a little better. The Cross Country Team made away with all the honors. It was a clean sweep for the Oriental hill and dalers. As the book is going to press, the outdoor track season is just getting under way so we are unable to record the progress of the cindermen.

An innovation in tennis this year was the high school league which at the time of writing has not yet pried off its lid. With the strong line-up of Oriental racketers, the team should meet with success.

Coaches

When it comes to coaching basketball, "Doc" Fowle certainly knows his business. The Oriental mentor has turned out many winning teams on the court, and the one that came so close to winning the state championship this year was one of his greatest. "Doc" also has the coaching of the track team, and the newly formed golf team to look after.

James Fowle

East High is fortunate in having such a man as "Pete" McKay to tutor the baseball rookies. Any youngster that has any baseball ability is sure to develop under the careful teaching of "Pete," and many have found their way to berths on college teams as a result. Soccer and wrestling are two other sports that come under the watchful eye of "Pete."

Robert B. McKay

Although there has not been any interscholastic sports relationship for the girls in the high schools this year, Lilian Wangman kept the girls busy with class sports. There are many girls in the school who can play basketball or baseball as good as their friends of the opposite sex, and much of this due to the efforts of Miss Wangman.

Lilian Wangman

Effie Wetherell is another leader in girl's sportsdom. With her aid, the East High girls can hold their own in athletics against anybody. The girls have not only learned the lesson of good sportsmanship, but are quite proficient in baseball, track, horseback riding, golf, and swimming. It is indeed a new era that the girls in East High School have entered upon, under the leadership of such coaches.

CHICAGO—Fae AlaBromo, movie actress from Follywood, today disappeared after one of the most daylight brazen kidnappings yet seen here in many a moon. The popular movie star was dining at the Fay grill when suddenly she was besieged by three Western bandits, and hurried away in a heavily-curtained automobile.

"Big Bill" Thompson will personally lead the search for the "sweetheart of the silver sheet," and Bill means action. When interviewed in his home while playing poker with some of his cronies, Bill remarked, "We will find Fae if it takes all year to do it. This crime is a reflection on the city of Chicago, and we must clear the name of our fair town. Never before has such a thing happened while I was in power."

The mayor revealed exclusively to the Red Light Graphic that he expects to call out the navy and the army, and if King George butts in, every history book will be destroyed. As for the Prince of Wales, Bill said that he would get rid of him by letting him ride a horse. "It never fails to work," said our darling politician.

Meanwhile all Follywood is anxiously awaiting word on the latest developments in the kidnapping. Adolphe Bantleon offered three thousand dollars reward for the capture of the kidnappers.

Fae came to Chicago to rest up for her next picture, Passionate Pash, according to her director, Funzo Ottavius. She had been working hard, and the would-be vacation in the Windy City was to avert a possible nervous breakdown.

Last night, Fae was seen with a tall, handsome escort at the Hit 'Em Hard Nite Club. The escort wore a dark blue Chesterfield coat, three machine guns, and a mustache. The detectives think that he is an important link in the case, and if the missing link is found the mystery might be cleared.

Students Cavort at a Wild Orgy Which Draws Furious Fire!

ADAMS BASIN (Assasinated Press)—
The wildest of wild orgies at high school parties was revealed today when Principal I. M. Hawkshaw expelled ten pupils from the Buckeye High School for participation in alleged "flaming youth" party.

Says Principal Hawkshaw, "Over my dead body will I tolerate such action as I discovered when I attended a class party last evening in the school. Imagine my embarrassment when a sixteen-year-old girl insisted that I do the Varsity Drag with her. And to think that they served punch without even batting an eyelash. Such brazen conduct warrants fast action—and out they go."

This leaves the Buckeye High School without a senior class, since the entire class of ten students received their walking papers. Many of the students will transfer to the Yeast High of Rochester.

Prof. Hubie Finds Darwin Right

Missing Link Is Clue To Mystery of the Dizzy Centuries

KALAMAZOO (Special Wire)—Conclusive evidence that Darwin was right has been discovered today by Professor Hubie Bitter of the Landsdale School for Effeminate Women. While strolling through the woods in the neighborhood of the school, Professor Bitter suddenly perceived a human being swinging from branch to branch high up among the trees.

