Glamour and reality—the high adventure of delving into the mysteries of science; the satisfaction of mastering the fixed principles of mathematics; the inspiration of reliving the drama of literature; the challenge of finding solutions for the ever-changing problems of history—all these have been depicted upon our mental canvases. They make our picture of Madison. To help preserve these memories, when they have become shrouded in the tantalizing mists of forgetfulness, we, the members of the 1937 graduating classes, publish this year book.

1937

The future lies before us. To some, it will be the noisy world of machines; to others, the surging market-places of business, of finance, of tall office buildings; to still others, it will be the varied realms of medicine, of law, of social problems. For all these, Madison has laid a strong foundation on which we shall endeavor to build. To those who follow, we pass the brush, hoping that their initiative and ingenuity will superimpose still brighter colors on the mural Madison.

MURAL

In dawn-orchid and old silver, soft curling,
Smoky horizons, in spilled-paint sunrise,
The young blood flows freely and tests its hopes
On mottled palette, on yet vague canvas.
The mind-mist lifts, amber in sun cloud burning;
Artist youth works with pulsing brush.

Youth is the everyman—each one a semblance of the whole;
And light-dreams and feather-thoughts for years not yet come
Are the differences. And each takes a figure;
Out of the jumble comes design for the panels' balance.
On the one, shapes the background of cool metals,
The horizons of broad arches and skyscrapers,—
Men of sledges, cams, blueprints, and the love of doing.
Each one chooses; and some must climb ladders in reaching.
The other, a background of blue haze;
The horizons are of castle towers and time-vagueness,
Of poetry and great books; the foreground, men
Loving beautiful words and a soft breeze,
Jeanne d'Arc, the chemist in his worlds
Of myriad ions and curling gases. Each a figure,
Yet the same in the dawn-mist, amber glowing,— Amber youth working out the mural "Life."

The mist closes in. Youth pauses, brush uplifted,
"What now? What figure next?"

—ROBERT ROTHFUS

DEDICATION

ROSE E. SUTTER

TO ROSE E. SUTTER, WHOSE WORK ON FORMER ISSUES OF THE MADISONIAN HAS MERITED HIGH PRAISE, WE DEDICATE THIS YEAR BOOK. WITH PATIENCE AND UNDERSTANDING, SHE HAS MET AND SOLVED DIFFICULT PROBLEMS. AS A TEACHER, SHE HAS WON OUR RESPECT AND LOYALTY. WE, THE GRADUATES OF 1937, WISH TO EXPRESS OUR SINCERE GRATITUDE FOR HER CONTRIBUTION TO OUR SCHOOL LIFE.

CHARLTON B. BOLLES

THE STUDENTS OF JANUARY AND JUNE, 1937, SINCERELY DEDICATE THIS YEAR BOOK TO MR. CHARLTON B. BOLLES FOR HIS UNTIRING EFFORTS AS FACULTY ADVISER FOR THE MADISON MIRROR. FOR THREE YEARS HE HAS UNSELFISHLY GIVEN OF HIS TIME AND ENERGY. IT IS WITH DEEPEST REGRET THAT WE LEAVE BEHIND AN UNDERSTANDING FRIEND WHO HAS DONE SO MUCH TO MAKE OUR SCHOOL PAPER A SUCCESS.

The Student Cabinet consists of two student Council members from each grade level, elected directly by the Council. The Cabinet, with the officers, forms the nucleus of the student government. No measure voted upon by the Council can be put into effect without the approval of the Cabinet, and Cabinet committees exert executive as well as legislative powers.

PAPER HAS COLORFUL, INTERESTING HISTORY

The first issue of the Madison Mirror was published November 1, 1933. Since that time nearly two hundred students have served on the staff in various capacities and each has contributed to the evolution of the paper.

Volume I, No. 1 was a large, four page, bi-weekly paper and its managing editor was Robert Shaw. On the front page were a cartoon by Joseph Federico, staff cartoonist; an article on Germany by Charles Higbie; a sports article; and an editorial explaining the policies of the new paper. The title head was flanked by two N.R.A. eagles.

The Mirror remained the same size until 1936, when, thru the efforts of editor Louis Lo Russo, it was changed to a smaller six page paper containing only school news. The first important article which the new type paper carried was the result of the school election. The name plate which the Mirror now has was designed by cartoonist Edward Altavella. At the High School Newspaper Conference, which was held in Syracuse in 1936, the Mirror received honorable mention for being the only newspaper to deal exclusively with school news.