"Aha," ejaculated Professor Bitter, "this undoubtedly must be the Ehzalsixntihgn specimen of the prehistoric period of fungarlity growth which is common to the Neanderathal personification of highly undeveloped tomato herrings." In other words, the professor was delighted with finding the Missing Link.

The link that brings two civilizations together is one of the finest specimens yet discovered. It is the exact image of a Xlort, yet it has features common to the human being.

When the professor bagged the Missing Link, it was gurgling in a snorting soprano, "The key, the key, whiskey, oh give me the key."

Immediately, the professor busied himself with experiments. So he sang, "My Bonny Lies Over the Ocean" to the Missing Link. The Link playfully bit a chunk of meat out of the professor's leg, but the professor was so absent-minded that he thought his garter broke.

After singing two verses of that ballad, the Missing Link came in on the chorus, but it insisted on taking friendly bites out of the professor. "This was to show his affection," the professor remarked.

In regards to the future of the Missing Link, contracts from all over the world have poured in. The Link is trying to decide whether to go into the movies or talk over the radio, and there is strong possibility that the Link will go on a lecture tour.

Hail to the Champion

After a hard eleven hour match, Clarence Neuse of San Antonio defeated John Roemer of Fishtown for the North and South Open Chess Championship here today. Neuse was weak in the beginning, but came back strong in the last four chukkers.

Roemer started in well, but became disconcerted when Neuse coughed three hours and thirteen minutes after the start of the match. He foolishly moved a pawn, and from then on weakened rapidly.

Neuse astounded the spectators in the fourth inning by suddenly capturing Roemer's king with a swift left to the right. Roemer seemed to be at a loss without the use of his king, but soon brought the stands to their feet by sneaking the king back on the board when Neuse wasn't looking. However, Neuse soon retaliated by throwing Roemer's queen out the window, and from then on the match was his.

The final score was 63, 6-4.

Love in A Banana Tree

Choo! CHOO!
The four o'clock flier, as usual, chugged into the placid village of Horse-heads at five o'clock sharp, with the entire village population out to greet the engineer. Yes, the ten of them always made it a point to be on hand when the flier made its weekly run into Horse-heads.

Leaning against the ramshackle telephone booth which doubled for a station, Violet Sweet, the inn-keeper's daughter, dreamed of far off cities and of Follywood. She looked around, and who should walk up but Bull Montana.

Oh, how she pined to be a star of the silver sheet, and gain renown as an actress. Her stern father often warned her that no good could come of her dreams. And to impress the loveliness of the village of Horse-heads into her mind, he would hit her over the head once or twice with a mallet whch he kept to the placid village of Horse-heads at five o'clock.

Violet, hid in the caboose, and sure enough the flier made its weekly run into Horse-heads. Just then up dashed Doug Fairbanks, and snatched Violet away as the Bull hunched forward in an attempt to kiss our pretty heroine. Saved, and she fainted in the hero's arms. (That's where they always fall.)

A palace. A fairy palace. Where was she? Violet blinked her eyes, and gazed about with her mouth open. Doug told her that he had taken her to his home until she recovered and that she could stay as long as she pleased.

"But, mister, I want to get into the movies," pleaded Violet.

"A-ha," gurgled Doug, "so that's it. Hum, Hum, Hum, Hum, etc.

"Whooppee," shouted Doug. "I'm just the man your looking for."

Just then Dr. Douglas Fairbanks, Sr. and his wife called for their daughter to get ready to leave for Follywood. She was dreaming when the train rolled into Horse-heads, just as a happy thought struck her. Plunk! She would hide in the caboose, and sure enough, Violet was indeed taken to his home until she recovered and that she could stay as long as she pleased.

"But, mister, what's got to do with that?" Violet blinked her eyes again, and gazed around with her mouth open.

"You have the prettiest voice in all Follywood," continued the hero, "and I'm really going to break into the movies!"