COLORED INKS, CONTEST INCREASE CIRCULATION

The fine support the student body has given in purchasing the Madison Mirror has proved invaluable in securing its present rating among the highest school publications in the city. Without this co-operation, the Mirror would never have achieved such heights.

At first, the Mirror issued about six hundred copies, but its circulation has grown until at its highest point it sold thirteen hundred. The average is over one thousand copies.

To gain circulation many experiments were tried. Green, black, red, and blue inks have been used on different colored paper.

Contests, among which were The Most Popular Song, What's Your Business, Bark Knowledge, and Madison Mirror Quizzes, have been conducted. The Madison Mirror Quizzes conducted by Professor Mirro-quizz proved most popular.

The latest venture was a Baby Picture Contest. The Madison student submitting the cutest baby picture was awarded a prize.

"SKIDDING"

The members of the senior class presented an excellent performance of this stage hit on December 4, 1936, in the Madison High School Auditorium. Each member of the cast should be congratulated for a fine bit of acting.

HONOR BASKETBALL TEAM

A YEAR IN GIRLS' SPORTS

SEPTEMBER:—Here we are again, after the summer vacation, just “rarin’ to go” in our senior year. There will be clubs for all, but, alas and alack, still no swimming! And those tennis courts at the athletic field are a fine sight too, having been ripped asunder but not remade as yet. However, it is hoped that club membership will be large.

OCTOBER:—Hurray for the girls’ side! Almost 500 have joined clubs, which include Captain Ball for all senior girls, and Hit-Pin for seventh and eighth graders. The largest membership is in the new Mixed Games Club, where ping-pong, badminton, and volley ball will be played. The swimming jinx has been broken at last, and a number of girls go to the “Y” for the club which meets every Wednesday.

With all this organizing, a new Athletic Committee has swung into action, and is planning a change in the system of awarding M’s.

NOVEMBER:—The play-offs in Captain Ball are over. That snappy team of ninth graders reached the finals, and was then beaten by the senior team, whose defeat would have caused just too many red faces!

The favorite sport, basketball, is under way, with many members in each of the three clubs.

The new point system has started, but since it doesn’t apply to seniors, they are still collecting points toward their M’s under the old plan.

For examples of patience, note the Mixed Games Club members, who have been waiting all these weeks for their long-promised ping-pong tables. They seem to be having a good time anyway!

Rumors of swimming pools re-opening. . . Here’s hoping they’re true!

DECEMBER:—Brit—it’s getting cold in the showers, even if real winter seems to have skipped us!

And now we come to the first high spot in the basketball season. Ben Franklin’s gym was opened to girls from six schools for a play-day, and what a success it proved to be!

There’s a new club for our pleasure. The Bowling Club will meet on Mondays, and a team may even be organized to compete against other schools.

JANUARY:—Time out for exams and farewells to our friends who are graduating. After all, if they didn’t leave, who would there be to come back and remind us how care free we really are?

FEBRUARY:—At last it’s here! What? Why, swimming, of course! And now our senior year is to be even more successful than we had dared hope.

All clubs have been re-organized, but swimming has over-shadowed them in arousing enthusiasm. Both swimming clubs to be held after school have many members, who have waited long for their favorite sport.

After a whole term of waiting, the Mixed Games Club members have started a ping-pong tournament on the three new tables which have just arrived.

Nine Madison girls were fortunate in being invited to attend another Basketball Play-Day, this time at Monroe High, and they were very much pleased with the fun they had.

MARCH:—The main event in the basketball season, the choosing of the Honor Team, came early this year. On March 4, the club members, the Athletic Committee, and the gym teachers selected the nine seniors to receive this honor.

Once more the Athletic Committee goes to work, and this time plans a Track Meet for March 23 to take the place of a Gym Meet. This is just an experiment, for Madison girls always like to try something new and different. There are plenty of sore muscles, but everyone seems to be having lots of fun.

APRIL:—We’re back again; this time after an early Easter vacation. Our basketball games are over; so we reluctantly turn to volley ball, with many fond memories of hard-fought basketball games. Volley ball will take its place as a leading sport, and many fast games will be played.

For a third time, Madison girls are asked to participate in a play-day. At John Marshall High on April 14, an afternoon of volley ball, dancing, and swimming is offered for the enjoyment of girls from all schools. We who are graduating will carry with us many pleasant memories of the good times we have had at these “mixers.”