"Listen, girlie," continued the hero, "since the advent of the talking movie, all screen folks have been up against it. Now take my leading lady. She's not so hard to look at, but the darn fool stutters. And Herta Narbog can't even talk English. But you haven't heard the half of it. Shhhhh! Even your best friend won't tell you, but what's more, most of them have got halitosis—and that even registers on the talking movie."

"Get away from them swinging doors," shouted the bar-tender who was Bull Montana.

"Please, mister, can I have a pretzel," continued our heroine.

"Get away from them swinging doors!" shouted the bar-tender who was Bull Montana.

"Aw, mister, just a little bit of piece of a pretzel."

"Aw, hell, throw the kid a pretzel," murmured the director who was tearing his hair out on location. The scene opened up in a barroom showing a father boozing, and a little girl calling for her dad to go home. The director shouted through his megaphone to Violet:

"Ready—shoot!"

"Father, father, come home, with me, father."

"Get away from them swinging doors," shouted the bar-tender who was Bull Montana.

"Please, mister, can I have a pretzel," continued our heroine.

"Get away from them swinging doors!

"Aw, mister, just a little bit of piece of a pretzel."

"Aw, hell, throw the kid a pretzel," murmured the director who was tearing his hair out with anger, and just then

GAFF KNEE INVENTS NEW COCKTAIL DRINK

A new cocktail recipe has been discovered by Professor Gaff Knee, which is guaranteed to be verisimilitude. This new little concoction is so good that one whiff puts you into a state of insanity, and the second whiff is a signal to call the undertaker to take your measure for a wooden jimono.

The new drink will be registered in the government offices, and soon will be placed on the market to compete with Cola Coca. The name of Gaff Knee's mixture will be called "Dynamite Dew Drops" or "See Paris—and Die."

Get Away From Them Swinging Doors

Pretzels—"Daddy, Daddy, I want a pretzel." Pitiful scene from Ten Knights in a Bar-room now playing at the Feastman Theatre.

Feastman Offers Super Attraction This Year

By Gerald Gooseflesh

The Feastman theatre offers this week as its feature attraction that stirring play, "Ten Bights in a Knar-room," written by that world-famous dramatist, Napoleon Gooseflesh. The play opens in Lapland, showing the happy little Laps at play. From then on the action of the play moves rapidly, and the interest is sustained through to the last moment, when the final curtain descends amid the cheers and huzzas of the audience.

The plot of "Ten Knights in a Bar-room" is very complicated. It revolves around the efforts of a poor shoe-maker to pay off the mortgage on his old homestead, and raise enough money to send his son through Vassar. In the first act, the unscrupulous village banker (J. Schlick) demands that the shoemaker (E. Foster) pay him the mortgage money within three weeks. Meanwhile, the shoemaker's son (B. Levine) is in another town (J. Cohen), trying to sell the family cow (Lon Chaney). While in the town (J. Cohen), the son (B. Levine) enters the cow (Lon Chaney) in a cattle show (S. Bosse). The cow wins the first prize, and the son is able to sell it for just enough money to cover the cost of the mortgage. He returns two weeks (M. Seegler) six days (M. Maier) and eleven hours (J. Lohrman) later, just in time, of course, to pay off the mortgage in the last act.

The play is well constructed and very well written, but the acting is terrible. Except for the fact that the entire play is so well written, the production would be a complete flop.

"Ten Knights in a Bar-room" was first produced in Chicago, where it had an unusual run. It was run out of town the first night.

Simple Diet Hardens Athletics For the New Season

KNUDOP (Assassinated Press).—The latest reports have it that the Yeast High football nine are ready for their big game with the Occidentals. The Yeast boys have risen quite prominently lately, and have shown that they can play a bang-up game of football.

The last five weeks of training were spent in dancing on the green, playing black-jack, going to parties, and eating oysters. But that’s all right, avera Coach Mickey, “Those boys are as hard as nails.”

Elaborate plans for making tomorrow’s football game do down into history are being concocted by the Adams Basin Fireside Sewing Circle. Tea will be served between the halves, and the boys will be given an opportunity of displaying their skill in anti-septic dancing.