Everything comes early this year, and here it is time for another of those Athletic Banquets which have been so successful in the past. It is planned and supervised by the Athletic Committee, for the pleasure of all the athletically-minded girls, who support such events whole-heartedly.

MAY:—During this month even more emphasis is given to swimming, because for the last eight weeks of the term, the girls have the pool three times a week after school. There is much splashing from all classes, for everyone wishes to be a “white cap” or advanced swimmer before the year is over.

JUNE:—This month brings the chance all swimmers have been waiting for. A swimming meet will be held in which we expect the girls to display an amazing amount of skill in view of the fact that they have been swimming only a few months.

This event will finish up one of the most successful years in girls’ sports, and this year’s graduates are proud to realize that they have been a part of it.

To those who follow us, we can only wish the same enjoyment which we have derived from sports all during our years at Madison. May their sense of sportsmanship remain at a high level, and their activities advance to even greater heights of success!

ARTIST ANTICS

"TWELVE LITTLE MADISONIANS"

Doctor, lawyer, or big politician,
Bell-boy, artist, or a famous musician
Ambassador, waiter, or poet laureate
Literary genius, or the next war's "Ver."

AND HOW THEY GREW"

Let's imagine the years rolling by
As we gaze at the future with a visionary eye,
To catch a glimpse of a few of the routes
That may be taken by our '37 groups!

I read the sign again, blinked appreciatively at its boldness, and suddenly felt hungry.

ENGLISH

The first product of the cuisine which greeted my eyes was a bowl of alphabet soup. An assortment of teachers ladled it. As a starter I took it. — I observed that the soup which was thickest with A's was weak and thin in ease. Too, the bowls which were ladled hurriedly did not seem to be as full as the ones done more carefully. I was lucky to get an usually full bowl of steaming, thickly-lettered liquid.

MATH

As I slid my alphabet soup along the rail, I noticed that the next thing of any importance was a plate of mathed potatoes (they just called it "math" for short). A young lady behind the counter attracted my attention. She was dishing up the potatoes in a most appealing manner—very carefully and very thoroughly, taking care that no potato was spilled and wasted. Her name was Miss O'Donnell. On the other hand, a tall, almost ungainly man working beside her slapped the potato around in a most unorthodox manner. He was extremely adept in handling this dish but seemed to leave it to the potato, whether or not it was to stay on the dish. His name, needless to say, was Hathorn.

SCIENCE

Along with the potatoes came the meat, the really stable course. It was scientifically prepared meat, carefully balanced in regard to calories, protein, fat, chemical composition; and it was plainly cooked at just the right temperature in a sporless kitchen. The three persons behind this part of the counter were in keen competition. A wiry little man, called Sharpe, with drilling eyes which fitted his name, argued that the real value of the meat was in its protein, fat, and properties which would help my white corpuscles and send reinforcements to my red ones. A Mr. McLaughlin, unconcerned, apparently, over Mr. Sharpe's ranting, lectured on how the physics of heat was the thing most necessary to my enjoyment of their dish. And another solid looking gentleman named Curtice, after trying to sell me chocolate cake instead, finally fell into a discussion of how the chemical composition of the meat was better, lots better, than of even the wholesome goodness of maraschino cherries.

FRENCH

As a side dish, in place of dessert, I decided to try some frog-legs. — "French," the sign said. Mrs. Carson was behind the counter here; but she talked so rapidly in a language that I couldn't understand, that I took three legs, (which made it seem more impersonal than just two legs) and went on, grumbling.

The cashier rang up $1.60 eight times, and my pockets became twelve dollars and eighty cents lighter. I wagged my head sadly at the price. But that dinner lasted a long time, and its effects will last longer. Nobody else could have eaten it for me. You know, I feel pretty well, thank you.

1. It's fun for some people, but not for poor Al. 2. In the arms of Morphine—we mean Morpheus. 3. Look, we're getting a new flag! 4. Oh, Miss Seybold! What a pretty smile. 5. Romeo takes the poison; Juliet just sleeps away. 6. "Fran" studies—sometimes! 7. Is it a letter, Miss Sheehan? 8. That's a pretty dress, Bernice. 9. Rocco disagrees with the teacher. 10. Miss Goddard dared us to take her picture. 11. Mr. White, mustache twiddler. (Those Dionnes get in everywhere.) 12. Mr. Newman doesn't seem very interested, does he, Mr. Link?