The Occidentals have trained on Uneeda Biscuits, and are favored to crumble the Yeast High line. What will prove to be the most satisfactory arrangement, all the critics have agreed is to call off the football contest, and let the teams play bridge, or if they prefer, Tiddly Winks.

“Souser” Levin, famous end of the Yeast-siders is definitely out of the game. “Souser” will watch the game from the bleachers with tears in his eyes.

The “Dance of the Seven Veils” will feature the strategic play of the Yeast High boys if they are sorely pressed. With this play, it isn’t the distance that counts so much, as it is the effect that can be achieved.

It is estimated that three Yeast High rooters will be on hand tomorrow for the game. The police are making arrangements for handling a crowd of seventy-five thousand.

PIPER—Dancers must pay the piper, but these boys of the Yeast High Football Team are no different. So they cavort madly on the gridiron without a care.

Society Out in Force
For Hanging of Desperado

HAYVILLE, Aug. 3.—Hayville society turned out in force last Tuesday to witness the gala event of the past few weeks—the hanging of Morris Poze in the public square. The occasion has been looked forward to eagerly for a long time and is the culmination of weeks of careful preparation. Everything went off splendidly, and the committee in charge is to be congratulated on this successful ending to their toilsome efforts.

"Flash" Poze, the guest of honor—known also to the police of other cities as "Morrie the Moron," "Ohio's Fishmonger," and "Seventh Story Sambo," had had a checkered career. He was first apprehended at the age of five for playfully hitting his landlord with a stove lid, and since then he has had many an escapade until that sad, sad night two months ago when he was arrested for driving his tricycle down Main Street at an excessive rate of speed.

The ill-fated youth was hailed before Justice Benz and was fined $5 fines.

Enraged, Poze pulled out a shotgun and shot the Justice through the heart. This considered the pulchritude, also the character of the unfortunates in these respects. They sincerely believe the two selected to be superior to the other members of the class in these respects.

Albert McCoy was given the decision as the handsomest boy and the prettiest girl from among the members of the June 1928, graduating class.

In making their decision, the judges considered not only the pulchritude, but also the character and personality of the contestants. They sincerely believe the two selected to be superior to the other members of the class in these respects.

BEAUTY CONTEST FINALLY DECIDED

ROCHESTER, May 28.—(Direct to the Red Light Graphic and West Australian Newspaper Alliance).—After several weeks of deliberation, the judges of the East High School Orient's beauty contest have announced the winners of the competition. The contest was incepted by the Orient, school annual, to choose the handsomest boy and the prettiest girl from among the members of the June 1928, graduating class.

The two judges of the contest were Albert McCoy, editor of the annual, and Dorothy Ehrlich, Senior Section Editor.

Why beards don't grow on women."

Statistics released by the Health Bureau today show that every man over the age of 109 has a very slight chance of living ten more years. "Yes," replied Doctor Moler in reply to a reporter's query, "it took us ten years of intensive research to find out that single important fact, and now that we have discovered the truth, we will labor to find out why beards don't grow on women."

Ten thousand years ago, when Gloria's grandfather and the Mayflower ancestors played in the same trees together—the two clans swore allegiance to each other. As the years went on the two clans separated. Gloria's folks went into vaudeville, while the Mayflowers went into the ship building racket.

The will read yesterday after the death of Dandillon Mayflower in New York revealed how the two families were linked up again. It is one of the mysteries of the ages, but anyhow read the will yourself. The will:

"All the money that I possess in this world, I bequeath to Gloria Gould, on condition that her pal, Sadie Thompson, doesn't get a cent of it. I discovered the whereabouts of that place. I discovered the truth. We will labor to find out that place. She will buy an umbrella to keep out the rain, and sit under a banana tree on the South Sea Isles. It's even more popular than a saxaphone, and that's going some."

The spirit of Romance has not yet disappeared from our civilization. As witness to this fact, glance at the accompanying photo which depicts a scene in one of the city parks, just as the sun is dropping over the western hills and the moon is slowly rising on the horizon.

Unbeknownst to the two happy couples pictured, the Graphic staff photographer, under great difficulty, snapped this charming photo, thereby securing genuineness and realism otherwise hard to obtain. Unbeknownst to the two happy couples pictured, the Graphic staff photographer, under great difficulty, snapped this charming photo, thereby securing genuineness and realism otherwise hard to obtain. The personalities are Robert Roehn, a local shoemaker, Agnes Reynaldo, one of the city's elite, Henrietta Pie, daughter of the famous Eskimo, and Louis Loosefoot, another shoemaker.

Roehn may be seen in the midst of an impassioned speech to the fair Miss Reynaldo, while Loosefoot is waxing eloquent to the fair Miss Pie, unconscious of the photographer's presence. Roehn followed a moment later being forced to stand up for a few moments. Roehn and Reynaldo fell exhausted, and were carried out.

The results of the hot race for Venus' hand will be found on the sporting page.

UPS AND DOWNS

Elevators will be installed in the Yeast High School of Rochester, if plans of the Board of Education materialize within the next ten years. Of course, it must be understood that such a plan calls for a large expenditure, according to Jack Dempsey, janitor of the school, but money don't count when our little one's comfort is at stake.

Plans for a football field, for which agitation was started forty-five years ago, has again been put off at the board meeting.

Desperado Dangles For Crime

WEDDING — Banker’s son to wed rich heiress. He is shown rehearsing for the ceremony on the Kimberly Greens.

INTELLECT—
Find the horse. The equine has an intelligent look on his face, so with this as a clue it can’t be hard.

FORE — The Haag is seen driving off on the Nineteenth hole at Sandwich, England. His caddy is acting as a tee, since he is Scotch.

STEEPLE-JACK — There he goes—The human fly is scaling the Woolworth building. Two more flights, foks, and he’s there.

An education is something that must last a lifetime. Few persons can afford to spend the necessary time and money a second time because a wrong first choice of a school has resulted in an inadequate training.

The Rochester Business Institute provides the kind of business training that brings success to its students; it provides the assurance of advancement for those who complete its comprehensive, thoroughly practical courses. Its record of more than sixty-four years of continuous growth and usefulness to the large community it serves, and the rapid rise to positions of leadership by so many of its 44,000 alumni, are convincing reasons why the Rochester Business Institute should be the choice of young men and women who are seeking desirable and key positions in the business world.

IT would be easy to build Annuals, were we only obliged to accept manuscript and print. The result would be mechanical typesetting, presswork, paper and binding... all that a great many Annuals are... a jumbled mass of text and illustrations.

A DuBois Press Annual, however, means typography, presswork, paper and binding... plus.

Plus a treatment which unifies the literary features; consistent art work and typography; pleasing color combinations; suitable papers for end leaves, opening section, division pages and text; and finally covers that are not only durable and attractive but suggestive of the theme, whenever possible.

WE ARE BUILDING this season the Year Books of the United States Naval and Military Academies, Cornell University... and many others.

Are You a Social Flat Tire?

If you suffer from fallen arches, have water on the knee, and women on the brain—there is probably something WRONG.

Now take Roberta Hoehna, that popular little Follies dancer. Before she became the sensation of Broadway, she never was invited out anywhere—except in a Ford. She began using Kisterine regularly, and now she is the toast of all the speakeasies.

Read Maurice Potz’s stirring soul baring confession. “My magnetizing personality is due to the wonderful qualities of Kisterine,” says Potz, the feminine enchanter.

Scores of famous people in all walks of life sing the praises of Kisterine. Such people as Alicia McCoy, Stanlius Holtz, and Johnus Merrill wouldn’t be without IT. Why should you be?

What Others Are Saying

The following statement by E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, is significant.

E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, stated he lacked faith in public ownership. He added the Canadian Pacific was not and had not been anxious to take over all or any of the National Lines.

He said Canadian Pacific would continue its policy of fair competition as a spur to efficiency. He was unable to see advisability of railway monopoly in Canada. Canadian Pacific had accepted from state amounts which appeared very moderate compared with those since granted and spent in aid of subsequent enterprise. Both methods had been tried and construction by government had failed while that of private enterprise in this instance succeeded.
